South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 7, 1863. NO. 1.

The SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD is published every WEDNESDAY Morning, at Allen's Building, South Danvers Square, by

CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editor.

TERMS—Two Dollars a a year.

Cards.

WILLIAM C. CHOATE,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
Salem, August 6, 1862. tf

WM. P. UPHAM,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
DANVERS, MASS.
Opposite the Village Bank.
Mr. Upham will attend to the collection of Pension and Bounty Money.

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Residence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
South Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
Office, No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to
Rooms formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
NO. 27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM,
STEPHEN B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Office, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.

Claims against the Government for Bounty Back Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
No. 4 MAIN STREET, So. DANVERS SQUARE.
Mechanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
Teeth Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
SURGEON DENTIST,
No, 206 Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market
Residence--No. 57 Washington street.
jan 11—1y

F. POOLE,
INSURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Family Groceries, Flour & Grain,
HARD WARE AND CROCKERY,
Ready Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods,
Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
South Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
SAM'L NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Crockery, China and Hardware; Paper Hangings; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.
No. 32 Front street, Lawrence Place,
feb13 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
All orders promptly and faithfully executed.
jan2-1y

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
West India Goods, Country Produce
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

FRANCIS P. COSS,
PLUMBER,
No. 7 St. Peter St.,
SALEM, MASS.
June 26 tf

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
Gold and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
at Rooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger.
164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
WINDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
mch6-tf

WALKING MADE EASY.
DR. P. KENISON,
CHIROPODIST,
215 Washington St., Boston,
Cures Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails, Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

WILLIAM D. NORTHEND,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
HAS REMOVED TO BROWNE'S BLOCK
No. 224 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.

Selected.

The King and the Banker.

'Some time ago,' said Mr. Peabody, the banker, to the writer of the following anecdote, 'business of importance required my speedy presence at the Prussian capital. Our house had not long before been established, and as the Prussian government wanted money, I thought it expedient to see their minister myself without delay. The journey was somewhat dangerous, as the state of Germany had become rather precarious. The French had again been so polite as to pay us, unasked, a visit, and were not likely to look with a very kind eye on a banker who was hastening to the seat of government to lend money. However, I was young, undaunted, of a happy flow of spirits, and cared neither for Napoleon nor any of his adherents, and so I bid Anthony, who is my witness,—the well embroidered footman nodded complacently from behind the chair of his master—'to make himself ready' to place some wine and a dozen pheasants in our chest, and to take his seat in the post-chaise.—The pheasants were intended as a present for the Prussian finance minister. I felt highly delighted when I arrived at the frontiers of Saxony, but my joy was soon to give way to other sensations. I was always fond of a good dinner and a good glass of wine; things which are rarely to be met with in Saxony. It is a wretched country, and their wine is stuff compared to which our vinegar is nectar. I had traveled three days, and changed horses fifteen times. My bottling establishment was nearly out when I found myself on the borders of Prussia, a vast desert of sand where nothing grows but the hungry pine and curly-headed children; yet still they might put better dinners before respectable travelers. It is really a shame; nothing but dry veal, potatoes and beer! You may judge, sir, of my situation by the fact that I was obliged to attack the chest which contained the intended present for the Prussian minister, and to purloin one of the pheasants. I ordered Anthony to cook it; it was excellent, and so was my last bottle of Rhenish. My appetite being satisfied, I mounted my post-chaise again, and proceeded on my journey. Our wheels plowed through the waves of sand as deeply as a three-decker through the billows of the sea.'

'My patience at length became exhausted, and being weary of looking at the sandy surface, I fell asleep. Shortly afterward a terrible shock awakened me. I endeavored to look round, but could not. I struggled to open my mouth; it filled with sand. My feet were fast in the carriage. I was near being killed.—In short, the axle-tree of the chase, and one of the wheels were broken. Anthony had fared somewhat better than his master, and he relieved me from my disagreeable situation. Now, sir, you may believe me, this was no joke. There I was, fifteen miles from Berlin, and two from the next village, with a portfolio containing several hundred thousand dollars in paper, and no conveyance. Presently I discovered a carriage travelling the same road. It approached. Two gentlemen occupied the seats. A footman was behind. My resolution was soon taken. I ordered Anthony to get my post-chaise repaired, and to follow me to the Brandenburg hotel as soon as possible. Thus resolved, I stepped toward the carriage, which had now come up to us.

'Gentlemen,' said I, lifting my hat civilly, 'will you be so good as to afford a traveler, whose chaise you see is broken, a seat in your carriage?'

'Certainly,' said the youngest; 'please to step in.'

'I did so. The first minutes were passed in surveying the strangers, with whom my happy, or unhappy, stars, I knew not which, had brought me in contact. I was in a military country, and I was soon convinced that my new companions were military men.

The complaisance of these strangers soon restored me to my former good humor, and thinking it my duty to meet their politeness by similar advances, I began to enter into something like conversation with them; they, however, were not the most talkative persons in the world. I spoke of the war which was raging between France and Austria, but I received only a nod. I went over the prospects of Prussia—no answer at all; the old gentleman was as dry as a chip, the young one as shy as a lark. I hate sullenness, especially in young men, and thinking that my subjects were perhaps disagreeable, I changed them to the state of the country. I was not very lavish of my praise, and censured the government for not repairing the roads. Both gentlemen were extremely attentive, but still more reserved. I had now tried every means to bring them into conversation. At last I spoke of my fare, and of the miserable dinners provided for travelers. They smiled.

'What do you think, sir,' said I, addressing the young man, 'I have dined upon?' A pheasant I knew he never would guess.

'I do not know, sir.'

'Well, guess then,' said I.

'The young man looked significantly, and entering into my humor, returned:

'I do not know, indeed; perhaps a shoulder of mutton?'

'My hand fell involuntarily upon his knee.

'Higher,' said I.

'Well, then, perhaps you have dined on a goose?'

'Higher,' replied I, placing my hand a second time on his knee.

'Then it was a chicken,' said he.

'Higher,' replied I, accompanying my word with a third slap.

'You have not, surely, dined on a turkey in so poor a country?'

'Higher, sir,' returned I, striking him for a fourth time on his knee.

'Well, then, it must have been a pheasant.'

'You have hit it, sir; a pheasant brought from Frankfort, and if you will do me the honor of being my guests at the Brandenburg hotel, you shall dine off pheasants, too.'

'Neither promised to come, but both smiled.

'After this dialogue we rode several miles without speaking a single word, when the young man, in quite a friendly tone, said:

'Now sir, to ask you a question, whom do you think you ride with?'

This question was put in the usual brisk tone of a Prussian officer. I looked at the stranger a moment; he was about my age but much taller. His dress was a plain surtout, and his head was covered with a woolen cap, strongly set in leather with a narrow gold brim. He had a good deal of the military cast.

'Well,' said I, 'I think I have the pleasure of being in company with a military gentleman—a captain,' said I, askingly.

'Higher,' said the young man, striking me in his turn on the knee.

'The old gentleman now began to laugh.

'A major, then,' said I.

'Higher,' repeated he, slapping me a second time.

'He understands a joke,' thought I.

'So young, and already a colonel?'

'Higher,' said he again with a fourth slap.

'He is getting impudent, thought I.—I looked confounded at his assurance.

'Then I have the honor to be in company with a general,' said I, with a sarcastic incredulity.

'Higher,' he still replied, with another slap.

'This, I thought,' is the most impudent fellow I ever met with, and giving vent to my impatience, said:

'Then you are a field marshal?'

'We were by this time before the Brandenburg gate. I was fully persuaded that I was treated as a dupe by my companions. The young man's higher had so confounded me that I was thunderstruck when the hats flew off in every direction. 'Gewehr aus!' shouted the multitude, and officers and soldiers rushed from the guard-house to their muskets; the drums were beating, the arms presenting; a number of carriages passed through the gate, and, in the confusion of the crowd, thronging from every side, I looked for the royal personage to whom all these honors were paid. Our carriage whirled fast toward the Brandenburg hotel.

'Where do you wish to alight?' said the young gentleman.

'At the Brandenburg hotel, if you please,' was my answer.

'There it is,' said he.

'I leaped from the carriage, took my portfolio, and bowing, requested the pleasure of their seeing me at dinner.

'You shall see us,' said the younger, and off they went.

'The landlord and waiters of the hotel rushed toward me as I entered the gate, bowing to the ground. The former addressed me by the title of highness.

'My name,' said I, 'is Peabody, banker. Do you know the gentleman with whom I arrived?'

'Gentleman,' repeated the landlord, significantly; 'it was the king.'

'A good joke,' said I; 'the young fellow was near telling me so himself.'

'Beg your pardon, banker,' said the landlord, 'but please to use other terms when you speak of his majesty.'

'You are not in earnest?' said I.

'But I am, though; it is the king.'

'The waiters, and fifty other persons who had assembled round me, pledged themselves for the truth of what the landlord had spoken.'

'There was no doubt it was the king with whom I had made so free!

'I am, sir, a republican, and not afraid of any king in Christendom, yet the affair might have become a serious one. I had dropped expressions which were not suited to royal ears, and which I might have kept more wisely to myself. How would he take these things? what might he think of me? were thoughts which kept me awake for the greater part of the night.

'The next morning I began the rounds of my visits. I found the finance minister extremely tough. When I returned home the landlord informed me that a royal page had been at the hotel, summoning the banker Peabody to the castle.

'Well, thought I, nothing can happen worse than hanging, and throwing myself into a hackney-coach I rolled toward the royal residence of the king. The appointed hour was five. I was conducted through numberless guards into the royal apartments. When the last door opened, I beheld my young traveling companion seated on an ottoman. On his right side was a most beautiful lady; two boys and as many girls were playing in the chamber.

'A king, thought I, who can enjoy domestic happiness, cannot be a tyrant, and I stepped resolutely forward.

'This, dear Louise,' said his majesty, 'is the banker, who so agreeably entertained me yesterday.'

'Banker Peabody,' said the lovely queen, 'we hope you will take a better opinion of our country home with you.'

'She stretched out her hand, and I was permitted to kiss it.

'Nor was this all. I had to tell my whole adventure over. I, however, omitted the slapping on the knee. In short, I spent the most agreeable hour in my life. The following day I concluded my money business. The royal condescension had rather too much captivated the otherwise cool banker. I entered somewhat deeply into Prussian money matters—so deeply, that his royal majesty, twelve months afterward, had well-nigh ruined me. I do not know whether I would not have forgiven him for the sake of this hour. However, Frederic William has since honestly paid me both debt and interest.'

A TOUGH ONE.—A few evenings since, in our "private crib," there was a learned dissertation; subject, "Bed-bugs and their remarkable tenacity of life." One asserted of his own knowledge that they could be boiled and then come to life. Some had soaked them for hours in turpentine, without any fatal consequences. Old Hanks, who had been listening as an outsider, here gave in his experience in corroboration of the facts:

"Some years ago I took a bed bug to an iron foundry, and dropping it into a ladle where the melted iron was, had it run into a skillet. Well, my old woman used that skillet pretty constant for the last six years, and here the other day it got broke all to smash, and what do you think, gentlemen, that ere insect just walked out of his hole, where he'd been layin' like a frog in a rock, and made tracks for his old roost up stairs! But," added he, by way of parentheses, "he looked mighty pale."

HOW TO "FINISH" A DAUGHTER.—For the attainment of this end, Punch gives the following directions:

"Be always telling her how pretty she is. Instil into her mind a proper love of dress. Accustom her to so much pleasure that she is never happy at home. Allow her to read nothing but novels. Teach her all of the accomplishments, but none of the utilities of life. Keep her in the darkest ignorance of the mysteries of housekeeping. To strengthen the latter belief, let her have a lady's maid. And lastly, having given her such an education, marry her to a clerk upon £300 a year. If with the above careful training, your daughter is not finished, you may be sure it is no fault of yours, and you must look upon her escape as nothing but a miracle."

☞ Where's Daniel F. Cate?

Waste of Cities.

Paris throws five millions a year into the sea. And this without metaphor. How, and in what manner? day and night. With what thought? without thinking of it. With what object? without any object. For what return? for nothing. By means of what organ? by means of its intestine. What is its intestine? its sewer.

Five millions is the most moderate of the approximate figures which the estimates of special science give.

Science, after long experiment, now knows that the most fertilizing and the most effective of manures is that of man. The Chinese, we must say to our shame, knew it before us. No Chinese peasant, Eckeberg tells us, goes to the city, without carrying back, at the two ends of his bamboo, two buckets full of what we call filth. Thanks to human fertilization, the earth in China is still as young as in the days of Abraham. Chinese wheat yields a hundred and twenty fold. There is no guano comparable in fertility with the detritus of a capital. A great city is the most powerful of stercoraries. To employ the city to enrich the plain would be a sure success. If our gold is filth, on the other hand our filth is gold.

What is done with this filth, gold? It is swept into the abyss.

We fit out convoys of ships, at great expense, to gather up at the South pole the droppings of petrels and penguins and the incalculable element of wealth which we have under our own hand, we send to the sea. All the human and animal manure which the world loses, restored to the land instead of being thrown into the sea, would suffice to nourish the world.

These heaps of garbage at the corners of stone blocks, these tumbrils of mire jolting through the streets at night, these horrid scavengers' carts these fetid streams of subterranean slime which the pavement hides from you, do you know what all this is? It is the flowering meadow, it is the green grass, it is marjoram and thyme and sage, it is game, it is cattle, it is the satisfied low of huge oxen at evening, it is perfumed hay, it is golden corn, it is bread on your table, it is warm blood in your veins, it is health, it is joy, it is life. Thus wills that mysterious creation which is transformation and transfiguration in Heaven.

Put that into the great crucible; your abundance shall spring from it. The nutrition of the plains makes the nourishment of men.

You have the power to throw away this wealth, and to think me ridiculous into the bargain. That will cap the climax of your ignorance.

Statistics show that France, alone, makes a liquidation of a hundred millions every year into the Atlantic from the mouths of her rivers. Mark this: with that hundred millions you might pay a quarter of the expenses of the government. The cleverness of man is such that he prefers to throw this hundred millions into the gutter. It is the very substance of the people which is carried away here, drop by drop, there in floods, by the wretched vomiting of our sewers into the rivers, and the gigantic collection of our rivers into the ocean. Each hiccough of our cloaca costs us a thousand francs. From this two results; the land impoverished and the water infected. Hunger rising from the furrow and disease rising from the river.

It is notorious for instance, that at this hour the Thames is poisoning London.—Victor Hugo.

ANCHORED HIS END.—Mr. Bildad Jones, mate of the Connecticut schooner Sally Anne, walked aft and addressing the Captain:—"Captain Spuner, if you keep the skuner on this course you'll have her hard agroond on the flats." Whereupon the captain replied: "Mr. Mate, you just go for'ard and 'tend to your part of the skuner, and I'll 'tend to mine." Bildad went forward, let go the anchor, walked aft and reported, "Captain Spuner, my part of the skuner is at anchor!"

☞ Oh, marry the man you love, girls, if you can get him at all, if he is rich as Crœsus, or as poor as Job in his fall. Pray do not marry for pelf, girls; 'twill bring your souls into thrall; but marry the man you love, girls, if he be ever so small. Oh, never marry a fop, girls, whether he is little or tall; he'll make a fool of himself and you—he knows nothing but to drawl. But marry a sober man, girls,—there are a few left on this ball,—and you'll never rue the day, girls, that you ever married at all.

Employment for Emancipated Negroes.

We believe it to be of vital importance to the complete success of the Proclamation of Emancipation, that its friends immediately take measures to furnish profitable employment to those slaves who shall come within the Union lines and claim their liberty under it. Unless this is done, only a few of the able-bodied, middle-aged men, who can be employed for military purposes, will be able to find employment, or the means of support; the remainder will become an immense burden to the Government, and remain in idleness.

Every day's labor which these people will be able to do, during the coming year, in the cotton-field, can be made worth two dollars at least, and will leave an immense margin of profit on the capital required to employ them, at that price, with anything like respectable management. For the same labor that was required to grow one dollar's worth of cotton in 1860, when it sold for ten cents per pound, will grow six dollars' worth to-day, when it sells for sixty cents per pound. The labor of a good field hand cost the master sixty-three cents per day in 1860. This cost consisted of the following items, viz:—twelve per cent. interest on the cost of a good hand, say twelve hundred dollars, which amounts to forty-eight cents per day; fifteen dollars per annum for clothing, equal to five cents per day; twenty-four dollars per annum for provisions furnished, equal to eight cents per day; time lost during sickness, expenses for medicine and negro quarters, equal to two cents per day,—making the total cost per hand sixty-three cents per day. We think no one will claim that twelve per cent. is too high a rate on perishable property like slaves, who are sure to become valueless in a few years; or that any of these estimates are too high. If, then, the negligent, slothful management of a Southern planter, with the rude, inconvenient, ill-conditioned tools and machinery used on most of the plantations, could pay sixty-three cents per day for slave labor, and grow cotton at a profit when it sold for ten cents per pound, what per cent. of profit would a Northern man make in the some business, with improved Northern tools, when the same labor could be obtained at one dollar per day, and cotton selling, as at present, at sixty cents per pound? Certainly five hundred per cent.; and there is little prospect of its selling below thirty cents per pound for some time, as only a small amount has been grown this season, or is likely to be next, and the profit of employing these laborers [illegible] would not fail to be extremely large. It would also add very much to the effect of the Proclamation if the slaves could be assured constant employment for themselves and families, with wages at one dollar per day for the labor of an able hand.

This being true, what greater mistake can be made than for the Government to add to the present enormous expenses, the burden of supporting tens of thousands of liberated slaves brought into our lines by the President's Proclamation, after the first of January, who are living in idleness and learning vicious habits? while large tracts of the best cotton lands in the world are in our possession and remain uncultivated, and our people suffer for the want of the cotton that might be grown on them. How shall this be avoided?

Capital should be raised at once—a large number of confiscated plantations purchased from the Government—arrangements made for tools, teams, supplies, transportation and superintendents. No time should be lost; the planting season will soon arrive. When it has passed it will be impossible to furnish profitable employment to liberated slaves if no crop has been planted.

The amount of capital required to commence an enterprise like this successfully in the outset, must necessarily be large; as those who engage in it at first must furnish their own transportation for supplies from New York to the plantations cultivated and for the crop grown to market, as no freight lines are running to the South now. After a careful investigation of the subject, we estimate that about two hundred dollars of capital will be required for each hand employed. How shall this capital be raised? As there is danger of being driven off by the rebels before the crop is gathered, and the whole investment lost, no one will be willing to invest a large amount in it, but many will risk a small amount for the purpose of seeing this experiment tried, and the fact demonstated that cotton can be grown cheaper with free labor than with slaves, and a movement initiated, which will be the means of inducing other parties to engage in many similar enterprises before the season is passed, and thus furnish employment to a large number of emancipated slaves.

The amount of capital required being greater than private parties would be willing to risk, there is clearly no method of raising it but by means of a stock company with a comparatively large capital, whose stock is divided into small shares.

We are willing and anxious to engage in this enterprise, and will invest three thousand dollars in its stock, provided others will join us and make up an amount of capital sufficient to go on with it successfully. Who will join us? Any one willing to take stock in such an enterprize to the amount of ten dollars or more, is invited to advise us of the fact by mail. Friends of the cause, let us hear from you. Ellis, Britton & Eaton. Springfield, Vt., Nov. 15, 1862.

☞ Four clerks have been engaged over three months in the Surgeon General's office at Washington in the compilation, chronological order, from official reports, of a complete list of all the casualities since the outbreak of the war. The difficulties of the undertaking are so great that they got through with the casualities of 1861 only about a week since. As the severest losses of life occured in 1862, the list will not probably be completed for several months.

ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

BRIGADE HEADQUARTERS,
HOUSTON, Mo., Dec. 12th, 1862.

DEAR WIZARD,—Nothing of importance has occurred since my last, and, as is a common saying with our troops, "all quiet on the Gasconade." To be sure we have made a retrograde march, and are once more occupying the lovely (?) town of Houston, where one of the best brigades that has been organized since the war is perfectly inactive and truly "wasting its sweetness on the desert air."

Pursuant to orders from headquarters, we left Hartville with an entire command early Tuesday morning, the 2d inst., and arrived here without interruption the next afternoon, where we found the 33d Mo., a section of artillery, and a company of cavalry, which had preceded us the week before. We have again taken possession of the Court House for headquarters, and are as comfortably situated as though we were to remain here "three years, or during the war;" and appearances would certainly indicate that such was the programme laid down for us; and it has ceased to be a wonder why this war is not brought to a close.

Guerilla parties are still hovering about us, and their movements furnish sufficient excitement to prevent us from dying of ennui. A lieutenant in command of an escort to a train from Salem came in an hour since and reported that a party of some two hundred of these bushwackers threatened his train last night, at a point some nineteen miles distant, but probably not considering the train of sufficient value to risk an attack, they abandoned it, and are now lying in wait for an expected train from Rolla; but a scout of one hundred cavalry has just gone out in pursuit of them and will block their game.

When my last hurried letter was written, I could not ascertain the loss of the guerillas in their attack upon our supply train, but supposed it to be but few; however we have since learned from good authority that thirteen of the rebels have died from wounds received that night, and that a lieutenant colonel was badly wounded. Since my last, two more of our wounded have died—one from our regiment—and two are not expected to recover. The devils robbed our men of their clothing as soon as they got in their possession—not even sparing the dead. They robbed every man they killed or took prisoner. This is what the glorious Southern Confederacy call Southern chivalry; but woe be unto them if they ever fall into our hands.

Deserters from the rebel army come to our lines daily to give themselves up, and, like all other prisoners that I have seen, their appearance is inexpressibly seedy. Clothed in the home-made jeans, of which there are but two shades, butternut and a dull kind of gray, they appear, when seen at a distance, to be a brownish mass, hard to distinguish from the soil itself. Their clothing is of the same material that the negroes wear; and even that is so patched that in many instances it is hard to tell which is the original cloth of the garment. They look worn, and gaunt with long living on short rations, and say they are heartily tired of the war, and their appearance corroborates their assertion.

The female portion of the population of this vicinity has kept itself in nun-like seclusion ever since the army entered the place. What few of them are visible to the naked eye convey the idea that the young and handsome (if there ever was any, and I doubt it much,) part of their sex must have gone off with the rebel army, or some place else. Among those that are left, and that are occasionally seen, are some who, if their personal charms do not attract some attention, manage to get themselves stared at by habits to which they are addicted, and which prevails here to an alarming extent,—I mean the habits of chewing—or chawing, as they call it—tobacco, and "mopping"—not mopping the floors—that would be angelic compared to it—but mopping snuff, which consists in smearing the gums on the outer side of the teeth with Scotch snuff,—when they can obtain it; if unable to procure that, the "native weed" is used. With about the same frequency that an inveterate snuff taker pokes the same article up his nostrils, these women smear their gums and take their regular "chaw."

Under the most advantageous conditions, old age is seldom beautiful; it is frequently interesting and attractive; the old age of virtuous and temperate youth always is; but aside from all the envious and disfiguring touches of time, these habits gives to these old women pallid, sallow, corpse-like skins, and dull, heavy eyes, that make their old age perfectly horrid.—Think of it, oh, young man, that readest "matrimony" in the stars of thy horoscope. Think of marrying these beauties! Turn the perspective glass of imagination on objects ten years away, and see thy wife—sallow and flabby and aged at thirty, mopping at her mouth with snuff and tobacco before she kisses thee. Besides all this, hoops,—beg your pardon—crinoline,—are entirely discarded, and from appearances, should judge that skirts are scarce; dresses, for the most part, are made of home jeans, and scant pattern at that; and I leave it for your imagination to picture the females of whom I have written. That there are exceptions to the above, I will admit, but they are few and far between. At any rate, your correspondent has concluded not to marry here this season.

Foraging in this country is—to use a common expression—about "played out," and our trains have to be sent at a distance of twenty miles to procure feed for our horses and mules, and only corn at that,—hay and oats are not to be had for love or money; and when you take into consideration that about five thousand bushels of corn per week are consumed by our stock, you can imagine that foraging is no small item. In regard to the foraging of the privates on a march, the confiscation of chickens, hogs, sheep, calves, &c., it is told as a sort of joke on the 21st Iowa, that they have arrived at such a state of perfection that they are able to kill, skin and stow away a hog in their haversack without breaking ranks or losing step. Gen. Herron is, however, severe on depredations committed on the property of citizens by the soldiers. He is determined, however, that they shall have no cause for complaint, or excuse for disloyalty. At the same time he is the most uncompromising foe to disloyalty, and believes that when the property of rebels is liable to confiscation there is a proper why of doing it, and not by plunder; and anything in the country necessary for the comfort or welfare of the troops can always be had by applying to him.

MYSELF.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 7, 1863.

☞ We have been unavoidably delayed in issuing this number, owing to our time being so much taken up last week in printing "Extra Wizards," containing an account of the Cate affair. Although we printed some 500 of them, the edition is now exhausted, and in order to satisfy the demands of the public we shall re-publish the account on the fourth page of our next issue.

Our Fourth Volume.

This number of the WIZARD is the first of our fourth year, and we are glad to find that our subscribers very generally acquiesce in the advance in price to two dollars per year. The enhancement of the price of paper renders the change in our terms imperative, and we shall use our best endeavors to make the paper fully worth its price.

We take this opportunity to call upon those of our subscribers whose accounts remain unsettled, to settle the same. By so doing, they will not only confer a favor upon us, but have the satisfaction of knowing that they have performed a duty and contributed their mite towards sustaining a press devoted to the public and private interests of our town. We hope we shall soon be able to announce a revival of business and the general prosperity of our citizens in all their honorable callings.

The Burglaries.

The excitement in regard to the late burglary has somewhat subsided and it is now considered safe to go abroad, armed with only one revolver. Cate has not yet been taken, and as he has had time to go to Canada, the far West, or start for California, it is the general impression that he will not be caught. We have nothing of importance to add to the statement we gave last week, which was substantially correct. We find that there are strong doubts about his concealment in the building of Mr. G. C. Peirce, although he must have found a place of concealment not far off, or he would not have been able to get possession of his clothing at his boarding place.

Among the effects found by the detectives, at the house of his friends in New Hampshire, was a gun belonging to Major Lewis Allen, which he identifies as one stolen from his house where Cate had been employed. The gun was found concealed under the floor of the attic.

THE LATE EXPEDITION OF GENERAL FOSTER TO 'GOLDSBORO', so successful in its results, is in happy and striking contrast with many that have been undertaken during the war. There was no heralding of the adventure—no grand flourish of trumpets, far and near, before the curtain rose. The public was not called upon to hold its breath in dread expectancy and listen with strained ear for the deep booming of cannon, the assured precursors of victory.

"Without a trump or proclamation made," this lately obscure general set about his business and did it as calmly and quietly as the nature of such a task would allow. The business referred to was the fighting of four set battles with the rebels, defeating them on each occasion with considerable loss, the capture of some hundreds of prisoners together with eleven pieces of artillery, the tearing up of several miles of the track of an important railroad, the destruction of bridges connected with the same, and finally, a safe return, with little comparative loss, to Newbern. Glory enough for a campaign of only ten days. General Foster's reputation should be fostered if he goes on like this.

THE ALABAMA.—This notorious freebooter was still at large at the last accounts continuing her depredations on our commerce notwithstanding that Harper's Weekly, in a late issue, contained an accurate engraving of the pirate to her minutest spar and rope yarn, copies of which were to be furnished gratis to our vessels engaged in pursuit of her. It was thought this notable Yankee scheme would be sure to settle her business, but alas, she is not yet taken! The probability is, that those in chase criminally neglected to supply themselves with the invaluable print. A late number of the periodical in question contains a photograph of Capt. Semmes' hang-dog visage.

☞ The number of slaves who are proclaimed free by the President's proclamation is estimated at a little over three millions.

One Horse Cars.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5th, 1863.

MR. EDITOR,—I noticed an article in the WIZARD of a late date upon the subject of the proposed Horse Rail Road between Salem and South Danvers. Though somewhat a layman in Horse Rail Road matters, I have not permitted myself to ride daily, for the past seven years, in the cars used upon them, without studying their advantages and disadvantages, their conveniences and inconveniences, and comparing the merits of the different styles of cars in use. The article to which I refer in your late issue, says that "perhaps it is fortunate that the severe frost prevented the laying down of the rails the present winter, as it may lead to a more enlarged accommodation of the travelling public, &c., &c.," and you refer to the one-horse car, from which it is inferred that the design of the Company is to run that class of vehicle.

The great element of convenience to the public, everything else being equal, in a line of conveyances, is the frequency with which they run. No one will dispute the proposition that a conveyance every 15 minutes between South Danvers and Salem would be a much greater convenience than one every half hour. Equally clear is it that one every five minutes would be better than one every ten; and one every three minutes would be still better. Another proposition I have to make is, that the comfort of a passenger does not depend upon the number of passengers that the vehicle will carry, but upon the room given to the passenger in that vehicle. It is difficult to see why a passenger cannot have quite as much room in a one-horse car as in one drawn by two horses. Still another proposition I think will not be dissented from, viz.: that with a given amount of travel to accommodate, a railroad company would be obliged to run twice as many cars, carrying fifteen passengers each, as they would if they carried thirty passengers each, and their intervals between cars would be but half as great,—can any one doubt which would be the greatest public convenience? Each passenger has the same room as in a large car, and has to wait for a car but half as long a time. In fact, an experience in New York shows that the great size of the two-horse car is a feature resulting in anything but comfort to the passenger, especially on a wet day.

The extra length of car only furnishes an increased number of passengers to tread upon your toes, while the extra width, beyond that necessary for a mere passage way, is appropriated by hangers on to straps pendant from the roof, and sometimes packed so thickly, that ingress or egress, particularly by ladies, is only accomplished by destruction to their toilets. Two-horse cars, whose sitting capacity is but 22, frequently carry 50 at those hours when travel is the heaviest, or a rain comes on suddenly. No lady here rides in one when she can find a one-horse car. The 6th, 8th and 9th Avenue roads in this city are fast increasing their stock of one-horse cars, and the time is not far distant when they will outnumber the cumbrous two-horse vehicles. A one-horse car starts quicker, travels faster, and stops quicker, than the others, where time is so great an object. As it is, and always has been with your citizens, these points must be conclusive.

Your article expresses fears that one-horse cars cannot transact the business. I understand that the number of passengers carried in the Omnibusses averages about six hundred per day. The railroad will more than double the travel, probably treble it. Let us suppose it treble, and that a one-horse car, with comfortable seats for 18 passengers, starts from either end of the road every 15 minutes for 16 hours. The average load for each car to accommodate this travel would be but 14 passengers. For such a business as this, the two horse car would run but half hourly. Railroad managers are not in the habit of running their cars at more frequent intervals than will provide paying loads. Will any unprejudiced man say that the one-horse car is not, then, the greatest public convenience?

The true theory of these lines of public transport, is to run the smallest vehicles possible, not small in respect to the room given each passenger, but the smallest possible in respect to the number of passengers. It is quite evident that you cannot get below the capacity of one-horse,—that is the minimum size. If 18 be the proper load for one-horse, let that be the capacity of the ear; if 12 be the proper load for one horse to draw, let that be the capacity of the cars and run them more frequently. I think that when you revolve these suggestions over in your mind, you and your readers will not advocate the directors of the railroad falling into so great an error as to reject a style of vehicle which all experience in this great city proves to possess conveniences and advantages beyond any other yet adopted, whether in respect to public convenience or private comfort.

X.

☞ Richard Yeadon of Charleston offers $10,000 for the capture of Gen. Butler.

The Horse Rail Road.

We insert, in another place, a communication in reply to some remarks we made in a recent number of our paper objecting to one-horse cars. Our observations related solely to their supposed insufficiency to accommodate the amount of travel. The writer of the communication, who appears to be well versed in street railroads, has made a strong case, both for their adaptedness for the comfort and convenience of the public, as well as for their sufficiency to carry all the passengers on the route. As we have at heart the success of this important enterprise, we sincerely hope his position is correct, and that within ninety days we shall see the road on the "full tide of successful experiment."

Lyceum Lecture.

For personal reasons we have refrained from any remarks upon the lectures of the present course at the Peabody Institute, but we present, in another column, the impressions of a correspondent after hearing the lecture of Rev. Mr. Barber of last week. It gives us pleasure to present to our readers remarks so appreciative, yet so just, and we think the views here expressed will meet with a general and hearty concurrence.

SLEIGHT OF HAND ON A GRAND SCALE.—The great wizard of the South, Signor Lincoln, has advertised that some time early in January he will change about a million head of black cattle, now grazing in Uncle Sam's pasture, at one stroke, into human beings, each one supplied with a soul, with the right and power of thinking and talking,—in short, with such a complete general fitout of qualities as us human beings, who were born such, possess. If the gifted artist is successful, it will be the most wonderful feat of jugglery on record The public are respectfully invited to witness the performance gratuitously.

MR. WHITE'S CARD.—We call attention to Mr. White's card of thanks to the people of South Danvers and Salem for their generosity to him on New Year's Day. We are glad to find that Mr. White bears his good fortune modestly and is not haughty and lifted up as men frequently are who suddenly become capitalists. Mr. White will continue to recognize his friends just the same as before this happy windfall. He intends to use his money judiciously and prudently for the benefit of his family, and all stories to the contrary are without foundation.

DISAPPOINTMENT.—The audience at the Peabody Institute assembled last evening to hear a lecture from Dr. J. G. Holland of Springfield, but for some unexplained cause, the lecturer did not appear.

Lieut. Col. Pardee, from Connecticut who served in the war, will give the lecture next week on Wednesday evening, giving a narrative of the early events of the struggle.

ATTEMPTED ARSON. — The Wallis School House on Sewall street was set on fire last evening in the room of Miss Burt, the teacher of the Intermediate School. Books and papers in the drawer of the teacher's table were in full blaze when it was discovered by a person in a neighboring house, who was attracted by the light of it, and who ran to the house and put out the fire.

NEW YEAR'S GIFTS.—We learn that Rev. Mr. BARBER, of the South Church, and his lady, have each been presented, in a quiet way, with a New Year's present from some of Mr. Barber's parishioners. His gift was a very valuable gold watch; and hers, a beautiful set of furs.

This was both a time-ly and warm expression of their good-will. We are not responsible for the pun.

THE KING AND THE BANKER.—Do not omit to read the lively sketch on our first page, with this title, of an adventure in Germany by Mr. PEABODY. It is an illustration of Solomon's proverb describing the character of the man who may "stand before Kings."

☞ The great hunt of the Editorial Club after Gen. Banks has resulted, it is now stated, in running him to earth at New Orleans. It is hoped they will now give up the chase and not attempt to dig him out.

☞ President Lincoln has presented to Senator Sumner, for transmission to George Livermore, Esq., of Cambridge, the pen with which he signed the Emancipation Proclamation.

☞ Over one thousand persons were killed and wounded by railroad and over three hundred by steamboat accidents, and about eighteen millions of dollars' worth of property destroyed by fire in 1862.

☞ We have heard it announced, from time to time during the war, that the rebels are "out generalled." It is a lamentable fact that they have always been out and out generalled.

Imagination.

MR. EDITOR,—We listened to the Rev. Mr. Barber's lecture on the above named subject last Tuesday evening, before the Peabody Institute, with intense interest and delight. It was the only production on that theme that we ever heard, or read, with perfect satisfaction. The lecturer advanced no metaphysical fine-spun theories respecting the nature of the "faculty divine," whether it belongs to the body, or the soul, exclusively, or results from the union of both.

He introduced no nice points of distinction between Fancy and Imagination, nor attempted any subtle analysis of each, but considered them in essence, as one and the same. Coleridge's definition of the "Primary Imagination" in his "Biographic Literarric" may have been clear and satisfactory to himself;—we do not say that it was not. We read the author's own maxim:—"Be sure you understand a writer's ignorance, or confess yourself ignorant of his understanding." We remember also his power and skill to spin a rainbow that would arch the heavens, from the colors in a humming bird's eye. But we question whether many common readers would derive a tangible idea from the following paragraph:—"The Primary Imagination I hold to be the living Power and prime Agent of all human Perception, and as a repetition in the finite mind of the eternal act of creation in the infinite I Am."

The drift of the lecturer's performance was of a more practical character, showing the Uses of the imagination and the proper means of cultivating it.

It is truly wonderful as seen in the light of the facts presented in the lecture, what an agency this almost Omnipresent faculty has in every department of human action. The statesman, the orator, the farmer, the mechanic, the historian, the poet, the sculptor, the painter and musician, are all indebted, in a greater or less degree, to its power for all they are enabled to accomplish in their different callings.

Bishop Butler in his "Analogy of Natural and Revealed Religion," says, "this forward delusive faculty is the author of all error." But we beg leave to differ on this point from this profound thinker, and prefer the philosophy of Cowper, as embodied in the following couplet:—

"Faults in the life, breed errors in the brain,
And these reciprocally those again."

That the imagination is the source of some errors we cannot doubt, but is it not equally clear that it is also the discoverer of many truths? Bishop Butler admits that it is of some assistance to apprehension." It goes before Reason and lights up her path, revealing some truths that she would not otherwise have discovered—just as lightning proceeds and illumines the highway of the storm.

Some writers has compared a gorgeous imagination to an autumnal sun, setting behind a forest of trees, which not only gives outline and distinctness to trunks, branches and foliage, but gilds the whole scene with a golden flood of light. So to our apprehension, did the imagination of the lecturer, give clearness to the subject matter of his performance, and clothe it with a robe of beauty. The lecture resembled a fairy's irridescent palace, inlaid with sparkling gems and roofed with rainbows.

We wish that some of the rules laid down by the speaker for the cultivation of the imagination, had been observed by such writers as George Gilfillan, Alexander Smith and the author of "Festus." Their ideas are literally crushed out of existence, under the cumbrous mass of tawdry imagery that is piled upon them—just as the Roman virgin is said to have expired beneath the weight of what she mistook for ornaments.

L. A.

THE LOSS OF THE MONITOR.—Notice has been received at the Navy Department that the Monitor foundered on Tuesday night, south of Cape Hatteras, with the loss of two officers and thirty-eight men.

The public will hear with surprise and regret of the deplorable loss of the Monitor—deplorable from the glorious associations connected with the vessel and from the loss of life involved. Brief as has been her career, no American vessel, unless it be the old Ironsides, and for another reason the first steamer of Fulton's great invention, has won a more grateful remembrance among the patriotic masses of our country or a wider reputation abroad. She appeared at a critical stage in our national struggle, and did the precise work for which she was designed—we might almost say she saved the country—and now she disappears with a sad mystery, strangely in contrast with her romantic debut in Hampton Roads.—Journal.

FOREIGN PRESS.—The London Times, in an editorial on peace prospects in America, congratulates the North on the better spirit it displays toward the South, and says from the liberality shown by a portion of the public toward relieving the Lancashire distress, it is willing to believe that a clearer perception of the honorable part England has played during the war now prevails.

The Daily News dilates with great satisfaction on the proceedings of the New York Chamber of Commerce with regard to the Lancashire sufferers. It says the movement is a proof not only of the deep and genuine sympathy for their suffering kinsmen, but of the good feeling toward the Queen and country at large, and believes that this sympathy will be a new bond of union.

A Recollection of Chapin's Oratory.

The continued illness of the Rev. Dr. CHAPIN excites painful apprehensions among his friends, and the lovers of eloquence are anxious lest the voice, which has so much and often charmed them, may be heard in public no more. May He who holds the absent invalid in His keeping over the sea, restore him in health and the plenitude of his faculties to his native land—the favorite pastor to his loving people and the favorite orator to the wide field of usefulness, which can so ill endure the loss of his husbandry.

As illustrating the character as well as the eloquence of Dr. Chapin, the writer recalls an exhibition of his oratory quite too remarkable to go unnoticed, impossible though it certainly will be to convey any just idea of the scene and the effect. It was in New York, in 1855. The "Maine Law" had been enacted by the State Legislature of the preceding winter and was to take effect the 5th day of July. The friends of Temperance in New York City were very solicitous for the fate of the Law, and for several months prior to this day, devoted themselves with the most determined energy to the arousing of a public sentiment which should insure the law's enforcement. Numerous meetings were held in all the wards of the city, and every man and woman, who could be persuaded to befriend the Temperance cause, in one capacity or another, was enlisted in the service. Among the prominent speakers at the meetings were Dr. Tyng, Dr. Cheever, Judge Culver, William H. Burleigh, Henry Ward Beecher and Edwin H. Chapin. One morning, among the special notices in the Tribune, was one announcing a meeting that evening at the Mercantile Library Hall, at which Mr. Chapin would speak. As was unusual, no other notice was given of the meeting. Happening to see the announcement of the Tribune, and unaware of the absence of other notice, the writer, in company with a friend, went early to the hall to get a good seat. Arrived, we took seats well in front—some dozen others then being present—and awaited the coming in of the audience. In a half hour or so some twenty other persons came, dropping in, one or two at a time, a part of them taking seats and others standing about the doorway and in the rear of the hall, looking rather perplexed and talking in a low tone, expressive of some mistake, some rise or the like. The hour of the meeting arrived—half past seven—and altogether there might have been forty persons present, men and women, to the hall a mere handful. In a few minutes Mr. Chapin came, rolling down the aisle in his accustomed way, and looking up through his glistening spectacles, evidently rather surprised at the paucity of his audience. To him it was unquestionably a novel scene. Possibly did the thought strike him, Is not my prestige gone? He took a seat on the front settee, alone. A contagious embarrassment rustled through the company—then an awkward looking round, followed by a settled stillness. The audience was obviously all there. The natural query arose, Will he speak? Will they let him speak? Ought he to speak? Presently two or three men—committee men, no doubt—went down to the silent orator and there was an interview. It was a short one. The orator arose, faced round, swept the hall over with a look and at once mounted the platform. He occupied it alone—commenced without introduction. He made no allusion to the smallness of the number present, nor manifested any emotion of surprise or disappointment, but immediately and earnestly entered upon his subject and spoke for over an hour. As he warmed with his theme, the frequent and forcible gesticulation, so peculiar to him, came into full play and addressed itself with his speech to all parts of the hall—to each side of the platform, where there was not an auditor—to the galleries, where there was none, and to the remote corners, where there was none. Wholly unconscious, he appeared to be, that there was not before and around him a sea of upturned faces.

His heart was in his work, and once entered upon it, he seemed incapable of the thought that the occasion had not furnished him with his wonted throng of listeners. Not half an hour and the beaded sweat started and coursed his ample cheeks. He drew awful and forbidding pictures of the haunts of Intemperance in the great metropolis. In vivid colors he painted the fashionable club-room, the gilded bar-room, the gamblers' rendezvous, and so on down to the gibbering misery and squalid discontent of the Five Points. Then with one hand impatiently brushing his handkerchief athwart his face, and with the other lifting his spectacles, his countenance lighted up with a glow of finer enthusiasm, and he changed the scene. He saw the rational man, the industrious husband, the happy home. He saw the children coming in with sparkling faces from the school—heard their chiming voices of praise to God on the Sabbath. He saw peace, and high, noble culture in the family—wealth and prosperity for the State—wealth and prosperity for the country—and best of all, peace and salvation for the immortal soul!

Two score times, if once, the writer has heard the same voice in public, but not before, nor since, with such effect, such power, such magnetism. Gough will carry you with streaming, pitying eyes to desolated homes—lift you to the skies, and shake your sides with merriment. Chapin will do that—did do that—and also fire the soul with a certain virtuous indignation of resolution that the world shall be reformed and things be better. He will start his audience with quick successive flashes of lightning and claps of thunder till the sense is so keen that the ear catches the faintest pattering of the rain; and the endangered household resolves that not again shall the forked lightning flash and dart, without the electric rod fixed to the housetop and holding out its hands to grasp and consume the subtle, direful element.

It is needless to say that we came away from the lecture thoughtful, but amazed—amazed at the man—and amazed that such a speech could be made in the heart of the metropolis, and out of seven hundred thousand human beings, only forty should hear it! A. A. P.

NEWSPAPER CHANGES.—We see by the Salem Observer that the veteran senior editor and publisher, Wm. Ives, Esq., is to retire from the establishment, leaving it to the sole but efficient management of his junior partner Mr. Pease. We have been a constant reader of the Observer about as long as we can remember, and it is just the paper for the family and the shop or farm. The ladies could no more do without it, than without their morning and evening beverage. It looks out well for the municipal and educational interests of the city, gives abundant local information and maintains a sound moral tone. We wish it continued success.

THE HAVERHILL GAZETTE comes to us with the new year in a bran new type and wonderfully improved in its outer man. It has always been one of the most readable of our exchanges and we rejoice at their evidences of its prosperity.

THE LAWRENCE SENTINEL is an able and well conducted paper, and it now appears in a brighter type and makes quite an improved appearance. We always had a liking for the Sentinel, aside from its politics. Its outside selections are made by somebody of excellent taste.

LINES

WRITTEN ON THE DEATH OF CHARLES A. PARROTT, WHO WAS KILLED IN THE BATTLE AT FREDERICKSBURG, VA., DEC. 13, 1862.

Gone to his final home! His work is done;
His faithful pilgrimage of life is o'er;
His noble heart, and still more noble deeds,
Have won for him a name by Rappahannock's shore.

Gone, and to ne'er return! No words can tell,
Nor can the feelings of the heart betray
The wild emotions that did fill his breast
Ere he was stricken down from earth away.

Gone, and forever gone! With tearful eyes
We say "Thy will, oh Lord, not mine, be done;"
Passed on from earth unto a brighter sphere,
A loving brother and an only son.

No gentle mother near, with willing hand,
To soothe the pain, or raise his drooping head;
No father's watchful eye was beaming forth;
No sister's prayer beside his dying bed.

Home now shall nevermore disturb thy dreams—
Thou'st reached it, and shall meet thy loved ones there.
We will not mourn that thou art gone before,
For soon we hope thy early bliss to share.

Thy comrades, hand in hand, beside thee fell,
As thick and fast the winged death-shot came,
And those who God has spared a nameless grave
Shall ever praise thy fair, unsullied name.

Teach us, oh God, Thy precepts all to bear,
So when on earth our daily course is run,
We'll say, when last the heavenly strand we tread,
"Thy will, oh Father, and not mine, be done."

GEORGIE.

So. Danvers, Jan. 6th, 1863.

DANVERS, Jan. 1.—William E. Sheldon, late a private in Co. I of the 14th Regiment, was yesterday afternoon buried from the house of Postmaster Shattuck. Mr. Sheldon was of the first to enlist in the company a year ago last April, and until his fatal sickness proved himself a quiet, but faithful soldier. He died near Harper's Ferry (where the company are now stationed) Dec. 7th, of typhoid fever. Owing to the storm the funeral services (which were conducted by Rev. Mr. Fletcher) were not largely attended; the relatives of the deceased and friends of his late comrades chiefly constituted the company. Mr. Sheldon leaves an aged father residing in Beverly and a sister whose husband is also in the 14th Regiment.—Gaz.

BOSTON—Amusements.—At Barnum's Aquarial Garden the spectacular piece, called the Yellow Dwarf, is being played to good houses. The wonderful living Hippopotamus is still to be seen at all times.

At the Howard, the talented and beautiful maggie Mitchell made her appearance on Monday last in the beautiful piece entitled Fanchon, or the Cricket. Manager Marshall is untiring in his endeavors to please, and deserves success.

At the Melodeon, a Panorama of a tour in Ireland, in connection with a fine musical entertainment by the Mac Evoy family, was unrolled for the first time this week. It is highly spoken of.

At the Museum the musical piece, called the Doctor of Alcartara, has been revived. It was very popular last season, and no doubt will prove so this.

MR. EDITOR,—In common with many others, at the hall during the course of lectures, I have suffered in consequence of its imperfect ventilation. I met the other day, with the following simple mode of ventilating, which effectually prevents the unsafe consequences of a direct draught of air:—

"In English churches and lecture-rooms, the top edge of one of the upper panes in each window is made to fall forward three or four inches, and secured in that position by goring pieces of glass fixed on each side; a glass cover is made with hinges to shut down upon the opening thus left, and this is pulled up by a string when air is wanted. It can be left open always, as the slope of the pane prevents rain from beating in."

BATTLE OF PRAIRIE GROVE.—Rebel newspapers captured at Van Buren, Ark., admit the loss of the rebels in killed and wounded at the battle of Prairie Grove was over 4000.

The entire telegraphic correspondence of General Hindman was taken. It contains much valuable information, and will be forwarded to the War Department.

The destitution of the rebel army is most pitiable. Four thousand of Hindman's infantry are without shoes.

SALEM MUNICIPAL ELECTION.—The municipal election in the city of Salem, Monday last, resulted in the triumph of the Citizens' candidate, Stephen G. Wheatland, Esq., by a majority of nine votes over the Republican nominee, J. B. F. Osgood, Esq. At the State election, in November, the vote of Salem stood:

Republican,	1327
People's,	823

The entire Citizens' ticket for Aldermen was also chosen.

THE gallant Rosecrans has done nobly, and deserves the thanks of the Nation. His victory will turn the tide strongly against the rebels, and is a severe blow to their cause. Should our army succeed at Vicksburg, the enemy will be hard pushed to save themselves from destruction.

☞ The New York Express is of the opinion that as Massachusetts and South Carolina made the war, they ought to be left to fight it out.

LADIES, don't fail to read "Peabody's Annual Closing Out Sale" advertisement in this week's issue.

Railroad tickets for Boston—at PEABODY'S

GREAT VICTORY

MURFREESBORO' EVACUATED THE REBELS.

PURSUIT of the FLYING ENE

THREE REBEL GENERALS KILL

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 5. The follow from the Associated Press correspondent:- rebels attacked our forces on Saturday at M., posted strongly in rifle pits, and we pulsed with terrible slaughter. The battl ed two hours.

At one o'clock Sunday morning the commenced to retreat.

At noon Stanley's cavalry entered Mur boro', and captured prisoners, guns and s

The Federals on Sunday, in force, occ Murfreesboro.' The enemy has gone to homa.

The mail from Somerville arrived to-n

About 5400 of our wounded are in Mur boro.'

No rebels or guerrillas are on the road.

The rebel General Cheatham was repor have been killed while in a house in Mu boro, by a shell.

Gen. McCown, rebel, is certainly kille

The Cumberland river has risen 4 1-2 since last night.

Other sources say the Federals are d the rebels towards Tullahoma.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6. The Tribune ha following special dispatch:—

BATTLE-FIELD, STONE RIVER, Jan. 5 Saturday it rained and all was quiet night, when the 3d Ohio and 88th Indian iments charged and carried a rebel breas capturing 50 prisoners and killing many with slight loss.

During the night the enemy evacuate are supposed to be retreating to Fayettev

Our loss in killed and wounded is abou The enemy claim that they captured abo prisoners. Their loss in killed and woun fully as great as ours. Our loss of v field officers is distressing.

The rivers are all rising rapidly. Ge lieh is a prisoner.

The Murfreesboro Rebel of the 2d, ad rebel loss of 5000 in Wednesday's battle. have lost at least 2000 since.

Prisoners state that Gens. Hardee an son were killed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. The followi patch has been received at Headquarters

"HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT CUMBERLAND, Jan. 5, 1863.

Major General Halleck, General-in-Chie

We have fought one of the greatest ba the war, and are victorious.

Our entire success on the 31st was pre by a surprise of the right flank, but w nevertheless beaten the enemy after 3 days' fight. They fled in great precip on Saturday night.

The last of their columns of cavalry l morning.

Their loss has been very heavy.

Generals Rains and Hanson are kille Generals Clarkson, Adams and Breck are wounded.

(Signed) W. S. ROSECR Major General Comma

NEW YORK, Jan. 6. The Nashville U the 1st inst. says: "On Wednesday fo Gen. Rosecrans massed his batteries into of nearly 100 guns, and opened them u enemy's centre. The latter tried to and take them, and such slaughter a took place is unknown to history. The and retreated yesterday noon, leavi Union army and its leaders in possessio battlefield.

There was no general fighting ye afternoon, Gen. Rosecrans keeping the and roads alive with shells.

The three days' fighting already don most awful to be conceived. Thousa men are killed and desperately wounded woods and roads are lined with exhaust cowardly stragglers of both armies. Th of each at the outset was estimated a 70,000 all told. Probably Bragg had at the most, consisting of cavalry an scripts. The Tennessee and Kentucky fought like tigers.

$1.10

During the closing sale we shall sell o Stitched Black Kid Gloves for $1.10. have a nice stock in Black and Mode Co

JOHN P. PEABO

BARGAINS.—See PEABODY'S closi advertisement.

A Card.

Mr. SAMUEL QUINER WHITE tenders Ladies and Gentlemen of South Danve to the patrons of the WIZARD in particu sincere thanks for their liberal respons New Year's Address. Having succeed yond his most sanguine expectations, h this method of expressing his gratitu their kindness. May they all be rewa the best of Heaven's blessings on the and their families.

South Danvers, Jan. 5th, 1863.

Physicians' Notice.

The Physicians of Danvers have unan ly agreed that, on and after MARCH 1st they will charge 75 cents per visit.

Danvers, Jan. 6th, 1863.

To Let.

A BUILDING on Spring Street, suitabl Currier or a Shoe Manufacturer. Inq R. S. D. Symonds, 54 Main Street.

South Danvers, July 25, 1862.

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Feder

PRICES REDUCED!

WE shall sell our DRESS GOODS DUCED PRICES.

We shall sell all the different styles dies' Watch Spring, Bon Ton and Skirts, at a discount.

All our Balmoral Skirts at a discount

French Prints and other grades;

Domestic Goods;

Cottons, Flannels, Crashes;

Blankets, the very best quality—all w

Batting, full pound bundles;

Wool Wadding, Sheet Wadding, bla white.

☞ In order to prepare for Spring we shall sell at the very lowest prices fo

jan 7 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Feder

Notice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

Notice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

South Danvers Fish Market.

P. F. JOHNSON, Proprietor.

FRESH FISH constantly on hand, and delivered to customers free of charge. ap30

NEW.

BROWNING & LONG will open this morning, a splendid assortment of

EMBROIDERED SLIPPERS,

entirely new patterns and designs—the latest European Styles.

Also, a variety of STEEL GOODS, the handsomest assortment yet shown in Salem.

Marriages.

In Salem, Jan 1st, by Rev Mr Dwinnell and Rev Dr Emerson, Rev Lucius R Eastman, Jr., of South Braintree, to Miss Octavia Y, daughter of the late Rev George P Smith.

Jan 1st, by Rev Mr Beaman, Mr Moses D Webber to Miss Eliza Pye.

In Lynn, Dec 31st, by Rev Mr Osgood, Mr William Henry Buzzell of South Danvers, to Miss Laura A Prescott of L.

Deaths.

In Danvers, 5th inst, Mrs Sarah B., widow of the late Mr Ansell H. Webster, 30 years 1 month—formerly of South Danvers.

In Salem, Dec 31, Charles F Putnam, Esq, 60 years; Mr George S Morgan, 60 years; Jan 2, Mrs Eliza, wife of Mr Thomas Clough, 38 yrs; Mrs Emma C, widow of the late Mr Daniel Dodge of South Danvers, 63.

In Beverly, Dec 28th, Mrs Elizabeth, widow of the late Capt Benjamin Chase, and daughter of the late Capt Benjamin Beckford, 83.

In Washington, D C, Mr Charles P. Dodge of Salem, 47 yrs.

Advertisements.

IHLSING & NARVESON'S

Celebrated New Full 7 Octave

PIANO FORTES,

OF superior tone and finish, plain and ornamental, nameboard inlaid with pearl, full iron frame, grand action, overstrung bass pearl or ivory keys, plain or carved legs, are for sale at

218 Essex Street, Salem, Up Stairs.

Any one wishing to obtain a superior instrument is invited to call before purchasing elsewhere.

jan 7—tf S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

Probate Notice.

ESSEX ss. To the Heirs-at-Law and others interested in the Estate of SAMUEL TUCKER, late of South Danvers, in said county, cordwainer, intestate, greeting:

Whereas, Joseph Poor, administrator of the estate of said deceased has presented for allowance the first account of administration upon the estate of said deceased: You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Salem in said County, on the first Tuesday of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed. And the said administrator is ordered to serve this Citation by publishing the same once a week, in the South Danvers WIZARD a newspaper printed at South Danvers, three weeks successively, the last publication to be two days at least before said Tuesday.

Witness, GEORGE F. CHOATE, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this sixth day of January in the year eighteen hundred and sixty-three.

A. C. GOODELL, Register.

South Danvers, Jan 7, 1863.

Danvers Savings Bank.

THE Annual Meeting of the Members of this Corporation will be held at the office, in Rooms of the Village Bank, on WEDNESDAY, the 14th inst., at 3 o'clock, P. M.

WM. L. WESTON, Secretary.

Danvers, Jan 7, 1863.

PERIODICALS.

NOW is the time to buy—selling low—at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, 190 Essex street.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS

ALL the American and Foreign Magazines and Periodicals supplied at the lowest rates; numbers promptly delivered—back numbers furnished and volumes bound.

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

ACCOUNT BOOKS.

A LARGE assortment made under our own supervision and warranted to give satisfaction;

Blank Books of every style made to order in the best manner.

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, 190 Essex street.

FOR SALE.

A GOOD comfortable Home, a two-story House, L, Shed and Barn, in good repair, pleasantly located in Londonderry, N. H., 1 1-2 miles from center of town, 10 acres of Land, with plenty of Fruit. Price only $650.

Also—an excellent Stock Farm of 250 acres, for sale or exchange.

dec 31 L. BRICKETT, Derry, N. H.

Messenger's Notice.

ESSEX ss. Dec'r 16, 1862. A warrant has been duly issued by Hon. GEO. F. CHOATE, Judge of the Court of Insolvency, for said county of Essex, against the estate of

JOSEPH W. VITTUM, of Middleton,

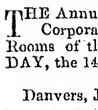
in said county, shoe manufacturer, insolvent debtor; and the payment of any debts, or the delivery of any property belonging to said insolvent debtor, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law.

The first meeting of the creditors will be held at a Court of Insolvency, to be holden at the Court House in Salem, on the 12th day of January next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, for the proof of debts and the choice of an assignee or assignees of said estate.

DANIEL POTTER, Dep. Sheriff,

dec 24 Messenger.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.



THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.

South Danvers, Dec, 10th, 1862. tf.

James F. Almy.

PRICES REDUCED.

WE shall close our stock of

Winter Dress Goods

At REDUCED PRICES, from this date.

We offer a fine stock of

CUSTOM MADE CLOAKS

JAMES F. ALMY,

jan 7 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

SALESMAN WANTED.

APPLY at 181 Essex street, Salem.

A. J. ARCHER, & CO.

LOW PRICES

STRICTLY ADHERED TO.

NEW AND FASHIONABLE

ZEPHYR KNIT GOODS,

—AT—

BROWNING & LONG'S.

NOW OPEN,

AN ENTIRE NEW STOCK OF Hand-Knit Zephyr Goods!

Being the handsomest assortment ever shown in Salem, many patterns entirely new this season.

BREAKFAST	SHAWLS,
BREAKFAST	SHAWLS,
BREAKFAST	SHAWLS,
BREAKFAST	SHAWLS,
BREAKFAST	SHAWLS,
LADIES'	HOODS,
LADIES'	HOODS,
LADIES'	HOODS,
LADIES'	HOODS,
LADIES'	HOODS,
	SONTAGS,	SLEEVES,
	SONTAGS,	SLEEVES,
	SONTAGS,	SLEEVES,
	SONTAGS,	SLEEVES,
	SONTAGS,	SLEEVES.
	GAITERS,	BOOTEES,
	GAITERS,	BOOTEES,
	GAITERS,	BOOTEES,
	GAITERS,	BOOTEES,
CHILDREN'S	CLOAKS,
CHILDREN'S	CLOAKS,
CHILDREN'S	CLOAKS,
CHILDREN'S	CLOAKS,
CHILDREN'S	JACKETS,
CHILDREN'S	JACKETS,
CHILDREN'S	JACKETS,
CHILDREN'S	JACKETS,
CHILDREN'S	JACKETS,
	INFANTS'	HOODS,
	INFANTS'	HOODS,
	INFANTS'	HOODS,
	INFANTS'	HOODS,
	INFANTS'	HOODS,
	INFANTS'	CAPS,
	INFANTS'	CAPS,
	INFANTS'	CAPS,
	INFANTS'	CAPS,
ESQUIMAUX,
ESQUIMAUX,
ESXUIMAUX,
INFANTS'	SHAWLS,
INFANTS'	SHAWLS,
INFANTS'	SHAWLS,
	SMOKING	CAPS,
	SMOKING	CAPS,
	SMOKING	CAPS,
	SOLDIERS'	CAPS,
	SOLDIERS'	CAPS,
	SOLDIERS'	CAPS,
Children's	Mittens,
Children's	Mittens,
Children's	Mittens,
Children's	Mittens,
Children's	Mittens,
Chtldren's	Mittens,
	Soldier's	Mittens,
	Soldier's	Mittens,
	Soldier's	Mittens,
	CLOUDS,	CLOUDS,
	CLOUDS,	CLOUDS,
	CLOUDS,	CLOUDS,

These Goods are made expressly for our Retail trade, being rich and fashionable colors, and for

Quality and Low Prices, are not to be excelled.

Having on hand a full stock of

ZEPHYR WORSTEDS,

we are prepared to furnish any article of Knit Goods at short notice.

BROWNING & LONG,

(Successors to J. Mayer.)

Nov. 26. 177 Essex Street.

"Arbiter"

COOK STOVE!

THE BEST STOVE OUT,

WARRANTED in all cases or no sale. Upwards of Four Hundred now in use in Salem and vicinity.

No advance in prices. Call and examine, at Essex Block, 21 St. Peter street.

oct 29 C. H. FIFIELD.

Mr. MOSES G. FARMER, the inventor of the great Fire Telegraph Apparatus, now used in all the large cities, thus speaks of the qualities of the above stove:

"The arrangements in this stove for consuming the gas, are superior to any with which I am acquainted, and the absence of all smell of burning gas or other unpleasant odors, such as arise from coal burning stoves generally, is very noticeable and agreeable. The facility with which the draft can be regulated, and the rate of combustion governed is all that can be desired. The little front doors, which permit the cheerful burning mass to be seen, give it many of the advantages of an open grate. "The Arbiter" has the most satisfactory ovens, which I have ever seen. One has but to get acquainted with it to be able to bake slowly or quickly, bake equally well at top or bottom. It is easy to maintain a uniform temperature in it of 650 degrees F, or 200, or any intermediate temperature; well might there be written upon it Ne plus Ultra!"

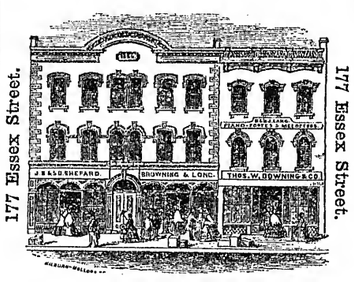
Job Printing done at this office.

Browning & Long.

1863.

REDUCTION OF STOCK.

DOWNING BLOCK,



Opposite Essex House.

F I R S T C L A S S G O O D S A T T H E L O W E S T P O S S I B L E P R I C E S

Finding that LOW PRICES are appreciated in Salem and vicinity, BROWNING & LONG are determined, notwithstanding the great advance in all classes of Goods, to close out the remainder of their RICH STOCK of Fall and Winter Goods at prices which cannot fail to suit.

Ladies will please remember that our Goods are First Class, and that we sell them at the Smallest Possible Profit.

On and after MONDAY, January 5th, we shall have many Goods open for inspection, and would invite all to come and examine the same, assuring them that they will be pleased with the Assortment and Prices.

BROWNING & LONG,

SUCCESSORS TO

J. MAYER,

☞ No. 177 Essex Street, ☜

SALEM, MASS.

Ladies will please remember that the principal Stores close at 6 o'clock.

George S. Walker.

For Friends in the Army and at Home.

USEFUL GIFTS FOR THE HOLIDAYS!

Can be selected from my assortment of

Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods,

COMPRISING the most desirable styles of

Scarfs—Ties—Stocks;
All wool Travelling and Army Shirts;
Hosiery—all kinds;
Under-Garments in great variety;
Shirts and Collars; Umbrellas and Canes;
Linen and Silk Hdkfs;
Calf Mitts—Lamb and Plush Lined;
Also—every style of WINTER GLOVES, lined and unlined—in Buck, Calf, Kid, Cloth, Silk, etc:

——Together with a great variety of——

USEFUL ARTICLES FOR GENTLEMEN,

Such as Purses—Pocket Books—Pocket Knives Hair Brushes—Razors—Strops—Mirror Glasses, etc,

All at Fair Prices.

GEORGE S. WALKER,

dec 31 228 Essex st. Stearns' Block.

A. J. Archer & Co

PARIS KID GLOVES.

A FRESH SUPPLY, JUST RECEIVED and for sale by

aug 6 A. J. ARCHER & CO., 181 Essex St.

CLOAKS AND SACKS.

Cloak Beavers

—AND—

Cloak Cloths

In all the most desirable styles!

A large assortment just opened, and for sale by

AUGUSTUS J. ARCHER & CO.

nov 12 181 ESSEX ST.

November 19, 1862.

NEW FALL GOODS.

We ask attention to our large and attractive stock of

NEW GOODS,

which will be offered at

LOW PRICES.

nov 29 A. J. ARCHER & CO., 181 Essex st.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE SUBSCRIBER wishes to invite the attention of the public to the Fine and extensive assortment of

MEN'S & BOYS'

CLOTHING,

Hats, Caps, Furnishing Goods,

And Boots for Men's, Boys' and Youths' Wear,

which I have received within the past week for the winter trade.

I have made every possible endeavor to select a stock that shall be in EVERY RESPECT good and feel confident that I can offer such inducements as will secure a liberal patronage.

My stock in the Men's line, being probably as large as any in the State (out of Boston) and the only one in the vicinity that has a full assortment of Gent's Furnishing Goods, I shall always endeavor to keep a full stock of all the latest styles of FINE, as well as the lower grades of clothing.

Having had 20 years experience I flatter myself that I can and certainly shall make it my aim, to sell my customers GOOD CLOTHING at the VERY LOWEST MARKET PRICES.

I shall take pleasure in showing my stock and prices at any time, which can be examined without being importuned to buy. You can then judge for yourself whether I can make it for your interest to purchase. My business will be conducted strictly on the

ONE PRICE SYSTEN,

and no deviation can be made in any case.

S. R. BOTT,

MAIN STREET, Townsend's Building, nearly opposite the Peabody Institute.

GARMENTS Cut for Men and Boys in the latest styles.

South Danvers, December 10, 1862.

CLOSING OUT

ALL THE STOCK IN

NO. 10 FRONT ST,

TO MAKE ALTERATIONS AND COMMENCE THE NEW YEAR

WITH A NEW STOCK.

—ON HAND—

Crockery and Glass Ware;
250 Kerosene Lamps;
Silver Plated Spoons, Forks, Mugs, &c;
Knives and Forks, Odd Forks, Carvers, &c;
100 good Cast Steel Axes (handled) at only 75;
Boots & Shoes, Hats & Caps, Clothing Cloths;
Trunks, Travelling Bags, Sleds, Whips;
Looking Glasses, Work Boxes, Writing Desks;
Window Shades, Fixtures, Cord and Tassels;
Fancy Goods, Furnishing Goods;
100 doz. Hosiery; 100 doz. Gloves, all kinds;
With a great variety of other goods.

☞ Please call soon, at No. 10 Front St.

B. COLMAN,

Salem, Dec 24. 3w

USEFUL ARTICLES

—FOR—

HOLIDAY GIFTS.

CASHMERE Mantles, best quality;
Chenille Scarfs; Neck Ties, for Children;
Gloves and Hosiery;
French and English Prints, very neat patterns;
American do. at the lowest prices;
Linen Hdkfs, plain, hem-stitched and bordered;
New styles of Long Shawls;
A full assortment of DRESS GOODS, which we shall sell at a discount.
A full line of Table Linen, Crashes, &c.

ANN R. BRAY,

dec 24 Salem, 76 Federal St.

Plymouth Buck Gloves.

MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S Gent's Furnishing Store, dec 10 228 Essex St, Salem.

CHEAP EDITION.

LES Miserables—complete—$1.00.
Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Muloch—for sale by

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

PEABODY'S ANNUAL CLOSING OUT SALE.

READ THE PRICES.

Best Black and White German Worsteds, per oz	$0 13
Best Solferino and Scarlets, " " "	0 15
Best Magenta and Purples, " " "	0 17
Finest Cloud made—Patti Novelties,	1 00
Very Heavy Cloud—large size,	0 92
Good Cloud—fine colors,	0 75
Nice Hand Knit Skating Hat,	0 50
Baby's Hat—Hand Knit—formerly $1 00,	0 25
Best Silk Lined Hat—usually at $1 75,	1 00
Ladies' White, all wool, Hose, usually 42 cts., now	0 29
Misses' all wool Hose, usually 38 cts., now	0 25
Misses' Striped Ribb'd Hose, now	0 25
All our 38, 42 and 50 cent Flowers,	0 25
Our Best Bonnet Ribbons	all way down.
Our Bonnet Ruches	at reduced prices.

We, to-day, commence our annual closing sale. We do this in order to close out our stock of Winter Goods, that we may commence another season with a new stock. By so doing, we can always keep our stock fresh and desirable. We never allow old goods to accumulate, but "MARK THEM DOWN" until they sell. Our customers of last year will remember the bargains that we gave in our closing sale, and we can assure them that we shall sell at lower prices during this sale than ever before. We give the above short list that you may judge of our intentions. Our whole stock will be found to correspond in prices with the above.

JOHN P. PEABODY.

BARGAINS IN CLOUDS.	BARGAINS IN SONTAGS.
BARGAINS IN HOODS.	BARGAINS IN SKATING HATS.
BARGAINS IN GAITERS.	BARGAINS IN SCARFS.
BARGAINS IN SACKS.	BARGAINS IN SLEEVES.
BARGAINS IN NUBIAS.	BARGAINS IN TIPPETS.
BARGAINS IN WORSTEDS.	BARGAINS IN WOOLEN GOODS.

Sontags, Tippets,
Nubias, Scarfs,
Sacks, Gaiters,
Hoods, Bootees,
Skating Hats, Baby's Caps,
Mittens, Hoseiry.

All to be Closed at Bargains,

TO REDUCE OUR STOCK.

Bargains in Wrought Setts.	Bargains in Wrought Collars.
Bargains in Lace Collars.	Bargains in Edgings.
Bargains in Insertings.	Bargains in Flouncings.
Bargains in Lace Veils.	Bargains in Silk Edgings.
Bargains in Thread Edgings,

Wrought Setts; Thread Edgings;
Wrought Collars; Wrought Edgings;
Lace Collars; Black Edgings;
Linen Collars; Lace Veils;
Crape Collars; Crape Veils;
Crape Setts; Dona Maria Veils;
Linen Setts; Love Veils.

All at Bargains,

IN ORDER TO REDUCE OUR STOCK.

Bargains in Gent's Hosiery;	Bargains in Ladies' Hosiery;
Bargains in Misses' Hosiery;	Bargains in Child's Hosiery;
Bargains in Ladies' Gloves;	Bargains in Kid Gloves;
Bargains in Lisle Gloves;	Bargains in Misses' Gloves;

Bargains in Child's Gloves.

Gent's Hosiery;	Lisle Gloves;
Ladies' Hosiery;	Kid Gloves;
Woolen Hosiery;	Silk Gloves;
Cotton Hosiery;	Cotton Gloves;
Merino Hosiery;	White Gloves;
Children's Hosiery;	Black Gloves;
Baby's Socks;	Mourning Gloves.

All to be Closed to Reduce Stock.

Bargains in Linen Bosoms;	Bargains in Linen Hdkfs;
Bargains in Hem'd Hdkfs;	Bargains in Gent's Hdkfs;
Bargains in Cotton Hdkfs;	Bargains in Check'd Cambrics;
Bargains in Plain Cambrics;	Bargains in Swiss Muslins;

These Goods were bought before the rise in Cottons, and have not been marked up. They are decided bargains.

☞ Our WINTER GOODS are all to be closed out, and we have made the prices so low, that all in want will find it to their advantage to purchase now.

LADIES' FURNISHING STORE.

☞ ONE PRICE ONLY. ☜

220 ESSEX ST., SALEM.

JOHN P. PEABODY.

N. B.—All the principal Ladies' Furnishing and Fancy Dry Goods Dealers close their Stores every evening in the week except Saturdays. Our customers should remember this and do their shopping before evening.

☞ If you want to SVAE MONEY, in purchasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, No. 10 Front street, Salem. ap30-2m

Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,

Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,
34 Front Street.

Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

TO LET.

A SMALL and convenient TENEMENT, on Washington Street, not far from Aborn St. For terms apply to H. C. BANCROFT.

South Danvers, Nov, 26, 1362.

GRIST MILL.

HAVING made arrangements for carrying on the Grist Mill at Newhall's Crossing, at South Danvers, I take this method of informing the public that the mill is now open and ready for business.

Any patronage in the line of grinding corn or other grain, or making COB MEAL, will be gratefully received, and all orders promptly attended to.

If equally convenient for customers to bring their grists afternoons instead of forenoons they will accommodate me by doing so.

ELBRIDGE C. NEWHALL.

South Danvers, Dec 3, 1862.

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,

Druggist and Apothecary,

33 MAIN STREET.

Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.

Personal attention to Physicians' Prescriptions.

South Danvers, May 29, 1861. 1y

GEO. E. MEACOM,

Dealer in

DRUGS & MEDICINES,

Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.,

126 · · MAIN ST. · · 126

Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,

Druggist & Apothecary

37 Main St., So. Danvers,

DEALER IN

Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponge, Shoulder Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines.

Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery.

Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by experienced persons.

37 MAIN STREET.

LIVERY STABLE.

JOHN MOULTON

WOULD inform his friends and the public that he still continues to keep

Good Horses and Carriages to Let,

at the stable of G. M. TEEL on Central street, where he will remain until his stable is rebuilt at his old stand on Main Street.

A share of public patronage is solicited.

South Danvers, june 9, 1862.

PATTERSON'S

LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE

THE undersigned are agents for the above machine. It can be seen in operation at Pinder & Brown's Tannery.

may 7—3m CLARK & CIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,

Wallis Street, South Danvers,

Are Agents for

GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S

PATENT EAVE TROUGHS

CUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND PIPE FOR DRAINS.

South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

Potter, Bachelder & Co.,

(Successors to M. Black)

DANVERS-PORT,

DEALERS IN

WOOD AND COAL

OF the various kinds usually kept in a retail yard. Constantly on hand

Franklin, Old Company's Lehigh,
Locust Mountain, Black Heath,
Red and White Ash.

Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as low priees as can be bought elsewhere.

OFFICE---No. 6 Allen's Building.

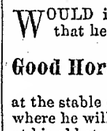
Order Box at post office, South Danvers, and post office, Danvers.

G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. july 19—tf

BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS.

WILLIAM J. WALTON,

94 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS,



HAS now on hand, and intends to constantly keep a full assortment of all desirable kinds and styles of Boots, Shoes and Rubbers, which he would be happy to dispose of to his Friends, and the Public, at satisfactory prices.

Repairing expeditiously and neatly done.

WILLIAM J WALTON, 94 Main st.

South Danvers, Jan 1, 1862. tf

HAWKES HOT AIR FURNACE.

"IMPROVED PATTERN,"

COMPRISING Five Sizes, adapteed for the smallest Dwelling House or the largest Public Building, being the most durable Furnace in the market, and being very simple in construction, together with its economical merits, ease of management, and large Radiating surface, commends itself to those in want of a Superior Heating Apparatus.

Builders, and all others interested, please call and examine before making a selection elsewhere, and you will at once be convinced of its great superiority over all other furnaces now in the market.

C. H. FIFIELD,

oct 29 Essex Block, 21 St. Peter St.

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,

IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, Sign of Five Golden Books.

dec 24

THE CALF AND THE TEN POUND NOTE.

A rather curious incident occurred in Tanderagee, Ireland, lately. A person named Dollagham, who had been with some men helping to cart out manure from his yard, laid his coat, containing some papers and money, (among the latter a ten pound note,) across a rail which divided the cow house, where there was a young calf seven weeks old. After the work was over he missed the money, and, having accused one of the men as the thief, sent for the police for the purpose of searching the suspected party, but, upon their arrival all the men were engaged in the work were willing to be searched, and one of them stated that he saw the calf chewing or eating some paper which happened to fall out of his (Dollagham's) coat pocket. Upon this information it was decided to kill the animal and on opening the stomach the note was found slightly damaged but sufficiently perfect for the purpose of identification, by the numbers being untouchen.

☞ Popkins knew there was witty music in the Marriage de Figaro, but thinks armies are ahead in that, for they have pun-tunes.

Advertisements.

Assignee's Notice.

ESSEX ss. Notice is hereby given that the subscribers have been appointed Assignees of the estate of FRANCIS K. PEMBERTON, of South Danvers, in the county of Essex, morocco dresser, insolvent debtor.

The second meeting of the creditors of said insolvent debtor will be held at the Court of Insolvency, in Salem, in said county, on the twelfth day of January next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, where creditors may be present and prove their claims.

ARTHUR PICKERING, } Assignees.
H. O. WILEY, }
South Danvers, Dec 1, 1862.

FOR NEW YEAR'S.

ELEGANT BOOKS; NEW BOOKS;
BEAUTIFUL FANCY GOODS; BRONZES;
PARIAN; WOOD CARVINGS;
FINE CUTLERY; GAMES;
PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS;
DARLEY'S "MORNING, NOON & NIGHT."

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

CHINA GOODS.

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

KNIVES AND FORKS.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A VALUABLE PRESENT.

A YEAR'S Reading in WHIPPLE & SMITH'S Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.
dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

CKASS, CHINA & CROCKERY WARE,

WOODEN Ware, Hard Ware, Cutlery, &c., embracing a full assortment of Housekeeping Goods, constantly for sale by dec 24 S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st.

FAMILY FLOUR.

500 BARRELS various grades Family Flour received this day from the Mills, for sale by dec 17 GAYLE & CO., Phillips Wharf.

PATENT INSULATOR!

FOR KEROSENE LAMPS. This invention is calculated to insure safety in using Kerosene Oils, and by keeping the Oil cool a saving of ten per cent is gained. Only 12 cents each. For sale by nov 26 S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st.

HEYLINGBERG'S

Hair Dressing Saloon,

24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.

TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Shampooing,	15 cts.
Shampooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more new Quarterly Customers taken.
In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks will be sold for one dollar.
South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,

ADVERTISING AGENT

For the principal New England Newspapers, remains at the old stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, and Advertising.
Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

Dissolution of Copartnership.

THE Co-Partnership heretofore existing under the firm of SHACKLEY & MERRILL is this day dissolved by mutual consent.

MOSES A. SHACKLEY,
HENRY M. MERRILL
South Danvers, Nov. 1, 1861.

The subscriber will continue to run the line of omnibuses as heretofore, and hopes by strict attention to the wants of the public to merit and receive their patronage.

The undersigned is authorized to collect all bills and to settle all accounts against the late firm, and all persons interested are requested to act accordingly. H. M. MERRILL.
South Danvers, Nov. 20, 1861. tf.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Sreet will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.

JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

PINGREE'S JOB WAGON.

THE subscriber is still preparod to do all kinds o Job Work and Teaming, such as removing Furniture and Merchandize of any description about town, or to and from the neighboring towns.

Orders will be received at the Essex Railroad Station, and at S. Flint's store, on the Square.

Thankful for past favors, he would solicit a continuance of the same. W. H. PINGREE.
South Danvers, 1860.

DIARIES FOR

1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books,

The Confessions and Experience of a Poor Young Man.

A GENTLEMAN having been cured of the results of early error and disease, will, from motives of benevolence, send to those who request it, a copy of the above interesting narrative, published by himself. This little book is designed as a warning and caution to young men and those who suffer from NERVOUS DEBILITY, LOSS OF MEMORY, PREMATURE DECAY, &c., &c., supplying at the same time the means of self-cure. Single copies will be sent under seal in a plain envelope,—without charge,—to any who request it, by addressing the author,

CHAS. A. LAMBERT, Esq.,
Greenpoint, Long Island, New York.

TABLE CUTLERY.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, Carvers and Steels, and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by
nov 19 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

ILLUSTRATED SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.

The best Mechanical Paper in the World.

EIGHTEENTH YEAR.

VOLUME VIII.....NEW SERIES.

A NEW volume of this popular Journal commences on the first of January. It is published weekly, and every number contains sixteen pages of useful information, and from five to ten original engravings of new inventions and discoveries, all of which are prepared expressly for its columns.

To the Mechanic and Manufacturer.

No person engaged in any of the mechanical or manufacturing pursuits should think of "doing without" the Scientific American. It costs but six cents per week; every number contains from six to ten engravings of new machines and inventions, which can not be found in any other publication.

To the Inventor.

The Scientific American is indispensable to every inventor, as it not only contains illustrated descriptions of nearly all the best inventions as they come out, but each contains an Official List of the Claims of all the Patents issued from the United States Patent Office during the week previous; thus giving a correct history of the progress of inventions in this country. We are also receiving, every week, the best scientific journals of Great Britain, France and Germany; thus placing in our possession all that is transpiring in mechanical science and art in these old countries. We shall continue to transfer to our columns copious extracts from these journals of whatever we may deem of interest to our readers.

A pamphlet of instruction as to the best mode of obtaining Letters Patent on new inventions, is furnished free on application.

Messrs. MUNN & Co. have acted as Patent Solicitors for more than seventeen years, in connection with the publication of the Scientific American, and they refer to 20,000 patentees for whom they have done business.

No charge is made for examining sketches and models of new inventions and for advising inventors as to their patentability.

Chemists, Architects, Millwrights and Farmers.

The Scientific American will be found a most useful journal to them. All the new discoveries in the science of chemistry are given in its columns, and the interests of the architect and carpenter are not overlooked; all the new inventions and discoveries appertaining to these pursuits being published from week to week.

Useful and practical information pertaining to the interests of millwrights and millowners will be found in the Scientific American, which information they can not possibly obtain from any other source. Subjects in which farmers are interested will be found discussed in the Scientific American; most of the improvements in agricultural implements being illustrated in its columns.

TERMS.

To mail subscribers: Three Dollars a year, or One Dollar for four months. The volumes commence on the first of January and July. Specimen copies will be sent gratis to any part of the country.

Western and Canadian money or Post-office stamps taken at par for subscription. Canadian subscribers will please to remit twenty-five cents extra on each year's subscription to prepay postage.

MUNN & CO., Publishers,
37 Park Row, N. Y.

PATRIOTS,

FREEMEN! STRANGERS!

BUSINESS MEN!

REMEMBER,

When you Visit Boston,

THAT AT

LANE'S CLOTHING HOUSE,

31 and 32 Dock Square,

You will find a Large Assortmtnt of

Men's Overcoats, Business Coats, Suits, Pants, Vests, Under Flannels, &c., &c.,

On which there has been NO RISE, our large CASH PURCHASES made

BEFORE THE ADVANCE

in Goods enables us to

DEFY COMPETITION.

We would remind the public that in our NEW DEPARTMENT for

BOYS' CLOTHING

may be found a better assortment than at any other House in the city, and at much

LOWER PRICES!

We sell for CASH ONLY, and do not charge the paying customer extra profits to make up for bad debts.

REMEMBER!

LANE'S

CLOTHING HOUSE,

31 and 32 Dock Square,

BOSTON.

Boston, Nov. 5th, 2m

JUST PUBLISHED.

GRAVER Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heaven, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantes, by A. B. Edwards; The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
dec 24 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

Job Printing done at this office.

SOUTH DANVERS POST OFFICE.

GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.

MAILS CLOSE

At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.

MAILS DUE

At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.

Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.

F. POOLE, P. M.
South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

GAYLE & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

DEALERS IN

Flour, Grain and Produce,

Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of

Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.

PHILLIPS WHARF, - - - - - Salem.

W. E. P. SMYTH,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.

Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,

LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.

Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow. 4th. The Mother.
2d. The Children. 5th. The Brothers and Sisters collectively.
3d. The Father.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken on, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.

When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditer's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexations delay in getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.

Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1y

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.

Prof. M. G. BROWN.

SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye as its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets seumy and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its socket in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to annoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 6 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

REMOVAL!

JOHN J. ASHBY,

WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store

No. 145 Essex Street,

formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of

BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,

and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.

Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

E. R. PERKINS,

PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST

241 Essex Street, Salem.

Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,

Photographs, Sphereotypes, Melainotypes, and patent cartes de visites, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

Important to the Afflicted.

DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a

PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.

By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent, Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of

GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.

Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.

Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating matrimony, consult a physician of experience, and he at once restored to health and happiness.

Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.

Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French [illegible], warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y.

CAUTION

TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.

DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.

Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.

Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.

Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.

N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.

Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE

IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.

Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.

Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y

Rare Chance for Bargains.

CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of

JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,

AND FANCY GOODS,

At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER

Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,

Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Ware,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.

at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.

This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Refurnishing the Table, &c.

Old Silver taken in exchange.

☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.

JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, o which the Mackie took the First Premium at the lat Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.

BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook.
South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862. tf

AARON T. LOWE,

DEALER IN

BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,

76 BOSTON STREET, 76.

aug 6 SALEM. tf

MUNROE'S

(LATE REED'S)

SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON

RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at	10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " at	5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at	3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " " at	5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.

Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.

EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.

Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.

Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.

Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed:

WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

Ladies' Spring Skirts.

ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier, a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Tenements to Let.

ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $54 per year.

One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.

One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.

One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.

One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

Are you Insured?

THE subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on

Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,

And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:

Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn.
Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y

Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the

Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass.
Capital and Assets—$375,000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D, Medical Examiner.

WM. ARCHER, Jr.,

18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
ej b20-1

CURRIER & MILLETT,

Dealers in

Furniture, Chairs,

MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c

259 & 261 ESSEX ST.

Salem, dec 14—1y

E. F. BURNHAM,

SOLE AGENT FOR

SARGENT & CO.S'

MAGIC SOAP

For South Danvers & Salem.

OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.

Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.

Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

INNER SOLES,

AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.

2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

THOMAS PINNOCK,

SLATER,

SALEM, MASS.

Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.

Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.
Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

Ann R. Bray,

NO. 76 Federal Street,

DEALER IN

Camel's Hair Goods,

Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

MARSHALL'S

DANVERS, SO. DANVERS & SALEM

EXPRESS.

Leave DANVERS (daily) at 9 A. M.
" SALEM at 1½ P. M.

OFFICES:

In Danvers—At E B Waitt's and the Post Office.
Danversport—Richards' and A W Warren's Stores.
In So. Danvers—Francis Dane & Co's, and No 2 Main street.
In Salem—No 7 Washington street, 199 Essex st, and 17 Derby Square.
All business promptly and faithfully attended to.
☞ Our patrons are particularly requested to write their orders.
☞ Packages, left at the office, should be marked "Marshall's Express."
☞ Being connected with the RAILROAD we are enabled to forward Notes, Drafts and Bills for collection, and small packages, to all accessible point in the United States, at the usual rates.
P. G. MARSHALL.
dec1-6-tf

WM. C. HENDERSON,

MANUFACTURER OF

PLAIN AND FANCY

PAPER BOXES,

No. 235 ESSEX STREET,

Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"

July 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,

NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St. South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

Heckscher Coal!

$8.25 per Ton on Wharf.

A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,

Both Red and White Ash,

Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by

W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.
july 9

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.

THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of

Patent Granular Fuel,

which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25	Bushels, delivered,	2 25
50	do do	4 00
100	do do	7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Nowman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.

BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, june 18.

WALLETS AND CURRENCY

HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

MAGAZINES FOR DECEMBER.

ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Madam Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

CHINA WARE.

A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustre China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

H. & H. G. HUBON,

WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM

Manufacturers of

Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood

COFFINS and CASKETS.

MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.

dec 14—tf

R. C. MANNING & CO.,

Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,

DEALERS IN

COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,

188 DERBY STREET,

SALEM, MASS.

N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.
oct17

Dyspepsia Remedy.

DR. DARIUS HAM'S

AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!

This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.

IT STIMULATES, EXHILARATES, INVIGORATES, BUT WILL NOT INTOXICATE OR STUPEFY.

AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner.

It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.

Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the DELIRIUM TREMENS, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.

DOSE—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.
A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.
Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.

Persons who, from dissipating too much over night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings.

Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the careworn face.

During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.

All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the INVIGORATING SPIRIT in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.

General Depot, 48 Water Street, N. Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.
feb 29 1y

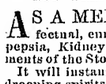
FRANKLIN COAL.

JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL —the best in the world for domestic use.

POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

MUSICAL NOTICE.

Chickering & Sons' Piano-Fortes.



ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St. would inform her friends in South Danvers, and the public generally that she keeps for sale and to let Chickering & Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with great care, and need only to be tried to prove their superiority over every other in the market. The very best terms given.

MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPHINES
For sale and to let. For power and quality of tone none can surpass them A. R BRAY,
76 Federal str-

E. N. PRICE,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

HARNESSES,

SADDLES, BRIDLES,

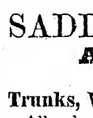
AND WHIPS.

— ALSO —

Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.

All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.

237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
meh13-tf



Book & Job Printing

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,

Executed with Neatness & Despatch

AT THIS OFFICE.

D. W. BOWDOIN,

—ARTIST IN—

PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.

Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]

Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotype, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.

☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,

ONE PRICE

HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,

231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

REMOVAL!

AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,

Manufacturer and Repairer of

BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

FLOWER POTS.

BENNINGTON Flower Pots, at
S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

READING.

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

FRUIT BASKETS.

A FINE assortment of China Fruit and Cake Baskets, at S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

ARTISTS' PAINTS.

A SMALL lot of Artists' Paints, such as Scarlet and Yellow Lakes, Florence White, &c., at
nov 26 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

CUT GOBLETS.

CUT Tumblers and Dishes—at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

BRUSHES.

CAMEL Hair Brushes, Pitch Tools, Pencils &c., at
S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st

BLACK GILT LAVA TEASET,

AND Brown Lava do—at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

Eastern Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains leave the Eastern Railroad Station, Washington street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excepted):

For Lynn and Boston, 6¼, 7¼, 8¼, 9, 10, 11 a m, 4 40, 6¾, p. m.
Beverly, 8¼ a.m., 1, 3½, 4¾, 5¾, 6¾, 7½ p m.
W. Beach, Man'r, Gloucester, and Rockport 1, 4¾ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8¼ a m., 1, 3½, 5¾
Amesbury, 8¼ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portsmouth, 8¼ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portland, 8¼ a m, 3½ p m.

AND FOR SALEM, FROM

Portland, 8¾ a m, 2½ p m.
Portsmouth, 7¼, *11¼ a m., *5 p m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9 40 a m., 5 20 p m.
Newburyport, 8, 10 a m., 12 m., 5.45 p m.
Ipswich, 8.25, 10.25 a m., 12 25, 6.10 p m.
Gloucester, 7.25, 10 10 a m., 3 55 p m.
Manchester, 7.40, 10.25 a m., 4.10 p m.
Beverly, 7.05, 8.05, 8 50, 10.50 a m., 12.50, 4½, Lynn, 8, 9, 11 a m., 12¾, 3, 4¾, 5½, 6½, 7¼ †10.
Boston, 7½, 8½, 10¾ a m., 12¼, 2¾, 4, 5, 6, 6¾, †9

*Or on arrival from the East.
†On Wednesdays this train leaves Boston a via Saugus Branch; and on Saturdays at 10

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Marblehead for Salem, 7, 8, 8¾, 9¾ a m., 12¾, Salem for Marblehead, 8¼, 9.25, 11¼ a m., 1,

SOUTH READING BRANCH.

Trains leave the South Reading Depot in Boston at 7, 9.40 a m., 2.25, 4.55 p m
Boston for Salem, 7 a m, 12 m., 2¼, 5 p m.
South Danvers for Salem, 7¾ a m., 12¾, 3¼,

ESSEX RAILROAD.

Leave Salem for Lawrence and way station a m., 4¾ p m.
Lawrence for Salem, 8¼ a m., 12.40, 6¼ p m.
Danvers for Salem, 9.12 a m., 1.22, 6.57 p m.

J. PRESCOTT, Superint
Boston, November 10, 1862.

Salem and Lowell Railroa

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Tr run as follows:

Leave Lowell for Salem, 7.25 a m., and *2.
Leave Salem for Lowell, *9.40 a m. and 5 0

Passengers are not allowed to carry bagga $50 in value, and that personal, unless notice and an extra amount paid. Season tickets d title the holder to take baggage.

*Freight Train with passenger car attache

F. H. NOURSE, Local Superint
November 7,

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 14, 1863. NO. 2

E SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD
lished every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's build outh Danvers Square. by
CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editer.
as—Two Dollars a year.
ERTISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM G. CHOATE,
ttorney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
m, August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
ttorney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Residence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
orney and Counsellor at Law,
Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
torney and Counsellor at Law,
CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
, No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
neys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to
Formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM.
N B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
torney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
ney and Counsellor at Law,
ice, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.

ims against the Government for Bounty
Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
MAIN STREET, So. DANVERS SQUARE.
chanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
SURGEON DENTIST,
3 Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market
Residence--No. 57 Washington street.
1—ly

F. POOLE,
SURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
eeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
lly Groceries, Flour & Grain,
RD WARE AND CROCKERY,
y Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods,
Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
L NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
ery, China and Hardware; Paper Hang-gs; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints,
Oil, and Window Glass.
32 Front street, Lawrence Place,
3 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
OUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
t orders promptly and faithfully executed.
-ly

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
t India Goods, Country Produce
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

FRANCIS P. COSS,
PLUMBER,
No. 7 St. Peter St.,
SALEM, MASS.
ie 26 tf

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
ld and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
ooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
OUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger.
164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
DOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
h6-tf

WALKING MADE EASY.
DR. P. KENISON,
CHIROPODIST,
215 Washington St., Boston,
Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails, Nails
netrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

HEYLINGBERG'S
air Dressing Saloon,
4 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.
TARIFF OF PRICES:

ving,	6 cts.
ir Cutting,	12 cts.
mpooing,	15 cts.
mpooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

more new Quarterly Customers taken. consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks
e sold for one dollar.
uth Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

W. E. P. SMYTH,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.
Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,
LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, have to pass, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.

Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow. 4th. The Mother.
2d. The Children. 5th The Brothers and Sisters collectively.
3d. The Father.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken on, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.

When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditor's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay in getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.

Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—ly

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.
Prof. M. G. BROWN.
SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets scumy and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its socket in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to anoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 6 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

THOMAS DAVIS,
ADVERTISING AGENT
For the principal New England Newspapers, remains at the old stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, and Advertising.
Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

Selected.

THE DOOMED SHIP.

A LEGEND OF SALEM IN OLDEN TIME.

BY FRANCIS A. DURIVAGE.

During the last half of the seventeenth century, the good people of New England were much exercised in spirit by the belief that the powers of darkness had been let loose to tempt their fidelity, to combat their principles, and to work dire revenge in their ranks. Their clerical guides were not above the prejudices and superstitions of that day when witchcraft was solemnly recognized as an actual and existing offence, and when, to doubt its existence was regarded a proof of infidelity. Credulity is contagious, and the imaginary horrors of a few weak and fear-stricken minds were communicated to the entire population. The stern colonist who feared the face of no mortal foe, whose dauntless valor defied alike the savage beast and the no less savage Indian, trembled like a child at the thought that his footsteps in the forest were beset by evil beings not of this world. His senses bewildered by fear, imagination lent an exaggerated form and color to the most natural phenomena, and earth, air and ocean teemed with supernatural prodigies. The hoot of an owl was construed into the mocking cry of a sprite, and the roar of a midnight tempest into the howls of a legion of demons. Men saw armies battling in the air, and heard at midnight the sound of drums and trumpets. Sometimes flights of fiery arrows streamed across the midnight sky, and though they were doubtless the shafts of the Aurora Borealis, still the souls of the gazers sank within them as if they had witnessed awful prodigies, foretelling war and bloodshed. The Rev. Cotton Mather has recorded scores of these prodigious phenomena, and it is on his narrative that the following wild tale is based.

At a small inn that stood near the water side at Salem, and was kept by Hezekiah Peabody, a pious and righteous citizen, a seafaring man sojourned, while the vessel of which he was the captain, was being got ready for sea. From the window of his chamber, the captain could at any time have a view of the "Noah's Dove," a large ship freighting for England. He was a hard-favored man, reserved and taciturn in his demeanor.—Though conforming in every particular to the Puritan style of dress, wearing a sad-colored doublet and cloak without any ornament, still there was a marked individuality in his countenance. Shaggy, black eyebrows overhung his deep cavernous eyes, and hard lines were drawn across his bronzed cheeks. One or two fang-like teeth projecting from his lips, and visible even through his thick, grizzled moustache, gave him the unenviable expression of a bull-dog. No one could approach him without a shudder. Yet there was no fault to find with his behaviour. He was a punctual attendant at meeting, rigidly kept the Sabbath, and maintained the strictest discipline among his crew.

But sometimes, late at night, Hezekiah Peabody, engaged in looking over his scores and accounts, heard Captain Mark Walford walking to and fro in his apartment with a heavy step, as if he were treading the deck of his ship, and at such times, he would give utterance to the deepest groans that ever came from a human breast. Once when Deacon Peabody (the publican was also a deacon) ventured to suggest to his strange guest the propriety of sending for a clergyman to ease his mind, he was struck dumb by the ferocious expression of the captain's face, and a motion he made with his right hand as if seeking some secret weapon in his vest. The inn-keeper did not renew the subject, for he had not the valor of a mouse, and besides, his guest always paid his reckoning punctually in good red gold of Spanish coinage. But he told his wife in confidence that he feared the captain was troubled with an evil spirit, and her confidential hints to all her neighbor gossips contrived to awaken an uneasy feeling with regard to him throughout the town.

The crew were as orderly and pious, in all outward seeming, as the captain, and though the "Noah's Dove" somewhat belied her pacific name, in mounting six guns and being provided with a formidable stand of heavy Spanish muskets, with a liberal supply of cutlasses, still it was averred that the danger of meeting pirates on the ocean sufficiently warranted this "dreadful note of preparation."

Several persons had engaged passage on board the ship, and strange to say, these individuals refused to listen to any of the mysterious murmurings against the captain. It appeared as if they were as blindly prepossessed in his favor as the others were prejudiced against him.

Such was the state of things when a young and handsome married couple, strangers in the town, arrived and took lodgings at Deacon Peabody's, after which the young man had engaged passage for himself and wife on board the "Noah's Dove." The husband was a manly and engaging person, and the lady ravishingly beautiful. She was evidently not of Saxon origin; her accent, and, above all, her dark olive complexion, raven hair and black eyes, bespoke the daughter of the South. The deacon's wife received her somewhat coldly, for she had a vulgar prejudice against all "outlandish" people, and the young Mrs. Severn, when cross-questioned about herself and her husband, took refuge in her ignorance of the English tongue, "though my lady," the hostess observed, "could find English enough at her tongue's end when she wanted any dainty dishes served up, or any drudgery performed." The men got as little out of Severn as the woman did out of his beautiful wife; though affable and chatty enough on matters of general report, he wrapped himself up in a sort of fierce reserve whenever prying inquiries were directed to his own affairs. A singular circumstance connected with this couple was, that from the moment of their arrival at the Peabody's, Captain Walford ceased to be an inmate at the house. He saw their arrival from his chamber window, and the moment they had been shown to their room, sought out the landlord, threw him three or four doubloons and immediately went on board his ship.

At length the day of sailing arrived. It was fixed for Friday. All sea-faring people in the town, full of the prevailing superstition, remonstrated against the day fixed as unlucky; but the captain declared that he would sail on that day "in spite of the devil."

This profane asseveration completely ruined his reputation in the minds of the minds of the good people of Salem; they declared that the captain was given over and sold to the evil one—that he was a "vessel of wrath," and that he was doomed to destruction, together with all his ill-fated crew and passengers. But neither prayers, entreaties nor arguments could shake the confidence of those who engaged passage on board the "Noah's Dove," and amidst the wild lamentations of their friends, they embarked. The vessel lay at anchor some distance from the wharf, on account of the low tide, as she drew a good deal of water, and the embarkation was effected in boats. The old boatman who rowed the young couple to the ship declared that the captain wore the semblance of a fiend, and that fire seemed to come from his eyes and nostrils. He had cast off his sober Puritan attire, and now wore a doublet of carmine velvet and gold, with a satin cloak, a hat and feather, sword and pistols, and that his crew were similarly attired, more like buccaneers of the Spanish main than peaceful and God-fearing mariners. When he ventured to tell the captain that he ought not to go to sea in such threatening weather, the captain told him with a scowl to mind his own business, and added with an oath that it was a fine topsail breeze, when any landsman could observe that the wind was fitful and freshening to a gale. The boatman added, moreover, that when the young Spanish bride, on reaching the deck, cast her eyes upon the captain, she instantly fainted, and in that condition was borne into the cabin by her husband.

The boatman's story circulated rapidly from month to mouth among the hundreds assembled on the quay, and increased the terrible interest with which they watched the movements of the "Noah's Dove," when, as if to raise their excitement to the utmost pitch, just as the anchor was weighed, a black crow, that bird of evil omen, came and perched upon the maintop, uttering his baleful croak. This incident excited all the superstitious terrors of the spectators, and from that moment the vessel was regarded as the "Doomed Ship."

In the mean while, by the aid of cordage seeming from the distance as delicate as the tracery of a spider's web, the symmetrical spars of the ship were covered with a cloud of canvass, every strip of which was soon distended by the gale. The water foamed around her bows, as her sharp prow was driven through the waves, and so strong was the impulsive power of the wind, that the "Doomed Ship" soon vanished like a vision.

That night a storm arose so terrible that the like of it was not remembered by the oldest settler in Salem. Chimneys were blown down, shutters torn from their hinges, and some of the largest trees prostrated by the fury of the gale. Two days and nights the storm raged with unabated fury, and the melancholy conviction forced itself upon all minds that the "Noah's Dove" must have gone down amidst the elemental warfare.

In the course of the fourth day—and here we do not claim belief from our readers, though the incident is stated on the authority of Cotton Mather—a ship was signalized as coming up the bay. Every one rushed to the most convenient spot to obtain a view of the spectacle. A large ship she was and covered with canvass from deck to truck. Though a strong wind was blowing directly off the shore, she came up in the very wind's eye, with all her sails distended just as if sailing with a fair breeze. Suddenly a stream of fire seemed to run down the mainmast, then a cloud of blue smoke arose, the sails disappeared, and, like some soft metal exposed to the heat of a furnace, yards, spars, rigging and hull melted and sunk down, leaving, in a moment, the surface of the bay clear and smiling as before. The horror-stricken spectators went home, convinced that they had seen a symbolic representation of the fate of the doomed ship.

The "Noah's Dove" never reached England or another port. Many—many years afterward—when almost her very name had been forgotton—an old gray-haired and sorrow-stricken man came to reside in Salem. He lived almost the life of a hermit, but the day had gone by when a man could not live retired without the suspicion of dealing with evil spirits. The existing generation were wiser than their fathers, and mourned for their delusions. The piety and practical benevolence of the stranger made him respected.

On his death-bed he is said to have revealed to the clergyman who soothed his last moments, that his name was Walter Severn, and that he was the sole survivor of the "Noah's Dove." His wife was a Spanish lady, and in the captain recognized at the moment of sailing a buccaneer by whom her father had been slain during an attack made on one of his country-seats on the Gulf of Mexico. It was too late, however, to accede. The pirate-captain, though he had resumed some of his old habits, had yet been penetrated by remorse, and would undoubtedly have carried the ship safely to England. But in the midst of a storm she was struck by lightning, and consumed. The overcrowded boats swamped and sunk. He and his wife, floating to a spar to which they had lashed themselves, were succored by a Spanish barque bound for Hispaniola. Thence in due season, they were conveyed to England, where, having the misfortune to lose his wife, after a long and happy union, he had sought to mitigate his grief by travel, and so once more returned to the colonies.

Of the supernatural portion of the above tale we cannot hope to find believers, except among those who put full faith in the spiritual manifestations of the present time. Each age has its superstitions—were those of our fathers more irrational than our own?—Companion.

A LEGEND OF NORWAY.—Near the village of Sand, in Norway, lived an old woman who was constantly rowing about the Fiord in search of her husband, who had been drowned. She rowed her boat around the same circle, never deserting the spot, but whistling and chanting by turns, her face turned in one direction, that she might watch the surface of the water. One morning the poor fisherman plunged into the element that had been his sole sustaining friend from youth, to bathe, and before scarce fifteen minutes had elapsed, surrounded by a shoal of mackeral, and in sight of her who had made home pleasant, was devoured by the ravenous fish. When he raised his arm out of the water to show the dreadful fate that threatened him, and to arouse the alarm of his unconscious wife, a hundred mackeral hung like plummets from the flesh. The fisherman sank, and was never seen or heard of more. From that morning until to-day, his widow, having lost her reason, ever rows her husband's boat about the spot where he perished, in full persuasion that he has gone to seek a sunken net, and in a little while will emerge again; and so she prays the crew of every vessel sailing by to stay and see the truth of what she relates.

JOHN BULL.

John Bull professes to be greatly amazed that we do not abandon a war which we have failed to end in a year. He thinks we ought to be satisfied, by this time, that we never can conquer the South, inasmuch as we have not done it already.

But we beg leave to remind John Bull that we are not the first nation which has waged war a year without achieving any great success. The only European war in which England has ventured to engage for the last half century was attended by incidents quite as discouraging and failures far more dismal than ours. John Bull, early in 1854, after receiving in advance the help of Louis Napoleon, declared war against Russia; yet it took her more than a year to reduce the only Russian fortress to which she laid siege, and even that, in the final assault, was achieved by her French ally, her own troops being sharply and not very creditably repulsed in their attack. Perhaps it may be well enough to rehearse some of the leading incidents of this Crimean campaign. It will show John Bull how little reason he has for his crabbed and surly exultation over our shortcomings, and perhaps reconcile our own people somewhat to misfortunes and mistakes which are by no means peculiar to them.

The English troops left England for the Crimea in February, 1854, and on the 14th of September landed about 27,000 men,—every man of them being compelled, through the entire lack of preparation, to spend the first night in the mud, in a cold rain storm, without tents, blankets, fires, or any other means of comfort. They fought the battle of the Alma, in which the French took the lead, on the 20th of September, and advanced to Balaklava on the 25th, where they sat themselves down to the siege of Sebastopol, one-half of which town the French carried by assault just one year from that time—when, as subsequent developments proved, they could have marched into it without half as much resistance as they encountered in crossing the Alma, ten days after that feat was accomplished! They had just one year of fighting, suffering, starving, and dying, for which there was not the slightest necessity. Instead of marching straight into Sebastopol, as every Russian officer, after the war was over, said they could have done with the utmost ease, they began on the 9th of October to dig trenches, to plunder the neighboring peasants, and to die of fever and cholera. Sixteen days elapsed after they had planted themselves on the heights above the town, and they had not fired a gun. The Russians, having nothing else to do, began to throw up earthworks—and gradually, but without any previous intention or expectation of doing so, made their place so strong as to defy the utmost efforts of the English to take it.

The English, meantime, consumed their hearts and strength in gigantic struggles with cholera, cold, mud, and red tape. On the 25th of October, they were attacked in their position at Balaklava by the Russians, whom, with the aid of the French, they succeeded in repelling,—making themselves, probably, the most absurd display of military quixotism known in the history of war, in the utterly useless charge of 600 horsemen upon thirty Russian guns well supported,—a piece of murderous strategy, for which no other excuse has ever been offered, except that "some one had blundered." After this affair was over, the English again settled down to digging and dying of fever. Winter began to come on, and they had made no preparation for it. The blankets and great coats of dead soldiers soon sold at very high figures. All sorts of mishaps, blunders, and oversights began to vex the official mind. One day, a Russian spy, in the dress of a French officer, walked deliberotely through the English lines, inspected every camp, took the measure of every battery, talked with all the officers, obtained their opinions on war in general, and the siege of Sebastopol in particular, noted all the weak points of their position, distributed some most excellent cigars among his friends, and just as they began to suspect him, walked across to the Russian lines, "quickening his pace gradually to a run, leaving his late comrades gazing open-mouthed after him." There is a great lack of medical stores. They can get no forage. They dig a great many trenches—losing constantly a great many men and making very little headway. On the 5th of November, the Russians again attack them, in great force, on their right flank at Inkermann, which had been "unaccountably" left undefended, where there were no guns, abattis, or guards of any kind. A terrible conflict followed, in which the English, having lost many of their best officers, were saved from destruction by the French, who turned the Russian flank, and compelled them to retire.

This ended active operations for that year. The Allies went into winter quarters. The Russians, finding that they had a very good chance of making a successful defence, went to work with redoubled energy fortifying the place. Winter, meantime, came on, with its storms of rain and sleet, its hurricanes which swept the camps clean of tents, and crashed the ships of the British fleet like egg-shells against each other in the harbor of Balaklava. The siege was virtually suspended. The soldiers were up to their knees in mud, deluged with rain, destitute of clothing, worked to death in the trenches, and "not a soul," says the English historian of the campaign, "seems to care for their comfort, or even for their lives." "The wretched beggar who wanders about the streets of London in the rain," he adds, "leads the life of a Prince compared with the British soldiers who are fighting out here for their country." Fever, dysentery, and diarrhœ were fearfully prevalent. The cholera broke out the last of November. The camps, the huts, and the town of Balaklava were full of the unburied dead and the unattended dying:—there was not the least attention paid to decency or cleanliness,—"the stench is appalling, the fetid air can barely struggle out to taint the atmosphere, and, for all I can observe, these men die without the least effort being made to save them." Thus writes Russell, of the Times, speaking of the town itself occupied by the British troops. The camp he describes as a wilderness of mud. On its surface everywhere are strewed the carcasses of dogs and horses. "Vultures sweep over the mounds in flocks: carrion crows and birds of prey obscene hover over their prey, menace the hideous dogs who are feeding below, or sit in gloomy dyspepsia, with drooped head and drooping wing, on the remnants of their banquet!" Horses drop exhausted on the road. Men wade and plunge about, faint from hunger, and die from sickness under the very eyes of comrades powerless to help them. Dec. 4, seventy dead bodies were deposited in shallow graves;—"I count," says Russell, on the 5th, "thirty-five bodies already on the ground, and it is early in the day;"—men were absolutely freezing for lack of shelter while timber for huts lay on board ship which nobody could unload:—and cargoes of warm clothing could not be brought ashore because the "regulations" would not permit. The British troops were absolutely dependent on the French for food, for shelter, for help in cooking, and for everything they had. Sixty horses perished in one night from cold, and out of one division alone 150 men were taken out of the trenches seized with cramps and half frozen. The ambulance corps was utterly disabled, and "but for the kindness of the French," says Russell, "in lending us their litters, many of our poor fellows would have died in their tents." And so it went on day after day, until out of 55,000 British soldiers sent to the Crimea since the beginning of the war, in September, 1854, not 25,000 on the 1*st of February,* 1855, remained fit for duty!—During December and January alone 8,000 sick and wounded were sent on board ship at Balaklava. The Brigade of Guards which mustered 2,500 when it left England, and had received 1,500 reinforcements, numbered less than a thousand in the beginning of February.

We might quote columns of similar facts from the history of the siege of Sebastopol, which would prove conclusively that in every kind of mismanagement, of official imbecility, of blundering negligence and of consequent disaster, loss of life and suffering, the British far exceeded anything which has been witnessed during our war with the Southern rebellion. Nothing could surpass the inefficiency which characterized every department of the administration, unless it was the utter lack of success which attended the operations of the army. Not a single point of the slightest importance had been gained, while ample time had been given to the Russians to fortify their town and make it almost impregnable. All attempts to cut off the Russian supplies proved fruitless: their communications were kept open, and wherever they were sought, they were found in superior force. The British Commander in-Chief, Lord Raglan, died in June, and was succeeded by Gen. Simpson, who proved utterly incompetent. The army had lost nearly all its best officers and two-thirds of the troops who came out with it the year before,—some regiments having been thrice renewed and many changed twice over. In July, to such a degree had disease, hunger, suffering, and failure weakened and dispirited the army, that scores of British officers asserted openly that Sebastopol could never be taken,—hundreds obtained leave of absence and returned to England, and the whole British camp presented a dismal aspect of sickness, suffering, and discouragement.

Finally, on the 16th of August, the Russians made another attack upon the allied position on the Tchernays, and were repulsed almost entirely by the French and Sardinians—the English taking very little part in the engagement, and on the 5th of September, the final bombardment of the place began. On the 8th, the assault was made,—the French carrying the Malakoff and raising their flag upon it in less than ten minutes after entering it, and the English being repulsed in the work assigned them—the capture of the Redan. Their scaling ladders proved to be too short, and too few in number;—their assaulting column was too weak;—the men, on getting inside, were "seized with some strange infatuation," and instead of rushing upon the garrison with the bayonet, stood still, and began loading and firing;—Gen. Codrington, who commanded in the trenches, lost his self-possession, and sent forward no reinforcements;—the British troops inside were driven out, crushed over the parapets, and the British attack proved a dismal and disgraceful break-down. The French, however, had decided the fate of the place by taking the Malakoff; and on the 13th, the Russians, burning all their ships in the harbor, and setting the town on fire, withdrew to the north side of the city without molestation, destroyed the bridges over which they passed, and proceeded to fortify themselves there. They remained there unmolested until peace was proclaimed, in April, 1856, and the Allies proceeded forthwith to evacuate the Crimea.

We submit this brief summary of his only recent military undertaking, drawn from his own historian, to the careful contemplation of John Bull, whenever he feels disposed to criticise our operations and failures during the past year. England began that war with a powerful standing army, the largest fleet in the world, a strong Government, a high military reputation, skilled and experienced officers, and the loudest possible boasts of the enormous results she was about to achieve on behalf of the free institutions and Christian civilization of the Western World. Every step she took in the campaign was marked by blundering incapacity, by neglect of the most ordinary military precautions, and by failures which would have been fatal and utterly disgraceful, but for the timely and efficient aid of the French.

ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTER FROM SERGEANT STARK.

CAMP LEE, Newbern, N. C.,
Dec. 25th, 1862.

DEAR FRIEND,—We had snugly ensconced ourselves in wigwams for the winter, and had got to care as little for the rebel guerillas that prowl around nights, as we did for the African guerillas we read of. When the talk was, that we were under marching orders, and had to leave our snug log houses, which cost us so much labor—sure enough, rumor was true for once. We got the order to pack up on Tuesday night, and on Wednesday morning we were back on our old camp near the city as busy as bees, preparing for the road, which we were to take on the following day, Thursday. The boys were not altogether pleased by being relieved by nine months' men, and grumbled not a little, because they had to take the war path, while those who received the two hundred dollars bounty, and are only enlisted for 9 months, would lay back on picket, and have an easy time of it. However military orders are orders, and have got to be obeyed, so we made a virtue of necesity and concluded that nothing would be done unless the 24th had a hand in it, and that the new (8th Mass.) regt., that took our place on picket, were not very well drilled; they were hardly fit to meet the enemy in the field. When we got down to town, all was bustle and excitement. Quartermasters and their satellites were as busy as market men on a Saturday; surgeons, with their hospital stewards, were preparing stretchers and bandages; teamsters were busy employed greasing their wagons; cooks were sweating and cursing over their fires, cooking up rations; aids and staff officers were hurrying to and fro with orders, and every body, from the General to the drummer boy, were hard to work, fixing for the march.

Our knapsacks were handed over to the quartermaster's department for safe keeping, and everything was put on board vessels which anchored in the stream. This kept us all wondering as to where we were going, and numerous were the conjectures and endless the rumors as to our destination. Some had it, that Weldon was the point, others that Wilmington was the place to be attacked, while a few came near hitting the nail on the head by guessing Goldsboro as the centre of attraction. However, when night came, and spread its sable mantle, all was ready for an early start on the morrow, and then we gave ourselves up to a little boisterous, though innocent amusement, and acted on the principle of "eat and drink, for to-morrow ye die." We got the darkies who hang around camp, a dancing and singing. Our Captain came among us and participated in the fun, some good songs were sung by the company, and every one went in to make the most of the time.

We were awakened next morning by an early reveille, which noisily broke in upon our slumbers, long before day. Roll call and breakfast followed at once, then we formed our line and was ready to take our place in column. Weitzell's Brigade of five regiments came down from Suffolk to reinforce us. They had been with McClellan during his Peninsular Campaign, and we looked on them as real fighting boys—they were the advance Brigade. Col. Amory's came next. Our Brigade was the third in column, while Col. Lee's brought up the rear. Col. Hickman with his rifle regt., the gallant 9th N. Jersey, formed the advance guard, while two regiments formed the escort for the wagon train. Our artillery numbered about 50 pieces, and was a formidable train. Belger's Rhode Island Battery is second to none in the service; it is attached to our Brigade, and goes into action supported particularly by the 24th. After a little delay (nothing unusual when military bodies move) we got fairly started, and on the eve of the first day, we bivouacked 15 miles from Newbern.

We took the war path early next morning, and it was literally a war path. The rebels had found out that the Yankee's were coming, and had strongly reinforced their pickets. During the night they obstructed the roads, and did all they could to impede our progress, but our advance guard of cavalry, aided by the Jersey riflemen, drove the rebels from their lurking places, while a nigger Brigade of poineers cleared the road of the obstructions, and before night the Philistines got sick of keeping up a skirmishing fight, and kept out of range of the little mountain howitzer the advance carried along with them.

We all supposed that Gen. Foster would take the direct road to Kingston, but the general had no intention of putting his head into the lion's mouth. The rebels had been busy for a year fortifying the place, and had boasted that it was unpregnable. Our gunboats could not get within seven miles of the town, the river being impeded, and a strong fort in the way, but by making an extra day's march, we could come on them by another road, which the rebels never dreamt we would take, it being through a deep swamp, and naturally strongly fortified. Gen. Foster however with a cuteness some of us did not give him credit for, chose the longer rout, thus turning the rebel fortifications, and rendering them useless. On the afternoon of the third day, we got to within 5 miles of the town, and on to the rebel advance. The rascals had burnt a bridge which led across a large stream, and seemed determined not to let us cross, but while a battery was getting into position to protect the nigger brigade of bridge builders, the Ninth N. Jersey auspiciously began the work, by fording the stream and gallantly charging a battery of two guns, which were annoying our poineers exceedingly. The Philistines skedaddled and left their guns, not being able to stand the bayonet. The battery had got to work, and hastened their flight with a few shell. The poincers with the nigger brigade soon got a bridge thrown over, and the first brigade was sent across, which secured the position and that ended the work for the night.

The two guns, captured by the ninth N. Jersey, were objects of special interest. They originally belonged to our paternal uncle, "Uncle Sam," and were taken by the rebels at "Bull Run." We recaptured them when we took Newbern—lost them at Washington, this state, when the rebels made a raid there last summer, and now took them again near Kingston.

We talked things over that night around our camp fires, surmising the force of the Rebels, and whether they would make a stand on the morrow. Every little while, some one would come along with a big yarn of a rebel skedaddle, and that our cavalry with the advance guard had been into Kingston and sacked the town, others had it, that the Philistines were in strong force under the redoubtable Evans, and would make a hard fight of it, and with that uncertainty, we rolled our blankets around us, and stretched ourselves before our fires, and awaited for the eventful morrow.

The next morning was the Sabbath morn and it broke forth most gloriously—we were all in high spirits, and anxious to meet the enemy, for we felt it within us, that if we met the foe, we would surely flog him. We had not long to wait. The column had not long been in motion, ere we heard cannonading in the front, and forward we went on the double quick.—When we got near the scene, the two advanced brigades were hard at it, and we expected to go right in, but the nature of the ground would not permit any more than the two brigades to work advantageously, so we drew up in line of battle to abide our time. We knew full well that if a chance presented itself, Gen. Stevenson would shove us in, and it was not long ere such a chance offered. The lay of the land, was such, that our artillery could not be brought into play, so Infantry had to do the work, and the gallant 10th Connecticut, who have the right of our brigade, and, the 44th Col. Lee, who were next in line, were sent forward to help Weitzell's and Amory's boys along. Our boys stood by Belger's Battery, but as he could not get into action, we followed the right of the brigade, but too late to participate in the fight, for the gallant 10th Connecticut finished the business, and covered themselves with glory. They charged over one Mass. regiment and one old N. York regt. and came down on the rebel centre with such impetuosity, that they broke and fled in the utmost confusion, and now we had it all our own way.

The whole force of the rebels were on our side of the river, they thought that even if we were too strong for them they could reach the bridge and get over in safety, but when their centre gave way their right and left wings followed suit, and all rushed precipitately for the bridge, where they were all huddled together, each one trying to get over first. Our boys closely followed them up, and one or two pieces of flying artillery getting near enough, opened on them with grape cannister, which raised the devil amongst them. They became panic-stricken, and fired the bridge, leaving nearly a thousand of their number to fall into our hands. Our fellows were so close to their heels that they arrived up to the bridge in time to quench the flames, ere much damage was done, and the bridge was secured and our infantry thrown over, and the battle of Kingston was won.

The rebels had a force of about 7000 men, and no doubt but what Gen. Evans thought he could keep us at bay. The ground would not admit of one half of our effective force being brought into action, but those who did go in acted with such intrepidity, that they swept everything before them, and fairly frightened the rebels into an old fashioned skedaddle.—Not but that they fought well enough for a short time, our killed and wounded testify as to that, but after our fellows worked their way through the swamp, and came on them with the bayonets, they could not stand the press—the results of our victory, were, eleven cannons, a large number of small arms, and a large lot of infantry equipments and stores besides, thrashing the saucy rebel, Gen. Evans, who had boasted that he had never been whipped.—We bivouacked in and around Kingston, that night, and although we were completely tired out by the fatigues of the day, it was late ere we went to sleep—the jest and song went round—patriotic sentiments prevailed, and the Union was saved, so said we all of us.

In the morning we once more took the war path and hastened on towards Goldsboro'. Nothing worthy of note happened on the day's march until night, when we got to within a few miles of a little town called Whitehall, located on the opposite side of the river, when we saw, what we supposed to be in the distance, the fires of a rebel camp. Our cavalry went out reconnoitering and found that the bridge across the river had been destroyed, and that there was a strong force of the enemy on the other side, but as they had taken the precaution to destroy the bridge, we could not get at them, and we knew, as we bivouacked for the night, that there was no danger of their coming near us. Now, the road to Goldsboro' ran through what is called Jericho, crossing which is right opposite Whitehall, and the Philistinss, if so minded, could annoy us exceedingly as we passed through.

After the severe lesson we gave them at Kingston we did not expect to be troubled by them until we reached Goldsboro', where we expeeted a "right smart fight." However, we rolled our blankets around us, laid our heads on the patriarch's pillow, and gave ourselves over to Morpheus, letting the morrow take care of itself. An early breakfast and an early start was the order next morning, and by the peep of dawn we were again on the road, "en route" for Goldsboro'. If any of us had any doubts as to the rebels' intention of disputing our passing, they were soon dispelled; for our advance had no sooner reached the crossing than the Philistines opened on us from a battery of heavy guns they had planted during the night. The alternative was, either to run the gauntlet or silence their battery.

Gen. Foster, who had no intention of receiving such compliments without returning them, had his batteries run up and put in position, and soon the loud mouthed dogs of war told us that Mars was again in the ascendant; and as we hurried up to the front, the hospital men, who were hastening to the rear, consoled us with the old story of "hot work, boys; hot work!" We only laughed at them, little thinking that we were going into one of the hardest fights of the war, but we had no time to think.

"Make way! Make way up there for Belger's Battery!" was the cry of the aids who were sent down to hurry us up; and as the drivers whipped up their horses to a gallop, we of the 24th had to stretch our legs to a smart run in order to keep them in sight. It is a beautiful sight to see a battery of flying artillery going into action. The drivers on their boxes, riding like out riders,—the cannoneers seated on the guns,—the horses on the full gallop—and the guns thundering over the road,—all tend to inspire one with military ardor and make him sing with Major Dalgetty, "When cannons are roaring, and colors are flying, the boys who love glory, must never fear dying."

When we got up, we were ordered off from the road on to a hill. We found three or four New York batteries were already in, hanging away; and in less time than I can tell you, Belger's boys had their guns unlimbered and into it also, throwing the shell right and left across the river.

As fast as our artillery came up they were put into position, and opened on the rebels, and a fierce artillery fight took place. The rebels made the shell and shot fly pretty thick about our ears, but we carried too many guns for them, and finally made them dry up and withdraw their ordnance. They left, however, their infantry, with a number of sharpshooters, who were ensconced behind breastworks and in tops of trees, who kept up a continual fire. Belger moved his guns down from the hill and took another position on the level ground, nearer the river, and commenced to dose them with grape and cannister. I thought it was bad enough on the hill where the rebel shell, with their confounded grape and cannister came thick enough, but it wasn't a circumstance to the fire we got in our new position. The rascals, from their cover, would take deliberate aim at us, and kept up a most murderous file fire. Six or seven of the battery boys got popped off ere they were ordered to lay down, just behind the battery.

Old Belger loomed up in his glory, encouraging his men by precept and example. "Give it to them," he would say, when a well directed shot was fired, and they did blaze away, peppering them well with grape and cannister and short fuse shells, which brought sticks about their ears and brought them down from their ambush in the trees.

Our fire growing hotter and hotter, as more of our artillery got at them at short range, they concluded that discretion was the better part of valor, and drew off out of our range, letting us have the road without further toll.

Sharpshooters were picked out from the regiments to remain and amuse themselves if they ventured back, while we again got in column and started for our terminating point, and, ere we put up for the night, had marched eight miles from the scene of the late conflict, a good day's work, and one that tuckered us out fairly; so, after we had lighted our fires and swallowed our coffee, we sought our blankets and "nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep."

Next morning the cry was, "Onward! still onward!" We were now about a day's march from Goldsboro' and expected to reach the vicinity that night and fight for the possession the day following; so we stepped off quite lively and kept up a good jog till nearly noon, when, heavy cannonading being heard in the front, we knew the forces ahead had come across something, and, on arriving up, found the two brigades were busy at work, and the artillery pounding away at a long bridge. We filed off into a field and drew up "en masse" and waited for orders. It was then we found out the object of the Expedition—which was, to destroy the railroad bridge we saw in the distance. The bridge was about three miles from Goldsboro' and was a large, lengthy structure. The Philistines showed fight and tried to save it, but our cannon swept the track, while our cavalry and infantry fired the bridge, tore up the rails, and destroyed several miles of tressel work, thus cutting in two as it were, one of the main railroad arteries of the South.

We stood by until the bridge was consumed, and saw the work of years destroyed in a few hours. We then turned our faces homewards, elated with success, and as we passed the old General, made the welkin ring with hurrahs we pealed out, partly to honor the old fellow and partly because we were homeward bound; but our joy was short-lived. We had not got over two miles on the back track, when the booming of cannon and the pealing of musketry told us that the work was not yet finished; and as an aid-de-camp came riding up on the full gallop, with an order for Stevenson's brigade to return as fast as possible, "Uncle Tobey" never heard such swearing in the army of Flanders as was heard from our boys as we put it back on the double quick, and here again we did not get a chance to sail in, but just arrived on the spot in time to see the finishing "coup de grace" given to the Philistines.

It seems that a whole brigade of rebels were on this side of the bridge, who, alarmed at our numbers, or up to some game, hastily retired to a thick piece of woods on our extreme left, where they kept shady all the time. We were engaged with their main force, which was on the other side of the bridge and to our right; but as soon as we had completed our work and drawn off most af our infantry, leaving the artillery to limber up and follow, this lone brigade of rebels thought it the time to distinguish themselves and capture a part of our cannon, hut they reckoned without the host and got caught in their own trap, for the General had left a whole brigade to protect the artillery, which the Philistines could not have seen, as they lay down behind the guns—for on they came at a charge, yelling like wild Indians, but our cannoneers were too quick for them; they loaded their guns with grape and cannister, and when the rebels got within pistol range, poured it right into them. Our infantry then rose up and gave them a volley which quite staggered them, and by this time our cavalry had got together and charged in amongst them, and for once we got them just where we wanted them: out in an open field, where we could pepper them good. The grape and cannister told on them with fearful effect, and laid them out like grass on a prairie when it is in flames.

We once more turned and got on the home track; this time the rebels let us alone; that last dose was a sickener; and we saw no more of them, for they kept at a respectful distance from us, and did not trouble even our rear guard on our march back.

And now I must hasten and finish this somewhat lengthy epistle, and, if I get over the paper as fast as the General put us over the road, I will soon end.

General Foster is getting notorious for his quick and long marches. Weitzel's boys say they never made such tramps in the Peninsula, and got quite disgusted with Foster's style. The old General did seem to think we were a parcel of French Zouaves who can fight and march on empty stomachs, forgetting we belong to that Anglo Saxon race who have always been remarkable for their fondness for roast beef. Our wagon train, though a long one, did not carry a sufficiency of food for so large a body of men, and what with the known rascality of the teamsters, who would dump a portion of their load every time they got stuck, we were on short allowance all the time.

No foraging was allowed on the outward march, but on our return we were allowed the privilege, and the boys went the whole hog. Turkies and chickens were grabbed up with an alacrity that would astonish a cripple, and lucky was he who could have the leg of a foul for supper. It is truly astonishing to see with what avidity soldiers on the march will scent out grub and many were the curses, both loud and deep, our fellows got from the seecsh matrons as they cleaned out their larders. We saw plenty of the three staple articles of the South—hog, corn, and sweet potatoes—but none of those little luxuries that a poor man's family in the North think indispensable.

We got back again to Kingston. On the second day a few gunboats had come up the river as far as the blockade, bringing us some bread. Our wounded were completely played out and were put aboard. We got a supply of hard tack, with which we filled our hungry stomachs, and the next day we intended to put it through to Newbern, a distance of 30 miles; so we went in for a good night's rest and an early start on the morning.

We took the road at daylight and soon got into a 2.40 pace, which we kept up till noon, when we halted for a feed and rest, after which we once more girded on our armor and went marching along. We got to within 12 miles of Newbern when we saw unmistakable signs of some of the boys eaving in. Amory's boys had pulled up and were going to bivouac another night; Weitzel's Brigade also gave it up; but Gen. Lee's and our Brigade kept on. It was a long stretch, but it was the home stretch, and we were bound to put it through.

It was a tough march, loaded down as soldiers are, but we stuck it out, and arrived at our old quarters a little after dark, being absent just ten days, during which we had marched 140 miles, and fought three battles. The cooks heard we were coming and had a good supper ready for us, after which, and a good horn of whiskey the captain served out, we turned in, and we stretched our weary bones on the soft side of a board. Blessed the man who invented sleep.

Capt. Daniels, and his company of South Danvers boys are all right, and send their best respects to all, and hope the folks will write often.

Many companies in our regiment had turkies and chickens for dinner on Thanksgiving and Christmas Day, but our company, (K,) not being in time to get the fowls in sufficient numbers, will have ours to-morrow, (Sunday,) Turkies, chickens, and plum pudding,—what do you think of that for a soldier in Dixie?

We are comfortably quartered in barracks, and there are no indications of any forward movement very soon, so we are contented for a while.

The weather here is and has been exceedingly pleasant for some time,—not seeing any snow since we were in Annapolis over a year ago. On Christmas Day could be seen here many soldiers stripped and in swimming in the Neuse River. Not a Swim at home, I suppose?

[For the Wizard.]

We have had a great many complaints of young men and boys insulting people in the streets of this town, and even the aged men of 80 years and upward, and even our Institute lectures are disturbed by the conduct of young women and others, and it is about time these things were put a stop to. S. Q. W.

IN MEMORIAM

EBEN DALE SUTTON.

DECEASED NOV. 13, 1862.

[The following beautiful lines come to us from an unknown source, but we gladly put them in print, not only on account of their intrinsic excellance, but as a new wreath cast by a loving hand upon the tomb of one whose eventful life and painfully sudden death, have awakened great sympathy in this community.]

Spirit of him who gave our life its sweet,
Spirit whose parting wreaked such bitter woe,
We shall not find thee in our paths below,
But in celestial air we trust to meet.

Whither has fled our prized one in his bloom?
Thou wert our soul's belov'd, vouchsafed us here
To glad the home thy absence makes so drear
That halls which heard thy laugh are as the tomb.

Thou camest to us in a gracious guise,
As dayspring to the hearts that yearned for thee,
Who breathed fresh hope thy dawning life to see
And traced rich prophecies in thy young eyes.

In closer links love bound us day by day,
As time in hasting did thy powers disclose,—
Sweet gifts of heart and mind that on us rose
And rayed a glory round our onward way.

Fragile thy form as precious porcelain,
And swift the spirit which such clay enshrined;—
Wit's sparkling flashes lightened from thy mind
As patience charmed the sense of grievous pain.

Proudly we watched thy course to youth's estate,
Whatever ills beset triumphing still;
Mastering weakness with an earnest will
Ne'er to give o'er, the fickle sport of fate.

Bravely thy spirit struggled in thy frame,
And ripened fast its powers with purpose keen
To sound the mysteries of this earthly scene,
Purer emerging from the furnace flame.

Thy being's chords to melody were strung,
And by thy fingers touched with magic power,
Thy harps poured forth of harmony rich dower,
As on its waves our souls delighted hung.

Cunning thy hand to body forth thy thought
In ever new device of mimic art—
Picture or plan to which thou could'st impart
Rays of the beautiful thy fancy caught.

Hope limned thy life with tints all Iris-hued,
Forelooking to the coming golden years,
And harbored in our hearts no faithless fears
That thou could'st leave us in black solitude,—

When with no sign in all the cloudless blue,
Suddenly o'er us swept on noiseless wing,
With blasting breathe a shapeless, nameless thing,
That snatched our treasure swift from mortal view.

O with'ring blight upon our hearts and hearth,
When the fell angel of the shadowy realm,
Let loose his scourge, our hopes to overwhelm,
And veiled the light by which we walked on earth.

O laboring hearts in woe that mourn thy boy,
Think as thy griefs distill in bitter rain,
'Tis Love Immortal deals thy souls their pain
That ye who sow in tears may reap in joy.

Bowed to the earth and smitten by His rod,
Turn to that realm where comes not sorrow's blight,
Where never cloud profanes the blessed light;
Its radiant sun the glory of our God.

Faith sees thy boy beneath the Saviour's rule,
As in soft light on her rapt vision gleams,
Shining amid green pastures and still streams,
The many-mansioned Palace Beautiful.

Father! the love he bore thee cannot die,
And though his welcome tones greet thee no more,
Doubt not his soul on the eternal shore
Thrills true to them and heeds its every sigh.

Sorrowful mother! seraph tongue might tell
What fadeless palm thy tenderness hath now;
Thou know'st how good, how grateful was thy son,
And thy heart sees that still he loves thee well.

A viewless guest, oft deem thy loved one near,
Drawn to the scenes in life he found so fair,
Where cherished keepsakes seem thy griefs to share
And waiting for his touch who held them dear.

Soul to its Source on high, and dust to dust!
O sacred dust with myriad memories rife!
The flowers that decked thy bier emblemed thy life,—
As pure, as fleet, as faithful to their trust.

Peace to thy form which to its Lord must rise!
Peace in thy home of rest where we have laid
Our vanished hope beneath the oak-tree shade
In hallowed grove, portal of Paradise.

MR. EDITOR,—There are a few over-wise and careful persons in our vicinity, who from supposed or real fear of the present system of currency, are making a great amount of trouble by refusing to receive the substitute which we have for silver change. They may not be enemies of our country, but we think that they are devoid of sufficient amount of reason to comprehend that this state of things is owing to the crisis through which we are passing, and it behooves every man who has the good of his country at heart, to practice a little charity and lay aside old prejudices for a brief period, and help one and another in this matter, until we can see things in a little brighter light than at present. STOREKEEPER.

FRANKLIN CLUB.—Our readers will be pleased to learn that this association, after a sleep of four years, is again manifesting signs of life. They will have a public discussion at the Town Hall on Monday evening next, commencing at 7 o'clock. All are invited to attend.

The first series of public debates by this Club, several years since, were able, interesting and instructive, and we have no doubt but that the present course will be well worth attending. At all events, it will add something to "the life of the town."

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 14, 1863.

HON. JOHN A. GILMORE.

It gives us pleasure to see that this gentleman has been put in nomination for Governor of New Hampshire. It will be recollected that he was first nominated for this position about three years ago in this paper, and our choice seems now likely to be confirmed by the people of New Hampshire. His excellent administrative ability is too well known to need remark, and he has had experience in legislation and presided over the State Senate. That he will be triumphantly elected we regard as a sure thing, as he is very popular outside as well as within the Republican party. We have heard one of our most influential Democrats, who knows him well, speak of Mr. GILMORE as the most popular as well as the most energetic public man in New Hampshire, and one who would be likely to draw a large vote from the ranks of the opposite party.

THE CATE AFFAIR.

The question is often mooted, What is to be done with the money and other articles, in possession of the officers, which were found among the effects of the burglar? Some of the things in the collection may be identified, and these may be returned to their proper owners. But how about the money, and papers equivalent to money? There are about $3000, a small portion of which, in all probability, is the fruit of honest labor. The rest has been purloined from individuals, and they are sufferers, without redress, unless they can be repaid from this burglar fund. Mr. WOODBURY is the greatest sufferer in a pecuniary way, as well as by imperilled loss of reputation. Why should he not be reimbursed from this fund? If legal difficulties are in the way, what other plan can be devised to remunerate him for the pecuniary losses he has sustained through causes beyond his control, and his endeavors to defend himself from the wrongs he suffered?

If Equity could decide these questions, he would be at once put in possession of the property of the thief who caused his loss. If there is no way to obtain this property and return it to the losers, what becomes of it? Suppose the robber is taken and serves out his term of imprisonment, does he come out of State Prison the possessor of his ill-gotton gain? We confess ourselves unable to solve these questions, and would be glad to obtain some light on the matter. In the mean time, the peculiarly hard case of Mr. WOODBURY and his son should not be overlooked, but some mode devised to make pecuniary reparation.

We hope to be able, in our next, to publish a complete list of the articles in the Cate collection. Those desirous of securing extra copies, must send in their orders before Saturday next.

ESSEX AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY TRANSACTIONS.

We are indebted for an early copy of this Farmer's Annual to the attention of CHARLES P. PRESTON, Esq., the Secretary of the Society, under whose care it has been carried through the press. It makes a neat and stout pamphlet of 212 pages, and is filled with a great variety of matters which are of interest to the general reader as well as the farmer.

The leading feature of the book is the Annual Address by GEO. J. L. COLBY, Esq., of which we have before spoken. Every farmer who reads it must feel proud of his vocation, and every man who is not a farmer cannot read it without desiring to belong to this independent, intelligent and favored class of citizens.

On looking over the remaining part of the pamphlet and comparing it in memory with those which have preceded it, we feel constrained to give this the first place in regard to the information imparted, the language in which the reports and statements are clothed, and the interest excited in the mind of the reader. The full report on Sheep husbandry is a document of great interest and importance at this time when wool is to be the main article of clothing to be depended upon in future years. The report on the Treadwell Farm is a clear and plain statement of what has been done and is doing on that domain, and it is illustrated by engravings to render its statements intelligible to all. The statement of Dr. LORING, accompanying the Report on Farms, in which he gives an account of his mode of culture on that noble estate (the Pickman Farm), is well drawn and exact, and does credit to the proprietor as a farmer as well as a scholar. The report on Sheep was also from the facile pen of Dr. LORING.

On looking over the several Reports we were glad to find that notwithstanding the unpleasantness of the day of exhibition, South Danvers and Danvers were very fairly represented. For instance, in the award of premiums on Pears, of 27 premiums bestowed, 9 were to our own growers, and Mr. Stephen Blaney took 7 of these.

☞ Who's seen CATE lately?

JUVENILE DEPRAVIT

We stated last week that an had been made to set fire to the School House. Since that tim come out, through investigation by the Prudential Committee and ers, assisted by Mr. Shackley, t act was done by two of the pupil school kept in the room where was discovered. They were bo nine and eleven years of age, their own confession, they wer their work of destruction very de ly, and but for the timely disc one of the neighbors, would ha completely successful.

It seems, by the statement younger of the culprits, that, ju the criminal act, they committ other acts of rowdyism, and then ed to the school house yard a in a window with stones. The then climbed on the back of the so that he could reach the insid ing and raised the window and He then reached out a chair by comrade entered. By means o they forced open the drawer in t er's table where writing-books a paper articles were kept and set fire. They also set fire to the of the waste-paper basket u table. They then escaped the went in, leaving the chair under dow outside.

Although the fire was exti without alarming the neighbo was evident that its early disco saved the house, which has cost trict some $6,000. The act good deal of excitement when known, as it was manifest by tion of the chair outside of th that more than one person par in the crime.

For some months there have casional outrages committed a house and yard, the perpetrator eluding discovery, the authors being boys of the district, atte having formerly attended the sch

Investigations were immediate and all the male pupils of the tw schools privately examined, but at first obtaining any clue to the perpetrators. A very slight of prevarication on the part younger culprit led to a more s examination, which resulted i development of the circumstance transaction. The boys were arr Thursday evening, confined in th house, and the next day taken Justice Perkins, when they pleaded guilty, and for want of b sent to the jail in Salem.

We have purposely withheld th of these unfortunate lads out of to the feelings of their friends, trust this sad warning will not upon others of similar age who tempted to commit the first act lead to a life of crime. The severe in their punishment of t which they attempted to commit. hope its full weight will not fa victims so young. Since our rec this crime was punished by de we well remember seeing a boy Salem for setting a barn on fire buryport, and no appeals to th nor could save him from the gall

☞ Is Gen. Rosecrans the man? He looks amazingly like pected individual. Up to this time he threatens to be the milit and deservedly so. We all belie to be a good General before, but battle and victory at Murfreesb taken us aback and set us co If there were not a certain man nent science still living, and any moment, to come to the s the big pond called Oblivion, w think that Rosecrans's prospec flattering. Give the hero of M boro' free scope, O "Abraham a see," and we will vouch for hi venture!

☞ In opening that big oys Mississippi River, our troops h countered a very hard and for protuberance on one of the shells to naturalists by the name of Vic Up to the last accounts, this obst resisted the progress of the knife; but it is to be hoped blade in question will prove suf keen to force its way through in the obstruction. Abraham, send more whet-stones.

☞ Gen. Butler has finished of scouring and white-washing t of moral and physical filth, New In return for this kindness, Jeff threatens him with a rope if he ca him. The General can comfort with the Scottish proverbs, that "ened men live long," and "it's a to Lochow." Benjamin, no doubt in his sleeve at the impotent m the black-hearted traitor.

THE STREET RAIL ROAD.—T tinued arrival of rails for the Ho Road betokens unfailing activity enterprise. The track is expecte laid, to begin with, as far as the Central street, circling the church Log Society in that quarter.

☞ Jefferson Davis lately delivered a peech before the Georgia Legislature in hich he gave full vent to his traitorous enom against the North. That is right, ld Jeff. As the Quaker said to the ailor when he overheard him profaning, Swear away friend, and get all the gly stuff out of thee as soon as possible."

☞ The word "Murfreesboro'" is not melodeous or poetical, perhaps, as Marathon, Waterloo, Bannockburn, or any others, that have been immortalized a song, but what is of infinitely more consequence to us, it is destined to make glorious heading to some future chapter in the history of the Rebellion.

COLORED REGIMENTS.—Col. HIGGINSON, of this State, one of the noblest specimens of muscular Christianity in America, has taken command of the first negro regiment in South Carolina. Gen. PHELPS is anxious to command not one, but many negro regiments.

PURE AFRICANS.—It is said that Gen. HUNTER did his best to discover pure Africans in South Carolina, but found it exceedingly difficult. Gen. BUTLER'S colored regiment is, to use his own words as reported, "about the complexion of the late DANIEL WEBSTER," which, says the Boston Commonwealth, proves beyond a doubt the irrepressible and natural antipathy of Caucassian to the race of Ham.

SHINPLASTERS.—The City Council of New York have passed the ordnance over the vote of the Mayor, to authorize the issue of three millions of dollars of change notes," as they call them.

SOUTH DANVERS FIRE CLUB. — At the annual meeting of this Club, held on the 12th inst., the following were chosen officers for the ensuing year:

Pranklin Osborn, President.
Joseph Jacobs, Nathaniel P. C. Patterson, Rufus H. Brown, Directors.
O. E. Pope, Secretary.

☞ The total number of deaths in Salem in 1862 was 358. Males 172, females 186.

GEN. CARTER'S expedition to Tennessee is hardly surpassed in daring by any of the many raids of the rebels. Besides being hazardous it was attended with great hardships and privation. The results of this expedition are the destruction of two important bridges, the killing, wounding and capturing of 550 rebels, the taking of 700 stand of arms and a large amount of flour, salt and other stores. A locomotive and two cars were also destroyed. The success of this expedition is of great importance, as it cuts off communication between Richmond and the West.

☞ Senator Wilson is working hard in Congress for the adoption of some measure which will ensure the speedy payment of the soldiers. It is stated that sixty millions of dollars are now due to the army.

Notice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

Clouds and Hoods at Reduced Prices.—See PEABODY'S advertisement.

PRICE LIST OF WORSTEDS.—See PEABODY'S advertisement.

Notice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

BALMORAL SKIRTS.—J. P. PEABODY has a full stock of the best Balmoral Skirts, which he is selling at less than regular prices. Everything at closing prices. See adv't.

BARGAINS.—See PEABODY'S closing sale advertisement.

☞ Call and look at the HUDSON BAY SABLES, at OSBORNE'S.

Save your Rags and Paper!

The subscriber will pay the highest prices in CASH for Rags and Paper. By giving seasonable notice he will call at the houses of those who wish to dispose of their rags.

"A penny saved is as good as a penny earned."

So Poor Richard says.

SUMNER SOUTHWICK.

South Danvers, Jan 14, 1863.

Omnibus Notice.

On and after Thursday, Jan. 15, 1863—for the better accommodation of the public—the Omnibus fare between South Danvers and Salem will be FIVE CENTS, or 22 Tickets for One Dollar.

Passengers called for or left off the regular route, 15 cents, or 25 cents for two.

January 14 H. M. MERRILL.

Physicians' Notice.

The Physicians of Danvers have unanimously agreed that, on and after MARCH 1st, 1863, they will charge 75 cents per visit.

Danvers, Jan. 6th, 1863.

To Let.

A BUILDING on Spring Street, suitable for a Currier or a Shoe Manufacturer. Inquire of R. S. D. Symonds, 54 Main Street.

South Danvers, July 25, 1862.

Port of Danvers.

Ar 3d, schs Pearl, Robinson, Rockland; 5th, Eglantine, Story, Salem, to repair.

Marriages.

In Salem, Jan 8, by Rev Dr Worcester, Mr Otis H Ballard to Miss Margie B, daughter of Mr John W Clark.

In Ipswich, Jan 4, by Rev Dr Fitz, Mr Abraham H Williams to Miss Mary E Haskell, both of Hamilton; 8th, Mr John J Daniels of Rowley, to Miss Jane Whipple of Hamilton.

In Linebrook Parish, Jan 1st, Mr Silas M Tenney to Miss Sarah A Dawkins, both of Rowley.

Deaths.

In this town, Dec 29, Mr Ephraim Larrabee, aged 89.

Jan 3, Mr Thomas Mendy, aged 78 yrs.

Jan 5, Mrs Catharine, wife of Mr Robert Ryan, 33 years.

Jan 10th, of typhus fever, Dr Benjamin W Robinson, of Topsfield, and formerly of Marblehead, 28 yrs 9 mos.

In announcing the death of Dr. Robinson most of our citizens will naturally ask, "Who is this person?" His very recent arrival and determination to adopt this town as his residenee will account for the question. From one of our physicians we learn that Dr. R. was a young man of earnest purposes, and whose characteristics gave high pledges of being a most respeeted and useful eitizen. During his earlier years he was a resident of Marblehead, where by his own industry in mechanical employments he acquired sufficient means to enable him with elose economy to devote himself to the obtaining the desire of his heart, an education. He advaneed himself sufficiently to eommenee a collegiate eourse; but this step he felt he must forego from the want of suffieient peeuniary means. He therefore begun and eontinued with very great industry and perseverance the study of medicine in his own town. Reeeiving his medical diploma in February last, he settled at Reading. During the latter part of last fall, thinking he should have a wider and more acceptable field for himself here, he, with a worthy wife and a young child, removed to this town. He had been but a very short time here when sickness occurred in the family of his father, who had lately removed to Topsfield, and in close and anxious attendance there he probably initiated the disease which terminated his life. Since his own confinement by sickness, eommencing early in December, one sister has died, untold to him, and a mother and three other sisters are now siek. In his loss to us we can tenderly sympathize in the sadness of his family and friends.

InTopsfield, Jan 3d, Caroline, daughter of Benjamin and Lucy Robinson, formerly of Marblehead, 18 yrs 6 mos—sister of Dr Benjamin W Robinson.

In Danvers, Jan 6, Mary Ann, daughter of William and Catherine Brady, 15 mos.

In Salem, Jan 7th, Mrs Catharine, widow of the late Mr William Kelley, 50 yrs; 9th, Miss Bridget Cunningham, 60 years; 10th, Charles Blake, son of Andrew J and Lucy Ann Tibbets, 7 weeks; 11th, Mrs Sarah, wife of Mr Temple Hardy, 70 years.

James F. Almy.

WE offer a large stock of Ladies', Gent's and Misses'

Merino Under Clothing,

at LOW PRICES. We are selling our stock of

Winter Dress Goods

At REDUCED PRICES.

We are selling our stock of

CUSTOM MADE CLOAKS

at Reduced Prices.

JAMES F. ALMY,

jan 14 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

Advertisements.

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,

FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,

Central street, South Danvers,

HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.

He keeps as good an assortment of

COFFINS AND CASKETS,

as can be found at any establishmont, and at the lowest prices.

He will also attend to Laying Out. etc.

All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

T. HARDY, JR.,

—Dealer in—

DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,

Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,

FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,

No. 26 FRONT STREET,

Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

NOTICE.

I HEREBY give notice that I have this day given to my son NATHANIEL F HURD, now 16 years old, his time, and I will not detain his earnings or pay any debts he may contract after this date.

HARFORD HURD.

Danvers, January 14, 1862. 3w*

IHLSING & NARVESON'S

Celebrated New Full 7 Octave

PIANO FORTES,

OF superior tone and finish, plain and ornamental, nameboard inlaid with pearl, full iron frame, grand action, overstrung bass pearl or ivory keys, plain or earved legs, are for sale at

218 Essex Street, Salem, Up Stairs.

Any one wishing to obtain a superior instrument is invited to call before purchasing elsewhere.

jan 7—tf S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

Danvers Savings Bank.

THE Annual Meeting of the Members of this Corporation will be held at the office, in Rooms of the Village Bank, on WEDNESDAY, the 14th inst., at 3 o'clock, P. M.

WM. L. WESTON, Secretary.

Danvers, Jan 7, 1863.

EXTRA HEAVY SHEETINGS.

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

NEW GOODS.

WE have received some very neat styles of Freneh Prints, small figures, Spring styles, new goods.

Neat styles Patches, new patterns.

A few pieces Cotton and Wool M de Laines, new styles, suitable for the present and Spring wear—selling low for eash.

jy 14 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS

A FINE assortment—for sale at low prices at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

jy 14 190 Essex Street, Salem.

NEW BOOKS.

STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom; Fire Light; or Stories for Domestics, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;

Gardener's Monthly—January;

Harper's Weekly; Genealogical Register;

Historical Collections, October, 1862.

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,

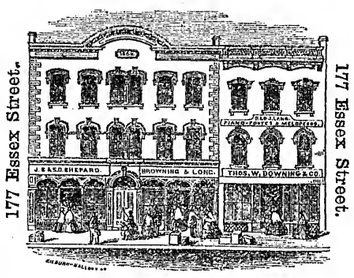
At the old stand of H Whipple & Son

Browning & Long.

1863.

REDUCTION OF STOCK.

DOWNING BLOCK,



Opposite Essex House.

FIRST CLASS GOODS AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES

Finding that LOW PRICES are appreciated in Salem and vicinity, BROWNING & LONG are determined, notwithstanding the great advance in all classes of Goods, to close out the remainder of their RICH STOCK of Fall and Winter Goods at prices which cannot fail to suit.

Ladies will please remember that our Goods are First Class, and that we sell them at the Smallest Possible Profit.

On and after MONDAY, January 5th, we shall have many Goods open for inspeetion, and would invite all to come and examine the same, assuring them that they will be pleased with the Assortment and Prices.

FIRST CLASS GOODS AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES

BROWNING & LONG,

SUCCESSORS TO

J. MAYER,

☞ No. 177 Essex Street, ☜

SALEM, MASS.

Ladies will please remember that the principal Stores close at 6 o'clock.

George S. Walker.

AT REDUCED PRICES.

GEORGE S. WALKER

Offers his Winter Stock of

Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods,

SUCH as All-Wool, Merino, and Silk Shirts and Drawers,

HOSIERY, GLOVES, SCARFS,

And other Seasonable Goods,

At such Reduced Prices as will make it for the interest of purchasers to examine before purchasing elsewhere, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,

jan 14 228 Essex st. Stearns' Block.

PAPER BOXES.

SEVERAL HUNDRED Paper Boxes for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S, jan 14 228 Essex St., Salem.

A. J. Archer & Co

PARIS KID GLOVES.

A FRESH SUPPLY, JUST RECEIVED and for sale by

aug 6 A. J. ARCHER & CO., 181 Essex St.

CLOAKS AND SACKS.

Cloak Beavers

— AND —

Cloak Cloths

In all the most desirable styles!

A large assortment just opened, and for sale by

AUGUSTUS J. ARCHER & CO.

nov 12 181 ESSEX ST.

November 19, 1862.

NEW FALL GOODS.

We ask attention to our large and attractive stock of

NEW GOODS,

which will be offered at

LOW PRICES.

nov 29 A. J. ARCHER & CO., 181 Essex st.

SALESMAN WANTED.

APPLY at 181 Essex street, Salem.

A. J. ARCHER, & CO.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE SUBSCRIBER wishes to invite the attention of the public to the Fine and extensive assortment of

MEN'S & BOYS'

CLOTHING,

Hats, Caps, Furnishing Goods,

And Boots for Men's, Boys' and Youths' Wear,

which I have received within the past week for the winter trade.

I have made every possible endeavor to select a stock that shall be in EVERY RESPECT good and feel confident that I can offer such inducements as will secure a liberal patronage.

My stock in the Men's line, being probably as large as any in the State (out of Boston) and the only one in the vicinity that has a full assortment of Gent's Furnishing Goods, I shall always endeavor to keep a full stock of all the latest styles of FINE, as well as the lower grades of clothing.

Having had 20 years experience I flatter myself that I can and certainly shall make it my aim to sell my customers GOOD CLOTHING at the VERY LOWEST MARKET PRICES.

I shall take pleasure in showing my stock and prices at any time, which can be examined without being importuned to buy. You can then judge for yourself whether I can make it for your interest to purchase. My business will be conducted strictly on the

ONE PRICE SYSTEN,

and no deviation can be made in any case.

S. R. BOTT,

MAIN STREET, Townsend's Building, nearly opposite the Peabody Institute.

GARMENTS Cut for Men and Boys in the latest styles.

South Danvers, December 10, 1862.

Probate Notice.

ESSEX ss. To the Heirs-at-Law and others interested in the Estate of SAMUEL TUCKER, late of South Danvers, in said county, cordwainer, intestate, greeting:

Whereas, Joseph Poor, administrator of the estate of said deceased has presented for allowance the first account of administration upon the estate of said deceased: You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Salem in said County, on the first Tuesday of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed. And the said administrator is ordered to serve this Citation by publishing the same once a week, in the South Danvers WIZARD a newspaper printed at South Danvers, three weeks successively, the last publication to be two days at least before said Tuesday.

Witness, GEORGE F. CHOATE, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this sixth day of January in the year eighteen hundred and sixty-three.

A. C. GOODELL, Register.

South Danvers, Jan 7, 1863.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.

South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

FOR SALE.

A GOOD comfortable Home, a two-story House, L, Shed and Barn, in good repair, pleasantly located in Londonderry, N. H., 1 1-2 miles from center of town, 10 acres of Land, with plenty of Fruit. Price only $650.

Also—an excellent Stock Farm of 250 acres, for sale or exchange.

dec 31 L. BRICKETT, Derry, N. H.

PEABODY'S ANNUAL CLOSING OUT SALE.

READ THE PRICES.

Best Black and White German Worsteds, per oz	$0 13
Best Solferino and Scarlets, " " "	0 15
Best Magenta and Purples, " " "	0 17
Finest Cloud made—Patti Novelties,	1 00
Very Heavy Cloud—large size,	0 92
Good Cloud—fine colors,	0 75
Nice Hand Knit Skating Hat,	0 50
Baby's Hat—Hand Knit—formerly $1 00,	0 25
Best Silk Lined Hat—usually at $1 75,	1 00
Ladies' White, all wool, Hose, usually 42 cts., now	0 29
Misses' all wool Hose, usually 38 cts., now	0 25
Misses' Striped Ribb'd Hose, now	0 25
All our 38, 42 and 50 cent Flowers,	0 25
Our Best Bonnet Ribbons	all way down.
Our Bonnet Ruches	at reduced prices.

We, to-day, commence our annual closing sale. We do this in order to close out our stock of Winter Goods, that we may commence another season with a new stock. By so doing, we can always keep our stock fresh and desirable. We never allow old goods to accumulate, but "MARK THEM DOWN" until they sell. Our customers of last year will remember the bargains that we gave in our closing sale, and we can assure them that we shall sell at lower prices during this sale than ever before. We give the above short list that you may judge of our intentions. Our whole stock will be found to correspond in prices with the above.

JOHN P. PEABODY.

BARGAINS IN CLOUDS.	BARGAINS IN SONTAGS.
BARGAINS IN HOODS.	BARGAINS IN SKATING HATS.
BARGAINS IN GAITERS.	BARGAINS IN SCARFS.
BARGAINS IN SACKS.	BARGAINS IN SLEEVES.
BARGAINS IN NUBIAS.	BARGAINS IN TIPPETS.
BARGAINS IN WORSTEDS.	BARGAINS IN WOOLEN GOODS.

Sontags, Nubias, Sacks, Hoods, Skating Hats, Mittens,

Tippets, Scarfs, Gaiters, Bootees, Baby's Caps, Hoseiry.

All to be Closed at Bargains,

TO REDUCE OUR STOCK.

Bargains in Wrought Setts.
Bargains in Lace Collars.
Bargains in Insertings.
Bargains in Lace Veils.
Bargains in Thread Edgings.

Bargains in Wrought Collars.
Bargains in Edgings.
Bargains in Flouncings.
Bargains in Silk Edgings.

Wrought Setts; Wrought Collars; Lace Collars; Linen Collars; Crape Collars; Crape Setts; Linen Setts;

Thread Edgings; Wrought Edgings; Black Edgings; Lace Veils; Crape Veils; Dona Maria Veils; Love Veils.

All at Bargains,

IN ORDER TO REDUCE OUR STOCK.

Bargains in Gent's Hosiery;
Bargains in Misses' Hosiery;
Bargains in Ladies' Gloves;
Bargains in Lisle Gloves;

Bargains in Ladies' Hosiery;
Bargains in Child's Hosiery;
Bargains in Kid Gloves;
Bargains in Misses' Gloves;

Bargains in Child's Gloves.

Gent's Hosiery;
Ladies' Hosiery;
Woolen Hosiery;
Cotton Hosiery;
Merino Hosiery;
Children's Hosiery;
Baby's Socks;

Lisle Gloves;
Kid Gloves;
Silk Gloves;
Cotton Gloves;
White Gloves;
Black Gloves;
Mourning Gloves.

All to be Closed to Reduce Stock.

Bargains in Linen Bosoms;
Bargains in Hem'd Hdkfs;
Bargains in Cotton Hdkfs;
Bargains in Plain Cambrics;

Bargains in Linen Hdkfs;
Bargains in Gent's Hdkfs;
Bargains in Check'd Cambrics;
Bargains in Swiss Muslins;

These Goods were bought before the rise in Cottons, and have not been marked up. They are decided bargains.

☞ Our WINTER GOODS are all to be closed out, and we have made the prices so low, that all in want will find it to their advantage to purchase now.

LADIES' FURNISHING STORE.

☞ ONE PRICE ONLY. ☜

220 ESSEX ST., SALEM.

JOHN P. PEABODY.

N. B.—All the principal Ladies' Furnishing and Fancy Dry Goods Dealers close their Stores every evening in the week except Saturdays. Our customers should remember this and do their shopping before evening.

☞ If you want to SAVE MONEY, in purchasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, No. 10 Front street, Salem. ap30-2m

Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,

Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,

34 Front Street.

Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

TO LET.

A SMALL and convenient TENEMENT, on Washington Street, not far from Aborn St. For terms apply to H. C. BANCROFT.

South Danvers, Nov. 26, 1362.

GRIST MILL.

HAVING made arrangements for carrying on the Grist Mill at Newhall's Crossing, at South Danvers, I take this method of informing the public that the mill is now open and ready for business.

Any patronage in the line of grinding corn or other grain, or making COB MEAL, will be gratefully received, and all orders promptly attended to.

If equally convenient for customers to bring their grists afternoons instead of forenoons they will accommodate me by doing so.

ELBRIDGE C. NEWHALL.

South Danvers, Dec 3, 1862.

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,

Druggist and Apothecary,

38 MAIN STREET.

Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.

Personal attention to Physicians' Prescriptions.

South Danvers, May 29, 1861. 1y

GEO. E. MEACOM,

Dealer in

DRUGS & MEDICINES,

Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.,

126 . . MAIN ST. . . 126

Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,

Druggist & Apothecary

37 Main St., So. Danvers,

DEALER IN

Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponges, Shoulder Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines.

Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery.

Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by experienced persons.

37 MAIN STREET.

LIVERY STABLE.

JOHN MOULTON

WOULD inform his friends and the public that he still continues to keep

Good Horses and Carriages to Let,

at the stable of G. M. TEEL on Central street, where he will remain until his stable is rebuilt at his old stand on Main Street.

A share of public patronage is solicited.

South Danvers, june 9, 1862.

PATTERSON'S

LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE

THE undersigned are agents for the above machine. It can be seen in operation at Pinder & Brown's Tannery.

may 7—3m CLARK & GIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,

Wallis Street, South Danvers,

Are Agents for

GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S

PATENT EAVE TROUGHS

CUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND

PIPE FOR DRAINS.

South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

Potter, Bachelder & Co.,

(Successors to M. Black)

DANVERS-PORT,

DEALERS IN

WOOD AND COAL

OF the various kinds usually kept in a retail yard. Constantly on hand

Franklin, Locust Mountain, Old Company's Lehigh, Black Heath, Red and White Ash.

Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere.

OFFICE—No. 6 Allen's Building.

Order Box at post office, South Danvers, and post offiee, Danvers.

G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. july 19—tf

BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS.

WILLIAM J. WALTON,

94 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS,

HAS now on hand, and intends to constantly keep a full assortment of all desirable kinds and styles of Boots, Shoes and Rubbers, which he would be happy to dispose of to his Friends, and the Public, at satisfactory prices.

Repairing expeditiously and neatly done.

WILLIAM J WALTON, 94 Main st.

South Danvers, Jan 1, 1862. tf

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St.

PRICES REDUCED!

WE shall sell our DRESS GOODS at REDUCED PRICES.

We shall sell all the different styles of Ladies' Watch Spring, Bon Ton and Quaker Skirts, at a discount.

All our Balmoral Skirts at a discount;
Freneh Prints and other grades;
Domestic Goods;
Cottons, Flannels, Crashes;
Blankets, the very best quality—all widths;
Batting, full pound bundles;
Wool Wadding, Sheet Wadding, black and white.

☞ In order to prepare for Spring Trade, we shall sell at the very lowest prices for cash.

jan 7 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal St.

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,

IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

dec 24 Sign of Five Golden Books.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 14, 1863.

Burglary!

On Tuesday night of last week occurred here one of the most remarkable burglaries, if we consider its subsequent developments, which ever was recorded in the annals of criminal jurisprudence. For a long time preceding its occurrence, extending over a period of more than a year, houses, shops and the Post Office had been entered and robbed from time to time of money and other valuables, and no clue could be had as to who was the robber. In some instances these depredations would seem to be frequent and of small account, and no other evidence existed that the places had been entered. In the absence of this evidence, suspicion was apt to fall upon whoever was employed in the places where the depredations were made.

The most remarkable of these cases was the robbery of the Post Office, about which so much excitement was made and so much suspicion aroused, as to lead to the arrest and even imprisonment of the assistant in the office, who was the son of the Post Master. Letters, containing money and other valuables, deposited in the office, failed to reach their destination. Other valuable letters, directed to the office, failed of being delivered; and these cases occurred so frequently that, after allowing for all other accidents and misscarriages, it seemed certain that some of this purloining must be in the South Danvers office. Earnest and angry complaints were made by the sufferers, many of whom were the families of the absent soldiers, to the Post Master, who was obliged to deny the allegations or account for the circumstances in the best way he could, but always declaring that all was right in the office. These complaints were increasing instead of diminishing, and the outside public joined with the sufferers in complaints of the Post Master and his assistant. Things could not long exist thus without the knowledge of the detectives of the Post Office Department. The shrewd and active agent of this department was soon in the neighborhood and decoy letters were used as a means of ferreting out the perpetrator of the mischief. We may here remark that these decoy letters are a common agency in keeping matters right in the post offices, and no post master in the country can be sure that he has not the handling of one of these in any mail he may open. The detective letters contained money directed to imaginary persons in South Danvers and were called for by real persons, but were not forthcoming. All this tended to implicate the office in the eyes of the public, and its inmates suffered the agony of being suspected of crime and witnessing the cold demeanor of some of their best friends.

As is always the case in times of excitement, tales were invented and circulated by the thoughtless, which added to the suspicion already aroused, and many fair-minded persons could not reconcile the facts as they appeared, upon any other theory than that which would implicate the office. The time had now come when the law officers arrested the assistant. The chief assistant in the Salem Post Office, Mr. Hill; was placed in charge of the South Danvers Office until matters underwent an investigation. While things remained thus, the Post Master resigned, and another was appointed, who entered upon his duties about the first of June. While the office was under the charge of Mr. Hill, and for five or six weeks after the new incumbent came in, there were no irregularities but such as could be accounted for on the score of wrong direction or other innocent cause of miscarriage. After this period complaints were made and cases stated where valuable letters had been lost or miscarried, which could no more be accounted for than those in the time of the former excitement. As these cases increased in number, the new incumbents felt themselves exposed to the same vexations and charges as had worried their predecessors, and they could partly estimate the intensity of the suffering they endured. It ought here to be mentioned that after some delay, a trial of the former assistant resulted in a prompt acquital by the jury, and this was supposed to be the strongest ease of the Government. He was, however, still held under arrest, giving bonds for his appearance at court.

This trouble in the office continued for four or five weeks until the idea occurred that the office must have been entered in the night time and the letters stolen. To ascertain if it were so, a trap was laid by so arranging the letters, that if they were disturbed it would be known. After several trials, the trap sprung. The letters had undoubtedly been handled and a few days told the story that some had been taken. The next step was to discover who was the thief. It was known that he was accustomed to make frequent visits and that he would come again. It was decided that the inmates of the office should, on alternate nights, watch until he came and could be recognized. After recognition the arrest could easily be effected and without violence. The first night he did not appear. On the second, (which was hot and sultry in dog-days,) the person who watched took his position in a little room joining the interior office, but with which there was no communication. It was a good place for observation through a window for delivery of letters. He incautiously shut himself up closely in this little room or closet, (about five feet square,) and waited the arrival of his visitor. He came at the early hours of the morning, entering by false keys, and proceeded to business, moving about noiselessly and occasionally stopping as if listening. He thus employed himself selecting and opening letters for over two hours and until the air in the little room was oppressively hot and suffocating to the watcher, who began to feel a sickness coming over him. Although the burglar was busily employed, he operated without a light so that he could not be recognized, and this part of the plan failed. If he could be allowed to depart undisturbed, it would be easy to take him on his next visit. But this could not be, for the atmosphere of the little room was unbreathable, and the watcher must have purer air. He struck a match and lighted the gas, thus being to be able to recognize the thief by the light which would be shed upon him through the window. He only saw the outline of a middle size man as he escaped through the door, by which he came in. The bird had flown. This unfortunate failure to recognize the thief was a cause of general regret, but so far as it had any effect on the public mind, it was strongly in favor of the accused assistant. It is plain now that the case of the government against him, was a desperate one.

These things occurred on the 8th of August. On the 29th of the same month, the house of E. S. Flint, situated two doors east of the Post Office Building, was entered and $70 in gold, and about the same value in silver coin, and an old fashioned gold watch and chain were taken. The watch was afterwards recovered mysteriously by some unknown person. The use of this property has yet been identified and the effects left by Cate.

We pass over the other well known instances of missing property which these developements seem to light, in whole or in part, and give the circumstances of the latest burglary. Messrs. Sidney, Sanders & Co., shoe manufacturers in the building called Ashland Hall, had missed small sums of money from their safe from time to time and concluded to set a watch for the thief. After several nights watching, on Wednesday morning last Mr. Bailey and officer Pingree heard the robber ascend the stairs and enter the room by means of a false key. He was lighting his dark lantern in the doorway. They seized him, recognizing him as Daniel F. Cate, and held him fast, and when he knew that he was recognized he attempted to parley with them for his release, sighing and groaning for pity, as if in great distress of mind. But Bailey left him for a moment to light the gas, when he wrested himself from the hands of Mr. Pingree and attempted to pass down the stairs, but he then met Mr. Bailey and was pursued. He then ran about the shop pursued by the dark by Mr. Pingree, and seeing no other chance of escape broke through the lower sash of a window, and let himself down about 18 feet into the yard of the Old South Church, Mr. Pingree sending after him two shots from his revolver. Messrs. Bailey and Pingree went down by the stairway, but were too late to overtake him. They then proceeded to his boarding house, kept by his sister, Mrs. Osgood, in Pleasant street, and rung at the door. Mrs. Osgood came to the window and they asked her if Mr. Cate was in the house, she stepped back a moment and returned, saying that he was in. They then requested to see him at the door, and were answered that he would be down directly. Instead of coming down by the front door, like a well behaved and respectable citizen, he escaped by the back door and was heard climbing a fence of the garden, and they have not seen him since.

It is however well ascertained that he passed the day somewhere near home, probably in a building about 200 rods from his boarding place, belonging to Mr. Geo. C. Peirce. It is well known that he entered his boarding house on Wednesday evening and took away with him a coat and two pairs of pantaloons.

During the day there was great excitement in the town as these facts came out, which was increased when, by a search warrant, his trunks and boxes were taken and opened by the officers. Their contents were a singular medley of every thing requisite to set up a first class Curiosity Shop. Here were tokens of nocturnal visits to the grocer, the ticket master, the stationer, the apothecary, and the dry goods merchant, as well as the dwelling houses of them all. Here were to be seen in close juxtaposition, apple parers and lozenges; sealing wax and burglar's tools; silks, socks, salt cellars and strengthening plaster; tooth picks, tea pots and tooth ache drops; egg glasses, goblets, tumblers and photographs; corn plaster and eye salve; needles, watch chrystals and tweezers; crochet needles and plasters; knife, pencils, gold pens and butter knives; spy glasses and doubled barrelled gun; books and bodkins; rail road tickets and bodkins; dry goods and good wines; fancy goods and fancy pipes; tape, tools, table carvings and tobacco; chopping knives and perfumeries; bitters, brandy and balmoral boots; gloves, rolling pins and nut megs; alpacca, linen, cotton flannel and calicos; shot pouches and castor oil; snuff boxes and fancy soaps; an opera glass and a child's rattle and a great variety of other articles quite "too numerous to mention."

All the articles in this collection were not found at Cate's room. Messrs. M. A. Shackley, W. H. Little and Amos Merrill, went to a town in New Hampshire, and found many things at the house of a relative of Cate, among which were a gun, two books belonging to the South Danvers Agricultnral Library, 1 doz. plated spoons, marked "B"; a large silver spoon, a cream spoon; a glazier's diamond; boots, mittens, etc. Other things were found in possession of a young woman in this place, to whom the latter was paying his attentions in contemplation of marriage. It is proper here to remark that there is no good reason for believing that any of his connections had knowledge of his criminal acts, or that they were known to any second person. His relatives and the young lady referred to, gave up everything readily to the officers, and were solicitous to aid them in all their investigations. Her case is one which enlists the sympathy and respect of all who know her, and she has borne her severe trials in a manner deserving of all praise.

In addition to the variety mentioned above, there were found bank books and treasury notes representing cash to the amount of over $3000, $100 in gold and silver coin, about seventy in paper money $25 in cents and $50 in postage stamps. Parts of the above amount, deposited in Savings Banks, was in the names of other parties. There was also a curious collection of railroad tickets to Boston, Lowell, Newburyport, and other places less distant.

The dark lantern used by the burglar was curiously contrived. From perfect darkness, by moving a slide, an aperture about as large as a duck shot would let out a small circle of light on a particular object. If more light is wanted, another aperature, the size of a buck shot would cast a large circle of light, and if still more is needed it comes through another hole as large as a common pistol shot, and a fourth, the size of a minnie musket ball, give farther illumination.

Perhaps the greatest curiosities of the collection are the burglary tools and false keys. A larger portion of the latter is composed of old keys filed with new wards, as well as new ones cast in the plaster of Paris moulds, all the work of Cate. In a pasteboard box were paper and card patterns of different keys, one of which had on it written directions about fitting a particular part of it.

Another important discovery adds interest to this astounding development of crime. Among the effects taken from his room were several memorandum books, and one was a small diary for 1862. It was a printed form, and he was accustomed to enter in this diary the work of every night in which he was abroad to commit his depredations. The entrees were made by putting down the initials of the place or name, but these were often reversed. For instance, if he entered the apothecary shop of Mr. Sweetser, as he frequently did, the record stood

T H S $13 00

The letters are supposed to have stood for the initials of his name, and the figures for the amount taken. If he visited the post office the entry was "O. P." instead of "P. O.," and so it often was with the initials of persons whose premises he entered. By this mode he kept a record which shows astonishing industry in crime. If the book had been lost there was nothing in it, in the absence of other evidence, which would give a clue to the unravelling of the mystery of its contents. This book shows the fact of more than a hundred purloinings from the Post Office, of the robbery of the Union Store, the town vault, nearly all the apothecary stores, shoe stores and grocery stores, and gives the amount taken at each visit. The aggregate amount stolen varies from a few dollars to over a hundred at each place. Some were robbed who never knew it until this revelation, and others can now account for money which had mysteriously disappeared.

What makes this case the more extraordinary is the fact that the robber was so well known as a steady, industrious mechanic, addicted to none of the vices and irregular habits so common to the profession of burglary; but esteemed by his employers and those acquainted with him as peculiarly trustworthy. As a skilful carpenter, he was often employed in dwelling houses and shops to make repairs and alterations, and frequently put on locks and other fastenings to the doors. He worked at the Post Office in making the alterations there, when the late Post Master came in, and put on the new locks. When the robbery of the office was discovered, he was sent for to provide additional security by bolts, &c., and showed some interest in the narrative of the night's proceedings, and also in the false key, which he examined as an interesting curiosity.

On the whole, we think our readers will agree with us that this case, in all its ramifications and mysteries, is one of the strangest on record, and, in the hands of a skilful writer, might be wrought into a tale of truth surpassing those of fiction.

USEFUL ARTICLES
— FOR —
HOLIDAY GIFTS.

CASHMERE Mantles, best quality;
Chenille Scarfs; Neck Ties, for Children;
Gloves and Hosiery;
French and English Prints, very neat patterns;
American do. at the lowest prices;
Linen Hdkfs, plain, hem-stitched and bordered;
New styles of Long Shawls;
A full assortment of DRESS GOODS, which we shall sell at a discount.
A full line of Table Linen, Crashes, &c.

ANN R. BRAY,
dec 24 Salem, 76 Federal St.

Plymouth Buck Gloves.

MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S
Gent's Furnishing Store,
dec 10 228 Essex St., Salem.

PATRIOTS,

FREEMEN! STRANGERS!

BUSINESS MEN!

REMEMBER,

When you Visit Boston,

THAT AT

LANE'S
CLOTHING HOUSE,

31 and 32 Dock Square,

You will find a Large Assortmtnt of

Men's Overcoats, Business Coats, Suits, Pants, Vests, Under Flannels, &c., &c.,

On which there has been NO RISE, our large CASH PURCHASES made

BEFORE THE ADVANCE

in Goods enables us to

DEFY COMPETITION.

We would remind the public that in our NEW DEPARTMENT for

BOYS' CLOTHING

may be found a better assortment than at any other House in the city, and at much

LOWER PRICES!

We sell for CASH ONLY, and do not charge the paying customer extra profits to make up for bad debts.

REMEMBER!
LANE'S
CLOTHING HOUSE,
31 and 32 Dock Square,
BOSTON.

Boston, Nov. 5th. 2m

JUST PUBLISHED.

GRAVER Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heaven, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantes, by A. B. Edwards; The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH, dec 24 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

PINGREE'S JOB WAGON.

THE subscriber is still preparod to do al kinds o Job Work and Teaming, such as removing Furniture and Merchandize of any description about town, or to and from the neighboring towns.

Orders will bo received at the Essex Railroad Station, and at S. Flint's store, on the Square.

Thankful for past favors, he would solicit a continuance of the same. W. H. PINGREE.
South Danvers, 1860.

DIARIES FOR 1863.

Every variety and stylo—all sizes—for sale at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, nov 26 Sign of the Five Goldon Books,

NOTICE.

THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.

JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

The Confessions and Experience of a Poor Young Man.

A GENTLEMAN having been cured of the results of early error and disease, will, from motives of benevolence, send to those who request it, a copy of the above interesting narrative, published by himself. This little book is designed as a warning and caution to young men and those who suffer from NERVOUS DEBILITY, LOSS OF MEMORY, PREMATURE DECAY, &c., &c., supplying at the same time the means of self-cure. Single copies will be sent under seal in a plain envelope,—without charge,—to any who request it, by addressing the author,

CHAS. A. LAMBERT, Esq.,
Greenpoint, Long Island, New York.

TABLE CUTLERY.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks. Carvers and Steels. and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by
nov 19 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

FOR NEW YEAR'S.

ELEGANT BOOKS; NEW BOOKS;
BEAUTIFUL FANCY GOODS; BRONZES;
PARIAN; WOOD CARVINGS;
FINE CUTLERY; GAMES;
PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS;
DARLEY'S "MORNING, NOON & NIGHT."

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

CHINA GOODS.

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

KNIVES AND FORKS.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A VALUABLE PRESENT.

A YEAR'S Reading in WHIPPLE & SMITH'S Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.
dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

CHEAP EDITION.

LES Miserables—complete—$1.00.
Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Muloch—for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

READING.

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

REMOVAL!

JOHN J. ASHBY,

WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store

No. 145 Essex Street,

formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of

BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,

and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.

Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

E. R. PERKINS,

PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST

241 Essex Street, Salem.

Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,

Photographs, Sphercotypes, Melainotypes, and patent easter Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when esired. jan 11

Important to the Afflicted.

DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a

PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.

By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent, Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of

GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.

Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.

Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of these cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, inflicting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating masrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.

Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.

Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French [illegible], warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y.

CAUTION

TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.

DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.

Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.

Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.

Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.

N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.

Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE

IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.

Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.

Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y

Rare Chance for Bargains.

CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of
JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS,
At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER

Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,

Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Ware,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.

at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.

This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Refurnishing the Table, &c.

Old Silver taken in exchange.

☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.

JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, o which the Mackie took the First Premium at the lat Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.

BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook.
South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862. tf

AARON T. LOWE,

DEALER IN

BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,

76 BOSTON STREET, 76.
aug 6 SALEM. tf

MUNROE'S

(LATE REED'S)

SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON

RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at 10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " " at 5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at 3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " " at 5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.

Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.

EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.

Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.

Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.

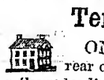
Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed:

WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

Ladies' Spring Skirts.

ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier, a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Tenements to Let.



ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $54 per year.

One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.

One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.

One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.

One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

Are you Insured?

THIS subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on

Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,

And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:

Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn.
Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y

Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the

Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass.
Capital and Assets—$372,000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D, Medical Examiner.

WM. ARCHER, Jr.,
18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
ej b20-1

CURRIER & MILLETT,
Dealers in

Furniture, Chairs,
MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c
259 & 261 ESSEX ST.
Salem, dec 14—1y

E. F. BURNHAM,
SOLE AGENT FOR
SARGENT & CO.S'
MAGIC SOAP
For South Danvers & Salem.

OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.

Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.

Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
INNER SOLES,
AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.
2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

THOMAS PINNOCK,
SLATER,
SALEM, MASS.

Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.

Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.
Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

Ann R. Bray,
NO. 76 Federal Street,
— DEALER IN —
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

MARSHALL'S
DANVERS, SO. DANVERS & SALEM EXPRESS.

Leavo DANVERS (daily) at 9 A. M.
" SALEM at 1½ P. M.

OFFICES:
In Danvers—At E B Waltt's and the Post Office.
Danversport—Richards' and A W Warren's Stores.
In So. Danvers—Francis Dano & Co's, and No 2 Main street.
In Salem—No 7 Washington street, 199 Essex st, and 17 Derby Square.

All business promptly and faithfully attended to.

☞ Our patrons are particularly requested to write their orders.

☞ Packages, left at the office, should be marked "Marshall's Express."

☞ Being connected with the RAILROAD we are enabled to forward Notes, Drafts and Bills for collection, and small packages, to all accessible point in the United States, at the usual rates.

P. G. MARSHALL.
dec1s-tf

WM. C. HENDERSON,
MANUFACTURER OF
PLAIN AND FANCY
PAPER BOXES,
No. 235 ESSEX STREET,
Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"
July 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,

NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St. South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

Heckscher Coal!

$8.25 per Ton on Wharf.

A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,
Both Red and White Ash,
Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by
W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.
July 9

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.

THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of
Patent Granular Fuel,
which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25 Bushels, delivered, ... 2 25
50 do do 4 00
100 do do 7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.

BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, june 18.

WAL LETS AND CURRENCY

HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

MAGAZINES FOR DECEMBER.

ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Mad am Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

CHINA WARE.

A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustro China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

H. & H. G. HUBON,

WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM
Manufacturers of
Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood
COFFINS and CASKETS.

MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.

dec 14—tf

R. C. MANNING & CO.
Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,
DEALERS IN
COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,
183 DERBY STREET,
SALEM, MASS.
N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.
oct17

Dyspepsia Remedy.

DR. DARIUS HAM'S
AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!

This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.

IT STIMULATES, EXHILARATES, INVIGORATES, BUT WILL NOT INTOXICATE OR STUPEFY.

AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner.

It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.

Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the DELIRIUM TREMENS, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.

DOSE—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.
A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.

Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.

Persons who, from dissipating too much over night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings.

Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the careworn face.

During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.

All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the INVIGORATING SPIRIT in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.

General Depot, 48 Water Street, N. Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.
feb 29 1y

FRANKLIN COAL.

JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL —the best in the world for domestic use.
POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

MUSICAL NOTICE.

Chickering & Sons' Piano-Fortes.

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St. would inform her friends in South Danvers, and the public generally that she keeps for sale and to let Chickering & Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with great care, and need only to be tried to prove their superior by over every other in the market. The very best terms given.

MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPHINES For sale and to let. For power and quality of tone none can surpass them A. R BRAY, 76 Federal st.

E. N. PRICE,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
HARNESSES, SADDLES, BRIDLES, AND WHIPS.
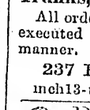
— ALSO —
Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.

All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.

237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
mch13-tf



Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

D. W. BOWDOIN,
—ARTIST IN—
PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.
Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]

Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotype, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.

☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,
ONE PRICE
HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,
231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

REMOVAL!

AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,
Manufacturer and Repairer of
BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

SOUTH DANVERS POST OFFICE.

GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.

MAILS CLOSE
At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.

MAILS DUE
At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.

Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.

F. POOLE, P. M.
South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

GAYLE & CO.,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
DEALERS IN
Flour, Grain and Produce,
Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of
Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.
P HILLIPS WHARF, - - - - Salem.

Eastern Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains leave the Eastern Railroad Station, Wash street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excepted):

For Lynn and Boston, 6½, 7½, 8½, 9, 10, 11 a m. 4 40, 6¾, p. m.
Beverly, 8½ am., 1, 3½, 4¾, 5¾, 6¾, 7½ p m.
W. Beach, Man'r, Gloucester, and Rockport, 8½ 1, 4¾ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8½ a m., 1, 3½, 5¾ p m
Amesbury, 8½ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portsmouth, 8½ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portland, 8½ a m., 3½ p m.

AND FOR SALEM, FROM

Portland, 8¾ a m., 2½ p m.
Portsmouth, 7½, *11½ a m., *5 p m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9.40 a m., 5.20 p m.
Newburyport, 8, 10 a m., 12 m., 5.45 p m.
Ipswich, 8.25, 10.25 a m., 12 25, 6.10 p m.
Gloucester, 7.25, 10 10 a m., 3.55 p m.
Manchester, 7.40, 10.25 a m., 4.10 p m.
Beverly, 7.05, 8.05, 8 50, 10.50 a m., 12.50, 4½, 6.3
Lynn, 8, 9, 11 a m., 12¾, 3, 4¾, 5½, 6½, 7½ †10.
Boston, 7½, 8¾, 10½ a m., 12¾, 2¾, 4, 5, 6, 6¾, 10¼ p

*Or on arrival from the East.
†On Wednesdays this train leaves Boston at 11½ via Saugus Branch; and on Saturdays at 10½ p

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Marblehead for Salem, 7, 8, 8¾, 9¼ a m., 12¾, 1¾, 4.
Salem for Marblehead, 8½, 9.25, 11½ a m., 1, 3¾,

SOUTH READING BRANCH.

Trains leave the South Reading Depot in Salem Boston at 7, 9.40 a m., 2.25, 4.55 p m
Boston for Salem, 7 a m., 12 m., 2¾, 5 p m.
South Danvers for Salem, 7¾ a m., 12¾, 3¼, 5¾ p

ESSEX RAILROAD.

Leave Salem for Lawrence and way stations, 7¾ a m., 4¾ p m.
Lawrence for Salem, 8¼ a m., 12.40, 6¼ p m.
Danvers for Salem, 9.12 a m., 1.22, 6.57 p m.

J. PRESCOTT, Superintendent
Boston, November 10, 1862.

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 21, 1863. NO. 3

SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD
ished every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's Build-th Danvers Square. by
CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editor.
—Two Dollars a year.
RTISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM C. CHOATE,
orney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
orney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
esidence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
ney and Counsellor at Law,
anvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
ffice near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
rney and Counsellor at Law,
ORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
louse, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
ys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to ormerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
7 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM,
B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
rney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
y and Counsellor at Law,
, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.

s against the Government for Bounty y, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
AIN STREET, So. DANVERS SQUARE.
anical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
tracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
URGEON DENTIST,
Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market
esidence--No. 57 Washington street.
-ly

F. POOLE,
URANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
ds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Groceries, Flour & Grain,
D WARE AND CROCKERY,
Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods,
Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
anvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
EWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
, China and Hardware; Paper Hang-; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.
Front street, Lawrence Place,
SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
SE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
entral Street, South Danvers.
ders promptly and faithfully executed.

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
nuia Goods, Country Produce
2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
eroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
as 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
SE & SIGN PAINTER
ainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger.
4 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
OWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
-tf

WALKING MADE EASY.
DR. P. KENISON,
HIROPODIST,
215 Washington St., Boston,
rd and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails, Nails trating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner hat will satisfy the most incredulous.

HEYLINGBERG'S
r Dressing Saloon,
MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.
TARIFF OF PRICES:

g,	6 cts.
utting,	12 cts.
ooing,	15 cts.
ooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

e new Quarterly Customers taken, equence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks
ld for one dollar.
Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,
ERTISING AGENT
rincipal New England Newspapers, remains stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you im still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, rtising.
Jan 29, 1862. tf

Original Poetry.

☞ We have obtained the consent of Mr. WHITE to have his Address published in the WIZARD for the benefit of our patrons in the far West, who are not on his "regular route:"

SAMUEL QUINER WHITE'S
Carrier's Address
TO THE PATRONS OF THE
SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD,
WISHING THEM A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Kind Patrons, I greet you with a smile and a tear,
And bring my best wishes for a HAPPY NEW YEAR.
I have brought you the paper in sunshine and rain,
And now I stand ready to do it again.
May your pleasures increase as time take its flight,
Is the wish of your friend the Carrier WHITE.

As oft I have wended to your shops and your houses,
I've met there yourselves, your children and spouses,
And passed you the news with my best morning greeting;
How pleasant to me was the kind friendly meeting!
It shows very plainly you intended no slight
For the service performed by SAMUEL WHITE.

I turn the great wheel of the WIZARD Power Press,
Where the papers are printed my Patrons to bless;
The work I perform in this skilful invention,
My modesty does not allow me to mention.
But then you know well with what graces polite
You are served with the paper by Carrier WHITE.

I have constantly brought you the news of the week,
As truly and plainly as the WIZARD could speak;
I have told you of burglars, disasters of arms,
Of treason's foul plottings, of guerilla alarms;
Of these and much more of the wrong and the right
You're surely indebted to SAMUEL WHITE.

Of great men and mighty in the battle's red field,
Of dauntless commanders who never would yield;
Brave LYON and BAKER, and KEARNEY, who fell,
And MITCHELL and LANDER who did their work well;
All this you have learned as clear as the light
From the newspaper wallet of Carrier WHITE.

Of BURNSIDE and SIGEL, and BUTLER the bold,
And CURTIS and GRANT you've often been told;
Of HALLECK the grave, and MCCLELLAN the slow,
And how fighting HOOKER charged quick on the foe;
All this I have told you in type clear and bright,
When you've had the newspaper from Carrier WHITE.

I've told you of sorrows, bereavements and death;
Of weddings and blessings all in the same breath;
And then in plain prose, and in very poor rhymes,
I have hit at the manners and faults of the times.
In kindness 'twas given, and never in spite,
From the newspaper quiver of Carrier WHITE.

Alas! for the rise in the price of white paper!
How sad would it be to extinguish our taper!
How the ladies would cry, and the men fret their gizzards,
Should they e'er be deprived of their once welcome WIZARDS!
From such a disastrous, deplorable plight
They can only be saved by their Carrier WHITE.

Of life in our village you've had a fair show,
To me you all look to see how things go;
Of highway and railroad you expect me to tell,
Of the tower of the church and the tone of the bell,
Of the hands of the clock, and when they go right,
You lean for your knowledge on SAMUEL WHITE.

Kind patrons and friends don't deem that I'm weak,
If now of myself I feel licensed to speak;
The son of a hero who, when the clouds lowered
On the wide western prairies served faithful as cow-herd,
Among the wild Indians he served day and night
And won a proud name for SAMUEL WHITE.

A good name's a good thing, and mine is no sham,
And much it delights me to call myself Sam.
Sam Johnson the great who was worshipped by Boswell,
Sam Houston the bold who managed his cause well,
And good Samvel Weller who never got tight,
Were graced by the name of your Carrier WHITE.

Our South Danvers Soldiers in fort and in camp,
On picket so lonely and long nightly tramp,
By camp fire and sentry, in barrack and tent,
How gladly they welcome the WIZARD'S advent;
And joyfully too will they hail with delight
This Carrier's Address of their friend SAMUEL WHITE.

Now the old year has gone and the new one has come,
Let's forget for the moment the sound of the drum,
Let us wake to new hopes of relief to our land,
And peace spread her blessings from mountain to strand,
And every good citizen bring forth his mite
To lighten the labors of SAMUEL WHITE.

Fair Ladies, I greet you with hearty good wishes,
In parlor or kitchen when washing your dishes;
In pickles and pastry, in cooking strange messes,
In braiding your hair, or in fixing fine dresses;
Dear angels (though wingless) you thrill with delight
Your friend and admirer S. QUINER WHITE.

Selected.

SQUIRE CHANCERY'S GOLD EAGLE.

'Sir, if you please, boss would like you to pay this little bill, to-day," said for the tenth time, a half grown boy in a dirty jacket, to a lawyer in his office.

The attorney at length turned round and stared the boy full in the face, as if he had been some newly discovered specimen, gave a long whistle, thrust his inky fingers first in one pocket and then in the other of his black silk vest, and then gave another whistle, and completed his stare at the boy's face.

'Ho, ha, hum! that bill, eh!' said the legal young gentleman, extending the tips of his fingers towards the well-known bit of paper, and daintily opening it looked at the contents.

'Hum! for tapping and heel-tapping, six shillings; for foxing, ten and six-pence, and other sundries, eh? So your master wants me to settle this bill, eh!' repeated the man of briefs.

'Yes sir; this is the nineteenth time I have come for it, and I intend to knock off at twenty, and call it half a day.'

'You're an impudent boy.'

'I's always impudent to lawyers, cos I can't help it—it's catchin.'

'You've got your eye teeth cut, I see.'

'That's what boss sent me for, instead of the prentices as was getting their teeth cut. I cut mine at nine months' old with a hand-saw. Boss says if you don't pay the bill he will sue you.'

'Sue me! I'm a lawyer.'

'It makes no odds. Lawyer or no lawyer, boss declares he'll do it—so fork over.'

'Declares he'll sue me.'

'As true as there is another lawyer in Filadelphy.'

'That would be bad.'

'Wouldn't it?'

'Silence, yon vagabond! I suppose I must pay this,' muttered the attorney to himself. 'It's not my plan to pay these bills? What is a lawyer's profession good for, if he can't get clear of paying his own bills? He'll sue me! 'Tis just five dollars. It comes hard and he don't want the money. What is five dollars to him? His boy could have earned it in the time he had been sending him to me for it. So your master will sue me for it if I don't pay?'

'He says he will do it, and charge you a new pair of shoes for me.'

'Harkee! I can't pay to-day, and so if your boss will sue me, just ask him to employ me as his attorney.'

'You?'

'Yes: I'll sue the writ, have it served, and then you see I will put the cost into my own pocket, instead of seeing it go into another lawyer's. So you see if I have to pay the bill, I'd make the costs—capital idea!'

The boy scratched his head awhile, as if striving to comprehend the capital idea, and shook it doubtingly. 'I don't know about this; it looks tricky. I'll ask boss though, if as how you wont pay it no how without being sued.'

'I had rather be sued, if he will employ me, boy.'

'But who is to pay them costs—boss?'

'The lawyer all at once looked very serious, and gave one of those whistles peculiar to him.'

'Well, I am a sensible man, man truly. My anxiety to get the cost of the suit blinded me to the fact that they were to come out of my own pocket before they could be safely put in. Ah, well, my boy. I suppose I must pay. Here's a five dollar gold piece; is the bill receipted? it's so dirty and greasy I can't see.'

'It was nice and clean when boss gin it to me, and the writin' shined like Knapp's blacking; it is torn so a dunn in so much.'

'Well here's your money,' said the man of the law, taking a solitary five dollar gold piece from his watch fob; now, tell your master, Mr. Last, if he has any other accounts he wants sued, I'll attend to them with the greatest pleasure.'

'Thank'ee, sir,' answered the boy, pocketing the five; 'but you're the only dunnin' customer boss has, and now you've paid up, he hain't none but cash folks. Good day to you.'

'Now there goes five dollars that will do that fellow no good. I'm in want of it, but he is not. It is five thrown away. It would not have left my pocket but that I was sure that his patience was worn out and cost would come of it. I like to get costs, but I don't think a lawyer has any thing to do with paying them.'

As Peter Chancery did not believe in his own mind that paying his debt to Mr. Last would be of any benefit to him, and was of an opinion that it was money thrown away, let us follow the fate of these five dollars through the day.

'He has paid,' said the boy, placing the money in his master's hand.

'Well I'm glad of it,' answered Mr. Last, surveying the money through his glasses—and its a half eagle, too. Now run and pay Mr. Furnace.'

As the boy delivered the money, he said, 'I was just wondering where I could get five dollars to pay a bill that is due to-day. Here John,' he called to one of his apprentices, 'put on your hat and take this money to Capt. O'Brien, and tell him I came within one of disappointing him, when some money came in I didn't expect.'

Capt. O'Brien, was found on board of his schooner at the next wharf, and with him was a seaman with his hat in his hand, looking disappointed as he spoke with him.

'I'm sorry, my man, I can't pay you—but I have just raised and scraped the last dollar I can get above water to pay my insurance money to-day; and I have not a copper left in my pocket to jingle, but keys and old nails.'

'But I am very much in need, sir; my wife is failing and my family are in want of a good many things just now, and I got several articles at the store, expecting to get money from you to take them up as I went along home. We hain't in the house no flour, nor tea, nor—'

'Well, my lad, I'm sorry. You must come to-morrow. I can't help you unless I sell my coat off my back, or pawn my schooner's kedge. Nobody pays me.'

The sailor who had come to get his advance wages, turned away sorrowfully, when the apprentice boy came up, and said in his hearing:

'Here, sir, is five dollars Mr. Furnace owes you. He says when he told you he couldn't pay his bill to-day, he didn't expect some money that came in after you left the shop.'

'Ah, that's my fine boy! Here, Jack, take this five dollars, and come on Saturday and get the balance of your wages.'

The seaman with a joyful bound took the piece, and touching his hat, sprung with a light heart on shore, and hastened to the store where he had already selected the comforts and necessaries his family stood so much in need of.

As he entered, a poor woman was trying to prevail upon the storekeeper to settle a demand for making his shirts.

'You had best take it out of the store, Mrs. Conway,' he said to her, really I have not half the amount of your bill to-day, and I don't expect to. I have to charge everything and no money comes in.'

'I can't do without it, answered the woman, earnestly, my daughter is very ill and in want of every comfort; I am out of firewood, and indeed I want many things which I have depended upon this money to get. I worked night and day to get your shirts done.'

'I'm very sorry, Mrs. Conway, said the storekeeper looking into his money drawer, I've not five shillings here, and your bill is five dollars and ninepence.'

The woman thought of her invalid child and wrung her hands.

'A sailor was here awhile ago, and selected full five dollars' worth of articles here on the counter, and went to get his wages to pay for them, but I question if he comes back. If he does pay for them, you shall have your money, madam.'

At this instant Jack made his appearance at the door.

'Well, shipmate,' said he, in a tone much more elevated than when he was discovered speaking with the captain—'well, my hearty, hand over your freight. I've got the documents, so give us possession,' and displaying his five dollar piece, he laid hold of the purchases.—The storekeeper examining and seeing that the money was good, bade him take them with him; and then sighing as he took another and a last look at the piece, he handed it to the poor widow, who with a joyful smile received it from him and hastened from the store.

In a low and very humble tenement, near the water was a family of poor children, whose appearance exhibited the utmost destitution. On a cot bed lay a poor woman, ill and emaciated. The door opened and a man in coarse patched garments entered with a wood-saw and a horse, laid them down by the door and approached the bed.

'Are you any better dear?' he asked in a rough voice, but in the kindest tones.

'No; have you found work? If you could get me a little nourishing food I could regain my strength.'

The man gazed upon her pale face a moment, and again taking up his horse, went out. He had not gone far before a woman met him, and said she wished him to follow and saw some wood for her. His heart bounded with hope and gratitude, and he went after her to the dwelling, an abode little better than his own poverty, yet wearing an air of comfort. He sawed the wood, split and piled it, and received six shillings, with which he hastened to a store for necessaries for his sick wife, and then hurried home to gladden her heart with the delicacies he had provided. Till now he had no work for days, and his family had been starving, and from this day his wife got better, and was at length restored to her family and health, from a state of weariness which another day's continuation would probably have proved fatal.

These six shillings, which did so much good, were paid him by the poor woman, from the five dollars she had received from the storekeeper, and which the sailor had paid him. The poor woman's daughter was also revived and ultimately restored to health, and was married to a young man who had been kept three years absent and returned true to his troth. But for the five dollars which had been so instrumental in her recovery, he might have returned to be told that she whose memory had been the polar star of his heart had perished.

KEEPING HORSES IN WINTER.

The first thing of importance is a good stable, which should be warm, light, dry and well ventilated. Each of these conditions must be observed to insure the health and comfort of the horse. The cold winds must not be permitted to blow upon him, nor damp, foul air fill the stable. Let a plentiful supply of pure air and light be admitted through windows or blinds. The stalls should be 14 feet long and 5 1-2 wide; mangers for hay are preferable to racks, as the horses are less liable to waste their hay by getting it under their feet. The manger should be about 3 1-2 feet high next to the stall, and 6 inches higher in front; about 20 inches wide at the top, 14 at the bottom, and extend to within 16 inches of the floor, which will leave room beneath for the bedding. The top piece on both sides of the manger should be 2 inches thick, of hard wood, to prevent the horse from gnawing. The feed box should be in the right hand end of the manger, and made of two inch hard wood plank; 16 inches square is a good size. The partitions between the stalls should be about 8 feet long, and it is best to have them so high in front that the horses cannot get their heads together.

When the horse is idle, two quarts of oats given morning and evening, with plenty of good hay, will keep him in good condition. If corn is fed on the car, two or three common sized ears will answer the same purpose, or three quarts of corn and cob meal per day. If at light or medium work, four quarts of oats, six ears of corn, or three quarts of corn and cob meal, should be given three times a day, with all the hay he will eat. If at hard labor, six quarts of oats, ten ears of corn, or four quarts of corn and cob meal, will be required. Whole corn is not economical food for horses, as much of it will pass through them undigested, but as it is used by many farmers, I give directions for feeding it. In feeding new corn, care must be taken not to give too much at first, as it is very liable to give horses the colic. Many, perhaps the majority of farm horses, in our part of the country, are kept upon much less grain than this, but they do not look as we desire our horses should—fat, sleek and comfortable, and always ready for service. Carrots are very good for horses, and instead of feeding grain alone, an equal quantity of carrots may be substituted once a day with great benefit. Roots have a tendency to keep the bowels loose, and a horse will thrive better if carrots can form a portion of his food. An occasional "bran mash" is very good for the same purpose. To make it, scald four to six quarts of shorts, add a little salt, and feed after it has cooled sufficiently. Horses should be watered regularly, at least three times per day; our rule is, water after eating in the morning, before eating at noon, and before eating at night.—American Agriculturist.

AMUSING SCENE.—Here is an amusing scene from the vaudeville of the Prisoner of Rochelle, which, says a Paris journal, keeps the audience in a roar of laughter every night of its performance.

'Corporal Cortueh' amuses himself by going through the manual exercise while 'Leza,' seated at her work-table, abstractedly questions him concerning matrimony, thus:

Leza.—If a girl was to fall in love with you, Corporal, what would you do?

Corporal (maneuvering with his musket)—Present arms!

She would doubtless look to you for—Support!

And then what a heavy burden you'd have to—Carry!

Your butcher, and baker, would have to—Charge!

Your prospects, of course, would not—

Advance!

And you'd have to—

'Bout face!

And never have any—

Rest!

Now, Corporal, pray give me your—Attention!

A man of your years is not able to bear such a—

Load!

And you are not in your—

Prime!

Your wife may—

'Bout!

Leave you, but she will soon—

Return!

And then you'd have to bear all on your—

Shoulder!

You would be—

Ready!

I think you have some other—

Aim!

And you'd throw all your epistles into the—

Fire! [Fires the musket.]

A COLUMN OF FACTS.

When did the first steamship cross the Atlantic?

In 1819. She was the American ship Savannah, from Savannah, Georgia.

In a church, which is the hottest situation? and why?

The gallery; because the cold air lies nearest the floor till it has become heated, when it ascends towards the roof of the building.

What is the wind?

The air in motion.

Whether is ice or water lightest?

Ice.

Whether does a piano give a higher tone in a cold or a warm room? and why?

In a cold room, on account of the strings being tighter, or more contracted.

What is the strength of a horse as compared with that of a man?

The strength of one horse is as the strength of five men.

What are sonorous bodies?

Bodies which produce sound.

What solid bodies are among the best conductors of sound?

Iron and glass; these transmit sound at a rate of more than three miles a second; and after them come copper, several kinds of wood, silver, tin, and so on.

What is an echo?

A reflected sound.

Why does a metal spoon, left in a saucepan, retard the boiling process?

Being an excellent conductor, the metal spoon carries off the heat from the water, and consequently prevents its boiling so soon as it otherwise would.

In building a room for public speaking, what should be the limit of the height of its ceiling?

It should not be above thirty or thirty-five feet.

What is the temperature at which water scalds?

One hundred and fifty degrees.

What is the general effect of heat upon substances?

It enlarges their dimensions by expansion.

Why are the quills and bones of birds hollow and without marrow?

That they may not only be light to assist their passage through the air, but that they may be possessed of the greatest strength.

In warfare, what is the distance at which artillery can generally be effectively used?

From a quarter to half a mile. Big cannon balls and shells can be thrown with effect to the distance of from a mile and half to two miles.

WHAT IS IN THE MOON?

The comparative proximity of our own satellite, the moon, has necessarily rendered it an object of the greatest interest, and it has, perhaps, in a greater degree than the other celestial orbs, been subjected to the scrutinizing observations of the telescope. Since the completion of the great instrument of Lord Rosse, that nobleman has frequently observed it, and its appearance, as seen by the great telescope, is thus described by Dr. Scoresby:

"It appeared like a globe of molten silver, and every object of the extent of one hundred yards was quite visible. Edifices, therefore, of the size of York Minster, or the ruins of Whitby Abbey, might be easily perceived if they had existed. But there was no appearance of anything of that nature; neither was there any indication of anything like water, or of any atmosphere. There was a vast number of extinct volcanoes, several miles in breadth. Through one of them there was a line, in continuance of about one hundred and fifty miles in length, which ran in a straight direction like a railway. The general appearance, however, was like one vast ruin of nature; and many of the pieces of rock, driven out of the volcanoes, appeared to be laid at various distances."

We have here a strong, nay, a complete confirmation of the most interesting recent discoveries of the continental philosophers, Maelder, of Dorpat, and Baerr of Berlin. The result of their curious and elaborate observations has been a map of what may now, without a figure, be called the geography of the moon, in which the surface of that satellite has been laid out with as much accuracy as that of our own globe. Of this map, a singular contrivance of human ingenuity, Dr. Nichol has given a reduced copy, besides a number of plates, representing on a larger scale special parts of the surface. The general character of the moon is highly irregular, marked by huge mountains and pits, the height and depth of which have been accurately measured. About one-third part only of the surface presented to us is comparatively regular, this regular portion being plains, and not seas, as was formerly imagined. There is no appearance of water; and although astronomers are divided in the opinion about the existence of an atmosphere, we are to conclude that the moon is not in its present state adapted for the abode of organized beings. With regard to the mountains, a great number of them are isolated peaks, such as Teneriffe; mountain ranges, of which some reach a great elevation, are also present in the moon, though not a chief feature in its surface. At least three-fifths of its surface is studded with caverns, penetrating its body, and generally engirt at the top by a great wall of rock, which is serrated, and often crowned by lofty peaks. These caverns, or craters, as they are called, vary in diameter from fifty or sixty miles to the smallest visible space. And it is also remarkable that as they diminish in size, they increase in number.—English Quar.

REMEDIES—For a Fit of Ambition.—Go into the churchyard and read the gravestones; they will tell you the end of ambition. The grave will soon be your bed-chamber, the earth your pillow, corruption your father, and the worm your mother and sister.

For a Fit of Repining.—Look about for the halt and the blind, and visit the bedridden, and afflicted, and deranged; and they will make you ashamed of complaining of your lighter afflictions.

For a Fit of Idleness.—Count the tickings of a clock. Do this for one hour, and you will be glad to pull off your coat the next and work like a negro.

For a Fit of Passion.—Walk out in the open air; you may speak your mind to the winds without hurting any one, or proclaiming yourself to be a simpleton.

For all Fits of Doubt, Perplexity, and Fear.—Whether they respect the body or the mind; whether they are a load to the shoulders, the head, or the heart, the following is a radical cure which may be relied on, for I had it from the Great Physician: "Cast thy burden on the Lord, he will sustain thee."

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 21, 1863.

Now is a Good Time to Subscribe for the WIZARD.

A BOY'S POCKET.

A boy's pocket has almost the capacity of an omnibus, and its contents are as various as a burglar's collection of spoils. Just look at the following list found by the maternal parent in the pocket of a garment, in which she was making some needed repairs:

A dirty handkerchief, a top, a half munched apple, a piece of twine, a smaller top, half comb of matches, a skate strap, two board nails, three shingle ditto, a pipe-stem, three fish-hooks, a buckle, four marbles, another piece of twine, a rat-tail file, half roll of lozenges, two raisins, a three bladed knife with two blades gone and part of the third, three nichet cents, one brumagem, a glass decanter stopper, a piece of work leather, part of a cole of popping corn, a variety of nut shells, a pen holder, seven buttons and butter mould, three spools, chewing gum, slate pencil, three fire crackers, an inch and a half of sugar candy, a leaden cannon, an old wallet, a chicken's claw and a turkey's wishing bone. At the bottom of these were found an unknown quantity of crumbs of gingerbread, shells of peanuts, carpet tacks and other non-catables which are sure to be found in every boy's pocket.

To us, full graver people, this may look like a heap of worthless things, which might be thrown into the fire without loss to the boy. No such thing. These constitute his real and personal estate. They are what gives him consequence among other boys. They are sources of enjoyment to him more than pecuniary gains to the rich man. He would esteem their loss a calamity. It is a proof of their value to him, that he always carries them about him. He cannot trust them away. He handles them often, counts them over and uses every thing that is usable. As of the man so of the boy it may truthfully be said:—"You touch him in a tender part when you touch his pocket."

FRANKLIN CLUB.—The discussion by the Franklin Club on the question of peace or war, at the Town Hall on Monday evening last, which was listened to by a large party of ladies and gentlemen, was decidedly interesting. The arguments for and against an immediate peace were well and forcibly put by the disputants.

The next meeting of the society will be held at the Town Hall on Monday evening next, at 7 o'clock. Question for discussion: "Was the President's Proclamation of Emancipation a judicious measure." Disputants: Affirmative—Eben S. Poor and Alfred M'Kenzie.—Negative—Thomas E. Proctor and Rufus H. Brown. The public are invited to attend.

THE INTERNAL REVENUE.—It takes a long time to get the machinery to go right in the assessment and collection of this tax. Decisions made one week are revoked the next, and the manufacturer and dealer hardly know where they are or what to do. In articles of skins and leather the officials at Washington show an amusing amount of ignorance. All this is owing to want of information which could be obtained from any intelligent business man. Their idea of tanning, is exposure to the sun without an umbrella, and of currying, that it is done with a currycomb on the skin with the hair on. There will be no really correct system established until the aid of practical men is invoked.

RHOADE'S NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER.—This machine can be seen at the Equity Store in this town. By a personal examination we think, that for strength and simplicity it excells anything of the kind yet offered to the public. It is provided with cams, instead of screws, by which it is attached to the tub, and also a cam roller on the top by which the operator can regulate the pressure at will.

FIGHTING JOE HOOKER is very popular in the army. Whole regiments claim to serve under him, and above all such regiments as fought under others in the Peninsula, and always have been worsted, and who wish once to be led to success and victory, as were always Hooker's soldiers.

A TEN STRIKE.—Seven to ten thousand rebels, together with a large amount of stores, animals and ammunitions of war have been taken by General McClernard and Rear-Admiral Porter, at a place called Arkansas Port.

☞ All the bodies of the Sioux Indians who were recently executed at Mankato, Minn., have been resurrected by the doctors for scientific purposes.

☞ The losses of the Massachusetts regiments in the battle of Fredericksburg were ninety-nine killed, seven hundred and forty-eight wounded, and seventy-one missing.

MILITARY ITEMS.

We learn that the friends of Sergeant Major CHARLES W. HANSON of the 39th Regiment propose to present him a testimonial in the shape of a handsome revolver.

By the following correspondence it will be seen that Lieut. MOSES SHACKLEY, of the gallant 19th Regiment, has been the recipient of an elegant sword by some of our fellow citizens. It could not have been more gracefully or worthily bestowed. We learn that Lieutenant Shackley is to join his regiment immediately:

SOUTH DANVERS, Jan. 13th, 1863.

LIEUT. MOSES SHACKLEY—Dear Sir: A large number of your friends and fellow-citizens, being desirous of expressing their respect for you, and their gratification at your promotion, so nobly earned, have desired me, in their behalf, to present you with the accompanying sword, sash and belt, and to request your acceptanee of the same in token of our appreciation of your serviees in the support of our Union, our Constitution, and the preservation of our National existenee.

Trusting that the same kind Providence which has protected you through so many hard fought battles, will still watch over, and protect you through all the perils of your future serviee, and in due time return you, with unimpaired health and strength, to your family and friends, I am yours, very truly,

J. B. PEABODY.

SOUTH DANVERS, Jan. 15th, 1863.

JOHN B. PEABODY, ESQ.,—Dear Sir: Your note of the 13th inst., and the valuable present accompanying it, are before me. I have not words to express the feelings of my heart toward you, and my other townsmen, for this mark of their esteem and approbation.

I have attempted, since my connection with the army, to do my duty. I have never done more than my duty. In common with my brave associates, I have been willing to risk my life upon the battlefield in defense of the Government made and handed down to us by our forefathers. If, by the blood of the noble men of our army, that Government can be saved, and in the end the old "Stars and Stripes" wave over every State in the Union, beloved and respected by a reconciled people, they will cheerfully make the sacrifiee.

Very truly yours,

MOSES SHACKLEY.

DEATH OF MR. STORY OF ESSEX.—We have received from Capt. Nelson of the 39th Regt. the following proeeedings of the company under his command on the death of one of the members, Mr. Story of Essex. They are a very fitting tribute to a worthy comrade and must be a source of much consolation to the afflicted widow of the departed soldier:

CAMP AT POOLESVILLE, MD.,
January 12th, 1863.

Whereas we have heard of the death of ASA STORY, lately a member of our Company, be it resolved,

I. That by his death our Company has lost a valuable member, our Country an earnest and sincere Patriot, and we all have lost a true, honest, and disinterested friend. His loss is one that cannot easily be replaced, and one which we will long regret.

II. We tender to the widow of the deceased, our deep and earnest sympathy, and trust that while she refleets on her great loss, the loss of a kind affectionate husband, it may he some consolation to her in her heartfelt affliction, to think that he lived and died as a Christian and a Patriot, that he died in the service of his Country.

III. That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the widow of the deceased.

GEORGE S. NELSON,
Capt. Co. A., 39th, Mass. Vols.

Capt. CHARLES E. BRADFORD, of the 23d Maine Regiment, was in town last week on his way to his home in Turner, Maine. We are sorry to learn that a return of his old complaint, aggravated by camp life, compels his temporary withdrawal from his regiment.

The soldiers of the 14th Regiment, now stationed in the forts near Washington, have been paid off up to the 1st of October. They had long been looking for the pleasant face of the paymaster.

Mr. HORACE D. PERRY, who was badly wounded in the Battle of Fredericksburg, is in hospital at Washington, and is improving very slowly. His father, Mr. James Perry, is now in Washington, and on the 13th, visited our boys of the Fourteenth at the forts. They were right glad to see him.

We have had a letter from Fort Cass from one of our soldiers, asking for the names of the warrant offieers of Captain DANIELS' Company. Will some one in this town give us the information?

Mr. HENRY P. CAVERLY, head wagoner, who has been sick and in hospital at Washington, has recovered his wonted health and is again on duty.

Mr. JOHN LEE, of the 14th Mass. has returned home on siek furlough.

Mr. JOHN MORRIS, of the 14th Mass. has returned home, having been discharged.

Adjutant FRANK W. TAGGART is now here on a short furlough of ten days.—He is looking well and happy to meet his friends. We learn that the Everett Club, of which he is a member, will this evening honor him with a supper at Simonds' Hotel. Adj. Taggart has fully come up to the expeetations of his friends, who from the first had great confidence that he would make a popular and efficient officer.

We are gratified to see that the Governor has appointed Lieut. Col. FRANCIS A. OSBORNE, formerly of this town, Colonel of the 24th Regiment, in place of Gen. Stevenson. Col. OSBORNE handles his regiment well and has proved himself an excellent officer.

MR. JAMES O. MELEY, of the 67th N. Y., has been discharged. He was wounded in the right shoulder in one of the battles before Richmond.

Mr. MICHAEL GLEASON, of the Mass. 9th, has been discharged. He was in all the battles of the Peninsula, and at Gaines' Hill was wounded.

Mr. EDWARD NEIL, of the Mass. 9th, has been discharged. He participated in all the battles of the Peninsula, and at Malvern Hill was wounded in the thighs.

Second Lieut. JOSEPH B. BRIGGS of South Danvers is promoted to the First Lieutenancy of the Fourth Battery.

DEATH OF MAJOR BUXTON.—Major Seth S. Buxton, of the 14th Massachusetts Regiment, Heavy Artillery, died in Fort Albany, Va., on Thursday, aged about 30. He came home sick a few months ago, recovered a little, was married on the fifth of October, and started on his return to duty a few weeks since, before his health was completely reestablished, had a relapse and died in hospital near Washington last week. The funeral services took plaee in Washington on Friday, and the body was then forwarded to Salem, in charge of offieers of the Regiment. Capt. Buxton recruited Co. D, Essex Cadets, commeneing July 4, 1861, and it joined the regiment at Fort Warren, July 22, with full ranks, the officers and many of the privates being members of the Salem Cadets. He was an exeellent officer, and was promoted to Major early last year.—Reg.

☞ The late Rev. Dr. Lyman Beecher was three times married, and was the father of thirteen children. Of his first wife Rosana Foote—the mother of Catharine, Edward, Mrs. Stowe, Charles and Henry Ward—a woman of extraordinary mind and equally extraordinary acquirements—the Doctor used to make this remark: "She was the only person that I ever met whom I felt to be fully my equal in an argument." They were in the habit of reasoning together over a tea table on the profound questions of theology and philosophy.

☞ War, after all, with all its evils, is a purifier of the human heart. A common calamity, which involves us all alike, sanctifies the soul. So our friend Muggins informed us the other day. This fact, he said, was borne in on his mind on discovering the perfect willingness of his neighbors this winter to loan him their sleighs at the shortest notice. We are glad to hear of their tenders of good offices among friends; they help, in some degree, to ameliorate the troubles under which we labor.

YEADON'S ASSASSIN FOUND. — The Winchester (Tenn.) Bulletin has the following advertisement, which that paper says is genuine; but the assassin does not seem to like the job at Yeadon's priee of $10,000—if he has it:

"I understand $50,000 is offered as a reward to whoever will kill the Beast Butler of New Orleans. I accept the offer, and require $25,000 forfeit to be placed in some good hands.—When I accomplish the noble deed I am to be paid the reward. My name can be found when desired by the proper person."

☞ The working men of Manchester, England, have held a large and enthusiastic mass meeting presided over by the mayor, to express their sympathy with the American Union and the President's proclamation.

☞ The Hon. John B. Henderson, Emancipationist, has been elected United States Senator by the Legislature of Missouri.

☞ The capitol building at Baton Rouge, La., was burned, with the State library on the 31st ult. Probably the work of the rebels.

☞ The total number of slaves declared free by the late proclamation is 3,119,397. The number excluded, or left out in the cold, is 830,000.

ESSEX SOUTH TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.—This convention met on Thursday of last week, at the Howard Street Church in this city. But little was done in the morning except business. In the afternoon Rev. Mr. Barber, of South Danvers, read a very instructive and interesting paper on the uses of intoxicating liquors in various countries from the earliest times. Remarks were made by Rev. Mr. Eastman of Saugus, Rev. Mr. Thompson of Walpole, the Mayor of Lynn, the Methodist preacher of Danvers, Rev. Mr. Beaman, and others. A fair congregation was collected and the friends of temperance were encouraged to persevere.—Gaz.

THE EASTERN RAILROAD.—The Boston Daily Advertiser says, of the managers of the Eastern Railroad:

Their liberal and high-minded conduct of affairs has brought the great public work committed to their charge, safely out of all embarrassments, placing it at the present moment in a position of genuine and impregnable prosperity, and no trifling matter should be permitted to injure its high standing in public confidence.

☞ It is said that, until Jeff. Davis shall satisfactorily explain his intentions promulgated in his Butler proclamation, our Government will retain all commissioned officers now prisoners, and exchange only privates and non-commissioned officers. Orders to that effect, it is reported have been telegraphed to all points.

THE CATE GALLERY.

That noble and interesting collection of works of art which our town possesses, called the "Cate Gallery of Pilferings," still continues to attract crowds of admiring visitors of both sexes daily, who gaze their fill, and go away better satisfied, perhaps, than if they had been contemplating the "Elgin Marbles," or the most beautiful paintings, landscape or historieal. This is not to be wondered at. The most obtuse mind cannot help marvelling at the prodigious skill, industry, and power of combination which gathered all these divers objects into one focus as it were, for our delight and admiration. What strength of memory, foresight and sagacity were necessary for such an extraordinary concentration! What untiring, what unflagging zeal was expended on this task of accumulation! Such thoughts as these, no doubt, pass through the minds of the spectators, and, when added to the gratuitous character of the exhibition, greatly enhance the pleasure they derive from their visit. The following is a list of the articles:

Burglar's Tools, &c.
Tobacco—26 plugs.
Rings—6.
Seal—1.
Wine, Brandy, &c.—33 bottles.
Clark's Bitters—2 bottles.
Brandy—1 flask.
Nutmegs—1-4 lb.
Can—1.
Fluid Can—1.
Wash Bowl—1.
Strainer—1.
Small Tunnel—1.
Gudgeon Box—1.
Box of Corks, Viols, &e.
Drawer containing 14 small Tools, Screws and Old Files.
Plow—1.
Rolling Pin—1.
Boots—2 pairs.
Balmoral Boots—1 pair.
" " (cloth) 1 pair.
Gloves—1 pair, cloth.
Gloves—1 pair, leather.
Gloves—1 pair, fur.
Pants—1 pair, drab.
Vest Patterns—1, velvet.
Vest Patterns—1, velvet, figured.
Vest Patterns—1, velvet, striped.
Velvet—1-4 yard.
Cassimere, mixed—9 yards.
Doe Skin—3 1-2 yards.
Doe Skin—2 5-8 yards, striped.
Silk Mixture, 6-4 wide—4 3-8 yards.
Alpaeea.
Cotton (bleached)—9 3-4 yds—Bates 4-4.
Cotton (bleached)—4 yds—Waltham 9-8.
Cotton (brown)—6 1-2 yds—Naumkeag AA.
Cotton Flannel, 2 pieees—4 1-2 yds.
Cotton Flannel, 1 piece—5 1-3 yards.
Cotton Flannel, 1 piece—3 yards.
Calieo—13 yards.
Linen—3-4 yards.
Hose, cotton—1 pair.
Cravat—1, silk, black.
Cravat—1, silk, half check.
Ties—5.
Velvet—1 piece, No. 1-2.
Velvet—1 piece 1-2 in—say 4 yards.
Table Cover—1.
Bosoms, cotton—3.
Bosoms, cotton—2.
Bosoms, fine linen, 3-9—2.
Bosoms, linen, 2-4—1.
Bosoms, linen, 2-3—1.
Bosoms, linen, 1-6—3.
Bosoms, linen, 1—damaged.
Under Shirt—1.
Collars—6.
Cambric—2 1-4 yards, white, 2-3.
Cotton, bleached—1 1-4 yds, Amoskeag.
Handkerchiefs—4.
Socks—1 pair, 3-9.
Thread—18 bunches.
Tape—2 rolls.
Fork—1.
Steel—1.
Rules—2, two fold No. 4, Stearns, slide.
Rule—12 inch.
Scissors—5 pairs.
Shears—2 pairs.
Table Knives—1 set, self tip.
Spoons, tea—6; table, 4.
Buttons, brass—8 10-12ths doz.
Curtain Cord—6 yards.
Skate Straps—1 set.
Books — "Rhind's Vegetable Kingdom,' "Downing's Landscape Gardening," "Gray', Botany," "Illustrated Rural Manual," "Manual of Geology," "Vegetable and Animal Physiology."
Tools—9.
Tools—4, handed.
Diamonds—2.
Chisels—2.
Chest Handles—1 pair.
Molasses Gate—1.
Screws—1 gro. 1 in. 7.
Files, taper—2 doz. 4 in; 1 doz. 3 in.
Wrench—1.
Spring Balance—1.
Chopping Knife—1.
Tacks—2 papers, 6 oz; 2 do 4 oz.
Brush Chimney—1.
Wood Faucet—1.
Wafer Stamp—1.
Mortice Latch—1.
Shot Pouch and Shot.
Glass Plate—1.
Curtain Cord—two parts balls.
Silvered Screws—22.
Collars—6.
Extracts—14 bottles.
Extracts—2, Cologne; 1 Ginger.
Ink—3 bottles.
Oils, Castor—1; Hair—2.
Pomade—1.
Indelible Ink—1 and a part.
Toothache Drops—1 bottle.
Magnetic Plaster—1 box.
Crystal Blue—1 box.
Specific for Whooping Cough—1 box.
Starch Polish Wafers—1 package.
Liquid Glass—1 bottle.
Corn Plaster—1.
Amandine—1 box.
Soap—7 cakes; 1 cake Barilla.
Percussion Caps—5 part boxes.
Salve—2 boxes.
Snuff Box.
Hair Pins—1 box.
Combs—3 horn; 2 do, black; 2 rubber; 1 pocket; 4 ivory; 1 rubber, fine.
Tooth Brushes—3.
Knives—4, two blade, black; 2, white.
Drinking Tubes.
Baby's Rattle—1.
Court Plaster, arnica—1; common—1.
Cocoa Butter—2 cakes.
Pain—3 cakes.
Perfume Bottle—1.
Sash Tools—2.
Purse—1.
Wallets, calf—2.
Memorandum Books—2.
Wax—22 cakes.
Preserve—2 cans.
Lamps, kerosene, 2; top—1.
Chimneys—2.
Syringe—1.
Opera Glass—1.
Powder Flask—1.
Razor—1.
Shears—1 pair.
Pins—4 papers.
Crochet Needles—1 set.
Measuring Tape—1.
Razor Strop—1.
Augur Bit—1, 3-4.
Apple Parer—1.
Lozenges—41.
Envelopes—2 packages, small, white.
Envelopes—1 package, large, buff.
Paper—4 3-4 quires, note, com'l.
Paper—2 quires, note, com'l.
Paper—2 1-4 quires, note, small.
Rubber Cots—3.
Rubber Squares—2.
Wristbands, Linen,—1 pr.
Sealing Wax—2 1-2 sticks.
Twist—15 sticks.
Silk—5 small spools.
Socks—1 pr., wool, dark.
Spool Cottons—46.
Salt Cellar—1 small.
Tea Pot—Britannia.
Cachou—2 boxes.
Eye Salve—1 cake.
Emery—1 cake.
Compass—1 small.
Knife—1 3 blade, ivory.
Knife—1 2 blade, pen.
Knife—1 2 blade, pearl.
Toothache Drops—5 bottles.
Corn Plaster—1 box.
Pencils—5, lead.
Tooth Pick—1.
Needles—10 papers.
Butter Knife—1.
Books—2 small pass.
Watch—1.
Crystals—3.
Crochet Needle—1.
Bodkin—1, ivory.
Bodkin—1, steel.
Tweezers—1.
Pilules—One part bottle.
Copper Coins—14.
Spy Glass—Widdifield & Co., Boston—1.
Gun—1 2 barrel.
Salem Savings Bank Book—Name, Daniel F. Cate—No. 20,768—$413.80.

[There are five other books, on different banks, in the names of his connexions, amounting to $1,640.72.]

2 package of silver, $21.00.
1 package of silver, $14.00.
1 package of silver, $12.50.
1 package of silver, $14.00.
1 package of silver, $16.90.
1 package of silver, $00.60.
6 Spanish Quarters.
1 Mexican Quarter.
1 20 cent piece.
1 Spanish half.
1 Mexican half.
1 Spanish Dollar.
1 Rupee.
Gold—$15.50.
Bills—$73.00.
Postal—$14.40.
Postage Stamps—$50.63.
Cents—$25.09.
57 3-10ths Treasury Notes, of $100.00 each—dated August 19th, 1861, and numbered as follows—16,459, 16,460, 26,329, 26,330, 26,331.
3 of $50.00 each—dated Oct. 1st, 1861, and numbered as follows—396, 397, 398.

[There are two other notes, of a private nature, payable on demand, amounting to $35.25.]

Salem and South Danvers R. R. Tickets—10.
South Danvers and Salem R. R. Tickets—1.
So. Danvers & Danversport R. R. Tickets—3.
Check—1.
Railroad Tickets to Newburyport—6.
Railroad Tickets to Bradford—5.
Railroad Tickets to Andover—1.
Railroad Tickets to Boston—7.
Railroad Tickets to Lowell—5.
Railroad Tickets to Salem—11.
Railroad Tickets to West Danvers—3.
1 Railroad Ticket from West Danvers to Melrose.
1 Railroad Ticket from West Danvers to Malden.
1 Railroad Ticket from North Danvers to Georgetown.
1 Railroad Ticket from Danvers to West Danvers Junction.
1 Railroad Ticket from West Danvers to North Danvers.
Omnibus Tickets—2.
Ambrotypes—6.
Brad Awls—1 set.
Hair Brushes—small lot.
Vials—small.
Gold Pens—3.
Magazine Pictures.
Writing Book—1.
Fancy Pipe—1.
Photographs—2, in frames.
1 Spoon—silver, or silver plated.
1 Fork—silver, or silver plated.
Carpenter's Pencils—2.
Grecian Painting—small, torn.
Tray—silver, or silver plated.
Paper Shades.
Quart Measure—tin.
Scoop.
Can—2 quart.
Lamp—Kerosene.
Vase.
Oil Lamp—glass.
Goblets—6.
Egg Glasses—2.
Salts—4.
Preserve Dish—1, glass.
Sugar Bowl—1, glass.
Creamer—1, glass.
Preserve Dish—1, glass.
Cruet—1, glass.
Glass Nappies—8.
Glass Plate—1.
Tumblers—7.
1 Album.
1 Handkerchief—silk, light.
1 Handkerchief—silk, red.
Brown Cottons—2 3-4 yards.
Bleached Cottons—6 yards, yeoman's.
De Lain—12 yards.
1 Rubber Ball.
1 Shoe Box.
Spoons—1 doz. marked B; 1 large Spoon.
Cream Spoon—1.
Fowling Piece—1.
Mittens—1 pair.

DANVERS, Jan. 19, 1863.

Although the government has been very slow in recoguizing the usefulness of any of the Danvers Faculty during the war, still we are happy to pereeive that they have now eommissioned Dr. J. W. SNOW as a surgeon in the Western Department.

This is one of the seleetions where we think worth and skill are combined, for he has been very successful as a surgeon in a number of dangerous eases in this eommunity, and in regard to his "country's cause," he has exhibited an untiring zeal, doing all he could for the eomfort of the volunteers when they went away; he has also been as untiring in his efforts to do good for the unfortunate that are left behind.

His departure was very sudden and unexpected, and but just afforded his friends time to manifest one spark of their feelings, which they did by waiting upon him at his residenee the evening before his departure, and presenting him with a very handsome pocket-case of instruments and a sash. These tokens having been gratefully acknowledged they parted with many good wishes for the future.

Letter from the 14th Regiment.

FORT CASS, VA., Jan. 3d, 1863.

FRIEND POOLE,—I will first speak of the holidays. Christmas morning opened warm, with a heavy fog hanging over all, which did not burn off until nearly ten o'clock, leaving a very pleasant day overhead, but quite muddy underfoot. After dinner, understanding there were to be some sports at Fort Craig, I repaired thither, arriving there just in time to see the commencement of them, which was shinning a greased pole for a prize. First I will deseribe the pole. It was a straight pole, about twenty feet long, the bark stripped off, and then the pole was scraped smooth. At the top of this pole was tied two pounds of tobacco wrapped up in paper. The rules of the contest were,—that the man who climbed the highest was to have the tobacco; and if any of them should be lucky enough to reach the top, a purse of five dollars, made up by the officers of Co. G, was to be given him.

There were six entered the lists, and after drawing lots for their turns, the sport commenced. The first started with good headway and climbed ten feet, with ease, when he found himself in the vicinity of grease; but he hugged the pole like a hero and finally succeeded in making about two feet into the greased portion of the pole, and, finding he could go no further, came to the ground and gave up his old clothes to the second. After robing himself in the old shirt and pants, he made a trial, but failed to rise as high as the first. The third then took his turn, and, like the second, he fell short of the first. The fourth, ditto. Then came forward the fifth and stripped himself for the excitement. Everybody said—"That is the man who will take it! He is used to that business!" Without appearing to notiee any of the bystanders' remarks, he commenced the ascent, which he did in good style until the grease stared him in the face. In vain he hugged the pole! His hands could keep no hold on the grease, and at every attempt to gain an inch, he slid back two, until, growing tired of such up-hill work, he came to the ground and made room for the sixth one's trial. The sixth one's attempt was like the fifth's, with the exception of his rising higher than any of his competitors, except the first. The bystanders encouraged him to no purpose! It was no use; he could not beat the first one; the other five, before him, in their ascents and descents, had completely besmeared the pole from top to the ground, and he had to give up after having the hardest work of all. The judges then offered a chance for any to try who were not satisfied; but all being satisfied, the prize was awarded to the drummer of Co. G, the first one who tried, and the pole was cut down, his tobacco handed to him amid the cheers of the crowd. He then began to find fuel for the many pipes on the ground, and as to the quantity of smoke that rose from out that group, I will not attempt to describe for fear I might not be believed.

The next thing was a wheelbarrow match for a pound of the above article. The rules of this game were—the man that wheeled the barrow nearest to the stake, was to have the tobaeco; and if any of them hit the stake, there was a purse of—I have forgotten the sum—for him by the officers. A stake was driven in the ground, and at a distance of eight or nine rods from it the wheelbarrow was set, the wheel pointing towards the stake. The man was then blindfolded, and took the barrow by the handles, turning round onee in his own judgment, (with it,) and then starting for the stake. The number of competitors in this was four. The first started off at a good pace, finally fetching up at one of the tents. The second the same, and was stopped by the barrow running against a pile of ten-inch mortar shell, which jarred his frame a little. The third started off as prompt as a major, and eame within two feet of the stake. The fourth started, and when about half way to the stake he was heading for, and would have struck it but the wheelbarrow eanted one grain and he sheered right off from it, bringing up against the limber of a twenty-pound Parrot gun. All being satisfied, the judges awarded the prize to the third, Charles Fillebrown, of Salem, a ventriloquist and magician.

A bag raee was the next feature, the prize for this being a pound of tobaeco. The competitors for the race were tied up in gunny bags, coming up over their shoulders, leaving only their heads visible. The bags were so arranged as to allow them to step but three or four inches at a step, and if they were not very careful indeed how they stepped they would be measuring Virginia soil. The ones that entered for this prize were Fillebrown and another. At the word "go" they started, F. being behind for some two or three rods, when his rival fell, giving him a decided advantage, so much so that F. passed him and gained the ramparts first, and, taking the prize between his teeth, shook it at the erowd. He was then let out of the bag.

Another bag raee took place, but as the sun was descending, I repaired at once to our little fort, arriving there in season to eat a plate of cold beans that I had left for my dinner. A year ago this Christmas Mrs. Greene provided a pound of chicken to each man in the regiment, with butter enough to cook it. In the evening we played euchr
Christmas, which, I doubt ry than many a soldier's w burg.

The two companies of
lery, stationed here at th their company streets dec with arches of evergreens doors of the tents trimm quality and quantity.

The New Year was ushe cold, blustering wind, an about as cold ever since.

On New Year's Eve th
F, (after long study and obtaining scenery and dres of the regiment (those tha with a theatre, perhaps not class theatres of large citi taining to those that attend from those who went. (I w going by guard duty.) Th Eyed Susan, and Paddy M
the audience were Lieut.
lady, for whose benefit it wa

On New Year's night the a nigger concert in the old there and was very much pl tertainment. At the furthe hall a platform was raised, vas was so arranged togeth can flag as to resemble in s tain, &c. There were six pe Ellsworth Avengers first, aft tain dropped, and they next fantasticals, blacked to perfe
all the instruments for a nig songs they sung, though m old, were well sung; and t which were original, were w were brought in in the rig
the jokes proposed by Brud
"What is the use of a soldier passing through the whole answer, it was asked what when Bones replied, with qui was to learn to drill holes in t

Our new Colonel (Tannatt) taken command of the regimen was inspected by him to-day.
looking man, five feet nine inch well formed, weighing about o seventy pounds, black hair, whis tache, and an eye sharp and eagle.

Friend Waterman, of the their houses, which reminds m houses too. At the first sight o lage one would suppose that it w but when the boards for the have to be backed three or fo some old torn down building) c as level as Ayre's mowing fiel smooth as the paved sidewalks o and through woods with a pler brush, the hard work then show builders. The logs for the sides not obtained without a sharp axe hand cart, or the shoulders of the bricks that compose the f chimneys could speak, they wou hard tales of the rutty road betw ter Estate and here, on a wheelbar

The house that I live in is tw by eight feet wide. The two dou
the back, four feet wide, gives us feet square to move round in. T can get along very well with; an with four in it, gives us more ro would have in a Sibley tent with sides the room, the shingles on o out the rain better than the canvas

THE REBELS.

We learn much of the depri
our soldiers, and of the reducti numbers of particular regiment ness, but the following extra rebel letter sent to the moth writer, which letter fell into the one of our soldiers, shows that suffer as much, at least, as our
To be deprived of that prime of life, salt, must certainly be of great annoyance and sufferi best rations without being mad by this essential condiment, ca be well relished even with a go tite. The letter is dated Camp land's Brigade, 20th Reg., N. C.
Oct. 14, 1862:

"Out of one thousand and eleven we had when we first came to Virgi are only three hundred and fifty in ra here—the majority of those absent are pitals and prisoners.

I have been siek for about a week have done duty all the time; if I h justice to myself I would not have do thing, but I did not want to tie up.
very hard matter to try to eat the ratio give us now. It is beef and bread and grain of salt. It is hard, but we ha eat, it does no good to complain—com will not get the salt. I will be glad w get into winter quarters, for sure I am this life. We have more lice here th ean imagine, unless you were here to se
It has become a very common thing to s sitting down with their shirts off, killin
They are biting me like forty now, so can't half write."

A COURAGEOUS CHILD.—The Times
pondent, after detailing an account of th on the decks of the Harriet Lane, says
the first men struck down were the g
Capt. Wainwright and 1st Lieut. Lee, both fought, a prisoner says, with a de tion and valor that no mortal could surp
He saw them bleeding and prostrate upo deck, still dealing death among their ene
One young son of Capt. Wainwright, onl years old—just think of it! stood at the door, a revolver in each hand, and never e firing until he had expeuded every shot.
of his poor little hands was disabled by a shattering his four fingers; then his infa soul gave way, and he burst into tears and
"Do you want to kill me?"

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.—At the Howard A enæum, Miss Laura Keene, with the promin members of her comedy company from N York, commenced a brief engagement on M day last. Her company are too well known need any praise at our hands. Go and see th

At the Melodeon we have the beautiful P orama of a tour through Ireland, faithfully lineated by Prof. MacEvoy, who has no supe or. The musical portion of the entertainme by the Misses MacEvoy, is of the most pleasi description.

AL SCOTT.—A New York paper says: e of military interest is now at the inue hotel. In one of the commodi- ments the hero of many wars is laid ie. No longer is his eye undimmed tural force unabated. Gen. Scott is ing to the infirmities of age. He goes ldom, and sees but little of sceiety.— old warrior like the "Iron Duke," he harness as long as possible, and the infirmities of the body only when me inexorable and would not be ap- The death of Mrs. Scott has had its and already the old hero feels that he n the world, and his activity over and lness ended. With great calmness tled composure he waits his time.

SENATORS.—Zachariah Chandler was day re-elected by the Legislature of to the U. S. Senate for six years from f March next. James A. Bayard has lected by the Legislature of Delaware e period. Also William A. Richard- he Illinois Legislature.

lemocrats have been elected, within a to take the place of republicans in ; Senate; namely:—James W. Wall lersey, and C. R. Buckalew in Penn- Indiana, T. A. Hendricks and David the French Government has decided oceed with any more iron frigates, as xperiments, more especially with flat shell—the missile of Mr. Whitworth ng been employed with such startling ainst armor-plated targets—have, it is satisfied them that the artillerists are n a match for the shipbuilders.

DDING AND A DEATH.—In a George- spital a day or two since, Captain Wal- the Sixth Ohio Volunteers, wounded ttle of Fredericksburg, was united in ds of matrimony to Miss Henrietta of Canton, Ohio. Afterwards he had mputated, which produced hemorrhage h he died the same evening.

IC RAILROAD. — At Sacramento, on y, the commencement of the California of the Pacific Railroad was duly cele- Gov. Sandford dug the first spadeful . The Legislature adjourned in honor vent, and the usual speeches were made nguished gentlemen.

The French have taken possession of oras with 4000 troops. Their army is to forced by 10,000 men, but their losses, by disease, will soon consume that num- hey make slow progress in subjugating ntry.

N.—Late advices show that Japan is in lar state of revolution. Important re- re being inaugurated, and changes made will affect the interest of foreign coun- It is reported that the Regent has been ted.

The rebels failed in their attack on field, Mo., and were obliged to retreat, their dead and wounded. The federal s 17 killed, and the rebels left 35 dead.

A prisoner in Missouri, John Lebam, was ly sentenced to State Prison for life, for einous crime, and afterward an addition- ft years for horse-stealing.

The number of men in France out of yment from the cotton famine is 300,000. sufferings are great, and they have no diate prospect of relief.

EST VIRGINIA, not Kanawha, is the name y adopted as the name of the new State dmitted into the Union.

220 ESSEX STREET.

closing out sale of

RSTEDS AND WOOLEN GOODS

continue ONE WEEK LONGER.

JOHN P. PEABODY.

OUR PRICES:

ack and White German Worsteds,		13 cts.
arlet and Solferinos	"	15 "
agenta and Purples,	"	17 "
hurchilla	"	19 "

We are fast reducing our stock, and shall at our closing prices but one week longer.

JOHN P. PEABODY.

VORSTEDS, 13, 15 and 17 cents,—at PEA- Y'S.

ALMORAL SKIRTS.—PEABODY'S Closing e presents a rare opportunity to buy a good rt at a Low Price.

CLOSING OUT SALE of Worsteds and Woolen ods, at PEABODY'S, 220 Essex street, Sa- m.

Notice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

Notice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

Omnibus Notice.

On and after Thursday, Jan. 15, 1863—for e better accommodation of the public—the nnibus fare between South Danvers and Sa- m will be FIVE CENTS, or 22 Tickets for ne Dollar.

Passengers called for or left off the regular oute, 15 cents, or 25 cents for two.

January 14 H. M. MERRILL.

☞ Call and look at the HUDSON BAY SA- LES, at OSBORNE'S.

Save your Rags and Paper!

The subscriber will pay the highest prices in ASH for Rags and Paper. By giving seas- nable notice he will call at the houses of hose who wish to dispose of their rags.

"A penny saved is as good as a penny earned." So Poor Richard says.

SUMNER SOUTHWICK.

South Danvers, Jan 14, 1863.

Physicians' Notice.

The Physicians of Danvers have unanimous- ly agreed that, on and after MARCH 1st, 1863, they will charge 75 cents per visit.

Danvers, Jan. 6th, 1863.

To Let.

A BUILDING on Spring Street, suitable for a Currier or a Shoe Manufacturer. Inquire of R. S. D. Symonds, 54 Main Street.

James F. Almy.

WE offer a large stock of Ladies', Gent's and Misses'

Merino Under Clothing,

at Low PRICES. We are selling our stock of

Winter Dress Goods

At REDUCED PRICES.

We are selling our stock of

CUSTOM MADE CLOAKS

at Reduced Prices.

JAMES F. ALMY,

jan 14 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

Marriages.

In this town, Jan 19th, by Rev Mr Dwight, Mr Henry Moulton of Lynn, to Miss Miranda Clark of South Danvers. [The Wizards, from the editor up to the youngest apprentice, return thanks for the generous slice of cake.]

In Salem, Dec 24, by Rev Mr Spaulding, Mr George A Wilson of Beverly, to Miss Hannah R Gray of Salem; Jan 10, Mr Levi J Owen to Miss Jane F Bragdon.

Deaths.

In South Danvers, Jan 11, Mrs Angeline C G, wife of —— Buxton, 26 yrs 1 mon.

Jan 17th, John, son of Dennis and Mary E Linnehan, 2 years 5 months.

In Danvers, Dec 20, of diptheria, H. Mabel, only daughter of E. B. and H. Ellen Waitt, 7 years 2 months 22 days.

In Salem, Jan 12, Squire Gove, 59 yrs; Mrs Margaret Riley, 80 yrs; John Lewis, son of the late Mr John Mackintosh, 17 years; 13th, Mrs Mary M, wife of James C Stimpson, Esq., 54 yrs; Lucy Aria, daughter of William F and Lucy Ann Walsh, 6 years; 14th, Catharine, daughter of David and Anstiss Kicley, 6 yrs 8 mos; 15th, Mrs Mary, widow of the late Mr William Haywood, 67 yrs.

In Beverly, Jan 14, Ruth P Moses, 21 yrs. 16th, Mrs Sally A, wife of Mr Joseph Odell, 53.

In Marblehead, Jan 11th, Sarah, Mr Crispus Graves, 87 years.

Advertisements.

The Clothes Wringer

JUST OBTAINED

RHOADES' CELEBRATED

NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER,

THE VERY BEST YET INVENTED,

AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING MACHINE.

CALL AND EXAMINE.

For Sale by E. SOUTHWICK,

At the EQUITY GROCERY STORE,

South Danvers, Jan 21, 1863. 3m

HILTON'S INSOLUBLE CEMENT.

ONLY 25 cents—try a bottle. For sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH, jan 21 190 Essex street.

NOTE PAPER, ENVELOPES, &C.

A VERY full and complete stock, at a very small advance on old prices, at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S. jan 21

KEROSENE PEG LAMPS,

FOR Shoemaker's use, at S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PLATE COVERS.

PLANISHED Tin Plate Covers, at S C & E A SIMONDS', 34 Front

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,

FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,

Central street, South Danvers,

HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.

He keeps as good an assortment of

COFFINS AND CASKETS,

as can be found at any establishment, and at the lowest prices.

He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.

All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

T. HARDY, JR.,

—Dealer in—

DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,

Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,

FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,

No. 26 FRONT STREET,

Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

NOTICE.

I HEREBY give notice that I have this day given to my son NATHANIEL F HURD, now 16 years old, his time, and I will not detain his earnings or pay any debts he may contract after this date.

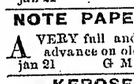
HARFORD HURD.

Danvers, January 14, 1862. 3w*

IHLSING & NARVESON'S

Celebrated New Full 7 Octave

PIANO FORTES,



OF superior tone and finish, plain and ornamental, nameboard inlaid with pearl, full iron frame, grand action, overstrung bass pearl or ivory keys, plain or carved legs, are for sale at

218 Essex Street, Salem, Up Stairs.

Any one wishing to obtain a superior instrument is invited to call before purchasing elsewhere.

jan 7—tf S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

Danvers Savings Bank.

THE Annual Meeting of the Members of this Corporation will be held at the office, in Rooms of the Village Bank, on WEDNESDAY, the 14th inst., at 3 o'clock, P. M.

WM. L. WESTON, Secretary.

Danvers, Jan 7, 1863.

EXTRA HEAVY SHEETINGS.

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

NEW GOODS.

WE have received some very neat styles of French Prints, small figures, Spring styles, new goods.

Neat styles Patches, new patterns.

A few pieces Cotton and Wool M de Laines, new styles, suitable for the present and Spring wear—selling low for cash.

jy 14 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS

A FINE assortment—for sale at low prices at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, jy 14 190 Essex Street, Salem.

NEW BOOKS.

STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom; Fire Light; or Stories for Domestics, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;

Gardener's Monthly—January;

Harper's Weekly; Gencalogical Register;

Historical Collections, October, 1862.

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,

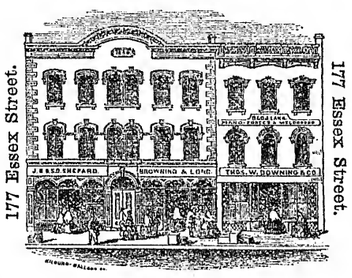
At the old stand of H Whipple & Son

Browning & Long.

1863.

REDUCTION OF STOCK.

DOWNING BLOCK,



Opposite Essex House.

FIRST CLASS GOODS AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES

Finding that LOW PRICES are appreciated in Salem and vicinity, BROWNING & LONG are determined, notwithstanding the great advance in all classes of Goods, to close out the remainder of their RICH STOCK of Fall and Winter Goods at prices which cannot fail to suit.

Ladies will please remember that our Goods are First Class, and that we sell them at the Smallest Possible Profit.

On and after MONDAY, January 5th, we shall have many Goods open for inspection, and would invite all to come and examine the same, assuring them that they will be pleased with the Assortment and Prices.

FIRST CLASS GOODS AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES

BROWNING & LONG,

SUCCESSORS TO

J. MAYER,

☞ No. 177 Essex Street, ☜

SALEM, MASS.

Ladies will please remember that the principal Stores close at 6 o'clock.

George S. Walker.

AT REDUCED PRICES.

GEORGE S. WALKER

Offers his Winter Stock of

Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods,

SUCH as All-Wool, Merino, and Silk Shirts and Drawers,

HOSIERY, GLOVES, SCARFS,

And other Seasonable Goods,

At such Reduced Prices as will make it for the interest of purchasers to examine before purchasing elsewhere, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,

jan 14 228 Essex st. Stearns' Block.

PAPER BOXES.

SEVERAL HUNDRED Paper Boxes for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S, jan 14 228 Essex St., Salem.

A. J. Archer & Co

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

Have on hand a full supply of

BROWN SHEETINGS AND SHIRTINGS;

BLEACHED SHEETINGS & SHIRTINGS;

— Also —

GREY TWILLED FLANNELS; WHITE FLANNELS.

— Also —

BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,

which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES.

Salem, January 21—6w

CLOAKS AND SACKS.

Cloak Beavers

— AND —

Cloak Cloths

In all the most desirable styles!

A large assortment just opened, and for sale by

AUGUSTUS J. ARCHER & CO.

nov 12 181 ESSEX ST.

SALESMAN WANTED.

APPLY at 181 Essex street, Salem. A. J. ARCHER, & CO.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE SUBSCRIBER wishes to invite the attention of the public to the Fine and extensive assortment of

MEN'S & BOYS'

CLOTHING,

Hats, Caps, Furnishing Goods,

And Boots for Men's, Boys' and Youths' Wear,

which I have received within the past week for the winter trade.

I have made every possible endeavor to select a stock that shall be in EVERY RESPECT good and feel confident that I can offer such inducements as will secure a liberal patronage.

My stock in the Men's line, being probably as large as any in the State (out of Boston) and the only one in the vicinity that has a full assortment of Gent's Furnishing Goods, I shall always endeavor to keep a full stock of all the latest styles of FINE, as well as the lower grades of clothing.

Having had 20 years experience I flatter myself that I can and certainly shall make it my aim to sell my customers GOOD CLOTHING at the VERY LOWEST MARKET PRICES.

I at all take pleasure in showing my stock and prices at any time, which can be examined without being importuned to buy. You can then judge for yourself whether I can make it for your interest to purchase. My business will be conducted strictly on the

ONE PRICE SYSTEN,

and no deviation can be made in any case.

S. R. BOTT,

MAIN STREET, Townsend's Building, nearly opposite the Peabody Institute.

GARMENTS Cut for Men and Boys in the latest styles.

South Danvers, December 10, 1862.

Probate Notice.

ESSEX ss. To the Heirs-at-Law and others interested in the Estate of SAMUEL TUCKER, late of South Danvers, in said county, cordwainer, intestate, greeting:

Whereas, Joseph Poor, administrator of the estate of said deceased has presented for allowance the first account of administration upon the estate of said deceased: You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be holden at Salem in said County, on the first Tuesday of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed. And the said administrator is ordered to serve this Citation by publishing the same once a week, in the South Danvers WIZARD a newspaper printed at South Danvers, three weeks successively, the last publication to be two days at least before said Tuesday.

Witness, GEORGE F. CHOATE, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this sixth day of January in the year eighteen hundred and sixty-three.

A. C. GOODELL, Register.

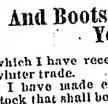
South Danvers, Jan 7, 1863.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.



THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.

South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

FOR SALE.

A GOOD comfortable Home, a two-story House, L, Shed and Barn, in good repair, pleasantly located in Londonderry, N. H., 1 1-2 miles from center of town, 10 acres of Land, with plenty of Fruit. Price only $650.

Also—an excellent Stock Farm of 250 acres, for sale or exchange.

dec 31 L. BRICKETT, Derry, N. H.

PEABODY'S ANNUAL CLOSING OUT SALE.

READ THE PRICES.

Best Black and White German Worsteds, per oz.	$0 13
Best Solferino and Scarlets, " " "	0 15
Best Magenta and Purples, " " "	0 17
Finest Cloud made—Patti Novelties,	1 00
Very Heavy Cloud—large size,	0 92
Good Cloud—fine colors,	0 75
Nice Hand Knit Skating Hat,	0 50
Baby's Hat—Hand Knit—formerly $1 00,	0 25
Best Silk Lined Hat—usually at $1 75,	1 00
Ladies' White, all wool, Hose, usually 42 cts., now.	0 29
Misses' all wool Hose, usually 38 cts., now	0 25
Misses' Striped Ribb'd Hose, now	0 25
All our 38, 42 and 50 cent Flowers,	0 25
Our Best Bonnet Ribbons	all way down.
Our Bonnet Ruches	at reduced prices.

We, to-day, commence our annual closing sale. We do this in order to close out our stock of Winter Goods, that we may commence another season with a new stock. By so doing, we can always keep our stock fresh and desirable. We never allow old goods to accumulate, but "MARK THEM DOWN" until they sell. Our customers of last year will remember the bargains that we gave in our closing sale, and we can assure them that we shall sell at lower prices during this sale than ever before. We give the above short list that you may judge of our intentions. Our whole stock will be found to correspond in prices with the above.

JOHN P. PEABODY.

BARGAINS IN CLOUDS.
BARGAINS IN HOODS.
BARGAINS IN GAITERS.
BARGAINS IN SACKS.
BARGAINS IN NUBIAS.
BARGAINS IN WORSTEDS.

BARGAINS IN SONTAGS.
BARGAINS IN SKATING HATS.
BARGAINS IN SCARFS.
BARGAINS IN SLEEVES.
BARGAINS IN TIPPETS.
BARGAINS IN WOOLEN GOODS.

Sontags, Nubias, Sacks, Hoods, Skating Hats, Mittens,
Tippets, Scarfs, Gaiters, Bootees, Baby's Caps, Hoseiry.

All to be Closed at Bargains,

TO REDUCE OUR STOCK.

Bargains in Wrought Setts.
Bargains in Lace Collars.
Bargains in Insertings.
Bargains in Lace Veils.
Bargains in Thread Edgings.

Bargains in Wrought Collars.
Bargains in Edgings.
Bargains in Flouncings.
Bargains in Silk Edgings.

Wrought Setts; Wrought Collars; Lace Collars; Linen Collars; Crape Collars; Crape Setts; Linen Setts;

Thread Edgings; Wrought Edgings; Black Edgings; Lace Veils; Crape Veils; Dona Maria Veils; Love Veils.

All at Bargains,

IN ORDER TO REDUCE OUR STOCK.

Bargains in Gent's Hosiery;
Bargains in Misses' Hosiery;
Bargains in Ladies' Gloves;
Bargains in Lisle Gloves;

Bargains in Ladies' Hosiery;
Bargains in Child's Hosiery;
Bargains in Kid Gloves;
Bargains in Misses' Gloves;

Bargains in Child's Gloves.

Gent's Hosiery;
Ladies' Hosiery;
Woolen Hosiery;
Cotton Hosiery;
Merino Hosiery;
Children's Hosiery;
Baby's Socks;

Lisle Gloves;
Kid Gloves;
Silk Gloves;
Cotton Gloves;
White Gloves;
Black Gloves;
Mourning Gloves.

All to be Closed to Reduce Stock.

Bargains in Linen Bosoms;
Bargains in Hem'd Hdkfs;
Bargains in Cotton Hdkfs;
Bargains in Plain Cambrics;

Bargains in Linen Hdkfs;
Bargains in Gent's Hdkfs;
Bargains in Check'd Cambrics;
Bargains in Swiss Muslins;

These Goods were bought before the rise in Cottons, and have not been marked up. They are decided bargains.

☞ Our WINTER GOODS are all to be closed out, and we have made the prices so low, that all in want will find it to their advantage to purchase now.

LADIES' FURNISHING STORE.

☞ ONE PRICE ONLY. ☜

220 ESSEX ST., SALEM.

JOHN P. PEABODY.

N. B.—All the principal Ladies' Furnishing and Fancy Dry Goods Dealers close their Stores every evening in the week except Saturdays. Our customers should remember this and do their shopping before evening.

☞ If you want to SVAE MONEY, in purchasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, No. 10 Front street, Salem. ap30-2m

Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,

Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,
34 Front Street.

Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

TO LET.

A SMALL and convenient TENEMENT, on Washington Street, not far from Aborn St. For terms apply to H. C. BANCROFT.

South Danvers, Nov, 26, 1362.

GRIST MILL.

HAVING made arrangements for carrying on the Grist Mill at Newhall's Crossing, at South Danvers, I take this method of informing the public that the mill is now open and ready for business.

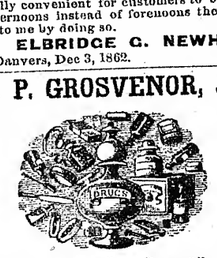
Any patronage in the line of grinding corn or other grain, or making COB MEAL, will be gratefully received, and all orders promptly attended to.

If equally convenient for customers to bring their grists afternoons instead of forenoons they will accommodate me by doing so.

ELBRIDGE G. NEWHALL.

South Danvers, Dec 3, 1862.

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,



Druggist and Apothecary,

33 MAIN STREET.

Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.

Personal attention to Physicians' Prescriptions.

South Danvers, May 29, 1861. 1y

GEO. E. MEACOM,

Dealer in

DRUGS & MEDICINES,

Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.,

126 · · MAIN ST. · · 126

Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,

Druggist & Apothecary

37 Main St., So. Danvers,

DEALER IN

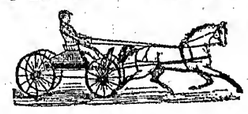
Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponges, Shoulder Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines.

Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery.

Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by experienced persons.

37 MAIN STREET.

LIVERY STABLE.



JOHN MOULTON

WOULD inform his friends and the public that he still continues to keep

Good Horses and Carriages to Let,

at the stable of G. M. TEEL on Central street, where he will remain until his stable is rebuilt at his old stand on Main Street.

A share of public patronage is solicited.

South Danvers, june 9, 1862.

PATTERSON'S

LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE

THE undersigned are agents for the above machine. It can be seen in operation at Pinder & Brown's Tannery.

may 7—3m CLARK & GIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,

Wallis Street, South Danvers,

Are Agents for

GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S

PATENT EAVE TROUGHS

GUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND

PIPE FOR DRAINS.

South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

Potter, Bachelder & Co.,

(Successors to M. Black)

DANVERS-PORT,

DEALERS IN

WOOD AND COAL

OF the various kinds usually kept in a retail yard. Constantly on hand

Franklin, Old Company's Lehigh, Locust Mountain, Black Heath, Red and White Ash.

Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere.

OFFICE—No. 6 Allen's Building.

Order Box at post office, South Danvers, and post office, Danvers.

G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. july 19—tf

BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS.

WILLIAM J. WALTON,

94 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS,

HAS now on hand, and intends to constantly keep a full assortment of all desirable kinds and styles of Boots, Shoes and Rubbers, which he would be happy to dispose of to his Friends, and the Public, at satisfactory prices.

Repairing expeditiously and neatly done.

WILLIAM J WALTON, 94 Main st.

South Danvers, Jan 1, 1862. tf

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St.

PRICES REDUCED!

WE shall sell our DRESS GOODS at REDUCED PRICES.

We shall sell all the different styles of Ladies' Watch Spring, Bon Ton and Quaker Skirts, at a discount.

All our Balmoral Skirts at a discount;
French Prints and other grades;
Domestic Goods;
Cottons, Flannels, Crashes;
Blankets, the very best quality—all widths;
Batting, full pound bundles;
Wool Wadding, Sheet Wadding, black and white.

☞ In order to prepare for Spring Trade, we shall sell at the very lowest prices for cash.

jan 7 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal St.

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,

IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, dec 24 Sign of Five Golden Books.

Miscellaneous.

☞ Two young ladies were riding in an omnibus. One of them with features remarkable for a prominence of nose, exhibited to the other a daguerrotype of herself, and they were engaged in discussing its merits, when an elderly lady got in. After a while she reached out her hand, and said to the lady with the picture. "Please let me look at it?" Her modest request was met with an indignant, "It's none of your business." The old lady settled back in her seat very complacently, when the companion of the one with the picture asked, "What do you wish to do with it?" "Oh, nothing," replied the old lady; "I only wanted to see how successfully the artist has put such a nose on so small a plate."

☞ Living not a thousand miles from here, are an old man and his son, both of whom are a little given to "cups," a very unusual thing in the vicinity, by the way. A short time since it happened they became very "happy" together, and after a season of "enjoyment," something occurred to ruffle the event "current of their minds"—in other words, they got mad at each other. Bitter words passed between them, till finally the son, enraged, exclaimed — "Father, you're a mis'able old coot; f ye 'as dead I wouldn't go t' y'r fun'ral." "Now see'ere, Ward," replied the old man, "you shouldn't feel so torze me. I don't feel so torze you. Now, if you sh'd die, I'd tend your fun'ral—itz pleasure!"

☞ Some editor says that the destiny of the world often hangs on the smallest trifles. A little miff between Charles Bonaparte and his love Letitia might have broken off a marriage which gave birth to Napoleon and the battle of Waterloo. Yes, that is a fact. And suppose a "little miff" had taken place between Adam and Eve! What then?

☞ A Captain, one of the old school, being at a ball, had been accepted by a beautiful partner, a lady of rank, who in the most delicate manner possible, hinted to him the propriety of putting on a pair of gloves. "Oh," was the elegant reply, "never mind me, ma'am; I shall wash my hands when I've done dancing."

☞ Mr. Jenkins remarked to his wife that in her he possessed four fulls.

"Name them, my love."

"You are beautiful, dutiful, youthful, and an armful."

"You have the advantage of me, my dear."

"How so, my precious?"

"I have but one fool."

Mr. Jenkins made no further inquiries.

☞ A man who cheats in short measure is a measureless rogue. If in whiskey, then he is a rogue in spirit. If he gives a bad title to land, then he is a rogue in deed. If he gives a short measure in wheat, then he is a rogue in grain. And if he cheats when he can, he is in deed, in spirit, in grain, a measureless rogue.

☞ Two friends meeting, one remarked, "I have just met a man who told me I looked like you." "Tell me who it was, that I may knock him down," replied his friend. "Don't trouble yourself," said he; "I did that myself immediately."

☞ "Come in, Joe, and let's take a drink."

"No, Thomas, I can't afford it."

"But, Joe, I'll pay for it."

"Oh, I'm not speaking of the loss of money, Thomas, but of loss of health and energy, moral principle, character, peace of mind and self-respect."

☞ Two children have recently been born in Troy. The father of one of the children is brother to the other child.—The mother of one of the children is sister to the other child. The father and mother of the other child are grandfather and grandmother to the first child. Now, what relation do the children bear to each other!

☞ A man in stopping his paper recently, wrote: "I think foakes don't ort spend their munny on papers, my father never did, an foakes said he was the smartest man in the kountree, an he had got the intelligencyest famely of buoys that ever dug taters."

☞ It seems a hard case that, when a man dies, his better half is entitled to only a third.

☞ An eccentric gentleman, whose connection with revivals has made his name familiar in all parts of the land, preached in a certain place, recently.—Among many peculiar things he said in his prayer, this sentence occurred: "O, Lord, show us the spot where Nebuchadnezzar was pastured, that we may turn out that arch rebel, Jeff Davis, therein."

☞ Three brothers—Union soldiers a Fredericksburg—received a wound each from the same ball.

Advertisements.

W. E. P. SMYTH,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.

Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,

LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.

Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow. 4th. The Mother.
2d. The Children. 5th The Brothers and Sisters collectively.
3d. The Father.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken out, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.

When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditor's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay in getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.

Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1y

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.

Prof. M. G. BROWN.

SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets seumy and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its sockett in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to anoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 6 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

USEFUL ARTICLES
— FOR —
HOLIDAY GIFTS.

CASHMERE Mantles, best quality;
Chenille Scarfs; Neck Ties, for Children;
Gloves and Hosiery;
French and English Prints, very neat patterns;
American do. at the lowest prices;
Linen Hdkfs, plain, hem-stitched and bordered;
New styles of Long Shawls;
A full assortment of DRESS GOODS, which we shall sell at a discount.
A full line of Table Linen, Crashes, &c.

ANN R. BRAY,
dec 24 Salem, 76 Federal St.

Plymouth Buck Gloves.

MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S
Gent's Furnishing Store,
dec 10 228 Essex St., Salem.

PATRIOTS,

FREEMEN! STRANGERS!

BUSINESS MEN!

REMEMBER,

When you Visit Boston,

THAT AT

LANE'S
CLOTHING HOUSE,

31 and 32 Dock Square,

You will find a Large Assortmtnt of

Men's Overcoats, Business Coats, Suits, Pants, Vests, Under Flannels, &c., &c.,

On which there has been NO RISE, our large CASH PURCHASES made

BEFORE THE ADVANCE

in Goods enables us to

DEFY COMPETITION.

We would remind the public that in our NEW DEPARTMENT for

BOYS' CLOTHING

may be found a better assortment than at any other House in the city, and at much

LOWER PRICES!

We sell for CASH ONLY, and do not charge the paying customer extra profits to make up for bad debts.

REMEMBER!
LANE'S
CLOTHING HOUSE,
31 and 32 Dock Square,
BOSTON.

Boston, Nov. 5th. 2m

JUST PUBLISHED.

GRAVER Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heaven, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantes, by A. B. Edwards: The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
dec 24 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

PINGREE'S JOB WAGON.

THE subscriber is still prepared to do all kinds of Job Work and Teaming, such as removing Furniture and Merchandize of any description about town, or to and from the neighboring towns.

Orders will be received at the Essex Railroad Station, and at S. Flint's store, on the Square.

Thankful for past favors, he would solicit a continuance of the same. W. H. PINGREE
South Danvers, 1860.

DIARIES FOR

1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books,

NOTICE.

THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.

JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

The Confessions and Experience of a Poor Young Man.

A GENTLEMAN having been cured of the results of early error and disease, will, from motives of benevolence, send to those who request it, a copy of the above interesting narrative, published by himself. This little book is designed as a warning and caution to young men and those who suffer from NERVOUS DEBILITY, LOSS OF MEMORY, PREMATURE DECAY, &c., &c., supplying at the same time the means of self-cure. Single copies will be sent under seal in a plain envelope,—without charge,—to any who request it, by addressing the author,

CHAS. A. LAMBERT, ESQ.,
Greenpoint, Long Island, New York.

TABLE CUTLERY.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, Carvers and Steels, and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by
nov 19 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

FOR NEW YEAR'S.

ELEGANT BOOKS; NEW BOOKS;
BEAUTIFUL FANCY GOODS; BRONZES;
PARIAN; WOOD CARVINGS;
FINE CUTLERY; GAMES;
PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS;
DARLEY'S "MORNING, NOON & NIGHT."
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

CHINA GOODS.

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

KNIVES AND FORKS.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A VALUABLE PRESENT.

A YEAR'S Reading in WHIPPLE & SMITH'S Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.
dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

CHEAP EDITION.

LES Miserables—complete—$1.00.
Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Muloch—for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

READING.

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

REMOVAL!

JOHN J. ASHBY,

WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store

No. 145 Essex Street,

formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of

BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,

and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.

Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

E. R. PERKINS,

PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST

241 Essex Street, Salem.

Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,

Photographs, Spherectypes, Melainotypes, and patent enamel Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

Important to the Afflicted.

DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a

PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.

By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of

GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.

Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.

Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating masrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.

Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.

Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French [illegible], warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862- ly.

CAUTION

TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.

DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.

Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.

Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.

Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.

N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.

Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE

IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.

Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.

Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862- ly

Rare Chance for Bargains.

CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of

JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS,
At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER

Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,

Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Ware,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.

at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.

This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Refurnishing the Table, &c.

Old Silver taken in exchange.

☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.

JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, of which the Mackie took the First Premium at the late Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.

BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook,
South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862. tf

AARON T. LOWE,
DEALER IN
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,
76 BOSTON STREET, 76.
aug 6 SALEM. tf

MUNROE'S
(LATE REED'S)
SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON
RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at 10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " " at 5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at 3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " " at 5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.
Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.

EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.

Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.

Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.

Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed:

WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

Ladies' Spring Skirts.

ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier, a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Tenements to Let.

ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $54 per year.

One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.

One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.

One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.

One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

Are you Insured?

THE subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on

Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c, &c., and on buildings in process of erection,

And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:

Thamos Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn. Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston. Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston. Capi al—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y

Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass. Capital and Assets—$375,000.

Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D, Medical Examiner.

WM. ARCHER, Jr.,
18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
ej b20-1

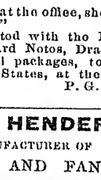
CURRIER & MILLETT,
Dealers in
Furniture, Chairs,
MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c
259 & 261 ESSEX ST.
Salem, dec 14—1y

E. F. BURNHAM,
SOLE AGENT FOR
SARGENT & CO.S'
MAGIC SOAP
For South Danvers & Salem.

OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.

Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.

Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3



E. S. FLINT,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
INNER SOLES,
AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.
2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

THOMAS PINNOCK,
SLATER,
SALEM, MASS.

Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.

Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.
Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

Ann R. Bray,
NO. 76 Federal Street,
DEALER IN
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

MARSHALL'S
DANVERS, SO. DANVERS & SALEM
EXPRESS.

Leave DANVERS (daily) at 9 A. M.
" SALEM at 1½ P. M.

OFFICES:
In Danvers—At E B Waitt's and the Post Office.
Danversport—Richards' and A W Warren's Stores.
In So. Danvers—Francis Dane & Co's, and No 2 Main street.
In Salem—No 7 Washington street, 199 Essex st, and 17 Derby Square.

All business promptly and faithfully attended to.

☞ Our patrons are particularly requested to write their orders.

☞ Packages, left at the office, should be marked "Marshall's Express."

☞ Being connected with the RAILROAD we are enabled to forward Notes, Drafts and Bills for collection, and small packages, to all accessible point in the United States, at the usual rates.

P. G. MARSHALL.
dec18-tf

WM. C. HENDERSON,
MANUFACTURER OF
PLAIN AND FANCY
PAPER BOXES,
No. 235 ESSEX STREET,
Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"
July 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,

NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St. South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

Heckscher Coal!
$8.25 per Ton on Wharf.

A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,
Both Red and White Ash,
Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by
W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.
July 9

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.

THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of
Patent Granular Fuel,

which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25 Bushels, delivered, ... 2 25
50 do do 4 00
100 do do 7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.

BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, June 18.

WAL LETS AND CURRENCY

HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

MAGAZINES FOR DECEMBER.

ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Madam Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

CHINA WARE.

A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustre China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

H. & H. G. HUBON,
WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM
Manufacturers of
Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood
COFFINS and CASKETS.

MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.

dec 14—tf

R. C. MANNING & CO.,
Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,
DEALERS IN
COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,
188 DERBY STREET,
SALEM, MASS.
N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.
oct17

Dyspepsia Remedy.

DR. DARIUS HAM'S
AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!

This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.

IT STIMULATES, EXHILARATES, INVIGORATES, BUT WILL NOT INTOXICATE OR STUPEFY.

AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner.

It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.

Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the DELIRIUM TREMENS, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.

DOSE—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.
A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.
Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.

Persons who, from dissipating too much ever night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings.

Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the careworn face.

During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.

All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the INVIGORATING SPIRIT in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.

General Depot, 48 Water Street, N. Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.
feb 29 1y

FRANKLIN COAL.

JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL —the best in the world for domestic use.
POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

MUSICAL NOTICE.

Chickering & Sons' Piano-Fortes.

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St. would inform her friends in South Danvers, and the public generally that she keeps for sale and to let Chickering & Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with great care, and need only to be tried to prove their superiority over every other in the market. The very best terms given.

MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPHINES
For sale and to let. For power and quality of tone none can surpass them A. R BRAY,
76 Federal st.

E. N. PRICE,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
HARNESSES,
SADDLES, BRIDLES,
AND WHIPS.
— ALSO —
Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.

All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.

237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
mch13-tf

Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

D. W. BOWDOIN,
—ARTIST IN—
PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.
Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]

Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotype, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.

☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,
ONE PRICE
HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,
231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

REMOVAL!

AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,
Manufacturer and Repairer of
BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

SOUTH DANVERS
POST OFFICE.

GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.

MAILS CLOSE
At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.
MAILS DUE
At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.

Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.

F. POOLE, P. M.
South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

GAYLE & CO.,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
DEALERS IN
Flour, Grain and Produce,
Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of
Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.
PHILLIPS WHARF, - - - - - Salem.

Eastern Railroa

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1 leave the Eastern Railroad Stat street, Salem, daily. (Sundays except

For Lynn and Boston, 6½, 7½, 8¼, 9, 1 4 40, 6¾ p. m.
Beverly, 8¼ am., 1, 3½, 4¾, 5¾, 6¾, 7½ p
W. Beach, Man'r, Gloucester, and Re 1, 4¾ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8½ a m., 1
Amesbury, 8¼ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portsmouth, 8¼ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portland, 8¼ a m., 3½ p m.

AND FOR SALEM, F
Portland, 8¾ a m., 2½ p m.
Portsmouth, 7½, *11½ a m., *5 p m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9.40 a m., 5.20 p m.
Newburyport, 8, 10 a m., 12 m, 5.45 p
Ipswich, 8.25, 10.25 a m., 12 25, 6.10 p
Gloucester, 7.25, 10 10 a m., 3 55 p m.
Manchester, 7.40, 10.25 a m., 4.10 p m.
Beverly, 7.05, 8.05, 8 50, 10.50 a m., 12
Lynn, 8, 9, 11 a m., 12¾, 3, 4¼, 5½, 6½, 7
Boston, 7¼, 8¾, 10¼ a m., 12¼, 2½, 4, 5, 6

*Or on arrival from the East.
†On Wednesdays this train leaves B via Saugus Branch; and on Saturday

MARBLEHEAD BRAN
Marblehead for Salem, 7, 8, 8¾, 9¾ a m.
Salem for Marblehead, 8½, 9.25, 11½ a

SOUTH READING BRA
Trains leave the South Reading De
Boston at 7, 9.40 a m., 2.25, 4 55 p m
Boston for Salem, 7 a m, 12 m, 2¾,
South Danvers for Salem, 7¾ a m., 1

ESSEX RAILROAD.
Leave Salem for Lawrence and way a m., 4¾ p m.
Lawrence for Salem, 8½ a m., 12.40, 6¼
Danvers for Salem, 9.12 a m., 1.22, 6.57
J. PRESCOTT, Su
Boston, November 10, 1862.

Salem and Lowell Rai

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 18 run as follows:
Leave Lowell for Salem, 7.25 a m., ar
Leave Salem for Lowell, *9 40 a m. a
Passengers are not allowed to carry $50 in value, and that personal, unless and an extra amount paid. Season tic title the holder to take baggage.
*Freight Train with passenger car at
F. H. NOURSE, Local Sup
November 7, 1862.

SPEED, COMFORT AND SA

FOR NEW Y
Norwich Steamboat
The only Boats Landing at J

CABIN Passage, $4.00; Deck Passage new and elegant sixteen wheel cars boat express train leave the Boston Railroad Station, Albany Street., at 5 connecting with the new steamers, (bu for this line,) CITY OF BOSTON, C Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; C YORK, Capt. JEWETT, Tuesdays, Th Saturdays which (before proceeding t No. 39 North River,) will touch at the New Jersey Railroad at Jersey City, cepted) thus enabling Southern Passen sure connections with the First Southe at the same time avoid the great anno Ferry and Hack transportation in the cr of New York. This insures ample tim fast before the trains leave. Conductor LER and W. F. BARTON accompany th through.

Tickets, Berths and Staterooms secure road Station, and at the Office of the I ington Street, Boston.

Through tickets to Philadelphia, Ba Washington can be had at 79 Washingto ton. WM. DICKEY, Je
Boston, January 7, 1863.

SUMMER ARRANGE

CHANGE OF T

—TO—
LYNN & BOST
BY OMNIBUS AND HORS

On and after THURSDAY, June
W. F. BURNHAM

Line of Omnibuses will leave the Boston Omnibus Office, No. 6 Allen's South Danvers, passing down Ma through Washington street to Lynn,
Leave South Danvers at 7.50 A 12.50 and 4.50 P. M.
Leave Lynn at 10 A. M., and 6 1-2 P. M.
Horse Cars leaving Scollay's Build street, Boston, at 8.15 A. M., 1.15 ar M., will meet the Omnibus at Lyn above named hours, to take passenger Danvers.

Sunday Arrangements.

Leave S. Danvers at 7.50 a.m., and Leave Lynn at 9.30 a.m., and 6.30
Cars leave Scollay's Building, Bosto the Omnibuses in Lynn for South D 8.15 a m. and 5.15 p.m.
Through Tickets to and from Bost had of the Drivers and Conductors.
Tick

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 28, 1863. NO. 4

SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD
ned every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's build th Danvers Square, by HARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor. ITCH POOLE, Editor.
—Two Dollars a year.
TISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM C. CHOATE,
orney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
orney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
esidence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
rney and Counsellor at Law,
Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
torney and Counsellor at Law,
CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
neys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM,
S B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
orney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
ney and Counsellor at Law,
ce, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.

ms against the Government for Bounty Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
MAIN STREET, SO. DANVERS SQUARE.
chanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
SURGEON DENTIST,
8 Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market
Residence—No. 57 Washington street.
ft—ly

F. POOLE,
INSURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
ily Groceries, Flour & Grain,
ARD WARE AND CROCKERY,
dy Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods,
Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
L. NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
kery, China and Hardware; Paper Hangings, Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.
32 Front street, Lawrence Place,
013 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
All orders promptly and faithfully executed.
12-1y

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
st Inaia Goods, Country Produce
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
old and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
Rooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger.
164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
WINDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
mch6-tf

WALKING MADE EASY.
DR. P. KENISON,
CHIROPODIST,
215 Washington St., Boston,
res Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails, Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

HEYLINGBERG'S
Hair Dressing Saloon,
24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.
TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Champooing,	15 cts.
Champooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more new Quarterly Customers taken.
In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks will be sold for one dollar.
South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,
ADVERTISING AGENT
or the principal New England Newspapers, remains the old stand. No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you ill find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, nd Advertising.
Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

Original Poetry.

THE DYING SOLDIER.

'Twas early day; the sun rose bright
And shed over earth his golden light,
On a battle field where a soldier lay
With his young life ebbing fast away.

Above his brow the bright hair lay,
Looking like gold in the sun's first ray;
And his pale lips murmur now and then
As he lies there, with other wounded men.

He is dreaming now of some shady nook,
Of his home, and the trout and the running brook;
And he thinks he sees his sister smile,
Sitting again on the orchard stile.

But now a faint step sounding near
Has greeted the soldier's listening ear;
His eye lights up, for he wishes to tell
Some message for those he loves so well.

Oh, say, will you carry some word for me
To the homestead brown, 'neath the old elm tree?
The quick, light step sounds nearer still,
And a voice replies, "My friend, I will."

My mother! Oh tell her her boy died well;
On the field where brave men fought he fell;
That he bravely yielded his young life up,
And she calmly must drink of the bitter cup.

And tell my sister I fought and fell
In the cause she has always loved so well;
I was freedom's son, and proud as such,
And I do not count the gift too much.

To that other, bear this lock of hair,
And ask her always the gift to wear
'Till we meet again on that blessed shore
Where parting shall never be heard of more.

* * * * * * * * *

The sun went down in glory bright,
And pale stars shone on the brow of night;
The grass with the heavy dew was wet,
But the wounded soldier lay there yet.

No faint flush stained the cheek so fair,
No motion stirred the waving hair,
For the last faint spark of life had fled
And the soldier was numbered among the dead.

Tunbridge, Vermont, Jan., 1863. H. S. J.

THE YANKEE VOLUNTEER.

SONG COMPOSED BY A VOLUNTEER IN THE 23D REGIMENT, MASS. VOLS.

Kind friends if you will listen
To this my little ditty,
I'll tell you my experience
Since leaving Boston city.
Since I left the folks at home—
Mother and sisters dear—
And 'listed in the 23d
As a Yankee Volunteer.

'Twas down to Roanoke
We made the rebels flit,
And taught old Col. Shaw
That Yankee boys had grit;
And when the rebs. skedaddled
You ought to hear us cheer—
They couldn't stand the bullets
Of the Yankee Volunteer.

And when the day was over
And all our work was done,
We had the rebels whipped,
And bagged them, every one.
They looked upon us Yankees
With wonder and with fear—
They wished they'd never seen
A Yankee Volunteer.

We stopped at Roanoke's isle
Recruiting on hard tack,
And then we left for Newbern
To try another hack;
There we met the rebs. again,
I suppose you all did hear,
And then we gave another sample
Of the Yankee Volunteer.

When'er our Country calls us
You'll find we never lag,
But rally round our banner,
The dear old starry flag;
We'll on to death or victory
Without a thought of fear—
In peace, the quiet citizen—
In war, a Volunteer.

THE POET JUSTIFIED.

A reply to a certain "fair," who once said that all men were deceivers, particularly poets. Respectfully inscribed to Miss M——Y H. N——N, of Denton, Md.

To think that a poet must feel what he writes
Is indeed a most grievous mistake,
For he who his sonnets to virtue indites
May be at the best but a rake.

The lover who sighs at some fair maiden's feet,
Like a furnace of flame will cool off just as fast,
'Till a chance may occur for the fool to repeat
To another the words that he breathed to the last.

'Tis woman hath taught us these tricks of deceit,—
From her we've the lesson learned only too well,—
And man's like a monkey, and apt to repeat
The tricks and the lies which she taught him to tell.

The smile on her lip but resembles the hue
Of the rose where the bee hath just pinioned her wing,
'Tis distance that lends all its charm to the view,
And distance it is that concealeth the sting.

Oh! Constancy thou art a jewel indeed,
And like thy twin sister, exceedingly rare,—
Though of the two sexes, sure all must concede
Thou art sadly deficient in that called the "fair."

And sure if the lover with words may deceive,
Why may not the poet do so with his pen?
What else have these damsels a right to believe (When they do the same) of these "treacherous men?"
ROCHESTER.

THE FAREWELL.

BY C. F. HOBART.

Fare thee well!—the word is spoken—
Lips have breathed the last adieu—
Hearts have bled o'er pleasures broken,
Pure as friendship ever knew;
Fare thee well—may absence find thee
Still the same as now thou art—
Treasured thoughts of those behind thee
Dwell forever near thy heart.

Looks lit up with hope may meet thee
In some far and stranger-land;
Welcome smiles of pleasure greet thee,
Eyes of love and voices bland,—
But when brightly pass before thee
All the joys of Fashion's train—
Memory's magic charm steal o'er thee,
Bear thee to thy home again.

Hearts bring agony to-morrow,
Whence to-day their solace springs—
Cheequer'd scenes of light and sorrow
Mark the course of human things.
Soon, alas! the fairest roses
Lie disrobed of all their bloom—
And life's pageantry discloses
But a pathway to the tomb.

Spirit-sentinels protect thee,
Till thy final hour may come;
Faith unwavering then direct thee
To thine amaranthine home—
Where, with songs of joy and gladness,
Friends may walk the pearly shore,
And the parting word of sadness
Stir the depths of grief no more.

Selected.

FEMALE COURAGE.

A striking trait of courage in a lady forms the subject of conversation at present in the French metropolis. Madame Aubry lives in a solitary chateau, not far from the town of———. The family consisted only of Mr. Aubry, his wife, a child about a year old, and one maid-servant. In the little town, every light is out by ten o'clock, and of course the most perfect solitude reigns at that hour in their houses, which lies off the road, and is completely hidden by trees. One night last winter, Madame Aubry was sitting alone, reading. Her husband had left her in the morning to visit a friend some six or eight miles off and, as he had expected to bring home a considerable sum of money, he had taken the unusual precaution of arming himself with a pair of pistols. At about six o'clock, the lady went up to her room to put her child to bed. Her apartment was a large room on the first floor, filled up on one side by an old fashioned chimney, and on the other by a deep and spacious alcove, near which stood her infant's cradle. The night was a gloomy one, cold and dark, and every now and then a dash of rain beat against the gothic windows. The trees in the garden bowed to the wind, and their branches came sweeping against the casement; in short it was a night in which the solitude of the mansion was more complete and melancholy than usual. Madame Aubry sat down on a low chair near the fire, which by its sudden flashes, cast an uncertain light over the vast apartment, throwing its antique carvings and mouldings by turns into brighter relief or deeper shade. She had her child on her lap, and just finished preparing it for the cradle. She cast her eyes toward the alcove to see if the cradle was ready to receive its little occupant, whose eyes were already closed. Just then the fire flashed up brightly, and threw a strong light on the alcove, by which the lady distinguished a pair of feet, cased in heavy nailed shoes, peeping out under the curtain in front of the bed. A thousand thoughts passed through her mind in an instant. The person hidden there was a thief, perhaps an assassin—that was clear. She had no protection, no aid at hand. Her husband was not to return till eight at soonest, and it was now only half-past six. What was to be done? She did not utter a single cry, nor even start on her seat. The servant girl probably would not have had such presence of mind. The robber probably meant to remain quiet where he was till midnight, and then seize the money her husband was to bring with him; but if he should find that he was discovered, and that there was no one in the house but two women, he would not fail to leave his hiding-place, and secure their silence by murdering them. Besides, might not the girl be the robber's accomplice! Several slight causes of suspicion occurred to her at once, and all these reflections passed through her mind in less time than we take to write them. She decided at once what she should do, which was, to send the girl out of the room.

"You know that dish my husband likes," said she, without betraying her alarm by the least change in the tones of her voice, "I ought to have remembered to have it got ready for his supper. Go down stairs, and see about it at once."

"Does not madame require my help here, as she generally does?"

"No, no, I will attend to everything myself. I know my husband would not be pleased, if he was to come home after his ride, in such bad weather, and not find a good supper ready."

After some delays, which increased in the lady's mind that suspicion she was forced to conceal, the girl left the room. The noise of her steps on the stairs died away gradually, and Madame Aubry was left alone with her child, with those two feet, motionless at their post, still peeping out under the curtain. She kept by the fire, with her child on her lap, continuing to caress it and sing to it, almost mechanically. The child cried: It wanted to be put to bed, but its cradle was near the alcove—near those dreadful feet, and how could she find courage to go near them! At last, she made a violent effort. "Come, my child," said she, and got up. Hardly able to stand erect, she walked toward the alcove, close to the robber. She put the child in the cradle, singing it to sleep as usual. We may imagine, how much inclination she had to sing When the child fell asleep, she left it, and resumed her seat by the fire. She did not dare to leave the room; it would arouse the suspicions of the robber, and the girl, probably his accomplice. Besides, she could not bear the thought of leaving her child, even if it was to purchase her own safety. The clock pointed to seven. An hour yet, a whole hour, before her husband would come!—Her eyes were fixed on those feet, which threatened her with death at any moment, with a sort of fascination. The deepest silence reigned in the room. The infant slept quietly. We do not know whether even an Amazon, in her place, would have been bold enough to try a struggle with the robber. Madame Aubry had no arms; besides, she made no claims to valor, but only to that passive courage, founded on reflection, which is far the rared of the two. Every few minutes she would hear a noise in the garden.—In that noise, a ray of hope shone on her for a moment—it was her husband, it was deliverance! But no—it was only the wind and rain, or the shutters creaking. What an age every minute seemed to be. Oh, heaven! the feet moved!—Does the thief mean to leave his hiding-place! No. It was only a slight, probably involuntary movement, to ease himself by changing his position. The clock strikes—only once, it is the half hour only—and the clock is too fast, besides! How much anguish, how many silent prayers in these trying minutes! She took up a book of devotion and tried to read, but her eyes would wander from the page to fix on those heavy shoes. All at once a thought arose that chilled her to the very heart. Suppose her husband should not come! The weather is stormy, and he has relatives in the village he went to. Perhaps they have persuaded him it was unsafe to travel at night with so large a sum of money about him: perhaps they have forced him, with friendly violence, to yield to their urgent invitation to wait till morning. It is striking eight—and nobody comes. The idea we have alluded to, appears to her more and more probable. After two hours of such agony, the unhappy lady, whose courage had been kept up by the hope of final rescue, feels her strength and hope fail her.—Soon she hears a noise under the window, and listens, doubtfully. This time she is not mistaken. The heavy outer-door creaks on its hinges, and shuts with clamor; a well-known step is heard on the stairs, and a man enters—a tall, stout man. It is he, it is he. At that moment, if he had been the worst of husbands, he would have been perfection in his wife's eyes. He had only taken off his wet cloak and put away his pistols, and delighted at again seeing what he loves most on earth, opens his arms to embrace his wife. She clasps him convulsively, but in a moment, recovering her self-possession, puts her finger on his lips, and points to the two feet peeping out under the curtain.

If Mr. Aubry had been wanting in presence of mind, he would not have deserved to be the husband of such a woman. He made a slight gesture to show he understood her, and said aloud. "Excuse me, my dear, I left the money down stairs. I'll be back in two minutes."—Within that time he returned, pistol in hand. He looks at the priming, walks to the alcove, stoops, and while the forefinger of his right hand is on the trigger, with the other hand, he seizes one of the feet, and cries in a voice of thunder, "Surrender, or you're a dead man!"—He drags by the feet into the middle of the room a man of most ill-favored aspect, crouching low to avoid the pistol which is held within an inch of his head. He is searched, and a sharp dagger found on him. He confesses that the girl was his accomplice, and had told him Mr. Aubry would bring a large sum home that night. Nothing remains now, but to give them over to the authorities.—Madame Aubry asked her husband to pardon them, but the voice of duty is louder than that of pity. When Mr. Aubry heard from his wife all she had gone through, he could only say, "Who would have thought you so courageous!" but in spite of her courage, she was attacked that night with a violent nervous fever, and did not get over her heroism for several days.

RAGS.

RAG.—Any piece of cloth torn from the rest; a tattered cloth, torn or worn until its texture is destroyed.—WEBSTER.

As the great increase in the price of paper is something that interests every person, and especially those who take (and pay for) newspapers, we have drawn from various sources a few facts in relation to the chief materials used in its manufacture, which some of your readers may be willing to peruse. We do not pretend to exhaust the subject, neither can we claim originality for all that we have written; but have merely strung together a few facts gleaned from the well-thumbed volumes on our book shelf, with remark of our own.

Although various fibrous substances have been made available in the coarser qualities of paper, rags are still reckoned indispensable to the production of really good white paper; and while the consumption of that article has increased until it has attained gigantic proportions, the production of the staple article required in the manufacture has not kept pace with it; and we now behold society, as a whole, at a loss for, and anxious to procure a supply of, that which any single individual usually considers it for his benefit to be without—rags and tatters.

We merely desire to show some of the means by which rags are collected together, and also the processes which they must pass through before conversion into paper.

THE RAG MERCHANT

is an every day apparition in the streets of our cities, and his cry of "R-a-g-s! R-a-g-s!" is "familiar in our ears as household words." The itinerant dealer in tin-ware, etc., traveling through the country towns, with his raw-boned steed and peculiar wagon, exchanging his "custom made" (?) utensils for the contents of the good wife's rag-bag, is also one of the old familiar faces of our youth. Those who visit Boston early in the morning may have noticed numbers of most unamiable looking hags, with bag on bag, hurrying along the streets, snatching bits of paper, cloth, etc., and occasionally stopping at a barrel of ashes, and thrusting their skinny arms up to the shoulder in the contents. These, as well as the two classes before mentioned, belong to the rag-gathering fraternity, as represented in the United States; but they bear little resemblance to others in the same business in foreign parts, and would hardly, we think, after viewing the portrait of his French or Italian co-laborer, claim him as a craftsman.

THE CHIFFONIERS.

Early risers in Paris cannot fail to notice numbers of wild looking men and women, who travel along the sidewalk, keeping one eye on the gutter and the other sharply examining the sidewalk. These are the chiffoniers, or rag-pickers. They walk quickly, but nothing escapes their observation. Each stray piece of paper, cloth, twine, iron, etc., which comes in their way, is seized upon by means of a sharp stick with an iron hook on one end, and transferred to the bag which they carry, with great dexterity. Has a pile of rubbish been thrown out, the chiffonier with a few dexterous thrusts of his stick explores it, extracts all of value to himself, and passes on. Dirty, begrimed, with his face furrowed and wrinkled, he plies his trade, wearing an old slouched hat, (if any,) from beneath which his ferret eyes gleam with a strange brightness. The chiffonier forms one of the most picturesque institutions of the social system in Paris, and is a frequent character in romances and plays. Some years ago, trouble arose between them and the Parisian police, caused by certain municipal regulations, ordering the refuse of the streets to be conveyed away in carts, whereby the trade of the rag-pickers was seriously curtailed. The chiffoniers could not "see it," and the obnoxious regulation was finally revoked. There are, it is stated, between four and five thousand of the fraternity in Paris; and their earnings amount to from 15 to 31 cts. per day, each. But little real information can be obtained from them as to their income; and, except the police, who know everything about everybody in Paris, no one can give the statistics of their trade.

So minute and extensive is the search for rags in France, where everything is systemized, that there are few houses in the land not visited at least once or twice a year by the indefatigable collector of chiffons. The value of the rags gathered annually is estimated at about ten millions of dollars. What a huge rag-bag!

IN ENGLAND,

rags are bought by dealers, similar to the "junk dealers" of our cities; and they sometimes hang out a large sign, representing the benefits to be derived from selling one's old clothes at the "original" shop. Sometimes they portray a family dining off a huge turkey and plum pudding; or else a woman arrayed in new and splendid dress, all obtained by selling the contents of the family rag-bag at the aforesaid shop. The proprietors seldom collect their stock themselves, but buy all brought to them, whether honestly obtained or stolen; and their reputation is not very good.

In order to introduce a system into the business, and at the same time to furnish employment for a large number of boys who roam the streets of London in idleness, steeled in wickedness, or to become so, sooner or later, it is proposed to form a brigade of carefully chosen boys, to be called the "Rag Collecting Brigade of London Ragged Schools," who, under proper superintendance, will be employed in calling at stores, houses and offices, to purchase, according to a regulated tariff of prices, the refuse material offered for sale. They will be uniformed, and provided with covered trunks, scales and receipt books, and pay ready money for their purchases. They will be similar to the "Shoe Black Brigade," established in 1851, and which has earned since then $58,000; and earned last year over $22,000, representing the polishing of no less than 1,119,320 pairs of boots! It is estimated that nine-tenths of what these boys would collect is now wasted, as few people like to trade with the shop-keepers above mentioned; and if the plan meets with success, it will be of immense advantage to the paper and staple manufacturing trades. To work London alone, on this plan, 1000 trucks and 5,000 boys might be employed. Think of that! five thousand boys plucked from idleness, and permanently established in industry. Success to the plan, we say.

OTHER SOURCES OF SUPPLY.

Large quantities of rags are collected in Italy and other countries of Europe, besides France and England, but we have no accounts at hand of the method of their collection.

PREPARING THE RAGS FOR PAPER.

Supposing our rags to have passed through various hands, and finally arrive at a paper mill, they are carefully unpacked.

The quality of the paper depends greatly on that of the garments worn in the country where it is made. If they are coarse and brown, the rags and the paper made from them will be so too. When received at the paper mill, the rags are sorted according to quality, for if different qualities were ground at the same engine, the finest and best parts would be ground and carried off before the coarser were reduced to pulp. For fine paper hems and seams are kept apart, and coarse from fine; even the degree of wear is attended to. The pulp produced from imperfectly sorted rags has a cloudy appearance, from some of it being less ground than the rest, and the paper will be uneven in thickness. The dealers sort rags into five qualities, they are known as Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5. No. 1, or superfine, consisting wholly of linen, is used for the finest writing paper. No. 5 is canvas, used for inferior paper. A certain kind of paper, used for bank notes, is made from silk rags. There is also rag-bagging, or the sacks in which the rags are packed; also cotton rags of all colors, but blue ones, which are usually kept for blue paper. Common papers are made from rag bagging and cotton rags. On being unpacked, the rags are put into a duster, which is a cylinder about four feet in diameter and five feet long, covered with a wire net, and inclosed in a box to confine the dust. The cylinder, being filled with rags, is made to rotate rapidly, and a large amount of dust is taken out. The rags are then sorted, according to their fineness, into superfine, fine, middling and coarse.—They are then washed in hot water and alkali by machinery, and if not white, they are bleached with chlorine, which restores many varieties to their original whiteness. All that remains now is a mass of snow-white rags, which the mill, made very strong, speedily reduces to a body of liquid "pulp," as it is called, ready to be made into paper. Here, as rags, their mission ends.—Another and more useful career opens before them, when as paper they again appear in the world. The material of the sheet on which the Pioneer—the reader holds in his hand—is printed, a few months ago, perhaps, hung with others from the back of some mendicant, fluttering along the street, or commenced its career in the lining of some dress, in all its purity of white and stiffness; gradually descending through the various grades of usefulness, until fished up from the gutter, or purchased from the rag-dealer, to meet others at the paper mill who had crossed oceans to arrive at the same destination. The processes of making paper are many and interesting; but we were writing about rags, and having reached the last scene of their "strange eventful history," the pen and scissors fall from our reluctant grasp. So mote it be.—Chelsea Telegraph and Pioneer.

THE USE OF PAPER IN JAPAN.—It was wonderful to see the thousand useful as well as ornamental purposes to which paper was applicable in the hands of these industrious and tasteful people; our papier-mache manufacturers as well as the continental ones, should go to Yeddo to learn what can be done with paper. We saw it made into material so closely resembling Russian and Morocco leather, and pig-skin, that it was very difficult to detect the difference. With the aid of lacker varnish and skilful painting, paper made excellent trunks, tobacco bags, cigar cases, saddles, telescope cases, the frames of microscopes, and we even saw and used excellent water-proof coats made of simple paper, which did keep out the rain and were as supple as the best Macintosh. The Japanese use neither silk nor cotton handkerchiefs, towels or dusters, paper in their hands serves as an excellent substitute. It is soft, thin, though, of a pale yellow color, very plentiful and very cheap. The inner walls of many a Japanese apartment are formed of paper, being nothing more than printed screens; their windows are covered with a fine translucent description of the same material; it enters largely into the manufacture of nearly everything in the Japanese household; and we saw what seemed to be balls of twine, which were nothing but long shreds of tough paper rolled up. If a shop-keeper had a parcel to tie up, he would take a strip of paper, roll it quickly between his hands, and use it for the purpose, and it was quite as strong as the ordinary string used at home. In short, without paper, all Japan would come to a dead lock; and, indeed, lest by the arbitrary exercise of his authority, a tyrannical husband should stop his wife's paper, the sage mothers-in-law invariably stipulate in the marriage settlement, that the bride is to have allowed to her a certain quantity of paper.

DIDN'T WANT TO LIVE.—A newly married couple arrived in an eastern city recently, and took lodgings at one of the fashionable hotels, to pass away that propitious season—alas, to brief!—known as the honeymoon. Their happiness was the cause of envy amongst many, for not a cloud appeared to overshadow the enjoyments of the passing hours, until the doctor was sent for in great haste, to relieve the lady of a dose of laudanum which threatened to terminate her life.—The skill of the doctor saved the wife, and after the bride returned to consciousness, she was asked what motive could have induced her to commit such a wicked act. She replied: "I saw a lady wink at my husband at the table, and I didn't want to live."

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 28, 1863.

THE NINETEENTH REGIMENT.

Perhaps no regiment in the army—certainly none in Massachusetts—has seen more hard service than our Nineteenth. It has been in fourteen pitched battles, to say nothing of scouting and picket duty, and skirmishes innumerable. Wherever there is a movement you are sure to find it stated that the Mass. Nineteenth was in the advance. As might be expected, all this hard fighting has told fatally on the ranks of the regiment. It was in the advance at the battle of Fredericksburg, and crossed the river to clear out the rebel sharpshooters from the city, who were picking off our bridge builders. It was in the terrible slaughter of Saturday, and it was on that day that our neighbor, Mr. H. COLMAN FARRINGTON received his wound, which gave him an honorable discharge from the service. His wound was in his right leg, the bullet striking the shin bone, and actually splitting the leaden ball into two unequal parts. The bone was shattered, and pieces of it have come from the wound. After Mr. FARRINGTON received this wound he walked two miles, with two rifles for crutches, before he could find a place in an ambulance. In all his term of service before receiving his wound he did not lose a day from illness of any kind. We are glad to know that his wound is improving, although but slowly.

BEHAVIOR AT LECTURES.

The admirable institution of Lyceum lectures should be held in great esteem by women. Lectures are valuable for the ideas they suggest, the means of knowledge they point out, and the information they convey. A lecture on the life and writings of some great man sets many of the audience to reading his works, and they can better understand his writings. A lecture on any branch of natural history leads people to examine specimens and read books on the subject. But the best means of gaining advantage from lectures is to take notes of them from memory.

Another advantage is, that it affords opportunity for learning to respect the rights of strangers, and to behave courteously and delicately to all. It should be understood that all who attend lectures meet on terms of perfect equality. None can claim certain seats because they have before occupied them, nor the right to hinder others from hearing because the subject is so familiar that they had rather whisper than listen—nor the right to go in late and disturb the audience. All this is extremely offensive and ill-bred, and no real lady would ever be guilty of such conduct.

In no country is it more important to cultivate good manners than in our own, and yet there is great deficiency of care and instruction in this particular. Many a young girl grows up without ever being told, that, to laugh audibly in public or in crowded assemblies, is not good manners—that, presenting herself at the end of a crowded seat and waiting till some gentleman feels obliged to give her his, is very ill-bred.

When the lecture is over, be careful that your voice is not heard above the gentle hum around you, either in laughter or conversation. Delicacy and refinement require that a young lady should never make herself conspicuous in a public assembly.

ROWDYISM.

It is high time for our authorities to take notice of the many acts of rowdyism and disorder which are becoming too common in our streets. Let some two three of these rude boys be taken before a magistrate and made an example of to deter others, and a good work will be accomplished. We call the attention of our police to the following By-Law of this town. The evil is now so great as to be insufferable. People have a right to pass along the street without insult, and the laws should protect them. Not only in the street, but at our own homes we are not free from these precious rascals:

SECTION 1. No persons shall assemble in a disorderly manner in any street or near any dwelling house, within the town, in the night time; and no person shall be guilty of any rude or disorderly behavior, or use indecent, profane or insulting language in any street or near any dwelling house or other building, to the annoyance or disturbance of any person, under a penalty of not less than one dollar, nor more than ten dollars, for every such offence.

NEW PORTRAIT OF WASHINGTON.

Many of our readers have doubtless heard of the fortunate discovery by Mr. Daniel Nichols of Salem, of an original profile portrait of Washington. It was found among the effects of Benj. Goodhue, the maternal ancestor of Mr. Nichols and the original has his endorsement of its correctness, and of the time it was taken. This portrait has also the verification of the venerable JOSIAH QUINCY and others, now living, who once looked upon the features of Washington.

Of the portrait itself we think it will strike almost every person who examines it as their beau-ideal of WASHINGTON.—It exhibits him as we have always been taught to regard him, dignified, firm, serene and venerable, and with such an individuality that no other man resembles him. We are glad that Mr. Nichols has complied with the many requests made to him to multiply copies and place them within the reach of all who would have a faithful portrait of the Father of his Country.

Mr. Nichols has appointed Mr. JOHN D. HOWARD as his agent for their destribution in South Danvers, who will take pleasure in showing the copies to all who would be interested.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.

We have received the "Register and Circular" of the State Normal School in Salem. We were surprised to find that, while other towns, smaller and more distant from the school, sent numbers of pupils, there is only one name from South Danvers. This is the name of Miss AUGUSTA F. DANIELS.

We hope another term will show a good list of South Danvers names in the Junior Class. The term commences on Wednesday, the 25th of February.—This school, under the devoted care of Prof. CROSBY is affording a thorough education to its successive classes of pupils, and we would be glad to see a large number of our young ladies take advantage of its means of cultivation of the mind, and its practical usefulness.

SHIN-PLASTERS.

MR. EDITOR,—In your paper of the 14th I read a store-keeper's lament on people refusing to take shin-plaster currency. Will you publish the following from the Rochester Union of N. H., and oblige a subscriber:

"Unless the business public take prompt action to abate the nuisance, the community every where will be overrun with worthless shinplasters. Every day new issues appear, and the number is legion already. Engravers in New York are sending agents through the country selling shinplasters by the thousand, which are in imitation of the government postage currency. Those who purchase the shinplasters, which are in form of a promissory note, have only to date, number, sign and put in circulation.

Some of the shinplasters now circulating, if closely scrutinized, will be found to be made payable in goods, and not in current bank notes. We have only one before us made payable in goods, and not in current bank notes. We have one before us made payable at Utica next July, in strawberries, if the crop does not fail. Such trash is taken and circulated."

AN OLD SOLDIER AND PRINTER.

I met the other day a very remarkable man—by which I mean a man, whom, having seen, you very naturally remark on. His name is Abraham William Scowell, born in Harwich, England, Nov. 7, 1768. He was a captain in the English army in the 7th Zouave Regiment 19 years, 11 months and 4 days—I state things as he states them—was at the battle of Corrunna and present at the burial of Sir John Moore—was all through the Peninsula war and at the battles of Salamanca, Badajos, Vimera, Victoria and Cuidadregio and of Waterloo. At Waterloo he had his ankle bone shot away—was put into the hospital at Brussels—thence returned to England and discharged. At Waterloo he saw Napoleon—says he was about a mile from him, and that the "Little Corporal" rode on a kind of platform drawn by four horses and so adjusted that the occupant could elevate himself at pleasure.

Abraham William Scowell is by trade a printer—served the regular apprenticeship (7 years) in the "King's Priuting Office"—then worked at his trade some 5 years and bought his Captain's commission, for which he paid 1,200 guineas. After his discharge from the army, he printed, as editor and proprietor, in Colchester, England, the "Colchester Gazette," till 1818, and in 1820 came to America, landing at Boston, where, with occasional absences, he has ever since lived, working until quite recently at his trade as a compositor. He is now in his 95th year and is said to be the oldest living printer in America. He is as hale and hearty as many men at 50—talks intelligently of what he has been through and seen—remembers names, dates, &c., and in the matter of orthography would not and need not yield the palm to any printer that lives.

He lives at 92 Union street, Boston, where, if any one chooses to see him, he can and be satisfied of the truth of the above and much more. If you call, reader, don't fail to give the hero printer and hero soldier a trifle. He won't ask it, but it can hardly be that he does not need it. He gave me his autograph which is as good a one as you often see, and much better. P.

OUR NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—Don't fail to peruse the new advertisements in this issue. ARCHER, ALMY, PEABODY, BROWNING & LONG and WALKER, are live men, and well deserve the large patronage they receive.

☞ Massachusetts has twenty-two regiments of soldiers in the army of the Potomac. It is natural that the report of another battle at Fredericksburg should awaken much excitement.

"THAT CATE!"

Exciting tales are told of late,
Occasioned by that rascal CATE,
Whose fame has spread both near and far,
For making such a great hurrah.
War cries have ceased, and nought is heard
Except the breeze that CATE has stirred:
And some do think in a few short years,
'Mid supplications, groans and fears,
That every banner in this State
Will bear the name of "DANIEL CATE."

In stores, where people congregate,
The only talk is that of CATE;
Old, wrinkled men, with silver hairs,
Have used his name with little care,
And advice they have given to many a son,
To beware of the course the wicked have run.
Old ladies knit by their fireside light,
And tell the same tales o'er every night;
Their purses are hid in some well-worn shoe,
And their wigs made fast lest CATE finds them, too.
Every book mislaid, every shawl or skate,
They know has been taken by wicked CATE;
Every bank book, or house bill, not lying round,
They know in CATE's wonderful chest can be found:
And things that have long passed away from the sight,
Will be laid to DAN CATE, whether wrong or right.
Young ladies in fright walk the gas-lighted street,
And in terror keep "mum," lest DAN CATE they should meet;
But we think 'tis a very good thing in its way,
As day-time is best their fine charms to display.
Little children are told if they stray from the gate,
They'll be carried away by the wicked man, CATE;
And the dear little ones when they go to their beds,
Cover up tightly their round, curly heads,
Breathe forth their prayers in a tearful strain,
Hoping that CATE "won't come again."

Now beware of these quiet, less talkative ones,
Their hearts are deceitful and oily their tongues,
And although we advise boys such habits to shun,
We cannot but think there are more rogues than one.
The stock at the watch-house is seen every day;
You can see every thing, and have nothing to pay,
(Mr. PINGREE presides, with politeness and ease),
And you then can depart just whenever you please.
His odd collection is also quite rare,
Consisting of everything used for wear;
Whatever one needed, they surely might find,
For he has everything to suit every one's mind.
And although in his chests there is found a great waste,
We know by his goods he's a man of great taste:
Some there are who their friends and relations might slight,
But he, like a man, served his all alike.
The good-natured Grocer he did not neglect,
He knew by his smile that he did not suspect.
His nutmegs and raisins were both very nice,
And in his own market would bring a great price.
The jeweler's crystals, so smooth and so clear,
Told their friends, Gold and Silver, to be of good cheer;
For soon light would dawn on their desolate way.
And their dark, dreary night would turn into day.
Knives, pencils and gold pens were scattered around,
And teapots and salvers there also were found;
Eye-glasses and thimbles, with goblets so fine,
Would display to advantage the old dated wine.
Salt cellars, and bitters all bottled with care,
And papers containing love tokens and hair.
Cravats of all colors, to fit any neck,
'Kerchiefs, socks, and white collars, without dirt or speck;
Apple-parers and silks, eye-salve, bodkins and wax,
Needles, tickets and pins, shoe thread, flannel and tacks;
Spy-glasses and pipes, mottoes, wafers and twine,
Railroad tickets, tobacco, and good currant wine;
Opera glasses and soap, linen spotless as snow,
Shot pouches and gloves, with nice brandy O!
Dippers, milk cans, and wash-bowls, so dazzlingly bright,
Told plainly to us of the Tinman's affright.
The Dry Goods Merchant, too, came in for a share,
For there lay his dress-goods packed up with great care;
And the Stationer, too, he well might rejoice,
As he gazed with delight on the books of his choice.
The "Compounder of Medicines" breathed forth a sigh,
As his powders and pills, so well known, met his eye;
And snuff boxes, fancy soaps, perfumes, in store,
Smiled faintly to see their kind owner once more.
Meanwhile the Confectioner looks with delight
On the many new things which at first met his sight,
And he says, with a smile, "O he thought not of me."
But wait, Mr. Sugar, and then you will see.
Here are gum drops, and lozenges, plums not a few,
Love mottoes, and hearts, candy, peppermints, too.
And the Baker may think he is out of his trail,
But here are his crackers, although very stale.
The Shoe Dealer then speaks aloud to himself,
"O where are my boots that I laid on this shelf?"
He cannot have got them—it is a mistake—
But lo! they are found in the trunk of DAN CATE.
He had no idea of a delicate foot.
For he took at his leisure a number five's boot,
And rubbers, shoes, anklets, arranged side by side,
Spoke volumes to others, devoid of all pride.
The Butcher then asked them to give him relief.
"Have you any sausages, veal, or fresh beef?"
You are late, Mr. Butcher, for such a rare feast,
Your beef took to legs, and brought up way "Down East."
In turn comes the Artist, with specimens rare,
And the Silversmith also comes in for a share,
Silver butter-knives, ladles, with tea-spoons marked "B,"
Table carvings, and rolling pins, tweezers, and ten.
Strengthening plasters, egg glasses, corn plasters, and tape,
The burgler's own tools, in every odd shape.
Alpacca, crochet needles, thread in a broil,
Mittens, guns, babies' rattles, and nice castor oil,
Pencils and chopping knives, cards by the pack,
And every thing down to a small jumping-jack.

Now who would have thought such a skilful young man,
Could deceive his friends so, and such mischief to plan;
We can only hope he may sometime get caught,
And accordingly dealt with as such people ought;
And 'ere we're in haste our friend DANIEL to take,
Be sure there's no window through which he'll escape.

Jan. 24, 1863. GEORGIE.

BATTLE OF HARTSVILLE, MO.

HEADQUARTERS, GEN. WARREN'S BRIGADE
January 16th, 1863.

DEAR WIZARD,—Your readers have, no doubt, ere this, been advised, per telegraph, of the sanguinary battle fought at Hartsville on Sunday last, between a portion of this brigade and the combined forces of Generals Marmaduke and McDonald, consisting of three brigades of the enemy; and, in my opinion, it was one of the fiercest and most stubbornly contested battles of this war, considering the disparity of numbers engaged. And how our little force of one thousand men with two pieces of artillery, fought successfully for six long hours against six thousand of the enemy, with five pieces of artillery, (much of which was far superior to our own,) and their choice of position, and compelling them to withdraw, leaving many of their dead (among whom were a Brig. General, two Colonels and a Major,) and wounded and one piece of artillery on the field, and to those unacquainted with the circumstances, it would seem wholly unaccountable; but, nevertheless, it is so, however miraculous it may appear. But now to particulars, and I will leave it for your readers to determine whether or no it deserves a place in the history of this great rebellion.

On the 9th inst., Gen. Warren received a copy of a telegram sent to Maj. Gen. Curtis by Gen. Brown, commanding at Springfield, informing him of the advance of a column of six thousand rebels towards Springfield. With that quick perception and cool judgment so characteristic of Gen. Warren, he ordered Col. Merrill, of the 21st Iowa, with five hundred infantry, four hundred cavalry and two pieces of artillery, by a forced march to Springfield, to reinforce that post. They reached Hartville at 6 o'clock A. M., Saturday, and learned that Col. Parker's column passed through the place, taking the Marshfield road. Halting here a short time, they pushed on some miles towards Springfield, and halted for the night. No indications of the enemy were observed until reveille was sounded at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, when scouts reported the advance of a heavy column of the enemy. Skirmishers were thrown out to dispute their advance, and our force drawn up in line-of-battle. Our position here was a most unfavorable one, and it would not do to risk an engagement, but soon brisk firing was heard, which told plainly that our skirmishers had found the enemy. But would he make a stand? If he did, our small force would be surrounded and cut to pieces; but no, he fell back in a southerly direction, which was, above all things, just what was wanted. It was now ascertained that the enemy's force was swinging round and moving on Hartville by the old Springfield road, while our force would enter the town by the new. The cavalry was now ordered to a trot, the artillery thrown to the front, and the infantry came up in gallant style at double-quick, but the rebels had beaten us in the chase, and already occupied at least two-thirds of the town, and the streets and bluffs were fairly black with their numbers. Our artillery was quickly thrown into position, and three shells thrown into their heavy columns was the first intimation they had of the presence of our force in town. The infantry was speedily drawn up in line-of-battle, while the cavalry was dismounted and placed on either flank, and to keep open our only line of retreat, the Lebanon road, our force was well sheltered by a growth of underbrush, and to make an effectual attack, the rebels must necessarily advance across the open space in front of our line. For nearly an hour the artillery did all the fighting, our shell and schrapnell doing fine execution in their crowded ranks, while every missile from the enemy's cannon passed over the heads of our boys, inflicting no injury except upon trees in the rear of our line. Gen. Marmaduke soon learned that this was a losing game, and tried another which was even more disastrous to him than the former, viz.: a cavalry charge of two regiments upon our whole line and artillery, led by Gen. Emmet McDonald. Our boys held their cover with great coolness until the enemy had advanced to within fifty yards of their position, when they stood up and delivered such deadly volleys of musketry, while at the same time our artillery hurled double shotted grape and cannister into their midst, that they broke and retreated in great disorder. In this charge alone they must have lost a hundred men, as double that number of horses were galloping away riderless; and here it was that Gen. McDonald and Col. Thompson were killed, and for a moment the enemy were thrown into confusion. Smaller bodies were now sent up, but our brave boys sent them howling back to the friendly shelter of a deep ravine along the eastern part of the town. But the enemy, although badly cut up, was not whipped, and again was a force sent up to take our guns; but with soldiers of Iowa, Illinois and Missouri before them, it could not be done, and again were they repulsed with great loss. They now occupied the Court House and dwellings of the town, and while there, the sharpshooters were making sad havoc in our ranks. Our artillery was now turned in that direction, and shell after shell went crushing through bricks and timber, which plainly told the survivers that it was no place for them, and except the dead and dying, the premises were soon vacated. In one room of the Court House were found nine of the enemy killed and wounded by the explosion of a single twelve pound shell, and in one dwelling house occupied by sharpshooters, were found two women badly wounded, a fact much regretted, but under the circumstances unavoidable. Thus was the fight kept up, our small force acting purely on the defensive, for to have disclosed our handful of men, would have been a complete annihilation of the small force. From the dispositions of the rebel forces, it was plainly evident that they expected our force would be strengthened from Springfield and this post, as they had thrown out a body of one thousand three miles on the Houston road, One thousand held the lower approach to Springfield; one thousand rested on the Gasconade, south of the town, covered with a high bluff, while three thousand were directly opposed to our force. Their artillery was in battery on a high bluff east of the town, and with practical gunners could have easily shelled our force from any position we might occupy within range.

At three o'clock, had we a reserve of five hundred men, we could have broken their line and compelled a retreat in disorder. But every man was required to hold our only avenue of retreat, where our communication was constantly threatened.

The enemy commenced falling back at about four o'clock, and the retreat became general at twilight. At this time our artillery ammunition was nearly spent, and Col. Merrill ordered the detachment to fall back toward Lebanon, with their whole transportation, which they did in perfect order, losing not even a musket. The 21st Iowa remained on the field two hours after the firing ceased, and the flag of truce, with the medical corps from the rebel army, was received by a detachment of the same regiment the following morning, where the surgeons of the opposing armies assisted each other in caring for the wounded sufferers.

The officers in command of the rebel forces were Gens. Marmaduke and McDonald, and Cols. Wymer, Parker, Thompson, Burbage, Shelby, Jeffrey and Campbell. And this was the force that one thousand men fought all of one afternoon, and successfully too; although there is no doubt but that the fear of an imaginary force approaching in their rear compelled their hasty withdrawal.

Our loss in killed and wounded, by the official report, is seventy-eight. Their's is large in officers and men, and must exceed three hundred killed and wounded, besides two lieutenants and twenty-seven privates, prisoners. Among the killed (and whose bodies were recognized at Hartville the day following the battle) are Gen. McDonald, Cols. Wymer and Thompson, Major Kirtley and Capt. Durpin, and two lieutenants—names not known—Col. Parker mortally wounded, since dead, and Capt. Crocker, and two other captains, severely wounded. One piece of their artillery was dismounted and abandoned and will be brought to this place to-morrow.

They retreated towards Houston, but on Monday changed their direction and moved rapidly south to the north fork of White River and are now probably at their rendezvous in Arkansas. Their intention, evidently, was to capture Springfield, Lebanon and Rolla, and to take Houston on their march south, but the promptness and foresight of Gen. Warren, who, at a glance, interpreted their plans, and intercepted their march at Hartville, where, if he did not defeat, would detain them until a concentration of troops could be made and their raid rendered harmless.

I cannot express upon paper my admiration of the conduct of our troops during the engagement, more than half of whom had never before been under fire, yet not an officer or soldier flinched or faltered, but stood up like veterans under the galling fire of the enemy. An army composed of such material cannot be whipped, and Gen. Warren has true cause to be proud of his brigade.

But I have written a longer letter than I intended, and will close, assuring you that, should anything more worthy of interest occur, you will again hear from "MYSELF."

HEADS OF EVERY DAY PEOPLE, ROUGHLY OUTLINED.

The Non-Paying Man.

No. 1.

Of our friend, the non-paying man, I must, at the very outset, speak in terms of heartfelt praise and commendation. He is emphatically a good fellow. Moreover, he is what we consider good company, all of us, when we "fore gather" with him;—his sprightliness, comicality and fun are intensely exhilerating and put us in a good humor with ourselves and the "rest of mankind." We prefer him, to go on a fishing excursion with, to "any other man," for he is the life and soul of the party. Endless are the jokes he cracks for our delectation; and all things outward and inward (unobserved by us) afford him material and minister to his propensity. He prints a broad grin upon our faces when he first puts his foot into the boat or wagon that is to convey us to the scene of our pleasures, and we retain the delightful contortion all through the day. If we are piously disposed, we thank Heaven that such men are created to enliven and cheer us in our hours of gloom and depression. The skies above us are brighter, the glassy bosom of the river is more placid, the fish, cognizant of his presence, bite more freely, and, when deftly fried or chowdered, are partaken of with infinitely more relish for the non-paying man's companionship.

The magical spell which our light-hearted friend's mirth weaves around us is not even broken, when, the trip ended, all hands are summoned to disburse the necessary assessment, and he discovers, to his consternation and grief, that he has left his purse at home in 'tother pants. All hasten to console him for the oversight, assuring him that it makes no difference now; to-morrow will do just as well, &c., &c., to all of which propositions our genial messmate assents with the most martyr-like resignation, and at the earnest request of the party, says no more about the affair thenceforth and forever.

Our non-paying friend, for whom, all the time you have in esteem, and in whose society you delight, owes you ten dollars, and has, for several years, held that interesting relationship with you. In the calm solitude of your chamber, where your thoughts are free and unconstrained by outward distraction, you make up your mind that he really does owe you the money, in regard to which, by a species of curious insanity, you sometimes have had disagreeable doubts, the results of his wizard blandishments. With determination on your brow, and and resolution in your heart, braeing yourself by a strong effort of will, power sufficient, as you think, for the occasion, you put your account in your pocket and set forth to seek and obtain your own. You descry our mutual friend in the distance, approaching, and he beholds you at the same time. Will he dodge you and bolt up some other street as though fleeing, like Bunyan's Pilgrim, from the "wrath to come?" By no means; on this particular occasion at least; he rather accelerates his pace and travels faster than yourself. On meeting, you plunge your fist, not into his face, but into your coat pocket for the bill, but he arrests the movement by launching at once into the news of the day. He congratulates you, himself, and the country on the capture of New Orleans, it may be, or the victory at Murfreesboro', or on Gen. Foster's late successful expedition to Goldsboro, paying, at the same time, an eloquent tribute to the bravery of our soldiers. His words are brimful of burning patriotism; they are delivered very rapidly, and there are a good many of them. He speaks feelingly and sympathetically of the sufferings and hardships endured by our troops in this war for Freedom, but does not fail to relieve the pathos of his talk by some very pungent hits at Jeff. Davis and other worthies of the secession faith. He makes light of the millions expended in this sacred cause, counting them but as the small dust in the balance, the leaves of the forest, or any other cheap thing, when compared to eternal truth and principle. You listen to him enraptured and exalted in soul, and before you have listened long, your own petty affairs sink into utter insignificance beside the great stake at issue in the land. You are heartily ashamed of your low and sordid designs on the pocket of our mutual friend, the non-paying man; you withdraw your hand empty, and part with him, secretly rejoiced that you have not committed yourself by an exposure of the document.

When solitude and reflection have restored your reason, and, making another essay, you again encounter our mutual friend, he will probably be in a tremendous hurry; he will scarcely have breath enough to give a hasty salutation. So thoroughly will you believe in the urgeney of his business that your spiritual eyes, sharpened by a sympathetic imagination, will behold the sweat upon his face, although, in reality, it is as dry as the dust of an Egyptian mummy; consequently you will consider it worse than sacrilege to detain him at such a time, and so let him pass unmolested.

But time would fail to describe all the Protean shapes which our mutual friend, being a man of genius in his peculiar line, can assume. He possesses a complete wardrobe of disguises and is ever ready to don one that will fit, on the slightest notice; but his every-day suit, over which the others are hastily drawn as occasion arises, is made up of a nearly entire repudiation of the agency of lucre in the ordinary transactions of life. He is almost a practical atheist in regard to its existence, prepared to say in his heart, "there is no money."

I would not be thought so absurd as to be understood to convey the idea that our friend, who, I ought to have said before, is a man of many, symbolizing a class, never, under any circumstances, handles or pays any cash. Such a thing would be almost impossible in the present structure of society. No doubt there are times when, like other sectarians, he proves recreant to the doctrines of his own creed; but such occasions are so rare that the most tenacious memory is unable to connect them in chronological order, neither do they invalidate the truth of the caption prefixed to this article. There must be times, also, when he gets cornered up and does not wilfully transgress the tenets of his church,—occasions on which we cannot impeach his consisteney. In a rude state of existence, such as some savage tribes still enjoy, wherein hunting and fishing are almost the only occupations, and the trophies of flood and field the only tangible representatives of wealth, our mutual friend would be an invaluable companion.—There he would be in his glory, and your soul would have delight in him.

Even now, and here, in the midst of civilization, he hath his uses, and does not pass through the world without doing some good as he goes, for he will impart freely to you of everything that he has that is of no particular value to himself, and is compounded of words and syllables. Make use of him, O friend, but don't abuse him! Beware how you inscribe his name on your ledger; let him not appear therein, unless your patience is as much superior to that of Job as Job's was to Gen. Jackson's. If you do happen, however, to be in this predicament, I have this conditional consolation to offer you, which is: that if he become your debtor in your early youth, and you are, luckily, a lineal descendant of Methuselah, the chances are strongly in your favor that you will recover your own in season to spend it before you start on your journey to the land of shadows.

As I intimated at the beginning, I have but roughly outlined our mutual friend, the non-paying man. A whole volume would be necessary, with an angel's pen, to do justiee to his manifold traits.

☞ Thursday next, Jan. 29, will be the last day for the exchange of postage stamps, at the Salem Post Office, from 7 1-2 o'clock, P. M.

IMPORTANT LETTERS.

In the McDOWELL Court of Inquiry at Washington, on Thursday last, Brig. Gen. HITCHCOCK was called to the stand and testified at length relative to the forces left for the protection of Washington when McCLELLAN's army started for the Peninsula. In the course of his testimony the following letter from the President of the United States to Gen. McCLELLAN was laid before the Court, which, but for the circumstances under which it was produced, it probably never would have seen the light. We print without comment, as a part of the history of the Peninsula campaign.

WASHINGTON, April 9th, 1862.

MAJOR GEN'L McCLELLAN:—My Dear Sir: Your dispatches complaining that you are not properly sustained, while they do not offend me, pain me very much. Blenker's division was withdrawn before you left here, and you know the pressure under which I did it, and as I thought, acquiesced in it, certainly not without reluctance. After you left I ascertained that less than 20,000 unorganized men were out a field battery, were all you designed to be left for the defence of Washington and Manassas Junction, and part of this even was to go to Gen. Hooker's old position. Gen. Banks' corps were designed for Manassas Junction, and were divided and tied up on the line of Winchester and Strasburg, and could not leave without again exposing the upper Potomac and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. This I presented or would present when McDowell and Summer were gone, a great temptation for the enemy to turn back from the Rappahannock and sack Washington. My explicit direction that Washington should, in the judgment of the commanders of corps, be left entirely secure had been neglected. It was precisely this that drove me to detain McDowell.

I do not forget that I was satisfied with your arrangements to leave Banks at Manassas Junction, but when that arrangement was broken up, and nothing was substituted for it, of course I was not satisfied. I was constrained to substitute something for it myself, and now allow me to ask you, do you really think I can permit the line from Richmond, via Manassas Junction to this city, to be entirely open, except what resistance could be presented by less than 20,000 unorganized troops? This is a question which the country will not allow me to evade.

There is a curious mystery about the number of troops now with you. I telegraphed you on the 6th, saying that you had over 100,000 men. I had just obtained from the Secretary of War a statement taken, as he said, from your own returns, making 120,000 men then with you and en route. You now say you will have but 85,000 men when all en route to you shall have reached you. How can this discrepancy of 35,000 be accounted for? As to General Wool's command, I understand that it is doing precisely what a like number of your own would have to do, if that command was away. I suppose the whole force which has gone forward to you is with you by this time, and I think this the precise time for you to strike a blow. By delay, the enemy will really gain on you, that is he will gain faster by fortifications and reinforcements than you can by reinforcements alone; and once more, let me tell you it is indispensable to you that you strike a blow. I am powerless to help. This you will do me justice to remember. I always wished you to go down the bay in search of a field instead of fighting at or near Manassas—as only shifting and not surmounting a difficulty—that I would find the same enemy and the same or equal intrenchments at either place. The country will not fail to note that the present hesitation to move upon an intrenched army is but the story of Manassas repeated.

I beg to assure you that I have never written or spoken to you in greater kindness of feeling than now, nor with a fuller purpose to sustain you, so far as in my most anxious judgment I consistently can. But you must act. Yours very truly,

A. LINCOLN.

NEW YORK, January 18th. The following appears among the documents submitted to the McDowell Court of Inquiry:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, Feb. 3, 1862.

MAJOR GEN. McCLELLAN,—Dear Sir:—You have distinct and different plans for a movement of the army of the Potomac; yours to be down the Chesapeake and up the Rappahannock to Urbana, and across the land to the terminus of the Railroad on the York river,—mine to move on a point to the Railroad South-west of Manassas. If you will give me satisfactory answers to the following questions, I shall gladly yield my plan to yours. 1st, Does not your plan involve a greatly larger expenditure of time and money than mine. 2d, Wherein is a victory more certain by your plan than by mine. 3d, Wherein is a victory more valuable by your plan than by mine. 4th, Would it not, in fact, be less valuable in this, that it would break no great line of the enemy's communications, while mine would. 5th, In case of disaster would not a safe retreat be more difficult by your plain than by mine? Yours truly,

A. LINCOLN.

WASHINGTON, January 18. The current error that payments to the army have been suspended, requires correction. Nearly $90,000,000 have been paid within the last ten days.—The payments of yesterday exceeded $1,000,000. These payments were all made under the law passed at the last session.

SUPERIOR COURT.—This court commenced its sessions in Salem last Monday. EDWARD W. JACOBS is juror for South Danvers, and Francis Noyes for Danvers.

☞ Contrary to expectations, the Court martial found Fitz John Porter guilty, and he has been cashiered and dismissed from the service.

OTHER FRENCH DEFEAT IN MEXICO.—It's ed that the French have again been re- l and driven back from before Puebla with loss. The French General Berthier's ard, 4000 strong, was completely surpris- 800 Mexican cavalry, and about 2000 of rench troops were killed and wounded.— al French officers were taken by the lasso ragged off. The prospects of the French exceedingly bad. They can get no sup- from the country, and they are surrounded most determined enemy, who watch every tunity to take advantage of them. No ch soldier can stray from his camp without lassoed and dragged off by some Mexican illa, who is on the watch for him.

☞ Another of our young braves, CHARLES NING of the 23d Regiment, who fell in the e of Whitehall, N. C., was borne to his resting place, from his father's house in this on Monday afternoon. It was the inten- of the family that the funeral should be tly private and no public notice was given eof. Nevertheless the house was crowded sympathizing friends and neighbors, and services, conducted by Rev. Messrs Spauld- and Dwinell, were very affecting and im- sive.—Reg.

☞ Fifty damsels, sent out from England to couver's Island, had, upon arrival, to be sed in a government building and a guard over them, in order to protect them from rush of amorous swains. They were all disposed of; but whether by lot or the hest bidders, does not appear. The Van- ver paper clamors for more, but prefers diary ids to governesses. But it all amounts to same thing at last—it ends in governing, atever the profession.

GONE AT LAST.—After a long and active life, ant Thorburn has gone to rest. As florist, dman, gossip, and sometimes writer, he was miliar in years gone by to our citizens. He d at the advanced age of ninety. Until thin the last year of his life, he seemed to ain much of the vigor of his earlier time.

☞ The Essex Banner, published in Haver- ll, advocates improvements which will make e Merrimac river navigable to Lawrence. If is be accomplished, it will cause important anges in the business of Lawrence, Haver- ill and Newburyport.

☞ The Providence Post boasts of a subscrib- r residing in that city, who has bathed in the ater near the head of the cove every morning uring the last thirteen years—in the winter utting a hole though the ice.

☞ The abandonment of the attempt to cross he Rappahannock by the Army of the Poto- mac was solely in consequence of the difficul- ies of transportation, the lack of supplies, and the impossibility of moving the artillery after the river was crossed.

☞ The friends of General Hooker in Cali- fornia are about sending him a splendid sword. It will arrive by the next steamer. The blade is of fine steel, the scabbard of solid silver, cov- ered with rich bands of California gold.

☞ On Friday, in the Legislature, on motion of Mr. LITTLE of South Danvers the Commit- tee on Military Affairs was directed to consider the expediency of providing State aid to the families of soldiers who have been discharged on account of sickness.

☞ The Tredegar Iron Works at Richmond, the principal manufactory of cannon, advertise for 500 negroes to be employed in blasting and in coal mining.

☞ The gunboat Sagamore has recently cap- tured two English sloops on the east coast of Florida, in attempting to run the blockade, with assorted cargoes.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.—This, best of all the lady periodicals, comes to us in better shape than ever. This is the time to subscribe to this finely illustrated periodical.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY FOR FEBRUARY is more than commonly brilliant and racy. Although we miss a few of the old standard writers, new ones have come in who infuse fresh blood in its veins.

CONTINENTAL MONTHLY FOR FEBRUARY.—The leading articles in this number are those on the "Finances" and "Nullification and Secession," by Hon. R. S. Walker. "How they jested in the Good Old Time," is a lively and agreeable article, as are indeed, most of the articles in this number.

Messrs. BROWNING & LONG, among the other nice things they have, advertise to-day an en- tirely new style of skirts, called "Point de Venice," which is described in the advertise- ment. Mr. J. Mayer, now in New York, is member of the firm engaged in the manufacture of this article, which will no doubt commend itself to the ladies.

CURRENCY CHECKS.—Among the numerous fractional checks in circulation, none are hand- somer or less liable to imitation than those of our neighbor J. P. Peabody. They are litho- graphed, and have a vignette representing a dog guarding the key of a safe. The backs have the denomination in green. Mr. Peabody al- ways does things up in good shape, however; and his checks are no neater than his store, which is always well stocked and arranged.—Salem Gaz.

Musical.

The Members of the SOUTH DANVERS MUSICAL ASSOCIATION are requested to meet at the Vestry of Rev. Mr. BARBER'S Church, on Monday Evening, February 9th.

A full attendance is requested.

South Danvers, Jan 28, 1863. 2w

13, 15 and 17 cents.

Our White and Black Zephyr Worsteds, 13 cts.
Our Scarlet and Solferino do 15 "
Our Crimson and Purple do 17 "

We intend to close our entire stock of Worst- eds, as we want the room for Spring Goods.

JOHN P. PEABODY.

ENGLISH MERINO HOSIERY.—Ladies White Merino Hose for 29 and 34 cts. per pair, regu- lar 42 and 45 cent Hose. One case just opened. All Wool Hose for 29 cts,—a few dozen left.

OUR NEW CORSETS.

Superior in shape, quality and finish—an en- tire new thing. 220 Essex street.

J. P. PEABODY.

Notice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

Notice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

Omnibus Notice.

On and after Thursday, Jan. 15, 1863—for the better accommodation of the public—the Omnibus fare between South Danvers and Sa- lem will be FIVE CENTS, or 22 Tickets for One Dollar.

Passengers called for or left off the regular route, 15 cents, or 25 cents for two.

January 14 H. M. MERRILL.

☞ Call and look at the HUDSON BAY SA- BLES, at OSBORNE'S.

Save your Rags and Paper!

The subscriber will pay the highest prices in CASH for Rags and Paper. By giving season- onable notice he will call at the houses of those who wish to dispose of their rags.

"A penny saved is as good as a penny earned."

So Poor Richard says.

SUMNER SOUTHWICK.

South Danvers, Jan 14, 1863.

Physicians' Notice.

The Physicians of Danvers have unanimous- ly agreed that, on and after MARCH 1st, 1863, they will charge 75 cents per visit.

Danvers, Jan. 6th, 1863.

Marriages.

In Salem, Jan 9th, by Rev Mr Spaulding, Mr Joseph L Chase, to Miss Mary A Lavender, both of Marblehead.

Deaths.

In this town, Deacon Benjamin Marshall, 69 yrs 11 mos 7 days. [His remains were carried to Bradford.]

In Danvers, George O, son of Charles A and Emma Shepard, 7 yrs; Lucy Putnam, 12 yrs, Lydia Hall, 2 years 4 mos, both of diptheria— children of Mr. Henry Very.

Jan 14th, Alice G Straw, daughter of Sam- uel E and Sarah J Straw, 3 yrs 6 mos 3 ds.

In Salem, Jan 19, Miss Mary Flannagan, 48. 23d, Mrs Alice, widow of the late Deacon John Hunt, 81 years.

In Boston, Jan 19th, Lillie C Rogers, 3 yrs, only child of Edwin and Sarah F Rogers.

In Boston, Mrs Frances E Oliver, widow of the late Benj. Lynde Oliver, Esq., aged 67.

In Quincy, Jan —, at the residence of his brother-in-law (G. A. W. Chamberlain), Mr D Warren Nutting, Hospital Steward of Mass. 2d Reg., aged 30 years. [He was buried at Harmony Grove.]

In Allenstown, N H, Mr John Cate, 100.— Half a mile distance from the residence of Mr Cate, Daniel Davis died a number of years ago at the age of 105. Mrs Jas. Hartford, daugh- ter of Mr Davis, is now living in Deerfield at the age of 102.

In Topeka, Kansas, Jan 6, Mrs Eleisa, wife of the late E Beckford Osgood, formerly of Salem, Mass, 56 yrs.

In Port Pike, La, Nov 15, Mrs Epes Coggs- well, Jr, of Salem, 47 yrs—member of the 4th Mass Battery.

James F. Almy.

JAN. 27, 1863.

WE offer to-day a stock of

CLOAKS, SHAWLS,

—AND—

Winter Dress Goods

At REDUCED PRICES TO CLOSE.

JAMES F. ALMY,

jan 14 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

— We offer a fine stock of —

Bleached & Brown Cottons

All widths—at lowest prices.

— Also —

A FULL STOCK OF DOMESTIC GOODS.

JAMES F. ALMY,

jan 28 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

Advertisements.

SLATING. SLATING.

GEORGE FOWLER & COMPA'Y,

NO. 2 ST. PETER COURT, SALEM, respectfully inform their friends and the citizens of this and neighboring towns and cities that they are prepared to execute all orders for Slating, promptly and faith- fully.

Roofs covered with any description of Slates, or repaired at short notice.

All work undertaken will be warranted.

Address—Box 366, Salem Post Office.

Salem, January 28—1863. tf

The Clothes Wringer

JUST OBTAINED

RHOADES' CELEBRATED

NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER,

THE VERY BEST YET INVENTED,

AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING MACHINE.

CALL AND EXAMINE.

For Sale by E. SOUTHWICK,

At the EQUITY GROCERY STORE,

Browning & Long.

POINT DE VENICE

SKIRTS.

SOMETHING ENTIRELY NEW.

NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS. NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

BROWNING & LONG have re- ceived their Spring Skirts, being of New Shape and Design, Kid Fronts and Springs Securely Fastened.

In the "Point de Venice" will be found a perfect Skirt, being of a beau- tiful shape, and having attached to it a Kid Bodice, which fits closely to the form, making it a graceful and dura- ble Skirt, and especially adapted to the present style of fitting dresses.

Receiving our Skirts direct from the manufacturers, we are enabled to show a fine assortment of New Styles, and can offer them at

VERY LOW PRICES.

BROWNING & LONG,

(Successors to J. Mayer.)

Jan. 28. 177 Essex Street.

John P. Peabody.

NEW GOODS.

CORSETS—New style—superior in quality, finish and shape—a new thing— every size—just opened.

KID GLOVES—All the desirable shades in fresh goods—in plain and em- broidered—Black, white and colored.

SKIRTS—A new and superior Skirt at old prices. Every Skirt we sell, we warrant to be the best ma- terial and make.

CLOSING—All our German Worsteds—all our Woolen Hoods—all our Clouds and Sontags—all our Skating Hats—all our Woolen Hosiery—at Closing Prices.

220 ESSEX STREET,

Jan 28 J. P. PEABODY.

LARGE SALES

AND SMALL PROFITS.

THE NEWEST STYLES!

BROWNING & LONG

Have just opened the following articles, being of the Datest Importation and New Patterns:

STEEL PINS;
STEEL CROSSES;
STEEL CUFF PINS;
STEEL EAR RINGS;
STEEL BELT CLASPS;
STEEL BELT PINS;
CORNELIAN SHAWL PINS;
PEARL SLEEVE BUTTONS;
JET AND STEEL BUTTONS;
CUT STEEL BUTTONS;
NEW SLIPPER PATTERNS;
JET BONNET TRIMMINGS.

NEW GOODS constantly received—we are thus able to show our customers the newest the market affords.

BROWNING & LONG,

SUCCESSORS TO

J. MAYER,

☞ No. 177 Essex Street,

FIRST CLASS GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

The remainder of our

Knit Zephyr Goods

To be sold at REDUCED PRICES.

Salem, Jan 28, 1863.

T. HARDY, JR.,

—Dealer in—

DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,

Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,

FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,

No. 26 FRONT STREET,

Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

IHLSING & NARVESON'S

Celebrated New Full 7 Octave

PIANO FORTES,

OF superior tone and finish, plain and ornamental, nameboard inlaid with pearl, full iron frame, grand action, overstrung bass pearl or ivory keys, plain or carved legs, are for sale at

218 Essex Street, Salem, Up Stairs.

Any one wishing to obtain a superior instru- ment is invited to call before purchasing else- where.

jan 7—tf S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

KEROSENE LANTERNS.

KEROSENE Stand and Hand Lamps, and Peg Lamps. Also Wicks and Chimneys—for sale b S O & E A SIMONDS, 33 Front st., Salem.

PAPER SHADES.

A FINE assortment of Paper Shades for Kerosene Lamps, just opened at S O & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

George S. Walker.

AT REDUCED PRICES.

GEORGE S. WALKER

Offers his Winter Stock of

Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods,

SUCH as All-Wool, Merino, and Silk Shirts and Drawers,

HOSIERY, GLOVES, SCARFS,

And other Seasonable Goods,

At such Reduced Prices as will make it for the interest of purchasers to examine before pur- chasing elsewhere, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,

jan 28 228 Essex st. Stearns' Block.

"A Penny Saved is a Penny Gained."

THE PRICE OF COTTON IS ADVANC- ING! Now is the time to order SHIRTS and COLLARS. The finer qualities made to or- der, sewed by hand, and warranted to fit.

Also, in stock, bought for CASH, before the advance, my usual variety and sizes of

READY-MADE SHIRTS AND COLLARS.

GEORGE S. WALKER,

jan 28 228 Essex St., Salem.

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,

FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,

Central Street, South Danvers,

HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.

He keeps as good an assortment of

COFFINS AND CASKETS,

as can be found at any establishment, and at the low- est prices.

He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.

All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

SOUTH DANVERS

POST OFFICE.

GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.

MAILS CLOSE

At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.

MAILS DUE

At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.

Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.

F. POOLE, P. M.

South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetery, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

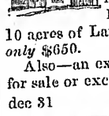
The situation is pleasant, in a good neigh- borhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.

South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

FOR SALE.



A GOOD comfortable Home, a two-story House, L, Shed and Barn, in good repair, pleasantly located in Londonderry, N. H., 1 1-2 miles from center of town, 10 acres of Land, with plenty of Fruit. Price only $650.

Also—an excellent Stock Farm of 250 acres, for sale or exchange.

dec 31 L. BRICKETT, Derry, N. H.

FRANKLIN COAL.

JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL —the best in the world for domestic use.

POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,

Successors to M. Black, Jr.

Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

E. N. PRICE,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

HARNESSES,

SADDLES, BRIDLES,

AND WHIPS.

— ALSO —

Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.

All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.

237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.

mch13-tf

Book & Job Printing

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,

Executed with Neatness & Despatch

AT THIS OFFICE.

GAYLE & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

DEALERS IN

Flour, Grain and Produce,

Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of

Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saler- atus, and Bi Carb. Soda.

PHILLIPS WHARF. - - - - - Salem.

REMOVAL!

AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,

Manufacturer and Repairer of

BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

D. W. BOWDOIN,

—ARTIST IN—

PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.

Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, (Downing's Block)

Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambro type, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.

☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Da- guerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarg- ed copies, highly finished. may 16

EXTRA HEAVY SHEETINGS.

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS

A FINE assortment—for sale at low prices at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

jy 14 190 Essex Street, Salem.

NEW BOOKS.

STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom; Fire Light; or Stories for Domestics, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;

Gardener's Monthly—January;

Harper's Weekly; Genealogical Register;

Historical Collections, October, 1862.

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,

At the old stand of H Whipple & Son

A. J. Archer & Co

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

Have on hand a full supply of

BROWN SHEETINGS AND

SHIRTINGS;

BLEACHED SHEETINGS &

SHIRTINGS;

— Also —

GREY TWILLED FLANNELS;

WHITE FLANNELS.

— Also —

BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,

which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES.

Salem, January 28—6w

SALESMAN WANTED.

APPLY at 181 Essex street, Salem.

A. J. ARCHER, & CO.

H. & H. G. HUBON,

WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM

Manufacturers of

Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood

COFFINS and CASKETS.

MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal at- tention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.

dec 14—tf

Rare Chance for Bargains.

CLOSING OUT SALE!

Large and fine stock of

JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,

AND FANCY GOODS,

At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER

Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,

Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Ware,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.

at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.

This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an ex- cellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Refurnishing the Table, &c.

Old Silver taken in exchange.

☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.

JOSEPH J RIDER,

No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

W. E. P. SMYTH,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.

Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,

LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accur- acy and dispatch, all claims against Government, es- pecially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' resi- dence in Washington enabled me to become thor- oughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the prac- tice in the U. S. Court of Claims: in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advan- tages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.

Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Na- val, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow.
2d. The Children.
3d. The Father.
4th. The Mother.
5th. The Brothers and Sis- ters collectively.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken on, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons de- ceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.

When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should pre- sent them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditor's Office, by reason of nu- merous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay in getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.

Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1y

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, o which the Mackie took the First Premium at the lat Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.

BYRON GOODALE,

Near Tapley's Brook.

South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862. tf

Tenements to Let.

ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $54 per year.

One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.

One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.

One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.

One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.

South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

MUNROE'S

(LATE REED'S)

SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON

RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at 10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " " at 5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at 3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " " at 5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.

Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.

EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.

Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.

Particular attention paid to removing Fur niture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.

Packages received and sent forward daily for Balti more, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Al exandria, and any other point where the different reg- iments are stationed:

WM. C. MUNROE,

South Danvers, may 21—tf

E. F. BURNHAM,

SOLE AGENT FOR

SARGENT & CO.S'

MAGIC SOAP

For South Danvers & Salem.

OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.

Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.

Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Dan- vers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

INNER SOLES,

AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.

2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

THOMAS PINNOCK,

SLATER,

SALEM, MASS.

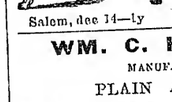
Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Pea- body St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.

Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, ac- cording to order. All work warranted.

Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

CURRIER & MILLETT,

Dealers in



Furniture, Chairs,

MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c

259 & 261 ESSEX ST.

Salem, dec 14—1y

WM. C. HENDERSON,

MANUFACTURER OF

PLAIN AND FANCY

PAPER BOXES,

No. 235 ESSEX STREET,

Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"

july 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,

NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.— Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St.

South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

Heckscher Coal!

$8.25 per Ton on Wharf.

A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,

Both Red and White Ash,

Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by

W. P. PHILLIPS,

Phillips' Wharf, Salem.

july 9

AARON T. LOWE,

DEALER IN

BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,

76 BOSTON STREET, 76.

aug 6 SALEM. tf

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.

THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of

Patent Granular Fuel,

which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25 Bushels, delivered, ... 2 25
50 do do 4 00
100 do do 7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.

BYRON GOODELL.

South Danvers, june 18.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open dur- ing his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.

JAMES PERKINS.

South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

R. C. MANNING & CO,

Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,

DEALERS IN

COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,

188 DERBY STREET,

SALEM, MASS.

N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.

oct17

NOTICE.

I HEREBY give notice that I have this day given to my son NATHANIEL F HURD, now 16 years old, his time, and I will not de- tain his earnings or pay any debts he may con- tract after this date.

HARFORD HURD.

Danvers, January 14, 1862. 3w*

☞ If you want to SAVE MONEY, in pur- chasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, No. 10 Front street, Salem. ap30-2m

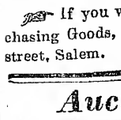
Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,

Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,
34 Front Street.

Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

TO LET.



A SMALL and convenient TEN- EMENT, on Washington Street, not far from Aborn St. For terms ap- ply to H. C. BANCROFT.

South Danvers, Nov, 26, 1362.

CRIST MILL.

HAVING made arrangements for carrying on the Grist Mill at Newhall's Crossing, at South Dan- vers, I take this method of informing the public that the mill is now open and ready for business.

Any patronage in the line of grinding corn or other grain, or making COD MEAL, will be gratefully re- ceived, and all orders promptly attended to.

If equally convenient for customers to bring their grists afternoons instead of forenoons they will ac- commodate me by doing so.

ELBRIDGE G. NEWHALL.

South Danvers, Dec 3, 1862.

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,

Druggist and Apothecary,

88 MAIN STREET.

Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.

Personal attention to Physicians' Prescrip- tions.

South Danvers, May 29, 1861. 1y

GEO. E. MEACOM,

Dealer in

DRUGS & MEDICINES,

Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.,

126 · · MAIN ST. · · 126

Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,

Druggist & Apothecary

37 Main St., So. Danvers,

DEALER IN

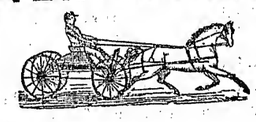
Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponges, Shoul- der Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines.

Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery.

Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by ex perienced persons.

37 MAIN STREET.

LIVERY STABLE.



JOHN MOULTON

WOULD inform his friends and the public that he still continues to keep

Good Horses and Carriages to Let,

at the stable of G. M. TEEL on Central street where he will remain until his stable is rebuil at his old stand on Main Street.

A share of public patronage is solicited.

South Danvers, june 9, 1862.

PATTERSON S

LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE

THE undersigned are agents for the abo machine. It can be seen in operation Pinder & Brown's Tannery.

may 7—3m CLARK & GIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,

Wallis Street, South Danvers,

Are Agents for

GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S

PATENT EAVE TROUGHS

GUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND

PIPE FOR DRAINS

South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

Potter, Bachelder & Co.,

(Successors to M. Black)

DANVERS-PORT

DEALERS IN

WOOD AND COA

OF the various kinds usually kept in a re yard. Constantly on hand

Franklin, Old Company's Lehigh,
Locust Mountain, Black Heath,
Red and White Ash.

Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as prices as can be bought elsewhere.

OFFICE—No. 6 Allen's Building.

Order Box at post office, South Danvers, post office, Danvers.

G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. july 19—

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal

PRICES REDUCED!

WE shall sell our DRESS GOODS at DUCED PRICES.

We shall sell all the different styles of dies' Watch Spring, Bon Ton and Qu Skirts, at a discount.

All our Balmoral Skirts at a discount;
French Prints and other grades;
Domestic Goods;
Cottons, Flannels, Crashes;
Blankets, the very best quality—all wid
Batting, full pound bundles;
Wool Wadding, Sheet Wadding, black white.

☞ In order to prepare for Spring T we shall sell at the very lowest prices for jan 7 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,

IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found a G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, dec 24 Sign of Five Golden Bo

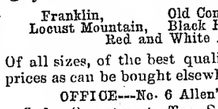
MUSICAL NOTICE.

Chickering & Sons' Piano-For



ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Fede would inform her friends in Sou vers, and the public generally th keeps for sale and to let Chicke Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with care, and need only to be tried to prove their su ty over every other in the market. The ve erms given.

MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPH

For sale and to let. For power and quality none can surpass them A. R. BRAY 76 Federa

Miscellaneous.

SIGNS AND ITALICS.—Some men with vigorous minds, but more conversant with things than with words, and who, having never studied composition as an art have not learned that the real force of style must be effortless, and consists mainly in its simplicity and appropriateness, fancy that common words are not half strong enough to say what they want to say; and so they try to strengthen them by writing them in a different character. Men of science do this; for words with them are signs, which must stand out to be conspicuous. Soldiers often do this; for, though a few of them are among the most skilful in the drilling and manœuvering of words, the chief part have no notion that a word may be louder than a cannon ball, and sharper than a sword. Cobbett, again, is profuse of italics. This instance may be supposed to refute the assertion that the writers who use them are not versed in the art of composition. But, though Cobbett was a wonderful master of plain speech, all his writings betray his want of logical and literary culture. He had never sacrificed to the graces; who cannot be won without many sacrifices. He cared only for strength, and, as his own bodily frame was of the Herculean rather than the Apolloneancast, he thought a man could not be very strong unless he displays his thews. Besides, a Damascus blade would not have gashed his enemies enough for his taste; he liked to have a few notches on his sword.

A GOOD DODGE.—The latest Munchausen story was related by a boy who was begging in the streets of Plymouth the other day. He said that he was a cabin boy on board an American liner, and for some of his mischievous pranks was headed up in an empty water cask, with only the bung-hole to breathe through. On the following night a squall came up, the ship went down with all on board except himself, the cask containing him having rolled over into the sea on a sudden lurch of the vessel. Fortunately it kept "bung up," and after thirty hours floating about he was cast on the coast, where, after he had made desperate efforts to release himself, he gave himself up to die.—Some cows strolling along the beach were attracted to the cask, and in switching around it, one of them accidentally dipped her tail into the bung hole, which the boy grasped immediately, and kept fast hold of with admirable resolution.—The cow started off, and after running about three hundred yards, the cask struck against a rock, and was knocked to pieces. After wandering about for several days, he hailed a vessel, and was taken on board, and carried to Falmouth, from whence he proceeded to Plymouth.

A DOMESTIC FARCE IN ONE SCENE.—"Why is it, my son, that when you drop your bread and butter it is always on the buttered side?"

"I don't know. It hadn't orter, had it? The strongest side ought to be up; this is the strongest butter I have ever seen."

"Hush up; it's some of your aunt's churning."

"Did she churn it, great lazy thing?"

"What, your aunt?"

"No, this is her butter. To make the poor old woman churn it when it is strong enough to churn itself?"

"Hush; Jeb, I've eaten a great deal worse in the most aristocratic houses."

"Well, people of rank ought to eat it."

"Why people of rank?"

"'Cause it's rank butter."

"You yarmint! what makes you talk so smart!"

"'Cause the butter has taken the skin off my tongue."

"Jeb, don't lie; I can't throw away the butter."

"I tell you what I would do with it—keep it to draw blisters. You ought to see the flies keel over as soon as they touch it."

A WORD FOR BOYS—How to Start in Business.—A boy worked hard all day for a quarter of a dollar. With the quarter he bought apples, and took them to town and sold them in the street for a dollar. With the dollar he bought a sheep. The sheep brought him a lamb, and her fleeces another dollar. With the dollar he bought him another sheep. The next spring he had two sheep, two lambs, and a yearling sheep. The three fleeces he sold for three dollars, and bought three more sheep.—He now had six, with a fair prospect.—He worked where he found opportunity, for hay, corn, and oats, and pasturing for his sheep. He took the best care of them, and soon had a stock. Their wool enabled him to buy a pasture for them, and by the time he was twenty-one he had a fair start in life, and all from a quarter earned in one day.

☞ A dentist advertises he inserts teeth cheaper than can be done elsewhere. We rather think he would not do it with as much pleasure or as cheap as a bull-dog we know of.

☞ "Welcome, little stranger!" as the man said when he found a three-cent piece in among his postage stamps.

THE CATE GALLERY.

That noble and interesting collection of works of art which our town possesses, called the "Cate Gallery of Pilferings," still continues to attract crowds of admiring visitors of both sexes daily, who gaze their fill, and go away better satisfied, perhaps, than if they had been contemplating the "Elgin Marbles," or the most beautiful paintings, landscape or historical. This is not to be wondered at. The most obtuse mind cannot help marvelling at the prodigious skill, industry, and power of combination which gathered all these divers objects into one focus as it were, for our delight and admiration. What strength of memory, foresight and sagacity were necessary for such an extraordinary concentration! What untiring, what unflagging zeal was expended on this task of accumulation! Such thoughts as these, no doubt, pass through the minds of the spectators, and, when added to the gratuitous character of the exhibition, greatly enhance the pleasure they derive from their visit. The following is a list of the articles:

Burglar's Tools, &c.
Tobacco—26 plugs.
Rings—6.
Seal—1.
Wine, Brandy, &c.—33 bottles.
Clark's Bitters—2 bottles.
Brandy—1 flask.
Nutmegs—1-4 lb.
Can—1.
Fluid Can—1.
Wash Bowl—1.
Strainer—1.
Small Tunnel—1.
Gudgeon Box—1.
Box of Corks, Viols, &c.
Drawer containing 14 small Tools, Screws and Old Files.
Plow—1.
Rolling Pin—1.
Boots—2 pairs.
Balmoral Boots—1 pair.
" " (cloth) 1 pair.
Gloves—1 pair, cloth.
Gloves—1 pair, leather.
Gloves—1 pair, fur.
Pants—1 pair, drab.
Vest Patterns—1, velvet.
Vest Patterns—1, velvet, figured.
Vest Patterns—1, velvet, striped.
Velvet—1-4 yard.
Cassimere, mixed—9 yards.
Doe Skin—3 1-2 yards.
Doe Skin—2 5-8 yards, striped.
Silk Mixture, 6-4 wide—4 3-8 yards.
Alpaeca.
Cotton (bleached)—9 3-4 yds—Bates 4-4.
Cotton (bleached)—4 yds—Waltham 9-8.
Cotton (brown)—6 1-2 yds—Naumkeag AA.
Cotton Flannel, 2 pieces—4 1-2 yds.
Cotton Flannel, 1 piece—5 1-3 yards.
Cotton Flannel, 1 piece—8 yards.
Calico—13 yards.
Linen—3-4 yards.
Hose, cotton—1 pair.
Cravat—1, silk, black.
Cravat—1, silk, half check.
Ties—5.
Velvet—1 piece, No. 1-2.
Velvet—1 piece 1-2 in—say 4 yards.
Table Cover—1.
Bosoms, cotton—3.
Bosoms, cotton—2.
Bosoms, fine linen, 3-9—2.
Bosoms, linen, 2-4—1.
Bosoms, linen, 2-3—1.
Bosoms, linen, 1-6—3.
Bosoms, linen, 1—damaged.
Under Shirt—1.
Collars—6.
Cambrie—2 1-4 yards, white, 2-3.
Cotton, bleached—1 1-4 yds, Amoskeag
Handkerchiefs—4.
Socks—1 pair, 3-9.
Thread—18 bunches.
Tape—2 rolls.
Fork—1.
Steel—1.
Rules—2, two fold No. 4, Stearns, slide.
Rule—12 inch.
Scissors—5 pairs.
Shears—2 pairs.
Table Knives—1 set, self tip.
Spoons, tea—6; table, 4.
Buttons, brass—8 10-12ths doz.
Curtain Cord—6 yards.
Skate Straps—1 set.
Books — "Rhind's Vegetable Kingdom," "Downing's Landscape Gardening," "Gray's Botany," "Illustrated Rural Manual," "Manual of Geology," "Vegetable and Animal Physiology."
Tools—9.
Tools—4, handed.
Diamonds—2.
Chisels—2.
Chest Handles—1 pair.
Molasses Gate—1.
Screws—1 gro. 1 in. 7.
Files, taper—2 doz. 4 in; 1 doz. 3 in.
Wrench—1.
Spring Balance—1.
Chopping Knife—1.
Tacks—2 papers, 6 oz; 2 do 4 oz.
Brush Chimney—1.
Wood Faucet—1.
Wafer Stamp—1.
Mortice Latch—1.
Shot Pouch and Shot.
Glass Plate—1.
Curtain Cord—two parts balls.
Silvered Screws—22.
Collars—6.
Extracts—14 bottles.
Extracts—2, Cologne; 1 Ginger.
Ink—3 bottles.
Oils, Castor—1; Hair—2.
Pomade—1.
Indelible Ink—1 and a part.
Toothache Drops—1 bottle.
Magnetic Plaster—1 box.
Crystal Blue—1 box.
Specific for Whooping Cough—1 box.
Starch Polish Wafers—1 package.
Liquid Glass—1 bottle.
Corn Plaster—1.
Amandine—1 box.
Soap—7 cakes; 1 cake Barilla.
Percussion Caps—5 part boxes.
Salve—2 boxes.
Snuff Box.
Hair Pins—1 box.
Combs—3 horn; 2 do, black; 2 rubber; 1 pocket; 4 ivory; 1 rubber, fine.
Tooth Brushes—3.
Knives—4, two blade, black; 2, white.
Drinking Tubes.
Baby's Rattle—1.
Court Plaster, arnica—1; common—1.
Cocoa Butter—2 cakes.
Pain—3 cakes.
Perfume Bottle—1.
Sash Tools—2.
Purse—1.
Wallets, calf—2.
Memorandum Books—2.
Wax—22 cakes.
Preserve—2 cans.
Lamps, kerosene, 2; top—1.
Chimneys—2.
Syringe—1.
Opera Glass—1.
Powder Flask—1.
Razor—1.
Shears—1 pair.
Pins—4 papers.
Crochet Needles—1 set.
Measuring Tape—1.
Razor Strop—1.
Augur Bit—1, 3-4.
Apple Parer—1.
Lozenges—41 rolls.
Envelopes—2 packages, small, white.
Envelopes—1 package, large, buff.
Paper—4 3-4 quires, note, com'l.
Paper—2 quires, note, com'l.
Paper—2 1-4 quires, note, small.
Rubber Cots—3.
Rubber Squares—2.
Wristbands, Linen,—1 pr.
Sealing Wax—2 1-2 sticks.
Twist—15 sticks.
Silk—5 small spools.
Socks—1 pr., wool, dark.
Spool Cottons—46.
Salt Cellar—1 small.
Tea Pot—Britannia.
Cachou—2 boxes.
Eye Salve—1 cake.
Emery—1 cake.
Compass—1 small.
Knife—1 3 blade, ivory.
Knife—1 2 blade, pen.
Knife—1 2 blade, pearl.
Toothache Drops—5 bottles.
Corn Plaster—1 box.
Pencils—5, lead.
Tooth Pick—1.
Needles—10 papers.
Butter Knife—1.
Books—2 small pass.
Watch—1.
Crystals—3.
Crochet Needle—1.
Bodkin—1, ivory.
Bodkin—1, steel.
Tweezers—1.
Pilules—One part bottle.
Copper Coins—14.
Spy Glass—Widdifield & Co., Boston—1.
Gun—1 2 barrel.
Salem Savings Bank Book—Name, Daniel F. Cate—No. 20,768—$413.80.

[There are five other books, on different banks, in the names of his connexions, amounting to $1,640.72.]

2 package of silver, $21.00.
1 package of silver, $14.00.
1 package of silver, $12.50.
1 package of silver, $14.00.
1 package of silver, $16.90.
1 package of silver, $00.60.
6 Spanish Quarters.
1 Mexican Quarter.
1 20 cent piece.
1 Spanish half.
1 Mexican half.
1 Spanish Dollar.
1 Rupee.
Gold—$15.50.
Bills—$73.00.
Postal—$14.40.
Postage Stamps—$50.63.
Cents—$25.09.

5 7 3-10ths Treasury Notes, of $100.00 each—dated August 19th, 1861, and numbered as follows—16,459, 16,460, 26,329, 26,330, 26,331.

3 of $50.00 each—dated Oct. 1st, 1861, and numbered as follows—396, 397, 398.

[There are two other notes, of a private nature, payable on demand, amounting to $35.25.]

Salem and South Danvers R. R. Tickets—10.
South Danvers and Salem R. R. Tickets—1.
So. Danvers & Danversport R. R. Tickets—3.
Check—1.
Railroad Tickets to Newburyport—6.
Railroad Tickets to Bradford—5.
Railroad Tickets to Andover—1.
Railroad Tickets to Boston—7.
Railroad Tickets to Lowell—5.
Railroad Tickets to Salem—11.
Railroad Tickets to West Danvers—3.
1 Railroad Ticket from West Danvers to Melrose.
1 Railroad Ticket from West Danvers to Malden.
1 Railroad Ticket from North Danvers to Georgetown.
1 Railroad Ticket from Danvers to West Danvers Junction.
1 Railroad Ticket from West Danvers to North Danvers.
Omnibus Tickets—2.
Ambrotypes—6.
Brad Awls—1 set.
Hair Brushes—small lot.
Vials—small.
Gold Pens—3.
Magazine Pictures.
Writing Book—1.
Fancy Pipe—1.
Photographs—2, in frames.
1 Spoon—silver, or silver plated.
1 Fork—silver, or silver plated.
Carpenter's Pencils—2.
Grecian Painting—small, torn.
Tray—silver, or silver plated.
Paper Shades.
Quart Measure—tin.
Scoop.
Can—2 quart.
Lamp—Kerosene.
Vase.
Oil Lamp—glass.
Goblets—6.
Egg Glasses—2.
Salts—4.
Preserve Dish—1, glass.
Sugar Bowl—1, glass.
Creamer—1, glass.
Preserve Dish—1, glass.
Cruet—1, glass.
Glass Nappies—8.
Glass Plate—1.
Tumblers—7.
1 Album.
1 Handkerchief—silk, light.
1 Handkerchief—silk, red.
Brown Cottons—2 3-4 yards.
Bleached Cottons—6 yards, yeoman's.
De Lain—12 yards.
1 Rubber Ball.
1 Shoe Box.
Spoons—1 doz. marked B; 1 large Spoon.
Cream Spoon—1.
Fowling Piece—1.
Mittens—1 pair.

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.

Prof. M. G. BROWN.

SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets scumy and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its socket in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to anoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 6 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

USEFUL ARTICLES
— FOR —
HOLIDAY GIFTS.

CASHMERE Mantles, best quality;
Chenille Scarfs; Neck Ties, for Children;
Gloves and Hosiery;
French and English Prints, very neat patterns;
American do. at the lowest prices;
Linen Hdkfs, plain, hem-stitched and bordered;
New styles of Long Shawls;
A full assortment of DRESS GOODS, which we shall sell at a discount.
A full line of Table Linen, Crashes, &c.

ANN R. BRAY,
dec 24 Salem, 76 Federal St.

Plymouth Buck Gloves.

MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S
Gent's Furnishing Store,
dec 10 228 Essex St, Salem.

CHINA GOODS

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

KNIVES AND FORKS.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A VALUABLE PRESENT.

A YEAR'S Reading in WHIPPLE & SMITH'S Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.
dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

CHEAP EDITION.

LES Miserables—complete—$1.00.
Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Muloch—for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

READING.

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Ladies' Spring Skirts.

ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

NEW GOODS.

WE have received some very neat styles of French Prints, small figures, Spring styles, new goods.
Neat styles Patches, new patterns.
A few pieces Cotton and Wool M de Laines, new styles, suitable for the present and Spring wear—selling low for cash.
jy 14 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

PATRIOTS,

FREEMEN! STRANGERS!

BUSINESS MEN!

REMEMBER,

When you Visit Boston,

THAT AT

LANE'S
CLOTHING HOUSE,

31 and 32 Dock Square,

You will find a Large Assortmtnt of

Men's Overcoats, Business Coats, Suits, Pants, Vests, Under Flannels, &c., &c.,

On which there has been NO RISE, our large CASH PURCHASES made

BEFORE THE ADVANCE

in Goods enables us to

DEFY COMPETITION.

We would remind the public that in our NEW DEPARTMENT for

BOYS' CLOTHING

may be found a better assortment than at any other House in the city, and at much

LOWER PRICES!

We sell for CASH ONLY, and do not charge the paying customer extra profits to make up for bad debts.

REMEMBER!
LANE'S
CLOTHING HOUSE,
31 and 32 Dock Square,
BOSTON.

Boston, Nov. 5th. 2m

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,
ONE PRICE
HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,
231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

JUST PUBLISHED.

GRAVER Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heavon, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantes, by A. B. Edwards: The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
dec 24 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

Ann R. Bray,

NO. 76 Federal Street,
— DEALER IN —
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

DIARIES FOR

1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books,

The Confessions and Experience of a Poor Young Man.

A GENTLEMAN having been cured of the results of early error and disease, will, from motives of benevolence, send to those who request it, a copy of the above interesting narrative, published by himself. This little book is designed as a warning and caution to young men and those who suffer from NERVOUS DEBILITY, LOSS OF MEMORY, PREMATURE DECAY, &c., &c., supplying at the same time the means of self-cure. Single copies will be sent under seal in a plain envelope,—without charge,—to any who request it, by addressing the author,

CHAS. A. LAMBERT, Esq.,
Greenpoint, Long Island, New York.

TABLE CUTLERY.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks. Carvers and Steels. and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by
nov 19 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

FOR NEW YEAR'S.

ELEGANT BOOKS; NEW BOOKS;
BEAUTIFUL FANCY GOODS; BRONZES;
PARIAN; WOOD CARVINGS;
FINE CUTLERY; GAMES;
PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS;
DARLEY'S "MORNING, NOON & NIGHT."

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

REMOVAL!

JOHN J. ASHBY,

WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store

No. 145 Essex Street,

formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of

BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,

and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.

Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

E. R. PERKINS,
PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST
241 Essex Street, Salem.

Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,

Photographs, Sphercotypes, Melainotypes, and patent enamel Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

Dyspepsia Remedy.

DR. DARIUS HAM'S
AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!

This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.

IT STIMULATES, EXHILARATES, INVIGORATES, BUT WILL NOT INTOXICATE OR STUPEFY.

AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner.

It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.

Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the DELIRIUM TREMENS, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.

DOSE—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.
A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.
Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.

Persons who, from dissipating too much over night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings.

Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the careworn face.

During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.

All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the INVIGORATING SPIRIT in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.

General Depot, 48 Water Street, N. Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.
feb 29 1y

Are you Insured?

THE subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on

Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,

And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:

Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn.
Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y

Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the

Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass.
Capital and Assetts—$37[illegible],000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D, Medical Examiner.

WM. ARCHER, Jr.,
18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
ej b20-1

Important to the Afflicted.

DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a

PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.

By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent, Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of

GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.

Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.

Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating masrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.

Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.

Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French [illegible], warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y.

CAUTION

TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.

DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.

Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.

Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.

Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.

N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.
Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE

IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.

Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.

Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y

WALLETS AND CURRENCY

HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

MAGAZINES FOR DECEMBER.

ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Madam Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

CHINA WARE.

A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustre China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

HILTON'S INSOLUBLE CEMENT.

ONLY 25 cents—try a bottle. For sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
Jan 21 190 Essex street.

NOTE PAPER, ENVELOPES, &C.

A VERY full and complete stock, at a very small advance on old prices, at
jan 21 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

KEROSENE PEG LAMPS,

FOR Shoemaker's use, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PLATE COVERS.

PLANISHED Tin Plate Covers, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 34 Front.

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

Eastern Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains leave the Eastern Railroad Station, Washington street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excepted):

For Lynn and Boston, 6½, 7¼, 8¼, 9, 10, 11 a m 4 40, 6½, p. m.
Beverly, 8¼ am., 1, 3½, 4¾, 5¾, 6¾, 7½ p m.
W. Beach, Manr, Gloucester, and Rockport, 8 1, 4¾ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8¼ a m., 1, 3¼, 5¾ p
Amesbury, 8¼ a m., 3¼, 5¾ p m.
Portsmouth, 8¼ a m., 3¼, 5¾ p m.
Portland, 8¼ a m., 3¼ p m.

AND FOR SALEM, FROM

Portland, 8¾ a m., 2½ p m.
Portsmouth, 7¼, *11½ a m., *5 p m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9 40 a m., 5 20 p m.
Newburyport, 8, 10 a m., 12 m, 5.45 p m.
Ipswich, 8.25, 10.25 a m, 12 25, 6.10 p m.
Gloucester, 7.25, 10 10 a m., 3.55 p m.
Manchester, 7.40, 10.25 a m., 4.10 p m.
Beverly, 7.05, 8.05, 8 50, 10.50 a m, 12.50, 4¼, 6
Lynn, 8, 9, 11 a m., 12¾, 3, 4½, 5½, 6½, 7½ †10
Boston, 7½, 8¾, 10¾ a m., 12½, 2¾, 4, 5, 6, 6¾, †9½

*Or on arrival from the East.
†On Wednesdays this train leaves Boston at 1 via Saugus Branch; and on Saturdays at 10½

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Marblehead for Salem, 7, 8, 8¾, 9¾ a m., 12¾, 1¾
Salem for Marblehead, 8¼, 9.25, 11¼ a m., 1, 3

SOUTH READING BRANCH.

Trains leave the South Reading Depot in Sa
Boston at 7, 9.40 a m., 2.25, 4.55 p m
Boston for Salem, 7 a m., 12 m., 2¼, 5 p m.
South Danvers for Salem, 7¾ a m., 12¾, 3¼, 5

ESSEX RAILROAD.

Leave Salem for Lawrence and way stations a m., 4¾ p m.
Lawrence for Salem, 8¼ a m., 12.40, 6¼ p m.
Danvers for Salem, 9.12 a m., 1.22, 6.57 p m.

J. PRESCOTT, Superinten
Boston, November 10, 1862.

Salem and Lowell Railroa

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains run as follows:

Leave Lowell for Salem, 7.25 a m., and *2.00
Leave Salem for Lowell, *9 40 a m. and 5 00

Passengers are not allowed to carry baggage $50 in value, and that personal, unless notice and an extra amount paid. Season tickets de title the holder to take baggage.

*Freight Train with passenger car attached

F. H. NOURSE, Local Superinte
November 7, 1862.

SPEED, COMFORT AND SAFETY!

FOR NEW YOR
Norwich Steamboat Trai
The only Boats Landing at Jersey

CABIN Passage, $4.00; Deck Passage, $3.0 new and elegant sixteen wheel cars of the boat express train leave the Boston & W Railroad Station, Albany Street, at 5; P. M connecting with the new steamers, (built e for this line,) CITY OF BOSTON, Capt. W Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; CITY O YORK, Capt. JEWETT, Tuesdays, Thursda Saturdays, which (before proceeding to the No. 39 North River,) will touch at the wharf New Jersey Railroad at Jersey City, (Sunda cepted) thus enabling Southern Passengers sure connections with the First Southern Tra at the same time avoid the great annoyance Ferry and Hack transportation in the crowde of New York. This insures ample time fo fast before the trains leave. Conductors D. L LER and W. F. BARTON accompany the pas through.

Tickets, Berths and Staterooms secured at t road Station, and at the Office of the line, 7 ington Street, Boston.

Through tickets to Philadelphia, Baltimo Washington can be had at 79 Washington Stre ton.

WM. DICKEY, Jr., Ag
Boston, January 7, 1863.

SUMMER ARRANGEMI
CHANGE OF TIM
— TO —
LYNN & BOSTC
BY OMNIBUS AND HORSE

On and after THURSDAY, June 19th

W. F. BURNHAM'S

Line of Omnibuses will leave the Lyn Boston Omnibus Office, No. 6 Allen's Bu South Danvers, passing down Main through Washington street to Lynn, dai

Leave South Danvers at 7.50 A. M 12.50 and 4.50 P. M.

Leave Lynn at 10 A. M., and 2 1 6 1-2 P. M.

Horse Cars leaving Scollay's Building street, Boston, at 8.15 A. M., 1.15 and M., will meet the Omnibus at Lynn, above named hours, to take passengers t Danvers.

Sunday Arrangements.

Leave S. Danvers at 7.50 a.m., and 4. Leave Lynn at 9.30 a.m., and 6.30 p.

Cars leave Scollay's Building, Boston, the Omnibuses in Lynn for South Dan 8.15 a m. and 5.15 p m.

Through Tickets to and from Boston had of the Drivers and Conductors.

Tickets to Lynn, - - 15
Through to Boston, - 30

Passengers called for at reasonable ch notice is given at the Office.

EXPRESS BUSINESS

Between South Danvers and Lynn pr attended to, on reasonable terms.

EXTRA COACHES furnished at short n moderate rates.

South Danvers, June 18, 1862.

South Danvers & Salem Li Omnibuses.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 4, 18 South Danvers and Salem Line o buses will run as follows:

Leave the Hourly Office, South Danv 7

South Danvers Wizard.

. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1863. NO. 5.

UTH DANVERS WIZARD
very WEDNESDAY, at Allen's Build-avers Square. by LES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
POOLE, Editor.
o Dollars a year.
MENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

LLIAM C. CHOATE,
ey and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
gust 6, 1862. tf

MAS M. STIMPSON,
ey and Counsellor at Law,
4 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
ence Lewell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
y and Counsellor at Law,
vers—Office in Allen's Building.

OHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
ice near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
ney and Counsellor at Law,
RNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
ttorney and Counsellor,
No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
ouse, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
ys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to rmerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
7 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM,
B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
rney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
ey and Counsellor at Law,
se, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.
ns against the Government for Bounty
Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
MAIN STREET, So. DANVERS SQUARE.
chanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
URGEON DENTIST,
8 Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market
Residence—No. 57 Washington street.
l—ly

F. POOLE,
INSURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
mily Groceries, Flour & Grain,
ARD WARE AND CROCKERY,
ady Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods,
Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c., h Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
M'L NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
ckery, China and Hardware; Paper Hang-ings; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.
). 32 Front street, Lawrence Place,
ab13 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
All orders promptly and faithfully executed.
au2-ly

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
Vest India Goods, Country Produce
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
Gold and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
at Rooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger.
164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
WINDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
mch6-tf

WALKING MADE EASY.
DR. P. KENISON,
CHIROPODIST,
215 Washington St., Boston,
Cures Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails, Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

HEYLINGBERG'S
Hair Dressing Saloon,
24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.
TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Champooing,	15 cts.
Champooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more new Quarterly Customers taken.
In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks will be sold for one dollar.
South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,
ADVERTISING AGENT
For the principal New England Newspapers, remains at the old stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, and Advertising. tf
Boston, Jan 29, 1862.

A Russian Story.

TRAGEDY OF THE WHITE VILLAGE.

Not until 1863, when the act takes complete effect, shall we know the rusults of the emancipation of the thirty millions of serfs in Russia. While among the peasants, journeying from one part to another, about the time of the first ediet on the subject, I tried to ascertain what value the peasants themselves set on the promised boon; but I could not find my way far into the mass of their ignorance and apathy.

One day I had the following conversation with a serf, who brought me a message—

'Your name is Evan Vasilioviteh; to whom do you belong?'

'I am the serf of Karmoriteh.'

'How many are you?'

'Two thousand souls are we.'

'You will all soon be free.'

He looked at me from the corners of his eyes, and drawled out—

'Yes. If God and our Father wills.'

'It will be better for you, Evan; will it not?'

'God knows, baron; how should I know?'

'How much obrok do you pay?'

'Thirty roubles a year.'

'Do you pay it in work, or in money?'

'I work four days a week in the sugar fabric, to pay the obrok, passport, and taxes.'

'How much are passport and taxes?'

'About three roubles and a half, besides other things.'

'That is thirty-three roubles and a half you have to pay, and for this you work four days every week in the sugar-mill?'

'It is so, baron, and hard work it is.'

'When you get your freedom you will not require to pay obrok, or work to pay it. Your time will be your own, to cultivate your ground. Will that not be better for you?'

'God give it. I don't know. But I am tired of working.'

'How much land have you?'

'Three and a half deciatines' (ten acres.)

'Well, that is plenty to keep your family on. If you spend all your time on it and pay no obrok, is it not plenty?'

'I don't know, baron, but I am tired of working in the fabric.'

'Now, tell me, Evan, what do you intend to do when you get your freedom? Will you remain here and work your ground, or will you seek bread somewhere else?'

He turned his eyes first up, then down, then on both sides, as if seeking to evade an answer, gave the peculiar peasant's shrug, and slowly muttered—

'I shall sleep, baron.'

'And after you have slept, Evan?'

'I shall eat, baron.'

'And after you have eaten, Evan?'

'I shall sleep again, baron.'

'And when the black bread is gone, and when the pig and poultry are all eaten, and when the potatoes, carrots, and cabbages, are all eaten, and when there is no firewood nor pasture, what will you do then, Evan?'

"Then I will tell you, baron. Now, may God give you health, and thank you for the tea-money you are going to give me. Give you good day!'

I believe this is the case of nearly all the serfs. The condition of many of these people at this time may be judged from the following account of himself, I got with difficulty from a peasant who worked in a cotton-mill:—

'I earn four roubles (twelve and sixpence) a month. My time is all spent in the mill, from five o'clock in the morning until eight o'clock. My wife and two daughters work on the fields belonging to the baron, five days every week in summer. They get no wages. In winter they do any kind of work required of them by the steward. My son, who is seventeen years old, works also in the mill, and gets two roubles a month. We have three deciatines of land. It is our own, so is the house. We can only raise a few potatoes, cabbages and carrots.—The women do this work. We keep a pig, and we have some ducks. We eat them. We get black flour from the econome (the steward's tommy-shop;) this is deducted from our wages. We pay no obrok from these wages nor taxes. Our work is counted for this; the steward manages all that. Somehow I am always in debt to the steward's office. I have worked ten years in the mill, and am a good spinner. I don't know what we shall do when we get our freedom. We shall not work any more, I suppose. I may go begging; it is an easy life. I am now unfit for out-door work, but my son is able; let him cultivate the land. We are three thousand souls on this estate; a thousand nearly are away, and pay forty roubles obrok each year. They pay their own passports and taxes besides.'

This is a sorry but true picture. Eleven pounds a year had this man and his family to live on! For this sum the father and son gave all their time in the mill, and the mother and two daughters five days a week in other work. In a free mill, worked on the free principle, the father and son alone were worth, and were sure to receive, about sixty pounds, and the two daughters thirty; but then they could be forced to pay out of that what their master chose to exact for obrok and taxes. Many of the serfs are better off, and some are worse. The serfs, belonging at one time to the crown, are now free, and those possessed by the rich old families have paid five roubles obrok, and done what they pleased with their ground or themselves. Some of them are immensely rich, and could purchase their freedom at fabulous sums, but great nobles sometimes choose to retain them, either as a reserve fund in case of need, or from a foolish vanity in the possession of a serf worth half a million roubles.—Such instances, however, are by no means common.

Intelligence reached us one day that something serious had happened among the serfs at a place called the White Village, twenty miles off. I started off to the place in company with my Scotch friend, Saunderson, who was then my visitor. The White Village was a village of considerable size, and the houses seemed to have once been of a more comfortable class than any I had seen in those parts. Now it was a most desolate picture of extreme penury and woe; soldiers were in possession of every door; Cossacks patrolled the streets and the adjacent roads, so that but for my friend's clever assistance we should not have been allowed to enter. The steward's house, with all his property and stores, had been burnt down and he himself had been murdered. His family (a wife, a son, and two daughters) could nowhere be found. Some ten peasants were dead and many were wounded. A gang of serfs in irons, or bound with ropes, followed by screaming women, some with babies in their arms, were leaving the place under an escort of Cossacks, who were jeering the poor wretches and probing them with lances, on their way to government town prison, whence they would pass ultimately to the Siberian mines, no doubt.

This is the story of the outbreak—

General Obrassoff died and left his widow two estates; this of the White Village, which had come into his possession only a short time before his death, was one; the other was that upon which my friend Saunderson served as superintendent. The lady was a person of a tender heart, who had been well educated, and mixed in the best society. At her husband's death she left the capital and its pleasures, in order to devote herself to the education of her daughter, taking with her a first-rate governess and a little English girl as companion and English tutor. The little English girl, by name Luey Murray, was fatherless, her mother was unable to educate her, and she was glad to give her companionship to the Russian young lady in exchange for good treatment and an education in German, French and music.

Arrived at the White Village, which she had never seen before, the "generalshe" ("Mrs. General") decided upon living there for a time. While the old family house was being prepared for her reception she stayed in a friend's house in the nearest town. The former proprietor of the White Village had been rich, and easy with serfs. He had possessed several estates of considerable extent, lying widely separate from this part of the country, where he had never been but once; in fact he knew very little of the White Village except that it was his, and that the steward sent or brought him plenty of excuses for non-payment, but little money. It did not trouble him much, therefore, when the people on the estate passed to the General Obrassoff at cards or dice; he merely remarked (Madame Obrassoff is herself my authority here) that if the general made no more of the pigs than he had made of them, they would not be of much use to him. The general determined, however, to make the estate valuable. It was in the same country as his other property, and would form a large addition to his income if well handled. But soon after he had sent off a new steward with the discharge of the old steward in his pocket, and with orders to repair the house, buy stock, and raise the obrok from ten roubles to thirty, he died. Thus madame, good, tender-hearted, compassionate Madame Obrassoff, ruled in his stead until her child's majority.

On the morning after she had taken possession, and installed herself comfortably in her large wooden house, before she had quite got out of bed, the large plot of grass (which served for a lawn in front) was filled with a mass of human beings, clad in the most filthy rags, waiting to pay their respects to their new owner; the old 'starost' heading the ragmuffins with evident pride and pleasure. English rags are bad, Scotch are worse, and Irish are worst, but Russian rags are beyond all conception. When the lady appeared on the lawn among her 'souls' she was perfectly shocked by their wretched appearance; and the starost, having marked with cunning satisfaction her aspect of sympathy, advanced first with a 'welcome present,' a lean goose, and laid it at her feet. He then kissed her feet, and the feet of her daughter, and wished that all imaginable blessings might be poured down on their 'high-born' heads. He then said that the present he had brought was not fit to give to a stanavoy's clerk, far less to such a high-born generalshe, but it was all now left him to give, he was so poor!

The rest of the ragged host advanced and followed suit, no one coming empty-handed. Some gave one egg, others a few berries or a bit of black bread, some a jug of kvass or an old paralytic hen; this one brought a starved rabbit, that one a small paper of salt or a few carrots. The speeches delivered on this great occasion, by some of the elder peasants, were similar to that of the old starost—'High-born lady, we are your humble slaves. Forgive us for having nothing better to offer you. We are poor. Look at us with the golden eye, and have pity. God give you health and long life to live among us. We are poor, but obedient. We will all die for you. It is God's truth lady, we are poor.' Many of them shed tears profusely. The kind-hearted woman wept in sympathy, and pitied the degraded beings from the bottom of her heart. How could she exact thirty roubles a year from such people? How could she put a hard steward over them to grind more out of them? Had this not been already carried too far?

'Starost,' she said, 'hear me. My husband gave orders, before he died, that each man should pay thirty roubles obrok. Has the steward told you so, and are you willing to pay it?'

'High-born lady, it is truth. We have been told, but God knows we cannot pay it. All we have is not worth thirty roubles each. You have beautiful eyes to look with. See these people. Is it possible that we can pay all this large sum. Ah, lady! have compassion and be an angel, and make the obrok ten roubles, as it was before.'

'Steward,' said the lady, 'give me your opinion.'

'My lady, honored and obeyed, it is my opinion that all this is a farce got up to deceive you. Don't believe them.—They seem poor, but I suspect them to be the reverse. I cannot prove it yet, but I soon will. Follow, madame, your illustrious husband's design, and I shall pledge myself to find the obrok. I have done.'

Here the whole body of the peasants, about fifteen hundred, at a secret sign from the starost, surrounded the lady and fell on their knees, howling and crying.

'My children,' she said, 'I pity you.—It is sad to look on you, with those rags. I will not ask you to pay what you cannot pay, but I must have some obrok, and shall be content with ten roubles each, if it is paid without trouble to me. I wish to be kind, and live amongst you happily.'

The starost crossed himself, and so did the multitude; the starost thanked the lady, and with many bendings and bowings vowed that this sum should be paid by the people, if he made them sell everything they had. They then parted; the lady rejoicing in having done a deed of mercy; the starost chuckling at the success of his trick; the new steward, finding his occupation gone, gave notice to quit, and so anticipated his dismissal.

Next day, while the 'generalshe' was giving orders in her new house, and the French governess, the daughter, and Lucy Murray, were at their lessons, the cunning old starost and twenty other peasants, clad in good comfortable garments, and looking healthy and well to do, unearthed some thirty or forty very fine young horses of their own breeding and rearing, from a secret spot in which they had been hidden, and were soon on their way to the large fair in the government town to sell them for from one thousand to fifteen hundred roubles; the greater part of which money, after being divided, was destined for their secret hoards, as soon as it could be turned into hard cash. (Paper has no chance against bullion among the peasants.) The people of this village were, to a man, dealers, breeders, and rearers of horses, who attended all the fairs for many hundred versts around, and only used their own land and that of the estate for the pasturage. Instead of being poor, they were the richest in the district, and none could have paid a higher obrok. But they had never paid much under the old proprietor, and they would not, if cunning could save their pockets, under the new.

The lady remained under her delusion for a year. When the time came for the obrok to be paid in, a scene similar to the first, which had been so successful, was again enacted. The winter had been severe; the summer rains had not come; the rot, or something else, had got amongst the pigs and poultry; the crops of everything were nothing; they were all nearly starving; her high-born ladyship might come and see for herself; she might take all they had, but the obrok in money they could not pay. (Not a word was said about horses.)

Again the trick succeeded. The other estate afforded means of living; this estate might improve with a little patience and kindness; and the kind woman not only forgave the whole year's obrok, but reduced it to five roubles the next year. "Only remember, starost, this is my last step in that direction. If this five roubles each is not paid in good time, and if you assemble these people again without the money in your hands, I will sell the place and leave you. I will not struggle and fight to get my money. I wish to be kind to you, but I must live, and it is a shame to you that I have to draw all my means from other poor serfs, who are, perhaps, as poor as you."

There is nothing more certain than that, if you give a Russian serf an inch he will take an ell. The next year came, and the five roubles did not. The poverty trick was again rehearsed, but this time her high-born ladyship dismissed the people with pain and anger, advertised the estate for sale, and as she had threatened, sold it. All the horse-dealing "souls" on it, their wives and children, horses, cattle, goods and chattles, became the property of a certain Gospodin Popoff, who had spent the greater part of his life in official service on a salary of some forty-five or sixty roubles per month, and who had managed to live up to three hundred roubles, and to save money enough to buy the White Village at twenty thousand roubles.

Herr Hausen, the steward whom Madame Obrassoff allowed to leave her, was appointed by Gospodin Popoff; for this steward had kept his eye on the estate ever since, knew more by this time of its capabilities, and felt chagrined at having been outwitted and driven away by the cunning old starost.

His first act indicated what was to be expected now. The venerable old starost, and twenty of the principal peasants were seized on their first repetition of the poverty face, and received a very liberal supply of 'stick.' The stanavoy's men kept the stick going for half a day, and were well paid to lay it on hard; while Herr Hausen smiled complacently. This was the first turning of the tables, and they went on running from bad to worse. Each serf was served with a demand for three years' arrears of of obrok, passport-money and taxes at a high rate. Failing to pay on the instant, the secret studs of horses and the more apparent goods of every kind, were appropriated and sold without the least compunction. The peasants were not allowed to leave the village, but were driven to work on the fields. Having formerly attended to nothing but horse-dealing, they were now almost destitute of the kind of produce necessary to human life. The old and infirm had to chop wood for the steward, the children gathered oak-nuts and cut grass in the woods, for his cows and pigs; his barns, stables and storehouses filled, as those of the peasants emptied. He became corpulent in substance as they grew lean and gaunt and hungry.

A sum equivalent to the purchase-money of the estate had already been realized; but this was not thought sufficient by Herr Hausen and his principal. They had not yet found any money; and money in hard cash there must be somewhere. Domiciliary visits had been made, the floors of the huts had been dug up, and every place the searchers could think of had been explored without success. At length, a Jew, one of those prowling, sharp-featured, wiry little fellows, who carry trinkets, gaudy-colored prints, handkerchiefs, and money, to exchange for corn, flax, feathers, and other peasant produce, at a profit of eight hundred per cent. or so, gave a hint to Herr Hansen for a percentage on the money found. Measures were taken accordingly, and one day these peasants—already shorn to the bone of everything else—were deprived of their nest-egg. Where it was found, or how much it was, I did not hear, but hard bullion to a considerable amount was transferred to the iron safe in the strong-room of the steward's house. The peasants were now poorer a thousand times than they had ever wished the kind generalshe to believe them.

What follows of the story I had partly from the old starost, as he lay in his hut dying from a gun-shot wound, and partly from Lucy Murray at an after-time.

One evening, four men stood at the end of a hut, shaking something in a felt hat. One of them put his hand in and drew; he told the result, and the operation was repeated. Then the four separated and took different paths through the village, saying a few words quietly at every door. It was a cold clear night, soon after twilight, and the moon had risen in an almost cloudless sky. Just as the old starost past the steward's gate, he met little Luey Murray going in.

"How do you do, starost? I hope your health is good. Good night. I must run to the house."

"Stay, maiden with the golden hair and the laughing eyes; tell me who there is now in yonder house besides the steward and his family."

"Madam Obrassoff and her daughter sleep there to-night. You know we came for the last instalment of the purchase-money of the estate."

"When do you go?"

"To-morrow morning. We should have gone to-night, but it is late to begin a journey, and the horses want rest. Why do you ask, starost?"

"Listen, daughter of the English, and let my words go into your heart and remain there. Tell the generalshe from her old starost, who loves her and hers, though he has often deceived her, that she must—do you hear me say must?—leave that house in less than an hour. God dooms it, and all in it, to destruction. Now tell her soon and secretly, but as you value her life and your own, tell it to none other but her. Go, and remember my words. Good-bye, English child, and may God give you happiness!"

So the starost passed on, with the Russian fiery cross.

In about an hour after this, groups of men in noiseless felt boots went their way to the church front. Each of them was armed with only one weapon, but it was a deadly one opposed to anything but firearms—the tapore, or Russian short axe. With this the Russian peasant can hew down trees, cut them into pieces and slabs, build houses, make windows or picture-frames, sharpen and mend pens or pencils, kill a wolf or a bear, make tables and chairs, cleave his enemy's head from the crown to the neck. These men met at the church, each with his tapore stuck in his belt, and resting on his hip. As each group approached the church, every individual turned his body so as to face the holy emblems, images and saints, the position of which he well knew, and, with more than ordinary devotion, bowed and crossed himself.

The starost lifted up his voice—"Brothers, many words, little deeds. Are you all ready and all willing?"

Each man drew from his belt the tapore, flourished it over his head, and answered—"Ready!"

"That is well. We east lots whether it should be to-night, and the answer was, 'Yes;' we east again, and the answer was, 'All.' Follow me, then."

The body of men moved on, and, but for the slight crisping under their felt boots, they moved like noiseless phantoms. They were in number about five hundred. Half way between the church and the steward's gate a carriage drove up; they opened to let it pass, and looked in. Madame Obrassoff, her daughter, and Lucy, pale as spectres, and quaking in every limb, sat inside. Every man of the murderous band uncovered his head and bowed. The old starost said, "Go in peace, kind woman and innocent girls. Thank God! They have heard my words." He little knew that Herr Hausen's two daughters and his wife were concealed in the bottom of the lumbering vehicle. Lucy had warned not only Madame Obrassoff, but the steward and his family. His son, a young man of eighteen, had stepped out on the instant, mounted a fleet horse, and galloped to the nearest town for soldiers.

Thus was the steward left alone to meet the storm he had raised. Most tyrants are cowards, and Herr Hausen did not belie the statement. When the hatchets began to beat at his doors and windows, he became at last convinced (for he had until then derided the idea) that he had raised a demon he could never lay. He fled for refuge to some wretched hiding place—as if any place in that great house could hide him from those who were now seeking his blood. His own domestics, all of them serfs to the village, joining the assailants, soon hunted him down and dragged him to the door, when he was commanded to give up the money he had robbed them of. With trembling limbs and pallid cheeks, he obeyed, yielded his keys, and begged on his knees for mercy. In the most abject fear and cowardly despair he offered them all that he possessed, promised forgiveness, and that he would reduce the obrok—anything, everything, for his life. But mercy he had never shown, and mercy they did not show him. The axes of fifty men glittered in the cold moonlight, and descended on his head. Then, when he was chopped to pieces, began the work of destruction. The wines and spirits found in the house added drunken madness to the madness of ignorant, despairing vengeance, and morning found the revolted serfs dancing wildly about the dying embers of what had lately been the steward's house, offices, stables, and store-rooms. No thought of consequences entered their benighted heads. They had recovered the lost money and a great deal more; they had feasted to satiety on the rich stores of the steward; best of all, they had killed their enemy as they would kill a wolf. But consequences were not slow to come. A cry of "Soldiers!" was raised. Surprised, they ran this way to be met by a volley of musketry, and they ran that way to meet another. Dead and wounded fell like rotten sheep. The tapores were thrown down, the peasants fell on their knees, screaming for mercy, and surrendered at discretion.

[For the Wizard.]

HOME.—How sweet is rest and a peaceful home to those who toil, apart from loved ones! They may find rest, happiness and friends where'er their footsteps may wander, but not the warm, gushing heart of childhood's home.—When fortune smiles, our friends, with flattering tongues, surround us, but when poverty ensues we may turn our eyes for them in vain. It is not so in the homes of our cherished ones—come weal or woe, their love to us is ever constant; their prayers ascend for us like incense, and in such a home are the soft tears of pity shed. How dear, then, are both home and friends to us here, where we may sweetly rest when the toils and cares of the day are ended! But in HEAVEN there is a home and friends still more dear, where those who meet and love shall no more part. GEORGIE.

QUAKER TOAST.—"This is me and mine to thee and thine. I wish when thou and thine come to see me and mine, that me and mine will treat thee and thine as kindly as thee and thine have treated me and mine." This is a new version of the old compliment, which runs somewhat after this wise:—"I wished thee and thy folks loved me and my folks as well as me and my folks love thee and thy folks. For sure, there never was folks since folks was folks, that ever loved folks half so well as me and my folks love thee and thy folks."

☞ As one of the results connected with the attack on Vicksburg, a rebel paper states, that a small Federal force penetrated Arkansas on the line of the Shreveport and Texas Railroad, thirty-eight miles, destroying the depot buildings, railroad bridges, government property, and to a large amount.

☞ The Irish are getting alarmed at the prospect of colored immigrants from the South coming in competition with them as laborers. They are natural enemies to each other.

☞ A very neat model of the horse car to be used on the Salem and South Danvers Railroad may be seen at the bookstore of George Creamer, Essex street, Salem.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1863.

DESPONDENCY.

The expressions of despondency for our national cause, which are now but too frequently escaping the lips of many, are greatly to be deplored. We have been engaged some two years combating the most monstrous, relentless and systematized rebellion the world ever saw or the heart of man conceived. The stake for which we play is no less than the Liberty of untold millions living and of their posterity in the ages to come. Yet because we have not in this short time—which is to the time to be affected but as the tick of the clock to the year—overcome the enemy, fully surpassed his organized revolt, baffled him in all his multiform attempts to overthrow the foundations of free government and good society, we lift our hands—that is, too many of us do—and exclaim: Alas! we have undertaken more than we can perform—the Confederacy, we fear, must be acknowledged!

Of the croakers, who whine in this strain of dolor, nothing need be said. It is known why they lament. Their tears are the crocodile's, and as such let them be heeded. But there are those who grieve out of the heaviness of heart. They really believe that all this blood and treasure and sorrow, past calculation, has been spent for naught—aye, worse than naught—for the abridgment of the area of Freedom and the extension of the area of Slavery. To such we say:—Take thought and cheer up. There is ample ground for cheer, if you but consider what has been done. Sit down of a night and review the accomplishments of the last twenty months—review them in close connection with the opposing influences and obstacles at home and abroad—the nameless forces begotten of slavery and the equally nameless machinations of European royalty—consider that, against such odds, the people of the free States have not only held their territory from the destroyer and pursued their avocations almost as in a state of profound peace—followed their trades, kept their schools—continued nearly all the departments of society in full action—but they have, in virtue, reclaimed from rebellion four or five States, either of which is as large as many a European kingdom, repossessed numerous forts, so pressed and hemmed in the insurgents that they now cry out in confession, "Save us, or we sink," (such, being interpreted, is their recent cry for more conscription) and last, but most glorious, have so waged, or been compelled to wage the war as to leave it beyond doubt that the doom of slavery is sealed forever. If, in all this, and more, we find nothing to rejoice over, and on which to base hope—if herein we find no evidence of progress, it is time to question the character of our faith and the ways of our reasoning. To place a government, such as the Emancipation Proclamation anticipates, on imperishable foundations, is a wondrous achievement. Do we expect to achieve wonders in a day? To rescue 250,000 square miles, or thereabouts, of territory from a desperate, armed power, is about one-third of the 900,000 square miles, or thereabouts, of the territory to be rescued. Is it nothing to have gained one-third of so vast a portion in less than two years? To regain territory in the state of things now existing, is to increase the means of regaining it and reduce the means by which it is withheld. Is there any logic therefore that warrants the apprehension of failure?

But there is a "clear conception outrunning the deductions of logic." Whoever you are, who despond, do you believe in God? that He overrules evil for good—that He makes the wrath of man to praise Him, and that, though long-suffering, He is just and justice is His? In the nature, not of things, but of the Author of things, is the rebellion to result in the triumph of oppression and the rolling back of civilization from that semi-barbarism from which mankind have advanced only through the terrible conflict of ages! Such is not the history of the world nor the ways of Providence. Let us, therefore, take heart and be firm. All this labor and distress of the nation cannot be to no purpose. All this heroic devotion of the soldiers of Freedom cannot be a fruitless sacrifice. All this wickedness of the enemies of the Republic cannot go unpunished.

"Shall all be vain? When Heaven's revenge is slow, Jove but prepares to strike the fiercer blow."

Our fathers considered seven years of war not too long if they might bequeathe us this Constitution of Government. Shall we consider two years of war too long in which to maintain it when assailed?

☞ Vallandigham and Saulsbury, with other traitors and buffoons in Congress, are laboring hard to defeat the bill for the enlistment of colored regiments for the war. This is perfectly natural and was to be expected of them. The organizing of blacks would tend to the damage of their bosom friends, the rebels.

CHIEF JUSTICE PARSONS.

Mr. Editor,—I esteem myself fortunate in having been one of the auditors at the lecture, last week, by Dr. Loring, before the Institute. It was a most eloquent and finished eulogy of one who has long been known, as one of the best, as well as one of the most gifted men of Old Essex. There was a charm in the voice, manner and language of the orator, which enchained the attention of the audience from the beginning to the close of the lecture. His prefatory enumeration of the Sons of Essex, whose career in all the departments of Science, Law, Politics, Divinity and Statesmanship, was calculated to raise a feeling of pride and consolation in all who hold in veneration the bright lights of our county, which has furnished to the whole country the spectacle of such a galaxy of stars of the first magnitude. The speaker was evidently an enthusiast on his illustrious subject, and portrayed his public and private career in words of burning fervor and eloquent panegyric. In his discussion of the foundation principles of our form of government, the limitations, and the importance of adhering to the spirit of constitutional forms, he was most powerful and convincing. The assumed right of secession was boldly denounced and all innovations condemned. His doctrines of State Rights were those held by our fathers of the old Federal party. It was a political lecture, but in no sense a party one. His parallel between Parsons and Story was well sustained, and decidedly in favor of the former. On the whole it was a production fully up to the standard of the best of our first class lecturers.

* * *

LECTURES.

There has been a great change since Lyceums were first established, which is within the memory of the present generation. At first they were free to the audience, and the lectures were given gratuitously. Then a small-priced season ticket was adopted. Still the lecturers were mostly procured without pay, being mostly clergymen and young lawyers and physicians. At length a sum was paid equal to travelling expenses or a little more. As the system became popular, and audiences increased, men of eminence in the professions, or in public life, were called upon and accepted the usual fee of five or ten dollars. It was for the latter sum that Hon. Charles Sumner used to lecture in this place at Upton's Hall. At this extravagant price it was rather difficult to sustain a course of some ten lectures, and the expedient of obtaining a popular singer for a concert was adopted. This was a good card at the beginning of a course, as it helped the sale of season tickets in addition to the change received at the door for a single attendance. The usual lecturers of that day would hardly satisfy a modern audience, and the modern lecturer would hardly be satisfied with the former compensation. Although some of the best men may now be had for $25, those who have a great name as lecturers, demand $50, $75 or $100—and are quite indifferent at these prices.

CO. C, FIFTH REGIMENT.

We learn that Captain Daniels has sent the handsome sum of $1838 00, from members of his company to their friends at home, and placed it in the hands of George A. Osborne, Cashier of the Danvers Bank, for distribution. Those who are interested will receive their several amounts by calling upon him at bank hours. The sheet, containing the names of the members of the company, the amounts remitted, the person to whom payable, and the column for signatures, is elegantly drawn up in a business-like and clerkly style by Capt. Daniels.

Correction.—In our remarks, in a late paper, in reference to Mr. Colman Farrington, we stated that he had received his discharge. This was incorrect, or, at least, premature. We supposed that of course a man, having passed through as much as he has, and with such a disabling wound, had been honorably discharged from the service. The fact is, he is at home on a 40 days furlough, and hardly able to move himself in consequence of his wound. His prompt discharge, under these circumstances, must be a thing of course.

The French in Mexico. — The French have suffered another defeat in Mexico. It must be anything but flattering to the military pride of that warlike nation and its military Emperor to find their forces repeatedly repulsed. They have some 30,000 men in that country who are routed and driven back on the same ground where our Scott, with his 8,000 men, made a rapid and easy conquest of the whole country, and dictated terms of peace at the capital of the nation.

☞ Since the expose of the Cate robberies, the papers inform us of the doings of a Western college student, who has pursued an almost identical career of indiscriminate plunder. This prig may therefore be considered a dupli-Cate of our own burglar.

Corporal FRANK PIERCE.

This brave young soldier, who fell at Whitehall, N. C., held more than an ordinary place in the memory of our readers, on account of his graphic and interesting narrative of the "March of the Eighth Mass. Regiment to Washington," which was published in this paper. Wherever he was known he was esteemed and beloved, and the letter below from Major Chambers is a new tribute to his memory. No one who read his narration referred to but must have admired the evidences of pure and lofty patriotism which abound in it, and lament the sudden stop put to his career:

Headquarters, 23d Mass. Vols,
Camp Pendleton, Newbern, Jan. 5th.

Madame,—Your letter of the 29th came to hand yesterday. Your brother, Frank Pierce, was shot through the neck at the battle of Whitehall, on the 16th of December. He died, as I learn from his comrades, almost instantly. At the time of his death I was at another part of the line, and only knew the particulars from those who saw him. His body was removed to the rear and afterwards interred. The place is now within the enemy's lines. A flag of truce was sent out a few days ago, when some of the officers of another regiment accompanied it, for the purpose of procuring the bodies of brother officers. They found one or two, but many of the bodies had been disinterred and removed by the enemy. I do not think it would be possible to obtain Corp. Pierce's body now, but should we at some future time hold possession of that place, I will apprize you, in order that you may take the proper measures to recover the body.

I tender you my heartfelt sympathy in this your hour of affliction, and while we respectively mourn the loss of a dear relative and a brave comrade, yet we still find consolation in the fact that he died as becomes those who have assumed the soldier's garb, in defence of that government, under which we have received so many blessings, and which we hope, by the will of God, to maintain. Corp. Pierce was a brave soldier, and good officer, and a man beloved by all with whom he had dealings. Ever ready to obey, and always to be found when his duty called him, his loss will be deeply felt, and deplored. That God may sanctify this loss to all his friends for their good, is the earnest prayer of his commanding officer.

Maj. J. G. Chambers.

☞ It would appear that the strong heart of brother Greeley, of the N. Y. Tribune, is waxing faint in regard to the speedy suppression of the rebellion. He thinks that if three months more do not produce some very decided results, we might as well hang up the fiddle and relinquish the job. Brother Greeley is about half right. If the Government, in ninety days more, cannot make a spoon, it had better conclude that the utmost its ability admits of consists in spoiling a very good horn. But let us be of good cheer, friend Greeley, and comfort ourselves with Cowper's verse, slightly altered,

"Ye fainting souls, fresh courage take,
The foe you so much dread
Are also faint, half starved, and shake,—
Or so we hear it said."

☞ The hearts and hopes of all loyal citizens are now turned with one accord to Vicksburg and to the great enterprise in progress against that stronghold of rebellion. Charleston, Savannah and Wilmington, which are threatened at this time of writing, are mere side issues, and cannot divert attention from the great undertaking in the West. We must hope that our troops have profited by the light of past experience and previous attempts, and will this time be successful. Until Vicksburg and Port Hudson are taken, and the Mississippi opened, the war for the Union cannot be said to advance much.

Franklin Club.—The next meeting of this Club will be held at the Town Hall, on Monday evening next, at 7 o'clock. Question for discussion: "Was the removal of General McClellan from the Command of the army of the Potomac a judicious measure." Disputants, aff., Isaac Hardy, N. J. Holden. Neg., Jacob Perley, H. O. Wiley. The debates thus far by the association, have been decidedly interesting. The public are invited to attend.

Off the Track.—An engine, coming into the Essex Railroad Station last Saturday from Boston, ran off the track owing to the displacement of the switch. The engine was considerably injured, but no other damage occurred. After some delay, the iron horse was drawn again upon the track.

☞ It appears that the brave defenders of Arkansas Post had fully made up their minds to die in the "last ditch," but some faint soul among their number, in a rheumatic body, perhaps, raised the white flag of surrender and balked their design. Thus again, for the hundreth time, has an untoward accident defeated the intentions of our rebel friends and plucked from their brows the crown of martyrdom.

ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

Camp 5th Regt., Mass. Vols.,
Newbern, N. C., Jan. 16th, '63.

Dear Friend,—Yours of the 4th inst. is received, and I take this, my first opportunity, to reply. I am enjoying the campaign much better than I had anticipated, although many things, connected with camp life, make it exceedingly repulsive and disagreeable. Profanity and intemperance are the curse and bane of camp and field. I have seen nothing yet so demoralizing to the soldier as these vices. Could these be eradicated from the army a great benefit to the prosperity and welfare of the nation would most certainly follow. Yet I am not certain that these vices are more prevalent in the army than at home, but that they are more conspicuous is certain. At home these vices are among the hidden things of society, while in camp they assume a revealed and bold front. A person possessing sound moral principles will not, in my judgment, be injured by connecting himself with the army.

This is a war of justice and right, and when a man perceives its true moral bearing and gives his strength earnestly to its support he is made morally better, for he is then fighting to uphold a moral principle. I am not among the number who believe this war to be a terrible scourge to the country. I confess it is sad to see so many yielding up their lives to sustain laws; yet out of all this bloodshed and sacrifice will come prosperity, freedom, justice, righteousness and purity. I look confidently forward for a happy and peaceful future for our nation. You asked me concerning the effect of the President's Proclamation among the soldiers. So far as I am able to judge from observation, all concede it to be the most just and humane act of the Administration. It leaves the soldier a tangible principle for which to fight, and I suppose you are aware that previous to Jan. 1st, 1863, the objects for which we were fighting were obscure and various in the opinions of the soldiers. The Proclamation brings the object of the war down to the comprehension of all; and now seeing clearly the object, they strike willingly at the cause—human slavery. Does any one harbor the thought that our cause can fail with this principle in view?

I have heard no words of censure from the lips of the soldiers concerning the Proclamation, but on the contrary have heard much in its favor. All are ready to acknowledge it an act of justice on the part of President Lincoln and are willing to test its workings.

I noticed in the Wizard of Dec. 31st a letter written by John L. Waterman which does some injustice to Co. C, by way of giving a wrong impression to its readers. He there states that the men in Co. C, (So. D. Co.) do not seem to fancy a soldier's life. Such may "seem" to be the case, but nevertheless is not really so. I know that Co. C, or at least a majority, would be willing to sacrifice anything or everything, if need be, rather than have a peace grow out of the present state of affairs. There may be a few members of the Co. who are absolutely sick and tired of this war and perhaps grumble a little, but they are so few and unpatriotic as to be unworthy a mention. I am well aware that all of the boys of the Co. would like very much to go home, but it is also true with every other soldier in the army. None are more willing to serve the country than myself, and none are more devoted to home and friends. Yet this does not prove us to be tired and unpatriotic soldiers, but, on the contrary, proves us to be patriotic, for the stronger one's attachment to home and friends, the greater his patriotism, if he leave them to fight for his country. I do not suppose friend Waterman intended to give an erroneous impression concerning us, yet I fear it may be so construed by some. You may say to our friends that Co. C, is "O. K." and that we are ready to match our patriotism with any other Co. in the army. We are not willing to dispose of our love of country at a discount until we have been tried and found wanting.

North Carolina is not a garden of paradise, although many have been "driven out" for their wickedness. The eastern portion of the state is almost wholly a tar-making country. Few plantations, however, dot the banks of the rivers, but everything on and about them is untidy in appearance. A little farm in N. England to live upon with N. E. privileges is worth more than all I have yet seen in N. C. There are some very pretty little towns in this part of the state, although they lack Yankee taste and enterprise.

The inhabitants have nearly all fled to the interior, with the exception of the old and decrepid. All, or nearly all of the male portion of society, able to bear arms, are in the rebel army. Talk of Unionism in N. Carolina! There is none. All are bitter traitors, bitter as Lakman's gourd. We have a few men here in Newbern who are good union loving citizens, but they are mostly Northern men by birth. Mr. Jacobs, whom So. Danvers claims as her son, is a Unionist, "dyed in the wool" and no threats of the rebels could make him disavow his allegiance to Uncle Sam. He seems to us like a father; when any of us are ailing we immediately take shelter under his paternal and hospitable roof and are very soon restored to health and strength.

An expedition is on the tapis, but its destination is yet a secret. Our Regt. with eight or ten others are to be left behind to garrison Newbern.

Many contrabands flock to this department and are employed in government, service receiving eight dollars per month for their labor. The negroes, as a class, are much more intelligent than they have been represented at the North. If a person wishes to learn just nothing of the South and her institutions he has only to consult the common class of whites, and he will gain the desired information, but if he wishes to learn something, then he has to consult the negro and the information is forthcoming.

G. F. Barnes.

☞ It must be conceded, we think, that there is a wonderful vitality in the rebel constitution. Almost every newspaper assures us that they are in an awful state of consternation, starvation, demoralization and apprehension; yet, notwithstanding all these afflictions, bodily and mental, they manage to keep the rebellion going with tolerable success, occasionally administering some very unpalatable staggerers to us. The truth is, they have another element among them expressed in one mere word ending in "ion," and that is "concentration." "By this sign have they conquered" on too many unfortunate occasions.

☞ At the last accounts gold had risen to 160 1-4, and U. S. Sixes to 94 1-4. The rise of the latter is much greater than that of short sixes, which have not advanced to near the figure we might have expected, considering the rates at which tobacco, by the plug, is now held. Long nines are not alluded to in the latest quotations.

☞ David G. Lake, of this town, (late Sergt. of Co. B, 24th Regt., Mass. Vols.,) has been commissioned 1st Lieutenant of Co. A, 1st Regt. North Carolina Union Vols., and detailed to take charge of contrabands at Washington, North Carolina.

☞ The London Times hauls its old friend, Jeff. Davis, over the coals on account of his retaliatory message. Any one who would incur the censure of the Times, on moral grounds, must be a detestable rascal indeed.

☞ The army of the Rappahannock is once more stopped by mud. This obstacle appears to be written in our Book of Fate, or, more properly speaking, our Tal*mud*.

☞ General Hooker, it is said, has chalked out his campaign. It is to be hoped that his chalk won't be wasted, and that the troops will toe the mark.

FIRST ELECTION OF MR. SUMNER.

A well-informed writer in the Boston Commonwealth brings to light a bit of history which is of some importance, and especially interesting at this time. The writer's estimation of the high character for honor and independence of our townsman, will be admitted as truthful by all who know him, however much they may differ from him in opinion.—We place the fact on record as one item in the history of our old Commonwealth:

"To Henry A. Hardy of South Danvers, in my judgment, belongs the glory of electing Mr. Sumner, for I consider it (under the circumstances) both an honor and glory for him thus to have voted.—He had constantly, conscientiously,—and persistently, opposed Mr. Sumner until the last ballot, and then yielded on conviction that he had been mistaken in his estimate of his character and conduct.—Many of the friends of Mr. Sumner, (and no man had truer, or more unselfish friends,) frequently met together to consult and advise, each determined within the rules of honor and principle to do his utmost to bring about his election; and here let me say that everything was conducted fairly and honorably, maugre the charges of Hunker Whigs and Democrats that there was bribery, corruption and log-rolling. When the history of his election is "fully known," the high-minded and honest conduct of the Free Soil party will be made manifest. Lists of the members of the Legislature were made out, and each selected the names of such members as he supposed likely ultimately to vote for Mr. Sumner. The writer had then no personal acquaintance with Mr. Hardy, only knowing him by reputation as a liberal-minded Democrat. He sought an introduction, and found him laboring under the delusion that Mr. Sumner was a disunionist—(a rare animal in those days in Massachusetts, more horrible than the devil, in the eyes of some Whigs and Democrats, but now quite a pet in many of their households.) He had never seen Mr. Sumner, or read his speeches. Upon being asked would he read them? he assented; they were handed to him and passages marked, likely to disabuse him of his erroneous impression. The day before the election he declared to me that he should vote for Mr. Sumner. He kept his promise, and has never regretted it. Subsequently he returned the volumes, declining to keep them as I desired him to do, thus showing his delicacy of feeling, and high sense of honor.

Twelve years have passed since that election, the events are still fresh in my memory. I have always regarded this act of Mr. Hardy as a most praiseworthy act, and honored him for his manly independence. His own conscience was his "vindication."

TOWN TAXES.

We present below the list of tax payers of $50 and upwards for the present year. Some names appear in it for the first time, as the rate is higher than ever before, being $106 to the thousand dollars. All understand that our increased rate is a necessity of the times, and it is pleasant to hear that the taxes are paid more readily and with less complaint than in former and more favorable years:

Lewis Allen,	$360.81
" " Trustee,	131.44
Nathaniel Annable,	119.66
Albert Abbott,	52.88
Joshua Buxton,	185.91
Joshua Buxton, Jr.,	64.54
William Berry,	52.35
Samuel Brown, Jr.,	86.68
Alpheus W. Bancroft,	86.68
William Bushby,	69.84
Joseph Bushby,	53.41
John M. Berry,	69.84
Rufus H. Brown,	69.31
Henry Bushby,	122.84
John C. Burbeck,	94.75
Sidney C. Bancroft,	185.91
Samuel Brown,	137.68
Stephen Blaney,	199.16
Daniel Brown,	59.77
Joseph Brown,	52.88
Warren Bank,	106.00
William H. Brown,	64.54
Jonathan Buxton,	51.29
Daniel Buxton, Jr.,	100.05
Edward Buxton,	112.24
Henry Cook,	283.96
Samuel Crane,	71.96
Andrew Curtis,	68.25
Thomas W. Carr,	63.48
Aaron F. Clark,	79.38
Clark & Co.,	56.18
Elbridge G. Cook,	130.26
Robert S. Daniels,	172.66
David Daniels,	78.32
Moses Dole's Estate,	53.00
William T. Dole,	119.13
Jonathan Dustin's Estate,	473.82
Isaac Elliot's Estate,	163.24
Isaac B. Elliot,	96.34
Lewis W. Elliot,	123.37
Joseph Fairfield,	71.96
Stephen Fernald,	102.70
Nathaniel Felton,	84.68
John Frost,	233.03
Elijah Flint's Estate,	54.59
Benj. Goodridge,	101.64
Henry Gardner,	489.60
Perley Goodale,	55.53
Asa Gardner's Estate,	124.26
Alerson Galeucia,	52.35
Isaac Hardy,	166.83
Joseph S. Hodgkins,	76.20
Benjamin Hutchinson,	263.82
Mrs. B. Howard,	75.26
John Herrick,	60.30
N. W. Horton & Co.,	182.32
Joseph Jacobs,	100.05
Warren M. Jacobs,	253.75
W. M. Jacobs & Son,	89.04
Jonathan King,	804.95
Amos King,	58.71
Phebe King,	290.44
Eben King,	429.71
Perley and E. U. King,	88.51
Perley King,	290.85
Henry A. King,	287.67
Eben U. King,	230.96
James P. King,	307.28
Samuel P. C. King,	271.24
Obadiah Kimball,	179.02
D. Webster King,	76.20
William W. Little's Estate,	128.26
John A. Lord,	75.67
William N. Lord,	75.67
Charles P. Lowe,	124.96
Wm. H. Little,	102.70
Plummer Little,	129.20
James Marsh,	108.00
Mary Marsh,	60.42
Philip Marsh,	83.09
Wingate Merrill,	89.45
Isaac Munroe,	62.42
Henry M. Merrill,	50.24
Stephen P. Needham,	56.06
Nelson & Merrill,	58.83
Kendall Osborn,	184.32
Amos Osborn,	161.00
Franklin Osborn,	237.20
Joseph Osgood,	62.42
Daniel Osborn,	102.70
Joshua Osborn,	58.18
Caleb W. Osborn,	86.80
Amos Osborn, 2d,	52.88
Caleb Osborn,	170.01
Sylvester Osborn,	254.28
Dr. Geo. Osborne,	321.06
Miles Osborn,	174.25
Douglass Osborn,	62.42
Ann F. Osborn,	74.10
R. L. Osborn,	74.20
Henry C. Poor,	94.22
Joseph Poor,	67.72
Henry Poor,	242.62
John W. Proctor, Trustee,	78.44
James Perry,	87.86
Levi Preston,	135.03
Abel Preston,	57.65
John Peaslee,	94.22
Samuel D. Pendar,	136.62
Eben S. Poor,
Andrew Porter,
Daniel Proctor,
Abel Proctor,
Enoch Page,
Mrs. I. F. Proctor,
Stephen Peabody,
N. P. C. Patterson,
Pinder & Brown,
Moses Preston,
Thorndike Proctor,
Abel J. Proctor's Estate,
John Ruth,
Joseph W. Reed,
Jonas Reed,
Mrs. H. S. Robbins,
Asa Russell's Estate,
Eben Sutton,
Augustus H. Sanger,
A. and A. H. Sanger,
Levi Spaulding,
Abner Sanger,
Charles Simonds,
Thomas Stimpson,
Stimpson & Floyd,
Richard Smith,
Miles O. Stanley,
Jonathan Shillaber,
Samuel Symonds,
Thomas A. Sweetser,
William Sutton, Jr.,
Edward Southwick,
Wm. Sutton,
Henry Saltonstall,
" " as guar
" " as trus
Andrew Torr,
Jefferson Taylor,
Geo. P. Tilton,
Benjamin Taylor,
Eben S. Upton,
Eben Upton's Estate,
Mutual Union Store,
Franklin Upton,
David Upton,
George Upton,
Elijah W. Upton,
Mrs. S. Wilson,
Silas Wilson,
John Wilson,
Samuel Wilson,
Benjamin Wilson,
Benj. S. Wheeler,
Benj. Wheeler,

NON-RESIDENTS.

Richard S. Rogers, Salem,
James M. Caller, Salem,
Francis Dane, Boston,
Francis Dane & Co.,
Thomas Brown, Marblehea
Mrs. S. P. King, Andover,
Theop. W. Walker, Walth

☞ Gold keeps up at 60a6 This makes a great differenc New York banks that now 549,794 in specie. Some of if they could dispose of the g in paper, might now make sp dends; the Chemical Bank, f has a capital of $30,000, and millions in specie. The Par and a quarter millions in s there are a dozen others havi to three millions.

☞ Gen. Fitz John Porte just been cashiered, is a nati mouth, and a graduate of W He served with credit in th war, where he appears to have est and active. He appea friends, notwithstanding the the court martial and his from command. Persons in present him a sword, and the cil of New York has tendere ception.

Harbor Defences.—Gen. has been recently assigned to ment of the East, including al east of New York, has entere ly into the discharge of his The different harbors and fort partment will be put in a pe The forts on the sea coast strongly fortified, and will strengthened and put in an i state of defence.

Thermometers.—Our nei B. F. Stevens, has an elegant thermometer for sale, at the l 25 cents. This is a beauti and its cheapness will recom an ornament in every house. V ing at this admirable article, his store look around at the gr of useful and elegant artic abound in his store.

☞ Whole number of birth vers, for the year 1862.

Males,
Females,
Children of foreign parents
" " parents both n born citizens of the tow
No. of deaths during the y
Marriage certificates issue

Hamilton and Ipswich. Kimball, Esq., was elected Re tive to the General Court, from Representative District, on Mo in place of George W. Heard, signed.

☞ A California pear just New York weighs three pounds ounces. It is of the duchess leme graft.

ll Phillips, at the head of a dele- i-slavery men from Boston, lately President to urge the removal of from the Cabinet. The President have heard them at great length at interest.

ichmond Whig in announcing that officers are in confinement, says held "until Butler shall have been for punishment, and the men will until the abolition magnates con- them on our terms."

ebel prisoners captured at Murfrees inity, number 3500, representing and 145 regiments. This is about number of Federal troops, the re- have captured.

Republicans of the New York As- e succeeded in electing Mr. Calli- r. There were about one hundred the election was made by the Re- minating a Democrat.

hear that Gov. Andrew upon his n Washington, will at once enter ganization of a regiment of colored Massachusetts.

tter from a member of the 41st Reg- that Gen. Banks stated on board the that they would have long marches, ng, and would be at home in six ingle drop of water has 500,000,000 a number equal to the human popu- the globe. People must be careful ink much water.

TH REGIMENT, Lieut. Col. Fellows ing, at Newbern, January 1st, report- n for duty, and 205 sick. One man o the enemy Dec. 15th.

mall pox is beginning to rear its filthy his State. Cases in Fall River are re- ought from Washington or the camps contrabands introduced it.

he defeat of the French troops in Mex- vs us how hard a war of invasion is, inst a weak people united in resistance.

he Tribune says there are fresh indica- t government is to call the blacks into en. Fremont is being pressed upon the ment to supereede Gov. Stanley in North a.

A daughter of Gen. Lee, the rebel, died h Carolina a short time since.

SW ORGAN IN KENTUCKY.—A projeet is for the establishment of a newspaper in lle, Kentucky, which will express the nd advocate the policy of the emanci- sts of that State. The gentlemen who riginated this idea, and who will carry ugh, are mostly slaveholders, and are all wealth and high position in society; ll they, when they have onee put their to the plow, look back.

IC.—We have received from the Music of D. B. Brooks & Brother, (Music Rooms, Central St.) a new comic schottische, d "Sally Come Up," as performed by ey's Opera Troupe. Messrs. Brooks & er are extending their Piano and Melo- business. They now sell new fine toned, ive Pianos. with the latest improvements, 185. Customers may rely on being well d by the Messrs. B.

tice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

SPOOL COTTONS.

e shall open to-day 100 Dozen Findlay's tle Cotton, in Colors: 100 yard Spools— anted—at 3 cts. per Spool.
JOHN P. PEABODY.

ARGAINS.—Read PEABODY'S adv't.

ID FRONT SKIRTS. See PEABODY'S adv't.

POOL COTTONS.—The attention of the Ladies alled to adv't headed "Spool Cottons."

LOSING.—See adv't headed "Spool Cot- s."

☞ Call and look at the HUDSON BAY SA- ES, at OSBORNE'S.

Notice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

Musical.

The Members of the SOUTH DANVERS USICAL ASSOCIATION are requested to eet at the Vestry of Rev. Mr. BARBER'S hurch, on Monday Evening, February 9th.

A full attendance is requested.

South Danvers, Jan 28, 1863. 2w

Marriages.

In Salem, Feb 1st, by Rev Dr Briggs, Mr Dennison P Moore, of South Danvers, to Miss Sarah E Reynolds of Salem.

In Providence, R I, Jan 25, Mr William M Hooper to Miss Abbie H Dixey, both of Marblehead.

Deaths.

In South Danvers, Jan 20th, Mary Ellen, daughter of James and Honora Callahan, 2 yrs 5 months.

In Rockville, Feb 1st, Alvina, daughter of David and Sarah Carleton, 22 yrs 6 mos.

In Charlestown, Feb 2d, Mrs Mary B, wife of Charles E. Moore, aged 21 yrs 2 mos 1 day. [The funeral will take place this (Wednesday) afternoon, at 2 o'clock, from the house of Mr. Dennison Moore, on Holten st. Friends and relatives are invited.]

In Danversport, Jan 28, Mr Samuel Whipple, 82 years. He was a Christian of a blameless life, and was a member of the Baptist Church for fifty-six years.

In Danvers, Jan 29, Mr John Smith, 49.

In Salem, Jan 27, Mrs Nancy, widow of the late Capt John Glover, 73 yrs; Mr John Gorman, 32 years.

28th, Frederick W, son of Washington T and Alvina Sanborn, 1 year.

29th, Mrs Sarah, wife of Mr William Huddell, 52 yrs.

2d inst. Mr David A Babcock, 31.

Physicians' Notice.

The Physicians of Danvers have unanimously agreed that, on and after MARCH 1st, 1863, they will charge 75 cents per visit.

Danvers, Jan. 6th, 1863.

Omnibus Notice.

On and after Thursday, Jan. 15, 1863—for the better accommodation of the public—the Omnibus fare between South Danvers and Salem will be FIVE CENTS, or 22 Tickets for One Dollar.

Passengers called for or left off the regular route, 15 cents, or 25 cents for two.

January 14 H. M. MERRILL.

Save your Rags and Paper!

The subscriber will pay the highest prices in CASH for Rags and Paper. By giving seasonable notice he will call at the houses of those who wish to dispose of their rags.

"A penny saved is as good as a penny earned."

So Poor Richard says.

SUMNER SOUTHWICK.

South Danvers, Jan 14, 1863.

James F. Almy.

JAN. 27, 1863.

WE offer to-day a stock of

CLOAKS, SHAWLS,

—AND—

Winter Dress Goods

At REDUCED PRICES TO CLOSE.

JAMES F. ALMY,

jan 14 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

— We offer a fine stock of —

Bleached & Brown Cottons

All widths—at lowest prices.

— Also —

A FULL STOCK OF DOMESTIC GOODS.

JAMES F. ALMY,

jan 28 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

Advertisements.

SPOOL COTTONS.

We are selling Spool Cottons at less than Wholesale Prices—and shall sell at present prices during this week—and would advise our customers to purchase a good stock, as the prices must advance.

We have Taylor's—Clark's—Findlay's—Stafford & Bro's—and Excelsior Cottons, at from 3 cts to 10 cts per Spool—and from 30 cts to $1 - 10 per dozen.

JUST OPENED.

Worsted Braids—all colors;
Worsted Braids by the yard;
Black Kid Gloves—all sizes;
Colored Kid Gloves—Emb'd;
Colored Kid Gloves—Plain;
Elastic Braids and Cords;
Corsets—new and superior;
Skirts—new style, Kid Fronts;

CLOSING.

Closing all our Skating Hats;
Closing all our Ladies' Hoods;
Closing all our Clouds;
Closing all our Sontags;
Closing all our Worsteds;
Closing all our Mittens;
Closing all our Woolen Goods.

220 ESSEX ST., SALEM,
JOHN. P. PEABODY.

SLATING. SLATING.

GEORGE FOWLER & COMPA'Y,

NO. 2 ST. PETER COURT., SALEM, respectfully inform their friends and the citizens of this and neighboring towns and cities that they are prepared to execute all orders for Slating, promptly and faithfully.

Roofs covered with any description of Slates, or repaired at short notice.

All work undertaken will be warranted.

Address—Box 366, Salem Post Office.

Salem, January 28—1863. tf

The Clothes Wringer

JUST OBTAINED

RHOADES' CELEBRATED

NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER,

THE VERY BEST YET INVENTED,

AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING MACHINE.

CALL AND EXAMINE.

For Sale by E. SOUTHWICK,

At the EQUITY GROCERY STORE,

South Danvers, Jan 21, 1863. 3m

WALLETS & CURRENCY HOLDERS.

MANY new styles and desirable patters—received from the manufacturers—at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
feb 4. 190 Essex Street, Salem.

DIARIES--1863-

AN excellent assortment at the lowest prices, for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

LINSEED OIL.

SPIRITS Turpentine, Japan Drying and Varnish, es, constantly for sale by
S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st, Salem.

NEW BOOKS

At G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, 190 Essex st. Salem:
Verner's Pride, a Tale of Domestic Life. by Mrs Wood;
Lady Audley's Secret, a Novel, by M E Bradden;
My Diary North and South—by William Howard Russell;
Eclectic Magazine—February.

Browning & Long.

POINT DE VENICE

SKIRTS.

SOMETHING ENTIRELY NEW.

NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

BROWNING & LONG have received their Spring Skirts, being of New Shape and Design, Kid Fronts and Springs Securely Fastened.

In the "Point de Venice" will be found a perfect Skirt, being of a beautiful shape, and having attached to it a Kid Bodice, which fits closely to the form, making it a graceful and durable Skirt, and especially adapted to the present style of fitting dresses.

Receiving our Skirts direct from the manufacturers, we are enabled to show a fine assortment of New Styles, and can offer them at

VERY LOW PRICES.

NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

BROWNING & LONG,

(Successors to J. Mayer.)

Jan. 28. 177 Essex Street.

John P. Peabody.

NEW GOODS.

CORSETS—New style—superior in quality, finish and shape—a new thing—every size—just opened.

KID GLOVES—All the desirable shades in fresh goods—in plain and embroidered—Black, white and colored.

SKIRTS—A new and superior Skirt at old prices. Every Skirt we sell, we warrant to be the best material and make.

CLOSING—All our German Worsteds—all our Woolen Hoods—all our Clouds and Sontags—all our Skating Hats—all our Woolen Hosiery—at Closing Prices.

220 ESSEX STREET,
Jan 28 J. P. PEABODY.

LARGE SALES
AND SMALL PROFITS.

THE NEWEST STYLES!

BROWNING & LONG

Have just opened the following articles, being of the Datest Importation and New Patterns:

STEEL PINS;
STEEL CROSSES;
STEEL CUFF PINS;
STEEL EAR RINGS;
STEEL BELT CLASPS;
STEEL BELT PINS;
CORNELIAN SHAWL PINS;
PEARL SLEEVE BUTTONS;
JET AND STEEL BUTTONS;
CUT STEEL BUTTONS;
NEW SLIPPER PATTERNS;
JET BONNET TRIMMINGS.

NEW GOODS constantly received—we are thus able to show our customers the newest the market affords.

BROWNING & LONG,

SUCCESSORS TO

J. MAYER,

☞ No. 177 Essex Street, ☜

FIRST CLASS GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

The remainder of our

Knit Zephyr Goods

To be sold at REDUCED PRICES.

Salem, Jan 28, 1863.

T. HARDY, JR.,

—Dealer in—

DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,

Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,

FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,

No. 26 FRONT STREET,

Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

IHLSING & NARVESON'S

Celebrated New Full 7 Octave

PIANO FORTES,

OF superior tone and finish, plain and ornamental, nameboard inlaid with pearl, full iron frame, grand aetion, overstrung bass pearl or ivory keys, plain or carved legs, are for sale at

218 Essex Street, Salem, Up Stairs.

Any one wishing to obtain a superior instrument is invited to call before purchasing elsewhere.

jan 7—tf S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

KEROSENE LANTERMS.

KEROSENE Stand and Hand Lamps, and Fog Lamps. Also Wicks and Chimneys—for sale b
S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

PAPER SHADES.

A FINE assortment of Paper Shades for Kerosene Lamps, just opened at
S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

George S. Walker.

AT REDUCED PRICES.

GEORGE S. WALKER

Offers his Winter Stock of

Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods,

SUCH as All-Wool, Merino, and Silk Shirts and Drawers,

HOSIERY, GLOVES, SCARFS,

And other Seasonable Goods,

At such Reduced Prices as will make it for the interest of purchasers to examine before purchasing elsewhere, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
jan 28 228 Essex st. Stearns' Block.

"A Penny Saved is a Penny Gained."

THE PRICE OF COTTON IS ADVANCING! Now is the time to order SHIRTS and COLLARS. The finer qualities made to order, sewed by hand, and warranted to fit.

Also, in stock, bought for CASH, before the advance, my usual variety and sizes of

READY-MADE SHIRTS AND COLLARS.

GEORGE S. WALKER,
jan 28 228 Essex St., Salem.

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,

FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,

Central street, South Danvers,

HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.

He keeps as good an assortment of

COFFINS AND CASKETS,

as can be found at any establishment, and at the lowest prices.

He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.

All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

SOUTH DANVERS

POST OFFICE.

GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.

MAILS CLOSE

At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.

MAILS DUE

At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.

Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.

F. POOLE, P. M.

South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetery, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.
South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

FOR SALE.

A GOOD comfortable Home, a two-story House, L, Shed and Barn, in good repair, pleasantly located in Londonderry, N. H., 1 1-2 miles from center of town, 10 acres of Land, with plenty of Fruit. Price only $650.

Also—an excellent Stock Farm of 250 acres, for sale or exchange.

dec 31 L. BRICKETT, Derry, N. H.

FRANKLIN COAL.

JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL —the best in the world for domestic use.
POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

E. N. PRICE,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

HARNESSES,
SADDLES, BRIDLES,
AND WHIPS.

— ALSO —

Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.

All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.

237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
mch13-tf

Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

GAYLE & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

DEALERS IN

Flour, Grain and Produce,

Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of

Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.

PHILLIPS WHARF, - - - - Salem.

REMOVAL!

AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,

Manufacturer and Repairer of

BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to ontinue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

D. W. BOWDOIN,

—ARTIST IN—

PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.

Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]

Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambro type, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.

☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

EXTRA HEAVY SHEETINGS.

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS

A FINE assortment—for sale at low prices at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
jy 14 190 Essex Street, Salem.

NEW BOOKS.

STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom;
Fire Light; or Stories for Domestics, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;
Gardener's Monthly—January;
Harper's Weekly; Genealogical Register;
Historical Collections, October, 1862.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
At the old stand of H Whipple & Son

A. J. Archer & Co

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

Have on hand a full supply of

BROWN SHEETINGS AND SHIRTINGS;

BLEACHED SHEETINGS & SHIRTINGS;

— Also —

GREY TWILLED FLANNELS;

WHITE FLANNELS.

— Also —

BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,

which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES.

Salem, January 28—6w

SALESMAN WANTED.

APPLY at 181 Essex street, Salem.
A. J. ARCHER, & CO.

H. & H. G. HUBON,

WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM

Manufacturers of

Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood

COFFINS and CASKETS.

MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.

dec 14—tf

Rare Chance for Bargains.

CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of

JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,

AND FANCY GOODS,

At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER

Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,
Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Ware,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.

at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.

This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Refurnishing the Table, &c.

Old Silver taken in exchange.

☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.

JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

W. E. P. SMYTH,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.

Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,

LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to the in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.

Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow.
2d. The Children.
3d. The Father.
4th. The Mother.
5th The Brothers and Sisters collectively.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken ou, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.

When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All these who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditor's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay in getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.

Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1y

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, o which the Mackie took the First Premium at the lat Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.

BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook.
South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862. tf

Tenements to Let.

ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $54 per year.

One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.

One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.

One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.

One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

MUNROE'S

(LATE REED'S)

SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON

RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at		10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " " at		5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at		3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " " at		5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.

Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.

EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.

Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.

Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.

Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed:

WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

E. F. BURNHAM,

SOLE AGENT FOR

SARGENT & CO.S'

MAGIC SOAP

For South Danvers & Salem.

OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.

Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.

Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

INNER SOLES,

AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.

2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

THOMAS PINNOCK,

SLATER,

SALEM, MASS,

☞ Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.

Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.

Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

CURRIER & MILLETT,

Dealers in

Furniture, Chairs,

MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c

259 & 261 ESSEX ST.

Salem, dec 14—1y

WM. C. HENDERSON,

MANUFACTURER OF

PLAIN AND FANCY

PAPER BOXES;

No. 235 ESSEX STREET,

Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"

July 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,

NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St.
South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

Heckscher Coal!

$8.25 per Ton on Wharf.

A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,

Both Red and White Ash,

Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by

W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.

July 9

AARON T. LOWE,

DEALER IN

BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,

76 BOSTON STREET, 76.

aug 6 SALEM. tf

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.

THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of

Patent Granular Fuel,

which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25 Bushels, delivered,		2 25
50 do	do	4 00
100 do	do	7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.

BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, june 18.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.

JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

R. C. MANNING & CO,

Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,

DEALERS IN

COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,

188 DERBY STREET,

SALEM, MASS.

N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.
oct17

NOTICE.

I HEREBY give notice that I have this day given to my son NATHANIEL F HURD, now 18 years old, his time, and I will not detain his earnings or pay any debts he may contract after this date.

HARFORD HURD.
Danvers, January 14, 1862. 3w*

☞ If you want to SAVE MONEY, in purchasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, No. 10 Front street, Salem. ap30-2m

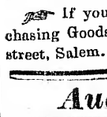
Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,

Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,
34 Front Street.

Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

TO LET.



A SMALL and convenient TENEMENT, on Washington Street, not far from Aborn' St. For terms apply to H. C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, Nov, 26, 1362.

CRIST MILL.

HAVING made arrangements for carrying on the Grist Mill at Newhall's Crossing, at South Danvers, I take this method of informing the public that the mill is now open and ready for business.

Any patronage in the line of grinding corn or other grain, or making COB MEAL, will be gratefully received, and all orders promptly attended to.

If equally convenient for customers to bring their grists afternoons instead of forenoons they will accommodate me by doing so.

ELBRIDGE G. NEWHALL.
South Danvers, Dec 3, 1862.

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,

Druggist and Apothecary,

38 MAIN STREET.

Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.

Personal attention to Physicians' Prescriptions.

South Danvers, May 29, 1861. 1y

GEO. E. MEACOM,

Dealer in

DRUGS & MEDICINES,

Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.,

126 . . MAIN ST. . . 126

Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,

Druggist & Apothecary

37 Main St., So. Danvers,

DEALER IN

Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponges, Shoulder Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines.

Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery. Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by experienced persons.

37 MAIN STREET.

LIVERY STABLE.

JOHN MOULTON

WOULD inform his friends and the public that he still continues to keep

Good Horses and Carriages to Let,

at the stable of G. M. TEEL on Central street, where he will remain until his stable is rebuilt at his old stand on Main Street.

A share of public patronage is solicited.

South Danvers, june 9, 1862.

PATTERSON'S

LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE

THE undersigned are agents for the above machine. It can be seen in operation at Pinder & Brown's Tannery.

may 7—3m CLARK & GIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,

Wallis Street, South Danvers,

Are Agents for

GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S

PATENT EAVE TROUGHS

CUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND

PIPE FOR DRAINS.

South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

Potter, Bachelder & Co.,

(Successors to M. Black)

DANVERS-PORT,

DEALERS IN

WOOD AND COAL

OF the various kinds usually kept in a retail yard. Constmitly on hand

Franklin, Old Company's Lehigh,
Locust Mountain, Black Heath,
Red and White Ash.

Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere.

OFFICE—No. 6 Allen's Building.

Order Box at post office, South Danvers, and post office, Danvers.

G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. july 19—tf

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St.

PRICES REDUCED!

WE shall sell our DRESS GOODS at REDUCED PRICES.

We shall sell all the different styles of Ladies' Watch Spring, Bon Ton and Quaker Skirts, at a discount.

All our Balmoral Skirts at a discount;
French Prints and other grades;
Domestic Goods;
Cottons, Flannels, Crashes;
Blankets, the very best quality—all widths;
Batting, full pound bundles;
Wool Wadding, Sheet Wadding, black and white.

☞ In order to prepare for Spring Trade, we shall sell at the very lowest prices for cash.

jan 7 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal St.

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,

IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
dec 24 Sign of Five Golden Books.

MUSICAL NOTICE.

Chickering & Sons' Piano-Fortes.

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St. would inform her friends in South Danvers, and the public generally that she keeps for sale and to let Chickering & Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with great care, and need only to be tried to prove their superiority over every other in the market. The very best terms given.

MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPHINES For sale and to let. For power and quality of tone none can surpass them. A. R BRAY, 76 Federal str.

Selected.

AN UNCLAIMED DEPOSIT;

OR, A ROMANCE OF REAL LIFE.

Formerly country postmasters made quarterly remittances to the general department at Washington, by depositing the amount in some neighboring bank, to the credit of the postmaster-general, and sending him therefor a certificate of the depository bank. A person intending such an operation, deposited in our bank five hundred dollars, and took the usual certificate. He was a stranger to us, nor did we know his residence; and the occurrence having nothing peculiar about it, excited no general notice, and was soon forgotten. Several years elapsed, when, on a transfer of accounts consequent to the opening of a new ledger, our book-keeper stated to me the existence of the deposit, and the time it had remained unclaimed; but the disclosure produced no particular action—we supposing that the department, having funds in excess, had chosen to let it lie with us. The depositor, however, as we subsequently learned, had, on returning home, placed the certificate in a drawer, among other papers, intending to transmit it to Washington, after he had copied some vouchers which were to accompany it; but being taken suddenly ill, and his illness terminating speedily in death, the transmission was never accomplished. The existence of the certificate was unknown to any person belonging to the post-office, and the books of the deceased exhibited only the amount of his indebtedness to the general department, while no funds wherewith to pay the indebtedness could be found, after the most diligent search of the premises and inquiry of the widow. The condition of the office assumed much the appearance of a defalcation, and rumors soon connected therewith the sudden death of the supposed defaulter. Whispers circulated around the neighborhood that he had taken poison, while some insisted that he had hung himself, and all remembered that he had, for several days previous to his death, evinced a nervous and unbecoming urgency to collect small outstanding debts that, in the period alluded to, were accorded by country postmasters to neighboring residents. Nor was the department at Washington in ignorance of what had happened. An active politician of the village, who had long coveted the office, and had made frequent efforts to supplant the incumbent, wrote speedily to Washington for the vacant place, taking occasion to justify his former violation of the tenth commandment by relating the existing defalcation, and insinuating that his long expectation of such a result had been the leading motive for his former applications for the office. He succeeded in his application, and, in addition, received a power to demand from the two sureties of the deceased a liquidation of the balance due to the government.

The loss, by death, of the head of a family is a great calamity, in its most mitigated form; but it assumes unwonted proportions when combined with a loss of the means of support to the bereaved household, and the incumberance of a debt which would absorb all its pecuniary possessions. Such, however, was the apparent condition of the widow in the present instance, incumbered also with three small children. They were too young to understand the full nature of their bereavement; but the widow possessed strong sensibilities, and felt, as the greatest of her afflictions, the suspected delinquency of her deceased husband. She could not be induced to believe his guilt, though she knew not how to controvert it; and that no obstacles on her part should operate to the injury of his sureties, and that thus her husband's character might be partially relieved, she voluntarily relinquished to one of them the right of administration on the intestate's estate, that the trifling effects might all be sold in the most expeditious manner. The administrator happened to be a benevolent man, and, by advancing some funds of his own, the government was paid the balance due from the deceased, and the family were left in the ownership of their small homestead, with most of its essential furniture—the efforts of the widow sufficing to provide a scanty sustenance for herself and children.

Years passed on in this way; the subject had originally engrossed the little village, and reached to some of the surrounding parts; but it had long been forgotten by the young, and was only occasionally remembered by the old; when one of the widow's children, a female, just grown into womanhood, asked her mother the use of retaining so many old papers that were lying in a trunk which the young woman had long desired to possess. The mother admitted she knew no use in retaining them. Some of them, however, were letters which she had received from her husband during his occasional absence from home, and she was reluctant to destroy them, though she was equally reluctant to read them; but the greater part of the papers were old blanks, of no use whatever; and if the daughter would reserve the letters, (they post-office documents, way-bills and would not amount to a large number,) the other papers might be destroyed. Forth sped the girl, elated to take possession of the long coveted trunk, and the letters were soon sorted from the mass that was destined for destruction. Curiosity induced the girl to open a few of the antiquated, sallow letters, when in one of them she found a printed paper, that so arrested her attention by its resemblance to a bank note, that she took it with her, when she returned to her mother, that its character might be elucidated. The mother no sooner saw it than she recognized it as a certificate of deposit; and her true womanly instincts, all loyal still to the husband of her youth, surmised immediately that it might, in some way, be connected with his alleged defalcation. She lost no time in showing it to the benevolent surety, who still lived in the neighborhood, and who had constantly assisted her in her struggles to keep the family from want and to educate the children. He had long exercised the office of justice of the peace, and understood enough of business generally to know the nature of such a paper. It purported to be issued by our bank, and to admit the reception of five hundred dollars to the credit of the postmaster-general. He kindly undertook an investigation of the affair, though the certificate having been found among the old papers of the office, he much suspected it related to some transaction that had been closed. He ventured, however, to make a journey to our bank, and there ascertained that the money was still undrawn; and on this occasion we became aware, for the first time, of all the preceding occurrences. But we could not yet be sure that the government were not the owners of the money; for though its having been left so long undrawn would have been conclusive against its ownership by a private person, yet the government might be influenced by different principles, and the bank advised that the certificate should be sent to Washington, with a narrative of the circumstances, and a request that, if the Department had no claims thereon, they should return the certificate, duly endorsed, so that the bank could pay the money to the widow.

The certificate was accordingly sent, as we had advised, and, after no long delay, it was returned with the suggested endorsement—the government alleging no claims thereon—and we paid the five hundred dollars to the widow, who made a journey up to receive it; though, as she was not the administratrix of her husband, the money had, in form, to be paid to her friend, the administrator, who accompanied her. The amount seemed to her very large; but the greatest pleasure she derived from the transaction was the justification it produced of the integrity of her husband; and though we had heard all the circumstances thereof before, we could not resist her evident desire to recount it to us herself, and the gratification we saw she received from the recital relieved the tedium of a twice-told tale. She returned home a happier woman than she had been since her widowhood, and insisted on reimbursing to her husband's surety what the effects of the intestate had failed to meet; though he resisted the offer, till he saw the reception would be more benevolent than the rejection. The amount remaining in her possession was a trifle over three hundred dollars, which, being judiciously loaned on interest, added greatly to her resources, small as the income seems to persons in a different society.

The supposed defalcation had not produced, in its day, a greater sensation in the village than the discovery of the missing money; and what most surprised the widow, was the assurance of her neighbors (now for the first time disclosed) that they never for a moment had believed the old stories to the disadvantage of her husband. They all knew the truth would at length be manifested, and had so declared a thousand times; the only parties who ever seemed to propagate the scandal being some few who had long since been dead or otherwise left the village. The old trunk shared in the general appreciation of the family, and was frequently exhibited to give a physical reality to the narrative. But what made the finale still more satisfactory, was a petition from the neighbors to the postmaster-general, that the widow should be appointed to the office of postmaster—the existing incumbent having lapsed in his politics and become unpopular—and as the petition was supported by the congressional representative of the district, who knew all the history of the little office, the application was speedily successful; and I learned, but a short time ago, that the the widow was permitted to retain the office till she voluntarily relinquished it in favor of a highly respectable young druggist, who had married her daughter, (the young woman that found the certificate,) and that he is the present postmaster of the village, or, at least, was a year ago, when I last heard from the locality.

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.

Prof. M. G. BROWN.

SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets scumy and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its sockett in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to anoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 6 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

USEFUL ARTICLES
— FOR —
HOLIDAY GIFTS.

CASHMERE Mantles, best quality;
Chenille Scarfs; Neck Ties, for Children;
Gloves and Hosiery;
French and English Prints, very neat patterns;
American do. at the lowest prices;
Linen Hdkfs, plain, hem-stitched and bordered;
New styles of Long Shawls;
A full assortment of DRESS GOODS, which we shall sell at a discount.
A full line of Table Linen, Crashes, &c.

ANN R. BRAY,
dec 24 Salem, 76 Federal St.

Plymouth Buck Gloves.

MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S Gent's Furnishing Store, dec 10 228 Essex St., Salem.

CHINA GOODS

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

KNIVES AND FORKS.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A VALUABLE PRESENT.

A YEAR'S Reading in WHIPPLE & SMITH'S Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.
dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

CHEAP EDITION.

LES Miserables—complete—$1.00.
Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Muloch—for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, READING.

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A. SMITH.

Ladies' Spring Skirts.

ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

NEW GOODS.

WE have received some very neat styles of French Prints, small figures, Spring styles, new goods.
Neat styles Patches, new patterns.
A few pieces Cotton and Wool M de Laines, new styles, suitable for the present and Spring wear—selling low for cash.
jy 14 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

PATRIOTS,

FREEMEN! STRANGERS!

BUSINESS MEN!

REMEMBER,

When you Visit Boston,

THAT AT

LANE'S
CLOTHING HOUSE,

31 and 32 Dock Square,

You will find a Large Assortmtnt of

Men's Overcoats, Business Coats, Suits, Pants, Vests, Under Flannels, &c., &c.,

On which there has been NO RISE, our large CASH PURCHASES made

BEFORE THE ADVANCE

in Goods enables us to

DEFY COMPETITION.

We would remind the public that in our NEW DEPARTMENT for

BOYS' CLOTHING

may be found a better assortment than at any other House in the city, and at much

LOWER PRICES!

We sell for CASH ONLY, and do not charge the paying customer extra profits to make up for bad debts.

REMEMBER!

LANE'S

CLOTHING HOUSE,

31 and 32 Dock Square,

BOSTON.

Boston, Nov. 5th. 2m

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,
ONE PRICE
HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,
231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

JUST PUBLISHED.

GRAVER Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heaven, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantos, by A. B. Edwards; The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH, dec 24 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

Ann R. Bray,

NO. 76 Federal Street,
— DEALER IN —
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

DIARIES FOR

1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books,

The Confessions and Experience of a Poor Young Man.

A GENTLEMAN having been cured of the results of early error and disease, will, from motives of benevolence, send to those who request it, a copy of the above interesting narrative, published by himself. This little book is designed as a warning and caution to young men and those who suffer from NERVOUS DEBILITY; LOSS OF MEMORY, PREMATURE DECAY, &c., &c., supplying at the same time the means of self-cure. Single copies will be sent under seal in a plain envelope,—without charge,—to any who request it, by addressing the author,

CHAS. A. LAMBERT, Esq.,
Greenpoint, Long Island, New York.

TABLE CUTLERY.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks. Carvers and Steels. and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by
nov 19 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

FOR NEW YEAR'S.

ELEGANT BOOKS; NEW BOOKS;
BEAUTIFUL FANCY GOODS; BRONZES;
PARIAN; WOOD CARVINGS;
FINE CUTLERY; GAMES;
PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS;
DARLEY'S "MORNING, NOON & NIGHT."
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

REMOVAL!

JOHN J. ASHBY,

WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store

No. 145 Essex Street,

formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of

BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,

and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.

Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

E. R. PERKINS,

PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST

241 Essex Street, Salem.

Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,

Photographs, Sphereotypes, Melainotypes, and patent cartes de visite Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

Dyspepsia Remedy.

DR. DARIUS HAM'S

AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!

This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.

IT STIMULATES, EXHILARATES, INVIGORATES, BUT WILL NOT INTOXICATE OR STUPEFY.

AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner.

It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.

Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the DELIRIUM TREMENS, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.

DOSE—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia.
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.
A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.
Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.

Persons who, from dissipating too much over night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings.

Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the careworn face.

During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.

All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the INVIGORATING SPIRIT in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.

General Depot, 48 Water Street, N. Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.
feb 29 1y

Are you Insured?

THE subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on

Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,

And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:

Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn.
Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rico, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y

Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the

Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass.
Capital and Assets—$375,000.
Caleb Rico, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D, Medical Examiner.

WM. ARCHER, Jr.,
18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
ej b20-1

Important to the Afflicted.

DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a

PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.

By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent. Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of

GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.

Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and disease in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.

Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating masrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.

Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.

Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French [illegible], warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y.

CAUTION

TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.

DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.

Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.

Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.

Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.

N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.
Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE

IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.

Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.

Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y

WALLETS AND CURRENCY

HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

MAGAZINES FOR DECEMBER.

ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Madam Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

CHINA WARE.

A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustro China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

HILTON'S INSOLUBLE CEMENT.

ONLY 25 cents—try a bottle. For sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
jan 21 190 Essex street.

NOTE PAPER, ENVELOPES, &C.

A VERY full and complete stock, at a very small advance on old prices, at
jan 21 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

KEROSENE PEG LAMPS,

FOR Shoemaker's use, at S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PLATE COVERS.

PLANISHED Tin Plate Covers, at S C & E A SIMONDS', 34 Front.

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

Eastern Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains will leave the Eastern Railroad Station, Washington street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excepted):

For Lynn and Boston, 6½, 7¼, 8¼, 9, 10, 11 a m., 1, 2¼ 4 40, 6¾, p. m.
Beverly, 8¼ am., 1, 3½, 4¾, 5¾, 6¾, 7½ p m.
W. Beach, Manr, Gloucester, and Rockport, 8¼ a m., 1, 4¾ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8¼ a m., 1, 3½, 5¾ p m.
Amesbury, 8¼ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portsmouth, 8¼ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portland, 8¼ a m., 3½ p m.

AND FOR SALEM, FROM

Portland, 8¾ a m., 2½ p m.
Portsmouth, 7½, *11½ a m., *5 p m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9.40 a m., 5 20 p m.
Newburyport, 8, 10 a m., 12 m, 5.45 p m.
Ipswich, 8.25, 10.25 a m., 12.25, 6.10 p m.
Gloucester, 7.25, 10 10 a m., 3.55 p m.
Manchester, 7.40, 10.25 a m., 4.10 p m.
Beverly, 7.05, 8.05, 8 50, 10.50 a m., 12.50, 4½, 6.35.
Lynn, 8, 9, 11 a m., 12¾, 3, 4½, 5½, 6½, 7½ †10
Boston, 7½, 8½, 10½ a m., 12½, 2½, 4, 5, 6, 6¾, 19½ p m.

*On or on arrival from the East.
†On Wednesdays this train leaves Boston at 11½ p m. via Saugus Branch; and on Saturdays at 10½ p m.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Marblehead for Salem, 7, 8, 8¾, 9¾ a m., 12¾, 1½, 4.25, 6¼
Salem for Marblehead, 8½, 9.25, 11½ a m., 1, 3½, 5¾, 6¾

SOUTH READING BRANCH.

Trains leave the South Reading Depot in Salem for Boston at 7, 9.40 a m., 2.25, 4.55 p m
Boston for Salem, 7 a m., 12 m., 2½, 5 p m.
South Danvers for Salem, 7¾ a m., 12¾, 3½, 5¾ p m.

ESSEX RAILROAD.

Leave Salem for Lawrence and way stations, 7½, 11¼ a m., 4¾ p m.
Lawrence for Salem, 8¼ a m., 12.40, 6½ p m.
Danvers for Salem, 9.12 a m., 1.22, 6.57 p m.

J. PRESCOTT, Superintendent.
Boston, November 10, 1862.

Salem and Lowell Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov 10, 1862, Trains will run as follows:

Leave Lowell for Salem, 7.25 a m., and *2.00 p m.
Leave Salem for Lowell, *9 40 a m. and 5 00 p m.

Passengers are not allowed to carry baggage above $50 in value, and that personal, unless notice is given and an extra amount paid. Season tickets do not entitle the holder to take baggage.

*Freight Train with passenger car attached.

F. H. NOURSE, Local Superintendent.
November 7, 1862.

SPEED, COMFORT AND SAFETY!

FOR NEW YORK.

Norwich Steamboat Train.

The only Boats Landing at Jersey City.

CABIN Passage, $4.00; Deck Passage, $3.00. The new and elegant sixteen wheel cars of the steamboat express train leave the Boston & Worcester Railroad Station, Albany Street., at 5½ P. M., daily, connecting with the new steamers, (built expressly for this line,) CITY OF BOSTON, Capt. WILCOX, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; CITY OF NEW YORK, Capt. JEWETT, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, which (before proceeding to their Pier, No. 39 North River,) will touch at the wharf of the New Jersey Railroad at Jersey City, (Sundays excepted) thus enabling Southern Passengers to make sure connections with the First Southern Train, and at the same time avoid the great annoyance of the Ferry and Hack transportation in the crowded streets of New York. This insures ample time for Breakfast before the trains leave. Conductors D. F. WALLER and W. F. BARTON accompany the passengers through.

Tickets, Berths and Staterooms secured at the Railroad Station, and at the Office of the line, 79 Washington Street, Boston.

Through tickets to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington can be had at 79 Washington Street, Boston. WM. DICKEY, Jr., Agent.
Boston, January 7, 1863.

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT

CHANGE OF TIME

— TO —

LYNN & BOSTON
BY OMNIBUS AND HORSE CAR

On and after THURSDAY, June 19th, 1862,

W. F. BURNHAM'S

Line of Omnibuses will leave the Lynn and Boston Omnibus Office, No. 6 Allen's Building, South Danvers, passing down Main street, through Washington street to Lynn, daily.

Leave South Danvers at 7.50 A. M., and 12.50 and 4.50 P. M.

Leave Lynn at 10 A. M., and 2 1-2 and 6 1-2 P. M.

Horse Cars leaving Scollay's Building, Court street, Boston, at 8.15 A. M., 1.15 and 5.15 P. M., will meet the Omnibus at Lynn, at the above named hours, to take passengers to South Danvers.

Sunday Arrangements.

Leave S. Danvers at 7.50 a.m., and 4.50 p.m.
Leave Lynn at 9.30 a.m., and 6.30 p.m.

Cars leave Scollay's Building, Boston, to meet the Omnibuses in Lynn for South Danvers, at 8.15 a m. and 5.15 p.m.

Through Tickets to and from Boston may be had of the Drivers and Conductors.

Tickets to Lynn, - - 15 cents.
Through to Boston, - 30 cents.

Passengers called for at reasonable charges i notice is given at the Office.

EXPRESS BUSINESS

Between South Danvers and Lynn promptly attended to, on reasonable terms.

EXTRA COACHES furnished at short notice, at moderate rates.
South Danvers, June 18, 1862.

South Danvers & Salem Line of Omnibuses.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 4, 1861, the South Danvers and Salem Line of Omnibuses will run as follows:

Leave the Hourly Office, South Danvers at 7, 8, 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2 a. m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8.

Leave No. 13 Central St., Salem, at 8. 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2, a.m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8, 9.

☞ Ladies' Room, at Needham & Hawkes's, No. 272 Essex Street, and at the Offices.

SINGLE FARE on the regular route, 6 cents, or Twenty Tickets for $1 00.

Passengers called for or left off the route, at a reasonable distance, the fare will be 13 cents.

EXTRA COACHES furnished, at all hours, at reasonable prices.
nov 27 HENRY M. MERRILL.

Abbott's South Danvers & Salem EXPRESS.

Leave South Danvers, - - - - - 7¼ a m, 1 p m
Leave Salem, - - - - - - - 10 a m, 4 p m

Orders left at Teel & Moulton's, and principal stores on Main street, South Danvers; and at 7 Washington street, and at Reed's in the Market, Salem.

MARSHALL'S
DANVERS, SO. DANVERS & SALEM EXPRESS.

Leave DANVERS (daily) at 9 A. M.
" SALEM at 1½ P. M.

OFFICES:

In Danvers—At E B Waitt's and the Post Office.
Danversport—Richards' and A W Warren's Stores.
In So. Danvers—Francis Dane & Co's, and No 2 Main street.
In Salem—No 7 Washington street, 199 Essex st, and 17 Derby Square.

All business promptly and faithfully attended to.

☞ Our patrons are particularly requested to write their orders.

☞ Packages, left at the office, should be marked "Marshall's Express."

☞ Being connected with the RAILROAD we are enabled to forward Notes, Drafts and Bills for collection, and small packages, to all accessible point in the United States, at the usual rates.
dec18-tf P. G. MARSHALL.

PINGREE'S JOB WAGON.

THE subscriber is still prepared to do all kinds of Job Work and Teaming, such as removing Furniture and Merchandize of any description about town, or to and from the neighboring towns.

Orders will be received at the Essex Railroad Station, and at S. Flint's store, on the Square.

Thankful for past favors, he would solicit a continuance of the same. W. H. PINGREE.
South Danvers, 1860.

PRINTING

IN

EVERY VARIETY,

Neatly and Promptly

EXECUTED

— At —

The Wizard Office,

SOUTH DANVERS SQUARE,

SOUTH DANVERS, MASS.

POSTERS,

(LARGE AND SMALL,)

WHICH CAN'T BE BEAT

— IN THIS —

VICINITY.

BALL CIRCULARS,

TICKETS,

— AND —

Orders of Dances.

BUSINESS CARDS

Address Cards,

Wedding Cards,

Printed in the neatest manner,

And on the finest stock.

BILL-HEADS

For Manufacturing and Mercantile Houses,

BLANK RECEIPTS,

And all kinds of BLANKS of every description

Printed to suit.

EVERY DESCRIPTION

— OF —

JOB PRINTING

Done in the best manner, and at the

LOWEST PRICES.

— AND —

WARRANTED

To please or no pay, at the

WIZARD OFFICE,

Allen's Building,

SOUTH DANVERS, MASS

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1863. NO. 7.

THE SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD

Is published every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's building, South Danvers Square, by

CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editor.

TERMS—Two Dollars a year.

ADVERTISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM C. CHOATE,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
Salem, August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Residence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
South Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
Office, No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to
Rooms formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
NO. 27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM,
STEPHEN B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Office, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.

Claims against the Government for Bounty Back Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
No. 4 MAIN STREET, SO. DANVERS SQUARE.
Mechanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
Teeth Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
SURGEON DENTIST,
No, 208 Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market
Residence—No. 57 Washington street.
jan 11—1y

F. POOLE,
INSURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Family Groceries, Flour & Grain,
HARD WARE AND CROCKERY,
Ready Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods, Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
South Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
SAM'L NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Crockery, China and Hardware; Paper Hangings; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.
No. 32 Front street, Lawrence Place,
feb13 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
All orders promptly and faithfully executed.
jan2-1y

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
West India Goods, Country Produce
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
Gold and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
at Rooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger.
164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
WINDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
mch6-tf

JOHN MOULTON,
LIVERY STABLE,
Central Street, South Danvers.

Mr. M. will endeavor to keep up the good reputation of his stable, by still keeping good Horses and Carriages. jan 7, 1863.

HEYLINGBERG'S
Hair Dressing Saloon,
24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.
TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Champooing,	15 cts.
Champooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more new Quarterly Customers taken.
In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks will be sold for one dollar.
South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,
ADVERTISING AGENT
For the principal New England Newspapers, remains at the old stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, and Advertising.
Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

Original Poetry.

LINES ON THE DEATH OF A YOUNG LADY.

BY C. F. HOBART.

No, not the lightest tone was heard
From angel voice or angel hand,
And not one plumed pinion stirred
Among that bow'd and blissful band;
But there was silence in the sky,
A thought not angel tongues could name,
When, from its mystic fount on high,
The mandate of her Father came!

See, on her pale and placid brow
Lies parted the dark, wavy hair,
Upon her breast her hands of snow
Are clasped, as if in holy prayer!
Oh, blessed spirit, is it thus
W'vo doomed thy sainted form to see?
Oh, desolating thought for us!
Oh, sweet and gentle sleep for thee!

The winter clouds look sadly on,
Deserted lies each field and wood,
For she, who woke their smiles, is gone!
We wander forth in solitude!
Ah, whither shall a father turn
From sorrow that has pierced him through?
To wife or daughters?—alas, they mourn,
And wildly ask for comfort, too!

For she was morning to the sight,
And sister's eyes, that gloried yet,
And turned rejoicing in her light,
Now darkly drooped when it hath set:
Vainly they bid the past restore
The gifts it once so fondly gave,
Her, whom their hearts shall see no more,
And love, that's silent in the grave!

Young roses were they, by the air
Of winter rudely torn apart,
No more in weal or woe to share
The fragrance of each other's heart.
Yes, they, by sunny stream and shore,
In play, in prayer, in song, in sleep,
Have been, as they will be no more—
Then do not chide them—let them weep!

But not despair—'tis thoughtless, vain—
On every field, and flower, and tree
We'll trace that angel smile again
That beamed upon them, saint from thee!
Some lone star that's brighter than the rest,
Some flower, whose fragrance never dies,
Shall blend them with thy memory blest,
And consecrate thy obsequies!

Like strains of some forgotten song,
Like perfume from a broken shell,
Like gleams of sunshine, hidden long,
Bright streaming through a dungeon cell—
Thy pure remembrance shall arise
A rainbow on the clouded heart,
And, while each ruder passion dies,
Another world's deep peace impart.

February 6th, 1863.

"THINK OF ME."

TO L. O. M.

When the dark shade of sorrow
Is over thee thrown—
When thy hopes for the morrow
Are desolate grown—
When thy smiles and thy gladness
Far off from thee flee—
Oh! then in thy sadness,
Think you often of me.

When thy fond hopes now gleaming
Are lost in thy fears—
When thy bright eyes now beaming
Are misted by tears—
When round thee, or o'er thee,
No light thou canst see—
When 'tis darkness before thee,
Oh! then think of me.

When lonely and dreary
Thy now buoyant breast—
When wayworn and weary
Thy foot finds no rest—
When nothing around thee
Brings comfort to thee—
When despair hath nigh found thee,
Oh! then think of me.

And should Time in his flying
Deep grief to me bring—
Should sorrow and sighing
Be borne on his wing—
Should dark clouds be shading
Hope's bright ray from me—
When her visions are fading,
I'll then think of thee.

Selected.

BILLY SKIDDLES ADVENTURE.

Situated among the lower spurs of the Sierra Nevada mountains in a deep basin-like hollow, formerly known as Bear Valley, but latterly as the Bear Valley Ranch; for it has been taken up and turned to grazing purposes since the incident occurred which it is my present purpose to relate. As long ago as I first visited California, this particular locality was regarded as one of danger by the miners on account of the grizzly bear, which was known to be a denizen of the rocky fastness surrounding it. So long ago as the summer of '49, a company of miners had located themselves on Bear River, some two leagues below this spot, and as there were few facilities at that time for the transportation of provisions from San Francisco so far back into the mountains of the Bear Valley region, it became a necessity to keep one of their company constantly employed in hunting. The person selected to fill this important sphere was a stout, daring, rough-and-ready fellow, who, feared neither man nor the arch-enemy himself, and who bore the uneuphonious appellation of Billy Skiddles. Billy was about thirty-five years of age, a crack shot, and a native of Arkansas. He had been in the Mexican war, and had seen some rough service before coming to California, and I can assure the reader that if he didn't see some after, he was an exception to the general rule which applied to the inhabitants of that country at that time.

One fine sunny day, just before the rainy season set in, Billy started for a hunt, following the course of the river, which he knew, with an hour or two's travel, must lead him in Bear Valley.—He had never hunted so far into the mountain in that direction, and with a strong impulse upon him to dare the danger, he pushed on; seemingly regardless of the consequences should he have the misfortune to be set upon by a grizzly. After following the windings of the river for nearly a couple of hours, he arrived in the dangerous locality—a deep valley or hollow covered with luxuriant vegetation, and surrounded by sharp spurs shooting up from the foot of the hills.

"This 'ere must be a splendid kendry for game," soliloquized Billy. "Ther's nobody, in course that comes here to disturb the birds or the hanimals. Val, I thinks there is a sight to brag suthin', if they shows theirselves, an' don't play 'possum on a feller."

Casting his eye up, as he spoke, toward one of the mountain gorges, he saw a large, shaggy animal trotting leisurely down toward the bottom, now lost among the boulders, and the next moment reappearing, but evidently, as yet, having taken no notice of him, for the best reason in the world, that the gulch he was following led in a transverse direction into the valley. Billy was not long in surmising what it was, though to own the truth he had never seen a grizzly at that time. The spot where the gulch opened into the valley was not above fifty yards from where Billy stood, and the bear, not twenty rods from that point, was unconcernedly approaching. He knew he could not help espying him the moment he reached the bottom, and he began, accordingly, to look around rather anxiously for a tree. But, unluckily, there was not a tree within a good half mile of him, and Billy saw at a glance that his salvation must now depend entirely on his speed of foot. He accordingly broke into about the tallest traveling he had ever yet done, and had compassed about one-fourth of the distance to the tree when his shaggy enemy discovered him, and set out in pursuit. Once under way, and grizzly began to gain on poor Billy, in spite of all he could do to keep the distance good between them; and in a very few seconds the race became intensely exciting, for it was yet extremely doubtful whether Billy would be able to make the tree before he was overhauled. At all events, he put his best foot forward, and ran for dear life, looking over his shoulder every now and then to see how much he had gained since taking his last observations. He was now about half way to the tree, and his grizzly pursuer not more than thirty rods behind him, and steadily gaining upon him every moment. Billy redoubled his exertions, and seemed to fly on wings, but the ferocious brute, in spite of his lazy gait, narrowed the distance between them in defiance of his most frantic exertions. If he could but gain the tree, he would be safe, for he had heard that the grizzly bear unlike all other bears, was but an indifferent climber, and the tree he was making for was so limited in circumference that it must have defied the exertions of the most ferocious of those animals to ascend it.

Billy was now within about thirty rods of the tree; and grizzly, not more than eight or ten rods behind, was making the distance between them fearfully less each moment. It looked now as though there was little chance for the hunter. Every movement of the bear brought them nearer and nearer together, till it seemed that the next spring of the brute would wind up the earthly career of the unfortunate Billy, unless something unforseen should arise to prevent it. The fierce brute was now so near that Billy could plainly distinguish his heavy breathing. He dared not look behind him. He was now within five rods of the safety point, and as he sprang toward it, still holding his gun, though with both hands extended, his hat become dislodged, and fluttering to the ground, was fortunate enough to arrest the attention of the bear for a single instant, and that instant saved him; though, as he dropped his gun, and shinned vigorously up the tree, the grizzly made a pass at one of his boots, but luckily for the aspiring Nimrod, the sharp claws slid off from the hard substance, and he soon reached the lower limbs in safety.

It was a narrow escape, and for the next five minutes Billy sat on his perch panting and blowing from his almost superhuman exertions. The bear, as if determined to wait for his supper, sat coolly down on his haunches at the foot of the tree, and looking sagely up at the hunter, seemed to say, "Well, old fellow, I can stand this work as long as you can. I have got you treed, and if you don't come down for a fortnight I shan't starve so long as I have my claws to suck."

Billy was by no means slow in interpreting the look and not wishing to remain in his present quarters for so long a period of time, began casting about anxiously for some means of escape. He had a little dried beef and hard bread in his pockets, but not more than enough to satisfy his hunger for one day at the farthest. If he only had his gun up there he might free himself without much difficulty, for he had plenty of powder and ball, and might load and fire away at his grizzly enemy at leisure. But how to obtain his gun was the next question. It lay at the foot of the tree, and within at least three feet of his grizzly foe. At last a happy idea seemed to strike him, and diving into his pockets he drew forth a piece of stout twine, some four or five yards in length; and next unfastening his leathern belt, which was secured about his waist by means of a hook and loop, attached one end of the twine to the loop, and lowering down the belt, hook foremost, succeeded after a while in working the hook into the lock-easings. He then commenced drawing it up hand over hand.

At first grizzly seemed rather to admire this ingenious manœuver, but when the gun reached the level of his nose, he made a sudden pass at it with his huge paw, and sent it spinning one side. Luckily the twine was strong enough to resist the blow, and the next moment it was above the reach of Bruin, and securely in the hands of Billy.

"Val, old boy," chuckled our hero, as he adjusted a fresh "percussion" to the nipple, "now I has it all my own way, blast yer ugly mug. Yer takes it mighty cool I reckon, don't yer. But I'll fix yer flint for yer. If yo had common sense, now, yer wouldn't set there so consarned contented, winking at a feller, when he has got a loaded rifle not twenty feet from yer, an' all the time where yer can't reach him. Now we'll see if we can't rile ye up a little. Look out, now, for we are goin' to plant a bullet right between yer two eyes, an' if yer never see stars 'efore, I reckon yer will now." Crack went the rifle. "There, consarn yer pictur', take that!"

The shaggy monster gave one terrible growl of rage, and sprang upon the trunk of the slender tree, shaking it with such force as to nearly dislodge the hunter, who had hardly expected so sudden and vigorous an assault, and was consequently unprepared for it. At length he relaxed his hold on the tree and sank back again on his haunches. He looked a little dizzy, and swayed a very little, like a fellow who carries a single brick too many in his hat. A dark clot of blood had oozed out from between his two eyes, showing that the shot had taken effect. Billy loaded up once more and blazed away at the same spot. This time he fetched him, and after a few determined kicks, his enemy stretched out and was still.

Our hero made a hasty descent from his perch, and taking possession of one of the grizzly's ears, as a trophy, hurried back to camp.

THE SEA SERPENT.

Propeller Davis furnishes the Hingham Journal with the following account of the visit to Gloucester of the famous Sea Serpent: "In August, 1817, Gloucester became a centre of public interest, on account of the visit of the famous sea serpent to its waters. Hon. Lonson Nash, then a magistrate of the town, saw the serpent at the distance of about two hundred and fifty yards. It was so long, that the two extremes were not visible at one view with a telescope; and he therefore judged it to be from seventy to a hundred feet in length. He perceived eight distinct portions or bunches, apparently caused by the vertical motion of the animal, which he conjectured to be straight. The track made in the water was visible for half a mile, and the progress of the animal, when on the surface, was a mile in four minutes: but when immersed he appeared, by the motion of the water, which could be often traced, to move a mile in two minutes, or three at the most. His body was of the size of a half-barrel, apparently rough, and of a very dark color, in which latter particular all the accounts coincide. In Mr. Nash's description of his head, he says it darted out its tongue, the extremity of which resembled a harpoon, to the extent of two feet, raising it perpendicularly, and again let it fall. Ten depositions were given in, all of them agreeing as to size and shape, and motion of this wonderful creature. On the 14th of August, he was approached within thirty feet, and, his head appearing above water, was greeted with a ball from the gun of an experienced sportsman belonging to the town.

The monster of the deep sank down, and went directly under the boat, again making his appearance at about one hundred yards distance. The capture of a young serpent occurred about four weeks after the depositions in relation to the large one were given by some of the prominent citizens of Gloucester. This creature was killed by a farmer, near Good Harbor Beach, with a pitch-fork and was exhibited, for a few days, at the house of Capt. John Beach, after which time it was carried to Boston, and examined by a committee of the LINNAEAN Society, who pronounced it to belong to the same species as the great serpent. The existence of an enormous, massive animal of the sea serpent kind had been affirmed long before this time. One had been seen in our own waters even as early as 1639. This monster was indeed a visitor from that "gloomy and pathless obscure," the home of "Salamander, snake, dragon — vast reptiles that dwell in the deep."

On our return to Gloucester from New Orleans, in the summer of 1841, in company with Dr. Adams, we had a fine view of his snakeship from Eastern Point, near Nile's Farm. We now bid good bye to the sea serpent for the present."

THE SOUL.

The soul, secure in her existence, smiles
At the drawn dagger, and defies its point;
The stars shall fade away, the sun himself
Grow dim with age, and nature sink in years;
But thou shall flourish in immortal youth,
Unhurt amid the war of elements,
The wreck of matter and the crash of worlds.

BAPTIZING IN THE JORDAN.

Fredrika Bremer, in her "Travels in the Holy Land," thus describes the ceremony of bathing or baptising of the pilgrim in the River Jordan:

"We rode into a small wood, and halted upon a verdant height or little hill, where we alighted. Below this little hill flowed the Jordan, with its margin thickly overgrown with umbrageous foliage. We were soon on its banks.—Its light-gray waters flowed rapidly along from north to south, so rapidly, indeed, that it seemed as if it would be at the peril of life to swim across, although the river was by no means broad. Nor did any one seem inclined to make the attempt. The water, however, was calmer, and overshadowed by beautiful large trees at the bend of the river where we and a number of other pilgrims had taken our stand; and this, in fact, was the place where the peculiar scene of the bathing or baptism of the pilgrims was going forward. Beneath a shady tree, upon some elavated ground, near the bank of the river, men and women removed their outer attire, and then went down in merely linen garments to the water's edge, where, beside an old dry tree-trunk which leaned over the water, stood an athletic figure, with a black, shaggy head, and a chest covered with hair—more like a Hercules than a John the Baptist—naked to the waist, and standing to his middle in the water.—This man received in his sinewy arms the pilgrims as they stepped down to the river, into which, by the help of an assistant, he gave them a hasty plunge, at the same time, as it seemed to me, a little violently, he pressed down with his hand their heads under the water. This was repeated three times to each person. But the broad-shouldered, black-haired Herculean Baptist had such a good-tempered, jovial expression that we could see very plainly that he was accustomed to the business, and that they who came to him had nothing to fear. The baptized then mounted up the hill again, and resumed their garments in the shade of the large tree; women helping one another in so doing, and the men performing the same good office for men. Beautiful young women, gray-haired old women, youths and old men, children of all ages, were thus plunged into the river. The children cried unmercifully, but it was to no purpose; down to the river they must go, and over head three times in succession, and not till then were they restored to their mothers. There was here no ferveney, as when John the Baptist baptized in the river Jordan, to repentance and preparation for the kingdom of heaven, both by word and expression, as powerful as the rocks of the desert. It was not in his case a frivolous sport. People here seem to go into the bath as to some pleasant church festival. The water also was so agreeable, so fresh and soft at the same time, that I experienced a physical longing to have a dip likewise. But the great assemblage of people terrified me. I merely bathed my forehead and eyes with the water of this river, rich in memories, and thanked God who had permitted me, a little pilgrim on earth, to behold the Mississippi in the far West—that river, rich for the future—and who had now led me hither to the banks of the Jordan! For, though the river Jordan be small in comparison with all the great rivers of the world, and small its significance in the history of the present times, yet a memory is connected with the Jordan such as with no other river on the face of the earth."

ABOU BEN. BUTLER.

Abou Ben. Butler (may his tribe increase,) Awoke one night down by the old Balize,
And saw, outside the comfort of his room,
Making it warmer for the gathering gloom,
A black man shivering in the winter's cold:—
Exceeding courage made Ben. Butler bold,
And to the presence in the dark he said—
"What wantest thou!"—The figure raised its head,
And with a look made of all sad accord,
Answered—"The men who'll serve the purpose of the Lord."
"And am I one!" said Butler. "Nay, not so,"
Replied the black man. Butler spoke more low,
But cheerily still, and said, "As I am Ben.,
You'll not have cause to tell me that again!"
The figure bowed and vanished. The next night
It came once more, environed strong in light,
And showed the names whom love of Freedom blessed,
And lo! Ben. Butler's name led all the rest.

ROSECRANS.

The Rebel strategy ought by this time to be familiar to all our commanders. To strike an unexpected blow in overwhelming force—to fall suddenly upon a wing, an advance division, or on the rear of the Unionists—to surprise the doomed corps in its tents if possible and crush it before it can get into line, or at least before its supports can come up—such was substantially the aim at Lexington, Ball's Bluff, Shiloh, Fair Oaks, Gaines's Mills, Groveton, Perrysville, and at Murfreesboro. And never was this strategy more successful at the outset than at Murfreesboro. Our left wing was surprised—inexcusably, fatally surprised—and beaten into a flying, helpless mob, minus guns, caissons, and almost everything else, before it fairly knew that the Philistines were upon it. Our loss in men was about 5,000; but in fighting capacity and effieiency it was more than twice that, in the first hour after the rebel attack on the morning of the 31st of Dec.; while the Rebels had not lost two hundred. They had thus demoralized and disheartened our whole army, a majority of whom looked upon defeat as their inevitable portion. The defeat of McClellan's right wing by Stonewall Jackson at Gaines's Mill was not nearly so disastrous.

But just where McClellan began to retreat, Rosecrans began to fight. Instead of looking around for gunboats or intrenchments behind which to shelter what remained of his army, he commenced at once to make new dispositions for the reception of the triumphant, advancing host. He had but a few minutes at his disposal; but he improved them to the utmost. With calm, cheerful, confident, assuring presence, he rode through his anxious, troubled, apprehensive ranks, the light of battle in his eye rekindling valor in their souls, posting his remaining cannon so as to sweep with deadly aim the field over which the exulting Rebels were so soon to advance, placing his infantry so as to support the artillery with the least exposure possible; and making every one feel that retreat was not to be thought of—that there was no choice but to conquer or to die. Hardly were the most necessary dispositions completed when the Rebel columns came rushing on, with shouts that shook the earth, undoubting that they would repeat in a few minutes the lesson they had just given McCook's demolished division. But a sheet of flame leaped to meet them, a roar of cannon and rattle of musketry drowned their frantic yells, a pall of smoke shrouded the field of conflict from view, and there was no cessation until silence on the other side suggested the inutility of further firing on ours. Soon the cloud lifted; the sun shone out bright and warm; our grim battalions stood to their arms in readiness for the word of command; but there was no foe within sight—nothing but a plain heaped with the writhing and the dead. Such was the first taste of his quality given to Bragg's bullies by Rosecrans; and, though often thereafter impelled to repeat the dash of Wednesday morning, they never did it so recklessly nor with anything like the success of their first attempt. We had had battles well fought before; some in which the General Commanding did his work fairly; many in which our soldiers behaved nobly; but the Murfreesboro fight was saved, and Tennessee with it, by WILLIAM S. ROSECRANS. That he exposed himself recklessly, constantly, and impelled his officers to do likewise, was no idle bravado, but a stern necessity. After McCook's discomfiture, the fight was lost but for this. Rarely pushing an advantage too far—giving his routed men time to recover from their first panic before sending them into action again—cool, patient, steady, yet resolute, sanguine and watchful—Gen. Rosecrans has proved himself more than fortunate, and has won a high place in the confidence and the affections of his countrymen. He will not be forgotton.

ANGELS IN THE HOUSE.—I know a man. He is not a Christian. His daily life is not in accordance with even principles of morality. He has three beautiful, well-behaved children. The other day he told me this incident of one of them, his little girl, three or four years old. Said he:

"Perhaps some people would think it sacrilege, but I don't; but for some time back I have been in the habit of reading the Bible, and of having prayers every night before the children go to bed. I have done it because it has a good influence on the children, and because I hope it may have a good influence on myself. Last night, I went to the 'Lodge' (he is a Mason,) and did not go home till after 11 o'clock. The children, of course, were all a-bed, and I supposed asleep. Before going to bed, I knelt down by my bed to pray, and had been there but a moment, when I heard Nobie get up from her bed in the next room, and her little feet came pattering across the floor toward me. I kept perfectly still, and she came and knelt down beside me without saying a word. I did not notice her; and in a moment, speaking just above her breath, she said: 'Pa, pray loud.' I prayed. I kissed her, and she went back to bed. And I tell you, G———, I have had nothing affect me so for the last ten years. I have thought of nothing else all day long, but just that little 'Pa, pray loud.'"

THE GREAT PLAGUE OF 1666 IN SCOTLAND.—It was a fearful time! Whole households died, and there were none to bury them, neither would any go near them; and these houses of the dead were avoided, till first the thatch fell in, then the walls, and then a green knoll covered all, giving them a burial many, many years after it had been denied them by man. You see there Carradale Glen, where the plantings are, and where the river comes down from the mountains. Well, sir, in that glen, in the time of the great plague, there was a man who took the sickness, and hearing of what I've told you of the people dying in their houses, he feared he should not be buried. So this fear took such a power over him, that he prevailed on some of his friends to dig his grave; and he went and sat by and saw it done. When it was dug he laid himself in the grave, with his sword by his side, and presently he died, and his friends covered his body with turf. MacCaog was the man's name; and they will show you the grave to this day. "Uaigh-Mhic-Coag" is its Gaelic name, which means, "the grave of MacCaog."—Cuthbert Bede's "Glencreggen."

☞ A writer of a love tale, in describing his heroine, says: "Innocence dwells in the rich curls of her dark hair!" We think it stands a pretty smart chance of being combed out.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1863.

THE CRISIS.

To any one, who reads and reflects, it can hardly seem but that this is the eritical hour of the nation's struggle. The movements projecting, or projected, of the different armies—the reecnt federal reverses, disheartening to the loyal, but hopeful to the rebellious—the divisions of sentiment in the North, and the insidious efforts in and out of the loyal States to foment divisions and paralyze the hand of Government—the pretended raising of the blockade by the rebels with a view to involve the Government with foreign powers, who may act upon the presumption that it is raised—the apparent collision of French and English consuls with the rebel authorities—the manifest design of Napoleon to effeet out of our troubles a foothold for himself in North America, which is likely to be tantamount to a French war with the United States—the starving operatives in Lancashire, whose cries so appeal to our pity that we find ourselves, ere we are aware of it, reasoning for interests temporary and not for those that are lasting—these things, added to our fatigue of the war, which politicians are striving to aggravate, and to the expiration not distant of the terms of the soldiers' enlistments, all but too plainly attest that this is the tide in our affairs, which, if not taken at the flood, we lose our ventures.

If such be true, how eloquent, how powerful, how irresistible the appeal to all men who love and would perpetuate the Republic of Washington, to weigh well the importance of the hour, and neither do or forbear to do that which they or their children may be sorry for! Man seems to want not foresight beyond human to see that, in the event of the maintenance of the Union unimpaired, this continent must be republican and free—the capacious asylum of the oppressed and the glorious hope of humanity the world over.

But let it be considered, in the event of the Union dissolved, how history must read. Do we not see the very page before us?

"Against the Government thus founded by Washington and his compeers, after it had existed in unparalleled prosperity for three quarters of a century, and the people under it had enjoyed the blessings of liberty to an extent to which mankind had hitherto been strangers—after it had extended its authority from ocean to ocean, and the oppressed of all climes were truly viewing it as the palladium of their hope—the people of the Southern States, instigated by artful and designing politicians whose purpose to extend the blighting institution of slavery had been overruled by the intelligent majority of the nation, arose in rebellion. So causeless and wicked was the revolt that the free North sprang to arms with a unanimity equalled only by their surprise at this attempted destruction of their Union. Immense armies were raised on either side, and the war for the suppression of the revolt, with various success, had continued some two years. So long, the South, by its despotic conscription laws, which pressed the youth into military service, and by other arbitrary acts, managed to atone for its inherent weakness and resist, with considerable success, the arm of federal authority. But its strength was only apparent and not real. The blockade of its ports, and the natural thriftlessness of the Southern section, induced by slavery, had reduced the insurgents to the greatest extremity, notwithstanding the aid and comfort they received from European royalty: and it was quite evident that the Government at Washington would soon be undisputed throughout the federal domain. At this critical juncture, (incredible to relate,) the people of the North began by internal discussion—that prolific source of national calamity—to embarrass and thwart the high purpose of their constituted authorities. Not that the people, of themselves, were not devotedly loyal and eager to do and dare all in defence of their beloved country. Misled and unnerved by the artful speeches and contrivances of sinister men, who looked only to their personal aggrandizement, they began to fail their Government in the very hour of its need. The South, grown desperate, but now profiting by Northern dissensions and Northern lukewarmness, rallied with renewed hope—foreign powers, who were but too willing, seized the opportune moment to recognize the sovereignty of the insurgents, and the Confederate States of America thus became established with their corner stone of slavery. Had the North remained a unit, as at the beginning, it can be little doubted that, at the present time, there would not have been a slave in America, and that the Republic founded by those good men of the Revolution of 1776 would now have been the most powerful and prosperous nation of the earth. Alas! instead, we have an imperfect Republic of Slavery and these two continually wasting their strength and afflicting their peoples by quarrels, retaliations and wars of invasion."

Pray what kind of a chapter is that for history! Read it, who can, in anticipation, and not blush. But remember that when we but blush, those, who come after us, must both blush. We bleed for our folly and crime. Shall it be? Never let it be written. By the gratitude due to ancestry, by the blessings received from liberty, by the duty owed to posterity, by the tears we have shed over the histories of other times, never let it be written that by our dissensions growing out of immaterial matters, or by our consulting temporary rather than lasting interests, or seeking our own rather than our country's good, we caused this temple of freedom to be a wreck and ourselves to be a reproach to the last syllable of recorded time. Never! Indignant be the rebuke to him who lisps of peace till it is conquered and the Union is one and indivisible. Palsied be the tongue that muses to distract the councils of Government and dispirit its armies. Nerveless be the arm that is raised on loyal soil to impede the progress of loyalty. Let us renew our allegiance, redouble our energies, reunite our hearts and say one and all that our inheritance shall not be squandered, but enlarged, improved, adorned and made perpetual.

ARMY BREAD.

We received, last week, by mail, from Newbern, a sample of the Army bread, or "hard tack," so often spoken of in soldiers' letters. This specimen was from an unknown source, but we conclude that it comes from some one of the Mass. 5th, as upon the envelope we found the familiar name of A. F. Snow, the young chaplain of this regiment, whom we saw at Camp Lander, in Wenham.

As to the quality of the bread, we have not yet sufficiently tested it. We found it sufficiently baked to keep well, yet we can say with truth that it was hard-ly done. Its hardness is fearful to contemplate and most appalling to masticate. Pharaoh's heart never was harder. Our teeth can make no impression upon it, but we think we shall be able to dissolve its union by the aid of a sledge-hammer or a bark mill.

Our anonymous correspondent, in his note, says—"Why don't you enlist? Great inducement will be found enclosed in this letter." We respectfully reply—"We don't see it." He closes his note with the patriotic sentiment of Jackson, "THE UNION MUST BE PRESERVED." We trust it will, and if it keeps preserved as long as the Army cracker before us, it will last a very long time.

Appropos to this, there is in this town, kept in good preservation, a sample of the bread used by the British army at the time of our Revolution. It is a round cracker, dark looking, and apparently as hard as the Yankee specimen before us. It is also well worn eaten, but its shape is preserved. This curious relic is in possession of W. M. Jacobs, Esq.

JOHN H. TIBBETTS.

Another of our brave soldiers has returned to us, on a short furlough, to visit his friends. It is Capt. JOHN H. TIBBETTS, so long the commander of our Fire Company, the Eagle. It will be remembered that Tibbetts and Gardner enlisted early in the war in the 2d Maine Regiment, one which compares well with our own 19th in the bravery of its deeds and its losses in battle. It has stood the brunt of ten pitched battles, beginning with the first Bull Run, then Yorktown, the seige of Yorktown, Hanover Court House, Gaines' Mill, Malvern Hill, Groveton, Antictam, Shepardstown Ford, and last of all, Fredericksburg. It has lost by killed, wounded, disease and discharged men, over 600. It was at the battle of Gaines' Mill that Mr. Tibbetts was made prisoner, and he passed the 4th of July in Richmond. This is a glorious record for the space of little more than a year and a half.

It is a matter of some surprise here that Mr. TIBBETTS has not received that promotion of which his friends here think he is deserving. Possibly, being in a regiment of another State, his merits are not so well appreciated as by his own townsmen who have seen his ability for command and know him well. We trust his claims will not much longer be overlooked.

Capt. TIBBETTS was last evening complimented by a levee by his friends at Sutton's Hall, where was a large attendance of ladies and gentlemen to greet the returned soldier.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.—The publisher of this paper acknowledges the receipt of a beautiful valentine, (in colors) representing a deseendant of Faust in the "Art preservative of all arts." Our editor says it is not a good likeness of us, and was never intended for the publisher. It certainly never was intended for the editor, being altogether too good-looking for him.

GOOD.—A despatch from Washington says the Judiciary Committee of the House will soon report a bill to punish Northern traitors.

BARGAINS.—Read PEABODY'S adv't.

FRANKLIN CLUB.

The debate before this Society, on Monday evening last, was one of the most interesting of the present course. A few personalities might have been avoided without any loss of point and a great saving in the matter of good taste.

The next discussion will be held at the Town Hall, on Monday evening next, at 7 o'clock. QUESTION:—Are the claims of Modern Spiritualism such as to generally command the approval of intelligent minds?

WASHINGTON'S BIRTH DAY.—This year, more than any other, should we honor the memory of the Father of his Country—the unapproachable WASHINGTON. Last year our people assembled at the Peabody Institute and enjoyed a feast of patriotism, but this year we hear of no arrangements for the observanee of the day. By reference to our advertising columns, it will be seen that an opportunity is afforded to join with Salem and neighboring towns in a rational celebration of Washington's Natal Day. It will take place on Monday Evening, in Salem, at Lyceum Hall, and the bill of fare is quite attractive. The faet that Rev. Dr. BRIGGS is to make an address, will interest those who listened to his burning words of patriotism the other evening at our Institute. We hope very many of our citizens will secure places in the hall, remembering that the proceeds of the celebration are to be applied to the educational interests of the Freedom of the South.

☞ We intended to have remarked at the time of the publication of the letter of Lieut. BARNES, that the letter of Mr. WATERMAN, to which he refers, was strictly a private one, and never expected by him to be published. We see not the least harm in his observations about the 5th Regiment, as it was certainly to be expected that new troops would not be so able to bear the fatigues of the camp as well as the more tried battalions. We are glad to find, however, by the cheering letter of Lieut. BARNES that our company stands so well after its limited time for drill. Its members will soon enough be hardened into soldiers, and we shall sooner or later get a good account of their fighting qualities.

FIFTH REGIMENT.—A correspondent of the Journal writing of the 5th Regiment, says:—

No colonel is more beloved by his men than is Col. Peirson. He has a thorough knowledge of military tactics, firm and impartial in his discipline, respectful to every one, never abusive. Among the captains who have labored with the most gratifying success in their respective companies, may be mentioned Capt. Grammer of Woburn, Capt. Daniels of South Danvers, and Capt. John Kent of Boston. For their many acts of kindness they have endeared themselves to their men, and deserve to be remembered in the prayers of Christians.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT—DEATH OF CAPT. JOSEPH HODGES.—A distressing accident occurred yesterday (16th) afternoon, on the Eastern Railroad bridge, near the gas house at the foot of Northey street, resulting in the death of Capt. JOSEPH HODGES, a respected and venerable citizen of Salem. Capt. Hodges was walking over the railroad in the direction of Beverly. He had reached the middle of the bridge above referred to, when the 2 1-2 o'clock train from Boston, or 3 1-4 train from Salem, came along on its way eastward. The engineer sounded the whistle eight or ten successive times, and broke up the train at once. Capt. Hodges heard the alarm, turned and beheld the coming train, looked ahead as if it at the distance he would have to pass to get over, and then at the dock beneath him. He was no doubt somewhat confused and bewildered at this sudden knowledge of his danger, but evidently made an attempt to lower himself from the outside of the track, during which effort the engine struck him in the head, shattering it badly, and knocked him into the dock ten feet below. The tide was low at the time, and he was, as speedily as possible, taken up and conveyed to the Lowell Railroad depot, where he was placed in a car, and medical assistance called. He lingered till twenty-five minutes before five o'clock, and then expired—not having been able to speak from the moment he received the fatal blow.

Capt. Hodges was over 72 years of age. He was for many years a shipmaster from this port, although long since retired from business. He was greatly respected and beloved for his many excellent and estimable qualities, and leaves a large circle of relatives and friends to lament his loss.—Gazette.

☞ We received, last evening, the painful intelligence of the death of Lieut. Col. WILLIAM BROWN, Assistant Adjutant General, at the age of 60 years. Col. Brown was a native of our city, where his genial character and social accomplishments had won him hosts of friends in the various military, civil and musical associations in which he delighted to mingle. From early manhood, he had been connected with this office, at intervals, in various relations, always commanding the respect and confidence of all associated with him, for his uncommon abilities, and the combined mildness and firmness of his character.

He was appointed Naval Officer at this port under Gen. Taylor's Administration, in 1849, and, at a latter period, received the appointment of Clerk in the Adjutant General's office at Boston. The position of Assistant Adjt. General was assigned him since the outbreak of this rebellion, and was rendered necessary by the greatly increased amount of work which devolved upon the office.

Col. Brown was a valuable and faithful officer; and the closeness with which he has applied himself to his duties has probably hastened his departure. His disease was chronic inflammation of the bowels; and he had been confined to the house some weeks previous to his death, which took place in Boston yesterday forenoon at ten o'clock.—Gaz.

LETTER FROM LIEUT. C. W. HANSON.

The following letter from Mr. Hanson will be read with pleasure by his numerous friends here, who will also be gratified that he has been promoted to a Lieutenancy and now holds a commission in the union army.

CAMP AT POOLESVILLE, M. D.
February 6th, 1863.

FRIEND POOLE,—Since my last to you, our regiment has passed through some trying scenes. Our principal occupations have been laying out new camps, stockading tents, digging trenches, (for water) and straining our eyes for the paymaster; which last item appeared at last this afternoon, in a coach and four, and bringing with him a very agreeable looking trunk, from which he is doling out our allowance of "green backs." He sits at the door of the Colonel's tent, and the companies march up one by one, and receive their "dosh." The men are glad enough to get it, although he only pays us this time to the first of November.—It is fun to hear the remarks of the men as they get their money, and double-quick-it to their tents. "How much did you get, Bill!" says one. "I don't know" says Bill, "I am going to have something to eat," and straight he runs for the sutler, and is seen coming back with a consumptive looking pie under his arm, and gnawing away manfully at a plug of army tobacco, which is composed of tea-leaves, pine splinters, and molasses. Another says "Come down to-night Tom, and have a game of bluff." "All right" says Tom, and they are probably "seeing" each other occasionally, and perhaps Tom has "gone better" on his friend until he has cleaned him out entirely. The sutler is hopping around with much briskness with his cheeks, to get the first slap at the men. Everybody feels well, and by the singing and howling that is going on, one would be led to suppose that some whiskey had been "histed" in. Poolesville is a quiet village. I used to think that So. Danvers was not the liveliest town in Massachusetts, but here is a place where the very extreme of inactivity is highly developed. A lean inhabitant told me that it used to be "a roight smoort place;" but now the people have their "smoortness" frightened out of them, by the very undignified pranks of the Yankee soldiers. The town consists of two rows of houses on either side of a long, crooked and muddy street. On the door step or under the fence of each house on a pleasant day, may be seen its proprietor with red eyes and thin and watery nose, and the everlasting clay pipe in his mouth, and scarcely concealing his dislike, as our boys pass by.

They all seem to have the same business, and that is, in noticing the business of everybody else. The place and its citizens are sceesh to the back-bone; but the presence of the sturdy 39th evidently makes them swallow their sentiments with their hoe-cake and corn dodgers.

Our Brigade is now temporarily under command of Col. Davis, and according to our idea of things it should be permanently so; although we should hate to lose him from the regiment. I think it would be hard to find an officer who has gained the respect and obedience of his men to such an extent as he has done.—And he has a regiment that he may well feel proud to command. To be sure, we have some grumblers, some shirks and a few inebriates; but these are gradually becoming fewer. The grumblers are made to chop wood and carry water, the shirks have powerful plasters stuck to their backs by the attentive Simonds of the Hospital Corps, and the inebriates are court-martialed and fined by the Mayor, who is a terror to all evil doers. Col. Peirson is away on a ten days furlough, and there is a possibility that some of the line officers may be allowed to run home and see the folks before Spring.

Captain Nelson is the same high-toned individual as ever, and "A" Company can't be beat in the regiment for effieiency in all the qualities that make good soldiers. Thanks to its captain it is under admirable "discipline," which is calculated more than any one thing to make a soldier of a man. Lieut. Wiley is a good right hand man, and aids the captain well in his duties. Lieut. Washburne has resigned and been honorably discharged, thus leaving a vacancy of 1st Lieutenant in the Company which has not yet been filled. Lieut. Williams of "H" Company has also resigned on account of ill health, and started for home this morning. The sick list of the regiment is growing smaller every day. We have discharged quite a number lately, who never should have enlisted at all, and some who probably never would have done so except to receive a bounty.

There are some too at home, who should be with their regiment and company, instead of trying to sneak out of it, after enlisting, and pocketing their $150.—Such men should be marked at home, and shamed into their duty, if then our sense of right is not strong enough to impel them. Shirks at home are worse than present shirks, and should have severer punishment.

All the So. Danvers boys are well and hearty. Bessom is now superintending the cooking department of the company, and is as remarkable for frying doughnuts, as he once was for shaving his friends. Simonds is permanently attached to the Hospital as nurse, and passes the quinine pills and castor-oil juleps to his patients with the same grace that he used to pass the ale and things to his thirsty customers. Sergeant Dodge is doing well, as also is the jolly Corporal of the same name. He wants to get the rebellion put down in time for a good fish-fry at the Juniper next summer, and then is willing to rest on his laurels.—Adjutant Moulton is conducting the duties of his office in prime shape, and is destined to rise still higher in the scale of military rank.

In fact, we are all bound to uphold the honor and fame of So. Danvers; we are proud of her, and trust that she will always be proud to own us as children.—To be sure we have not as yet seen any active service in the field, but whenever we do, you may be sure that "A" company will be at the front, and its gallant Captain not far behind, cheering his men on to victory or a glorious death.

Yours truly,

C. W. H.

TOM THUMB'S MARRIAGE.—The New York Traveller is severe on this small specimen of humanity and his marriage. It thus speaks of him:—"Did you ever notice how intolerably impudent a dwarf is? For instance, General Tom Thumb. Self-sufficient, saucy, overbearing, and carning every hour a kicking his deformity and insignificance prevents him from receiving. Your real, genuine, mean man is small and, thin in size. Judas Iscariot was the smallest man in stature of all Christ's followers; Benedict Arnold was a small man; Jeff. Davis is a small man, etc. Once in a while you will find a little, thin man with a full-sized soul in his body, and who deserves respect and confidence.

"As for Tom Thumb, if we were his keeper, we should treat him to a first-class trouncing about three times a day. The idea of allowing them two dwarfs—better say Aztecs—to pair off in marriage is absurd. What style of mis-shapen pigmies their offspring will be, Heaven only knows."

THE SALEM LEG.—This is the designation given by Prof. Jewett to his valuable invention. This name has been applied to it, that it may not be confounded with an invention of another person of the name of Jewett who resides in New Hampshire.

We see by the new circular just issued by Prof. Jewett, that a manufactory for the construction and fitting of these limbs, has been opened in New York. Its merits only need to be known to be appreciated.

MIDDLETON.—The "Horned Man" mentioned in our last turns out to have been a "Horned (or corned) Woman." She was caught one night last week in one of her nightly perambulations about the village, the paint washed off her face, and her identity ascertained. She was a woman well known in town.

There is to be a levee in this town next Wednesday evening, Feb. 25th, at the Town Hall. Music by Upton & Parsons Quadrille Band.

A PERILOUS TRIP.—The iron-clad Queen of the West has run the gauntlet at Vicksburg and withstood the fire of no less than a hundred guns. While passing the city she espied the rebel iron-clad Vicksburg (not fully completed,) and facing the fire of the heaviest and most formidable batteries made for her intended rival. She struek the Vicksburg aft of the cook-house, and inflicted considerable damage. Passing down the river the Queen met three steamers loaded with provision for Vicksburg, and sunk them, and took 56 prisoners. After visiting Port Hudson she returned.

PROMOTED.—Among the commissions recently issued by order of Gov. Andrew were the following:

Twenty Fourth Regiment—Lieut. Col. Francis A. Osborne to be Colonel Dec. 28, 1862, vice Stevenson appointed Brig. Gen.

Thirty Ninth Regiment—Serg't Maj. Charles W. Hanson of South Danvers to be 2d Lieut., Jan. 25, vice Porter promoted.

THE WEATHER.—The weather is an enigma. The cold blooded Yankees have carried the icy breath of the North with them in their journeying into Dixie.—Snow storms and ice in Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana, while balmy breezes with Spring sunshine and showers hold a mad carnival in Maine, Vermont, and Massachusetts.—Ex.

CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.—It is said that this disease sometimes yields to friction of the part affected. We have heard of a case where the disease was cured by rubbing the limb of another person, perhaps by sympathy.

☞ Dr. George B. Loring, we understand, has been engaged to deliver the Annual Address before the Irish Associations of this city, on next St. Patrick's Day.—Gaz.

SCISSORINGS.

☞ The Army of the Potomac is reported ready for action, and will move as soon as roads and weather will permit.—One army corps, the 9th, has already departed, by transports, to Fortress Munroe. What this movement indicates it is hard to determine. It is thought by some that the corps is going southward to reinforce Foster's or some other command; while others think the movement indicates the commencement of Gen. Hooker's operations. Gen. Hooker has not only reorganized his army, but has made many changes that must contribute to efficiency and success, which have been overlooked by his predecessors.

☞ Cotton and Cotton Goods are now coming from Asia, whenee we were accustomed to receive them in olden times, while of late years Eastern Asia has been a great market for our manufactures.—Now the tide has turned again. The ship Emily Banning has recently arrived from Japan with 700 bales of drills and shirtings from China, and advices are that the market will be supplied from that quarter. Three ships are reported on their way from Japan to England with cotton, which is fine, but an inferior staple to our Southern cotton.

☞ Gen. Foster's Expedition reached Port Royal, without disaster or accident. It seems certain that a force proportionate to the work is at last to attempt the capture of Charleston, the birth-place of secession, and the first scene of civil war. The work of fortifying the city has been going on for nearly two years, and it is better defended, doubtless, than any other city in the Confederacy. Its capture would prove of greater advantage to our cause than the capture of Richmond, and would be hailed here with as great joy.

☞ The Alexandria (Egypt) correspondent of the London Times says that the French Transport La Seine has sailed from Alexandria with 500 of the Viceroy's negro soldiers, who were by permission of the Viceroy entrapped and borne away against their will. They are to be sent to Mexico to do the rough work of the camps, for which Europeans are less fitted.

☞ The first S. C. negro regiment arrived at Port Royal, Feb. 2d, from an expedition sixty miles up the St. Mary's river, Ga., to the town of Woodstock, which they burnt, after having repulsed the enemy in a severe engagement.

They also destroyed some extensive salt works. The regiment fought like veterans, and repulsed superior numbers.

☞ The federal victory at fort Donelson was won by gunboats, though the garrison fought splendidly; and had the flotilla been an hour longer in coming up, we should have experienced one of the severest disasters of the war,—one that would, it is probable, have compelled Gen. Roscoran's army to leave Tennessee.

☞ A contemporary thinks if any English or other foreign vessel should poke its nose into Charleston harbor, under the impression that Beauregard's proclamation has raised the blockade, it will probably discover the difference between fiction and fact, in a manner not entirely agreeable.

☞ One of the Eighth Avenue Railroad Companies in New York sent a bushel of soiled postage stamps to the Post Office there for redemption. It took the clerks nearly a week to examine it. The value was $8400.

☞ A Douglas democrat, named Conness, has been chosen Senator from California. The Republicans could agree in nothing but to quarrel. They were wonderfully harmonious in that way.

☞ An artillery soldier on duty near Washington, and a young lady in Oswego were recently married by telegraph. She received her certificate in the shape of a telegram.

☞ The Navy Department will immediately order the construction of two gunboats to receive the steam engines which were captured on board the Princess Royal.

☞ We have read Jeff Davis's speech at Richmond. If Jeff and the Devil were to swap places, Hell would gain in malignity what it lost in talent.—Louisville (Ky.) Journal.

☞ Prentice says: "If after administering the oath of allegiance to a secessionist, you hang him on the spot, he won't break it."

☞ General Hunter, of the Department of South Carolina, has ordered a conscription of all the able bodied negroes in his Department.

☞ The merchants in New York are chartering all the old vessels they can find to bring ice from Norway and Sweden—the home crop being short.

☞ There are now 3800 rebel prisoners at Camp Douglas, Chicago, all that can be accommodated at present.

☞ A respectable private family in Lowell sold the cotton contents of their mattresses last week for $600.

☞ The tannery and hides captured by our troops at Murfreesboro' are valued at a million and a half of dollars.

☞ The idle Generals, it is estimated, are now costing the Government $100,000 per month.

☞ The Second
take plaee at Sutt
Ashland Hall,) next

☞ A Lady was not England, when she oce in company with a woman, the former of an illustrated newspape
She accepted the civi perceived a powerful ar
immediately insensible, self robbed of her mon together with sundry a paper was supposed to l chloroform, the scent
with lavender.

AMUSEMENTS IN BOS
Mr. J. E. Owens, the b is playing a short en houses. Manager Ma
for his efforts to please

At the New Treme
Hall—Mrs. Jane Englis renowned Ravel Troup acknowledged musical season.

At the Academy of era Company, under Grau, have produced t
rah, among other favori
ited—go and hear them

☞ We have recei
Rooms of D. B. Brook through their bookstore
March." Published by Messrs. Brooks & Bro
tiful 7-octave Piano f
the best satisfaction. P music, before buying, or or they can have the pie

☞ The paper manuf publishers are having q
the Ways and Means Co
tion of the duty on im
but the latter will trit
Department and the Bureau both urge it.

☞ Try one of Rhoa
Wringers, before purcha
sale at the Equity Store,
advertisement.

☞ We call special a tisement headed "How a Day."

Omnibus

On and after Thursday
the better accommodati
Omnibus fare between So lem will be FIVE CEN
One Dollar.

Passengers called for o
route, 15 cents, or 25 cen
January 14

☞ Call and look at t
BLES, at

Port of D

Ar 12th, sch Nile, Ellis

Marri

In this town, Feb 5, b
John W Lee to Miss Oliv
Salem.

Feb 11th, by Rev Mr B
Lanc to Miss Hannah M
Danvers.

In Salem, Feb 11, by Benjamin Hutchinson to ter of David Pulsifer, Esq.

In Beverly, Feb 12, by William Remmonds of Sa
J Roundy of Beverly.

In Marblehead, Feb 12, tutor in Tufts College, to both of M.

In Byfield, Mr Daniel E
phia S Howe, both of Geo

Deat

In this town, —, Mrs S of Newton, 79 yrs 7 mos.

In Danvers, Jan 28, An
Benjamin F and Mary E P

In Salem, Feb 9, Mr Tho
Mary, widow of the late M
48 yrs; 12th, Mrs Joanna
O'Connor, 22; Mr James Ellen, daughter of William mick, 16 yrs; 16th, Jerem and Julia Reardon, 16 yrs.

In Marblehead, Feb 9, M
48 yrs; 10th, Mr Joseph D

In Middleton, Feb 9th,
John J and Susan A Stewa

In Topsfield, Dec 4th, M yrs; also, in hospital, near 6th, Mr Harrison Hale, a m
Reg't Mass Vols, 22 yrs—bo and both sons of Mr John H

In South Reading, Feb 1 ton, 53 yrs 11 mos—eldest s enezer Walton of Salem.

Obituary

A late number of the death of Mr. BENJAMIN MA not inappropriate to add a fe ry of one who could not fail and esteem of all who kne SHALL was born in Bradfor continued to reside until since, when he came to th
a life unmarked by any stri one which might afford many tic virtue and Christian piety years a professor of religion, his deportment the consiste child-like simplicity of a true

He was affectionate in his to all, amiable, sympathizing
His genial temperament par him to the young; his hea grow old. He was especially Scripture, which he did with accuracy, even at those seaso days when his mind seemed Through a lingering and several months he exhibited to the will of Providence in that which he loved best—people of God; was patient finally went up to his rewar and in the possession of a br mortality. In his death the friends have lost a devoted r munity a good and peaceful Baptist Church, to which he relation about a year ago, a v cient member. His hoary he missed from the congregation tomed to welcome his familiar worshippers.

e JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

ve your Rags and Paper!

subscriber will pay the highest prices in for Rags and Paper. By giving seas- notice he will call at the houses of ho wish to dispose of their rags.

enny saved is as good as a penny earned." r Richard says.

SUMNER SOUTHWICK.

h Danvers, Jan 14, 1863.

ice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

MANUAL FENOLLOSA,
TEACHER
OF THE
lin, Piano and Singing,
Music Rooms, No. 7 Central Street,
SALEM, MASS.

low to Make $5.00 a Day,

n all other Efforts have Failed.

OD & CO., 186 Broadway, New York, have ublished ONE HUNDRED VALUABLE SE- S, possessing them, any one, male or female, asily make $5 a day, without capital, in any r village. Every one should possess these se- for they are worth $300 to any single or mar- erson. Some of these Secrets have been sold 0 each. One alone cost us $250 for the right to h it. When you once own them you will never with them for money. Several persons are now g $120 per month by these Secrets alone. By any person may make money easily and rapid- We send one Book of Secrets for 25 cents, two s, 40 cents, club of three for 50 cts., club of four club of five 75 cts., club of eight copies, $1 Government money.

w York, Feb 18, 1863. *3m

New Jersey Lands for Sale,

— ALSO —

RDEN OR FRUIT FARMS,

itable for Grapes, Peaches, Pears, Raspberries, wberries, Blackberries, Currants, &c., of 1, 2½ 5, r 20 acres each, at the following prices for the ent, viz: 20 acres for $200, 10 acres for $110, 5 s for $60, 2½ acres for $40, 1 acre for $20. Paya- by one dollar a week.

lso, good Cranberry lands, and village lots in ETWOOD 25 by 100 feet, at $10 each, payable by dollar a week. The above land and farms are ated at Chetwood, Washington Township, Bur- ton, New Jersey. For further information, apply h a P. O. Stamp, for a circular, to

B. FRANKLIN CLARK,
eb 18, 1863 No. 90 Cedar St, New York, N. Y.

M. FENOLLOSA,
TEACHER OF MUSIC,
TS.....PIANO FORTES,
at the lowest rates;
LLS .....PIANO FORTES,
at the Manufacturers Prices;
CHANGES....PIANO FORTES,
on the easiest terms;
At Rooms No. 7 Central street,
feb 11 SALEM, MASS.

Advertisements.

luction Sale of Real Estate.

Will be sold at Public Auction on TUESDAY, the 24th inst., at 3 o'clock, P. M.,

The HOUSE and LAND occupied by JOSEPH MORRISON, situate on Wallis Street.

Terms and conditions made known at the sale. Sale positive.

THOMAS TRASK, Auctioneer.

South Danvers, Feb 18, 1863.

M. A. PORTER,
MANUFACTURER TO ORDER
WATCH SPRING SKIRTS,
At 236 Essex Street,
A few doors from Washington Street,
SALEM, MASS.

THE FATHER OF HIS COUNTRY.

"Proclaim Liberty throughout all the Land, unto all the Inhabitants thereof!" Lev. xxv. 10.

[Motto, cast upon the bell rang over the State House in Philadelphia, JULY 4, 1776, at the signing of the Declaration.]

BELIEVERS IN THE INALIENABLE RIGHTS OF MEN are invited to honor the memory of

GEORGE WASHINGTON,

and to sustain the efforts of the

EDUCATIONAL COMMISSION,

in behalf of the FREEDMAN, by uniting in the following

EXERCISES

At LYCEUM HALL, on the Evening of MONDAY, the 23d instant, to begin at 7 1-2 o'clock.

☞ Every seat sold will be designated by a number attached thereto, so that it will be needless for ticket-holders to assemble before 7 1-4 o'clock.

I. MIRIAM'S SONG. THOMAS MOORE.
Sound the loud Timbrel o'er Egypt, s dark sea! JEHOVAH hath triumph'd—his people are free!

II. PRAYER. Rev. Mr. DWINELL.

III. READING of the SLAVE CLAUSE in WASAINGTON'S WILL.

IV. HYMN. JOHN G. WHITTIER.
When Freedom, on her Natal day,
Within her war-rocked cradle lay.

V. A READING on SLAVERY from WASHINGTON and the EARLY PRESIDENTS.

VI. THE POPULAR ODE of 1798. Robert T. Paine.
Ye sons of Columbia, who bravely have fought,
For those rights, which unstained from your Sires had descended.

INTERMISSION.

I. RECITATION FROM WHITTIER. (1833.)

II. VIVE L' AMERICA. [Adapted.]

III. A READING ON SLAVERY, as judged by those who knew it, before 1820.

IV. SOLO—Words by WHITTIER. Music for this occasion by GEN. OLIVER.

V. REMARKS by Rev. Dr. BRIGGS.

VI. AMERICA.

The Music will be rendered by a Choir of thirty select voices—with the aid of favorite solo performers—under the direction of General OLIVER. In certain passages, to be designated upon the programmes, and printed in full, it is expected that the audience will join.

SEATS will be sold, at Fifty Cents each, at GEORGE CREAMER'S Bookstore, (where a new plan of the Hall may now be seen,)—the sale to commence on WEDNESDAY morning, Feb'y 18, at 8 o'clock,—and the net proceeds thereof to be transmitted to WILLIAM ENDICOTT,

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

ESSEX ss. In Insolvency, before Hon. Geo. F. Choate, Judge of Probate and Insolvency in and for said county. The subscriber has been duly appointed assignee of the estate of

JOSEPH W. VITTIM,

of Middleton, in said county, shoe manufacturer, insolvent debtor.

The second meeting of the creditors of said insolvent debtor will be held at the Court of Insolvency, at Salem, in said county, at the Stone Court House, on the ninth day of March next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at which meeting creditors may be present, and prove their claims.

W. A. MERRIAM, Assignee.
Middleton, Feb 18, 1863. 2w

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at South Danvers, Feb. 14, 1863. [Persons calling for these letters will please say they are advertised.]

Aborn F W	3	Jacobs Bailey
Boodey Chas H		Lord N C
Ball D B		Mugford Henry T
Dole Joshua		Moore Wm N
Fiske C A		Moore Clark R
Fuller Mary A		Moore E D
Frye Lucy		Osborne D
Goodnow J S		Newgent Catharine
Getchell Albert		Newhall H A Mrs	2
Graves Isaac		Parker Mary
Gordon Wm F		Ritchie Margaret
Howard Elvira		Swift John
Howard Adeline M		Standley John
Howard George		Tibbetts Anna C
Hamilton A T	2	Very Albert
Hodge Mr		White Wm J

N. B. These letters are subject to an additional postage of one cent each.

FITCH POOLE, P. M.

ANNUAL STATEMENT

—OF THE—
RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES
—OF THE—
COUNTY OF ESSEX,
For the Year Ending Dec. 31, 1862

RECEIPTS:

Balance in the Treasury, January 1, 1862,	$24,935 80
Received, balance of Taxes for 1861,	9,634 64
" on Taxes for 1862,	93,839 95
" Money hired in 1862, on permanent and temporary loans,	136,000 00
" Interest on Notes issued after that date,	14 37
" Interest on Taxes paid after they were due,	59 58
" for Board of Insane in Asylum at Ipswich,	4,686 54
" for Board of Prisoners in House of Correction at Ipswich,	555 04
" for Labor of Prisoners in House of Correction at Ipswich,	1,487 79
" for Sundry Articles sold at House of Correction at Ipswich,	329 06
" for Board of Prisoners in House of Correction at Lawrence,	99 83
" for Labor of Prisoners in House of Correction at Lawrence,	848 90
" for Sundry Articles sold at House of Correction at Lawrence,	61 00
" for Board at Jails in Salem and Newburyport,	515 10
" for Fines, Costs, Court Fees, & unclaimed Witness Fees, refunded by Magistrates, Officers and others, in criminal prosecutions,	7,774 21
" of Clerk of Courts for 1-2 excess of his fees over $2000,	234 27
" for Pedlar's License,	4 00
" of Town of Rockport, on account of Highway,	1,475 00
" for Land, Rent, and Old Buildings, in Salem,	664 60
	$283,218 77

EXPENDITURES.

Paid amount of Notes, permanent and temporary Loans,	$146,667 00
" amount of interest,	17,048 04
" for Support of Prisoners in the House of Correction and Insane in Asylum at Ipswich,	10,439 65
" " Support of Prisoners in House of Correction and Jail at Lawrence,	9,910 76
" " Salaries of Overseers of Houses of Correction,	400 00
" " Support of Prisoners in Jail at Salem,	2,892 08
" " Support of Prisoners in Jail at Newburyport,	1,431 94
" " Reclaiming Prisoners,	150 76
" " Expense of Criminal Prosecutions,	19,759 37
" " Expense of Civil Terms of Courts,	7,182 75
" " Coroners' Inquests,	450 40
" " Records, Indexing, Printing and Stationary,	2,144 22
" " Law Library Association,	317 81
" " Highways,	4,555 75
" " Fuel, Lights, and Attendance, at Court Houses,	2,172 64
" " Repairs and Furniture for County Buildings,	13,740 94
" " Completion of New Court House at Salem,	9,512 55
" " Board of Examiners, for Services and Travel,	42 00
" " County Commissioners' Salaries,	3,500 00
" " Treasurer's Salary,	1,500 00
" " Sheriff's "	1,500 00
" " Judge of Probate, committing Lunatics,	58 00
" " State Comm'r, visiting Insane Asylum at Ipswich,	5 25
" " Land adjoining House of Correction at Ipswich,	1,150 00
Balance in the Treasury Jan. 1, 1863,	26,686 86
	$283,218 77
Cash in Treasury Jan. 1, 1863,	$26,686, 86
Balance of Taxes for 1862, unpaid,	6,161, 05
	$32,847 91
Amount of Permanent Debt, January 1, 1862,	$282,667 00
Amount of Permanent Debt, January 1, 1863,	272,000 00
Reduction of Debt in 1862,	$10,667 00

The outstanding Notes of the County are payable, viz:—

$52,000 at 5 1-2 per cent. interest,	in 1863.
55,000 " " " "	" 1864.
30,000 " 5 per cent. interest,	" 1865.
20,000 " " " "	" 1866.
115,000 " " " "	" 1867.

The whole amount of the County Debt was incurred for the erection and improvement of County Buildings, prior to 1860.

A. D. WAIT,
JAMES KIMBALL,
J. B. SWETT, } County Commissioners.
ALLEN W. DODGE, County Treasurer.

A true copy. Attest.
A. HUNTINGTON, Clerk.

Salem Feb. 11, 1863.

WIRE GOODS.

WIRE Rat Traps; Broilers; Steamers; Sieves' &c., just received at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PATENT CLOTHES

A Good Milk Route for Sale,

INQUIRE at this office.
South Danvers, Feb. 11, 1863.

James F. Almy.

Rich Silks.

PURCHASERS of Plain Black, Rept and Fancy Silks, are invited to examine our stock, a greater part of which was bought before the advance.

JAMES F. ALMY,
feb 18 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

John P. Peabody.

Do you want to Save Money?

IF YOU DO, the sooner you buy your Cotton Hosiery the more you will save. We have now open our last season's Stock, which we are selling for much less than they can be imported this season. In Spool Cottons, too, this rule holds good, and every one should buy up stock sufficient for a year's use.

Our White Goods Department.

WE bought our Cambrics, Muslins, Lawns, Nainsooks, &c., before the rise, and have not bought since. We are therefore selling them at about one half the regular wholesale prices now. And so it is through each department, and so it will be as long as goods are going up every week. We sell, thinking we are doing well, but find when we go to buy, that our retail prices are less than the Jobber's are asking. Every one will consult their own interest by buying their Spring and Summer Goods early. JOHN P. PEABODY, feb 18 220 Essex St, Salem.

COTTON HOSIERY.

Last Season's Stock

NOW OPEN AT

220 ESSEX ST., SALEM,

JOHN P. PEABODY.

THE CLOTHES WRINGER.

JUST OBTAINED
RHOADES' CELEBRATED
NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER,
THE VERY BEST YET INVENTED,
AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING MACHINE.
CALL AND EXAMINE.
For Sale by E. SOUTHWICK,
At the EQUITY GROCERY STORE,
South Danvers, Jan 21, 1863. 3m

T. HARDY, JR.,
—Dealer in—
DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,
Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,
FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,
No. 26 FRONT STREET,
Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

IHLSING & NARVESON'S
Celebrated New Full 7 Octave
PIANO FORTES,

OF superior tone and finish, plain and ornamental, nameboard inlaid with pearl, full iron frame, grand action, overstrung bass pearl or ivory keys, plain or carved legs, are for sale at

218 Essex Street, Salem, Up Stairs.

Any one wishing to obtain a superior instrument is invited to call before purchasing elsewhere.
jan 7—tf S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

100,000 BARRELS OF THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S
POUDRETTE,
111 COMMERCIAL ST., BOSTON, MASS.

This Company, with a capital of $150,000, the most extensive works of the kind in the world, and an experience in manufacturing of over 23 years, with a reputation long established, having also the exclusive control of all the night soil of the great city of New York, are prepared to furnish an article, which is, without doubt, the CHEAPEST AND VERY BEST fertilizer in market. It greatly increases the yield, and ripens the crop from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from three to four dollars per acre, with little or no labor. Also, FIFTY TONS of BONE TAFEU, being a mixture of bone and night soil ground fine, at $45 per ton—a superior article for grain and grass. Price of POUDRETTE, $1 50 per barrel. Seven barrels and over delivered free of charge. A pamphlet containing all necessary information may be had free by addressing a letter to the subscriber.

JAMES T FOSTER,
Care of the Lodi Manufacturing Company,
66 Courtland St., New York.

Agents—WELCH & FAIRFIELD, Grocers, Lowell Street, South Danvers. feb 11—3m

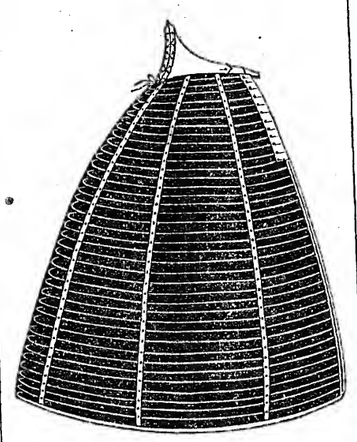
NEW BOOKS

AT G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, 190 Essex st. Salem:

Transition; a remembrance of Emma Whitney, by Hugh Smith Carpenter, author of "Here and Beyond."
Garret Van Horn; or the Beggar on Horseback, by John S Saxaadi;
Great Expectations Realized; or Civilizing Mountain Men, by Mrs Ellen II B Mason;
Notes, Criticisms, and Correspondence upon Shakspeare's Plays and Actors, by Jas Henry Hackett;
Tactics; or Cupid in Shoulder Straps, a West Point Love Story, by Reuben Delle, USA;
A Tangled Skein, by Albany Fonblanque, Jun;
Tax Law Decisions, Alphabetically arranged, Citizens' edition—10 cts only;
Sunsets on the Hebrew Mountains, by Rev J R Macduff, D D;
The Successful Merchant, sketch of the life of Mr Samuel Budgett;
Verner's Pride, a Tale of Domestic Life, by Mrs Wood;
Lady Audley's Secret, a Novel, by M E Bradden;
My Diary North and South—by William Howard Russell;
Eclectic Magazine—February.
Lady Lisle, by M E Bradden, author of Aurora Floyd; No Name, by Wilkie Collins;
Chronicles of Carlingford, by Mrs Oliphant;
Mistress and Maid, by Miss Mulock;
Elementary Instruction—Object Lessons, by E A Sheldon;
American Genealogy, by William H

Browning & Long.

POINT DE VENICE
SKIRTS.
SOMETHING ENTIRELY NEW.



NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

BROWNING & LONG have received their Spring Skirts, being of New Shape and Design, Kid Fronts and Springs Securely Fastened.

In the "Point de Venice" will be found a perfect Skirt, being of a beautiful shape, and having attached to it a Kid Bodice, which fits closely to the form, making it a graceful and durable Skirt, and especially adapted to the present style of fitting dresses.

Receiving our Skirts direct from the manufacturers, we are enabled to show a fine assortment of New Styles, and can offer them at

VERY LOW PRICES.

Also received, a full line of
MISSES' SKIRTS,
KID FRONTS, and SUPERIOR FINISH.

BROWNING & LONG,
(Successors to J. Mayer.)
Jan. 28. 177 Essex Street.

LARGE SALES
AND SMALL PROFITS.

THE NEWEST STYLES!

BROWNING & LONG
Have just opened the following articles, being of the Latest Importation and New Patterns:

STEEL PINS;
STEEL CROSSES;
STEEL CUFF PINS;
STEEL EAR RINGS;
STEEL BELT CLASPS;
STEEL BELT PINS;
CORNELIAN SHAWL PINS;
PEARL SLEEVE BUTTONS;
JET AND STEEL BUTTONS;
CUT STEEL BUTTONS;
NEW SLIPPER PATTERNS;
JET BONNET TRIMMINGS.

NEW GOODS constantly received—we are thus able to show our customers the newest the market affords.

BROWNING & LONG,
SUCCESSORS TO
J. MAYER,
☞ No. 177 Essex Street,
FIRST CLASS GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

The remainder of our
Knit Zephyr Goods
To be sold at REDUCED PRICES.
Salem, Jan 28, 1863.

SLATING. SLATING.

GEORGE FOWLER & COMPA'Y,

NO. 2 ST. PETER COURT, SALEM, respectfully inform their friends and the citizens of this and neighboring towns and cities that they are prepared to execute all orders for Slating, promptly and faithfully.

Roofs covered with any description of Slates, or repaired at short notice.

All work undertaken will be warranted.
Address—Box 366, Salem Post Office.
Salem, January 28—1863. tf

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

ESSEX, ss. PROBATE COURT.

To the Heirs-at-Law, Next of Kin, and all other persons interested in the Estate of JOHN NEEDHAM, late of South Danvers, in said County, yeoman, deceased, GREETING:

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court, for Probate, by SIDNEY C. BANCROFT, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him the executor therein named:

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Salem, in said County of Essex, on the first Tuesday of March next, at nine o'clock before noon, to show cause, if any you have, against the same.

And said Sidney C. Bancroft is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once a week, for three successive weeks, in the newspaper called the South Danvers Wizard, printed at South Danvers, the last publication to be two days, at least, before said court.

Witness, GEORGE F. CHOATE, Esquire, Judge of said court, this third day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three.

feb 11 A. C. GOODELL, Register.

WALKING MADE EASY.

DR. P. KENISON,
CHIROPODIST,
215 Washington St., Boston,
Cures Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails, Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

George S. Walker.

Linen Fronts, Cuffs & Collars.

LINENS are advancing, consequently there must be a corresponding advance in the above named articles. The present is the time to buy all styles and qualities in stock bought before the rise, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
Gent's Furnishing Store,
Feb 11 No. 228 Essex st, Stearn's Building.

Scarfs. Ties. Stocks.

THE LARGEST ASSORTMENT,
THE BEST STYLES
THE LOWEST PRICES.

Also—BLACK SILK CRAVATS—30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches—Matteoni's manufacture, at
GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
feb 11 228 Essex st, Stearns' Block.

Umbrellas.

GINGHAM, Silk and Cotton—largest stock in the city, at
GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
Dealer in Gent's Furnishing Goods & Toilet Articles. Opposite Eastern Railroad Station.

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,
FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,
Central street, South Danvers,

HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.

He keeps as good an assortment of

COFFINS AND CASKETS,

as can be found at any establishment, and at the lowest prices.

He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.

All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

SOUTH DANVERS
POST OFFICE.

GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.

MAILS CLOSE
At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.
MAILS DUE
At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.

Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.

F. POOLE, P. M.
South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.
South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

FOR SALE.

A GOOD comfortable Home, a two-story House, L, Shed and Barn, in good repair, pleasantly located in Londonderry, N. H., 1 1-2 miles from center of town, 10 acres of Land, with plenty of Fruit. Price only $650.

Also—an excellent Stock Farm of 250 acres, for sale or exchange.

dec 31 L. BRICKETT, Derry, N. H.

FRANKLIN COAL.

JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL —the best in the world for domestic use.

POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

E. N. PRICE,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
HARNESSES,
SADDLES, BRIDLES,
AND WHIPS.
— ALSO —
Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.

All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.

237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
meh13-tf

Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

GAYLE & CO.,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
DEALERS IN
Flour, Grain and Produce,
Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of
Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.
PHILLIPS WHARF, - - - - Salem.

REMOVAL!

AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,
Manufacturer and Repairer of
BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

D. W. BOWDOIN,
—ARTIST IN—
PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.

Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]

Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotypo, Daguerreotypo, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.

☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

EXTRA HEAVY SHEETINGS.

5 PIECES Lymans Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS

A FINE assortment—for sale at low prices at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
jy 14 190 Essex Street, Salem.

NEW BOOKS.

STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom;
Fire Light; or Stories for Domestics, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;
Gardener's Monthly—January;
Harper's Weekly; Genealogical Register;
Historical Collections, October, 1862.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
At the old stand of H Whipple & Son

WALLETS & CURRENCY HOLDERS.

MANY new styles and desirable patterns—received from the manufacturers—at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
feb 4 190 Essex Street, Salem.

A. J. Archer & Co

ELEGANT NEW GOODS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

OPEN THIS MORNING

MANY NEW STYLES OF

DRESS GOODS,

INCLUDING

Rich and Heavy Black Silks,

Rich Plain Colored Silks.

☞ Our patrons are invited to examine these Goods. Prices are still advancing, and money will be saved by buying now.

Salem, February 11, tf

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

Have on hand a full supply of

BROWN SHEETINGS AND SHIRTINGS;

BLEACHED SHEETINGS & SHIRTINGS;

— Also —

GREY TWILLED FLANNELS;

WHITE FLANNELS.

— Also —

BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,

which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES.
Salem, January 28—6w

H. & H. G. HUBON,
WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM
Manufacturers of
Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood
COFFINS and CASKETS.

MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.

dec 14—tf

Rare Chance for Bargains.

CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of
JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS,
At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER

Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,
Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Ware,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.
at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.

This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Refurnishing the Table, &c.

Old Silver taken in exchange.

☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.

JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

W. E. P. SMYTH,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.
Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,
LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.

Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow.
2d. The Children.
3d. The Father.
4th. The Mother.
5th The Brothers and Sisters collectively.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken on, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.

When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditer's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay in getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.

Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1y

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, of which the Mackie took the First Premium at the late Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.

BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook.
South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862. tf

KEROSENE LANTERMS.

KEROSENE Stand and Hand Lamps, and Peg Lamps Also Wicks and Chimneys—for sale by S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

PAPER SHADES.

A FINE assortment of Paper Shades for Kerosene Lamps, just opened at
S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

GLUE AND CEMENT.

HILTON'S Insoluble Cement; Rickards's Improved Cement; Spaulding's, Upton's, and Nichols's Liquid Glues, for sale by
feb 11 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

JUVENILE BOOKS,

A VERY large assortment for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

☞ If you want to SAVE MONEY, in purchasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, No. 10 Front street, Salem. ap30-tf

Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,
Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,
34 Front Street.

Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

Bank Stock, Piano Forte, &c.

On SATURDAY Next, at 9 1-2 o'clock, A M, at No. 34 Front Street:

THE USUAL VARIETY of New and Second-hand Furniture. Lounge, Sofa, Carpets, Stoves, &c.

Also—2 doz new Round Corner and Cottage Bedsteads.

Also—a quantity of miscellaneous Books.

Also—the balance of an Invoice of Crockery Ware.

At 11 o'clock—10 shares Warren Bank.
5 shares Eastern Railroad.

One upright Piano Forte, iron frame, rosewood case, a good instrument. feb 18

TO LET.

A SMALL and convenient TENEMENT, on Washington Street, not far from Aborn St For terms apply to H. C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, Nov. 26, 1862.

GRIST MILL.

HAVING made arrangements for carrying on the Grist Mill at Newhall's Crossing, at South Danvers, I take this method of informing the public that the mill is now open and ready for business.

Any patronage in the line of grinding corn or other grain, or making COB MEAL, will be gratefully received, and all orders promptly attended to.

If equally convenient for customers to bring their grists afternoons instead of forenoons they will accommodate me by doing so.

ELBRIDGE G. NEWHALL.
South Danvers, Dec 3, 1862.

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,

Druggist and Apothecary,
33 MAIN STREET.
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.
Personal attention to Physicians' Prescriptions.
South Danvers, May 29, 1861. 1y

GEO. E. MEACOM

Dealer in
DRUGS & MEDICINES,
Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.,
126 . . MAIN ST. . . 126
Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,
Druggist & Apothecary
37 Main St., So. Danvers,

DEALER IN
Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponges, Shoulder Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines.
Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery.
Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by experienced persons.
37 MAIN STREET.

PATTERSON S
LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE

THE undersigned are agents for the above machine. It can be seen in operation at Pinder & Brown's Tannery.

may 7—3m CLARK & GIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,
Wallis Street, South Danvers,
Are Agents for
GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S
PATENT EAVE TROUGHS
CUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND
PIPE FOR DRAINS
South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

Potter, Bachelder & Co.,
(Successors to M. Black)
DANVERS-PORT,
DEALERS IN
WOOD AND COAL

OF the various kinds usually kept in a retail yard. Constantly on hand

Franklin, Old Company's Lehigh,
Locust Mountain, Black Heath,
Red and White Ash.

Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere.

OFFICE---No. 6 Allen's Building.

Order Box at post office, South Danvers, and post office, Danvers.

G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. july 19—t

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal S

PRICES REDUCED!

WE shall sell our DRESS GOODS at REDUCED PRICES.

We shall sell all the different styles of Ladies' Watch Spring, Bon Ton and Quadrille Skirts, at a discount.

All our Balmoral Skirts at a discount;
French Prints and other grades;
Domestic Goods;
Cottons, Flannels, Crashes;
Blankets, the very best quality—all widths;
Batting, full pound bundles;
Wool Wadding, Sheet Wadding, black and white.

☞ In order to prepare for Spring Trade we shall sell at the very lowest prices for cash.

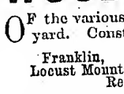
jan 7 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal S

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,

IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
dec 24 Sign of Five Golden Books

MUSICAL NOTICE.

Chickering & Sons' Piano-For



ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal S would inform her friends in South Danvers, and the public generally that she keeps for sale and to let Chickering Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with care, and need only to be tried to prove their superiority over every other in the market. The very terms given.

MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPH
For sale and to let. For power and quality of tone none can surpass them A. R. BRAY, 76 Federal

DIARIES--1863-

AN excellent assortment at the lowest price for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

LINSEED OIL.

SPIRITS Turpentine, Japan Drying and Varnishes, constantly for sale by
S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st, Sa

Miscellaneous.

ANECDOTES OF A PHYSICIAN.

Dr. Lemuel Hopkins, who practiced in Hartford, Conn., in the latter part of the last century, sustained a reputation, both in the theory and practice of medicines, far in advance of any of his colleagues. His character was full of striking eccentricities. He had confidence in himself, and had power to impart it to others. He knew the influence of the mind upon those diseased, and used his knowledge to advantage. In person Dr. Hopkins was tall, lean and stooping, his countenance strongly marked, his features large, eyes light, limbs long, but strong and muscular. His opinions were strongly expressed, although not always in the most approved style. On visiting a patient in the crisis of fever, Dr. H. found that her friends supposed her to be in a dying state. The father said to him—

"My daughter is dying; had I not better send for a clergyman?"

"No," was the reply; "but if you do, send for the undertaker and have her measured for a coffin at the same time."

The father, indignant at this unfeeling reply, remonstrated in severe language for trifling at such a moment, and demanded an explanation. The doctor explained—

"My meaning is, you may as well send for both as one. If your daughter is allowed to be quiet, I will forfeit my reputation that she will recover. But if you excite and disturb her as you propose, my opinion is she will surely die."

Whenever he became much interested in a case, he gave it unceasing attention, and would sometimes stay by the patient day and night, administering the potions with his own hand. In one case, at about a critical period, he became fearful the medicines would want changing. He could not sleep—got up in the night, rode four miles to his patient, entered the house without saying a word, felt the pulse and skin, made signs for and examined the tongue, and being satisfied that his patient was better, left the house without speaking a word to any one.

Being once called to a child very low in scarlet fever, he found the little sufferer loaded with bedclothes, the room hot, every crack and keyhole being stopped, although the day was one of the pleasantest in summer. Dr. H. was a stranger to the family. His whole appearance was ugly and uncouth. Entering the room in his usual unceremonious manner, staring about with his large eyes, without uttering a word he went to the bed, took the child in his arms, ran out of the house, and seated himself in a refreshing shade, where the cooling and healthful breeze could fan the burning sufferer. The whole household followed, the neighborhood aroused, and broomsticks ad libitum were threatened. He succeeded, however, in maintaining his position, and in inducing them to follow his direction. The child immediately improved, and soon entirely recovered.

The Ocean and the Fall of Rain. The Atlantic Ocean includes an area of 26,000,000 square miles. Suppose an inch of rain to fall upon only one-fifth of this vast expanse, it would weigh 360,000,000 tons; and the salt which, when the water was taken up as a vapor was left behind to disturb the equilibrium, weighed nearly twice as much as all the ships in the world could carry at a cargo each. It might fall in a day; but occupy what time it might in falling, this rain is calculated to exert so much force—which is inconceivably great—in disturbing the equilibrium of the ocean. If all the water discharged by the Mississippi river during the year were taken up in one mighty purpose, and cast into the ocean at an effort, it would not make a greater disturbance in the sea than the fall of rain supposed. And yet so gentle are the operations of nature that movements so vast are unperceived.

Beautiful Illustration.—A dear little child of five summers was buried in a neighboring town. On leaving the house of its parents, the clergyman plucked up by the roots a beautiful little "forget me not," and took it with him to the grave. After the little embryo of humanity had been deposiied in the grave, the clergyman, holding up the plant in his hand, said:

"I hold in my hand a beeutiful flower which I plucked from the garden we have just left. By taking it from its parent home, it has withered, but here I plant it in the head of this grave, and it will soon revive and flourish. So with the little flower we heve just planted in the grave. It has been plucked from its native garden, and has wilted, but it has been transplanted in the garden of Immortality, where it will revive and flourish in immortal glory and beauty."

☞ "Dad, I want to ask you a question." "Well, my son." "Why is neighbor Smith's liquor shop like a Confederate note?" "I can't tell, my son." "Because you can't pass it," said the boy. "Go right straight to bed, you young rascal, or I'll make a smash of you!"

Economy in Burning Coal.—The price of coal, and in fact of almost every article used in the family, demands the practice of great economy by every housekeeper. The fact that many families are supplied with fuel from the coal gleaned from ashes thrown into the street, is proof of the need of economy in coal burning. Nor is this the only waste in the use of coal. Ill-constructed stoves and non-attention to the philosophy of complete combustion, cause a waste of from thirty to fifty per cent, of heat.—The stove is filled with coal, the dampers neglected, and the housekeeper is filled with astonishment at the enormous consumption of coal. To enter fully into the discussion of the scientific principles which should be observed in the construction of coal stoves, it is not our purpose; but we may remark that a stove so constructed as to give the largest surface of combustion to a given amount of coal, and completely under the control of the housekeeper, so that when the coal is fully ignited the draft may be wholly shut off, is the most economical.

Then, again, in most all kinds of coal burners, a large per centage of coal drops through the grate; and unless carefully sifted out, is thrown out in the ashes.—This should be saved. Every consumer of coal snould buy a coal-sifter, and all the ashes should be carefully screened, and the screenings re-consumed. By the practice of the suggestions here made, we know that from thirty to fifty per cent may be saved—no small item when coal is from eight to ten dollars per ton.

"Woven Wind" is the poetic name of the finest workmanship of India—the "Dacca muslin." So fine is this material that when laid upon the grass to bleach the dew makes it disappear. This used to be spun by native females who had been trained to it from their infancy. So nice was the sense of touch required for the spinning of this yarn, that they were constantly waited upon by a retinue of servants whose duty it was to relieve them of all menial offices which might endanger the fine tactual faculty which long practice and seclusion had bestowed on their delicate finger tips. Singularly enough, although the steam engine and spinning machine can produce far finer yarn than any that the fingers of Hindoo maiden ever spun, the English looms, in other respects so perfect, cannot weave the Dacca muslin. The finer yarns require to be taken back to India to be woven by hand into the flimsiest of tissues by the rudest and most primitive of all looms.

A Mean Man's Nose.—There is always something the matter with a mean man's nose. Make a note of this, ye observers of the eccentricities of human character. Whenever you meet a mean man—a man whose reputation for pure, unadulterated, pigeon-breasted meanness is beyond the possibility of dispute, you may be certain there is something wrong about his nose. He is either scratching it, blowing it, tweaking it with a quick, crabbed, ill-natured pull of his finger, or snuffing. His nose will be all wrong—nature formed it so—and nature did it that he might have a distinguishing feature.

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,
ONE PRICE
HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,
231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

JUST PUBLISHED.
Graver Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heaven, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantes, by A. B. Edwards; The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by dec 24 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH, Sign of the Five Golden Books.

Ann R. Bray,
No. 76 Federal Street,
— DEALER IN —
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

DIARIES FOR
1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at nov 26 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, Sign of the Five Golden Books,

Plymouth Buck Gloves.
MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S Gent's Furnishing Store,

CHINA GOODS
RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

KNIVES AND FORKS.
A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A VALUABLE PRESENT.
A YEAR'S Reading in Whipple & Smith's Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.
dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

CHEAP EDITION.
LES Miserables—complete—$1.00. Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Muloch—for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

READING.
730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Ladies' Spring Skirts.
ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

NEW GOODS.
WE have received some very neat styles of French Prints, small figures, Spring styles, new goods.
Neat styles Patches, new patterns.
A few pieces Cotton and Wool M de Laines, new styles, suitable for the present and Spring wear—selling low for cash.
jy 14 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.
Prof. M. G. BROWN.
SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets scumy and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its sockett in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to anoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 6 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

The Confessions and Experience of a Poor Young Man.
A GENTLEMAN having been cured of the results of early error and disease, will, from motives of benevolence, send to those who request it, a copy of the above interesting narrative, published by himself. This little book is designed as a warning and caution to young men and those who suffer from Nervous Debility, Loss of Memory, Premature Decay, &c., &c., supplying at the same time the means of self-cure. Single copies will be sent under seal in a plain envelope,—without charge,—to any who request it, by addressing the author,
CHAS. A. LAMBERT, Esq.,
Greenpoint, Long Island, New York.

TABLE CUTLERY.
A FULL stock of Knives and Forks. Carvers and Steels. and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by nov 19 S G & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

FOR NEW YEAR'S.
ELEGANT BOOKS; NEW BOOKS;
BEAUTIFUL FANCY GOODS; BRONZES;
PARIAN; WOOD CARVINGS;
FINE CUTLERY; GAMES;
PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS;
DARLEY'S "MORNING, NOON & NIGHT."
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

REMOVAL!
JOHN J. ASHBY,
WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store
No. 145 Essex Street,
formerly occupied by John Barlow, where he has opened a good assortment of
BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,
and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.
Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

E. R. PERKINS,
PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST
241 Essex Street, Salem.
Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,
Photographs, Spherecotypes, Melainotypes, and patent enamel Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Tenements to Let.
ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $54 per year.
One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.
One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.
One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.
One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.
SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

MUNROE'S
(Late Reed's)
SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON
RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at		10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " "	at	5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at		3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " "	at	5 p. m.

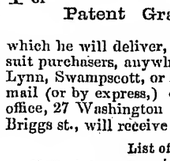
OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.
Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.
Express Office, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.
Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.
Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.
Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed:
WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

E. F. BURNHAM,
SOLE AGENT FOR
SARGENT & CO.S'
MAGIC SOAP
For South Danvers & Salem.
OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.
Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.
Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
INNER SOLES,
AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.
2 Main Street, South Danvers.

THOMAS PINNOCK,
SLATER,
SALEM, MASS.
Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.
Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.
Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

CURRIER & MILLETT,
Dealers in


Furniture, Chairs,
MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c
259 & 261 ESSEX ST.
Salem, dec 14—ly

WM. C. HENDERSON,
MANUFACTURER OF
PLAIN AND FANCY
PAPER BOXES,
No. 235 ESSEX STREET,
Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"
july 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,
NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St. South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

Heckscher Coal!
$8.25 per Ton on Wharf.
A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,
Both Red and White Ash,
Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by
W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.
july 9

AARON T. LOWE,
DEALER IN
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,
76 BOSTON STREET, 76.
aug 6 SALEM. tf

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.
THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of
Patent Granular Fuel,
which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.
List of Prices.

25 Bushels, delivered,		2 25
50 do	do	4 00
100 do	do	7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.
BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, june 18.

NOTICE.
THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. John P. Friend, who will faithfully attend to any orders.
JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

R. C. MANNING & CO,
Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,
DEALERS IN
COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,
188 DERBY STREET,
SALEM, MASS.
N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.
oct17

NOTICE.
I HEREBY give notice that I have this day given to my son NATHANIEL F HURD, now 16 years old, his time, and I will not detain his earnings or pay any debts he may contract after this date.
HARFORD HURD.
Danvers, January 14, 1862. 3w*

Dyspepsia Remedy.
DR. DARIUS HAM'S
AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!
This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.
It Stimulates, Exhilarates, Invigorates, but will not Intoxicate or Stupefy.
AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner.
It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.
Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the Delirium Tremens, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.
Dose—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.
A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.
Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.
Persons who, from dissipating too much over night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings.
Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the careworn face.
During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.
All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the Invigorating Spirit in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.
General Depot, 48 Water Street, N. Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.
feb 29 1y

Are you Insured?
THE subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect Insurance against Fire, to any amount, at current rates, on
Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,
And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:
Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn.
Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y
Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass.
Capital and Assets—$170,000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D, Medical Examiner.
WM. ARCHER, Jr.,
18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
ej b20-1

Important to the Afflicted.
DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a
PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.
By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent, Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of
GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.
Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.
SEMINAL WEAKNESS.
Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating marimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.
Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.
Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French ——, warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862– 1y.

CAUTION
TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.
DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.
Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.
Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.
Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.
N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.
Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE
IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.
Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.
Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imparts and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862– 1y

WAL LETS AND CURRENCY
HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

MAGAZINES FOR DECEMBER.
ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Mad am Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

CHINA WARE.
A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustre China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

HILTON'S INSOLUBLE CEMENT.
ONLY 25 cents—try a bottle. For sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
jan 21 190 Essex street.

NOTE PAPER, ENVELOPES, &C.
A VERY full and complete stock, at a very small advance on old prices, at
jan 21 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

KEROSENE PEG LAMPS,
FOR Shoemaker's use, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PLATE COVERS.
PLANISHED Tin Plate Covers, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 34 Front.

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

Eastern Railroad.

ON and after Monday, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains will leave the Eastern Railroad Station, Washington street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excepted):

For Lynn and Boston, 6½, 7¼, 8¼, 9, 10, 11 a m., 1, 2¼ 4 40, 6¾, p. m.
Beverly, 8¼ am., 1, 3½, 4¾, 5¾, 6¾, 7½ p m.
W. Beach, Man'r, Gloucester, and Rockport, 8½ a m., 1, 4¾ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8½ a m., 1, 3½, 5¾ p m.
Amesbury, 8½ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portsmouth, 8½ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portland, 8½ a m., 3½ p m.

AND FOR SALEM, FROM
Portland, 8¾ a m., 2½ p m.
Portsmouth, 7½, *11½ a m., *5 p m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9.40 a m., 5 20 p m.
Newburyport, 8, 10 a m., 12 m., 5.45 p m.
Ipswich, 8.25, 10.25 a m., 12 25, 6.10 p m.
Gloucester, 7.25, 10 10 a m., 3.55 p m.
Manchester, 7.40, 10.25 a m., 4.10 p m.
Beverly, 7.05, 8.05, 8 50, 10.50 a m., 12.50, 4½, 6.35.
Lynn, 8, 9, 11 a m., 12¾, 3, 4½, 5½, 6½, 7½ 10.
Boston, 7½, 8½, 10½ a m., 12½, 2¾, 4, 5, 6, 6¾, 10¼ p m.

*Or on arrival from the East.
†On Wednesdays this train leaves Boston at 11½ p m. via Saugus Branch; and on Saturdays at 10½ p m.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.
Marblehead for Salem, 7, 8, 8¾, 9¾ a m., 12¾, 1¾, 4.25, 6¼
Salem for Marblehead, 8½, 9.25, 11¼ a m., 1, 3¾, 5¾, 6¾

SOUTH READING BRANCH.
Trains leave the South Reading Depot in Salem for Boston at 7, 9.40 a m., 2.25, 4.55 p m
Boston for Salem, 7 a m., 12 m., 2¾, 5 p m.
South Danvers for Salem, 7¾ a m., 12¾, 3¼, 5¾ p m.

ESSEX RAILROAD.
Leave Salem for Lawrence and way stations, 7¼, 11¼ a m., 4¾ p m.
Lawrence for Salem, 8¼ a m., 12.40, 6¼ p m.
Danvers for Salem, 9.12 a m., 1.22, 6.57 p m.

J. PRESCOTT, Superintendent.
Boston, November 10, 1862.

Salem and Lowell Railroad.

ON and after Monday, Nov 10, 1862, Trains will run as follows:
Leave Lowell for Salem, 7.25 a m., and *2.00 p m.
Leave Salem for Lowell, *9 40 a m. and 5 00 p m.

Passengers are not allowed to carry baggage above $50 in value, and that personal, unless notice is given and an extra amount paid. Season tickets do not entitle the holder to take baggage.

*Freight Train with passenger car attached.
F. H. NOURSE, Local Superintendent.
November 7, 1862.

SPEED, COMFORT AND SAFETY!

FOR NEW YORK.
Norwich Steamboat Train.
The only Boats Landing at Jersey City.
CABIN Passage, $4.00; Deck Passage, $3.00. The new and elegant sixteen wheel cars of the steamboat express train leave the Boston & Worcester Railroad Station, Albany Street., at 5½ P. M., daily, connecting with the new steamers, (built expressly for this line,) CITY OF BOSTON, Capt. Wilcox, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; CITY OF NEW YORK, Capt. Jewett, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, which (before proceeding to their Pier, No. 39 North River,) will touch at the wharf of the New Jersey Railroad at Jersey City, (Sundays excepted) thus enabling Southern Passengers to make sure connections with the First Southern Train, and at the same time avoid the great annoyance of the Ferry and Hack transportation in the crowded streets of New York. This insures ample time for Breakfast before the trains leave. Conductors D. F. Waller and W. F. Barton accompany the passengers through.
Tickets, Berths and Staterooms secured at the Railroad Station, and at the Office of the line, 79 Washington Street, Boston.
Through tickets to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington can be had at 79 Washington Street, Boston. WM. DICKEY, Jr., Agent.
Boston, January 7, 1863.

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT
CHANGE OF TIME
TO
LYNN & BOSTON
BY OMNIBUS AND HORSE CAR
On and after THURSDAY, June 19th, 1862,
W. F. BURNHAM'S
Line of Omnibuses will leave the Lynn and Boston Omnibus Office, No. 6 Allen's Building, South Danvers, passing down Main street, through Washington street to Lynn, daily.
Leave South Danvers at 7.50 A. M., and 12.50 and 4.50 P. M.
Leave Lynn at 10 A. M., and 2 1-2 and 6 1-2 P. M.
Horse Cars leaving Scollay's Building, Court street, Boston, at 8.15 A. M., 1.15 and 5.15 P. M., will meet the Omnibus at Lynn, at the above named hours, to take passengers to South Danvers.
Sunday Arrangements.
Leave S. Danvers at 7.50 a.m., and 4.50 p.m.
Leave Lynn at 9.30 a.m., and 6.30 p.m.
Cars leave Scollay's Building, Boston, to meet the Omnibuses in Lynn for South Danvers, at 8.15 a m. and 5.15 p.m.
Through Tickets to and from Boston may be had of the Drivers and Conductors.
Tickets to Lynn, - - 15 cents.
Through to Boston, - 30 cents.
Passengers called for at reasonable charges i notice is given at the Office.
EXPRESS BUSINESS
Between South Danvers and Lynn promptly attended to, on reasonable terms.
Extra Coaches furnished at short notice, at moderate rates.
South Danvers, June 18, 1862.

South Danvers & Salem Line of Omnibuses.
ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 4, 1861, the South Danvers and Salem Line of Omnibuses will run as follows:
Leave the Hourly Office, South Danvers at 7, 8, 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2 a. m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8.
Leave No. 13 Central St., Salem, at 8, 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2, a.m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8, 9.
☞ Ladies' Room, at Needham & Hawkes's, No. 272 Essex Street, and at the Offices.
Single Fare on the regular route, 6 cents, or Twenty Tickets for $1 00.
Passengers called for or left off the route, at a reasonable distance, the fare will be 13 cents.
Extra Coaches furnished, at all hours, at reasonable prices.
nov 27 HENRY M. MERRILL.

Abbott's South Danvers & Salem EXPRESS.
Leave South Danvers, - - - - - 7½ a m, 1 p m
Leave Salem, - - - - - - - 10 a m, 4 p m
Orders left at Teel & Moulton's, and principal stores on Main street, South Danvers; and at 7 Washington street, and at Reed's in the Market, Salem.

MARSHALL'S
DANVERS, SO. DANVERS & SALEM
EXPRESS.
Leave DANVERS (daily) at 9 A. M.
" SALEM at 1½ P. M.
OFFICES:
In Danvers—At E B Waitt's and the Post Office.
Danversport—Richards' and A W Warren's Stores.
In So. Danvers—Francis Dane & Co's, and No 2 Main street.
In Salem—No 7 Washington street, 199 Essex st, and 17 Derby Square.
All business promptly and faithfully attended to.
☞ Our patrons are particularly requested to write their orders.
☞ Packages, left at the office, should be marked "Marshall's Express."
☞ Being connected with the RAILROAD we are enabled to forward Notes, Drafts and Bills for collection, and small packages, to all accessible point in the United States, at the usual rates.
P. G. MARSHALL.
dec1-8-tf

PINGREE'S JOB WAGON.
THE subscriber is still prepared to do all kinds of Job Work and Teaming, such as removing Furniture and Merchandize of any description about town, or to and from the neighboring towns.
Orders will be received at the Essex Railroad Station, and at S. Flint's store, on the Square.
Thankful for past favors, he would solicit a continuance of the same. W. H. PINGREE.
South Danvers, 1860.

PRINTIN

IN EVERY VARI
Neatly and Promp
EXECUT
— At —
The Wizard C
SOUTH DANVERS SQ
SOUTH DANVERS, M
POSTER
(LARGE AND SMA
WHICH CAN'T BE
— IN THIS —
VICINIT
BARA CIRCUS
TICKETS
— AND —
Orders of Dan
BUSINESS CA
Address Cards,
Wedding Ca
Printed in the neatest ma
And on the finest stock
BILL-HEA
For Manufacturing and Mercantile
BLANK RECEI
And all kinds of BLANKS of every
Printed to suit.
EVERY DESCRIPTI
— OF —
JOB PRINTI
Done in the best manner, and a
LOWEST PRICE
— AND — WARRANT
To please or no pay, at th
WIZARD OFFI
Allen's Building,
SOUTH DANVERS, M

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1863. NO. 8.

Military.

THE PENINSULA CAMPAIGN.

HAT A PRUSSIAN OFFICER THINKS OF IT.

The following narrative, taken from Cologne (Prussian) Gazette, was itten by an officer of rank in the rebel vice, who has recently gone to Europe recruit his health. The author was e of the eminent professional soldiers o organized the Southern Army, in ich he held a most important com- nd until a few weeks ago, when a vere illness induced him to ask a fur- gh. A foreigner by birth, he passed ny years in this country, and writes m personal knowledge and experience. e great military events he describes th so graphic and skillful a pen he tnessed from first to last.

Upon the approach of the terrible nion armada we were forced to abandon r position on the peninsula at York- wn, and after we had partially spiked r guns we drew back to our defensive stness at Williamsburg, so as at that oint to cover our capital, Richmond, by rowing up strong fortified works, and erfecting a compact military formation. IcClellan, the commanding general of e Union troops, did not allow himself o be so far deceived by our voluntary ithdrawal from our position at York- own as to regard us a beaten army, but ith great celerity and skill continued he disembarkation of his troops, and egan to fortify his position. It was not ntil he had completed his preliminary easures that he advanced with hostile emonstrations against our line.

The lines at Williamsburg were also given up by us without any great resis- ance, although it was very difficult to persuade the old fighting General Ma- gruder of the propriety of the step, for e loved the position as a father loves is child; and to tell the truth, all the ortifications had been constructed with much talent under his personal directions. The hard-headed old soldier was won over only after renewed debate and ex- postulation. At length, however, after a few cavalry affairs, the place was evacuated by our troops, and we took up our march, in two columns, for Rich- mond. In the meanwhile, the most fear- ful panic fell upon Richmond, and all who could possibly get away packed up everything they had and fled southward. The nearer the hostile army approached the city, the fiercer the tumult and up- roar became. The burning waves of popular alarm could not be stayed. The government itself furthered the confusion. Instead of resolving to triumph or to fall with the army in front of Richmond, it at once ordered all the different bureaux to pack up, and caused the officers of ordnance to empty the magazines and convey their stores further south. Even President Davis took to the road, and hastened, with his wife and children, to North Carolina. As may be readily divined, this loss of presence of mind threw the people at large into the most frantic excess of terror. There was nothing on all sides but shouting and uproar, and confusion reached its utmost height. The secret police of General Winder had lost all control. The civil authorities of Richmond were anxious to do something, but knew not what, and also lost their senses. A small number of the Baltimore rabble took advantage of the hubbub, and, in public meeting, passed resolutions condemning Richmond to conflagration as soon as the Union troops should enter it. Yet all who could escape did so. The sick and the wounded were carried further into the interior; many public and private build- ings were marked out for destruction, and, in short, a frightful catastrophe seemed to be impending over the South- ern capital.

At this critical moment the General- in-Chief commanding our forces (John- ston) was wounded at the battle of Seven Pines, and the command fell into the hands of General Lee, who was exactly the man to bring quiet and order again out of this unreasonable chaos. He went to work with great zeal and energy to discharge his onerous task. All dis- posable troops were hastily summoned from the interior; General Stonewall Jackson's army corps was ordered to Richmond; all the hospitals were cleared of their occupants and preparations made for ten thousand wounded men; artillery and ammunition wagons rattled by day and night through the streets, while aids and orderlies galloped to and fro, in wild hurry scurry, with their des- patches. Masses of troops came pouring in daily, yes, hourly, but without music or any other military pomp. Sternly and silently those ragged, half-starved swarms of men moved onward through the thor- oughfares; but the fire in their eyes showed that they were determined to defend their freedom or to perish.

On the 25th of June another great council of war was held. In it were assembled nearly all that was eminent in the Confederate army. There stood like a rock Gen. Lee, gazing cheerfully over the faces of his comrades, for each of whom he had a part already assigned. Thoughtfully his eyes wandered from one to another, as though he wished to stamp the features of each upon his memory, with the feeling that he, perhaps, should never behold many of them again. Close beside him towered the knightly form of Gen. Baldwin; at his left leaned Stone- wall Jackson, the idol of his troops, im- patiently swinging his sabre to and fro, as though the quiet room were too narrow for him, and he were longing to be once more at the head of his columns. A little aside quietly stood the two Hills, arm in arm, while in front of them old Gen. Wise was energetically speaking. Further to the right stood Gens. Huger, Longstreet, Branch, Anderson, Whiting, Ripley and Magruder, in a group. When all these generals had assembled, Gen. Lee laid his plans before them, and in a few stirring words pointed out to each his allotted task. The scheme had al- ready been elaborated. It was compact, concentrated action, and the result could not fail to be brilliant.

When the conference terminated all shook hands and hastened away to their respective army corps, to enter upon im- mediate activity.

Now, in looking at the positions of the two armies, it will be seen that unques- tionably the advantage was with the Southern host; for Gen. McClellan had his forces necessarily on both sides of the Chickahominy, and, owing to the many ravines in his neighborhood, could not, without great difficulty and much loss of time, execute his military movements. His front line reached over a distance of more than twenty miles, in the form of a semi circle, extending from the James River towards Richmond and Ashland. While one part of his army crossed the Chickahominy, he took position with the main body on the north side of the river, from Meadow bridge to Bottom bridge. The heights on the banks of the stream were fortified, so that his army, notwith- standing the great length of its lines, had excellent defensive cover.

On the 26th of June, in the morning, our troops took up their positions. Jack- son hastened by forced marches to Ash- land, there to commence his outflanking operations against the enemy. Having arrived there, his advance guard drove in the weakly posted foe, and pushed on without loss of time to Hanover Court House, where he threw forward General Branch's brigade between the Chicka- hominy and Pamunkey rivers, to estab- lish a junction with Gen. Hill, (1st,) who had to cross the stream at Meadow bridge. Gen. Hill very gallantly opened the offensive, and began his operations against the little town of Mechanicsville. The enemy who were stationed here made a brave resistance. Storming at- tackes were made again and again with a fury, and as often repelled with a cool determination, that awakened admiration. In vain did Gen. Hill send his aids in quest of Gen. Branch. The latter had encountered so many topographical dif- ficulties that he reached his position in front of Mechanicsville only late at night, when the conflict was at an end.

The morning of the 27th had scarcely begun to dawn ere our artillery opened a tremendous fire upon the enemy's front, so that the latter, when they also saw Branch's bridgade advancing to the at- tack on their right, abandoned their posi- tion at Mechanicsville, and fell back, fighting, upon their second defensive line, further down the stream. Just at the moment when we had established the crossing of the Chickahominy, arrived General Longstreet's magnificent army corps—old, experienced veterans of the Army of the Potomac—and the division of Gen. Hill (2d.) At once the order to advance was given all along the line. The divisions of Generals Hill (2d,) An- derson and Whiting formed the centre, and moved towards Coal Harbor, while Jackson, Hill (1st) and Longstreet form- ed the left, and marched down along the bank of the river. Magruder, command- ing the right wing, was, on account of the swampy nature of the ground he oc- cupied, ordered to hold himself merely on the defensive. Gen. Wise took com- mand of Fort Darling, on the James river. All these military offensive opera- tions and the two preceding fights must have given Gen. McClellan knowledge of our intention to change our inconvenient position at Richmond, and to procure for ourselves more space and freedom of mo- tion. He should, then, have instantly ordered the army corps of Gen. Mc- Dowell, which for four months had lain inactive near Fredericksburg, to make a demonstration along the Richmond road. By such a movement even the flank march of Gen. Jackson would have been rendered impracticable. But Gen. Mc- Clellan must have been deceived in the character of McDowell; for, notwith- standing all the communications in refer- ence to our combined manœuvres, the latter remained with imperturbable in- difference in his secure position, and left Gen. McClellan's army, which had suf- fered greatly by sickness and desertion, a prey to the heavy concussions of our attack.

Scarcely, therefore, had Gen. Lee re- ceived reliable intelligence of McDowell's inactivity than a general and simultane- ous attack on McClellan's whole line was resolved upon. So soon, then, as the arrival of Gen. Jackson at Coal Harbor was reported, the Commander-in-Chief, with his staff, repaired to Gaines' Mill and ordered the divisions of Anderson, Hill (1st,) Longstreet and Pickett to at- tack. Before these columns got into motion the thunder of artillery at our left announced that Gen. Jackson was already at work. This called forth in our troops the utmost enthusiasm.

Gen. McClellan's position on that day was remarkable in the highest degree. With one portion of his troops he had crossed to the south side of the Chicka- hominy, and there confronted Magruder, while, with the larger portion of his force, he had taken up a position more to the rear and nearer to the railroad, where he was resolved to accept battle. His dispositions revealed comprehensive forethought, talent and coolness. The different divisions of his army took their positions with admirable precision, and awaited our onset with firmness. It was the first time that the two hostile armies had, in relation to numbers, confronted one another with force so nearly equal; but the Unionists had the advantage of a better protected position, while our troops had to expose themselves to the hostile fire. The attack was opened by the columns of Hill (1st,) Anderson and Pickett. These gallant masses rushed forward with thundering hurrahs upon the musketry of the foe, as though it were a joy to them. Whole ranks went down under that terrible hail, but noth- ing could restrain their courage. The billows of battle raged fiercely onward; the struggle was man to man, eye to eye, bayonet to bayonet. The hostile Meagher's brigade, composed chiefly of Irishmen, offered heroic resistance. After a fierce struggle, our people began to give way, and at length all orders and encourage- ments were vain—they were falling back in the greatest disorder. Infuriate, foam- ing at the mouth, bareheaded, sabre in hand, at this critical moment Gen. Cobb appeared upon the field, at the head of his legion, and with him the Nineteenth North Carolina and Fourteenth Virginia regiments. At once these troops renewed the attack; but all their devotion and self-sacrifice were in vain—the Irish holding their position with a determina- tion and ferocity that called forth the ad- miration of our own officers. Broken to pieces and disorganized, the fragments of that fine legion came rolling back from the charge. The Nineteenth North Carolina lost eight standard-bearers, and most of their staff officers were either killed or wounded. Again Gens. Hill (1st) and Anderson led their troops to the attack, and some regiments covered themselves with immortal glory. Our troops exhibited a contempt of death that made them the equals of old, ex- perienced veterans; for, notwithstanding the bloody harvest the destroyer reaped in our ranks that day, no disorder, no timid bearing, revealed that many of the regiments were under fire and smelt gun- powder then for the first time.

But the enemy, nevertheless, quietly and coolly held out against every attack that we made, one after the other. Not- withstanding the fact that solitary brig- ades had to stand their ground from four until eight o'clock, P. M., they perform- ed feats of incredible valor; and it was only when news came that Jackson was in their rear that, about eight, they re- tired before our advance. Despite the dreadful carnage in their ranks, they marched on with streaming banners and rolling drums, and carried with them all their slightly wounded and all their bag- gage; and, when the cavalry regiments of Davies and Wickham went in pursuit, repelled this assault also with perfect coolness.

By this time night had come on and overspread the field of death with dark- ness, compassionately shutting out from the eyes of the living the horrid specta- cle of slaughter. Quiet gradually re- turned; only a feeble cannonade could be heard upon our farthest left, and that, too, little by little, died away. The soldiers were so fearfully exhausted by the day's struggle that many of them sank down from their places in the ranks upon the ground. Although I, too, could scarcely keep in the saddle, so great was my fatigue, I hastened with one of my aids to that quarter of the field where the struggle had raged the most fiercely. The scene of ruin was horrible; whole ranks of the enemy lay prone where they had stood at the beginning of the battle. The number of wounded was fearful, too, and the groans and imploring cries for help that rose on all sides had, in the obscurity of the night, a ghastly effect that froze the blood in one's veins. Al- though I had been upon so many battle- fields in Italy and Hungary, never had my vision beheld such a spectacle of hu- man destruction. The preparations for the transportation of the wounded were too trifling, and the force detailed for that purpose were either too feeble in numbers, or had no proper knowledge of its duties. Even the medical corps had, by the terrors of the situation, been ren- dered incapable of attending to the wounded with zeal and efficiency. With inconceivable exertion I at length suc- ceeded, with the assistance of some hu- mane officers, in bringing about some kind of order amid this frightful con- fusion. By the happiest chance I found some Union ambulances, had all our men who could drive and knew the way pres- sed into service, and set to work to get the wounded into Richmond. A most heart-rending task it was; for often the poor sufferer would expire just as we were about to extend him succor. By midnight we had got the first train ready. It consisted of sixty wagons, with two hundred seriously wounded. I cautiously and slowly conducted this train with suc- cess to the city. The first hospital reached, I was met with refusal. "All full!" was the reply to my inquiry. "Forward to the next hospital!" was my word of command. "All full!" was again the answer. Just then a friend said to me that if I would wait he might be able to help me, as he would have a neighboring tenement, used as a tobacco warehouse, prepared for a hospital.

So I had to make up my mind to wait there an hour and a half in the street with my dying charge. I did my best to supply the poor fellows with water, tea and other refreshments, so as to alleviate their sufferings in some degree; but the late hour of the night and the agitation of the city prevented me from putting my design into more than half execution.

At length the so called hospital was ready, but I could scarcely believe my eyes when I saw the dismal hole offered me by that name. There, in open lofts, without windows or doors, a few planks nailed together were to be the beds of the unfortunate defenders of our coun- try. During those days of fate the sol- dier had endured all things—hunger, thirst, heat; nothing could rob him of his courage, his indifference to death; and now he lay there wounded to the death, at the door of his friends whose property he had defended, for whose wel- fare he had exposed his life, and these friends turned him away to an open barn, where, without dressing for his wounds or any care, he was left to perish.

And yet this city had a population of forty thousand souls, had churches ad- mirably adapted to conversion into hos- pitals, had clergymen in numbers. But neither the doors of the churches opened, nor were the ministers of the gospel there to sweeten the last moments of the dying soldier. Sad and dispirited, I gave the order to carry in the wounded; cast one more glance at the house of death and horror, and then swung myself into my saddle and fled, with a quiet oath on my lips, back to my regiment.

Gen. Jackson had accomplished his flanking march without meeting with im- portant resistance from the enemy.—Hardly had he arrived at the positions marked out for him ere he sent his co- lumns to the charge. Notwithstanding the difficulties and exertions of the march, which they had executed on short allow- ance, he hurled his troops—those desper- ate sans culottes of his—upon the Feder- als. In vain was all the courage, all the bold manœuvering of the enemy. Like a tempest Gen. Stuart and his cavalry swept down upon them and hurled every- thing to the earth that stood in his way. A genuine fury took possession of Jack- son's men, who, throwing aside their muskets and drawing their terrible bowie knives, fell with these alone upon the victims offered up to them. Horrible was the carnage that then ensued, and, although the Federals had, at first, made obstinate resistance, they now lost ground and fell back, throwing away arms, knap- sacks, blankets—in fine, everything that could impede their flight. Subordination and discipline were at an end. The sol- dier no longer heard the command of his officer, and deserted the post entrusted to his keeping. Already had two generals of the four hostile brigades been left by their men, and it was believed that all was over with McClellan's entire army, when, at this perilous crisis, Gen. Heint- zelman appeared with his division, and again brought the battle to a stand.—With great ability and gallantry, he re- pulsed the onset of our troops, and at once ordered the reorganization of the beaten and fugitive brigades; but it was found impossible to restore order to those confused and intimidated masses. They bore their officers along with them, and rushed away in wild, disordered flight.

Gen. Heintzelman saw himself com- pelled to abandon his position, and, like an ox, with head down and ready to re- ceive attack at any moment, he drew slowly back to the Chickahominy. All the wounded and all the accumulated stores of the enemy fell into our hands, and Jackson could, with a clear consci- ence, issue the order, "Enough for to- day." None of the other generals had performed their task with such rapidity and success as he, and, therefore, the fruits of his victory were unusually large. The Unionists had lost, during the day, two brigadier generals, one hundred and fifteen staff and subaltern officers, three thousand privates, twenty-one cannon, and hundreds of ambulances and baggage wagons, with all their lading. The booty was immense; but, in a strategic point of view, Jackson's success was of far greater importance, since it cut Gen. McClellan off completely from his base of retreat. When, therefore, the triumph of Jackson's arms became known at headquarters, all counted with perfect certainty upon the destruction or capture of McClellan's entire force. The rejoic- ing bordered on frenzy, and when, the next morning, I rejoined my regiment, I found my poor fellows in a state of fever- ish excitement, for every one of them wanted to have a hand in the approach- ing capture or annihilation of the great Federal army. I alone shrugged my shoulders as my officers communicated their anticipations on the subject. We had gone through a similar experience in 1848, under Radetzky, in Italy. There, too, the Italians had already prepared quarters for the old man and his army, and the Mayor of Milan was so firmly confident of victory and its consequences, that he hurried out to meet the gray old hero a prisoner, at the very moment when the latter, overcoming all difficulties, was quietly withdrawning into his fortresses at Mantua and Verona.

I had but just reached my regiment when we received the order to advance along the whole line. I looked with sad- ness upon our once fine division. How fearfully some regiments had been deci- mated! Many which, like my own, had marched out with eleven hundred men, had now but three or four hundred effect- ive soldiers left. Yes, some—the Seventh Georgia and Twenty-First North Caroli- na, for instance—had only something over one hundred and eighty men. A vast number of officers were disabled, and many a fine fellow who, a few days be- fore, full of confidence and jollity, had prophesied a golden future, was no more. I no longer had the courage to ask for this one or that one whom I did not see, but took it for granted that he had fallen on the field of honor; for it was too sad to always hear the same response—"He is dead," "he fell here," or "there," in such and such a way.

As our divisions were getting into mo- tion, suddenly appeared the President, Jefferson Davis, surrounded by the gen- eral of cavalry, Joseph Davis, and Messrs. Johnston and Smith, followed by Secre- tary of War Randolph and his military cabinet. Now, when the danger was over, when Richmond had been freed from the iron yoke placed upon her neck by the encircling army of the foe, and when they began to breathe freely again within their walls, these parlor heroes could at last, at the close of the bloody struggle, assume a theatrical attitude.—Yet, with no hurrah as of yore did the soldiers receive the conqueror of Buena Vista. With a cold eye, and as stiff as his horse, he rode along the front of the regiments, only once in a while address- ing a word to some friend.

When our division had successfully worked its way out from among the laby- rinths of dismounted artillery, shattered wagons and dead and wounded soldiers, and got room for free movement, we opened our eyes wide with astonishment, when, on reaching the position evacuated by the enemy, we found nothing but a few stands of arms and some baggage.—All their material had been carried off by them in this part of the field, and only a huge number of dead told how fearfully the battle had raged at this point. The fortifications were of colossal dimensions, and had far greater solidity than we had supposed. We at once received orders to pursue the foe immediately, or at least as soon as we could ascertain his exact whereabouts. We had hardly got beyond White House when we descried a huge cloud of smoke which eddied above the woods about a mile and a half to our right. As we carefully advanced in that direction, we perceived a high, heaped-up pyramid briskly burning with a red hot glow, and sending forth volumes of steam. The hostile general had given orders to commit all the property that could not be carried away to the flames, and here the eager conquerors were robbed of millions of dollars' worth of booty. Like hun- gry wolves my poor fellows rushed to- wards the glowing heap, to save whatever could yet be saved. There were hun- dreds of casks of meat, coffee, sugar, molasses, rice, wine, even champagne,—in fact, all those delicacies with which the Northern army was more than abun- dantly provided, and which we, poor devils, scarcely knew the names of,—pil- ed up on one another. Yet all our efforts to rescue something useful were vain; the enemy had taken his precautions for the total destruction of everything left behind with such cunning and skill, that there was nothing remaining but spoiled and useless goods. On the other hand, the entire field was covered with the heavy cloth coats of the fugitives, and these were very welcome to our troops. Yet all essential particulars proved to me that Gen. McClellan had accomplished his retreat with order and sagacity, and that there was nothing further from his thoughts than the surrender of his army.

Indeed, from some stragglers captured by my men, I learned that he had crossed the Chickahominy with his entire force, had given up his former base of retreat, and was now approaching the James riv- er, probably with a view to form a junc- tion with the fleet. I at once sent an officer with the intelligence to Gen. Lee. Hereupon I received orders to halt, and presently there rushed by the twelve fine brigades of Hill (1st,) and Longstreet to give the supposed flying enemy his death blow. About five miles from Darley- town, on the Newmarket road, we got sight of the foe; but they had taken up a splendid position. The plain, thickly beset with trees at this point, and rough, broken ground, was very unfavorable to the operations of our brave cavalry, and they were condemned to inaction.

Gen. McClellan had taken his position at Frazier's farm, which formed his cen- tre, this point he had strengthened with nineteen pieces of heavy artillery, had collected his best troops there, and firmly and coolly awaited our attack. We had, at all hazards, to drive the enemy from the neighborhood of our capital or suc- cumb ourselves. No other choice re- mained for us. But Gen. McClellan only too well understood his critical position. By the folly of Gen. McDowell, the piti- ful conduct of Secretary Stanton, and the political reasons of Commander-in-Chief Halleck, at Washington,* he was offered up, as it were, to destruction. Many another general would, perhaps, under such dreadful circumstances, have sought death amid the crash of battle. How- ever, he did not hesitate a moment, not- withstanding the frightful losses he had suffered during those four days' struggle, to trust his fate, like an old and gallant soldier, to the sword.

During that four days' massacre our troops had been transformed into wild beasts, and hardly had they caught sight of the enemy, drawn up in order, ere they rushed upon them with horrible yells; yet calmly, as on the parade ground, the latter delivered their fire. The batteries in the centre discharged their murderous volleys on our men, and great disorder ensued among the storming masses. Gen. Lee sent all his disposable troops to the rescue, but McClellan opened upon these newly formed storming columns so hellish a fire that even the coldest blooded veter- an lost his self-possession. Whole ranks of our men were hurled to the ground.—The thunder of the cannon, the crackling of the musketry from a hundred thousand combatants, mingled with the screams of the wounded and the dying, were terrific to the ear and the imagination. Thus raged the conflict within a comparatively narrow space seven long hours, and yet not a foot of ground was won. All our reserves had been led into the fight, and the brigade of Wilcox was annihilated.

At length the coming of night compel- led a truce, and utterly overcome by fa- tigue, the soldier sank upon the ground at his post, thoughtless of even the friend torn from his side, and engrossed only with the instinct of self-preservation.—But "water! water!" was the cry from the parched lips on all sides. The empty flasks contained not a drop, alas! and at length sleep overcame each wornout war- rior, and even thirst and hunger were forgotten. Gloomy and out of humor, Gen. Lee rode through the camping ground of the decimated regiments at- tended by his staff, and then, with a dry, harsh voice, ordered up the divisions of Wise and Magruder to bury the dead.

With a brief remark, he next indicated to Gen. Longstreet his position for the next day, and rode off with his aids to visit other portions of the line.

The gray of morning was just begin- ning to appear upon the horizon when the roar of artillery was once more heard. A battery which, during the night, Gen. Anderson had placed nearer to the hos- tile lines, was instantly noticed by the enemy and vigorously attacked by his field pieces. Every shot struck, and the fragments were hurled in all directions. Of the twelve pieces in the battery five were quickly dismounted and the teams half destroyed, yet the commanding offi- cer held his post. In the meanwhile our columns had formed without having tast- ed any strengthening or nourishing re- freshment. Exhausted by the fatigues of the proceeding days, they fairly reeled on their feet, yet not a man shrunk back from duty. At length, as the sun rose in splendor, and we could better distin- guish the enemy's position, an involunta- ry exclamation escaped me, for it was evident to me, from the denser ranks he exhibited, that McClellan had been con- siderably reinforced during the night, and could therefore withdraw his wornout troops from the foremost lines, and have an easy struggle with fresh men against our famished and exhausted force.

General Lee, convinced of the perilous position of affairs, at once issed orders to Stonewall Jackson to cover the retreat in case the army should be compelled to fall back, and directions were sent to Richmond to get all the public property ready for immediate removal. Then the divisions of Hill (2d,) Longstreet, An- derson, Cobb and Whitcomb were order- ed to storm the enemy's works.

And now again commenced one of the most desperate combats that ever took place in any war. The loss on our side was absolutely frightful. McClellan, ob- serving the devastation his artillery was making among our troops, called up a division of reserves, and overwhelmed us with a terrific rain of musketry. His masses pressed forward, step by step, nearer and nearer, until at length some companies of ours threw their arms away and fled. McClellan availed himself of this panic and ordered a flank movement of his cavalry. Quick as thought An- derson placed himself at the head of our horse, and led three regiments to the charge. Their onset was magnificent. Our Texans burst with ringing huzzas into the ranks of the foe, who, without ever giving us time to try our sabres, turned to the right about; but here, too, the hostile field pieces prevented farther suc- cess, and we had to draw back from be- fore that crushing fire.

The enemy, noticing our confusion now advanced, with the cry, "Onwar to Richmond!" Yes, along the whol hostile front rang the shout, "Onward t Richmond!" Many old soldiers who ha served in distant Missouri and on th plains of Arkansas wept in the bitterne of their souls like children. Of wha avail had it been to us that our be blood had flowed for six long days?—what avail all our unceasing and e haustless endurance? Everything, ever thing seemed lost, and a general depression came over all our hearts. Batteries dashed past in headlong flight; ammunition, hospital and supply wagons rushed along, and swept the troops away with them from the battle-field. In vain the most frantic exertion, entreaty and self-sacrifice of the staff officers. The troops had lost their foothold, and all was over with the Southern Confederacy.

* A great mistake this, for Gen. Halleck was then in command of the Army of the West, his headquarters being at St. Louis.

In this moment of desperation Gen. Hill came up with a few regiments he had managed to rally; but the enemy was continually pressing nearer and nearer; louder and louder their shouts, and the watchword, "On to Richmond!" could be heard. Cavalry officers sprang from their saddles and rushed into the ranks of the infantry regiments, now deprived of their proper officers. Gen. Hill seized the standard of the Fourth North Carolina regiment—which he had formerly commanded—and shouted to the soldiers, "If you will not follow me, I will perish alone!" Upon this a number of officers rushed forward to cover their beloved general with their bodies, the soldiers hastily rallied, and the cry, "Lead on, Hill—head your old North Carolina boys!" rose over the field.—And now Hill charged forward with this mass he had worked up to the wildest enthusiasm. The enemy halted when they saw those columns, in flight a moment before, now advancing to the attack, and Hill burst upon his late pursuers like a famished lion. A fearful hand to hand conflict now ensued, for there was no time to load and fire. The ferocity with which this combat was waged was incredible. It was useless to beg the exasperated men for quarter; there was no moderation, no pity, no compassion in that bloody work of bayonet and knife. The son sank dying at his father's feet; the father forgot that he had a child—a dying child; the brother did not see that a brother was expiring a few paces from him; the friend heard not the last groans of a friend; all natural ties were dissolved; only one feeling, one thirst panted in every bosom—revenge. Here it was that the son of Major Peyton, but fifteen years of age, called to his father for help. A ball had shattered both his legs. "When we have beaten the enemy, then I will help you," answered Peyton; "I have here other sons to lead to glory. Forward!" But the column had advanced only a few paces further when the Major himself fell to the earth a corpse. Prodigies of valor were here performed on both sides. History will ask in vain for braver soldiers than those who here fought and fell. But of the demoniac fury of both parties one at a distance can form no idea. Even the wounded, despairing of succor, collecting their last energics of life, plunged their knives into the bosoms of foemen who lay near them still breathing.

The success of General Hill enabled other generals to once more lead their disorganized troops back to the fight, and the contest was renewed along the whole line, and kept up until deep into the night; for everything depended upon our keeping the enemy at bay, counting, too, upon their exhaustion at last, until fresh troops could arrive to reinforce us. At length, about half past ten in the evening, the divisions of Magruder, Wise and Holmes came up and deployed to the front of our army. Had the commanders of these divisions executed their orders with promptness and skill, streams of blood would have been spared, and the foe would have been thrown back upon his reserves in the course of the forenoon; but they reached us fully seventeen hours behind time. The generals had been uncertain concerning the marching orders, their columns crossed each other and became entangled, and precious time was irremediably lost. Still, as it was, the remainder of our force had to thank the final arrival of these divisions for their rescue.

So soon as these reinforcements could be thrown to the front our regiments were drawn back, and as far as possible reorganized during the night, the needful officers appointed, and after the distribution of provisions, which had also fortunately arrived, measures were adopted for the gathering up of the wounded and the burial of the dead.

On Tuesday, July 1, at two o'clock in the morning, while the stars were still visible in the sky, General Magruder again opened the battle, and very soon began a cannonade, so fearful that the very earth trembled with the concussion. By twelve o'clock meridian McClellan had abandoned all his positions, leaving behind his wounded, his baggage and many pieces of cannon. Magruder followed him, hot foot, but cautiously, as he had first to sweep the surrounding woods with artillery and sharpshooters.

About half-past four P. M. our troops reached the vicinity of the well known farm of D. Carter, known as Malvern Hill. Here General McClellan had again drawn up his army to reopen the fight.—General Magruder no sooner saw the enemy's position than he once more led his men to the attack. His columns advanced in magnificent order over the space that separated them from the foe and stormed the intrenched position. But a murderous hail of grape received the brave fellows and mowed them down, until finally the fragments of these splendid divisions were compelled to seek the shelter of the woods. Again Generals Smith, Anderson and Holmes led on their troops, but suddenly missiles of monstrous dimensions tore down whole ranks of our soldiers and caused the most appalling damage.

This was the fire of the fleet, which, although two and a half miles distant, now took part in the contest. Our men still rushed forward with desperate courage against the hostile position, and Malvern Hill was attacked on all sides.—McClellan defended himself courageously, and it was twelve o'clock at night ere he evacuated this position, which both nature and art had made a strong one. The heroic daring and energy of our troops had overcome all obstacles.*

The battle of the seventh day will live forever in the memory of the people as the battle of Malvern Hill. Nowhere, in all the actions fought around Richmond, was the contest confined within so small a space, and there was added to it the fire of the monster guns on board the enemy's ships. It was terrible to see these two hundred and sixty-eight pound shell crashing through the woods, and when one exploded it was as though the globe had burst. Never, in any war since the world began, were missiles of such magnitude before used. The battle of Malvern Hill will be a monument for that people, testifying to the determined will and resolution with which it contended for its independence as a nation, and the indomitable firmness of its vow to conquer or die.

I must award to Gen. McClellan my fullest recognition. There are very few, if any, generals in the Union army who can rival him. Left in the most desperate straits by his companion in arms, McDowell; victimized by the Secretary of War, Stanton, at Washington; offered up as a sacrifice to destiny by political jealousy; cut off from his basis of retreat, he selected a new line of safety of which no one had even dreamed. He defended every foot of ground with courage and talent, and his last stand at Malvern Hill, as well as his system of defence and his strategic combinations, display high military ability. Yet his troops were too greatly demoralized by their seven days' fighting, and lost their stamina, while several of his generals could not comprehend the ideas of their commander, and sustained him but poorly or not at all.—At Harrison's Landing, where the James river forms a curve, he collected his shattered army under the guns of the federal fleet. But, on our side, we had no longer an army to molest him.

* When McClellan evacuated Malvern Hill, the Confederate forces had been beaten back with terrible loss.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1863.

COPPERHEADS.

Search the vocabulary, and what more applicable to the traitors, who are seeking through legislative manipulations, secret conclaves and Jesuitical journalism, to distract the councils of the nation and play into the hands of rebellion, than this appellation of copperhead. The reptile of that name is defined to be "a poisonous American snake." The rebel of that name is the poisonous American sneak. Sneaking they go just far enough in loyalty to obtain a degree of public confidence and then betray it with the sting of treason—therein imitating the snake which the good countryman warmed into life. Sneaking they aim by insidious speech and wriggling approaches to sap the foundations of Government by poisoning the people's good will—stealing on their victim, lest they be crushed—avoiding alarm till the coiling begins. Herein are they not snakes—horrid, hideous, slimy?

But let the "copperheads" beware. The people are becoming alive to the presence of their serpentry and ere they wot of it, they will be copperheadless. And as to the copperheads in our legislatures, have they not been warmed into life for the last time?

DASTARDLY CONDUCT.—On Wednesday last, Mr. George Shove, who has the care of the flag station of the Essex Railroad, on Grove street, was attacked by a gang of boys and pushed over on to the track and considerably bruised. Mr. Shove, who is in the eightieth year of his age, has frequently been annoyed and insulted by these boys. After this attack they were seen to run in the direction of Dublin, and as they are known, they will, we trust, be speedily brought to justice.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGENE.—In another place will be found a valuable testimonial, in behalf of Dr. MILLER, a lecturer on the above subjects, signed by some of the best names in our sister town of Danvers. We have also, from a private source, the highest commendation of Dr. Miller, both as a gentleman of respectability and a public lecturer, and we hope he will be encouraged to give a course in our own town.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

We had, on Monday last, an impromptu celebration of this time-honored anniversary, which was conducted with a spirit designed to stir up the embers of patriotism which of late have been smouldering. Suggested at very short notice, the arrangements hastily made, almost no time being granted to the several speakers and singers for preparation, it still went off with a spirit and animation most cheering to witness. The old glow of patriotism and love of the flag which is its symbol, were evoked and they came and animated speakers and hearers at the great throng who assembled in a disagreeable winter's day at our Institute.

B. C. Perkins, Esq., presided, and on taking the Chair made a brief, but appropriate address.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Barber, in place of Rev. Mr. Barrows, who was prevented from attending by illness.

The select choir, a double quartette, sung several patriotic pieces, and among them an Original Hymn, written by Mrs. Webber, of Beverly, and which most opportunely came into the hands of the Committee at just the proper moment. It was sung with fine effect by the choir. Mrs. Elizabeth W. Fairfield presided at the piano. The following is the Hymn referred to above:—

Hail to the glorious morn that gave
A WASHINGTON to earth!
Hail, free Columbia, proud to be
The country of his birth!

Hail to the Union, strong and great,
The temple of his fame!
Hail victories of our flag that add
New lustre to his name!

Hail city, honored in thy claim
His memory to enshrine,
Above whose ample halls of state
The clustered stars still shine!

Hail echo of his living voice,
The last, farewell address,
A father's legacy, through which
He speaks to warn and bless!

Hail universal Liberty
Guarded by righteous Law!
Hope of the nations, which through clouds
His prophet vision saw.

Hail kindred souls where'er ye dwell
Who love his spotless fame!
Hail unborn ages! haste ye on
To swell the glad acclaim.

Rev. Mr. Barber was the first speaker called upon, and he kept the close attention of the large audience for about a half an hour in an able and well written and well delivered address, suited not only to the occasion but to the present condition and prospects of the country. We have neither time nor space to speak of this address, or those which followed it, in terms which they deserve.

Rev. Mr. Dwight followed Mr. Barber and gave some of the characteristics of the existing war, with suggestions in regard to the state in which it would leave the country. One unfavorable condition would be the infusion of a spirit of war in our population, while its beneficial effects would be seen in the death of slavery, in freedom of speech, in awakened ideas of government, human and divine, in education in the South, of both the white and negro populations, and it would prove the practicability of free forms of government.

Rev. Mr. Safford was next introduced by the President, and delivered a stirring and eloquent address on the life and career of Washington. The characteristics of our Revolutionary leader, the Father of his Country, were eloquently portrayed, and those especially applicable to the present position of our affairs were dwelt upon with great earnestness and power. The incentives to a glowing Patriotism, a firm Steadfastness and a sustaining Trust, in this dark period of our history, were inculcated by the example of Washington. It was a timely Eulogy and worthy of its illustrious subject.

After the "Star Spangled Ban[illegible]" the choir, the P[illegible] presented Mr. ISAAC HARDY as a representative of the laymen of the town, and Mr. HARDY came forward and addressed the meeting in a strain of earnest patriotism which frequently brought down the house. In the course of his remarks, he produced a record of some facts in regard to our South Danvers soldiers in the field, which are well worthy of preservation. His allusions to the departed ones brought forth the deep sympathy and even tears of many of the audience, as did also his reference to the sick and wounded.

Of those who fell in the front of battle are Capt. Brown, Lieut. Warner, G. S. Ingalls, John Smith and Wm. Andrews.

Of those who have died in hospitals from sickness or wounds are Jonathan Proctor, Horace Straw, Donald Sillers, William Sillers, S. W. Stone, Gustavus Larrabee, John Price, Tyler Mudge, Samson W. Bowers, Leonard Reed, T. P. Newhall, J. B. Maxfield.

Of those who are maimed are Geo. W. Gray, Geo. F. Shaw, H. C. Farrington, M. C. West, Geo. S. Trask, Eugene Townsend, J. H. Montgomery, R. M. Fields, S. W. Williams, D. P. Moore, H. D. Perry, Harrison D. Whittemore.

The meeting closed by the singing of "America" by the whole audience. Thus terminated, most successfully, this sudden gathering of pilgrims to cast fresh wreaths on the tomb of the Father of his Country.

The thanks of our citizens are certainly due to all who had an agency in getting up and carrying out this patriotic feast of good things. To the Committee of Arrangements, of which Mr. James Merrill was chairman, to the several speakers on the platform, to the pianist and select choir who performed their part so charmingly, and to the President of the day who presided so happily, our citizens are indebted for one of the best of their anniversary celebrations.

PRELIMINARY MEETING.

As it was not convenient for us to attend the preliminary meeting, at which preparatory steps were taken for the due celebration of Washington's birthday, we avail ourselves of the substance of the statement of one present at that large and respectable gathering of the patriotic citizens of South Danvers.

As soon as the crowded state of the room where the people assembled would permit, the meeting was called to order and a chairman appointed who took the chair amidst the greatest enthusiasm. After order was restored there was a free interchange of opinion upon the expediency of celebrating the birthday of Washington, and the manner of doing it. The discussion, at first, was conducted with the utmost harmony and good feeling, only interrupted by a noise in the back part of the room, near the door. This disturbance was caused by the inability of the crowd, at that distance from the platform, to hear all the remarks of the speakers. There was also at one time a cry raised of "copperhead—turn him out—turn him out." This alarm was of short duration and was caused by the obnoxious remark of a mere boy of thirty or thirty-five years, who had intruded himself into the meeting.

In constituting the sub-committee on music there was, (as is usual when this subject is considered,) great discord. Some were vocal in praise of vocal music, and others would be instrumental in procuring nothing but instrumental. Then there was disagreement as to the kinds of instruments. They were about equally divided between strings, wind and brass. One gentleman insisted on having a selection of the best voices, without any vocal music. After many quavers in the voices of the speakers, caused by some bass insinuations from the chairman, (the tenor of whose remarks caused treble the uproar which before existed,) there was great commotion among the sharps and flats of the assembly. Concord was restored by leaving the whole subject in the hands of the sub-committee.

The next subject discussed was the appointment of a Chairman of the meeting. One gentleman insisted that the Chair-man should be a Lay-man, and the sofa substituted for the chair, and that all remarks, to be in order, should be addressed to the sofa. The chair declared the motion out of order.

The question now arose, Who should be invited to address the meeting? The proposition to invite all the clergy of the town was received with much favor, only doubts were expressed whether it was possible to find a platform broad enough to hold them. How dangerous would it be for four or five of these gentlemen in white neckcloths, to meet together, armed with the concealed weapons of their sharp points of doctrine? The thing was said to be an impossibility, and so it would have been, not many years ago. These weapons would be sure to pierce somebody. Let us be thankful for every enlargement of the ground on which men may sympathize truly and feel a fraternal interest. As patriots at least, they can see "eye to eye."

The only remaining question before the meeting was the place to h[illegible] one where they assembled was too small, and it was decided to apply for the hall of the Institute.

The above may be relied upon as true and faithful account of this primary meeting, as we have it from a gentleman who obtained it over the left shoulder of the Secretary.

FOURTEENTH REGIMENT—Promotions.—Sergeant Charles W. Peasley, of South Danvers, to be Second Lieutenant, January 30, 1863, vice Gwinn, promoted.

Second Lieutenant Frank Pope, of Salem, to be First Lieutenant, Jan. 21, 1863, vice Shattuck, discharged.

Sergeant Andrew O. Carter, of Danvers, to be Second Lieutenant, Jan. 28, 1863, vice Brown, promoted.

THE SECOND SOCIAL ASSEMBLY, which was to have been held last Thursday night, will now take place next Tuesday evening, at Sutton Hall. These parties are A No. 1, and we would advise all who like to "trip on the light fantastic toe" to go there and enjoy themselves.

PHYSIOLOGY.

The following resolutions, offered by W. L. Weston, were passed unanimously at the close of Dr. A. E. Miller's course of public lectures in Danvers, on Saturday evening, Feb. 21, 1863.

The audiences at these lectures constantly increased from the beginning—that at the closing lecture filling every seat in the spacious Gothic Hall:—

"Resolved, That the citizens of Danvers, who have had the good fortune to attend the course of Lectures on Physiology and Anatomy, by Dr. MILLER, desire to express to him our unqualified acknowledgments for the obligations under which he has laid us. Coming among us unheralded and a stranger, he has by his unassuming, yet clear and forcible illustrations of his subject, won his way to our respect and regard.

"Resolved, That we do most heartily commend Dr. MILLER and his lectures to such other communities as he may visit, with the confident belief that his instructions are calculated to confer a lasting benefit upon those who may hear him."

Wm. L. Weston, John A. Putnam, Moses J. Currier, I. R. Langley, E. G. Berry, C. H. Gould, John C. Butler, Gustavus Putnam, Frederick Perley, W. E. Putnam, Joseph W. Ropes, Charles Adams, S. D. Shattuck, Nathaniel Hills, J. K. Merrill.

PRESENTATION.—We learn that the Levee at Sutton's Hall, in honor of Mr. J. H. TIBBETTS of the Maine 2d Reg., was a splendid and successful affair. We also learn that some friends of Capt. Tibbetts on the day of his departure from among us, presented him a purse of $40 as their token of respect for him as a man and a soldier.

LIEUT. GEO. C. BANCROFT late of So. Danvers, is with his regiment, the 40th, at Minor Hill, Va. He received his commission while on duty with the Salem Cadets at Fort Warren.

DIED.

In Salem, on Sunday, Feb. 22d, Mr. NATHAN PEARSON, 74 years and 6 mos.

He was well known to a large circle of friends, as an industrious and worthy citizen—a man of integrity and honor. In the early part of his life he labored hard and constantly; he accumulated sufficient property, which his discreet and prudent management made ample for the comfortable enjoyment of life. He was a kind neighbor, and true in his friendship; the suffering and needy ever found him a ready helper; it added much to his happiness to be able to do good to others.—He was a constant attendant at church, and always rendered a ready assistance for the support of public worship. In his last sickness there seemed to be no hope of his recovery, which he knew and looked upon with calmness and resignation. He had been married forty-eight years, and the kind and loving relations of a happy home are now severed forever.—Reg.

☞ Our iron-clads are too small, so Government thinks, and some larger ones are to be built. They are to be of enormous size, similar to the Dictator and Puritan now in course of construction. They will be over four hundred feet long, and the bow, which is to be of iron, will be as sharp as the blade of a knife—that is, whittled away to nothing. The iron armor on the turrets will not be less than two feet thick, and the battery composed of twenty-inch guns, to carry balls of a thousand pounds. As the crushing force of a 450 pound ball is nine hundred tons, the effect of the future ammunition may be imagined. Nap. will be obliged to rise a little earlier in the morning to get ahead of us in the way of iron-clads. His present ones do not amount to much.

PROPOSITION TO RAISE COLORED TROOPS.—We learn that Count Gurowski has applied to the Secretary of War, for permission to organize a regiment or brigade of loyal colored Virginians, with the intention of fighting the traitor F. F. V's [illegible] son. The [illegible] seems various suggestions relating to the drill and armament of such levies—suggestions drawn from the experience of the Poles, in 1831, when in want of firearms, the new levies were hurriedly armed with scythes; and these scythemen terrified the Russian troops more than did even the heroic regulars of the Polish army. Count Gurowski, we believe, is one of the veterans of the Polish revolution of 1831.

☞ The Democrats of Connecticut have held their State Convention, and nominated T. H. Seymour as their candidate for Governor. Seymour is a strong friend of the enemy, and has no sympathy with the North; and the President of the Convention, Mr. Phelps, said, early in 1861, that he would join an army of peace-makers to carry the olive-branch into the heart of the South.

☞ Northern journals that sympathize with the rebels are no longer to circulate in the Federal armies, a regulation that should have been made at the beginning of the war.

MORTALITY IN THE ARMY.

E. B. Elliott, Esq., the Actuary of the Sanitary Commission, in his report of the mortality and sickness of the troops, says that during the present war the deaths from disease and casuality have been at the rate of 53 per thousand men annually. Of this 53, less than nine result from wounds received in action. The death-rate from wounds in action is greater in the case of officers than of privates, while from disease the privates suffer the most:—

The excess of the mortality due to disease and accident, over that due to wounds in action, is a noticeable fact in the volunteer army of the United States, as in all other armies two-thirds of the deaths of officers and five-sixths of those of the men resulting from disease and accident, the remaining one-third and one-sixth, respectively, being caused by wounds received in battle.

It appears from the returns that the general mortality of the army has been gradually increasing since the commencement of the war, and that the rate for the autumnal months is about twice (1.7 times) that indicated by the returns for the summer period, and the winter rate in turn double (1.9 times) that of autumn.

It is also observed that the mortality of the armies recruited at the West, and which operate at the West, is almost precisely three times (3.01) that of the troops recruited in the Middle and New England States, and which serve in the armies at the East; the Western rate from wounds received in action being five (4.9) times, and that from disease and accident a little less than three (2.8) times as great as the corresponding rates in the East.

It has been well said by Jomini that the first necessity of an army in active service is 'a good recruiting system,' to preserve its efficiency unimpaired. To supply losses among the enlisted men in our Eastern armies, requires recruits at the rate of nineteen (18.8) per 1000 per month, or 226 per 1000 per annum; of which latter proportion 32 is the number required to supply the annual loss by death; 100 the annual loss by discharge from service, chiefly from disability; 79 the annual loss from missing in action and from desertions; and 15 to supply the loss from other causes.

To supply such losses in our Western armies requires recruits at the rate of nearly twenty (19.5) per 1000 per month, or 234 per 1000 per annum; of which latter proportion 96 are required to supply the annual loss from deaths; 101 the loss from discharges from service, mainly from disability; 35 the loss from missing in action and from desertions, and 2 from other causes.

It will be observed that the number of 'missing' and of 'deserters' in the Eastern volunteer army is more than double the number of these classes in the Western volunteer forces.

THE APPLE-TREE CATERPILLAR.—Now is the time to effectually prevent the ravages of these pests of the orchard, by destroying their eggs, which may be found in clusters, forming cylinders or board rings. These rings contain from 200 to 400 eggs, and are generally about three-fourths of an inch in length, and the tenth of an inch in thickness. They are deposited by the American Lackey Moth (Clisiocampa Americana—Harris,) during the months of July and August, usually just below the new growth. They may be readily discovered now, and should be destroyed, before they hatch and do mischief, either by cutting off the little branch, or, where that is objectionable, by wringing them off with the thumb and fore-finger, being careful not to leave any part sticking to the branch, as the rings are sometimes easily broken open. By attending to this advice the farmer will save time when it is much more valuable to him than at present.—Andover Advertiser.

☞ The Manufacture of Boots and Shoes is a far more important interest to Massachusetts than even the cotton manufacture. That is always the most desirable business for a people in which the labor bears the greatest proportion of value to the capital invested. The capital invested in the shoe manufacture is $11,170,000, employing, in 1860, 69,398 hands, two thirds of which are males.—The cotton manufacture, at the same time, with a capital of $33,000,000, employed only 34,988 hands, most of whom were females. From 1850 to 1860 the shoe business was doubled. It is now in a very prosperous condition, as the supply of goods is small and laborers few and towns like [illegible] and Danvers, are fast recovering their former prosperity.—Newburyport Herald.

☞ Our National Expenses since this war commenced have been greater than from the origin of our government down to 1861, a period of seventy-two years. Our whole national expenses to the time of the rebellion, including the war with England, the Mexican war, and our many Indian wars, were $1,453,790,786; and were the war to cease now no one imagines our debt would be less than $2,000,000,000, created in less than two years.

☞ Italy is undergoing a religious revolution. Formerly Protestantism was not allowable, and the land was overrun with priests. Now all Italy is free in religion, except Rome and the Venetian cities, not under Victor Emanuel's rule, and Protestant churches are everywhere springing into existence, while the Bible is circulated as freely as any other book.—Ex.

☞ Those Englishmen who sympathize with the North, in London, have had a tremendous meeting at Exeter Hall.

FLAX AND CORN.

MR. EDITOR,—Please present paper, to the consideration of the subject of raising flax. It an immense revenue to the N West, reduce the price of cotton, that of grain, turn waste land to create labor for the unemployed fer a new inducement to immigr

Another source of revenue is, of corn as a beverage. When a ed to the taste, it is quite as and is far more healthful and than either coffee or tea, and is so of the grains. (The constar rye produces chronic diarrhœa quires rather more roasting an than does Java coffee, and twice for the same amount of streng variety, there are as many kind and other grains as there are and tea; each leaf of which, rolled in the fingers and satura the insensible perspiration of a if report speaks true, before an is allowed to taste it. Though liness of these people may not tioned, yet the healthfulness of cess admits a serious doubt. each of your patrons adopt th corn, they might, in a short ti enough to pay a double price newspaper; and, in a few year to themselves quite a respectabl —meanwhile contribute to th health, both mentally and phy When it comes into general u be an article of increased expo will doubtless be the case whe cans are convinced that they hav shrub of their own, so close at l so easy of cultivation.—Ex.

☞ While hunting after de New York the other day the U cers discovered in a house in in a bed where reposed a charmi lady, a very animated bolster! ed to be a soldier enveloped in envelope, and, when pinched, g claimed, "I'll fight the whole d— of you." He was relieved o task, however, and reclaimed t vice of his Uncle Samyule.

☞ The four hundred and fif balls are not half heavy enough, ernment is going to have guns will throw a ball of one thousand Won't they be the bully fellows It will only require from sevent one hundred tons of metal for t casting of the guns, and they ca at the Fort Pitt works, now th cannon factory in the world.

☞ When Fenelon was alm Louis XIV, his majesty was ast to find one Sunday, instead of a ous congregation, only him and th "What is the reason of this? the king. "I caused it to be gi sire," returned Fenelon, "that y jesty did not attend Chapel to-d you might know who came to God, and who to flatter the king

☞ The defeat of the rebels Donelson has freed the Cumberla of their presence, and the navig that stream is made safe whic facilitates the work of supplying Rosecrans's army with all that is to make it an effective force.

☞ A negro in Brazil has fou among far exceeding in dimens famous Kohinor. He intends t lish with the proceeds of it a se for free blacks, provided some wh does not steal it from him.

☞ Deserters are said to be al in New York State—twenty thou more. No wonder the rebels out us at every battle when the copp at home are daily encouraging t to desert their flag.

☞ The two villages of Sko and Bloomfield are now under one cipal government. The combined [illegible] grist mills, a shovel factor ber mills, skate factory, machine paper mill, &c.

☞ Artemas Ward explodes th of the Kentucky heiress. He s intends to commit matrimony so or "perish in the attempt," but h busy just now to think of anyt the sort.

☞ "Six feet in his boots!" e ed old Mrs. Beeswax; "what w importance of this world come wonder? Why, they might just sonably tell me that the man h heads in his hat."

☞ A large onion, planted so rose-bush as to touch the roots greatly increase the odor of the fl and the water distilled from such r far superior in flavor to other rose

☞ There appears to be a re against the Copperhead Convention the Northwest and New Jersey.

☞ No news of great importan come from the military field durin week.

☞ The Southern papers say Gen. Rosecrans's army is 100,000 s We hope that their figures are right

EWING HIS YOUTH.—It is stated in a paper that Rev. John Buzzell of North ffield, in that State, an aged and vene- minister, formerly connected with the ll Baptist denomination, but who pro- y be simply an "Evangelist," and who ost popular and excellent preacher six- rs ago, is now ninety-five, but enjoys ealth and preaches occasionally. It is emarkable, that within a few years he new hair—the hair of his youth—new nd new eyesight. Wonderful illustra- the Scripture statement, "Thy youth ved like the eagle's."

UP PRACTICE.—At the poor-house, in d, Massachusetts, two paupers, respect- ixty-seven and fifty-four years of age, ecently married. The reason given by rseer of the poor for this proceeding is was crowded for room, and gained the he apartment by the marriage.

ATLANTIC MONTHLY FOR MARCH.—The number is an excellent one. It opens life-like sketch of Christopher North, D. Howard. Mr. Hawthorne contrib- other of his pleasing English pictures, he title of "A London Suburb." The ire "Willie Wharton," by Mrs. Child. Under the Pear Tree," by Mrs. Hopkin- h good. Gail Hamilton indites "A call ountry women." Prof. Agassiz begins eries of articles with "America and the ld." "Pericles and President Lincoln" s a curious comparison of the States hese two names suggest. The poetry of aber is by Dr. Holmes, Trowbridge, Mrs nd Theodore Tilton. For sale at Wil- s.

ON—Amusements.—At the Museum, the lished actress, Matilda Heron, com- an engagement. She appeared as , on Monday evening last, to a crowded he Howard, Manager Marshall hos in- the talented Maggie Mitchell to return season. She appeared as Fanchon, on y night.

Messrs. D. B. Brooks & Brother (Music No. 6 Central street—entrance through ookstore) have sent us a new comic song, i "Only in Jest." Published by O. & Co.

rs, Brooks, who are agents for the beau- even octave piano, costing but $200, are ng high commendations from musicians superiority of these instruments. They lly warranted, and purchasers can give thorough trial.

ons selecting sheet music can have the played to them.

We have received from Williams & Co., , a copy of the "Illustrated Strawberry ist," by A. S. Fuller, Brooklynn, New It contains the history, and full and it directions for the growth, culture, and eceipts for cooking, preserving, and pre- this fruit for the table, &c. Every erry grower should have a copy. For E. B. Waitt, Danvers.

EY'S LADY BOOK, for March, is received. enterprisingly conducted as ever. The ations, are numerous and good; the it of information given to the fair sex is ise and we may add also most mysterious se unacquainted with the countless femi- levices of the day. The ladies, however, less understand all about it.

RS.—The best Glazed Spool Cottons for or Machine Sewing. Warranted 200 or 7 cts. per Spool, at PEABODY'S.

T BEFORE ANOTHER RISE.—The best Glaz- tton for 7 cts, at PEABODY'S—warrant- 0 yds. Superior for Machine and Hand ng.

Try one of Rhoades' National Clothes gers, before purchasing elsewhere. For t the Equity Store, South Danvers. See tisement.

m & South Danvers Railroad Company.

e First Assessment of 25 per cent. on the k of the SALEM & SOUTH DANVERS RAIL- COMPANY is payable at the SALEM IK, in SALEM, on MONDAY, MARCH 2d. GEO. D. PHIPPEN, lem, Feb. 25, 1863. Treasurer.

Lost!

n Friday last, between Pleasant and Park ets, a FITCH FUR TIPPET. The finder be rewarded by leaving it at my residence, Geo. P. Daniels' store.
Mrs. C. A. OSGOOD, Pleasant St.
outh Danvers, February 25, 1862.

Found!

Gold Ring—containing some hair—mark- "FRED." The owner can have it by ap- ng to S. A. OSBORNE.
outh Danvers, Feb. 25, 1863.

otice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

Save your Rags and Paper!

he subscriber will pay the highest prices in SH for Rags and Paper. By giving seas- able notice he will call at the houses of se who wish to dispose of their rags.
"A penny saved is as good as a penny earned."
Poor Richard says.
SUMNER SOUTHWICK.
South Danvers, Jan 14, 1863.

Notice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

MANUAL FENOLLOSA,
TEACHER
OF THE
Violin, Piano and Singing,
MUSIC ROOMS, No. 7 Central Street,
SALEM, MASS.

Omnibus Notice.

On and after Thursday, Jan. 15, 1863—for e better accommodation of the public—the nnibus fare between South Danvers and Sa- m will be FIVE CENTS, or 23 Tickets for ie Dollar.
Passengers called for or left off the regular ute, 15 cents, or 25 cents for two.
January 14 H. M. MERRILL.

Call and look at the HUDSON BAY SA- ..., at OSBORNE'S.

How to Make $5.00 a Day,
When all other Efforts have Failed.

HOOD & CO., 186 Broadway, New York, have just published ONE HUNDRED VALUABLE SECRETS, possessing them, any one, male or female, can easily make $5 a day, without capital, in any city or village. Every one should possess these secrets, for they are worth $500 to any single or married person. Some of these Secrets have been sold for $20 each. One alone cost us $250 for the right to publish it. When you once own them you will never part with them for money. Several persons are now making $120 per month by these Secrets alone. By them any person may make money easily and rapidly. We send one Book of Secrets for 25 cents, two copies, 40 cents, club of three for 50 cts., club of four 65 cts. club of five 75 cts., club of eight copies, $1 Send Government money.
New York, Feb 18, 1863. *3m

New Jersey Lands for Sale,
— ALSO —
GARDEN OR FRUIT FARMS,

Suitable for Grapes, Peaches, Pears, Raspberries, Strawberries, Blackberries, Currants, &c., of 1, 2½, 5, 10 or 20 acres each, at the following prices for the present, viz: 20 acres for $200, 10 acres for $110, 5 acres for $60, 2½ acres for $40, 1 acre for $20. Payable by one dollar a week.

Also, good Cranberry lands, and village lots in CHETWOOD 25 by 100 feet, at $10 each, payable by one dollar a week. The above land and farms are situated at Chetwood, Washington Township, Burlington, New Jersey. For further information, apply with a P. O. Stamp, for a circular, to
B. FRANKLIN CLARK,
feb 18, 1863 No. 90 Cedar St, New York, N. Y.

M. FENOLLOSA,
TEACHER OF MUSIC,
LETS.....PIANO FORTES,
at the lowest rates;
SELLS.....PIANO FORTES,
at the Manufact'rers Prices;
EXCHANGES....PIANO FORTES,
on the easiest terms;
At Rooms No. 7 Central street,
feb 11 SALEM, MASS.

But now his nose is thin,
And it rests upon his chin
Like a staff!
And a crook is in his back,
And a melancholy crack in his laugh.

That is the man who refused to take Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit to cure his disordered stomach—hence the crook in his back, and the melancholy tones of his voice.
Ham's Invigorating Spirit can be obtained at Mr. D. P. Grosvenor's Apothecary Shop, 33 Main St.

Marriages.

In Salem, Feb 12, by Rev Mr Hartney, Mr Thomas A Arnold to Miss Ellen E Dodd; 16th, Mr Charles Quinn, Jr, to Miss Jane M'Grane; 16th, Mr James Burgess to Miss Bridget Parlen.
Feb 19th, at the Barton Square Church, by Rev Mr Haskell, Mr Jona Osborne Jr, to Miss Amelia M Henville.

Deaths.

In this town, Feb 9, Mrs Harriet F, wife of Mr Simon J Clifford, 24 yrs 4 mos.
Feb 18, Rufus, son of Moses Jewett, 14 mos.
In Danvers, Feb 9, Alfarata M Rackliffe, child of J. H. and E. A. Raekliff, 8 yrs 11 ms.
In Salem, Feb 19, Mr James Cass, 25 years; 21st, Mrs Miriam A, wife of Mr Wm Peirce, 28.
In Lynn, Feb 16, Phebe Nichols, widow of the late James Breed, 92 yrs 2 mos; 17th, Mr
In Dorchester, Feb 20th, Mrs Edwin Booth, wife of the celebrated actor. Her complaint was inflammation of the bowels, from which she had only suffered about a week.

Advertisements.

To Let on Essex St., Salem,

The STORE and DWELLING HOUSE connected therewith, No. 250 Essex St. The store is neatly fitted up, is one of the best stands in the city, and admirably adapted for Millinery, Fancy, Dry Goods, or any light business.
The Dwelling part contains nine finished rooms, and is supplied with water, gas, etc.—all in good order and very convenient.
To a satisfactory tenant, the above will be let on reasonable terms. Apply at J. PERLEY'S Shoe Store, next door west. feb 25

Administrator's Sale of Personal Property at Auction.

Will be sold at Public Auction, on MONDAY, March 2d, at 2 o'clock, in the afternoon, at the Bake House of the late JAMES CRUISE, No. 162 Boston Street, Salem:
1 TOP BAKER'S WAGON; 1 Baker's Sleigh, with Drawers; 1 Wheelbarrow; 1-2 bale Hops; lot Malt; 2 Counter Scales; 1 Show Case; 1 Counter; lot Oven Wood; lot Bread Boxes; Tin and Iron Pans; Iron Shovel; Oven Shovels; Kneading Troughs; Sieves, Cullenders, Wrapping Paper, Paper Bags, Baskets. A small lot of Meadow Hay.
WILLIAM WOLCOTT, Administrator.
THOMAS TRASK, Auctioneer.
South Danvers, February 25, 1863.

ANNUAL STATEMENT
—OF THE—
RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES
—OF THE—
COUNTY OF ESSEX,
For the Year Ending Dec. 31, 1862

RECEIPTS:

Balance in the Treasury, January 1, 1862,	$24,935 80
Received, balance of Taxes for 1861,	9,634 64
" on Taxes for 1862,	93,830 95
" Money hired in 1862, on permanent and temporary loans,	136,000 00
" Interest on Notes issued after that date,	14 37
" Interest on Taxes paid after they were due,	59 58
" for Board of Insane in Asylum at Ipswich,	4,686 54
" for Board of Prisoners in House of Correction at Ipswich,	555 04
" for Labor of Prisoners in House of Correction at Ipswich,	1,487 79
" for Sundry Articles sold at House of Correction at Ipswich,	329 06
" for Board of Prisoners in House of Correction at Lawrence,	99 83
" for Labor of Prisoners in House of Correction at Lawrence,	848 00
" for Sundry Articles sold at House of Correction at Lawrence,	61 00
" for Board at Jails in Salem and Newburyport,	516 10
" for Fines, Costs, Court Fees, & unclaimed Witness Fees, refunded by Magistrates, Officers and others, in criminal prosecutions,	7,774 21
" of Clerk of Courts for 1-2 excess of his fees over $2000,	234 27
" for Pedlar's License,	4 00
" of Town of Rockport, on account of Highway,	1,476 00
" for Land, Rent, and Old Buildings, in Salem,	664 60
	$283,218 77

EXPENDITURES.

Paid amount of Notes, permanent and temporary Loans,	$146,667 00
" amount of interest,	17,048 04
" for Support of Prisoners in the House of Correction and Insane in Asylum at Ipswich,	10,439 65
" " Support of Prisoners in House of Correction and Jail at Lawrence,	9,910 76
" " Salaries of Overseers of Houses of Correction,	400 00
" " Support of Prisoners in Jail at Salem,	2,892 08
" " Support of Prisoners in Jail at Newburyport,	1,431 94
" " Reclaiming Prisoners,	150 76
" " Expense of Criminal Prosecutions,	19,759 37
" " Expense of Civil Terms of Courts,	7,182 75
" " Coroners' Inquests,	450 40
" " Records, Indexing, Printing and Stationary,	2,144 22
" " Law Library Association,	317 81
" " Highways,	4,665 75
" " Fuel, Lights, and Attendance, at Court Houses,	2,172 64
" " Repairs and Furniture for County Buildings,	13,740 94
" " Completion of New Court House at Salem,	9,512 55
" " Board of Examiners, for Services and Travel,	42 00
" " County Commissioners' Salaries,	3,500 00
" " Treasurer's Salary,	1,500 00
" " Sheriff's "	1,500 00
" " Judge of Probate, committing Lunatics,	58 00
" " State Comm'r, visiting Insane Asylum at Ipswich,	5 25
" " Land adjoining House of Correction at Ipswich,	1,150 00
Balance in the Treasury Jan. 1, 1863,	26,686 86
	$283,218 77
Cash in Treasury Jan. 1, 1863,	$26,686, 86
Balance of Taxes for 1862, unpaid,	6,161, 05
	$32,847 91
Amount of Permanent Debt, January 1, 1862,	$282,667 00
Amount of Permanent Debt, January 1, 1863,	272,000 00
Reduction of Debt in 1862,	$10,667 00

The outstanding Notes of the County are payable, viz:—
$52,000 at 5 1-2 per cent. interest, in 1863.
55,000 " " " " " 1864.
30,000 " 5 per cent. interest, " 1865.
20,000 " " " " " 1866.
115,000 " " " " " 1867.

The whole amount of the County Debt was incurred for the erection and improvement of County Buildings, prior to 1860.

A. D. WAIT,
JAMES KIMBALL,
J. B. SWETT, } County Commissioners.
ALLEN W. DODGE, County Treasurer.
A true copy. Attest.
A. HUNTINGTON, Clerk.
Salem Feb. 11, 1863.

John P. Peabody.

Our Artificial Flowers.

FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS, we shall close out our WINTER FLOWERS at 17 cts. per sprig. We have sold them at 25, 34, 42 and 50 cents;—now your choice for 17 cents. We do this because we do not wish to keep them over.

Our Best Glazed Spool Cotton.

WE are now selling at 7 cts. per Spool, which is less than the Wholesale price.—Now is the time to buy—delays are dangerous and expensive, when Goods rise as fast as they do now.

Our New Style Corsets.

WE warrant them superior in every way, and the stock we have on hand will be sold at our present prices, which is far below the Manufacturer's price of to-day.

Ladies' Cotton Hosiery.

WE have a full Stock of Cotton Hose, in Ladies', Misses' and Children's sizes, which we shall close at prices much under the market. We bought them last season and can therefore sell them at VERY LOW PRICES.

Buy Your Gloves Ecarly.

EVERY Lady who studies economy will be sure to buy her Summer Stock of Gloves early—before the last season's stocks are all sold, as goods imported this Spring must cost nearly double the price of last season. Buy now.

Buy all you want, now!

ALL kinds of Goods are rapidly advancing in price—and they must continue to do so through the Spring and Summer—and we would advise every one to buy up a Summer's stock now—for we can assure them, money will be saved by so doing.

ONE PRICE ONLY!

Personal Checks & Shinplasters.

WE shall continue to take Personal Currency as heretofore, during the present year.
220 ESSEX ST., SALEM,
JOHN P. PEABODY.

NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

OUR CORSETS.

WATCH SPRING SKIRTS,

M. A. PORTER,
MANUFACTURES TO ORDER
At 236 Essex Street,
A few doors from Washington Street,
SALEM, MASS.

OUR CORSETS.

OUR CORSETS.

We have all the different sizes of our Superior Corsets—and we are now selling them at less than the Wholesale Price. We warrant every pair to give perfect satisfaction and would suggest that all who buy now will save the next rise in price, for it will surely come. Delays are dangerous and expensive, when Goods are rising in price as they now are. 220 ESSEX ST.,
JOHN P. PEABODY.
feb 25

A Good Milk Route for Sale,

INQUIRE at this office.
South Danvers, Feb. 11, 1863.

James F. Almy.

Rich Silks.

PURCHASERS of Plain Black, Rept and Fancy Silks, are invited to examine our stock, a greater part of which was bought before the advance.

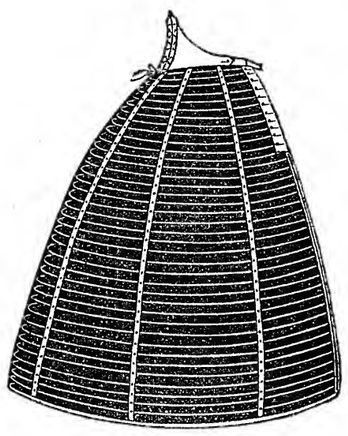
JAMES F. ALMY,
feb 18 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

Browning & Long.

LARGE SALES
AND SMALL PROFITS.

POINT DE VENICE SKIRTS.

SOMETHING ENTIRELY NEW.



NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

BROWNING & LONG have received their Spring Skirts, being of New Shape and Design, Kid Fronts and Springs Securely Fastened.

In the "Point de Venice" will be found a perfect Skirt, being of a beautiful shape, and having attached to it a Kid Bodice, which fits closely to the form, making it a graceful and durable Skirt, and especially adapted to the present style of fitting dresses.

Receiving our Skirts direct from the manufacturers, we are enabled to show a fine assortment of New Styles, and can offer them at

VERY LOW PRICES.

Also received, a full line of

MISSES' SKIRTS,

KID FRONTS, and SUPERIOR FINISH.

BROWNING & LONG,
(Successors to J. Mayer.)
Jan. 28. 177 Essex Street.

NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

ESSEX ss. In Insolvency, before Hon. Geo. F. Choate, Judge of Probate and Insolvency in and for said county. The subscriber has been duly appointed assignee of the estate of
JOSEPH W. VITTIM,
of Middleton, in said county, shoe manufacturer, insolvent debtor.
The second meeting of the creditors of said insolvent debtor will be held at the Court of Insolvency, at Salem, in said county, at the Stone Court House, on the ninth day of March next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at which meeting creditors may be present, and prove their claims.
W. A. MERRIAM, Assignee.
Middleton, Feb 18, 1863. 2w

DIARIES AT COST PRICES.
A GOOD ASSORTMENT at G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S, Salem, Mass.

NATIONAL ALMANAC,
AND Annual Record for 1863—containing Government of the United States, the Individual States, and so called Confederate States, Tax Law, Census Tables, New Tariff, Army and Navy Officers, U. S. Mint, Consuls Statistics, etc., for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

Ann R. Bray, No. 76 Federal Street,

HAS received a fine assortment of NEW SPRING GOODS, including:—
Rich Black Silks;
Black Alapaccas, a full assortment;
Polls in Stripes and Plaids;
Mous de Laines, entirely new patterns;
French Cambrics, small fig'd, for Children;
— A full stock of —
DOMESTIC GOODS.
feb. 25 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Ann R. Bray, 76 Federal Street,

WILL open to-day, New Spring Goods, Delaines; Alapaccas, &c.
We have a full and carefully selected stock of Black Silks, which are warranted to give perfect satisfaction.
In dress goods we select the best styles, and fabrics, and those who buy early will find the best assortment. feb 25

WIRE GOODS.
WIRE Rat Traps; Broilers; Steamers; Sieves' etc., just received at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PATENT CLOTHES
HORSES Cram's Patent Clothes Frames, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

George S. Walker.

Linen Fronts, Cuffs & Collars.

LINENS are advancing, consequently there must be a corresponding advance in the above named articles. The present is the time to buy all styles and qualities in stock bought before the rise, at
GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
Gent's Furnishing Store,
Feb 11 No. 228 Essex st, Stearn's Building.

Scarfs. Ties. Stocks.

THE LARGEST ASSORTMENT,
THE BEST STYLES
THE LOWEST PRICES.
Also—BLACK SILK CRAVATS—30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches—Matteoni's manufacture, at
GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
feb 11 228 Essex st, Stearns' Block.

Umbrellas.

GINGHAM, Silk and Cotton—largest stock in the city, at
GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
Dealer in Gent's Furnishing Goods & Toilet Articles. Opposite Eastern Railroad Station.

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,
FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,
Central street, South Danvers,
HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.
He keeps as good an assortment of
COFFINS AND CASKETS,
as can be found at any establishment, and at the lowest prices.
He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.
All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

SOUTH DANVERS
POST OFFICE.

GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.
MAILS CLOSE
At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.
MAILS DUE
At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.

Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.
F. POOLE, P. M.
South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.
There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.
The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.
The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.
Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.
South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

THE CLOTHES WRINGER.

JUST OBTAINED
RHOADES' CELEBRATED
NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER,
THE VERY BEST YET INVENTED,
AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING MACHINE.
CALL AND EXAMINE.
For Sale by E. SOUTHWICK,
At the EQUITY GROCERY STORE,
South Danvers, Jan 21, 1863. 3m

T. HARDY, JR.,
—Dealer in—
DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,
Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,
FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,
No. 26 FRONT STREET,
Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

IHLSING & NARVESON'S
Celebrated New Full 7 Octave
PIANO FORTES,

OF superior tone and finish, plain and ornamental, nameboard inlaid with pearl, full iron frame, grand action, overstrung bass pearl or ivory keys, plain or carved legs, are for sale at
218 Essex Street, Salem, Up Stairs.
Any one wishing to obtain a superior instrument is invited to call before purchasing elsewhere.
jan 7—tf S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

100,000 BARRELS OF THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S
POUDRETTE,
111 COMMERCIAL ST., BOSTON, MASS.

This Company, with a capital of $150,000, the most extensive works of the kind in the world, and an experience in manufacturing of over 23 years, with a reputation long established, having also the exclusive control of all the night soil of the great city of New York, are prepared to furnish an article, which is, without doubt, the CHEAPEST AND VERY BEST fertilizer in market. It greatly increases the yield, and ripens the crop from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from three to four dollars per acre, with little or no labor. Also, FIFTY TONS of BONE TAFEU, being a mixture of bone and night soil ground fine, at $45 per ton—a superior article for grain, &c. A pamphlet containing all necessary information may be had free by addressing a letter to the subscriber.
JAMES T FOSTER,
Care of the Lodi Manufacturing Company,
66 Courtland St., New York.
Agents—WELCH & FAIRFIELD, Grocers, Lowell Street, South Danvers. feb 11—3m

NEW BOOKS

At G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, 190 Essex st. Salem:
Transition; a remembrance of Emma Whitney, by Hugh Smith Carpenter, author of "Here and Beyond."
Garret Van Horn; or the Beggar on Horseback, by John S Sauzade;
Great Expectations Realized; or Civilizing Mountain Men, by Mrs Ellen H B Mason;
Notes, Criticisms, and Correspondence upon Shakspeare's Plays and Actors, by Jas Henry Hackett;
Tactics; or Child in Shoulder Straps, a West Point Love Story, by Hearton Drills, USA;
A Tangled Sketch, by Albany Fonblanque, Jun;
Tax Law Decisions, Alphabetically arranged, Citizens' edition—10 cts only;
Sunsets on the Hebrew Mountains, by Rev J R Macduff, D D;
The Successful Merchant, sketch of the life of Mr Samuel Budgett;
Verner's Pride, a Tale of Domestic Life, by Mrs Wood;
Lady Audley's Secret, a Novel, by M E Bradden;
My Diary North and South—by William Howard Russell;
Eclectic Magazine—February.
Lady Lisle, by M E Braddon, author of Aurora Floyd; No Name, by Wilkie Collins;
Chronicles of Carlingford, by Mrs Oliphant;
Mistress and Maid, by Miss Muloch;
Elementary Instruction—Object Lessons, by E A Sheldon;
Handbook of American Genealogy, by William H Whitmore.

SPIRITS Turpentine, Japan Drying and Varnish, es, constantly for sale by
S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st, Salem.

A. J. Archer & Co

ELEGANT NEW GOODS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,
OPEN THIS MORNING
MANY NEW STYLES OF
DRESS GOODS,
INCLUDING
Rich and Heavy Black Silks,
Rich Plain Colored Silks.

Our patrons are invited to examine these Goods. Prices are still advancing, and money will be saved by buying now.
Salem, February 11, tf

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,
Have on hand a full supply of
BROWN SHEETINGS AND SHIRTINGS;
BLEACHED SHEETINGS & SHIRTINGS;
— Also —
GREY TWILLED FLANNELS;
WHITE FLANNELS.
— Also —
BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,
which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES.
Salem, January 28—6w

COTTON HOSIERY.

Last Season's Stock
NOW OPEN AT
220 ESSEX ST., SALEM,
JOHN P. PEABODY.

KEROSENE Stand and Hand Lamps, and Pog Lamps. Also Wicks and Chimneys—for sale by S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

A FINE assortment of Paper Shades for Kerosene Lamps, just opened at
S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

HILTON'S Insoluble Cement; Rickards's Improved Cement; Spaulding's, Upton's, and Nichols's Liquid Glues, for sale by
feb 11 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

JUVENILE BOOKS,
A VERY large assortment for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

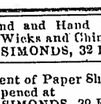
SLATING. SLATING.

GEORGE FOWLER & COMPA'Y,
NO. 2 ST. PETER COURT., SALEM, respectfully inform their friends and the citizens of this and neighboring towns and cities that they are prepared to execute all orders for Slating, promptly and faithfully.
Roofs covered with any description of Slates, or repaired at short notice.
All work undertaken will be warranted.
Address—Box 366, Salem Post Office.
Salem, January 28—1863. tf

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

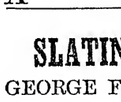
ESSEX, ss. PROBATE COURT.
To the Heirs at-Law, Next of Kin, and all other persons interested in the Estate of JOHN NEEDHAM, late of South Danvers, in said County, yeoman, deceased, GREETING:
WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court, for Probate, by SIDNEY C. BANCROFT, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him the executor therein named:
You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Salem, in said County of Essex, on the first Tuesday of March next, at nine o'clock before noon, to show cause, if any you have, against the same.
And said Sidney C. Bancroft is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once a week, for three successive weeks, in the newspaper called the South Danvers Wizard, printed at South Danvers, the last publication to be two days, at least, before said court.
Witness, GEORGE F. CHOATE, Esquire, Judge of said court, this third day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three.
feb 11 A. C. GOODELL, Register.

WALKING MADE EASY.



DR. P. KENISON,
CHIROPODIST,
215 Washington St., Boston,
Cures Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails, Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

FOR SALE.



A GOOD comfortable Home, a two-story House, L, Shed and Barn, in good repair, pleasantly located in Londonderry, N. H., 1 1-2 miles from center of town, 10 acres of Land, with plenty of Fruit. Price only $650.
Also—an excellent Stock Farm of 250 acres, for sale or exchange.
dec 31 L. BRICKETT, Derry, N. H.

D. W. BOWDOIN,
—ARTIST IN—
PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.
Rooms No. 176 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]
Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotype, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.
Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

If you want to SAVE MONEY, in purchasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, No. 10 Front street, Salem. ap30-tf

Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,
Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,
34 Front Street.
Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

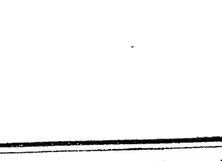
TO LET.

A SMALL and convenient TENEMENT, on Washington Street, not far from Aborn St For terms apply to H. C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, Nov. 26, 1862.

CRIST MILL.

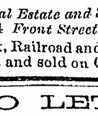
HAVING made arrangements for carrying on the Grist Mill at Newhall's Crossing, at South Danvers, I take this method of informing the public that the mill is now open and ready for business.
Any patronage in the line of grinding corn or other grain, or making COB MEAL, will be gratefully received, and all orders promptly attended to.
If equally convenient for customers to bring their grists afternoons instead of forenoons they will accommodate me by doing so.
ELBRIDGE C. NEWHALL.
South Danvers, Dec 3, 1862.

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,



Druggist and Apothecary,
33 MAIN STREET.
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.
Personal attention to Physicians' Prescriptions.
South Danvers, May 29, 1861. 1y

GEO. E. MEACOM



Dealer in
DRUGS & MEDICINES,
Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.,
126 · · MAIN ST. · · 126
Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,
Druggist & Apothecary

37 Main St., So. Danvers,
DEALER IN
Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponges, Shoulder Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines.
Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery.
Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by experienced persons.
37 MAIN STREET.

PATTERSON'S
LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE

THE undersigned are agents for the above machine. It can be seen in operation at Pinder & Brown's Tannery.
may 7—3m CLARK & GIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,
Wallis Street, South Danvers,
Are Agents for
GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S
PATENT EAVE TROUGHS
CUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND
PIPE FOR DRAINS.
South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

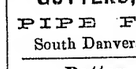
Potter, Batchelder & Co.,
(Successors to M. Black)
DANVERS-PORT,
DEALERS IN
WOOD AND COAL
OF the various kinds usually kept in a retail yard. Constantly on hand
Franklin, Old Company's Lehigh,
Locust Mountain, Black Heath,
Red and White Ash.
Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere.
OFFICE—No. 6 Allen's Building.
Order Box at post office, South Danvers, and post office, Danvers.
G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. july 19—tf

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St.

PRICES REDUCED!
WE shall sell our DRESS GOODS at REDUCED PRICES.
We shall sell all the different styles of Ladies' Watch Spring, Bon Ton and Quaker Skirts, at a discount.
All our Balmoral Skirts at a discount;
French Prints and other grades;
Domestic Goods;
Cottons, Flannels, Crashes;
Blankets, the very best quality—all widths;
Batting, full pound bundles;
Wool Wadding, Sheet Wadding, black and white.
In order to prepare for Spring Trade, we shall sell at the very lowest prices for cash.
jan 7 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal St.

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,
IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
dec 24 Sign of Five Golden Books.

MUSICAL NOTICE.
Chickering & Sons' Piano-Fortes.



ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St. would inform her friends in South Danvers, and the public generally that she keeps for sale and to let Chickering & Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with great care, and need only to be tried to prove their superiority over every other in the market. The very best terms given.
MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPHINES
For sale and to let. For power and quality of tone none can surpass them A. R. BRAY.
76 Federal str.

DIARIES--1863-
AN excellent assortment at the lowest prices, for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS
A FINE assortment—for sale at low prices at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
jy 14 190 Essex Street, Salem.

NEW BOOKS.
STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom;
Fire Light; or Stories for Domestics, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;
Gardener's Monthly—January;
Harper's Weekly; Genealogical Register;
Historical Collections, October, 1862.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
At the old stand of H Whipple & Son

W. E. P. SMYTH,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.

Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,

LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.

Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow.
2d. The Children.
3d. The Father.
4th. The Mother.
5th The Brothers and Sisters collectively.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken out, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.

When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the preserve will be so great upon the Auditor's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay in getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.

Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1y

Rare Chance for Bargains.

CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of

JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,

AND FANCY GOODS,

At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER

Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,

Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Ware,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.

at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.

This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Refurnishing the Table, &c.

Old Silver taken in exchange.

☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.

JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

H. & H. G. HUBON,

WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM
Manufacturers of

Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood

COFFINS and CASKETS.

MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.

dec 14—tf

FRANKLIN COAL.

JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL —the best in the world for domestic use.

POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.

Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

E. N. PRICE,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

HARNESSES,
SADDLES, BRIDLES,
AND WHIPS.

— ALSO —

Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.

All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.

237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.

mch13-tf

Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

GAYLE & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
DEALERS IN

Flour, Grain and Produce,

Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of

Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.

PHILLIPS WHARF, - - - - - Salem.

REMOVAL!

AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,

Manufacturer and Repairer of

BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, o which the Mackie took the First Premium at the lat Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.

BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook.

South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862 tf

CHINA GOODS

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

KNIVES AND FORKS.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A VALUABLE PRESENT.

A YEAR'S Reading in WHIPPLE & SMITH'S Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.

dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

CHEAP EDITION.

LES Miserables—complete—$1.00. Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Mulock—for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

READING.

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Ladies' Spring Skirts.

ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier a full line for Ladies and Misses.

oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

THE SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD

Is published every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's building, South Danvers Square, by

CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editor.

TERMS—Two Dollars a year.

ADVERTISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM C. CHOATE,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

251 Essex St., Salem.

Salem, August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.

Residence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

South Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,

Counsellor at Law,

Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,

DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,

Attorney and Counsellor,

Office, No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;

House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,

Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,

Have removed their Office to

Rooms formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,

NO. 27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM,

STEPHEN B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

Office, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.

Claims against the Government for Bounty Back Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD

Dentist,

No. 4 MAIN STREET, SO. DANVERS SQUARE.

Mechanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.

Teeth Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,

SURGEON DENTIST,

No, 208 Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market

Residence—No. 57 Washington street.

jan 11—1y

F. POOLE,

INSURANCE AGENT,

Allen's Building (up stairs),

Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,

DEALERS IN

Family Groceries, Flour & Grain,

HARD WARE AND CROCKERY,

Ready Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods, Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,

South Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church

SAM'L NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,

DEALERS IN

Crockery, China and Hardware; Paper Hangings; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.

No. 32 Front street, Lawrence Place,

feb13 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,

HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,

Glazier and Paperer,

Central Street, South Danvers.

All orders promptly and faithfully executed.

Jan2-1y

E. S. FLINT,

DEALER IN

West India Goods, Country Produce

No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,

No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,

Importer and Dealer in

Gold and Silver Watches,

MARINE CHRONOMETERS,

Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER

keeps constantly on hand

A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF

Millinery Goods,

at Rooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,

HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER

Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger.

164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.

WINDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.

mch6-tf

JOHN MOULTON,

LIVERY STABLE,

Central Street, South Danvers.

Mr. M. will endeavor to keep up the good reputation of his stable, by still keeping good Horses and Carriages. jan 7, 1863.

HEYLINGBERG'S

Hair Dressing Saloon,

24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.

TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Champooing,	15 cts.
Champooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more new Quarterly Customers taken.

In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks will be sold for one dollar.

South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,

ADVERTISING AGENT

For the principal New England Newspapers, remains at the old stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, and Advertising.

Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,

ONE PRICE

HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,

231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

JUST PUBLISHED.

GRAVER Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heaven, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantes, by A. B. Edwards: The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
dec 24 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

DIARIES FOR

1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books,

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.

Prof. M. G. BROWN.

SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets sunny and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its socket in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to anoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer at weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 6 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

The Confessions and Experience of a Poor Young Man.

A GENTLEMAN having been cured of the results of early error and disease, will, from motives of benevolence, send to those who request it, a copy of the above interesting narrative, published by himself. This little book is designed as a warning and caution to young men and those who suffer from NERVOUS DEBILITY, LOSS OF MEMORY, PREMATURE DECAY, &c., &c., supplying at the same time the means of self-cure. Single copies will be sent under seal in a plain envelope,—without charge,—to any who request it, by addressing the author,

CHAS. A. LAMBERT, Esq.,
Greenpoint, Long Island, New York.

TABLE CUTLERY.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, Carvers and Steels, and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by
nov 19 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

REMOVAL!

JOHN J. ASHBY,

WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store

No. 145 Essex Street,

formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of

BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,

and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.

Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.

Salem, September 17, 1862.

E. R. PERKINS,

PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST

241 Essex Street, Salem.

Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,

Photographs, Sphereotypes, Melainotypes, and patent case ver Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

Ann R. Bray,

NO. 76 Federal Street,
— DEALER IN —
Camel's Hair Goods,

Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

Plymouth Buck Gloves.

MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S
Gent's Furnishing Store,

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Tenements to Let.

ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $54 per year.

One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.

One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.

One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.

One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.

South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

MUNROE'S

(LATE REED'S)

SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON

RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at	10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " " at	5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at	3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " " at	5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.

Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.

EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.

Also an Order Box at 26 Pearl street.

Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.

Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed:

WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

E. F. BURNHAM,

SOLE AGENT FOR

SARGENT & CO.S'

MAGIC SOAP

For South Danvers & Salem.

OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.

Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.

Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

INNER SOLES,

AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.

2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

THOMAS PINNOCK,

SLATER,

SALEM, MASS.

Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.

Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.

Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

CURRIER & MILLETT,

Dealers in

Furniture, Chairs, MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c
259 & 261 ESSEX ST.

Salem, dec 14—1y

WM. C. HENDERSON,

MANUFACTURER OF

PLAIN AND FANCY

PAPER BOXES,

No. 235 ESSEX STREET,

Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"

July 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,

NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St. South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

Heckscher Coal!

$8.25 per Ton on Wharf.

A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,

Both Red and White Ash,

Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by

W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.

july 9

AARON T. LOWE,

DEALER IN

BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,

76 BOSTON STREET, 76.

aug 6 SALEM. tf

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.

THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of

Patent Granular Fuel,

which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25 Bushels, delivered,		2 25
50 do	do	4 00
100 do	do	7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.

BYRON GOODELL.

South Danvers, june 18.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.

JAMES PERKINS.

South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

R. C. MANNING & CO.

Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,

DEALERS IN

COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,

183 DERBY STREET,

SALEM, MASS.

N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.

oct17

NEW GOODS.

WE have received some very neat styles of French Prints, small figures, Spring styles, new goods.

Neat styles Patches, new patterns.

A few pieces Cotton and Wool M de Laines, new styles, suitable for the present and Spring wear—selling low for cash.

jy 14 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Dyspepsia Remedy.

DR. DARIUS HAM'S

AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!

This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.

IT STIMULATES, EXHILARATES, INVIGORATES, BUT WILL NOT INTOXICATE OR STUPEFY.

AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner.

It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.

Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the DELIRIUM TREMENS, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.

DOSE—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.

A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.

Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.

Persons who, from dissipating too much over night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings.

Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the careworn face.

During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.

All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the INVIGORATING SPIRIT in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.

General Depot, 48 Water Street, N. Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.

feb 29 1y

Are you Insured?

THE subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on

Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,

And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:

Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn.
Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver P. Rice, Sec'y

Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David G. Rogers, Sec'y.

City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y

Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the

Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass.
Capital and Assets—$375,000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D., Medical Examiner.

WM. ARCHER, Jr.,

18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.

ej b20-1

Important to the Afflicted.

DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a

PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.

By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent, Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of

GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.

Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abscesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.

Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the Head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating marrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.

Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.

Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French [illegible], warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.

May, 1862—1y.

CAUTION

TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.

DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and a speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.

Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.

Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.

Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.

N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.

Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.

May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE

IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.

Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.

Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.

May, 1862—1y

WALLETS AND CURRENCY

HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

MAGAZINES FOR DECEMBER.

ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Madam Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

CHINA WARE.

A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustre China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

HILTON'S INSOLUBLE CEMENT.

ONLY 25 cents—try a bottle. For sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
jan 21 190 Essex street.

NOTE PAPER, ENVELOPES, &C.

A VERY full and complete stock, at a very small advance on old prices, at
jan 21 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

KEROSENE PEG LAMPS,

FOR Shoemaker's use, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PLATE COVERS.

PLANISHED Tin Plate Covers, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 34 Front.

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

Eastern Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains will leave the Eastern Railroad Station, Washington street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excepted):

For Lynn and Boston, 6½, 7½, 8¼, 9, 10, 11 a. m., 1, 2¾ 4 40, 6¾, p. m.
Beverly, 8¼ am., 1, 3½, 4¾, 5¾, 6¾, 7½ p m.
W. Beach, Manr, Gloucester, and Rockport, 8½ a m., 1, 4¾ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8½ a m., 1, 3½, 5¾ p m.
Amesbury, 8½ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portsmouth, 8½ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portland, 8½ a m., 3½ p m.

AND FOR SALEM, FROM

Portland, 8¾ a m., 2½ p m.
Portsmouth, 7¼, *11¼ a m., *5 p m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9 40 a m., 5 20 p m.
Newburyport, 8, 10 a m., 12 m, 5 45 p m.
Ipswich, 8.25, 10.25 a m, 12 25, 6.10 p m.
Gloucester, 7.25, 10 10 a m., 3.55 p m.
Manchester, 7.40, 10.25 a m., 4.10 p m.
Beverly, 7.05, 8.05, 8.50, 10.50 a m., 12.50, 4½, 6.35.
Lynn, 8, 9, 11 a m., 12¾, 3, 4¼, 5½, 6½, 7½ 10.
Boston, 7½, 8½, 10½ a m., 12½, 2½, 4, 5, 6, 6¾, 9¼ p m.

*Or on arrival from the East.
†On Wednesdays this train leaves Boston at 11¼ p m. via Saugus Branch; and on Saturdays at 10½ p m.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Marblehead for Salem, 7, 8, 8¾, 9¼ a m., 12¾, 1¾, 4.25, 6¼
Salem for Marblehead, 8½, 9.25, 11¼ a m., 1, 3½, 5¾, 6¾

SOUTH READING BRANCH.

Trains leave the South Reading Depot in Salem for Boston at 7, 9.40 a m., 2.25, 4.55 p m
Boston for Salem, 7 a m, 12 m., 2¾, 5 p m.
South Danvers for Salem, 7¾ a m., 12¾, 3½, 5¾ p m.

ESSEX RAILROAD.

Leave Salem for Lawrence and way stations, 7½, 11¼ a m., 4¾ p m.
Lawrence for Salem, 8¼ a m., 12.40, 6½ p m.
Danvers for Salem, 9.12 a m., 1.22, 6.57 p m.

J. PRESCOTT, Superintendent.

Boston, November 10, 1862.

Salem and Lowell Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov 10, 1862, Trains will run as follows:

Leave Lowell for Salem, 7.25 a m., and *2.00 p m.
Leave Salem for Lowell, *9 40 a m. and 5 00 p m.

Passengers are not allowed to carry baggage above $50 in value, and that personal, unless notice is given and an extra amount paid. Season tickets do not entitle the holder to take baggage.

*Freight Train with passenger car attached.

F. H. NOURSE, Local Superintendent.

November 7, 1862.

SPEED, COMFORT AND SAFETY!

FOR NEW YORK.

Norwich Steamboat Train.

The only Boats Landing at Jersey City.

CABIN Passage, $4.00; Deck Passage, $3.00. The new and elegant sixteen wheel cars of the steamboat express train leave the Boston & Worcester Railroad Station, Albany Street, at 5½ P. M., daily, connecting with the new steamers, (built expressly for this line,) CITY OF BOSTON, Capt. WILCOX, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; CITY OF NEW YORK, Capt. JEWETT, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, which (before proceeding to their Pier, No. 39 North River,) will touch at the wharf of the New Jersey Railroad at Jersey City, (Sundays excepted) thus enabling Southern Passengers to make sure connections with the First Southern Train, and at the same time avoid the great annoyance of the Ferry and Hack transportation in the crowded streets of New York. This insures ample time for Breakfast before the trains leave. Conductors D. F. WALKER and W. F. BARTON accompany the passengers through.

Tickets, Berths and Staterooms secured at the Railroad Station, and at the Office of the line, 79 Washington Street, Boston.

Through tickets to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington can be had at 79 Washington Street, Boston. WM. DICKEY, Jr., Agent.

Boston, January 7, 1863.

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT

CHANGE OF TIME

— TO —

LYNN & BOSTON

BY OMNIBUS AND HORSE CAR

On and after THURSDAY, June 19th, 1862,

W. F. BURNHAM'S

Line of Omnibuses will leave the Lynn and Boston Omnibus Office, No. 6 Allen's Building, South Danvers, passing down Main street, through Washington street to Lynn, daily.

Leave South Danvers at 7.50 A. M., and 12.50 and 4.50 P. M.

Leave Lynn at 10 A. M., and 2 1-2 and 6 1-2 P. M.

Horse Cars leaving Scollay's Building, Court street, Boston, at 8.15 A. M., 1.15 and 5.15 P. M., will meet the Omnibus at Lynn, at the above named hours, to take passengers to South Danvers.

Sunday Arrangements.

Leave S. Danvers at 7.50 a.m., and 4.50 p.m.
Leave Lynn at 9.30 a.m., and 6.30 p.m.

Cars leave Scollay's Building, Boston, to meet the Omnibuses in Lynn for South Danvers, at 8.15 a m. and 5.15 p m.

Through Tickets to and from Boston may be had of the Drivers and Conductors.

Tickets to Lynn, - - 15 cents.
Through to Boston, - 30 cents.

Passengers called for at reasonable charges i notice is given at the Office.

EXPRESS BUSINESS

Between South Danvers and Lynn promptly attended to, on reasonable terms.

EXTRA COACHES furnished at short notice, at moderate rates.

South Danvers, June 18, 1862.

South Danvers & Salem Line of Omnibuses.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 4, 1861, the South Danvers and Salem Line of Omnibuses will run as follows:

Leave the Hourly Office, South Danvers at 7, 8, 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2 a. m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8.

Leave No. 13 Central St., Salem, at 8, 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2, a.m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 4, 1863. NO. 9.

Selected.

A PIECE OF PAPER.

BY A FRENCH DETECTIVE.

A burglary was committed at night n the shop of a certain watchmaker n the Rue St. Denis. The robbers eized a number of gold and silver atches hanging in the window, and hen went off, leaving behind them a ooden-handled chisel, which they ad employed in bursting the lock, nd a candle end, wrapped in a piece f paper about half the size of a hand. I. S.——did not discover the robbery ll he came down to his shop in the orning; and I was not informed of he daring burglary till ten o'clock.— at once proceeded with an agent to he shop, in order to collect any indiations that might help me to discover he robbers; but there was not the lightest clue. No one had seen them, nd excepting the two articles to hich I have referred, no object of ature to facilitate search was left in he shop. Under these circumstances, resolved to call on the police commissioner of the quarter, who might erhaps possess more precise data; ut this magistrate told me that nothng could be done for the present, and hat it would be wise to keep quiet for while, as any steps would only lead o loss of time and useless labor.— Then the conversation changed, and hile talking of one thing and the ther, I mechanically took up the piece f paper, which was three inches long t the most, that surrounded the canle-end. I had read beneath the dirty nger mark, the four words, "Two ounds of butter," written in an illegible manner, and with an ink whose aleness rendered them even more difficult to decipher. "By Jove!" I xclaimed, "that is a prodigious accident. I must find out the person who rote those words, and then, perhaps, shall get a clue to the thieves."

The commissioner does not think nuch of this paper; he warns M. Janler that he intends to close the reort at four o'clock, and send all the rticles to the prefecture. "Very ood," replies our author; and off he tarts, accompanied by an agent, and holding the little piece of paper.

I jumped into a cab, and visited nsuccessfully all the markets in turn. Disappointed, I was returning to the ommissioner's office, when I noticed, n the Rue Aubrey le Boucher, a butter dealer, to whom I handed my bit f paper while repeating my usual formula. After turning it over and over, the dealer said: "Why I wrote those words; but I don't know to whom they were addressed. It is a ticket which I stuck on two pounds of butter, sold to some passer-by or customer." On hearing this, I fell back from the seventh heaven to earth, and went off.

As I walked along, I said to myself that the robbery was performed either at the beginning of the night—that is to say, at one in the morning—or the burglars waited till a later hour.— But the latter theory was inadmissable, because at a later hour the Rue St. Denis is filled with carts going to market and artisans proceeding to work. Hence the robbery was committed at about one o'clock in the morning. If this was the case, the robbers, in order not to arouse the suspicion of persons dwelling in the same house as themselves, did not go to bed; they probably spent the night in some low wine-vaults—the Couttelle, for instance—and that would explain how, in going down the Faubourg du Temple, they purchased the candle in that quarter. Whilst discussing the circumstances which must have preceded the robbery, I turned into the Rue du Faubough du Temple, where I went from chandler's shop to chandler's shop, asking whether any one recognized my bit of paper—it was the lantern with which Diogenes sought a man. At length I came to sixty-two, near the barracks, and to my great satisfaction the following answer was returned to my question:

'Yes, sir; at about half after eleven last night, I sold a halfpenny candle, wrapped in the paper you now show me, to two young men who live in the next house.'

'What is their trade?'

'Ah, sir, they are quiet as lambs! They are commercial travelers, and both out of work just at present.— They smuggle lace from Belgium, but they are as well-behaved as girls; they see nobody; they frequent no bad company; they do not drink nor quarrel.'

I thanked my chandler for the information, and said that it was not with these young men that I had anything to do; but as I feared lest he might warn the robbers, or give them the alarm by his chattering, I sent my agent to fetch one of his comrades.— During the interval I made the neighbors talk, and obtained a description of the malefactors. On the arrival of the inspectors, I sent them to watch, with orders to arrest the robbers if they went out, and at four o'clock the next morning I went up and arrested them. I could see nothing of a suspicious nature in their room. I sent for the commissioner; but a search led to no result, and I began to fear, not that I was mistaken, but that I had arrived too late, and that the watches had fled. There was in the room a large window, looking out into the yard, which I opened to let in some fresh air, and as I leaned out I perceived a blacksmith's shop.

'By Jove!' I said to myself, 'it would not be so very extraordinary if that smith made the chisel, without knowing to what use it might be turned.' So taking the instrument which I had brought, I went down to the forge and asked the master if the tool was of his making.

'No sir!' he answered; 'but I put it in a handle for one of the young men with whom you now are. He said he wanted to use it for opening cases.'

There was no further doubt, and these were the burglars; hence I hurried up again, and the search began more strictly than before. The mattresses were riped open, the paillasse gutted, the walls sounded, the boards taken up, and every hole and corner inspected. We were in despair, for we could find nothing, and, after three quarters of an hour of useless searching, we resolved to go away. But the next morning I commenced a fresh search in their room; and on examining the ceiling, I noticed an almost imperceptible difference of color over the bed. I jumped on to a chair, and a vigorous blow of my fist on the spot produced a hole, from which tumbled, pell mell, on to the bed, gold and silver watches, all stolen from M. S——. Our two rogues, in order to hide the stolen articles, had made a hole in the ceiling, which they covered again with thick paper, and whitewashed over, and it only appeared of a darker color because it was not quite dry.

Some time after, the two burglars were tried at the assizes, and sentenced to ten years' penal servitude. And yet, on what did the success of this affair depend? Upon a piece of paper, to which no one had paid any attention?

☞ An old lawyer was giving advice to his son, who was just entering upon his father's profession: "My son," said the counsellor, "if you have a case where the law is clearly on your side, but justice seems to be against you, urge upon the jury the vast importance of sustaining the law. If, on the other hand, you are in doubt about the law, but your client's case is founded in justice, insist on the necessity of doing justice though the heavens fall." "But," asked the son, "how shall I manage a case when law and justice are both dead against me?" "In that case my son talk round it, talk round it."

☞ The ancient Greeks buried their dead in jars. Hence the origin of the expression, "He's gone to pot."

RAINY SUNDAYS.

A rainy Sunday is the church-goer's holiday. When he is awakened in the morning by the drops pattering upon the roof or window pane, he nestles more comfortable in his bed, and congratulates himself because he may take another nap. He rises at a late hour and comes down with a headache, which, somehow, a strong cup of coffee does not dispel. Then he casts about for employment, for, of course, he is not going to church in the rain! He might muddy his boots, or spoil his beaver—silk hat, we mean! Perhaps he takes up the last novel; but if he is a business man, it is more probable that he will look over some old accounts, even going to the store—in spite of the rain!—to do so.

So the day wears leadenly on, and in spite of himself, he feels uncomfortable. He has spent the day wretchedly, and he knows it, yet surely you would not have him go to church in the rain?

But we would, though! That is just what rainy Sundays are made for. When the sun shines and the grass is green, when

"Flowers are springing, birds are singing," and all is fair without, then one can worship in the open air, and in the devotional walk have all his deepest religious feelings aroused. But when the sky lowers, and the rain or snow falls, it is the duty of all to go to church.

For our part we like a stormy Sunday for church-going, better than a fair one. We always liked to go to school rainy days, because then there were fewer scholars and we got more of the master's attention. Then, too, he became familiar, put by his stern demeanor, and drawing the faithful few around him, told us tales or explained the difficult lessons. There was a coziness about the school-room, on such days, that we liked.

So on rainy Sundays we go to church, because then we can get a larger share of the sermon. When the house is full, and the butterflies of fashion are fluttering in the pews, and rank is there with haughty head, somehow we never can get any good from the preacher. We feel overlooked in the bustling crowd, and are disturbed by the wandering glances and loud whisperings of over-dressed girls and rustling matrons. There is always a little boy to kick his heels against the pew, and move restlessly about from seat to seat—there is always an old gentleman to nod his head at us, with close shut eyes, as if answering our internal questionings. There is a cold air of the world—of formal ceremony, and heartless parade about the church, that chill the religious element in our being.

But on rainy Sundays, when the butterflies remain at home for fear of soiling their wings, and the little boy plays horse at home in the garret, and the old gentleman takes his nap upon his own bed, we get a good share of the sermon and seldom go to sleep. Then the few present are dressed in subdued colors, are quiet and attentive, and a sort of grateful gloom comes in at the hazy windows, and wraps all in partial obscurity. Then the preacher puts aside the airs of oratory. Then the spirit of true religion seems to rest upon the worshippers, and the world is shut out. Then, indeed, it is good to be there.

Reader, if you would enjoy a rainy Sunday, go to church. — Portland Transcript.

☞ The Newburyport Herald says: The inventor of the rebel torpedoes for blowing up vessels is a Massachusetts Yankee by the name of Irvins. He also built their ram Arkansas, the only craft that has troubled us on the Western waters. Sometimes they talk of forming a confederacy and leaving out New England, but even in their deviltry they have to look to Yankee genius. To leave New England out would be like a man's knocking off the top of his head to improve his intellect.

MARKED CARDS.

Marked cards are manufactured to exactly imitate the fair playing cards in common use, and so ingenious are the devices that it is all but impossible for any but the initiated to detect the difference. One establishment in this city manufactures fifty different styles of these advantage cards, by which the color, size, and suit are told, after some practice, as well by the backs as by the faces.

They are adapted to bluff, to poker, seven up, euchre, cribbage, whist, loo, and all other games where knowing just what an opponent has in his hand would cause the winning of the game. The prices of these cheating implements vary with the style. The common sort are sold for six dollars. Marked strippers, containing all the advantage of marked cards and strippers, are put at twelve dollars per dozen. Transparent cards are also manufactured, by which the gambler, who will not expose his own hand, sees what cards his adversary has through the backs.

Our informant has seen no less than eight different ways of marking on the common star-backed cards. There is a certain character in the right hand corner, placed in five different positions, to denote the ace, king, queen, jack, and ten. Another character, in the same position, denotes the nine, eight, seven, six, and five; and still another the four, tray and deuce. These characters are part of the star, and must be noticed as differing from any other part of the card. For suit there are four characters, differently shaped, one for each suit, found in the left hand corner. In marked striped-back cards the size is told by the position of the stripes, running out at the corner, high cards being denoted by a spread of the stripes; in low ones the stripe is contracted. The suit is told by the spread between the bars on the left hand corner.

In some marked cards, with fancy backs, the suit and size are denoted by leaves, on others by curves, flourishes, etc.

It is very rare that the marks are placed lower than a quarter length of the card, on the side, yet some are found to be in the centre. We might particularize further, but as the marks vary with the style of the back, it would be impossible to make the explanation intelligible to the reader.

Professional sharpers know where to obtain these advantage cards. Many have peculiar marks of their own, which they have the manufacturer put upon backs of the cards they order. The manufacturers of marked cards are at times in league with the gamblers.

DISTINCTIONS IN THE GRAVE.—Bishop Thomas, of Salisbury, used to relate the following story:—

While I was chaplain in the British factory at Hamburg, a gentleman belonging to the factory died at a village about ten miles distant. Application was made to the parson of the parish for leave to have him buried in his churchyard; but upon being told that he was a Calvinist, he refused. "No," said he; "there are none but Lutherans in my churchyard, and there shall be no other." This being told me, says Dr. Thomas, "I resolved to go and argue the matter with him, but found him inflexible. At length I told him he made me think of a circumstance which happened to myself when I was a curate in Thames street. I was burying a corpse, when a woman came and pulled me by the sleeve in the midst of the service, saying, "Sir, sir, I want to speak to you."—"Prithee," says I, "wowan, wait till I have done." "No, sir; I must speak to you immediately." "Why, then, what is the matter?" "Sir," says she, "you are burying a man, who died of the small pox, next to my poor husband, who never had it." This story had the desired effect, and the curate permitted the bones of the poor Calvinist to rot in his churchyard.

GEN. CASS'S ESTATE----A RICH COLLECTION.

In looking about the city of Detroit, the old family residence of Lewis Cass, and other possessions of that old public functionary, were pointed out to us as possessing interest. The family mansion is an extensive wooden building, situated midway of the fashionable quarter on Fort street. Externally, it has the appearance of a large and well kept country inn of the most prosperous days of the old stage line era. Internally, it has attractions that are scarcely surpassed by the best public museum in the country. It is not now occupied by Gen. Cass, but his son, Lewis Cass, Jr., who was for many years minister resident at Rome, is the owner and occupant. Occasionally, the richly furnished apartments are thrown open to the public, and then they are visited by large numbers of the curious. Oil paintings, statues in marble and bronze, ivory carvings, marble vases, and innumerable other works of art—rare, beautiful and costly—crowd the rooms. The visitors are permitted to grope their way about the house, without catalogue or guide, and very much of the interest that would attach to the many rare and beautiful articles, if a full knowledge of them could be obtained, is now wanting. This rare collection was obtained by Mr. Cass in Europe, principally in Italy. It is hinted that his acquisition of a good share of it was fortunate, at least. The value is reported at over one hundred thousand dollars. General Cass is old and physically infirm. He resides with a married daughter, near his old home. Lately, on the occasion of the funerals of deceased army officers at Detroit, he has appeared in the processions, but otherwise, he has seldom been seen in the street for months. He is heartily interested in the cause of his country, and is said to counsel the most vigorous measures for the restoration of the Union. He is very wealthy, and his property, which is in large part composed of landed estates in Detroit and vicinity, is said to be valued at over three millions of dollars.—Syracuse, N. Y. Journal.

REMARKABLE WORKS OF HUMAN LABOR.—Nineveh was 14 miles long, 8 wide; and 40 miles round, with a wall 100 feet high, and thick enough for three chariots abreast.

Babylon was 50 miles within the walls which were 75 feet thick, and 100 high, with 100 brazen gates.

The temple of Diana, Ephesus, was 120 feet to the support of the roof. It was 100 years in building.

The largest of the pyramids is 481 feet high, and 653 on the sides; its base covers eleven acres. The stones are about 60 feet in length, and the layers are 208. It employed 330,000 men in building.

The labyrinth in Egypt contains 300 chambers and 12 halls.

Thebes, in Egypt, presents ruins 27 miles round, and 100 gates.

Carthage was 20 miles round.

Athens was 25 miles round, and contained 359,000 citizens and 400,000 slaves.

The temple of Delphos was so rich in donations that it was plundered of $50,000,000, and Mero carried away from it 200 statues.

The walls of Rome was 13 miles round.

☞ A Berlin Journal states that there are now in the Prussian capital seven butchers' shops for the sale of horse flesh, and that 750 horses have been killed in the present year for their supply. No animal can be slaughtered for those establishments without a certificate from the veterinary surgeon of the police.

☞ Of all happy households that is the happiest where falsehood is never thought of. All peace is broken up when once it appears that there is a liar in the house. All comfort is gone when suspicion has entered—when there must be reserve in talk and reservation in belief.

TO A LITTLE BOY IN HEAVEN.

One long year has passed since we were called to part with thee, yet thou art not forgotten. The anguish of separation has been softened by reflection. But the impressions of that hour will live forever. Time, nor thought, nor events can ever erase them. Under the rubbish of years, lines thus drawn, may be hid from mortal gaze, but they are not effaced; they are only buried.

Sweet boy! a year and a-day ago thou wert with us, a bright-eyed, a flazen-haired, a noble-hearted little boy. To-day, by faith, we see thee in that far-off land—the home of the blessed. There thou art safe; safe from sin, sorrow, pain and death. There thou art happy; happy as the redeemed only are happy; at the right hand of God in fulness of joy. Hark! an angel sings. List! It is a familiar voice. Ah, it is none other than our own dear boy. Strike against that harp. Sing on that song of Moses and the Lamb—it is the appointed service of Heaven.

Clad in garments of holy brightness—standing on the right hand of the throne—a little cherub amidst the giants of Heaven—fixed as a gem in the crown of King Immanuel—an inhabitant of the New Jerusalem, filled with its joys and delighting in its exercises:—Thus to see thee shuts these murmuring lips and fills the heart with resignation and even with joy.

And yet, when we turn to the objects around us—when we see that vacant chair; that little Testament, once thine own; the Psalm book that is still known as W——'s; the little box of trinkets thou kept so nicely stored away; when the little trio that are left are gathered around a mother's knee at night-fall, and one "is not"—whenever and whatever these things come up they call to mind former days, and the heart, in spite of itself, grows sad. But we know that we, too, shall, ere long, be called to lay down this earthly tabernacle, and then we hope, we shall all meet to part no more.

OUR HAIR.—God covered the skull with hair. Some people shave it off. Mischievous practice. It exposes the brain. God covered a part of man's face with hair. Some people shave it off. Mischievous practice. It exposes the throat and lungs—the eyes, likewise, say wise physiologists. Men become bald. Why? Because they wear close hats and caps. Women are never bald except by disease.—They do not wear close hats and caps. Men do not lose a hair below where the hat touches the head, not if they had been bald twenty years. The close cap holds the heat and perspiration. Thereby the air-glands become weak; the hair falls out. What will restore it? Nothing, after the scalp becomes shiny, but if in the process of falling out, or recently lost, the following is best: wash the head freely with cold water once or twice a day, and wear a thoroughly ventilated hat. This is the best means to arrest the loss and restore what is susceptible of restoration. What will beautify a woman's hair? Whatever will invigorate the hair glands. Cold water is best. At first the head looks like a witch, but after a few weeks it makes the hair luxuriant. By the persistent use of cold water I have seen thin, poor hair become rich and curly.—Only the part of the hair next to the scalp should be wet. It must be thoroughly dried.—Dr. Dio Lewis.

AN EXTRAORDINARY THEORY.—A foreign journal, in an article against the punishment of death, publishes the following curious details: "When, at the end of the last century, the terrible machine of Dr. Guillotin made its appearance, it gave rise to great controversy among the faculty throughout Europe. The inventor pretended and believed that death by his instrument was easier than by any other means, and that the rupture of the vertebra, the nerves and all the organs of the head, killed the whole body at once and instantaneously. Several experiments were made at Vienna. Some prisoners were to be executed, and several medical men, who had already disputed the correctness of the statement of Dr. Guillotin, obtained permission to remain on the scaffold during the execution, and when a head was cut off it was delivered to them. The first was that of a young man. The eyes were closed and the tongue protruded. Eight minutes were allowed to expire, when the tongue was pricked with a pin, when it was drawn in and the face made a grimace indicative of pain. The second was that of a woman. The eyes were open, and their supplicating looks were accompanied by many tears. Fourteen minutes after the execution the eyes turned towards the side from whence the woman's name was called. A third head was that of the most guilty of the criminals. A slap was given to the face, when the eyes opened, the face flushed with an indescribable expression of anger and ferocity, and a shudder of anguish was visible on the neck being touched.

A SHARP SHOT.—Quite a number of years ago there lived in the town of G——, Androscoggin county, Maine, a man by the name of L——. He was a farmer, stage-driver, and hotel-keeper, and was blessed with a large family of boys. Among them was the hero of our yarn. Ide was the name he was best known by. He was lean, long, lank, and scrawny—always on hand to run of errands, and do chores generally. One very hot day in July, Ide was sent off about three miles to a mill with a large lot of corn to be ground. Unluckily for him, there was quite a quantity in before he got there, so that it was late in the afternoon before the miller got to work upon Ide's lot. The water was low, consequently the millstones revolved rather slowly. Ide was hungry, and his inner man got uproarious, and looking up to the miller (Uncle Reuben) he says—"Uncle Reub, I can eat that meal faster than you grind it." "Ah, my boy," says Uncle Reuben, "how long could you do it?"—"Why, till I starved to death!" said Ide. Uncle Reuben says that he never got such a shot.—Harper.

"MANY A SLIP 'TWIXT THE CUP AND THE LIP."—This well known saying was supposed to take its origin from one of Penelope's wooers being shot as he was going to drink. But it arose, as an old author has it, thus: "A king of Thrace had planted a vineyard, when one of his slaves, whom he had much oppressed in that very work, prophesied that he (the king) should never taste the wine produced by it. The king disregarded his prophecy, and when, at an entertainment, he held the cup full of his own wine, he sent for his slave, and asked him insultingly, what he thought of his prophecy? The slave only answered—"There's many a slip between the cup and the lip." Scarcely had he spoken, when the news was brought that a large bear was laying his vineyard waste. The king arose in a fury, attacked the bear, and was killed without ever tasting the wine!"

☞ The writer of the Declaration of Independence was passionately fond of fiddling, and is said to have excelled in playing upon that instrument. In 1770 his family mansion was burnt. Mr. Jefferson used to tell, in after years, with great glee, an anecdote connected with the fire. He was absent from home when it occurred, and a slave arrived out of breath to inform him of the disaster. After learning the general destruction, he inquired: "But were none of my books saved?" "No massa," was the reply, "but we saved the fiddle!"

☞ Many make prayers which they would be ashamed to trust to the Lord except in strict confidence.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 4, 1863.

PEABODY INSTITUTE LECTURES

The ninth regular course of lectures before the Institute having been completed we may be allowed to make a general summing up of the subjects treated, although during its continuance we have entirely refrained from comments. As was to be expected in these times of actual hostilities and wasting warfare, when all minds seem absorbed in this one question of the preservation of the life of the nation, the War was a prolific subject, and the views of the lecturers upon its origin and merits, engaged more attention from the audience than any other topic. There were no less than four lectures entirely devoted to this subject, exclusive of Col. PARDEE's pictures of military life in North Carolina, and frequent allusions to it by other lecturers. These four lectures, by Bishop CLARK, GEO. W. CURTIS, Rev. M. D. CONWAY and Rev. Dr. BRIGGS, were all of a high character—full of the eloquence inspired by a glowing patriotism. Those of CURTIS and BRIGGS were remarkable for their elegant language and power of delivery and the intense interest they excited in the auditory.

The remaining two lectures by CURTIS, on "Sir Philip Sydney" and "Charles Dickens," were of a purely literary character and were justly admired. There is a charm in the voice and manner of this speaker, as well as in his beautiful language, which always holds the attention and wins the applause of his hearers.

It was our fortune not to be present at the performance of Mr. Gilman, but we learn that it consisted of illustrations of American "Wit and Humor," tied together by a slender thread of remark upon the avowed topic of the lecture.

Of Rev. Mr. BARBER's lecture on "Imagination," its uses and how it may be cultivated, a correspondent has already given views in which we fully concur. The subject was practically and admirably treated, and the exactitude of its definitions, its depth of thought, and the felicity of its illustrations, left much to be thought about afterward, as well as listened to at the time.

Dr. LORING's lecture on Chief Justice PARSONS was a beautiful and eloquent eulogy of this illustrious son of Essex. A correspondent has given, in a brief manner, our own appreciation of this production.

Dr. HOLLAND gave an interesting and useful lecture on the trite subject of "Fashion," but it lost its triteness by the ingenious manner with which it was handled.

The two "Dramatic Readings" possessed considerable merit and were much admired.

The two closing lectures on the "Amazon River" and "Switzerland," by Rev. Mr. FLETCHER, held the attention of overflowing audiences for more than two hours each. It is seldom that a lecturer can be found who can sustain the interest of an audience for so long a time.

THE OUTRAGE ON MR. SHOVE.

For some months past, much complaint has been heard against truant and mischief-making boys. On the eighteenth of February, a party of these attacked Mr. George Shove, the flag-man on Grove street, and committed an assault upon him without the least provocation. Two of these boys, Patrick Lewyllen and Lawrence Cudyra, were arrested and one committed to the House of Correction, and the other to the State Reform School.

We trust that this salutary example will have the effect to stop some of their companions from pursuing a career which is likely to lead them to a similar end. There are others who have for a long time been known to be engaged in pilfering, and other acts of wickedness and crime, for which they cannot long expect to go unpunished. Let them take timely warning by the fate of their comrades. Truancy from school is often the first act of a life of vagabondism and crime.

THE HORSE RAIL ROAD.

The time is fast approaching for active operations on the Salem and South Danvers Railroad. Much of the iron is now already here, and when the frost is sufficiently out of the ground it will take but a short time to lay it on the track. It is worth an extra effort to lay it down this month and get the extra travel of Fast Day.

We notice that the Legislature has passed an act through some of its stages, requiring uniformity of width of track on all railroads. We do not know whether it will attempt to apply the law to companies already chartered. Uniformity is desirable on account of connections with other roads, and we see no reason why all railroad corporations should not desire it. We presume that when our railroad is once in successful operation, the people of Danversport and Danvers will wish to connect with it. It would prove a new bond of union between the two places and serve to revive their ancient good feeling and friendship for each other.

REAL ESTATE.

It is an occurrence so rare for an estate on Main street to change hands that the recent purchase, by Capt. Edward Todd, of the house formerly occupied by Rev. Mr. Murray, is worthy of record. The house was well and faithfully built for P. R. Southwick, Esq., now of Boston, and is well situated and in a good neighborhood. It is now undergoing alterations in its exterior which will greatly improve its appearance. The two projections in the front, extending above the roof and the light balustrade, gives the house a more stately aspect and the appearance of standing higher from the ground. It has also the effect to make it look much nearer the street than before. These tasteful alterations are made from plans furnished by that competent architect, Mr. Sargent of Newburyport. The work is done by Messrs. Clark & Giddings. Some of the finest mansions we have are in its immediate vicinity, and this will prove a valuable ornament to that neighborhood.

WAR NEWS.

What little war news has been received during the past week has not been of a very encouraging nature. The gunboat Indianola has been captured by the Queen of the West, which latter was recently captured from us, owing to the treachery of a rebel pilot. Thus we lose two of our best river gunboats. The particulars of the loss of the Indianola are given in the following dispatch to the government:

U. S. MISSISSIPPI SQUADRON, Feb. 27, }
Via Memphis, March 1. }

Hon. Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy:

I regret to inform you that the Indianola has also fallen into the hands of the enemy. The rams Webb and Queen of the West attacked her twenty-five miles from here, and rammed her until she surrendered. All of which can be traced to a non-compliance with my instructions. I do not know the particulars.
(Signed) DAVID D. PORTER, Commanding.

The pirate Florida has been making a teapot of old ocean by capturing and sinking one of our East Indiamen (the Jacob Bell,) destroying 1600 tons of tea valued at a million of dollars. She was owned by A. & A. Lowe, of New York, formerly of Salem.

Our troops at Port Royal are treating the contrabands in an outrageous manner. We hope they will soon have an opportunity to give the rebels a taste of their pugilistic powers, instead of innocent Sambo.

OUR TOWN AFFAIRS.—A meeting of Citizens, irrespective of party lines, is to be held at the Town Hall to-morrow evening, for the nomination of candidates for the several town officers usually chosen by ballot. We learn that Mr. Poor positively declines serving longer as Selectman and Assessor, and it is also said that one or more of the remaining two gentlemen now on the board think of declining to serve. We trust this is not the case, as now, if ever, we want experience in those who are to have the management of our municipal affairs. As ex officio clerk of the Board, Mr. Poor will be enabled to render much valuable assistance from the experience he has gained.

The selection of two Trustees of the Peabody Institute, and of members of the School Committee, of the Board of Health, Engineers of the Fire Department and Overseers of the Poor, will claim the attention of the primary meeting, which we hope will be well attended and be conducted in a proper spirit.

TOWN MEETING.—The Annual Town Meeting takes place on Monday next. Among the matters to be considered not belonging to the regular routine of business, are the subjects of Town By-Laws in relation to Truancy; the drainage of Lowell and Central Streets; a sidewalk for Tremont Street, and giving further authority to the Collector of Taxes. The last article in the Warrant relates to the Dog Law. The agitation of this subject always causes a great deal of barking in town meeting. Mother Goose truly says—

"Dogs delight to bark and bite,
For 'tis their nature to."

The introduction of dogs into town meeting also causes more or less laughter among the people—"following the example of that little dog of Mrs. Goose that "laughed to see such craft." We would not be considered dog-matical, but we trust that Mr. Marsh will have his dog-money returned to him.

CAPT. NELSON.—This gentleman, the commander of our second company of three years men, has returned to town under a short furlough, and will soon return again to his regiment, which is encamped near Poolesville, Maryland. He is looking well, and speaks well of the material and discipline of the troops under him. He states that his Lieutenants, MOULTON and WILEY, are well and in good spirits, and that Lieut. HANSON is also well and popular with his Company H, which is in the same regiment, which is the 39th. We wish him a pleasant visit and a happy return to the responsible duties of his command.

MIDDLETON.—The following officers were elected at the annual meeting in this town:—
Moderator—William A. Phelps.
Town Clerk—Joseph A. Batchelder.
Selectmen and Assessors—Samuel Peabody, Allen Berry, Asa Howe.
Overseers of the Poor—William A. Phelps, David Stiles, Jr., Joseph Averill.
Treasurer—Henry A. Wilkins.
Constable—Simon F. Estey.
School Committee for three years—Hiram A. Stiles.
Collector of Taxes—Daniel E. Graves.
The town voted to raise $2,000, to defray town charges; $800 to support schools, and $500 to repair highways.

☞ The next meeting of the Franklin Club, will be held at the Town Hall, on Tuesday evening next. Question for discussion: Is it expedient to grant to the negro population of our country equal privileges with the whites?

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—We have received from E. B. Waitt, Periodical dealer, in Danvers, the March number of this old and still popular magazine. It contains a very interesting article on "Continental Money," profusely illustrated, and in these days of postal script and shinplasters makes the article all the more interesting to the reader.

ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

NEWPORT BARRACKS, Feb. 9th, 1863.

FRIEND POOLE,—As I am detailed for work, and am some distance from the regiment, I have thought a line from me might be somewhat interesting to your readers. I came to this place, which is 26 miles from Newbern and 10 from Beaufort, to fit up and run a rebel saw mill that has lain idle since the war broke out. There are 15 of us soldiers, and five contrabands, and we have fitted up log barracks, built by the rebels, by the side of the railroad, to live in. There are two companies of the 46th here on picket duty, and, though the mill is one mile outside of the lines, we do not entertain any fears of the rebels, and if attacked, intend to make a gallant resistance with our fifteen Springfield rifles. It is rather pleasant here, the robbins, and other Northern birds, have come down to cheer us with their songs, and I am as happy as one can well be away from home; and indeed, I have never regretted for a moment my decision to do what little I could to sustain the government; and allow me to say that you who are at home must not, in the hurry of business, forget that a desperate struggle is being made to overthrow the government and build up slavery on its ruins. We sometimes complain that the war is not well managed, but if we refuse to row because the boat is not steered in the best manner, we shall go down stream and be engulphed together. There will be a wide breach to bridge over when three hundred thousand return to their homes, and new drafts will be made on our young men unless those who are older volunteer. The die is cast, and it is war to the knife, or a most disgraceful compromise. Contrabands are daily coming in here, and yesterday two conscripts—one of them shot in making his escape.

I spent last Sabbath in Newbern and listened to sermons preached by Rev. Horace James and Rev. A. L. Stone, which made me almost forget that I was a soldier. I am indebted to Mr. Jacobs, of our town, and his daughter, for especial favor; and many of our boys have found an asylum under his hospitable roof. Our regiment is improving in drill, and none of them more than Co. C, with its gentlemanly officers. We take up your WIZARD and imagine we are at home, and listen to hear the retreating footsteps of SAMUEL, as he wends his way up Washington street, on his way to the maternal mansion.

The long roll has beat twice since we have been here, and we have fallen in at midnight with our rifles, but the enemy proved to be a friendly pig or an unfriendly wild cat. I have talked with the natives, who are rather numerous here, and they are all for the Union, provided, always, that slavery is not molested. The commandant of the post here is making an effort to build a Yankee school house for the benefit of the seventy-five children in this community who have no means of learning from books, and I shall assist him to lumber and other things. It would be a pleasure to leave such a proof behind us of our faith in common schools.

The weather is spring-like; the frogs are peeping in the swamps, and the turpentine will soon begin to run. Tar making is carried on largely here, and, though you may understand the process, I will describe it briefly:—The ground is made dishing and trodden hard; a gutter is then made of earth, leading from the centre to a hole in the ground, outside of the circle; the pitchy wood is then cut four feet long, split fine and laid in the dish, slightly inclined downward towards the centre, and widening out as it goes up, till it gets to the height of ten feet, resembling the frustum of a cone inverted. The ends of green pine-boughs are stuck in the wood all around the kiln, and then the whole is banked up with earth. The fire is built on the top, near the circumference, and smoulders and sweats the wood, the tar running down into the dish, and from that into the hole in the ground, where it is dipped into barrels. The kilns will yield from 25 to 200 barrels; and the negroes seem well adapted to this kind of work, as it don't make them look dirty. Although the soil is nothing but sand here, yet there is immense wealth in these pitch-pine trees.

14TH.—Three miles through the woods takes us to Bouge Sound, two miles by water to Bouge Island, and after crossing this we come to the open sea, which I always salute most respectfully. The twenty miles of beach, with the white sand cliffs in the rear, with the beautiful shells so peculiar to this latitude, I will not attempt to describe. A company of New York cavalry came here from Newbern last night and their excursions in this vicinity will make our stay here more safe. They are armed with rifles, revolvers, and sabres, and carry 68 rounds of ammunition. General Foster passed through here last night on his way from Port Royal to Newbern. The sun is just rising, so I will close. Yours, JAMES PERKINS.

SALEM.—The Register says the venerable Brown Emerson, D. D, Senior Pastor of the South Church in that city, who has entered upon the eighty-sixth year of his age, and is within a few weeks of entering the fifty-ninth year of his ministry over the same parish, still preaches occasionally. On Sunday forenoon he took charge of the entire exercises of the pulpit, and officiated with an ease and vigor truly wonderful for a person of his years and extended service.

☞ The entertainment at Lyceum Hall Salem, in behalf of the Educational Commission, was as we learn from the Register, of a very interesting character. The singing was admirable. The readings by R. S. Rantoul, Esq., were well selected and very effective. The gross receipts were about $150, and it is proposed to repeat the exercises in a larger hall, at an admission fee of ten cents.

☞ The correspondent of the Boston Journal says that an attempt was made to assassinate Gen. Banks as he was passing out of the City Hotel in New Orleans to his carriage on the evening of the 12th. A pistol was fired at him, the ball from which passed close to his person. The would-be assassin escaped in the crowd, but the police were on his track.

NATHAN H. POOR, Esq., declines being a candidate for selectman and Assessor this year.

PICKET LIFE

BY A SOUTH DANVERS BOY.

CAMP LEE, NEWBERN, N. C., }
January 30th, 1863. }

DEAR FRIEND,—It is a long time since I have written you a line, but I am sure you will pardon me if I attempt to give you a few lines and a little sketch of a soldier's life. I do not know of anything better to commence with except, perhaps, a line or two about picket life. One would naturally suppose it to be a life full of adventures and hair-breadth escapes, and so it is when the enemy is in your immediate vicinity—but here, near Newbern, where the rebels don't come very often, and we have no foe to trouble us, there is but very little excitement, consequently it is not a very frightful theme. Our regiment was stationed on the roads leading directly towards the enemy, and the outposts extends as far as Batchelder's Creek—a small stream which flows into the Neuse—and from six to ten miles distant from Newbern. Now it was tacitly understood between the rebels and ourselves that this stream marked the boundary line. This side of it was sacred to the cause of the Union—and an armed rebel showing his nose ran the risk of being either killed or captured. The opposite side was looked on by us as the dark and benighted region of Dixey, where we in turn dare not show ourselves unless in strong force. The railroad is in good repair as far as the Creek, and the cars ran up and down daily, bringing our supplies. Two companies of us were stationed at a railroad crossing and extended our pickets up towards the Creek and guarded the by-roads through the woods. It is not a very hard life to lead, barring you have to expose yourself to the inclemency of the weather when on duty; but as we got rid of that cursed drill we are put through, when in camp, we had considerable consolation; so never mind the weather, but get over double trouble, and ole Virginnia never tire. Well! here is a go! but pardon me the digression. A chap just came in singing the words. I commenced humming the air and through absence of mind jotted it down.

One of the worst features of picket life is the having to turn out if two or three shots are fired and hasten on the double quick to the outposts to see what is the matter. But the worst feature of all is standing guard all night,—then one has a beautiful chance to soliliquise and think over things in general. He has also a fine opportunity to study astronomy, and tell the time by the stars. It is also a great school for the study of philosophy, and one can bring all his patience into play, particularly if it is dark, cold and rainy—then the long night seems horrible. Ah! how good it seems to hear the roosters crow; those harbingers of man tell you your time is nearly up. Ere long it brightens in the east; soon you will be relieved. You return to camp, and, as the company cook hands you your breakfast hot, you bless the man who invented coffee. We didn't feel anyways alarmed of the rebs coming down on us; still, as we knew not what a minute might bring forth, we naturally kept our ears cocked and our eyes peeled.

The worst enemy we had to fear was those guerillas. They carry on war in the true Indian style, and prowl round by-roads and in the woods, and if they can pick off one of us, think it a great feat. They are up to all sorts of games. One of their last tricks was prowling round with cow-bells, and, so getting inside our lines, our pickets supposing all the time that those useful animals, cows, were quietly chewing their cuds in some pasture lot—they got near enough one night to our camp to fire on us, and as the cow-bells skeddaddled rather fast for those unwarlike animals, who have a legitimate right to wear bells, the cat got out of the bag and that game played out, for everything with a bell on it, (except a locomotive,) was afterward shot. We have not seen or heard of a guerilla since, and what is more, we don't want to; yet numerous are the incidents that nightly happen, and we all had some ludierous story to tell when we returned to camp in the morning.

Owls screach, coons holler and hoot, wild cats yell, and the woods seemed to be filled with varmints that do nothing but make the night hideous. The falling of a tree, with a sharp crack, makes one look to his priming, as he thinks it must be a shot. The moving of some animal through the woods puts him on the "qui vive," for he imagines some wary foe stealthily advancing.

I got nicely sold myself one dark night. I heard a noise advancing—sounded like a horse's hoof! "Ha!" whispered I to my comrade, "hear that?" "My God—yes," says he—"must be a rebel horseman." The noise came nearer—we cocked our guns and gave the challenge of "who comes there?" No answer. We then gave the short, emphatic military "halt," when the noise ceased. We crept cautiously forward and saw, looming up in the darkness, an old horse belonging to some nigger tar burner. We felt relieved, but, as we went back to our post, could not help cursing the horse and anathematizing the owner.

Since we were on picket we have been on an expedition to Kinston, Goldsboro', &c., of which you are probably aware. Our regiment have gone on another expedition. They left here on the 22d and embarked on the steamer Guide again. A few days ago, while on a scout, our cavalry captured several rebels in a rather ludicrous way. Having got round them by another road, the rebels took them for some of their own men—judging from the direction they came—and saluted them. Their surprise can better be imagined than described on finding themselves prisoners. As to the destination of the expedition which has, or is to sail from Beaufort harbor, I cannot fully determine, as there are many rumors going the rounds; but in my opinion it is either Wilmington or Charleston. Ere you get this epistle, news may reach you which may enable you to judge which of these places is to be taken.

I find that, among the nine months troops, there is a great deal less patriotism than in the three years troops. By their talk they seem to think of nothing but their time; it is out in four, five or six months, and all wish they were at an end. Not so with a large majority of us. We want the war ended, but are not willing to give in one mite to the rebels if we have to stay our full term of enlistment.

I forgot to mention the fact that I am left here in Newbern and am acting Commissary for about eighty men who were not able to go with the regiment.

I cannot think of anything more of interest to write this time, so I will close.

GET MARRIED.—The new conscription bill proposes in two drafts to take the able-bodied men between twenty and forty-five years old. They are to be in two classes; first, those married, between 20 and 35, with the unmarried between 20 and 45; and, second, the married between 35 and 45; but the second class is not to be called out till the first is exhausted. This sets the bachelors between thirty-five and forty-five all ago for getting married. It is a wise provision of the law. We wish it had taken all the bachelors between 20 and 90, before it touched a married man. What are these old bachelors good for but to die for their country? If they will not raise soldiers to fight battles, let them go and fight themselves; and die, if so be, without wife or child to mourn them when they fall. However, if any of those who would fall into the second class if married, will repent of their singularity, the war has already made widows enough who will not refuse to assist them in shirking the cartridgebox, if they will only buckle on the harness of matrimony. Let them walk up and show themselves men at once. Fight, or marry! Take your choice quick!—Newburyport Herald.

THE CONSCRIPT LAW.—The Conscript Law recently passed by the United States Senate and House, is exciting considerable feeling among those liable to its enforcement. The pulpit is not exempt from liability. Bachelors and widowers will be in the foremost draft, from the age of twenty to forty-five, while others are subject from twenty to thirty-five.—Only sons, who are the support of widowed mothers, or infirm parents; also, those who maintain brothers and sisters of tender years, are among the few exempted. Lawyers, doctors, parsons, will have to toe the chalk, unless they can hand over three hundred dollars to procure a substitute, who will be furnished by government, which last is a new feature and liable to grave objections, as it places a distinction between the poorer and the wealthier classes, which will cause much discontent.

☞ It is reported that the rebel mortality at Vicksburg is fully as large as our own. In our camps the sickness seems to have somewhat abated. Yazoo is said to be an Indian name, signifying "River of Death." The water of the river is always of a stagnant, slimy thickness, and certain to produce an incurable disease when used any length of time.—Nearly all the men in Gen. Sherman's army who went up the Yazoo were affected by the water, and some of the wounded who have returned are yet suffering from the disease then contracted. The river is properly named.

☞ An exchange says, should the issue of paper money increase as rapidly for the next six months as it has during the past twelve months, we may see a return of the time spoken of by old Dr. Witherspoon, one of the signers of the Declaration, "when creditors were seen running away from their debtors, and debtors pursuing them in triumph, and paying them without money."

☞ Gen. Wilson said in the Senate on Monday that Massachusetts was not short (of all the calls made on her) over 1,500 men. Why should she be short any?—Who knows that she is lacking one man of her quota? If she is behind, what part of the State—what country or town—has failed to come up?

LEGISLATIVE.—In the Senate, Wednesday, a bill was reported to incorporate "The Type-setting Machine Company" with a capital of $300,000.

DIPTHERIA.—This is a disease that appears in two forms—simple and malignant. Simple Diptheria, such as has been here, is easily managed if taken in season; but it needs attending to at once, or it fixes itself on the organs of the throat in a dangerous manner. Diptheria has been so little known in this country till within five years, that many denominate it a new disease. Possibly it may have changed some, as fevers and other diseases will in the lapse of time and under varying circumstances, but it is an old foe of our race, that the medical fraternity have contended with for centuries. It came into Europe certainly three centuries ago from Egypt. Whether it was one of the plagues of that country, or like cholera originated in the more distant East, we know not; but it was known as Ulcus Egypticum. It spread over various parts of Europe as far as Holland, and finally disappeared. In the 17th century it came into Southern Europe again; in Naples and Sicily being termed a horrid pestilence, and in Spain taking the name of Garotillo, from the manner in which it caused death. Then, as always since, it prevailed most among children. About the same time there were cases of it in Canada. A hundred years after it again ravaged Europe, and appeared in New York before the Revolution. For more than forty years it has hung about France and Switzerland; but first in this century appeared in America, in 1858, at Albany, where it was known as the "Albany sore throat." It has since spread all over the country, from Maine, where it was very violent, to New Orleans; and from the seaboard to the Northwest. It comes nearest in its appearance and action to malignant sore throat, but is different from that. From what we know of it in the past, we may hope that it will before long pass away. —Newburyport Herald.

☞ Three rebel ladies announce in the Raleigh Standard that they will provide clothes for three soldiers as long as the war continues, if the soldiers whom they shall select will consent to marry them when the war is over! Well, that's Yankee all over! Don't talk about Connecticut Yankees being sharp in bargaining after the foregoing offer.

☞ It is now announced that the attack on Charleston will be on the full of this moon, when favored by the full tides the iron-clads will attempt to run the forts. If they succeed in that, the city will easily fall. The danger to the fleet is more from obstructions in the river, than from guns.

THE FISHING BUSINESS.—The prospect for the fishing business the coming season was never better. Codfish are now held at $5 and the price is tending upwards. A dealer told us the other day he sold a quintal of fish for $5,50, which was the last he had. We doubt if codfish ever sold at a higher rate in Beverly. Citizen.

☞ The New Bedford Mercury says John B. Gough gives for charitable purposes with a lavish hand. Of $30,000 he acquired in Great Britan, he brought home but $1600; he is now supporting seventeen young men at college, and the surplus of his income goes for the war. This may be so!

A HUNDRED TONS OF GOLD.—During the past year there was received at San Francisco forty-nine millions of dollars in gold. This amount of the precious metal would weigh a hundred tons, and would make the freight of a train of fourteen cars on a railroad.

GEN. WOOL IN SALEM.—The veteran General Wool, who entered the army as a Captain of Infantry in 1812, won distinction in that and the Mexican war, and has been a brave and distinguished soldier ever since his entry into the service, stopped at Salem a few moments on Saturday afternoon, on his way to Portland on a tour of inspection of the harbor and coast defences in his Department. An immense crowd of persons assembled at the depot to welcome him, and as the train made its appearance a salute was fired from the Railroad Battery, and when the cars entered the station the General was greeted with round upon round of enthusiastic cheers. He was waited upon, and introduced to the multitude by Mayor Wheatland, and, in response to the cheers made a few remarks thanking the people cordially for the enthusiasm they manifested and repeatedly expressing his pleasure at the warm welcome extended to him. He said he did not take this reception as any personal honor, but as a testimonial of honor to the government, which he was here to represent. He stated that our whole energies were needed to put down this accursed rebellion. He explained the object of his visit, to ascertain the condition of the coast defences, and said he was doing all he could for the interests of the common country, and any man doing less must be a traitor. This rebellion must be put down, and men were wanted to do it. He was pleased to see the spirit manifested and hoped the men would come forward, fill up the armies in the field, and never cease their efforts until the Union is restored and the flag waves over the entire country.

Gen. Wool's remarks were received with great applause, and the cheers were renewed and continued as the train moved on. The sides of the track were lined with people and as long as the cars continued in sight the General stood upon the platform gracefully acknowledging the demonstrations of the throng as he passed by. This impromptu welcome was quite exhilarating and was gratifying exhibition of the popular feeling.—Salem Reg.

☞ The will of Nicholas L the Cincinnati millionaire, has mitted to probate. He leaves a perty to his widow and children one cent to any charitable or b object. His estate is estimated to seven millions.

☞ At the latest advices fro the Polish revolution showed n being suppressed. If it is kept two months it may set all Eu blaze. That would put an effec per upon intervention in Americ

☞ Recruiting for the 54th F (colored,) is going on in Rho and Pennsylvania, as well as at Monroe and at home. Altog ought to get up a splendid Regi

☞ The deep sea telegraph tween France and Algiers has fa has been unavailable for three and all attempts made to repair proved abortive.

☞ A poor carpenter, name Holmes, living at Plattsburg, O lately fallen heir to a property chester county, New York, va $214,000.

☞ The spirits say that Fra soon be fighting against us, and for us.

☞ Protestantism is gaining in China. The converts now more than two thousand.

School Examinations.

The final examination of the severa takes place next week and the week They will probably attract the usual of parents and friends of the pupils. convenience of visitors we print the programme of the time of the several tions, and the names of members of mittee who are appointed to attend th

Thursday, 5th, P. M., Mr. Fuller, Merrill, Poole, Committee.
Thursday, 12th, 8 1-2 A. M., Miss Perkins, Com.
Thursday, 10 to 12 A. M., Miss Merrill, Com.
Thursday, P. M., Miss Davis. Mer kins, Com.
Friday, 13th, Mr. Upton. Stimps kins, Merrill, Com.
Saturday, 14th, 9 to 11, A M., Mis Poole, Com.
Saturday, P. M., Miss Bushby. M Poole, Committee.
Monday, 16th, Mr. Thompson. S Poole, M'Kenzie, Com.
Tuesday, 17th, 8 1-2 to 10 A. M., Mi lee. Poole, Com. 10 to 12, A. M., M kins. Poole, Com.
Tuesday, 9 to 11, A. M., Miss Barnes rill, Com, 9 to 11, A. M., Miss Gove kins, Com.
Tuesday, P. M., Mr. Senter. Sti Perkins, Merrill.
Wednesday, A. M., Miss Evans. Poo Kenzie. P. M., Miss Burt. Same Com
Thursday, 19th, Mr, Davis. Stimps Kenzie, Perkins.
Friday, 20th, High School. Whole Saturday, 21st, P. M., Miss Young. Merrill.
Time not fixed—Miss Woodbury. Perkins, Com.
Time not fixed—Mr. Wright. Perkin rill, Committee.

MARBLEHEAD.—Rev. S. R. Calthrop, blehead, arrived home from his Europea on Wednesday evening last, after an of nearly eight months.

BUY BEFORE ANOTHER RISE.—The be ed Cotton for 7 cts. at PEABODY'S—w ed 200 yds. Superior for Machine and Sewing.

7 CTS.—The best Glazed Spool Cotto Hand or Machine Sewing. Warrante yds. for 7 cts per Spool, at PEABOD

Citizen's Caucus.

The citizens of South Danvers will h caucus to nominate Town Officers for th suing year, at Town Hall, to-morrow (T day) evening, at 7 1-2 o'clock.

Per or
South Danvers, March 4, 1863.

THIS (WEDNESDAY) MORNIN
BROWNING & LONG will open a lot of New

Spring Goods,

entirely new patterns, and comprising in LACE VEILS,
TISSUE VEILS,
RUFFLED COLLARS,
MALTA LACE COLLARS,
CRAPE GOODS,
HAIR NETS,
POMPADOUR COMB
TOLEDO BELTS,
GRENADINE COLLARS,
LINEN EMBROIDERED COLLARS A
SETTS,
being in advance of the coming season, and very latest Fashions.

Also, a new lot of those superior SKI for Ladies and Misses.

BROWNING & LON
(Successors to J. MAYER,)
Essex St., 177 Essex

SOMETHING NEW.
HIGGINS'S DRESS PROTECTOI
For Infants—an excellent article.
BROWNING & LONG have received sole Agency for Salem, and would call the tention of their customers to this very use article, which when seen will prove its o merits.
mch 4

☞ The Minister from Hayti to this Government is not more than thirty-five years of age, if as much; and, it is said, were his skin of a white hue, he would attract attention anywhere as a man of mark.

GRACE'S CELEBRATED SALVE—Its History.—As the general inquiry of "what is Grace's Salve and who is its originator," may seem to be a question worthy of being answered, the manufacturer has been induced to give the following brief yet truthful account of its history: This Salve was invented in the seventeenth Century by Dr. William Grace, who was Surgeon in King James' Irish Army, and from that time he always used it in his professional practice whenever soreness or inflammation presented itself. As a medical agent for the cure of wounds it was followed with great success, and thousands of the veterans that were wounded in the Campaigns of 1688 and 1691, owe to this Salve the salvation of their lives.

Colonel Richard Grace, who was King James' Chamberlain, introduced this Salve into the Royal Palace, where it was used with the greatest success and highly esteemed for its virtues in the cure of sores. At the siege of Athlone, Colonel Richard Grace ordered it to be administered to his compatriots who were wounded during the memorable days of the battle. The order was complied with, and it was used with such success that the head Surgeon of the Irish army at Aughrim ordered Dr. Wm. Grace to manufacture one hundred gross in season to have it distributed among the hospitals before the battle. On the sad defeat of the Irish army at Aughrim, after Ginckle's army took possession of the battle-field, they found several ambulances abandoned by the retreating army, and in each of them were found sealed cases of the Salve. The English Surgeons tested it upon their wounded and ascertained its value, and thus were both of the contending armies befriended by it.

Both Dr. Wm. Grace and Col. Richard Grace, died in the campaign of 1691,—the former of disease, the latter killed in the entrenchment of Athlone with the Irish flag wrapt around him, cheering on his men to victory. After the death of Dr. Grace, the Salve was not used much outside of his family, until the rebellion of 1798, when William Grace, grandfather to the present subscriber (he being a "united Irishman,") applied its virtues at the battle of Ross to his brave comrades who fell, wounded, while fighting for the rights of their country.

The celebrated Doctor Fitzpatrick, who was connected with the leading Medical Institutions of his day, held in such high estimation this Salve that he ordered large quantities of it manufactured for himself, to use in his professional practice.

The Salve was used in Ireland, and in certain localities the residents had it furnished them free of charge until the year 1848 when the subscriber's parents left their once happy home and the land of their nativity to seek a home in the land of Columbia. With them they brought the secret of the Salve they received from their predecessors. After landing in this country they continued to make it, as before, for their neighbors free of charge, until the fall of 1861, when the frequent calls made for it, and the serious cases that it cured, induced the subscriber to bring it to more general notice and to charge a small price for the article that has received the commendation of patriots upon the battle fields of yore, as well as from persons of the present day.

WILLIAM GRACE, Manufacturer.

☞ Try one of Rhoades' National Clothes Wringers, before purchasing elsewhere. For sale at the Equity Store, South Danvers. See advertisement.

Lost!

On Friday last, between Pleasant and Park Streets, a FITCH FUR TIPPET. The finder will be rewarded by leaving it at my residence, or at Geo. P. Daniels' store.

Mrs. C. A. OSGOOD, Pleasant St.
South Danvers, February 25, 1862.

Found!

A Gold Ring—containing some hair—marked "FRED." The owner can have it by applying to S. A. OSBORNE.

South Danvers, Feb. 25, 1863.

☞ Call and look at the HUDSON BAY SABLES, at OSBORNE'S.

Save your Rags and Paper!

The subscriber will pay the highest prices in CASH for Rags and Paper. By giving seasonable notice he will call at the houses of those who wish to dispose of their rags.

"A penny saved is as good as a penny earned."
So Poor Richard says.

SUMNER SOUTHWICK.
South Danvers, Jan 14, 1863.

MANUAL FENOLLOSA,
TEACHER
OF THE
Violin, Piano and Singing,
Music Rooms, No. 7 Central Street,
SALEM, MASS

How to Make $5.00 a Day,
When all other Efforts have Failed.

HOOD & CO., 186 Broadway, New York, have just published ONE HUNDRED VALUABLE SECRETS, possessing them, any one, male or female, can easily make $5 a day, without capital, in any city or village. Every one should possess these secrets, for they are worth $500 to any single or married person. Some of these Secrets have been sold for $20 each. One alone cost as $250 for the right to publish it. When you once own them you will never part with them for money. Several persons are now making $120 per month by these Secrets alone. By them any person may make money easily and rapidly. We send one Book of Secrets for 25 cents, two copies, 40 cents, club of three for 50 cts., club of four 65 cts. club of five 75 cts., club of eight copies, $1. Send Government money.

New York, Feb 18, 1863. *3m

New Jersey Lands for Sale,
— ALSO —
GARDEN OR FRUIT FARMS,

Suitable for Grapes, Peaches, Pears, Raspberries, Strawberries, Blackberries, Currants, &c., of 1, 2½ 5, 10 or 20 acres each, at the following prices for the present, viz: 20 acres for $200, 10 acres for $110, 5 acres for $60, 2½ acres for $40, 1 acre for $20. Payable by one dollar a week.

Also, good Cranberry lands, and village lots in CHETWOOD 25 by 100 feet, at $10 each, payable by one dollar a week. The above land and farms are situated at Chetwood, Washington Township, Burlington, New Jersey. For further information, apply with a P. O. Stamp, for a circular, to

B. FRANKLIN CLARK,
feb 18, 1863 No. 90 Cedar St, New York, N. Y.

M. FENOLLOSA,
TEACHER OF MUSIC,
LETS.....PIANO FORTES,
at the lowest rates;
SELLS .....PIANO FORTES,
at the Manufacturers Prices;
EXCHANGES ...PIANO FORTES,
on the easiest terms;
At Rooms No. 7 Central street,
feb 11 SALEM, MASS.

Port of Danvers.

Ar 22d, sloop Comet, Floyd, Boston; 26th sch T B Hodgman, Prince, New York.

Marriages.

In this town, 2d inst, by Rev Mr Barrows, Thomas W. Fox, Esq, of Worcester, Counsellor at law, and Miss Mary A, daughter of Mr. George M. Teel, of South Danvers.

In Salem, 22d ult, by Rev Mr Spaulding, Mr Willis Hadley and Miss Hannah Stoddard.

25th, by Rev Dr Briggs, Mr George H Perkins and Miss Mary K, daughter of the late James B Sawyer, both of Danvers.

25th, by Rev Mr Wilson, Mr Edw A Hutchinson of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Miss Kate Downing, daughter of James B Ferguson, Esq, of Salem.

In Marblehead, Feb 22, Joseph Gregory, Jr, Acting Master's Mate, USN, and Miss Hannah Pedrick.

Deaths.

In Danvers Center, Mch 1, Benj. Peele, son of Benj and Myra Millett, 2 yrs 3 mos.

In Salem, 22d, Margaret, daughter of Patrick and Margaret Quinn, 5 mos; 24th, Mr James Sanborn, 51 yrs; 25th, Margaret, daughter of the late Mr Henry Nolan, 10 yrs; Lewis Shillaber, son of Dr Simon W and Nancy Draper, 5 months 13 days; Mrs Ann, wife of Mr William M'Grath, 53; 26th, Mrs Mary, widow of the late Mr Joseph Peele, 88; Lewis Henry, son of the late Mr Lewis H Dole of Rowley, 10 yrs 4 mos; 27th, Henry Augustus Osgood, 3 years 2 mos; 28th, Mr John Mansfield, 69; Mrs Ellen, widow of the late Miles Daley, 72.

In Beverly, Feb 23, Mrs Lucy Butman, 80.

In Marblehead, Feb 21, Mr Benj. F Ireson, 27 yrs 1 mon 13 days; 23d, John Adams, Esq, 43 yrs 6 mos.

In New Orleans, Feb 7, Mr T A Masury of Georgetown, formerly of Salem, 17 yrs 6 mos, a member of Co E, 30th Mass. Reg.

Advertisements.

School for both Sexes.

THE next term of MISS FRANCES E. VERY'S School for pupils of both sexes, will commence April 1st, at the Oliver School House, No. 95 Federal Street.

Application may be made at No. 154 Federal Street. Salem, Mch 4, 1863.3

Administrator's Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the subscriber has been duly appointed administrator of the estate of WILLIAM DELANCY, late of South Danvers, in the county of Essex, yeoman, deceased, and has taken upon himself that trust, by giving bonds, as the law directs: All persons having demands upon the estate of said deceased are required to exhibit the same; and all persons indebted to said estate are called upon to make payment to

THOS. M. STIMPSON, Adm'r.
South Danvers, March 4, 1863. 3w

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

ESSEX, ss. Feb. 25, A. D., 1863. A warrant has been duly issued by Hon. GEORGE F. CREATE, Judge of Probate and Insolvency for said County of Essex, against the estate of EBENEZER S. HOWARD, of South Danvers, in the County of Essex, trader, an insolvent debtor; and the payment of any debts, or the delivery of any property belonging to said insolvent debtor, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law.

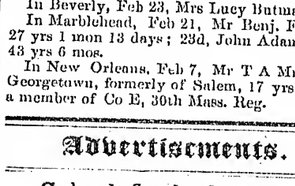
The first meeting of the creditors of said insolvent debtor will be held at the Court of Insolvency, at Salem, on the twenty-third day of March, at ten o'clock, A. M., for the proof of debts, and the choice of an Assignee or assignees of said estate.

STEPHEN UPTON, Deputy Sheriff,
March 4, 1863. Messenger.

GRACE'S CELEBRATED SALVE.



A SURE RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERER.

This Salve is a vegetable preparation, invented in the 17th century, by DR. WM. GRACE, surgeon in King James's army. Through its agency he cured thousands of most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor.

Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Burns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Scalds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Flesh Wounds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Corns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Felons.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Frozen Limbs.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Wens.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Callouses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Salt Rheum.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chilblains.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Breast.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Lips.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Erysipelas Sores.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Abscesses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ulcers.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chapped Hands.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ringworms.

And from Sores and Wounds of the most serious nature down to a common Pimple. It eradicates Pimples from the face, and beautifies the skin. There is no preparation before the public that can equal this Salve in prompt and energetic action for the speedy cure of external diseases, as those who have tried its virtues testify. Soldiers, Sailors, and Fishermen, will find this Salve their best friend.

It has none of the irritating, heating properties of other remedies, but cools, cleanses, and heals the most serious Sores and Wounds. Every family, and especially those containing children, should keep a box on hand in case of accident, for it will save them much trouble, suffering, and money. All it wants is a fair trial to cure old and inveterate Sores.

MANUFACTURED BY
WILLIAM GRACE,
AMESBURY, MASS.

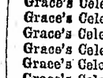
PRICE 25 CENTS PER BOX.

Each box has the above cut and the fac-simile of the proprietor's signature attached to it, which is duly copy righted.

Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., 11 and 12 Marshall street, Weeks & Potter, 170 Washington street, and M. S. Burr & Co., 26 Tremont street, Boston, Wholesale Agents.

For sale by druggists and at country stores everywhere.

To Let on Essex St, Salem,



The STORE and DWELLING HOUSE connected therewith, No. 250 Essex St. The store is neatly fitted up, is one of the best stands in the city, and admirably adapted for Millinery, Fancy, Dry Goods, or any light business.

The Dwelling part contains nine finished rooms, and is supplied with water, gas, etc.—all in good order and very convenient.

To a satisfactory tenant, the above will be let on reasonable terms. Apply at J. PERLEY'S Shoe Store, next door west. feb 25

A Good Milk Route for Sale,

INQUIRE at this office.
South Danvers, Feb. 11, 1863.

James F. Almy.

Rich Silks.

PURCHASERS of Plain Black, Rept and Fancy Silks, are invited to examine our stock, a greater part of which was bought before the advance.

JAMES F. ALMY,
feb 18 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

Browning & Long.

LARGE SALES
AND SMALL PROFITS.

POINT DE VENICE
SKIRTS.
SOMETHING ENTIRELY NEW.

NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS. NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

BROWNING & LONG have received their Spring Skirts, being of New Shape and Design, Kid Fronts and Springs Securely Fastened.

In the "Point de Venice" will be found a perfect Skirt, being of a beautiful shape, and having attached to it a Kid Bodice, which fits closely to the form, making it a graceful and durable Skirt, and especially adapted to the present style of fitting dresses.

Receiving our Skirts direct from the manufacturers, we are enabled to show a fine assortment of New Styles, and can offer them at

VERY LOW PRICES.

Also received, a full line of

MISSES' SKIRTS,
KID FRONTS, and SUPERIOR FINISH.

BROWNING & LONG,
(Successors to J. Mayer.)
Jan. 28. 177 Essex Street.

John P. Peabody.

Our Artificial Flowers.

FOR THE NEXT TEN DAYS, we shall close out our WINTER FLOWERS at 17 cts. per sprig. We have sold them at 25, 34, 42 and 50 cents;—now your choice for 17 cents. We do this because we do not wish to keep them over.

Our Best Glazed Spool Cotton.

WE are now selling at 7 cts. per Spool, which is less than the Wholesale price.—Now is the time to buy—delays are dangerous and expensive, when Goods rise as fast as they do now.

Our New Style Corsets.

WE warrant them superior in every way, and the stock we have on hand will be sold at our present prices, which is far below the Manufacturer's price of to-day.

Ladies' Cotton Hosiery.

WE have a full Stock of Cotton Hose, in Ladies', Misses' and Children's sizes, which we shall close at prices much under the market. We bought them last season and can therefore sell them at VERY LOW PRICES.

Buy Your Gloves Early.

EVERY Lady who studies economy will be sure to buy her Summer Stock of Gloves early—before the last season's stocks are all sold, as goods imported this Spring must cost nearly double the price of last season. Buy now.

Buy all you want, now!

ALL kinds of Goods are rapidly advancing in price—and they must continue to do so through the Spring and Summer—and we would advise every one to buy up a Summer's stock now—for we can assure them, money will be saved by so doing.

ONE PRICE ONLY!

Personal Checks & Shinplasters.

WE shall continue to take Personal Currency as heretofore, during the present year.

220 ESSEX ST., SALEM,
JOHN P. PEABODY.

NEW YORK WHITE LEAD.

2500 LBS New York White Lead;
Also, Forest River White Lead—for sale by
mch 4 S C & E A SIMONDS.

George S. Walker.

Linen Fronts, Cuffs & Collars.

LINENS are advancing, consequently there must be a corresponding advance in the above named articles. The present is the time to buy all styles and qualities in stock bought before the rise, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
Gent's Furnishing Store,
Feb 11 No. 228 Essex st, Stearn's Building.

Scarfs. Ties. Stocks.

THE LARGEST ASSORTMENT,
THE BEST STYLES
THE LOWEST PRICES.

Also—BLACK SILK CRAVATS—30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches—Matteoni's manufacture, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
feb 11 228 Essex st, Stearns' Block.

Umbrellas.

GINGHAM, Silk and Cotton—largest stock in the city, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
Dealer in Gent's Furnishing Goods & Toilet Articles. Opposite Eastern Railroad Station.

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,
FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,
Central Street, South Danvers,

HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.

He keeps as good an assortment of

COFFINS AND CASKETS,

as can be found at any establishment, and at the lowest prices.

He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.

All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

SOUTH DANVERS
POST OFFICE.

GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.

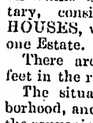
MAILS CLOSE
At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.

MAILS DUE
At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.

Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.

F. POOLE, P. M.
South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.



THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.
South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

THE CLOTHES WRINGER.

JUST OBTAINED
RHOADES' CELEBRATED
NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER,
THE VERY BEST YET INVENTED,
AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING MACHINE.
CALL AND EXAMINE.
For Sale by E. SOUTHWICK,
At the EQUITY GROCERY STORE,
South Danvers, Jan 21, 1863. 3m

T. HARDY, JR.,
—Dealer in—
DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,
Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,
FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,
No. 26 FRONT STREET,
Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

IHLSING & NARVESON'S
Celebrated New Full 7 Octave
PIANO FORTES,

OF superior tone and finish, plain and ornamental, nameboard inlaid with pearl, full iron frame, grand action, overstrung bass pearl or ivory keys, plain or carved legs, are for sale at

218 Essex Street, Salem, Up Stairs.

Any one wishing to obtain a superior instrument is invited to call before purchasing elsewhere.

jan 7—tf S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

100,000 BARRELS OF THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S
POUDRETTE,
111 COMMERCIAL ST., BOSTON, MASS.

This Company, with a capital of $150,000, the most extensive works of the kind in the world, and an experience in manufacturing of over 20 years, with a reputation long established, having also the exclusive control of all the night soil of the great city of New York, are prepared to furnish an article, which is, without doubt, the CHEAPEST AND VERY BEST fertilizer in market. It greatly increases the yield, and ripens the crop from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from three to four dollars per acre, with little or no labor. Also, FIFTY TONS of BONE TAPEU, being a mixture of bone and night soil ground fine, at $45 per ton—a superior article for grain, &c. A pamphlet containing all necessary information may be had free by addressing a letter to the subscriber.

JAMES T FOSTER,
Care of the Lodi Manufacturing Company,
66 Courtland St., New York.

Agents—WELCH & FAIRFIELD, Grocers, Lowell Street, South Danvers. feb 11—3m

---

CAMELS HAIR GOODS.

OWING to the small stock of Camels Hair goods in the market, prices have very much advanced. We shall give our customers the advantage of buying at the old prices, as we have a good assortment on hand.

ANN R. BRAY,
mch 4 76 Federal street.

ORGANDIE MUSLINS.

WE shall open new Spring styles of Organdie Muslins to-day.

Ladies will do well to buy now, as prices are advancing daily. ANN R. BRAY,
mch 4 76 Federal street.

NEW SPRING SHAWLS,

IN Stripe, Plaid and Plain, of rich styles—just received and for sale by mch 4 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

NEW NEEDLE THREADER.

DOUBLE-ENDED, Excelsior Sewing Needle Threader and Worsted Threader combined—of great utility for near sighted or nervous people in threading needles, numbering from 4 to 12, and also Darning Needles.

Call and see them, at
mch 4 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

A. J. Archer & Co

ELEGANT NEW GOODS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

OPEN THIS MORNING

MANY NEW STYLES OF

DRESS GOODS,

INCLUDING

Rich and Heavy Black Silks,

Rich Plain Colored Silks.

☞ Our patrons are invited to examine these Goods. Prices are still advancing, and money will be saved by buying now.

Salem, February 11, tf

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

Have on hand a full supply of

BROWN SHEETINGS AND SHIRTINGS;

BLEACHED SHEETINGS & SHIRTINGS;

— Also —

GREY TWILLED FLANNELS;

WHITE FLANNELS.

— Also —

BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,

which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES.
Salem, January 28—6w

KEROSENE Stand and Hand Lamps, and Peg Lamps. Also Wicks and Chimneys—for sale by S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

A FINE assortment of Paper Shades for Kerosene Lamps, just opened at S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

HILTON'S Insoluble Cement; Richards's Improved Cement; Spaulding's, Upton's, and Nichols's Liquid Glues, for sale by
feb 11 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

JUVENILE BOOKS,

A VERY large assortment for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

SLATING. SLATING.

GEORGE FOWLER & COMPA'Y,

NO. 2 ST. PETER COURT, SALEM, respectfully inform their friends and the citizens of this and neighboring towns and cities that they are prepared to execute all orders for Slating, promptly and faithfully.

Roofs covered with any description of Slates, or repaired at short notice.

All work undertaken will be warranted.
Address—Box 366 Salem Post Office.
Salem, January 28—1863. tf

WALKING MADE EASY.

DR. P. KENISON,
CHIROPODIST,
215 Washington St., Boston,

Cures Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails. Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

FOR SALE.

A GOOD comfortable Home, a two-story House, L, Shed and Barn, in good repair, pleasantly located in Londonderry, N. H., 1 1-2 miles from center of town, 10 acres of Land, with plenty of Fruit. Price only $650.

Also—an excellent Stock Farm of 250 acres, for sale or exchange.

dec 31 L. BRICKETT, Derry, N. H.

D. W. BOWDOIN,
—ARTIST IN—
PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.
Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]

Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotype, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.

☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

WATCH SPRING SKIRTS,
At 236 Essex Street,
A few doors from Washington Street,
SALEM, MASS.
M. A. PORTER,
MANUFACTURES TO ORDER

OUR CORSETS.

WE have all the different sizes of our Superior Corsets—and we are now selling them at less than the Wholesale Price. We warrant every pair to give perfect satisfaction and would suggest that all who buy now will save the next rise in price, for it will surely come. Delays are dangerous and expensive, when Goods are rising in price as they now are. 220 ESSEX ST.,

JOHN P. PEABODY.
feb 25

OUR CORSETS. OUR CORSETS.

NEW BOOKS

A G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, 190 Essex st Salem;

The Iron Furnace, or, Slavery and Secession, by Rev. John H Aughey;

Transition; a Remembrance of Emma Whiting, by Hugh S Carpenter;

The Hero of Medfield; containing the Journals and Letters of Allen A. Kingsbury, of Medfield, who was killed near Yorktown;

The Orpheus C Kerr Papers, Second Series;

The Great Consummation. The Millenial Rest; or the World as it will be—by Rev. John Cumming, D. D;

McClellan; who he is, and what he has done—by George Wilkes;

Dr. Walker's Election Sermon;
mch 4 190 Essex street.

THE SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD

Is published every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's Building, South Danvers Square, by

CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editor.

TERMS—Two Dollars a year.

ADVERTISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM G. CHOATE,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
Salem, August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Residence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
South Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
Office, No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to
Rooms formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
NO. 27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM,
STEPHEN B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Office, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.

Claims against the Government for Bounty Back Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

---

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
No. 4 MAIN STREET, So. DANVERS SQUARE,
Mechanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
Teeth Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge.

W. L. BOWDOIN,
SURGEON DENTIST,
No, 208 Essex Street, Salem; (Opposite the Mark.
Residence—No. 57 Washington street.
Jan 11—1y

F. POOLE,
INSURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Family Groceries, Flour & Grain,
HARD WARE AND CROCKERY,
Ready Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods, Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
South Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
SAM'L NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Crockery, China and Hardware; Paper Hangings; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.
No. 32 Front street, Lawrence Place.
feb13 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
All orders promptly and faithfully executed.
jan2-1y

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
West India Goods, Country Produce
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
Gold and Silver Watches
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
at Rooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger,
164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
WINDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
mch6-tf

JOHN MOULTON,
LIVERY STABLE,
Central Street, South Danvers.

Mr. M. will endeavor to keep up the good reputation of his stable, by still keeping good Horses and Carriages. jan 7, 1863.

HEYLINGBERG'S
Hair Dressing Saloon,
24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.

TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Shampooing,	15 cts.
Shampooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more new Quarterly Customers taken.
In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks will be sold for one dollar.
South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,
ADVERTISING AGENT,
For the principal New England Newspapers, remain at the old stand. No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws and Advertising.
Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,
ONE PRICE
HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,
231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

DIARIES AT COST PRICES.

A GOOD ASSORTMENT at G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S, Salem, Mass.

NATIONAL ALMANAC,

AND Annual Record for 1863—containing Government of the United States, the Individual States, and so called Confederate States, Tax Law, Census Tables, New Tariff, Army and Navy Officers, U. S. Mint, Consuls Statistics, etc., for sale by

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

☞ If you want to SVAE chasing Goods, go to COLMAN street, Salem.

Auction S

WILLIAM ARC
Auctioneer, Real Estate and
34 Front Stree
Real Estate, Bank, Railroad an Stock bought and sold on
AT PRIVATE
One fine-toned PIANO hand, in excellent order.
An assortment of Silver P cluding Ice Pitchers from $4,

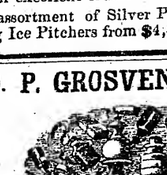
D. P. GROSVEN



Druggist and A
88 MAIN STI
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Personal attention to Physi tions.
South Danvers, May 29, 186

GEO. E. MEA

Dealer in DRUGS & MED
Fancy & Toilet Art
126 MAIN ST
Nearly opposite Danvers Bank

T. A. SWEE
Druggist &

37 Main St.
DEA
Drugs, Medic
Foreign Lee
Herbs, Dye
Acids, Sp
der Brac and Genuine
Also, Imported Cigars of choice
Toilet Articles and Stationery.
Physicians' Prescriptions carefully
perienced persons.
37 MAIN STR

PATTERSO
LEATHER HANDLING

THE undersigned are agents machine. It can be seen Pinder & Brown's Tannery.
may 7—3m CLARK &

MESSRS. CLARK &
Wallis Street, South
Are Agents for
GEORGE W. FISKE
PATENT EAVE T
CUTTERS, CONDUCT
PIPE FOR DR
South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

Potter, Bachelder
(Successors to M. Blac
DANVERS-P
DEALERS IN
WOOD AND
OF the various kinds usually yard. Constantly on hand
Franklin, Old Compa
Locust Mountain, Black Heat
Red and White Ash.
Of all sizes, of the best quality,
prices as can be bought elsewhere
OFFICE—No. 6 Allen's Bl
Order Box at post office, South post office, Danvers.
G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER.

ALL THE NEW BO
IN elegant and plain bindings, may
G M WHIPPLE & A A Sign of Five
mch 25

MUSICAL NOTIC
Chickering & Sons' Pia

ANN R. BRAY, No would inform her friend vers, and the public gen keeps for sale and to Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selec care, and need only to be tried to prov ty over every other in the market.
erms given.
MANNING & NICHOLS' SE
For sale and to let. For power and none can surpass them
A. R 76

DIARIES--1863
AN excellent assortment at the lowe sale by G M WHIPPLE & A

---

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, ve
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—a
Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76

PHOTOGRAPH ALBU
A FINE assortment—for sale at l
G M WHIPPLE & A A SM
jy 14 190 Essex Stre

NEW BOOKS.
STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Fire Light; or Stories for Do
Mrs J. D. Chaplin;
Gardener's Monthly—January;
Harper's Weekly; Genealogical
Historical Collections, October, 18
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH
At the old stand of H Whi

Ann R. Bray, No. 76 Federal
HAS received a fine assortment
SPRING GOODS, including
Rich Black Silks;
Black Alapaccas, a full assortme
Poils in Stripes and Plaids;
Mous de Laines, entirely new pat
French Cambrics, small fig'd, for
— A full stock of —
DOMESTIC GOODS
feb. 25 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Fed

Ann R. Bray, 76 Federal
WILL open to-day, New Spring
Delaines; Alapaccas, &c.
We have a full and carefully selec of Black Silks, which are warranted perfect satisfaction.
In dress goods we select the best st fabrics, and those who buy early will best assortment. feb 25

WIRE GOODS.
WIRE Rat Traps; Broilers; Steamers etc., just received at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 F

PATENT CLOTHE
HORSES Cram's Patent Clothes Frames
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 F

Miscellaneous.

The following chicken story is told by an out-West paper as an undoubted fact. We do not doubt it it—or, at least, not much:—"One of our farmers was greatly annoyed by the scratching of the chickens in his garden, and concluded to experiment a little with them. He procured a Shanghai rooster, and the result of the cross was a brood of chickens with one long and one short leg. When they stood on the long leg and attempted to scratch with the other they couldn't touch bottom. On reversing the order of things, and digging with the long leg while the short one supported the body, the first stroke would result in a grand series of somersaults. The consequence was the hens soon became 'a-weary' of that fun, and left the garden, and the farmer's wife is about patenting the invention."

A HINT.—"Why, Pete, you've got back from Dobbs' early; isn't Ruth to hum?" inquired a Yankee girl of her awkward brother, who had been a courtin' about half an hour before.

"Yaas, she was thar; but I and the old man didn't agree very well, so he gin me a hint and I left."

"A hint! pray what sort of a hint?"

"Wall, he opened the door and pointed down toward our house, and then kindly raised his right foot as though he was going to kick, and I felt so ashamed of such conduct before Ruth, that I started off without another word."

AN OLD CHICKEN.—In attempting to carve a fowl one day, a gentleman found considerable difficulty in separating its joints, and exclaimed against the man who had sold him an old hen for a young chicken.

"My dear," said the enraged man's wife, "don't talk so about the aged and respectable Mr. B.; he planted the first hill of corn that was ever planted in our town."

"I know that," said her husband, "and I believe this hen scratched it up."

CURIOSITIES.—The chair in which the sun sets.

A garment for the naked eye.

The hammer which broke up the meeting.

Buckles to fasten a laughing stock.

The animal that drew the inference.

Eggs from a nest of thieves.

A bucket of water from "All's Well."

"Good mind to pinch you, Sal," said an awkward Jersey on his first visit to the rustic flame. "What you want to pinch me for, Zeziel?" "Golly, cause I love you so!" "Now go long Zeke, you great hateful! I should think you might be big enough to feel ridiculous!"

"I say, Dick, why don't you spend that levy?" said a small urchin to another, who was rattling two fips with a gratified leer on his countenance.

"Cause this is specie; bymeby they're going to issue shinneys, and then I'll get fourteen cents for 'em."

A newspaper, in noticing the presentation of a silver cup to a cotemporary, says:

"He needs no cup. He can drink from any vessel that contains liquor—whether the neck of a bottle, the mouth of a demijon, the spile of a keg, or the bunghole of a barrel."

"I say, Sambo, were you ever intoxicatee?" "No, Julius, neber; was you?" "Well I was, Sambo." "Didn't it make you feel good, Julius?" "Yah! but golly, next morning I thought my head was a woodshed, and all the niggars in Christendom were splitting wood in it."

"Sammy, my dear boy, what are you crying for?"

"Bill hove the bible at me, and hit me on the head."

"Well, you are the first person in my family on whom the bible ever made the slightest impression."

"Pray, sir," said a gentleman to a wag upon a wharf, "what is wood now?" "Why, trees cut down and chopped up."

Modesty in a woman is like color on her cheek—decidedly becoming, if not put on.

The children of scolding parents are hot-house plants.

W. E. P. SMYTH,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.

Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,

LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.

Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow. 4th. The Mother.
2d. The Children. 5th The Brothers and Sisters collectively.
3d. The Father.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken on, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.

When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditor's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay in getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.

Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1y

Rare Chance for Bargains.

CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of
JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS,
At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER

Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,
Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Ware,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.
at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.

This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Returnishing the Table, &c.

Old Silver taken in exchange.

☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.

JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

H. & H. G. HUBON,

WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM
Manufacturers of
Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood
COFFINS and CASKETS.

MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.

dec 14—tf

FRANKLIN COAL.

JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL—the best in the world for domestic use.
POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

E. N. PRICE,

Manufacturer and Dealer in
HARNESSES,
SADDLES, BRIDLES,
AND WHIPS.
— ALSO —
Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.

All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.

237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
mch13-tf

Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

GAYLE & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
DEALERS IN
Flour, Grain and Produce,
Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of
Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.
PHILLIPS WHARF, - - - - Salem.

REMOVAL!

AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,
Manufacturer and Repairer of
BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, o which the Mackie took the First Premium at the lat Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.
BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook.
South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1863 tf

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A YEAR'S Reading in WHIPPLE & SMITH'S Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.
dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

LES Miserables—complete—$1.00.
Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Muloch—for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Ladies' Spring Skirts.

ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

DIARIES FOR

1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books,

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.

Prof. M. G. BROWN.

SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets scumy and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its socket in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to annoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 6 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

The Confessions and Experience of a Poor Young Man.

A GENTLEMAN having been cured of the results of early error and disease, will, from motives of benevolence, send to those who request it, a copy of the above interesting narrative, published by himself. This little book is designed as a warning and caution to young men and those who suffer from NERVOUS DEBILITY, LOSS OF MEMORY, PREMATURE DECAY, &c., &c., supplying at the same time the means of self-cure. Single copies will be sent under seal in a plain envelope,—without charge,—to any who request it, by addressing the author,

CHAS. A. LAMBERT, Esq.,
Greenpoint, Long Island, New York.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks. Carvers and Steels. and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by nov 19 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

REMOVAL!

JOHN J. ASHBY,

WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store

No. 145 Essex Street,

formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of

BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,

and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.

Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

E. R. PERKINS,

PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST

241 Essex Street, Salem.

Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,

Photographs, Sphereotypes, Melainotypes and patent cat 'ler Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

Ann R. Bray,

NO. 76 Federal Street,
— DEALER IN —
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

Plymouth Buck Gloves.

MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S
Gent's Furnishing Store,

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Tenements to Let.

ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $54 per year.

One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.

One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.

One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.

One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

MUNROE'S

(LATE REED'S)

SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON

RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at 10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " " at 5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at 3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " " at 5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.

Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.

EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.

Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.

Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.

Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed:

WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

E. F. BURNHAM,

SOLE AGENT FOR
SARGENT & CO.S'
MAGIC SOAP
For South Danvers & Salem.

OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.

Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.

Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,

Manufacturer and Dealer in
INNER SOLES,
AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.
2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

THOMAS PINNOCK,

SLATER,

SALEM, MASS.

☞ Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.

Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.
Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

CURRIER & MILLETT,

Dealers in

Furniture, Chairs,
MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c
259 & 261 ESSEX ST,
Salem, dec 14—ly

WM. C. HENDERSON,

MANUFACTURER OF
PLAIN AND FANCY
PAPER BOXES,
No. 235 ESSEX STREET,
Sign of "Nest of Boxes," jnly 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,

NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St. South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

Heckscher Coal!

$8.25 per Ton on Wharf.

A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,
Both Red and White Ash,
Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by
W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.
july 9

AARON T. LOWE,

DEALER IN
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,
76 BOSTON STREET, 76.
aug 6 SALEM. tf

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.

THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of
Patent Granular Fuel,
which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25 Bushels, delivered, ... 2 25
50 do do 4 00
100 do do 7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.

BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, june 18.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.

JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

R. C. MANNING & CO.

Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,
DEALERS IN
COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,
183 DERBY STREET,
SALEM, MASS.

N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.
oct17

NEW GOODS.

WE have received some very neat styles of French Prints, small figures, Spring styles, new goods.

Neat styles Patches, new patterns.

A few pieces Cotton and Wool M de Laines, new styles, suitable for the present and Spring wear—selling low for cash.

jy 14 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Dyspepsia Remedy.

DR. DARIUS HAM'S
AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!

This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.

IT STIMULATES, EXHILARATES, INVIGORATES, BUT WILL NOT INTOXICATE OR STUPEFY.

AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner.

It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.

Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the DELIRIUM TREMENS, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.

DOSE—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.
A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.
Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.

Persons who, from dissipating too much over night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings.

Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the careworn face.

During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.

All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the INVIGORATING SPIRIT in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.

General Depot, 48 Water Street, N. Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.
feb 29 1y

Are you Insured?

THE subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on

Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,

And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:

Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn.
Capital—$500,000.
Ames W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y

Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the

Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass.
Capital and Assets—$375,000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D, Medical Examiner.

WM. ARCHER, Jr.,

18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
ej b20-1

Important to the Afflicted.

DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a

PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.

By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of

GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.

Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.

Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating matrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.

Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.

Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French [illegible], warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.

May, 1862— 1y.

CAUTION

TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.

DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and a speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.

Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.

Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.

Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.

N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.

Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE

IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.

Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.

Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.

May, 1862— 1y

HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Madam Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustre China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PLANISHED Tin Plate Covers, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 34 Front.

NOTE PAPER.

A VERY full and complete stock, at a very small advance on old prices, at
jan 21 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

KEROSENE LAMPS.

FOR Shoemaker's use, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

JUST PUBLISHED.

GRAVER Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heaven, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantes, by A. B. Edwards; The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
dec 24 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Eastern Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains will leave the Eastern Railroad Station, Washington street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excepted):

For Lynn and Boston, 6¼, 7¼, 8¼, 9, 10, 11 a m., 1, 2¼ 4 40, 6¾, p. m.
Beverly, 8¼ am., 1, 3¼, 4¾, 5¾, 6¾, 7½ p m.
W. Beach, Man'r, Gloucester, and Rockport, 8¼ a m., 1, 4¾ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8¼ a m., 1, 3¼, 5¾ p m.
Amesbury, 8¼ a m., 3¼, 5¾ p m.
Portsmouth, 8¼ a m., 3¼, 5¾ p m.
Portland, 8¼ a m., 3¼ p m.

AND FOR SALEM, FROM

Portland, 8¾ a m., 2½ p m.
Portsmouth, 7½, *11¼ a m., *5 p m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9.40 a m., 5 20 p m.
Newburyport, 8, 10 a m., 12 m., 5.45 p m.
Ipswich, 8.25, 10.25 a m, 12.25, 6.10 p m.
Gloucester, 7.25, 10 10 a m., 3 55 p m.
Manchester, 7.40, 10.25 a m., 4.10 p m.
Beverly, 7.05, 8 05, 8 50, 10.50 a m., 12.50, 4½, 6.35.
Lynn, 8, 9, 11 a m., 12¾, 3, 4½, 5½, 6½, 7¼ †10
Boston, 7½, 8¾, 10¾ a m., 12¼, 2¾, 3, 5, 6, 6½, †9½ p m.

*Or on arrival from the East.
†On Wednesdays this train leaves Boston at 11½ p m. via Saugus Branch; and on Saturdays at 10¼ p m.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Marblehead for Salem, 7, 8, 8¾, 9¾ a m., 12¾, 1¾, 4.25, 6¼
Salem for Marblehead, 8¼, 9.25, 11¼ a m., 1, 3¾, 5¾, 6¾

SOUTH READING BRANCH.

Trains leave the South Reading Depot in Salem for Boston at 7, 9.40 a m., 2.25, 4.55 p m
Boston for Salem, 7 a m, 12 m., 2¾, 5 p m.
South Danvers for Salem, 7¾ a m., 12¾, 3¼, 5¾ p m.

ESSEX RAILROAD.

Leave Salem for Lawrence and way stations, 7¼, 11¼ a m., 4¾ p m.
Lawrence for Salem, 8¼ a m., 12.40 6¼ p m.
Danvers for Salem, 9.12 a m., 1.22, 6.57 p m.

J. PRESCOTT, Superintendent.
Boston, November 10, 1862.

Salem and Lowell Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains will run as follows:

Leave Lowell for Salem, 7.25 a m., and *2.00 p m.
Leave Salem for Lowell, *9 40 a m. and 5 00 p m.

Passengers are not allowed to carry baggage above $50 in value, and that personal, unless notice is given and an extra amount paid. Season tickets do not entitle the holder to take baggage.

*Freight Train with passenger car attached.

F. H. NOURSE, Local Superintendent.
November 7, 1862.

SPEED, COMFORT AND SAFETY!

FOR NEW YORK.

Norwich Steamboat Train.

The only Boats Landing at Jersey City.

CABIN Passage, $4.00; Deck Passage, $3.00. The new and elegant sixteen wheel cars of the steamboat express train leave the Boston & Worcester Railroad Station, Albany Street, at 5½ P. M., daily, connecting with the new steamers, (built expressly for this line,) CITY OF BOSTON, Capt. WILCOX, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; CITY OF NEW YORK, Capt. JEWETT, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, which (before proceeding to their Pier, No. 39 North River,) will touch at the wharf of the New Jersey Railroad at Jersey City, (Sundays excepted) thus enabling Southern Passengers to make sure connections with the First Southern Train, and at the same time avoid the great annoyance of the Ferry and Hack transportation in the crowded streets of New York. This insures ample time for Breakfast before the trains leave. Conductors D. F. WALLER and W. F. BARTON accompany the passengers through.

Tickets, Berths and Staterooms secured at the Railroad Station, and at the Office of the line, 79 Washington Street, Boston.

Through tickets to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington can be had at 79 Washington Street, Boston. WM. DICKEY, JR., Agent.
Boston, January 7, 1863.

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT

CHANGE OF TIME

— TO —

LYNN & BOSTON
BY OMNIBUS AND HORSE CAR

On and after THURSDAY, June 19th, 1862,

W. F. BURNHAM'S

Line of Omnibuses will leave the Lynn and Boston Omnibus Office, No. 6 Allen's Building, South Danvers, passing down Main street, through Washington street to Lynn, daily.

Leave South Danvers at 7.50 A. M., and 12.50 and 4.50 P. M.

Leave Lynn at 10 A. M., and 2 1-2 and 6 1-2 P. M.

Horse Cars leaving Scollay's Building, Court street, Boston, at 8.15 A. M., 1.15 and 5.15 P. M., will meet the Omnibus at Lynn, at the above named hours, to take passengers to South Danvers.

Sunday Arrangements.

Leave S. Danvers at 7.50 a.m., and 4.50 p.m.
Leave Lynn at 9.30 a.m., and 6.30 p.m.

Cars leave Scollay's Building, Boston, to meet the Omnibuses in Lynn for South Danvers, at 8.15 a.m. and 5.15 p m.

Through Tickets to and from Boston may be had of the Drivers and Conductors.

Tickets to Lynn, - - 15 cents.
Through to Boston, - 30 cents.

Passengers called for at reasonable charges i notice is given at the Office.

EXPRESS BUSINESS

Between South Danvers and Lynn promptly attended to, on reasonable terms.

EXTRA COACHES furnished at short notice, at moderate rates.

South Danvers, June 18, 1862.

South Danvers & Salem Line of Omnibuses.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 4, 1861, the South Danvers and Salem Line of Omnibuses will run as follows:

Leave the Hourly Office, South Danvers at 7, 8, 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2 a. m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8.

Leave No. 13 Central St., Salem, at 8. 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2, a.m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8, 9.

☞ Ladies' Room, at Needham & Hawkes's, No. 272 Essex Street, and at the Offices.

SINGLE FARE on the regular route, 6 cents, or Twenty Tickets for $1 00.

Passengers called for or left off the route, at a reasonable distance, the fare will be 13 cents.

EXTRA COACHES furnished, at all hours, at reasonable prices.

nov 27 HENRY M. MERRILL.

Abbott's South Danvers & Salem EXPRESS.

Leave South Danvers, - - - - - 7½ a m, 1 p m
Leave Salem, - - - - - 10 a m, 4 p m

Orders left at Teel & Moulton's, and principal stores on Main street, South Danvers; and at 7 Washington street, and at Reed's in the Market, Salem.

MARSHALL'S

DANVERS, SO. DANVERS & SALEM EXPRESS.

Leave DANVERS (daily) at 9 A. M.
" SALEM at 1½ P. M.

OFFICES:

In Danvers—At E B Waitt's and the Post Office.
Danversport—Richards' and A W Warren's Stores.
In So. Danvers—Francis Dane & Co's, and No 2 Main street.
In Salem—No 7 Washington street, 199 Essex st, and 17 Derby Square.

All business promptly and faithfully attended to.

☞ Our patrons are particularly requested to write their orders.

☞ Packages, left at the office, should be marked "Marshall's Express."

☞ Being connected with the RAILROAD we are enabled to forward Notes, Drafts and Bills for collection, and small packages, to all accessible point in the United States, at the usual rates.

P. G. MARSHALL.
dec1-6-1f

PINGREE'S JOB WAGON.

THE subscriber is still prepared to do all kinds of Job Work and Teaming, such as removing Furniture and Merchandize of any description about town, or to and from the neighboring towns.

Orders will be received at the Essex Railroad Station, and at S. Flint's store, on the Square.

Thankful for past favors, he would solicit a continuance of the same. W. H. PINGREE.
South Danvers, 1860.

PRINTIN

IN

EVERY VARI

Neatly and Promp

EXECUT

— At —

The Wizard C

SOUTH DANVERS SQ

SOUTH DANVERS, M

POSTER

(LARGE AND SMAL

WHICH CAN'T BE

— IN THIS —

VICINITY

BALL CIRCUS

TICKETS

— AND —

Orders of Danc

BUSINESS CAI

Address Cards,

Wedding Ca

Printed in the neatest man

And on the finest stock.

BILL-HEA

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 11, 1863. NO. 10.

Selected.

THE MAGIC RING.

n olden times there lived a most tiful, pious and amiable Frau von ensleben, who was respected and ved by her friends and the and mighty of the land, and ed up to and adored by her endents and the poor, who for y miles around felt the benefit of loving charities. This favorite of ne and nature, had, however, one of gall mixed in her cup of hap- ss, which had well nigh embitter- the whole of her precious gifts. was childless, and it was no small f to her beloved lord as to herself be denied an heir to their noble e and vast possessions. Frequent- when more than usually oppressed sad thoughts, she would wander h and seek in assuaging the sor- s of others a relief to her own ful reflections. On one occasion, n pensive mood, she was return- from one of those charitable visits he sick and poor of her village, way led through a long avenue of l-grown trees bordering the back he Elbe. Slowly she walked with cast on the ground, when her s were suddenly arrested by a lit- dwarf, who stood respectfully be- her. She was a little startled at , but seeing him looking smilingly her, she soon regained her com- ure, and in a kind manner asked what he wanted.

'Most gracious lady,' quoth the rf, 'all I wish is to give you bright- hopes, and to foretell that your re will be as happy as you deserve. thin a year from this time you will blessed with three sons at a birth. rillinge.) I pray you accept this ,' continued he, handing her a ge gold ring most curiously wrought; ve it divided into three equal parts, when your sons are of an age to derstand the trust, give one piece each of them to keep as a talisman inst evil. As long as it remains the family the Alvenslebens will sper.'

With these words the kind little n disappeared; but his prophesy s realized, and his injunctions were efully obeyed. The three sons ed to form the source of three dis- ct lines of the Alvensleben family, d are distinguished by the names of Black, the White and the Red e.

Years—nay, centuries—rolled by, three pieces of the ring were care- ly preserved by the descendants of three brothers. The age of super- tion had now passed away. Fred- c the Great was mighty and scoffed all things; Voltaire, his friend and cher, sneered at every species of lief, and the couriers thought it be- ming to imitate their master and his vorite.

A gay party was seated on the bal- ny of the castle at Randau, which erhangs the muddy-colored, shal- w, and yet sometimes treacherous ver, Elbe. Amongst the company ere several gay young officers of the yal hussars, then stationed at Mag- nburg, who had ridden over to pay eir devours to the fair lady of the anor, tke Frau von Alvensleben, of e Red line, a famous beauty of Fred- ic's court. Although the mother of ree fine boys, her beauty was at its nith, and her sharp, ready wit and tirical, skeptical turn of mind had on for her as many admirers as her re personal attractions.

'I never believe in anything that I o not see or feel,' said the lady with bright laugh, continuing in an ani- ated conversation about second sight nd ghost-seers; 'nor do I care just ow to believe in anything but that ese strawberries are delicious,' added e, holding up a ruddy berry; 'that e air is pure and balmy, my com- anions most agreeable, and life alto- ether very charming and enjoyable.'

'Would that life were made up of uch moments,' sighed her nearest eighbor, with an ardent glance; 'but, alas! we must bend to so many influences beyond our control.'

'Not a whit,' retorted the lively lady, 'Jeder ist seines Gluckes Schmied' (every one forgets his own happiness) saith the proverb.

'How can you say that, fairest of chatelaines, when you know the happiness of each of us is dependant on your good will?' responded one of the gallants.

'And,' added the Major von Eulenberg, a somewhat more sedate admirer, 'you yourself, madame, must not forget that you are living under the spell of the famous Alvensleben ring; if you were to lose it, who knows what might happen?'

'Alterschurtz von Thorheit nicht,' (age is no preservative against folly.) "I see,' answered the beauty, pertly tossing her head. "Do you think I am such an idiot as really to believe in this silly story of the ring? I thought my sentiments were better known, and to prove to you how free from superstition I am' * * * * she ran into the room through the open folding doors, hastily unlocked a casket with a small golden key that hung from her neck chain, and swiftly returning, made a comical low courtesy to the circle of gentlemen, and, with a graceful movement, flung what she had in her hand down into the rushing river at her feet. 'There,' she cried, exultantly, 'there goes the token of old superstition, which has too long been treasured in our family; there goes the famous ring, and may the Alvenslebens evermore depend upon themselves for their good luck and prosperity.'

The act was greeted with bravos, and warm expressions of admiration at the strength of mind she had exhibited, by the young officers whose only wish was to flatter and please the star of the day; yet some in their hearts disapproved, others felt as if a blank had fallen on their spirits, and though outwardly merry, the party separated with far less jovial feelings than they had ever before experienced within the walls of the Randau.

Six weeks afterwards, this laughing, scoffing beauty was bent low in sadness and sorrow. She had in that short period lost her husband and her three sons, all of whom were suddenly carried off by virulent fever. It is not known whether she connected this sad bereavement with her impudent act, but probably her haughty skepticism received a shock, for she renounced the world, and ever after led a life of sorrow and seclusion. Thus ended the Red line of the Alvenslebens.

The members of the Black line, shocked by this sad occurrence, and fearful lest some accident might cause the loss of so small an object as the third part of a ring, had it melted among other gold and moulded into a goblet or 'Pokel,' which the sole survivors of that line still possess. Their star, however, has fallen, and from the prosperous and numerous family which then flourished, and was in possession of nearly half the province of Magdeburg, but two descendants in middling circumstances now exist. The last member of importance of that line was the highly esteemed minister of state under Frederick Wilhelm III., Count Albert Alvensleben, who died at so late a period as 1858.

The members of the White line have been the wisest of the three; they still carefully preserve among their family archives in their Castle of Erxleben, near Magdeburg, their precious share of the little dwarf's present. This family is among the most highly esteemed and beloved of all the old noblesse of Prussia; highly favored and truly loved by their monarch, many of them still hold important offices in the army and state, and the White line still counts thirty or forty members.

☞ Modesty is generally the companion of virtue, innocence, and real abilities.

ANTIQUARIAN DISCOVERY.

An account of some explorations made in England some time since, says:

A few weeks ago, in clearing out the ruins of an old chapel at Nuneham Regis in Warwickshire, which had been pulled down (all but the belfry tower) about forty years since, we thought it necessary to trench the whole space, that we might more certainly mark out the boundaries of the building, as we wished to restore it in some measure to its former state; it had been used as a stackyard, and a depository of rubbish by the tenants of the farm on which it was, ever since its dilapidation. We began to trench at the west end, and came on a great many bones and skeletons, from which the coffins had crumbled away, till, finding the earth had been moved, we went deeper, and discovered a leaden coffin quite perfect, but without date or inscription of any kind; there had been an outer wooden coffin, which was decayed, but quantities of the black rotten wood were all round it. We cut the lead and folded the top so as not to destroy it; beneath was a wooden coffin in good preservation, and also without any inscription. As soon as the leaden top was rolled back, a most overpowering aromatic smell diffused itself all over the place; we then unfastened the inner coffin, and found the body of a man embalmed with great care, and heaps of rosemary and aromatic leaves piled over him. On examining the body more closely, we found it had been beheaded; the head was separately wrapped up in linen, and the linen shirt that covered the body was drawn quite over the neck where the head had been cut off; the head was laid straight with the body, and where the joining of the neck and head should have been, it was tied with a broad black ribbon. His hands were crossed on his breast, the wrists were tied with black ribbon, and the thumbs were tied together with black ribbon. He had a peaked beard, and a quantity of long brown hair curled and clotted with blood round his neck; the only mark on anything about him was on the linen on his chest, just above where his hands were crossed; on it were the letters T. B. worked in black silk. On trenching towards the chancel we came on four leaden coffins laid side by side, with inscriptions on each; one contained the body of Francis, Earl of Chichester and Lord Dunsmure, 1653; the next the body of Audrey, Countess of Chichester, 1653; another the body of Lady Auprey Leigh, their daughter, 1640; and the fourth the body of Sir John Anderson, son of Lady Chichester, by her first husband. We opened the coffin of Lady Audrey Leigh, and found her perfectly embalmed and in entire preservation, her flesh quite plump, as if she were alive, her face very beautiful, her hands exceedingly small and not wasted; she was dressed in fine linen, trimmed all over with old point lace, and two rows of lace were laid flat across her forehead. She looked exactly as if she were lying asleep, and seemed not more than sixteen or seventeen years old; her beauty was very great; even her eyelashes and eyebrows were quite perfect, and her eyes were closed; no part of her face or figure were at all fallen in. We also opened Lady Chichester's coffin, but with her the embalming had apparently failed; she was a skeleton, though the coffin was half full of aromatic leaves; her hair, however, was as fresh as if she lived; it was long, thick, and as soft and glossy as that of a child, and of a perfect auburn color. In trenching on one side of where the altar had been, we found another leaden coffin with an inscription. It contained the body of a Dame Marie Browne, daughter of one of the Leighs, and of Lady Marie, daughter of Lord Chancellor Brackley. This body was also quite perfect, and embalmed principally with a very small coffee-colored seed, with which the coffin was nearly filled, and it also had such a powerful perfume that it filled the whole place. The linen, ribbon, &., were quite strong and good in all these instances, and remained so after exposure to the air; we kept a piece out of each coffin, and had it washed without its being at all destroyed. Young Lady Audrey had earrings in her ears, black enamelled serpents. The perfume of the herbs and gums used in embalming them was so sickening, that we were all ill after inhaling it, and most of the men employed in digging up the coffins were ill also. The chapel is on the estate of Lord John Scott, who inherited it from his paternal grandmother, the Duchess of Buccleuch, daughter of the Duke of Montaga, into whose family Nuneham Regis and other possessions in Warwickshire came by the marriage of his grandfather with the daughter of Lord Dunsmure, Earl of Chichester.

FRENCH SYSTEM OF DRAFTING.

Under French Law, every birth in the empire must be registered within forty-eight hours, under pain of severe penalties for any attempted violation of the code. France is divided into 40,000 communes, each of which has a mayor, holding appointment from the Department of the Interior at Paris—which, by the way, is in all respects the most important branch of the French Government. It is in the presence of the mayor that births are declared and formally placed upon record, for future reference and use.—The law requires that the child itself be brought before the civic functionary, the names of the infant given, the names and condition of both parents, when known, given, also the sex of the child declared, and all the facts certified to by two credible witnesses, whose names, residences and occupations are also carefully recorded.

It will be seen at a glance that the information thus obtained is of immense utility to the Government, in conducting the operations of the conscription, whose mechanism may be described in a very few words:—The Government calls for a contingent, let us suppose, of 100,000 recruits for 1862. The Legislative Body authorizes the levy to be made. Each department of the empire, of which there are now eighty-nine, is required to furnish a quota, based upon the amount of its population. The mayor holds lists of all individuals born in their respective communes, and notifications were sent to every male child born in 1842 (the drafting age being twenty years) that he is to present himself on such a day, at the mairie, to take part in the drawing.

This notification is a mere formality, as every young man knows when he will be required to come forward, and it frequently happens that youthful Frenchmen, residing abroad, return to their native land at this period, for the special purpose of fulfilling a duty, which if they chose, might readily be avoided, by simply remaining out of France.

To illustrate the mode in which the drawing takes place, we will suppose that a particular commune is required to furnish one hundred conscripts—the total number of elegible young men being, say five hundred. Five hundred bits of paper are placed in an urn of which four hundred are blanks and the remainder marked from one to one hundred, oblige their holders to "fall in." The four hundred who have escaped are now exempt from military service, unless some extraordinary event—such as an invasion of France—should demand the calling out the entire arms bearing population.

The mode of raising recruits as has been seen, is simple enough—all being afforded a fair chance. As regards exemptions, the French system is scarcely less simple. In the first place the conscripts undergo a rigid medical examination, and if any are found laboring under physical disability they are at once discharged. Next in order are the exemptions of soutiens de famille, or individuals with families dependent on them. Thus, the only son of a widowed mother is exempted. So also the only brother of an orphan sister. Brothers of a soldier still serving in the army are exempted until the latter's term shall expire, only one of a family being drawn at one time. A wife cannot exempt her husband, even if there be children, as the law holds that young men ought not to marry until they have fulfilled their military obligations to the State.

A last class of exemptions has a pecuniary feature. In former years—that is to say, up to 1856—no conscript not exempt by physical debility, or by the other causes above enumerated, could escape service, except by securing a substitute. This had given rise to a degrading species of trade or speculation, in which large numbers of man-sellers and buyers were engaged. But, under the system referred to, the conscript who bought a substitute was responsible for his substitute, and if he deserted or died, before the expiration of the seven years' term, was liable to be forced back into the ranks. This system was abolished in 1856, by order of the Emperor, and the Government itself accepts pecuniary indemnity for the withdrawal of a conscript, and practically pays for his substitute by offering an ample bounty to volunteers. It is arranged that the sum received and paid by the Government shall vary according to the military exigencies of the country, but the present basis is as follows:—A conscript is exempted for 2400 francs ($480,) and the government pays a bounty to volunteers amounting to 2200 francs ($440,) making a profit of 200 francs by the exchange.

SMART PARENTS HAVE DULL CHILDREN.

The truth of this is an almost universal rule and can be substantiated in every community. We should naturally expect the contrary. Striking characteristics are, in part at last, transmitted from parents to children. Why then do so few sons and daughters of intelligent, active and successful parents develop equal energy and achieve equal success?

Probably the following suggestions explain the difficulty and indicate a remedy. With rare exceptions, a man's success depends less upon his natural abilities and opportunities, than upon self-reliance, and consequent exertion of his powers. These traits are mainly developed in youth. Take an illustration.

We have a friend, an equal partner in a firm doing business in one of the large marble blocks in this city. His natural intellect is not above average. Left an orphan at the age of four years he fell into the hands of an uncle who was strict to austerity in his moral rule, but otherwise careless, and the boy was left mainly to shift for himself. To obtain pocket money, and much of his clothing, he peddled apples, gingerbread, etc., at shows, general trainings, and similar gatherings, and also made and sold various mechanical articles. The strict discipline of his uncle kept him out of vice, but the necessity of depending upon his own exertions, and the early practice of laying out his own plans and enjoying their results, developed ingenuity, foresight, and self-reliance. At manhood he came to New York and entered a store as porter. His strict moral habits and his developed abilities were soon noted, and he was made clerk in the packing department. From this he was promoted to the selling, and then to the purchasing department, and upon the death of one of the partners, was gladly taken in as a member of the firm. His business abilities, with his small savings, were considered a full equivalent to the greater money capital invested by the other partners.

Thus it has been in numberless instances. The children of the poor, thrown upon their own resources, have risen to competence and to wealth. Their disadvantages have educated their abilities. But what has this to do with the subject of the present article? A good deal. Those parents who are "smart" themselves, generally do most of the work themselves, or at least take the whole direction of it. That active mother finds it easier to do her housework, than leave it to her daughter. The daughter knows that mother will look after it, and exercises no care or oversight. The father looks after everything himself. The son is a mere machine worked by the father, and thus he grows up, incapable of directing his own powers. Though naturally sharp, his faculties are dulled by inaction, and inherited talents are of little avail.

Our opinion is, that while parents should abate nothing of strictness of discipline in general matters, they should throw their children more upon their own resources. Let the son have his plot of ground, his animals, his own personal property, entirely under his own direction, for the care of which he shall be wholly responsible, and upon the proper management of which shall depend somewhat of his own pleasure and profit. Let the daughter at an early age have the oversight of certain departments of household labor, particularly those which relate to her own comfort. Let them thus grow up habituated to the exercise of their own thinking and planning powers, and their natural abilities will develop and give them a measure of success in adult years, which will do credit to their inherited talents. — American Agriculturist.

LETTER FROM CAPTAIN ROUND.

CAMP ROGERS, Feb. 14, 1863.

"I feel sure that the final success of our cause is endangered far more now from changes of sentiment in the Northern States themselves than from any reverses in the field. If the only question at issue was concerning the courage and perseverance of our armies and their final success, the danger to our institutions would have ceased months ago. Never was there a time from the moment the first gun was fired at fort Sumter, when our success in this respect was as certain as it is to-day. Several months ago, the London Daily News predicted the success of the North because, as it said, the resources of the South are nearly exhausted, and those of the North are substantially untouched. The truth of this remark is more and more evident daily. During our recent expeditions to Trenton and Goldsboro', we did not find a single able-bodied man except in the ranks of our enemies, and as we questioned the women, children, and infirm men that were left behind, concerning the whereabouts of their relatives and friends, without a solitary exception the final result was 'in the army.' So universal has been the operation of the rebel conscription. Contrast this with our northern cities and villages and country towns, still crowded with able-bodied young men, and it requires no very deep statesmanship to see that only a steadiness of purpose is required on the part of the North to make ultimate success as sure as the going down of the sun; for though the rebels should be successful in every general engagement, which is conceding far more than can reasonably be expected, their strength will speedily be wasted, and they have no population at home to supply their losses in the field.

Why is it, then, that at this very moment, when of all others the hopes of the patriot should be the brightest, the journals from the North talk so much of gloom, doubt and final separation? Why is it that we see so many signs of irresolution and fear, threatening a shameful and cowardly compromise at the very time when only a few more onslaughts are needed to secure a complete and final success? God forbid that the American people should at this hour so far dishonor themselves, falsify the promise of their ancestors, and prove recreant to their duty to the God who gave them their national existence and blessings, as a precious trust to be preserved and transmitted to posterity!—Zion's Herald."

A BRAVE BOY.

When I was a boy, I lived among the Green Mountains of Vermont; in Winter making snow forts and sliding down the street hills, and in Summer and Autumn wandering over the mountains looking after the beautiful trout from the brooks; but my brother in Wisconsin wrote to me to come to him and I went. Our house was on what was then called "Baxters Prairie." The prairie was covered with flowers and the many clear lakes around abounded in fish and ducks; but our principal food was hoe cake and salt pork.

One of our neighbors had no meat for a long time, and getting out of powder they had no game; so one day they sent up their oldest son, a boy about ten years old, for a piece of pork. As he was carrying it homewards, and going through a piece of woods by "Silver Lake," he heard the rustling of the leaves in a thicket by the road side. He stopped and listened—all was still. Again he pushed forward, again the leaves rustled behind him and he thought he heard a stealthy step. Again he stopped; everything was still except the gentle dash of the waves upon the pebbly beach, and the rapid beating of his own heart.—He dreaded to go forward, and he dared not stay, for he saw night was approaching, when the woods always echoed with the howl of the hungry wolf, and the savage bear and stealthy catamounts came out from their dens. So picking up a club, he again started homeward. Again the stealthy step behind him, nearer and nearer, until he saw a gaunt and savage wolf creeping after him and he was hurried on still clinging to his meat, the wolf was coming nearer and nearer, and might at any moment spring upon him.

Still the boy, though he trembled in every limb, did not lose his presence of mind. He remembered having heard his father say that if any one faced a wild animal and looked it square in the eye, it would not dare to attack him. He turned around and faced the hungry wolf, and commenced walking backwards towards home, still a long mile and a half away. As the woods grew darker the wolf came nearer, showing his white teeth, with the hair bristling on his back. The courageous boy knew that if he gave up his piece of pork he was safe, and could run home unmolested, but he knew there were hungry ones at home awaiting his return. As the wolf came near, he hit him square upon the head with a stone, when with an angry "yelp," the wolf sprang into the thicket and set up a long and dismal howl. The boy listened to hear if there were answering howls, and hearing none, he took courage; but soon the savage beast, maddened by hunger, came at him again. With his club he gave him a well directed blow between the eyes, which sent him howling back again into the thicket. Again and again was the contest renewed; many times did the savage, yet cowardly animal make a spring at the lad, and many times did the brave boy beat him off, until at last he came near the log cabin of his parents, when the disappointed wolf, with a long and wailing howl, dashed away into the woods. Trembling with excitement, and wet with perspiration, the boy dropped the meat on the floor, crying, "Mother, I've got it," and fell exhausted at his mother's feet.—American Messenger.

THE GREAT MYSTERY.—The body is to die; so much is certain. What lies beyond? No one who passes the charmed boundary comes back to tell. The imagination visits the realms of shadows—sent out from the window in the soul over life's restless waters,

Continued on fourth page.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 11, 1863.

To Correspondents.—Poetry by E. M. next week.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENCE.

As this is the season for the annual examination of our schools, it is a favorable time to consider whether some change may not be made in the manner of their superintendence. We have long been of the opinion that the best, because the most efficient mode, is by the appointment of a Superintendent of Schools who shall take the main charge of visiting and superintending under the direction of the general committee. The Superintendent may be one of the Board, perhaps its chairman, and the other members may also visit the schools and learn their condition. The cost of this mode of superintendence may not be more than the present plan. Perhaps a hint as to the proper course may be obtained from the mode adopted in this town in the choice and the duties of the Board of Overseers of the Poor. Here efficiency is gained by having the chairman do the most of the labor, and consequently receive the larger compensation. This subject is worthy of the attention of our citizens, and we think they must see that not only efficiency, but uniformity may be best gained by placing the management under one responsible head who will know the situation of all the schools, which cannot be the case under our present system of division of labor.

We may revert to this subject in a future number.

THE HORSE RAILROAD.

It will be seen by the record of the proceedings in Town Meeting, on Monday, that important votes were passed in relation to the manner of constructing the Salem and South Danvers Horse R. R. Not a word is there to be found in the Warrant touching the subject, and it is a wonder how the business got there. Nobody thought of it, nobody expected anything of the kind, and the town might just as well have instructed the Selectmen to oppose the construction of omnibusses on runners, so far as the power of the meeting went, as to pass these votes on a subject not brought regularly before the town. We have, of course, too much confidence in the intelligence and good sense of our new Board of Selectmen to suppose for a moment that they will take any notice of such instructions, but it is manifestly wrong to permit such action on purely ex parte statements.

We make no remarks in relation to the merits of this question. It is enough that the town is seemingly putting itself into the ridiculous position of giving advice to the Legislature as a town, when in fact it is in no more in the position to do so than the same number of persons assembled at a caucus or a fire-club meeting.

Ringing Bells.—It will be seen in our report of the doings of the Town Meeting that the town voted that the bells be rung this year in the usual manner. We hope they will be. We also hope they will be rung at the proper time, but the vote is silent about that. We have now the comforting assurance, at least, that the bells will not be rung in an unusual manner, even if they are rung out of time. We think a committee should have been appointed to see that Mr. Spencer pulls the bell-rope exactly as he did last year.

The Constitution.—Mr. Merrill, the autocrat of the omnibusses, has come out with his splendid new sleigh called the Constitution. It is one of the finest outfits ever seen in our streets, and it is gratifying to see how earnest the people are to support the Constitution as well as the Laws. It is the especial favorite of the ladies, who are all loyal to the Constitution.

From the Army of the Potomac.—We present, on our first page, an extract from a letter of Capt. Round which we find in the Zion's Herald, of which he was formerly associate editor. It expresses excellent sentiments, and the words of the gallant captain are well worthy of consideration at the present time.

Latest Dates from Africa.—Printers are always after the latest dates from any part of the world, and we have been favored with a quantity from the Fruit Store of Mr. E. S. Flint, who has a great variety of domestic fruits as well as those from the tropical regions, all of which he sells at the lowest prices, notwithstanding they are of the best quality.

Sudden Death.—On Friday noon, as Mr. Theodore Phelps, of this town, aged 67 years, was riding near the corner of Mill and Creek streets, in Salem, he was observed to fall from his wagon and soon afterward expired. Heart disease was the supposed cause.

TOWN MEETING.

The annual Town Meeting, held on Monday last, was a very quiet affair.—The attendance in the forenoon was limited, owing no doubt to the state of the sidewalks and roads. We give below a synopsis of the doings, commencing with the officers balloted for; and it will be seen that all those who were so fortunate as to secure a place on the ticket nominated at the "Citizens Caucus" on Thursday evening, were almost unanimously elevated to the high and lucrative positions they now have the honor to fill. A new feature in this election was the balloting for "Fence Viewers," who have heretofore been chosen by open nomination. The gentlemen chosen to fill these important positions are of keen sight and well versed in mathematics (as they should be). The meeting showed their good sense by electing them almost unanimously:

Moderator.

Amos Merrill,	29

Town Clerk.

Nathan H. Poor,	41

Selectmen and Assessors.

Joseph Poor,	152
Alpheus W. Bancroft,	114
Dana Woodbury,	103
John Reith,	44
Amos Osborne 2d,	55
Joshua Buxton jr,	2
Henry Bushby jr,	1
Wingate Merrill,	1
Edward D. Trask,	1

And Messrs. Poor, Woodbury and Bancroft are elected.

Treasurer.

Francis Baker,	145
Stephen Upton,	1
George A. Upton,	1

Collector.

William Wolcott,	158

Overseers of the Poor.

Wingate Merrill,	148
James P. King,	146
Mayhew S. Clark,	145

And Messrs. Merrill, King and Clark are elected.

Trustees of Peabody Institute.

Jonathan King,	151
Benjamin S. Wheeler,	110
Robert S. Daniels,	41
William Bushby jr,	1

And Messrs. King and Wheeler are elected.

Fence Viewers.

Augustus H. Sanger,	140
Abraham C. Osborn,	134
John G. Walcott,	141
William H. Little,	140
Benjamin Huntington,	141
Samuel Swett,	7
William H. Baldwin,	1

And the first five are elected.

School Committee.

Daniel C. Perkins,	149
Alfred M'Kenzie,	114
C. Edwin Barrows,	150
S. Quiner White,	1
J. A. Peasley,	1
Philip Bushby,	1
Richard Kimball,	1

And all are elected with the exception of White, Peasley, Bushby and Kimball.

Constables.

Moses A. Shackley,	147
D. S. Littlefield,	148
Stephen F. Reed,	148
D. N. Stoddard,	148
Charles Barker,	148
Stephen Upton,	139
James B. Newhall,	148
Samuel Trask,	146
Franklin Tyler,	148
John S. Torr,	144
William H. Pingree,	148
Bowman Viles,	149
Samuel Swett,	121
Seth R. Hill,	25
J. W. Putnam,	2
Mosely Dwight,	1

And all are elected with the exception of Messrs. Hill, Putnam and Dwight.

Mayhew S. Clark, Aaron F. Clark, Benjamin M. Hills, James B. Foster, were chosen Surveyors of Lumber.

Isaac B. Cowdrey, Horatio Bodge, Charles Barker, Andrew Curtis, Edmund Haywood, Bowman Viles, H. D. Twiss, Alfred Proctor, James B. Newhall, John Bagley, John Needham, were chosen Field Drivers.

John Bagley, Benjamin Taylor, John Needham, were chosen Pound Keepers.

Dr. D. C. Perkins, Dr. Geo. Osborne, Alerson Galeucia, Joseph Poor, Benj. Huntington, Moses A. Shackley, were elected a Board of Health.

Art. 22 in the warrant, "To see if the town will pass By-Laws in relation to Truancy," etc., was referred to a committee to report at adjourned meeting.

Arts. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 19, 20, in the warrant, were referred to a Committee on Finance, consisting of Eben S. Poor, Jonathan King, Stephen Blaney, Miles O. Stanley, Francis Baker.

Voted, That the bells be rung in the usual manner the ensuing year.

Voted, That the Prudential School Committees be authorized to select and contract with teachers.

Art. 23, "To see if the town will provide a suitable Burial Ground, as required by the General Statutes of the Commonwealth," was referred to a commit'e.

Art. 24, "To hear and act on the report of the committee to whom was recommitted at the last Annual Meeting the subject matter relative to the drainage of Lowell Street," was referred to a special committee.

The committee with the subject matter of Art. 25, relative to the drainage of Central St, reported that it was inexpedient, and the meeting acquiesced.

Art, 26, "To see if the town will appropriate money for the purpose of constructing a sidewalk on Tremont Street," etc., was referred to a committee.

Art. 27, "To see if the town will authorize their Collector to use all means of collecting taxes, which a Town Treasurer, when appointed Collector, may use, agreeable to Chap. 18. Sec. 73 of the Revised Statutes," was referred to a committee.

Art. 28, "To see if the town will reimburse to Philip Marsh and others, the amount received from them as fines, on account of violations of the Dog Law," was, on motion of John W. Proctor, indefinitely postponed.

The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of the people of South Danvers, in town meeting assembled, that the Legislature ought to require all Horse Railroad Corporations to construct their tracks upon a gauge which shall be uniform throughout the Commonwealth.

Another resolution was also adopted:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of the people of South Danvers, in town meeting assembled, that the Salem and South Danvers Horse Railroad Corporation ought to construct their track upon the usual gauge.

It was then unanimously

Voted, That the Selectmen be instructed to oppose the construction of any Horse Railroad in this town, other than upon the usual gauge.

Voted, To adjourn till 4th Monday in March.

First Class Concert.—We understand that Mr. Fenollosa, with his admirable choir of musicians, in connection with a Quartette of our own singers, have consented to give a Grand Concert at Peabody Institute in behalf of the Ladies' Soldiers' Aid Society.

This grand entertainment will come off next Wednesday evening, the 18th inst. In the mean time a committee of ladies will be authorized to dispose of the tickets to such individuals and families as would like to avail themselves of this rare opportunity to have a rational evening's entertainment and give pecuniary aid to a most deserving object.

☞ In our State Senate, on Friday last, the bill in addition to an act to incorporate the Salem and South Danvers Railroad Company was taken from the table and considered. A motion to strike out the amendment of the House requiring the gauge to be uniform in width with other horse railroads was debated at length, the narrowness of certain streets through which it passes being the argument in favor of the gauge, as reported by the Committee. The bill was laid on the table for further consideration.

☞ Commander John P. Winchester, late of the steamer Monticello, has been home on a short furlough, and returned on last week to take command of the side wheel steamer Sumter. She is a fine vessel, of the size and build of the Monticello, and is to take a position in the blockading squadron. Our best wishes go with him for the capture of rich prizes and sustaining the honor of the old Flag.

Lyceum and Library Committee of the Peabody Institute, elected March 9th, 1863:—Robert S. Daniels, Geo. A. Osborne, Fitch Poole, Wm. N. Osgood, Francis Baker, Alfred M'Kenzie, John O. Poor, Thomas E. Proctor, Amos Merrill, Thomas M. Stimpson, Samuel P. Fowler, Nathaniel Hills, Ira P. Pope, George P. Tapley, Rev. J. W. Putnam, Rev. J. C. Fletcher.

The Massachusetts 14th.—We have been informed by a friend just returned from a short visit to this regiment, that our South Danvers boys are in excellent health and spirits and are all looking finely. They were much gratified to see a familiar face from home and send heaps of love and good will to all their non-combatant friends at home.

☞ Adjutant Horace Poole, who is now on the staff of Gen. Fitz Henry Warren, the latter being now the President of a General Court Martial, at St. Louis, has been here a few days on a short visit to his relatives and friends. The army of southern Missouri is expecting orders to depart soon for Vicksburg.

☞ Capt. Nelson, who has past a few days with his friends here, was entertained by the members of the Everett Club, on Friday evening. He returned to his command on Monday.

☞ The present Congress has passed appropriation bills to the amount of one thousand millions.

ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

Newbern, N. C., Feb. 27th, 1863.

Mr. Editor,—I have had it in mind for some time to write you a letter from this place, but so strong have been the claims of private friendship, and so numerous my correspondents, that I have hardly found time to write you an extended letter, but I have determined to embrace the present opportunity afforded by a rainy day, which renders out-door exercises impossible. As you are well aware, the Fifth Regiment occupies its original camping ground on the northwest side of the city, which, however, has been much improved since our arrival here by the successful efforts of the men and officers to render themselves as comfortable as possible. The tents have all been stockaded, by which means their available room has been doubled, although the canvas covers no greater area than before. The tents are elevated about four feet upon stakes driven into the ground, while around the circular edge of the tent split boards are closely set, and the outside of these covered with broad pieces of bark in order to effectually close the cracks and crevices which would admit the wind and render the room within uncomfortable. Within the tents the men have contrived various arrangements which contribute greatly to their health and comfort. The site of the camp itself is the most picturesque in the vicinity, being slightly elevated above the water which everywhere surrounds it, rendering it a complete island, approachable by only one road which leads to the city over a rude bridge recently constructed by men detailed from the regiment. An embankment extending nearly half round the camp has been recently thrown up pierced by numerous embrasures where cannon are to be mounted to defend us in case of an attack. On the outside of the embankment is a deep trench, now nearly filled with water by the recent rains. The water, which is easily accessible on every side, furnishes abundant bathing facilities, the utility and benefit of which cannot be overestimated. The health of the regiment is uncommonly good, and its members have escaped almost entirely the endemic diseases which have sorely afflicted some of the other Massachusetts regiments. Being so near the city, we enjoy, on the Sabbath, as good preaching as New England can furnish, the Rev. H. P. James preaching every Sunday forenoon, and A. L. Stone in the afternoon, in one of the churches of the city. The latter also holds an evening meeting twice a week in the vestry. I have attended, several Sabbaths, and have been pleased with the neat attire, decorous deportment, and intelligent countenances of the soldier audience which crowds the church. No clergyman in the most intelligent community ever had a more appreciative and inspiring audience than that which, in the soldier's uniform, assembles every Sabbath to hear the chaplain preach. No one who sees them can doubt that the flower of America's youth is in her army.

Our regiment has remained unbroken since we come out, (except that Company A was for a short time at Washington, N. C.,) until last week, when two companies, G and D, were, in obedience to an order from the commanding general, detached from the regiment and sent, the one to Hatteras, the other to Elizabeth city, where they will probably remain until their term of service expires. Of course the officers and men of these companies separated from the rest of the regiment with regret, and those who remained regretted their departure no less; but a military order must be obeyed, private inclinations and preferences to the contrary notwithstanding. The order came Saturday afternoon, and the next morning, at half past eight, they left the camp for the boat which was to convey them to their destination, while the rest of the regiment assembled on the parade ground and cheered them as they left us.

Elizabeth City is an old town situated very near the point where the first permanent settlement in North Carolina was made, about the year 1660, by emigrants from Virginia. The exact place of the settlement was probably Durant's Neck, on the north side of Albemarle Sound, between Perquiuous and Little Rivers, since the oldest title of land in North Carolina is a conveyance for that neck of land from the king or chief of the Yeopim Indians to Geo. Durant, dated 1662. The city was taken, you will recollect, by Burnside soon after the capture of Roanoke Island. The fort at Hatteras Inlet, where Company G has gone, was taken by the fleet a little more than a year ago. Company C was at first ordered to go with Company D, but the order was subsequently countermanded.

Last Wednesday Gen. Foster reviewed all the available troops under his command, to the number of at least ten thousand. The display was magnificent as the column of companies, almost a mile in length, marched in review before the general, their polished guns and brasses glistening in the sun, while the grand strains of martial music seemed to quicken the step and lighten the heart of every soldier in the field. The general took his position on a hill, slightly elevated above the surrounding plain from which he could behold the entire army at once. He was surrounded by his staff and a large concourse of people, who had flocked from the neighboring city to witness the grand pageant, and as each company passed he returned the officers' salute by touching his hat. The review terminated about two o'clock, P. M., when the regiments returned to their respective encampments.

To the thoughtful mind there is nothing at Newbern more interesting than its colored population, which has gathered here from all parts of the State from which they could escape. I have lost no opportunity of observing and studying their character since I have been here. I have improved every opportunity to converse with them, and have been much surprised at their shrewdness and especially at their knowledge of human nature, which they have probably studied more carefully than any thing else. I find that they fully understand their situation and condition, and have, in most cases, reflected long and deeply upon their hard lot, and have not been such a happy and contented race as their masters would have us believe. They evince the greatest desire to learn to read, and exhibit the deepest gratitude to those who are willing to teach them. All with whom I have conversed declare that they have learned more since they acquired their liberty than they ever knew before. I visited, yesterday, a colored school of sixty scholars, most of them formerly slaves, of various ages, from eight to twenty years. The school is taught by a white man, a private in the Third New York Artillery, detached from his regiment and employed by the Rev. Mr. Mears, who has the general superintendence of the colored people in Newbern. The exercises of the day were begun by singing Longfellow's Psalm of Life, the school rising and every one participating. The scholars were all neatly dressed, cleanliness being particularly insisted upon by the teacher. I heard three classes read, and then he called out a class in arithmetic. A boy and girl, about fourteen years old, both of them jet black, were sent to the board and performed, with readiness and accuracy, examples in notation, numeration, addition, subtraction and short division. These scholars had been in school but six weeks and a half, and when they first entered it, they could not make a figure, though they had managed to learn to read a little. The teacher informed me that his scholars learn faster, as a general thing, than the white children at the north, making up in interest and earnestness what they lack in quickness, and he also informed me that he found no difference in capacity between the darkest and palest of his colored flock. These facts show that the race is capable of improvement and elevation. Just give them the opportunity and they will show themselves worthy of all the attention and labor bestowed upon them. The future of the race none can foresee or confidently predict, but I believe that the star of hope and liberty has risen upon them, which will never, never set. But my letter is exceeding the limits, perhaps, which you can spare for it in your paper, and I will close. I shall endeavor to write you again, as soon as convenient. T.

Popping Corn.—We have received a quantity of pop-corn from Mr. Caleb Osborn, who has raised, the past season, seventy-two bushels of this kind of grain. The little kernels, on being put over the fire, suddenly burst out into full bloom, increasing wonderfully in bulk. What a little mountain of whiteness Mr. Osborn's whole crop would make! Popping corn is peculiarly a fire-side institution and just the thing for refreshment with the lads and lasses. It is also very suggestive of "popping the question."

☞ If there are any returned soldiers in this vicinity from the Army of the Potomac, who have not received an honorable discharge or are not at home on a regular furlough, we advise them to pack their knapsacks, and hurry back to the Rappahannock. Gen. Hooker is about to issue an order giving them just twenty days to save themselves from the fate to which he has made up his mind to subject deserters.

Gen. Wool.—This veteran passed through Salem the week before last and was enthusiastically received, but did not examine the fortifications in the harbor. These fortifications are, however, often visited by our own citizens in the summer season and will not be neglected in future, so long as the rations consist of good chowder and fried fish. We look upon Salem as perfectly safe.

And the Dead Also.—The dead as well as the living come under the operations of the stamp law. Commissioner Boutwell has decided that all burial permits issued by the clerks of cities and towns must have the ten-cent revenue stamp upon them.

☞ The Gloucester Telegraph says they have recently received quite a number of new subscribers. We don't wonder at it, considering what an excellent paper they give to the public.

Marblehead Mirror.—We have received the first number of this new paper and heartily welcome it among our best exchanges. If it can be sustained with the spirit and ability of this first number, we may congratulate our Marblehead friends upon having a local journal which it is worth their while to support handsomely, as it will well sustain the good name which the good old town of Marblehead has always borne.

☞ It turns out that no one attempted to assassinate Gen. Banks at New Orleans. An officer in the hotel was showing a lady some explosive cartridges, when she threw a couple out of the window to see their effect. They happened to fall upon the sidewalk and explode just as the General was getting into a carriage, causing the bystanders to suppose some one was intending to take the General's life.

☞ Gen. Hooker is looking after his men in a kind manner, as every General should who wants his men to follow him into battle. He has caused the issue to the men under his command of rations and vegetables. Onions and potatoes are now in every camp. He has also caused ovens to be erected in every division, and soft bread is in every tent on the Rappahannock.

☞ The Empress Eugenie is very strict in her demands upon the ladies attending her balls, that they appear dressed in the height of the fashion which her ladyship dictates. Queen Victoria, on the other hand, is much more mindful of her subjects. She has relieved the ladies, with few exceptions, attending the drawing room from appearing in mourning.

☞ We hope it is equally pleasing to Gov. Wise of Virginia as it is to us, to know that Gen. Dix has taken possession of his farm with others, and is setting contrabands to work upon them for their own support and the benefit of our government. When the darkies will not make good soldiers, keep them at work upon the soil. Do not let them remain idle.

☞ The rebel steamer Nashville, which has been lying in the Ogeechee river for some time, undertook to run out the other day, and got aground near Fort McAllister. Our boats threw some shells at her, and soon set her on fire which finished her for all time to come.—Thankful for that small favor.

☞ The Secretary of War says we have eight armies numbering half a million effective soldiers. It seems as though government ought to be doing something with all that force; but there is such a large extent of country to keep guard over that half a million men can make but little headway into the enemy's country.

LETTER FROM NEW YORK.

New York City, 2d March, 1863.

Mr. Wizard.—Happy to make your acquaintance, sir—trust the introduction is mutually agreeable. In truth, this meeting may be a fortunate one for you. Having hold of your hand, I may have the honor to draw you in when New England is "shut out in the cold." Then you can sit by a comforting fire in the re-constructed house, smoke your new political pipe, kick your own colored individual, and wonder through what particular crevice the pestilent Yankees will try to force an entrance to the regenerated confederacy. Isn't the picture agreeable? You "don't see the necessity?" Infatuated Wizard! Is it possible that you don't comprehend the necessity of investing your "green-backs" in Knickerbocker lands and tenements, and securing for yourself a home on this side of the canal, which the "copperheads" are digging, and which must leave your heresies and heretics high and dry upon the native bluffs of your philanthropic humanitarianism!

It is proper for me to assure you that I am conscientiously opposed to this scheme of a new Union whereto New England shall be wanting. It occurs to me that, in principle it is wrong; as matter of policy, stupid. Belly, legs,—(rebellious legs)—no head. A body-politic,—im-politic. But the copperheads insist, even since the diamond-hilted sword was presented to the general. Now the copperhead is an untamable reptile. I dare say you don't have an individual of the species in your collections. The air of Massachusetts must be too rare for them. Let me, then, describe a full grown specimen as he glides along in his native Gotham.

He has the form of a man but the soul of a snake. He hisses at the Government—the Cabinet and the Generals, except such of the latter as are disgraced by the National authorities, under the Laws of War; them he condoles with and pets. He stands at the street corner and on the Exchange with a large chip of Treason on his shoulder and dares the Government to knock it off. He insists on martyrdom; begs for a lodging in Fort Lafayette so that he can afterwards write "Bastile" on his brazen forehead. He shrieks about the horrible "despotism" and "tyranny" of the Government; declares that the Emperor of Austria and the King of Bomba are sucking doves compared with the malicious ogre of the White House.

At another time he stimulates fear and drops his voice to a whisper as he communicates to you the astounding intelligence that there is no longer freedom of speech in this unhappy country, and that he momentarily expects to be gobbled up by a U. S. Marshal. The very next hour, perhaps, you catch him swinging his dreadful fist over the heads of an owlish crowd and avowing his determination, "so help him God," to arrest, for false imprisonment, every member of the Cabinet who may dare to set foot in the State of New York.

He snarls, and grumbles, and whines;—he depreciates every Union victory, exaggerates every rebel success. He talks about "your army," "your Government," "your generals" never our Government, our army, our generals. Mr. Wizard, if a copperhead should stray that way, you can detect him pretty surely by the last mentioned test, for his snaky heart shuns the use of the first person when speaking of those great common bonds which now hedge us in from anarchy, as his prototype shuns the ashen twig.

He knows, has "always told you," that the South never can be conquered—"always knew," too, that the war would be turned into an Abolition war." He hates Ben. Butler, Fremont and Hunter. His eye sparkles, and his tongue glances with inhuman rapidity as he expatiates upon the probable bankruptcy of the National Treasury, and he makes a sorry show of distress when he prophesies that the Conscription Act will be resisted. He solemnly assures you that it never can be enforced, never.

The terrible "demoralization" of the army is a sweet morsel under his tongue, and he will take his oath that it is demoralized, notwithstanding that Gen. Burnside, and all the officers who came North on furloughs, say it is not. "Why don't you do something?" "We gave you a million of men and all the money you wanted."

He riots in Habeas Corpus discussions—swears that there is no longer any Constitution—that, what with "arbitrary arrests," the dismissal of Gen. McClellan, and the employment of negroes in South Carolina, the country has gone to everlasting smash, and he is for immediate unconditional peace—and finishes his sentence with the impudent assertion that, for his life, he dare not express his sentiments lest he should be arrested and dragged away from his weeping wife where no Habeas Corpus could ever find him. He indulges in numerous chaste epithets about the "infernal Yankees" and "Puritans," and very cordially consigns them all to perdition, and in all his schemes for the settlement of affairs he counts on leaving New England out of the re-constructed Republic.

While the creature thus talks he is most likely gambling in gold, or luxuriating in some fat field of "green-backs;" at any rate, making money and living better than ever he did before. You will doubtless pronounce such a man insensible alike to patriotism and to shame. So do I, and I pity his father and his mother.

In justice to Gotham, I should add that there is an odious unpopularity attaching itself to this snaky type of late, and that, with a victory or two to raise the spirits, the golden heel of re-juvenated Gotham will crush the head of the monster, so that henceforth there will be no danger of any little ophidians emigrating from his loins to the sacred soil of New England.

All Gotham—excepting the copperheads—join with me in saluting you, Mr. Wizard.

Yours truly, Gregory.

Counterfeit Postal Currency.—Counterfeit fifty and twenty-five cent postal currency, is in circulation. The counterfeit fifties are of a bluish shade of green, while the genuine are of a bright deep green. The heads of Washington on the counterfeit are not alike, as they are on the genuine; the right hand head looks fierce and determined, the left hand head looks sleepy and imbecile. The counterfeit twenty-fives are poorly engraved, and on poor paper.—Both are easily detected by those familiar with the genuine.

☞ The price of coal has been reduced in New York. The mild weather keeps the coal piles up and the prices down. This will not affect us much this way the present season, but will have an influence on the prices next fall.

☞ The reception of the Americ
George Griswold, loaded with food cont
in this country for the starving Lancas eratives, as she passed into Liverpool was grand. Flags went up everywher lute was fired, the ensigns on the natio sels were dipped in her honor, and che cheer was sent up by the masses. Eve appeared to give the ship a handsome w
But as is always the case, there was spot to mar all this kind feeling. The men in Liverpool, while this kind greet going on, who were doing all they c destroy this free country, which had se abundance to help feed their hungry, by the rebellion of unprincipled men in ica. At the same time this ship went harbor freighted with food for the suff England, another ship was passing. dov a cargo of arms and ammunition inte be sent to this country to spread dest and suffering among the men who are to sustain their government in the enfo of its laws and the suppression of tres
O, when will the English government eyes to justice.—Gloucester Telegraph.

☞ The Richmond Enquirer of 6th h received at Headquarters of the Arm contains the following dispatches:

Mobile, March 5. The Jackson Miss an says the destruction of the Indianola most unnecessary and unfortunate affair turreted Monitor proved to be a flat bo sundry fixtures to create deception. Sh ed Vicksburg on Tuesday night, and the believing she was really a turreted M blew her up, but the guns fell into the of the enemy.

The Inquirer has an article on the los Princess Royal. It says she was fitted a Manchester firm, to whom the rebels der many obligations for past favors.
lishes a manifest of her cargo which fo
78,308 pounds sterling.

☞ The Boston newspapers kept suc watch of McClellan when he was in that he was hardly able to slip out by th door for a moment without being duly tised. When the gallant Gen. Wool fought 20,000 picked Mexican soldiers
Santa Anna and beat them, with 4000 came into the Opera House and was c lustily by the audience a few nights sin mention of the circumstance was made press. "Nary" a diamond hilted sword er, with an inscription—"Always for the try, sometimes for the government." B old patriot has a good sword now, one th been used.—Cape Ann Light.

Revival at Fall River.—A deep rel interest is now manifest in Fall River.
respondent of the Providence Journal say
"it is the most quiet, orderly and unobtr and at the same time the most deep, tho and aggressive in its operations, of any ous interest with whose history I have been acquainted. A very large proporti the converts are males. All the male me of the high school, except eleven, are a those who give evidence of a change of and of this latter number several are inqu
In one of the churches the entire choi numbered among the converts.

☞ There is a photographist in Paris, goes up in balloons and takes views from a
If he is successful, he must obtain some tiful pictures, although the figures in most must be quite minute. He is now prepar monster air-vessel for the purpose of cro
the channel and making sketches in Eng
Afterwards he will const over the Meditte an!

☞ The famed Stuart's cavalry have laurel plucked from their leader's brow, a has been placed upon some officer on our Stuart, undertook recently to make one o raids around the army of the Potomac, destroy some bridges in his course. He ever found our men awake this time, and sent him back again, before he had accomp ed anything, with the loss of fifty of his

☞ The wealthy Mobilians believe tha will not be long before the "Yankees" wi in possession of that city, notwithstanding immense torpedoes that are said to be place the harbor, to blow up the gun boats; and have sent their jewels, silver ware, books, all valuables, to Mississippi and other St for safe keeping.

☞ At last accounts from the West, the nal between the Mississippi river and Lake P idence was finished, but the water had not b let in. This, it is expected, will give som our gunboats an opportunity to get into Red river and cut off the rebel supplies f that quarter.

☞ The Richmond papers are blowing cause the South Carolinians humbugged th with the story about breaking the blockade, the recent demonstrations of the rebel rams.
It isn't the first time they have been humbu ged by the men of South Carolina.

☞ Somebody has invented a life raft, whi has so pleased government that it has order one to be sent to each of the monitors at on
It is made of gutta percha cylinders, and w perfectly successful in the experiments ma with it.

☞ To prepare skins for drum-heads, t hides are not tanned, but soaked—treated wi lime to remove the hair, then stretched on fram to be scraped and cleansed, and finally polish with whiting and pumice stone.

☞ Pork raisers, do you give your hogs salt
It is stated that by a recent experiment it h been demonstrated that two ounces a day salt, put into the food of a hog, will cause hi to fatten much faster than without it.

☞ The Jacob Bell—the tea ship destroye will chiefly be a loss to the English friends the Confederates, they owning or insuring th vessel and cargo to the amount of three quar ters of a million.

☞ An officer writes from the Army of th
Potomac that most of the croakers have bee weeded out, and all that is now wanting is week of fine weather.

☞ Gen. Rosecrans is doing a large recruit ing business. Hundreds of rebel conscripts come into his lines daily and enlist in our reg iments.

☞ Gen. Hunter is to have undisputed control of his department, and will soon send a colored army into the heart of South Carolina, not to stir up insurrection, but to establish the freedom of those whom President Lincoln emancipated two months ago.

☞ It is not generally known that the United States has a corps of surveyors to survey every portion of every field on which a battle has been fought.—It is to be hoped that in the course of time we shall be "monarchs of all we survey."

☞ The army severely denounces the sympathizers of the rebel sympathizers of the South.

☞ The Egyptian cotton crop will be greater, this year, by 60,000 bales, than the crop of last year.

☞ Mustard grows wild on thousands of acres in California. It is superior to the English imported mustard, and its gathering will soon become a great branch of business.

☞ Prentice says that the Richmond Enquirer admits that the rebel Confederacy has arrived at the verge of a precipice. Well—forward march.

☞ A negro regiment arrived at Memphis from the 19th, fully armed and equipped, ready for service.

School Examinations.

Thursday, 12th, 8 1-2 A. M., Miss Wiswall—Perkins, Com.
Thursday, 10 to 12 A. M., Miss Potter.—Merrill, Com.
Thursday, P. M., Miss Davis. Merrill, Perkins, Com.
Friday, 13th, Mr. Upton. Stimpson, Perkins, Merrill, Com.
Saturday, 14th, 9 to 11, A. M., Miss Tufts—Poole, Com.
Saturday, P. M., Miss Bushby. M'Kenzie, Poole, Committee.
Monday, 16th, Mr. Thompson. Stimpson, Poole, M'Kenzie, Com.
Tuesday, 17th, 8 1-2 to 10 A. M., Miss Peas. Poole, Com. 10 to 12, A. M., Miss Perkins. Poole, Com.
Tuesday, 9 to 11, A. M., Miss Barnes. Merrill, Com, 9 to 11, A. M., Miss Gove. Perkins, Com.
Tuesday, P. M., Mr. Senter. Stimpson, Perkins, Merrill.
Wednesday, A. M., Miss Evans. Poole, M'Kenzie. P. M., Miss Burt. Same Committee.
Thursday, 19th, Mr. Davis. Stimpson, M'Kenzie, Perkins.
Friday, 20th, High School. Whole Com.
Saturday, 21st, P. M. Miss Young. Poole, Merrill.
Time not fixed—Miss Woodbury. Merrill, Perkins, Com.
Time not fixed—Mr. Wright. Perkins, Merrill, Committee.

GRACE'S CELEBRATED SALVE—Its History.—As the general inquiry of "what is Grace's Salve and who is its originator," may seem to be a question worthy of being answered, the manufacturer has been induced to give the following brief yet truthful account of its history: This Salve was invented in the seventeenth Century by Dr. William Grace, who was Surgeon in King James' Irish Army, and from that time he always used it in his professional practice whenever soreness or inflammation presented itself. As a medical agent for the cure of wounds it was followed with great success, and thousands of the veterans that were wounded in the Campaigns of 1688 and 1691, owe to this Salve the salvation of their lives.

Colonel Richard Grace, who was King James' Chamberlain, introduced this Salve into the Royal Palace, where it was used with the greatest success and highly esteemed for its virtues in the cure of sores. At the siege of Athlone, Colonel Richard Grace ordered it to be administered to his compatriots who were wounded during the memorable days of the battle. The order was complied with, and it was used with such success that the head Surgeon of the Irish army at Aughrim ordered Dr. Wm. Grace to manufacture one hundred gross in season to have it distributed among the hospitals before the battle. On the sad defeat of the Irish army at Aughrim, after Ginckle's army took possession of the battle-field, they found several ambulances abandoned by the retreating army, and in each of them were found sealed cases of the Salve. The English Surgeons tested it upon their wounded and ascertained its value, and thus were both of the contending armies befriended by it.

Both Dr. Wm. Grace and Col. Richard Grace, died in the campaign of 1691,—the former of disease, the latter killed in the entrenchmen of Athlone with the Irish flag wrapt around him, cheering on his men to victory. After the death of Dr. Grace, the Salve was not used much outside of his family, until the rebellion of 1798, when William Grace, grandfather to the present subscriber (he being a "united Irishman,") applied its virtues at the battle of Ross to his brave comrades who fell, wounded, while fighting for the rights of their country.

The celebrated Doctor Fitzpatrick, who was connected with the leading Medical Institutions of his day, held in such high estimation this Salve that he ordered large quantities of it manufactured for himself, to use in his professional practice.

The Salve was used in Ireland, and in certain localities the residents had it furnished them free of charge until the year 1848 when the subscriber's parents left their once happy home and the land of their nativity to seek a home in the land of Columbia. With them they brought the secret of the Salve they received from their predecessors. After landing in this country they continued to make it, as before, for their neighbors free of charge, until the fall of 1861, when the frequent calls made for it, and the serious cases that it cured, induced the subscriber to bring it to more general notice and to charge a small price for the article that has received the commendation of patriots upon the battle fields of yore, as well as from persons of the present day.

WILLIAM GRACE, Manufacturer.

WATCH SPRING SKIRTS.—If you want the best and prettiest shaped skirt in the market go to J. P. PEABODY'S, and get his new Gore

---

New Goods. Lubin's Perfumes for the Handkerchief; Old Brown Windsor Soap, 25 cents per package; Union Rose Soap, two cakes for 5 cts; Transparent Bar Soap, 4 cts; Best quality American Pins, 5 cents per paper; Best Glazed Spool Cottons, 7 cents per Spool; Good Spool Cottons, 5 cents—55 per doz; Pure Linen Handkerchiefs—bargains—15 cents; Heavy All Wool Hose, usually 42 cts., now 30 cents; Elastics—Tapes—Needles—Buttons—Braids, &c,—bought at old prices, and selling at less than the wholesale prices of to-day, at

PEABODY'S,
220 Essex Street.

☞ Try one of Rhoades' National Clothes Wringers, before purchasing elsewhere. For sale at the Equity Store, South Danvers. See advertisement.

Lost!

On Friday last, between Pleasant and Park Streets, a FITCH FUR TIPPET. The finder will be rewarded by leaving it at my residence, or at Geo. P. Daniels' store.

Mrs. C. A. OSGOOD, Pleasant St.
South Danvers, February 25, 1862.

Found!

A Gold Ring—containing some hair—marked "FRED." The owner can have it by applying to S. A. OSBORNE.

South Danvers, Feb. 25, 1863.

☞ Call and look at the HUDSON BAY SABLES, at OSBORNE'S.

Save your Rags and Paper!

The subscriber will pay the highest prices in CASH for Rags and Paper. By giving seasonable notice he will call at the houses of those who wish to dispose of their rags.

"A penny saved is as good as a penny earned";
So Poor Richard says.

SUMNER SOUTHWICK.

South Danvers, Jan 14, 1863.

MANUAL FENOLLOSA,
TEACHER
OF THE
Violin, Piano and Singing,
Music Rooms, No. 7 Central Street,
SALEM, MASS.

How to Make $5.00 a Day,
When all other Efforts have Failed.

HOOD & CO., 186 Broadway, New York, have just published ONE HUNDRED VALUABLE SECRETS, possessing them, any one, male or female, can easily make $5 a day, without capital, in any city or village. Every one should possess those secrets, for they are worth $500 to any single or married person. Some of these Secrets have been sold for $20 each. One alone cost us $250 for the right to publish it. When you once own them you will never part with them for money. Several persons are now making $120 per month by these Secrets alone. By them any person may make money easily and rapidly. We send one Book of Secrets for 25 cents, two copies, 40 cents, club of three for 50 cts., club of four 65 cts., club of five 75 cts., club of eight copies, $1 Send Government money.

New York, Feb 18, 1863. 3m

New Jersey Lands for Sale,
—ALSO—
GARDEN OR FRUIT FARMS,

Suitable for Grapes, Peaches, Pears, Raspberries, Strawberries, Blackberries, Currants, &c., of 1, 2½, 5, 10 or 20 acres each, at the following prices for the present, viz: 20 acres for $200, 10 acres for $110, 5 acres for $60, 2½ acres for $40, 1 acre for $20. Payable by one dollar a week.

Also, good Cranberry lands, and village lots in CHETWOOD 25 by 100 feet, at $10 each, payable by one dollar a week. The above land and farms are situated at Chetwood, Washington Township, Burlington, New Jersey. For further information, apply with a P. O. Stamp, for a circular, to

B. FRANKLIN CLARK,
feb 18, 1863 No. 90 Cedar St, New York, N. Y.

But now his nose is thin,
And it rests upon his chin
Like a staff;
And a crook is in his back,
And a melancholy crack in his laugh.

That is the man who refused to take Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit to cure his disordered stomach—hence the crook in his back, and the melancholy tones of his voice.

Ham's Invigorating Spirit can be obtained at Mr. D. P. Grosvenor's Apothecary Shop, 33 Main St.

Marriages.

In Salem, March 1st, by Rev Mr Jewett, Mr Thomas L Brown of Salem, to Miss Ellen M Roberts of South Danvers.

3d, by Rev Dr Mills, Mr Charles Farley to Miss Augusta B, daughter of Capt Washington Pitcher.

5th, by Rev Dr Briggs, Mr Horace G Upton to Miss M Ellen Moulton.

At the residence of the bride's father, by Rev G F Cox, Mr William H Kilvert of Boston, to Miss Emily M, daughter of the officiating clergyman.

Deaths.

In this town, March 2, Mary C, daughter of James Brown, aged 14 years.

9th, Bridget Darcy, aged 50 years.

In Danvers Center, Mary E, daughter of Widow J Prescott, 3 yrs 9 mos 18 ds.

In Salem, Mch 3, an infant son of Alvin A and Eliza Merrill; 4th, Mrs Honora, wife of James Griffin, 70 yrs; 5th, at the Old Lady's Home, Miss Jane McAllister, in her 93d year. 6th, Mr James Hobbs, 44; Charles Henry, son of Joseph and Clara F Very, aged 1 1-2 yrs.

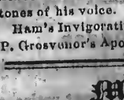
Advertisements.

Salem and South Danvers Railroad.

SUBSCRIBERS to the Capital Stock are hereby notified that the same is payable at the SALEM BANK, in four instalments, of 25 per cent. each, on the following days, viz.—March 2; March 20; April 10; May 1.

Per order,
GEO. D. PHIPPEN, Treasurer.
mch 7 2m

THE PIANO FORTES



THAT have attracted so much attention of late, and are so much admired on account of their SPLENDID FULL, RICH, MELLOW TONE, and GRAND FRENCH ACTION, are for sale only at the Office of the Agent,

218 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.,

where reference may be had to many who have purchased. Other Piano Fortes also, are for sale, varying in price from $180 upwards. Please call.

Mch 11 6m S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

WATCH FOUND.

THE owner can have it by proving property and paying expenses.

South Danvers, March 11, 1863.

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

A Good Milk Route for Sale,

INQUIRE at this office.

South Danvers, Feb. 11, 1863.

James F. Almy.

Watch Spring Skirts.

WE have just received,
—A full Stock of—
BEST WATCH SPRING SKIRTS,
☞ AT LOWEST PRICES. ☜
JAMES F. ALMY,
mch 11 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

John P. Peabody.

YOU CAN SAVE MONEY!

Buy your Cotton Hosiery now;
Buy your Ribb'd Hosiery now;
Buy your Summer Gloves now;
Buy your Spring Gloves now;
Buy your Kid Gloves now;
Buy your Spool Cotton now;
Buy your White Cambrics now;
Buy your Checked Cambrics now;
We have a full stock of the above Goods, which we bought at old prices, and are selling at

—LESS THAN WHOLESALE PRICES.—

As they must advance in price still more, this is a rare chance for our customers.

New Style Skirts;
New Style Skirts;
New Style Skirts;
New Style Skirts;
New Style Skirts;

We sell the Best Watch Spring Skirts only!

Best Glazed Spool Cottons—7 cents;
Best Glazed Spool Cottons—7 cents;
Best Glazed Spool Cottons—7 cents;
Best Glazed Spool Cottons—7 cents;

Spool Cottons, Linen Threads, Sea Island Cottons, Sewing Silks, Twists, White Tapes, Hooks and Eyes, etc., are advancing in price and are now sold at wholesale at higher prices than we are asking. Before our present stock is sold, our customers will find extra bargains.

Nice Cotton Hose, 25 cts—$2 75 per doz;
Nice Cotton Hose, 20 cts— 2 25 "
Nice Cotton Hose, 17 cts— 1 75 "
Nice All wool do. 30 cts— 3 50 "
Nice Lisle Gloves, 25 cts— 2 75 "
Nice Lisle Gloves, 17 cts— 1 75 "

THESE ARE OLD GOODS AT OLD PRICES.

New Style Dress Buttons;
New Style Dress Buttons;
New Style Steel Buttons;
New Style Silk Buttons;
New Style Agate Buttons;

Try our Sewing Needles.

We imported them expressly for our own retail trade. Each paper bears our name.

FOR THE TOILET.

Soaps — Perfumes — Rosemary — Castorine—Spanish Lustrul — Tooth Brushes — Hair Brushes—Puffs—Powders—Boxes, etc.

Much of our stock was bought before the present high prices were attained, and therefore we are now offering customers greater inducements than ever before.

ONE PRICE ONLY!
220 ESSEX ST., SALEM,
JOHN P. PEABODY.

GRACE'S CELEBRATED SALVE.

A SURE RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERER.

This Salve is a vegetable preparation, invented in the 17th century, by DR. WM. GRACE, surgeon in King James's army. Through its agency he cured thousands of most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor.

Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Burns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Scalds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Flesh Wounds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Corns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Felons.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Frozen Limbs.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Wens.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Callouses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Salt Rheum.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chilblains.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Breast.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Lips.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Erysipelas Sores.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Abscesses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ulcers.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chapped Hands.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ringworms.

And from Sores and Wounds of the most serious nature down to a common Pimple. It eradicates Pimples from the face, and beautifies the skin. There is no preparation before the public that can equal this Salve in prompt and energetic action for the speedy cure of external diseases, as those who have tried its virtues testify. Soldiers, Sailors, and Fishermen, will find this Salve their best friend.

It has none of the irritating, heating properties of other remedies, but cools, cleanses, and heals the most serious Sores and Wounds. Every family, and especially those containing children, should keep a box on hand in case of accident, for it will save them much trouble, suffering, and money. All it wants is a fair trial to cure old and inveterate Sores.

MANUFACTURED BY
WILLIAM GRACE,
AMESBURY, MASS.

PRICE 25 CENTS PER BOX.

Each box has the above cut and the fac-simile of the proprietor's signature attached to it, which is duly copy righted.

Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., 11 and 12 Marshall street, Weeks & Potter, 170 Washington street, and M. S. Burr & Co., 26 Tremont street, Boston, Wholesale Agents.

For sale by druggists and at country stores everywhere.

School for both Sexes.

THE next term of MISS FRANCES E. VERY'S School for pupils of both sexes, will commence April 1st, at the Oliver School House, No. 95 Federal Street.

Application may be made at No. 154 Federal Street. Salem, Mch 4, 1863.

M. FENOLLOSA,
TEACHER OF MUSIC,
LETS ..... PIANO FORTES, at the lowest rates;
SELLS ..... PIANO FORTES, at the Manufacturers Prices;
EXCHANGES ... PIANO FORTES, on the easiest terms;
At Rooms No. 7 Central street,
feb 11 SALEM, MASS.

BUY BEFORE ANOTHER RISE.—The best Glazed Cotton for 7 cts, at PEABODY'S—warranted 200 yds. Superior for Machine and Hand Sewing.

George S. Walker.

Linen Fronts, Cuffs & Collars.

LINENS are advancing, consequently there must be a corresponding advance in the above named articles. The present is the time to buy all styles and qualities in stock bought before the rise, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
Gent's Furnishing Store,
Feb 11 No. 228 Essex st, Stearn's Building.

Scarfs. Ties. Stocks.

THE LARGEST ASSORTMENT,
THE BEST STYLES
THE LOWEST PRICES.

Also—BLACK SILK CRAVATS—30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches—Matteoni's manufacture, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
feb 11 228 Essex st, Stearns' Block.

Umbrellas.

GINGHAM, Silk and Cotton—largest stock in the city, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
Dealer in Gent's Furnishing Goods & Toilet Articles. Opposite Eastern Railroad Station.

Administrator's Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the subscriber has been duly appointed administrator of the estate of WILLIAM DELANEY, late of South Danvers, in the county of Essex, yeoman, deceased, and has taken upon himself that trust, by giving bonds, as the law directs: All persons having demands upon the estate of said deceased are required to exhibit the same; and all persons indebted to said estate are called upon to make payment to

THOS. M. STIMPSON, Adm'r.
South Danvers, March 4, 1863. 3w

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,
FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,
Central street, South Danvers,

HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.

He keeps as good an assortment of

COFFINS AND CASKETS,

as can be found at any establishment, and at the lowest prices.

He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.

All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

SOUTH DANVERS
POST OFFICE.

GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.

MAILS CLOSE
At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.

MAILS DUE
At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.

Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.

F. POOLE, P. M.
South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.
South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

THE CLOTHES WRINGER.

JUST OBTAINED
RHOADES' CELEBRATED
NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER,
THE VERY BEST YET INVENTED,
AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING MACHINE.
CALL AND EXAMINE.
For Sale by E. SOUTHWICK,
At the EQUITY GROCERY STORE,
South Danvers, Jan 21, 1863. 3m

T. HARDY, JR.,
—Dealer in—
DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,
Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,
FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,
No. 26 FRONT STREET,
Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

BLANK BOOKS.

A fresh lot, just manufactured from superior paper, by

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
190 Essex street,
mch 11 Sign of Five Golden Books.

100,000 BARRELS OF THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S
POUDRETTE,
111 COMMERCIAL ST., BOSTON, MASS.

This Company, with a capital of $150,000, the most extensive works of the kind in the world, and an experience in manufacturing of over 23 years, with a reputation long established, having also the exclusive control of all the night soil of the great city of New York, are prepared to furnish an article, which is, without doubt, the CHEAPEST AND VERY BEST fertilizer in market. It greatly increases the yield, and ripens the crop from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from three to four dollars per acre, with little or no labor. Also, FIFTY TONS of BONE DUST, being a mixture of bone and night soil ground fine, at $45 per ton—a superior article for grain, &c. A pamphlet containing all necessary information may be had free by addressing a letter to the subscriber.

JAMES T. FOSTER,
Care of the Lodi Manufacturing Company,
56 Courtland St., New York.

Agents—WELCH & FAIRFIELD, Grocers, Lowell Street, South Danvers. feb 11—3m

CAMELS HAIR GOODS.

OWING to the small stock of Camels Hair goods in the market, prices have very much advanced. We shall give our customers the advantage of buying at the old prices, as we have a good assortment on hand.

ANN R. BRAY,
mch 4 76 Federal street.

ORGANDIE MUSLINS.

WE shall open new Spring styles of Organdie Muslins to-day.

Ladies will do well to buy now, as prices are advancing daily. ANN R. BRAY,
mch 4 76 Federal street.

NEW NEEDLE THREADER.

DOUBLE-ENDED, Excelsior Sewing Needle Threader and Worsted Threader combined—of great utility for near sighted or nervous people in threading needles, numbering from 4 to 12, and also Darning Needles.

Call and see them, at
mch 4 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

A. J. Archer & Co

ELEGANT NEW GOODS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

OPEN THIS MORNING

MANY NEW STYLES OF

DRESS GOODS,

INCLUDING

Rich and Heavy Black Silks,

Rich Plain Colored Silks.

☞ Our patrons are invited to examine these Goods. Prices are still advancing, and money will be saved by buying now.

Salem, February 11, tf

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

Have on hand a full supply of

BROWN SHEETINGS AND SHIRTINGS;

BLEACHED SHEETINGS & SHIRTINGS;

—Also—

GREY TWILLED FLANNELS;

WHITE FLANNELS.

—Also—

BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,

which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES.

Salem, January 28—6w

KEROSENE Stand and Hand Lamps, and Peg Lamps. Also Wicks and Chimneys—for sale by S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

A FINE assortment of Paper Shades for Kerosene Lamps, just opened at S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

HILTON'S Insoluble Cement; Richards's Improved Cement; Spaulding's, Upton's, and Nichols's Liquid Glues, for sale by

feb 11 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

JUVENILE BOOKS,

A VERY large assortment for sale by

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

SLATING, SLATING.

GEORGE FOWLER & COMPA'Y,

NO. 2 ST. PETER COURT, SALEM, respectfully inform their friends and the citizens of this and neighboring towns and cities that they are prepared to execute all orders for Slating, promptly and faithfully.

Roofs covered with any description of Slates, or repaired at short notice.

All work undertaken will be warranted.

Address—Box 366 Salem Post Office.

Salem, January 28—1863. tf

WALKING MADE EASY.

DR. P. KENISON,
CHIROPODIST,
215 Washington St., Boston,

Cures Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails, Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

FOR SALE.

A GOOD comfortable Home, a two-story House, L, Shed and Barn, in good repair, pleasantly located in Londonderry, N. H., 1 1-2 miles from center of town, 10 acres of Land, with plenty of Fruit. Price only $650.

Also—an excellent Stock Farm of 250 acres, for sale or exchange.

dec 31 L. BRICKETT, Derry, N. H.

D. W. BOWDOIN,
—ARTIST IN—
PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.

Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]

Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotype, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.

☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

WATCH SPRING SKIRTS.

At 236 Essex Street,

A few doors from Washington Street,

SALEM, MASS.

M. A. PORTER,
MANUFACTURER TO ORDER

NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

CONSCRIPTION LAW.

The United States Conscription Law of 1863 Official and complete; price 5 cents—at

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

NEW SPRING SHAWLS,

IN Stripe, Plaid and Plain, of rich styles—just received and for sale by

mch 4 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PERMANENT GREEN.

A supply of Hampden Green, just received at

S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

mch 11

WHITE LEAD;

LINSEED Oil; Spirits Turpentine; Star Benzele Spirits; Varnishes, etc—constantly for sale by mch 11 S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st.

NEW BOOKS

At G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, 190 Essex st. Salem:

The Iron Furnace, or, Slavery and Secession, by Rev. John H Aughey;

Transition; a Remembrance of Emma Whiting, by Hugh S Carpenter;

The Hero of Medfield; containing the Journals and Letters of Allen A. Kingsbury, of Medfield, who was killed near Yorktown;

The Orpheus C Kerr Papers, Second Series;

The Great Consummation. The Millenial Rest; or the World as it will be—by Rev. John Cumming, D. D;

McClellan; who he is, and what he has done—by George Wilkes;

Dr. Walker's Election Sermon;

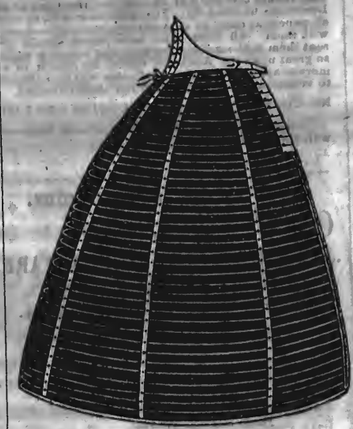
mch 4 190 Essex street.

Browning & Long.

LARGE SALES
AND SMALL PROFITS.

POINT DE VENICE
SKIRTS.

SOMETHING ENTIRELY NEW.



NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

BROWNING & LONG have received their Spring Skirts, being of New Shape and Design, Kid Fronts and Springs Securely Fastened.

In the "Point de Venice" will be found a perfect Skirt, being of a beautiful shape, and having attached to it a Kid Bodice, which fits closely to the form, making it a graceful and durable Skirt, and especially adapted to the present style of fitting dresses.

Receiving our Skirts direct from the manufacturers, we are enabled to show a fine assortment of New Styles, and can offer them at

VERY LOW PRICES.

Also received, a full line of

MISSES' SKIRTS,

KID FRONTS, and SUPERIOR FINISH.

BROWNING & LONG,
(Successors to J. Mayer.)
Jan. 28. 177 Essex Street.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

ESSEX, ss. Feb. 25, A. D., 1863. A warrant has been duly issued by Hon. GEORGE F. CREATE, Judge of Probate and Insolvency for said County of Essex, against the estate of EBENEZER S. HOWARD, of South Danvers, in the County of Essex, trader, an insolvent debtor; and the payment of any debts, or the delivery of any property belonging to said insolvent debtor, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law.

The first meeting of the creditors of said insolvent debtor will be held at the Court of Insolvency, at Salem, on the twenty-third day of March, at ten o'clock, A. M., for the proof of debts, and the choice of an Assignee or assignees of said estate.

STEPHEN UPTON, Deputy Sheriff,
March 4, 1863. Messenger.

To Let on Essex St., Salem,

The STORE and DWELLING HOUSE connected therewith, No. 250 Essex St. The store is neatly fitted up, is one of the best stands in the city, and admirably adapted for Millinery, Fancy, Dry Goods, or any light business.

The Dwelling part contains nine finished rooms, and is supplied with water, gas, etc.—all in good order and very convenient.

To a satisfactory tenant, the above will be let on reasonable terms. Apply at J. PERLEY'S Shoe Store, next door west. feb 25

HEYLINGBERG'S
Hair Dressing Saloon,
24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.

TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Champooing,	15 cts.
Champooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more now Quarterly Customers taken.

In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks will be sold for one dollar.

South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,
ADVERTISING AGENT

For the principal New England Newspapers, remains at the old stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, and Advertising.

Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,
ONE PRICE
HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,
231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

DIARIES AT COST PRICES.

A GOOD ASSORTMENT at G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S, Salem, Mass.

NATIONAL ALMANAC,

AND Annual Record for 1863—containing Government of the United States, the Individual States, and so called Confederate States, Tax Law, Census Tables, New Tariff, Army and Navy Officers, U. S. Mint, Consuls Statistics, etc., for sale by

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

NEW YORK WHITE LEAD.

2500 L New York White Lead;

Also, Forest River White Lead—for sale by

mch 4 S C & E A SIMONDS.

☞ If you want to SAVE MONEY, in purchasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, No. 10 Front street, Salem. ap30-tf

Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,
Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,
34 Front Street.

Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

AT PRIVATE SALE.

One fine-toned PIANO FORTE—second-hand, in excellent order.

An assortment of Silver Plated Ware, including Ice Pitchers from $4,50 to $9,00 each.

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,

Druggist and Apothecary,
33 MAIN STREET.

Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.

Personal attention to Physicians' Prescriptions.

South Danvers, May 29, 1861. ly

GEO. E. MEACOM

Dealer in
DRUGS & MEDICINES,
Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.
126 MAIN ST. 126
Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,
Druggist & Apothecary
37 Main St., So. Danvers,

DEALER IN
Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponges, Shoulder Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines.

Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery.

Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by experienced persons.

37 MAIN STREET.

PATTERSON'S
LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE

THE undersigned are agents for the above machine. It can be seen in operation at Pinder & Brown's Tannery.

may 7—3m CLARK & GIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,
Wallis Street, South Danvers,
Are Agents for
GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S
PATENT EAVE TROUGHS
CUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND
PIPE FOR DRAINS.
South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

Potter, Bachelder & Co.,
(Successors to M. Black)
DANVERS PORT,
DEALERS IN
WOOD AND COAL

OF the various kinds usually kept in a retail yard. Constantly on hand

Franklin, Old Company's Lehigh,
Locust Mountain, Black Heath,
Red and White Ash.

Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere.

OFFICE—No. 6 Allen's Building.

Order Box at post office, South Danvers, and post office, Danvers.

G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. july 19—tf

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,

IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
dec 24 Sign of Five Golden Books.

MUSICAL NOTICE.

Chickering & Sons' Piano-Fortes

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St. would inform her friends in South Danvers, and the public generally, that she keeps for sale and to let Chickering & Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with great care, and need only to be tried to prove their superiority over every other in the market. The very best terms given.

MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPHINE.

For sale and to let. For power and quality of tone none can surpass them

A. R. BRAY,
76 Federal st.

DIARIES--1863.

AN excellent assortment at the lowest prices, for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS

A FINE assortment—for sale at low prices by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, jy 14 190 Essex Street, Salem

NEW BOOKS.

STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom;
Fire Light; or Stories for Domestics, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;
Gardener's Monthly—January;
Harper's Weekly; Genealogical Register;
Historical Collections, October, 1862.

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
At the old stand of H Whipple & Co

Ann R. Bray, No. 76 Federal Street

HAS received a fine assortment of NEW SPRING GOODS, including:—
Rich Black Silks;
Black Alapaccas, a full assortment;
Poils in Stripes and Plaids;
Mous de Laines, entirely new patterns;
French Cambrics, small fig'd, for Children;
—A full stock of—
DOMESTIC GOODS.
feb. 25 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Ann R. Bray, 76 Federal Street

WILL open to-day, New Spring Goods; Delaines; Alapaccas, &c.

We have a full and carefully selected stock of Black Silks, which are warranted to give perfect satisfaction.

In dress goods we select the best styles, and fabrics, and those who buy early will find the best assortment. feb 25

WIRE GOODS.

WIRE Rat Traps; Broilers; Steamers; Sieves, etc., just received at

S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PATENT CLOTHES

HORSES Cram's Patent Clothes Frames, at S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

Continued from first page.

but wings its way wearily back, with an olive leaf in its beak as a token of emerging life beyond the closely bending horizon. The great sun comes and goes in the heavens, yet breathes no secret of the ethered wilderness; the crescent moon cleaves her nightly passage across the upper deep, but tosses overboard no message, and displays no signals. The sentinel stars challenge each other as they walk their nightly rounds, but we catch no syllable of their countersign which gives passage to the heavenly camp. Beneath this and the other life is a great gulf fixed, across which neither eye nor foot can travel. The gentle friend, whose eyes we closed in their last sleep long years ago, died with rapture in her wonder-stricken eyes, a smile of infinite joy upon her lips, and hands folded over a triumphant heart, but her lips were past speech, and intimated nothing of the vision that enthralled her.—J. G. Holland.

THE SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD

Is published every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's building, South Danvers Square, by

CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editor.

TERMS—Two Dollars a year.

ADVERTISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM G. CHOATE,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
Salem, August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Residence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
South Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
Office, No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to
Rooms formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
NO. 27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM.
STEPHEN B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Office, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.
Claims against the Government for Bounty Back Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
No. 4 MAIN STREET, So. DANVERS SQUARE.
Mechanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
Teeth Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
SURGEON DENTIST,
No. 208 Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market
Residence—No. 57 Washington street.
jan 11—1y

F. POOLE,
INSURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Family Groceries, Flour & Grain,
HARD WARE AND CROCKERY,
Ready Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods, Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
South Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
SAM'L NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Crockery, China and Hardware; Paper Hangings; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.
No. 32 Front street, Lawrence Place,
feb13 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
All orders promptly and faithfully executed.
jan2-1y

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
West India Goods, Country Produce
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
Gold and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
at Rooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger.
164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
WINDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
mch6-tf

JOHN MOULTON,
LIVERY STABLE,
Central Street, South Danvers.
Mr. M. will endeavor to keep up the good reputation of his stable, by still keeping good Horses and Carriages. jan 7, 1863.

W. E. P. SMYTH,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.
Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,
LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.

Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow.
2d. The Children.
3d. The Father.
4th. The Mother.
5th. The Brothers and Sisters collectively.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken out, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.

When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditor's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay in getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.

Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1y

Rare Chance for Bargains.

CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of
JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS,
At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER

Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,
Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Were,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.
at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.

This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Refurnishing the Table, &c.

Old Silver taken in exchange.

☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.

JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

H. & H. G. HUBON,
WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM
Manufacturers of
Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood
COFFINS and CASKETS.

MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.

dec 14—tf

FRANKLIN COAL.

JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL —the best in the world for domestic use.
POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

E. N. PRICE,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
HARNESSES,
SADDLES, BRIDLES,
AND WHIPS.
— ALSO —
Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.
All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.
237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
mch13-tf

Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

GAYLE & CO.,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
DEALERS IN
Flour, Grain and Produce,
Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of
Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.
PHILLIPS WHARF, Salem.

REMOVAL!
AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,
Manufacturer and Repairer of
BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

Choice Fall-Pigs for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, o which the Mackie took the First Premium at the lat Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.
BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook,
South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862 tf

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A YEAR'S Reading in WHIPPLE & SMITH'S Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.
dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

LES Miserables—complete—$1.00.
Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Muloch—for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Ladies' Spring Skirts.

ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

DIARIES FOR
1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books,

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.
Prof. M. G. BROWN.
SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets scumy and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its sockett in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to anoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 6 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

The Confessions and Experience of a Poor Young Man.

A GENTLEMAN having been cured of the results of early error and disease, will, from motives of benevolence, send to those who request it, a copy of the above interesting narrative, published by himself. This little book is designed as a warning and caution to young men and those who suffer from NERVOUS DEBILITY, LOSS OF MEMORY, PREMATURE DECAY, &c., &c., supplying at the same time the means of self-cure. Single copies will be sent under seal in a plain envelope,—without charge,—to any who request it, by addressing the author,

CHAS. A. LAMBERT, Esq.,
Greenpoint, Long Island, New York.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, Carvers and Steels, and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by
nov 19 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

REMOVAL!
JOHN J. ASHBY,
WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store
No. 145 Essex Street,
formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of
BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,
and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.

Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

E. R. PERKINS,
PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST
241 Essex Street, Salem.
Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,
Photographs, Spherootypes, Melainotypes, and patent eastern Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

Ann R. Bray,
NO. 76 Federal Street,
— DEALER IN —
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

Plymouth Buck Gloves.

MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S
Gent's Furnishing Store,

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Tenements to Let.

ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $54 per year.

One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.

One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.

One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.

One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

MUNROE'S
(LATE REED'S)
SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON
RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at 10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " " at 5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at 3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " " at 5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.

Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.

EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.

Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.

Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.

Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed.

WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

E. F. BURNHAM,
SOLE AGENT FOR
SARGENT & CO.S'
MAGIC SOAP
For South Danvers & Salem.
OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.
Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.
Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
INNER SOLES,
AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.
2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

THOMAS PINNOCK,
SLATER,
SALEM, MASS.

Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.

Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.
Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

CURRIER & MILLETT,
Dealers in

Furniture, Chairs,
MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c
259 & 261 ESSEX ST.
Salem, dec 14—1y

WM. C. HENDERSON,
MANUFACTURER OF
PLAIN AND FANCY
PAPER BOXES,
No. 235 ESSEX STREET,
Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"
July 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,

NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St. South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

Heckscher Coal!
$8.25 per Ton on Wharf.
A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,
Both Red and White Ash,
Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by
W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.
July 9

AARON T. LOWE,
DEALER IN
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,
76 BOSTON STREET, 76.
aug 6 SALEM. tf

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.

THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of
Patent Granular Fuel,
which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25 Bushels, delivered,		2 25
50 do	do	4 00
100 do	do	7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.

BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, june 18.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.

JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

R. C. MANNING & CO.
Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,
DEALERS IN
COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,
183 DERBY STREET,
SALEM, MASS.
N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.
oct17

NEW GOODS.

WE have received some very neat styles of French Prints, small figures, Spring styles, new goods.

Neat styles Patches, new patterns.

A few pieces Cotton and Wool M de Laines, new styles, suitable for the present and Spring wear—selling low for cash.

jy 14 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Dyspepsia Remedy.
DR. DARIUS HAM'S
AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!

This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.

IT STIMULATES, EXHILARATES, INVIGORATES, BUT WILL NOT INTOXICATE OR STUPEFY.

AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner.

It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.

Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the DELIRIUM TREMENS, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.

DOSE—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.
A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.
Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.

Persons who, from dissipating too much over night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings.

Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the care-worn face.

During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.

All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the INVIGORATING SPIRIT in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.

General Depot, 48 Water Street, N. Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.
feb 29 1y

Are you Insured?

THE subscribor would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on

Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,

And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:

Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn.
Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y,
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y

Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the

Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass.
Capital and Assetts—$375,000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y,
William Mack, M. D., Medical Examiner.

WM. ARCHER, Jr.,
18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
ej b20-1

Important to the Afflicted.

DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a

PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.

By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent, Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of

GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.

Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest allings of a child.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.

Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such person should before contemplating marimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.

Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.

Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving a full description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French [illegible], warranted the best preventive. Order by mail, 3 for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y.

CAUTION
TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.

DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranted in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.

Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.

Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.

Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.

N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.

Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE
IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.

Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.

Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y

HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Madam Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustre China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PLANISHED Tin Plate Covers, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front.

NOTE PAPER.

A VERY full and complete stock, at a very small advance on old prices, at
jan 21 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

KEROSENE LAMPS.

FOR Shoemaker's use, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

JUST PUBLISHED.

GRAVER Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heaven, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantes, by A. B. Edwards; The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
dec 24 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Eastern Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains will leave the Eastern Railroad Station, Washington street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excepted):

For Lynn and Boston, 6½, 7½, 8½, 9, 10, 11 a m., 1, 2½ 4.40, 6¾, p. m.
Beverly, 8¼ am., 1, 3½, 4¼, 5¾, 6¾, 7½ p m.
W. Beach, Man'r, Gloucester, and Rockport, 8¼ a m., 1, 4¾ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8¼ a m., 1, 3½, 5¾ p m.
Amesbury, 8¼ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portsmouth, 8¼ a m., 3¼, 5¾ p m.
Portland, 8¼ a m., 3¼ p m.

AND FOR SALEM, FROM

Portland, 8¾ a m., 2½ p m.
Portsmouth, 7¼, *11¼ a m., *5 p m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9.40 a m., 5 20 p m.
Newburyport, 8, 10 a m., 12 m, 5.45 p m.
Ipswich, 8.25, 10.25 a m, 12 25, 6.10 p m.
Gloucester, 7.25, 10 10 a m., 3.55 p m.
Manchester, 7.40, 10.25 a m., 4.10 p m.
Beverly, 7.05, 8.05, 8 50, 10.50 a m., 12.50, 4¼, 6.35.
Lynn, 8, 9, 11 a m., 12¾, 3, 4¼, 5¼, 6¾, 7¾ †10
Boston, 7¾, 8¾, 10¾ a m., 12¾, 2¾, 4, 5, 6, 6¾, 9¾ p m.

*Or on arrival from the East.
†On Wednesdays this train leaves Boston at 11½ p m. via Saugus Branch; and on Saturdays at 10½ p m.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Marblehead for Salem, 7, 8, 8¾, 9¾ a m., 12¾, 1¾, 4.25, 6¾
Salem for Marblehead, 8¼, 9.25, 11¼ a m., 1, 3¾, 5¾, 6¾

SOUTH READING BRANCH.

Trains leave the South Reading Depot in Salem for Boston at 7, 9.40 a m., 2.25, 4.55 p m
Boston for Salem, 7 a m, 12 m., 2¾, 5 p m.
South Danvers for Salem, 7¾ a m., 12¾, 3¾, 5¾ p m.

ESSEX RAILROAD.

Leave Salem for Lawrence and way stations, 7¼, 11¼ a m., 4¾ p m.
Lawrence for Salem, 8¼ a m., 12.40 6¾ p m.
Danvers for Salem, 9.12 a m., 1.22, 6.57 p m.

J. PRESCOTT, Superintendent.
Boston, November 10, 1862.

Salem and Lowell Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov 10, 1862, Trains will run as follows:

Leave Lowell for Salem, 7.25 a m., and *2.00 p m.
Leave Salem for Lowell, *9 40 a m. and 5 00 p m.

Passengers are not allowed to carry baggage above $50 in value, and that personal, unless notice is given and an extra amount paid. Season tickets do not entitle the holder to take baggage.

*Freight Train with passenger car attached
F. H. NOURSE, Local Superintendent.
November 7, 1862.

SPEED, COMFORT AND SAFETY!

FOR NEW YORK.
Norwich Steamboat Train.
The only Boats Landing at Jersey City.

CABIN Passage, $4.00; Deck Passage, $3.00. The new and elegant sixteen wheel cars of the steamboat express train leave the Boston & Worcester Railroad Station, Albany Street, at 5½ P. M., daily, connecting with the new steamers, (built expressly for this line,) CITY OF BOSTON, Capt. WILCOX, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; CITY OF NEW YORK, Capt. JEWETT, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, which (before proceeding to their Pier, No. 39 North River,) will touch at the wharf of the New Jersey Railroad at Jersey City, (Sundays excepted) thus enabling Southern Passengers to make sure connections with the First Southern Train, and at the same time avoid the great annoyance of the Ferry and Hack transportation in the crowded streets of New York. This insures ample time for Breakfast before the trains leave. Conductors D. F. WALLER and W. F. BARTON accompany the passengers through.

Tickets, Berths and Staterooms secured at the Railroad Station, and at the Office of the line, 79 Washington Street, Boston.

Through tickets to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington can be had at 79 Washington Street, Boston. WM. DICKEY, Jr., Agent.
Boston, January 7, 1863.

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT
CHANGE OF TIME
— TO —
LYNN & BOSTON
BY OMNIBUS AND HORSE CAR
On and after THURSDAY, June 19th, 1862,
W. F. BURNHAM'S

Line of Omnibuses will leave the Lynn and Boston Omnibus Office, No. 6 Allen's Building, South Danvers, passing down Main street, through Washington street to Lynn, daily.

Leave South Danvers at 7.50 A. M., and 12.50 and 4.50 P. M.

Leave Lynn at 10 A. M., and 2 1-2 and 6 1-2 P. M.

Horse Cars leaving Scollay's Building, Court street, Boston, at 8.15 A. M., 1.15 and 5.15 P. M., will meet the Omnibus at Lynn, at the above named hours, to take passengers to South Danvers.

Sunday Arrangements.

Leave S. Danvers at 7.50 a.m., and 4.50 p.m.
Leave Lynn at 9.30 a.m., and 6.30 p.m.

Cars leave Scollay's Building, Boston, to meet the Omnibuses in Lynn for South Danvers, at 8.15 a m. and 5.15 p.m.

Through Tickets to and from Boston may be had of the Drivers and Conductors.

Tickets to Lynn, - - - 15 cents.
Through to Boston, - - 30 cents.

Passengers called for at reasonable charges i notice is given at the Office.

EXPRESS BUSINESS

Between South Danvers and Lynn promptly attended to, on reasonable terms.

EXTRA COACHES furnished at short notice, at moderate rates.
South Danvers, June 18, 1862.

South Danvers & Salem Line of Omnibuses.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 4, 1861, the South Danvers and Salem Line of Omnibuses will run as follows:

Leave the Hourly Office, South Danvers at 7, 8, 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2 a. m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8.

Leave No. 13 Central St., Salem, at 8, 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2, a.m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8, 9.

☞ Ladies' Room, at Needham & Hawkes's, No. 272 Essex Street, and at the Offices.

SINGLE FARE on the regular route, 6 cents, or Twenty Tickets for $1 00.

Passengers called for or left off the route, at a reasonable distance, the fare will be 13 cents.

EXTRA COACHES furnished, at all hours, at reasonable prices.
nov 27 HENRY M. MERRILL.

Abbott's South Danvers & Salem EXPRESS.

Leave South Danvers, - - - 7¼ a m, 1 p m
Leave Salem, - - - 10 a m, 4 p m

Orders left at Teel & Moulton's, and principal stores on Main street, South Danvers; and at 7 Washington street, and at Reed's in the Market, Salem.

MARSHALL'S
DANVERS, SO. DANVERS & SALEM EXPRESS.

Leave DAN

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18, 1863. NO.

Original Poetry.

EVER WAITING.

of darkness—ancient night—
aited that divine command,
ch formed the world, and gave it light,
eas of waters, isles of land.

Adam sleeping, waited while ve was taken out his side;
Serpent waited to beguile
This woman wondrous as a bride.

God's people long did wait and mourn;
Isr'l's prophets; Judah sold;
Angels waited Him of Heav'n born,
Whom those prophets had foretold.

Mothers waiting watch their loved ones,
Nursed and cradled tenderly;
Wailing signs of, rare unfolding,
Signs which none like mothers see.

Aspirants of every station,
Lawyers, Doctors, Statesmen, all,
Wait success in their vocation,
And to rise as others fall;

Waiting, that by might or treason,
Purpose, wealth, or power to gain;
At more favored future season,
Grasp the pleasure, void the pain.

Nature waits through winter dreary,
Ere it hath the joyous spring;
Man should wait and not grow weary
When misfortune's winters sting.

"Darkest night hath brightest morrow;"
Wait thou till the day doth dawn;
Joy dispel thy night of sorrow.
Brightest hopes thy morning crown.

DANVERSPORT, March, 1863. D. M.

Selected Poetry.

THE EMPTY SLEEVE.

[The following beautiful poem, inscribed to Gen. HOWARD, who recently lost his right arm in defence of his country, says the Bangor Courier, is from the pen of DAVID PARKER, Esq., of Exeter, whose productions entitle him to rank among the first New England poets.]

By the moon's pale light, to a gazing throng,
Let me tell one tale, let me sing one song;
'Tis a tale devoid of an aim or plan,
'Tis a simple song of a one arm man.
Till this very hour I could ne'er believe
What a tell-tale thing was an empty sleeve—
What a weird, queer thing was an empty sleeve.

It tells, in a silent tone, to all,
Of a country's need and a country's call,
Of a kiss and a tear for a child and wife,
And a hurried march for a nation's life:
Till this very hour who could e'er believe
What a tell-tale thing is an empty sleeve—
What a weird, queer thing is an empty sleeve.

It tells of a battle-field of gore—
Of the sabre's clash—of the cannon's roar—
Of the deadly charge—of the bugle's note—
Of a gurgling sound in a foeman's throat—
Of the whizzing grape—of the fiery shell—
Of a scene which mimics the scenes of hell.
Till this very hour would you e'er believe
What a weird, queer thing is an empty sleeve.

Though it points to a myriad wounds and scars,
Yet it tells that a flag, with the stripes and stars,
In God's own chosen time will take
Each place of the rag with the rattlesnake;
And it points to a time when that flag shall wave
O'er a land where there breathes no cowering slave.
To the top of the skies let us all then heave
One proud huzza for the empty sleeve—
For the one arm man with the empty sleeve.

THE LITTLE ONES IN BED.

A row of little faces by the bed—
A row of little hands upon the spread—
A row of little roguish eyes all closed—
A row of little naked feet exposed.

A gentle mother leads them in their praise,
Teaching their feet to tread in heavenly ways,
And takes this lull in childhood's tiny tide
The little errors of the day to chide.

Then tumbling headlong into waiting beds,
Beneath the sheets they hide their timid heads,
Till slumber steals away their idle fears,
And like a peeping bud each face appears.

All dressed like angels in their gowns of white,
They're wafted to the skies in dreams of night;
And Heaven will sparkle in their eyes at morn,
And stolen graces all their ways adorn.

Selected.

SCENE IN HIGH LIFE.

Nine o'clock had just struck at the imperial palace at Fontainebleau.—Napoleon, seated by the fireside with Maria Louise, was enjoying the freedom of conversation and familiarity he was so fond of. Never had his noble and antique features assumed so joyous and so natural an expression. He laughed, he chatted, he joked; and a stranger, entering by chance, would have had much difficulty in recognizing the emperor in that little stout man, lolling with so much nonchalance in an arm chair.

He poked the fire with the tip of his boot, rubbed his hands with glee, and with playful and tender sallies provoked Marie Louise to venture upon some French phrases, as yet strange to her, which she disfigured with a German frankness so irresistibly droll, that Napoleon burst into fits of laughter.

The empress, half angry, half smiling, came and sat upon the knee of her husband. At the same moment the door opening, the soldier-like face of Duroc presented itself.

'Sire,' said he, 'the Italian artist has arrived.'

'Conduct him here immediately,' replied the emperor; at the same time pushing back his arm chair, he left a space for the new-comer between the empress and himself.

The visitor, on entering, made a profound bow to the two illustrious personages into whose presence he was admitted; and, at the desire of Napoleon, took a seat near the fire.

'Welcome to France, my dear Canova,' said the emperor, in one of his kindest accents. 'But how pale and thin you have become since I last saw you. You must certainly leave Rome and come to reside in Paris. The air of the capital will restore you to health and vigor. See how well we are,' said he taking in his hand the fresh and rosy chin of Marie Louise.

'Sire, you must attribute my ill health to the fatigue of my occupations, not to the air of my country.—To leave home altogether would be impossible; indeed, it would be fatal to me.'

'Paris is the capital of the arts.—You must stay here—I desire it,' said the husband of the pretty German, in a commanding tone, on a sudden assuming the emperor.

'Your majesty may dispose of my life; but if you wish it to be devoted to your service, sire, grant me permission to return to Italy as soon as I have finished the burst of her majesty, the empress, which I am now about to undertake.'

'Devil's in the man,' exclaimed the emperor, 'he refuses to remain with me! You see Louise, he has no other ambition than to be the greatest sculptor in the world. He longs to leave us, to return to Rome to resume his labors, and to present to the world another such a work as his 'Terpsichore,' 'Paris,' 'Les Danseuses,' 'Venus,' or the 'Magdalen.''

The conversation now became more general; they talked of the 'Excavation' continued by the Borghese family of Italian artists, of the 'Colonne Vendome,' and a thousand other topics. Nothing was new to Napoleon, who conversed with a perfect knowledge of every subject, and a wonderful clearness of perception.

Canova could not restrain his surprise and admiration.

'How is it possible for your majesty to divide your attention between so many matters?' exclaimed he.

'I have sixty millions of subjects,' replied Napoleon, with a smile; 'eight or nine hundred thousand soldiers, a hundred thousand horses. The Romans themselves had not so many.—I have commanded at forty battles.—At Wagram I fired a hundred thousand cannon balls, and this lady, who was then arch-duchess of Austria, desired my death.' At this he pulled the ear of Marie Louise, who answered, with a droll imitation of her German accent, 'Il etra bien vrai.'

'I think,' said the artist, 'things now wear a different aspect.'

'O! Cela est bien vrai,' said Maria Louise—this time in the best French possible—kissing the emperor's hand tenderly, who, taking the young creature by the waist, made her sit upon his lap; but she blushingly resisted. 'Bah! bah!' said Napoleon; 'Canova is a friend, and we don't make ceremonies with friends: besides, he himself is of a tender and susceptible nature, and will be delighted to witness the happiness of an affectionate couple.'

'Listen to me, Louise, and I will relate to you a romantic story, the hero of which you may easily guess. You will then judge if those who love each other ought to feel restraint before Canova.'

He kissed Marie Louise, and, keeping her still upon his knee, began:—

'In the Province of Tervisa there is a little village called Possagno. In this place was born and reared the son of an architect, whose father died at the early age of twenty-seven, and whose mother married a second time, 'Satori di Crepann.'

'At four years old, the child, by name Antonio, was entrusted to the care of its grandfather, who treated it with much severity. By him it was sent to pass an autumn at Padrazi, two or three leagues from Passagno, at the house of an Italian senator, a friend of his, whose name was Faliero. The latter observing the intelligence of the little peasant, and pleased with the ability he evinced in carving stone and shaping clay, placed him as a pupil with a clever sculptor called Toretto.

'What! your majesty knows all these minute details of my private life?' exclaimed Canova in surprise.

'I know many more,' replied Napoleon; and he continued:—

'Toretto was a man of strict morals; but, however narrowly he may have watched his favorite pupil, Antonio found means to escape from the atelier, now and then, to go and dance at the village feles. He was then only sixteen. Among the gay throng of peasants assembled together during the vintage, to dance the tarantella, there was one whose charms captivated his heart—Bettina Biasi. She was just fourteen. Her large black eyes sparkled with animation; her waist was so tapering two hands could span it; her hair, the loveliest that ever adorned a maiden.'

A sigh escaped the bosom of Canova.

The emperor pressed the hand of Maria Louise, that she might remark that sigh, and without interrupting his recital continued:—

'Antonio was enthusiastic, and in love. As for the grandfather, he was much less moved by the fascinations, than by the marriage portion of Bettina, which was considerable, particularly for the poor apprentice to a sculptor.

'The parents of both formed projects of uniting them; arrangements for their marriage were drawing to a close, when Toretto and the senator chanced to hear of it.

'They reflected that this union would destroy the prospects of their protege, and determined to prevent it.

'One evening they entered the chamber of Antonio, commanded him to follow them, and, notwithstanding his tears, his resistance and despair, carried him to Venice, where they confined him during a whole year.

'All endeavors to escape proved fruitless. The enamored youth, finding his return to Padrazi impossible, was compelled to seek consolation in the study of his favorite pursuit—sculpture.

'The talent and reputation of the young man soon spread abroad; his celebrity was established—he became rich—his society was courted by all, and the memory of Bettina Biasi was gradually erased from his mind.

'At the same time the arts and blandishments of another little coquette, Dominica, took the place in his affections. She was the daughter of the sculptor, Volpato.

'Proposals of marriage were made; but as Dominica was yet young, a postponement was agreed upon till the following year. Alas! before that time, Dominica bestowed her hand on Raphael Morghen.

'The poor deserted lover was in despair at this new piece of treachery.'

At this part of the recital, Canova fell into a deep fit of musing and melancholy, unconscious of what was passing around him.

'His health gave away. His physician and his friends recommended him to return and breathe the air of his native village.

('Were Covisart here, he would say this was a remedy the faculty do not believe in, but nevertheless it always succeeds.)

'Antonio set off on his journey.

'On his approach to his native place, the thought of Bettina Biasi—that charming, that lovely girl, so disinterested in her love for him—rushed upon his imagination more fresh and more engaging than ever.

'O! cried he,' 'how ungrateful have I been to neglect and forget her.'

'Dismissing from his mind all remembrance of Dominica, he dreamed only of Bettina Biasi. He pictured to himself the delight he should experience in again clasping her to his bosom, as of old.

'His heart beat with hope and joy, and whilst he was resolving within himself to proceed the next day without fail to Padrazzi, he perceived the village spire of Possago before him.

Too much agitated to remain in the slow 'vetturna,' he alighted and continued his journey on foot by a short road, until he arrived at the gate of the little town.

'At this moment a crowd of young men, who were awaiting his arrival, perceiving him approach, filled the air with shouts of welcome and rejoicing, and surrounded and embraced him.

'He stands without the power of speech, his heart throbs within him, his eyes are filled with tears.

'The road is strewed with laurel branches and evergreens; all the inhabitants of Passagno—women, children and old men, in holiday costume, line the road, and salute the celebrated youth.

'The venerable Toretto, the old master of Canova, folds him in his arms, weeping over him. At a distance, approach the mother of Canova, his step-father, and behind them a female bathed in tears.

'Bettina! mia Bettina!' cried Canova.

'She stretches out her hand to him, he is about to speak, when the bells of the village sound a merry peal, salvos of musketry rend the air, and the curate, at the head of his clergy, singing the 'Te Deum,' advances in his clerical robes, kneels down, and returns thanks to Providence for having granted to Possagno a child so renowned as Canova. The aged priest then passes his arm through that of Canova, his mother leans on the other, and the procession conducts the hero in triumph to his grandfather, whose infirmities confine him to his house.'

'Ah! sire! sire! let me entreat you not to continue a recital which awakens such cruel and such sweet recollections,' interrupted Canova, sobbing.

But Napoleon was too much pleased with the impression he had made on his listeners to think of stopping. Marie Louise had several times wiped the tears from his eyes.

'Listen to the rest,' resumed he, addressing the empress, 'we are coming to the denoument, which is well worthy of the rest of the story.'

The day following, as Canova was entering the garden of his grandfather, he saw Bettina Biasi approaching him.

'Five years had diminished none of her beauty, except that she was pale, and resembled one of his own white marble statues.

'O, Bettina! Bettina!' cried he, 'will you pardon my ingratitude, and confer on me a happiness I scarcely deserve? I had not yet seen you, when all the fervent and tender affection I once bore you returned upon me with increased strength.'

'Listen!' said Battina, whose voice trembled with emotion, 'listen! Antonio mio. I suffered much when I learnt that you were to be married to Dominica; but I felt, even then, dearest friend, that the humble village-girl of Padrazzi, the daughter of a peasant, the affianced of the apprentice Antonio, could never be the wife of the celebrated Canova. Nevertheless, I refused several offers of marriage, and for five years I lived upon the recollection of him I loved. But when I heard that you were about to return to Passagno—when I concluded, from my own feelings, that you would not be able to see me again without emotion—when I reflected that we might be both weak enough to renew intimacies rendered unreasonable by your present position, I was anxious to save us both, not only the possibility of yielding, but also the agitation and struggles we would have had to undergo—I married.'

'Married!—you married?'

'About eight days ago, to a deserving young man, who has sought my hand for more than four years.'

'Oh! that was a noble and worthy creature!' cried Marie Louise.

Canova had left his seat, and had gone to lean his head against the window, to conceal his grief.

A knock came to the door, and the minister of police, the Duc d'Otrante, put in his plain, but expressive head.

'Really, M. le Duc, you could not have arrived at a more opportune moment. See the effect I have produced, thanks to the information you have procured me from Italy within the last few days.'

'Adieu, Canova,' said he, gently patting the shoulder of the artist. 'Employ yourself in making the bust of my wife, and when you have finished it, if you still persist in returning to Italy, I suppose we must let you go.'

'Good-night! I have business with M. le Duc d'Otrante. Ah! it is a hard life, that of an Emperor,' said he. 'It is not often that I have an evening to myself and my friends, near the fire.'

'Now, come, M. le Duc.' And he went out with the minister.

We must not omit to add that this was the evening of the 11th of October, 1810, and that the Emperor, Marie Louise and Canova were in the same room and near the same fireplace where Napoleon signed his abdication, 11th of April, 1810.

ANCIENT COLD WINTERS.

The following statement, from an English paper, gives an account of some Winters when there was probably no croaking about "no ice," although there were just as many wise remarks as now about "such a winter as this never happened before:"

"In 401 the Black Sea was entirely frozen over. In 763, not only the Black Sea but the Straits of Dardanelles were frozen over; the snow in some places rose fifty feet high. In 822 the great rivers of Europe, the Danube, the Elbe, &c., were so hard as to bear heavy wagons for a month. In 860 the Adriatic was frozen. In 991 everything was frozen, the crops totally failed, and famine and pestilence closed the year. In 1067 many of the travelers in Germany were frozen to death on the roads. In 1134 the Po was frozen from Cremona to the sea; the wine sacks were burst, and the trees split by the action of the frost, with immense noise. In 1137 the Danube was frozen to the bottom, and remained long in that state. In 1307 the crops wholly failed in Germany; wheat which some years before sold at 6s, the quarter, rose to £2. In 1309 the crops failed in Scotland, and such a famine ensued that the poor were reduced to feed on grass, and many perished miserably in the fields. The successive Winters of 1452–54 were uncommonly severe. In 1568 the wine distributed to the soldiers was cut with hatchets. In 1663 it was excessively cold. Most of the hollies were killed. Coaches drove along the Thames, the ice of which was eleven inches thick. In 1609 occurred the cold Winter; the frost penetrated the earth three yards into the ground. In 1616 booths were erected on the Thames. In 1744 and 1744 and 1745 the strongest ale in England, exposed to the air, was covered in less than fifteen minutes with ice an eighth of an inch thick. In 1809, and again in 1812, the Winters were remarkably cold. In 1813 there was a fair on the frozen Thames."

In addition to this, let us think about some modern Winters. We cannot give exact dates, but we very well remember a snow storm in December, perhaps 1810 or '11, that fell two days and nights in Connecticut, actually burying some dwellings, so that the people had to be dug out by their neighbors. So furious and cold was the storm that all travel was suspended, and the stock remained uncared for, and some perished, and some were covered under the drifts, which were often twenty feet high. We remember one spot where the road was bordered with high stone walls and dense orchards upon each side, and a space of some ten rods between, the house and barn was filled to the top of the apple trees. That bank was traveled over till late in May, and during part of the time the traveled track was nearly, perhaps quite, twenty feet above the ground. The same year the ice froze to great thickness, but not as thick as it did some years later, when all the bridges upon the Shetucket river were crushed and swept away by ice three feet thick. How many years is it since all communication with Long Island Sound was closed, for a month? and what plumber has forgotten that water-pipes in this city have been frozen solid five feet under the pavement? And who of mature age does not know that we have had just such Winters as the present, almost without ice, and that we shall have them again.

MASONIC EMBLEMS.

It cannot be denied by those who have passed through the vails, that the progress of Masons, in their journey from darkness to light, is regulated at every point and stopping place, by some incident of illustration familiar to them as readers of God's inspired volume.

The ladder which Jacob saw has been adopted by us, the three principal rounds of which are Faith, Hope and Charity, and our whole course and progress are regulated by that beautiful implement which is to mark the degrees by which we are to ascend from our state of ignorance and indifference to the highest points of virtue and usefulness in Freemasonry.

There is not an emblem, not a badge, not a sign or signal, not an implement of our craft—there is nothing connected with our Heaven-ordained brotherhood, which is not designed either to teach a moral lesson, to inculcate some truth, to vindicate and establish some virtue to propagate some righteous principle of humanity, to relieve the sufferings of our kind, or to scatter light and knowledge among the races who fell with Adam, and by whose fall we have inherited sin and death, and all the evils that infest the earth, and that transformed our garden of Eden into a theatre of war, of treason, of stratagems, aye, of rank rebellion against the laws of nature, and the commands of the Most High.

Every piece of furniture in one of our lodges, every implement or instrument of work, every figure on the chequered floor, everything the eye can behold, impresses—or ought to do so—the mind with some truth, some principle, some moral and religious sentiment, or some precept of humanity.

The square which is used by all Masons, the level and the plumb, which likewise are found in every region, and in every lodge where Masonry has established its beneficent influence, teach such lessons of morality, virtue and religion as must command the respect of all regulated minds. The square enjoins morality, the plumb rectitude of conduct, and the level admonishes us that we are all equal.

In a word, the level which, with the square and plumb, constitute the immovable jewels of a Lodge, impress us that all men are equal by birth, that virtue, that talent, that probity, and that the noble exercises of the gifts with which we have been endowed by our Creator, alone make the difference between the men of this or any other generation of the sons of Adam. The worki of the society alone should enough to win the esteem man who has a right apprec the duties and the obligations, wants of life. There is sca instrument belonging to the ty that does not inculcate so of industry and that does no on the mind the importance a sity of labor. They not onl the lessons spoken of above men are equal, and are actua by nature, but they impress more important one, that labor, and must not be ash toil.

The Apron which Masons sides, being an emblem of in is the sign of industry, and badges and implements of o impart two ideas most essent perceived, those of labor and The curse pronounced upon (and consequently upon eac posterity,) was, "in the swea face shalt thou eat bread u return into the ground." rites, mysteries, ceremonies servances of Freemasonry this stern command. The lars of a Lodge represent wi devise, strength to support, an to adorn.—N. Y. Sat. Courie

Original.

YOUTHFUL FRIENDSHI

BY C. F. HOBART.

What fond and generous fri are often bred among youth panions in the bright epoch day life! Then the innoce gayety, and hope of unsoph hearts create sky and land an robe the scene in their own s No cynic frost has fallen on interested sympathies. The has not laid its icy hands throbbing pulses. Our faith other, in whatever is lovely, heroic, knows no limits. T frequent it is for attachments up, at whose stainless since tender romance we smile years! When, alas! in to cases, time has hardly brought to compensate for what it h away! Together we wander the fields as though enchanted We dream dreams resplend the triumphs we fondly v think to win. In the artles that pure time our secret transparent, and in the unflawe ness of our communion we look each other. Our joys, our gr whole hearts, are united in friendship whose strength a ness foretell a sweeter and n than the fairest passeges o have as yet realized.

These halcyon unions rarely a full entrance upon the comm suits of life. But they are p And when the cares of the the deceitfulness of riches, a sins comes upon us and alie still their glorious oracles a all forgotten. They haunt voices from the fairy land. the cliffs and shores of me verberate the plaintive echoe love, calling after many a Hylas vanished from beside tain of youth. How often membrance of the friends friendships of other days co from the by-gone times, w knew them, and fill our hearts the wild, sad memories of an harp! Who, as he reviews lowed hours that went so sw the morning of life, and re dear, familiar faces laid so the dust of the grave, wo ashamed to shed a tear to the gled memory?

South Danvers, March 14,

☞ "Can you tell me h word Saloon is spelt?" was a Cockney by a Philadelphian. tainly," said the Londoner wit of triumph; "there's a he a hay, and a hell, and two h a hen."

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18, 1863.

RICHMOND.

People have come to regard the capture of Richmond as the sine qua non to the suppression of the rebellion. The early and continued aim and purpose of Government to take this soi disant capital have so kept the popular eye fixed upon it, as the stronghold, as it were, the jugular vein of disloyalty, that the popular mind has come to believe that until the sword of the Union strikes it, the gigantic revolt will live, move and have full being. It is, to be sure, a desirable thing, as respects sound abroad, to have it said that the "capital" of the rebels is captured. It is also desirable as tending to dishearten the rebellious masses, who would doubtless reason that all must be lost, if their capital is lost. But the capture, nevertheless, is to be regarded more as matter of sound than of substance. Suppose Jeff. Davis had located his capital on the peak of the Alleghanies or in the center of Chickahominy, must we, for the sake of the empty sound of "his capital is taken," climb up the one or slump through the other? The capital of sworn rebels will be somewhere until the means and source of rebel capital are extinguished. It may as well be at Richmond as anywhere else. But if it is not found so practicable to exhaust the sources of rebel capital by moving on Richmond, then move on some other point. The paramount object is to curtail the resources of traitors. It is not Vicksburg we care about, but its position. Therefore we dig a canal to suck away its position. No more should we care about Richmond. Richmond is little or nothing, except as the chosen council chamber of traitors. Therefore, instead of longer spending our strength in attempts upon a city which we have given them two years to fortify, why not dig a "canal in the shape of vigorous movements in the rear of Richmond and drain it of its importance, as we are about thus to drain Vicksburg? Half the life, time and money, which we have spent in the "On to Richmond" movement, would have walled that viperous city into Palmyrian isolation. If it is not easy to crush the serpent's head, cut it off. It is humiliating to look on the map and see the monstrous snake of rebellion running his Richmond head up North through a mere neck of land. We have been huddled about Manassas staring at his teeth, his eyes and tongue—shooting and wondering if we shall ever stop his heady demonstrations, long enough. Cut off his head. Let Foster, or Hunter, or Rosecrans, or Butler, or all together, march from Washington, N. C., to Lexington, Ky., right across his neck with the engines of war. That will be an "On to Richmond" worth celebrating.

GOLD SPECULATION.

A good story is told of two of our late townsmen who have emigrated to Boston or its neighborhood, both of whom are men of wealth and were touched with the gold mania. At the time gold had reached its highest point, the elder of the two, finding that gold had rapidly advanced, made up his mind that it was a good time to sell out his stock of the yellow dust. The younger one had delayed buying until he found the article going up rapidly and determined to obtain some of it while it was rising. It happened that the old gentleman was passing up State street, loaded down with one or two thousand dollars, determined to be rid of it on the top of the wave. On this way he met the younger driving down the street, half crazy to buy gold. He accosted the elder one and made known his business, begging him to assist him in making his purchase. The old man was willing, and told him that he knew of an old fellow who would sell $1500 or $2000 at 73 per cent. advance. The younger one was eager to have it and promised him $5.00 if he would find the seller of the gold. He would have pressed the cash upon him, but the old one was well acquainted with the old fellow who had it and believed he could find him in the city. He accordingly went in pursuit, while the other anxiously awaited his return. Passing around through two or three streets, he came back to the place appointed and delivered the gold, taking for it good paper money at 73 per cent. advance! Both were highly pleased for the time, but the next day gold dropped down some 20 per cent., to the deep chagrin of the younger, and great satisfaction of the elder speculator. It was a case of diamond cutting diamond.

COAL FALLING.—It will be noticed by the advertisement of W. P. Phillips & Co., that they are now selling their coal, on the wharf, for $7.75, which is a reduction of 50 cents per ton from their former price.

ACCIDENT.—We regret to learn that Mr. CALVIN PIERCE, of this town, lost two or three of his fingers by coming in contact with a circular saw, while working at Taylor's Mills, on Monday last.

☞ The following letter from a New York correspondent is from the same hand as the one in the last week's paper, who so faithfully photographed the copperhead political snakes of New York:

NEW YORK CITY, 12th March, 1863.

MR. WIZARD,—Grinding among the iron facts of the Rebellion it was refreshing, I assure you, to attend such a war meeting as was held last week at the Cooper Institute. And there radiates from such a gathering fresh hope and a healthy enthusiasm. Following immediately the adjournment of Congress it was a pledge by the city that the new measures should receive the support of the people. The speakers were mostly Democrats. James T. Brady, the well known advocate and Breckinridge candidate for Governor of this State in 1860, John Van Buren and Judge Daly, occupied the larger portion of the time. They severally declared themselves for war until the rebellion shall be overthrown, and pledged their best efforts to the Administration in its war measures. The copperheads (and by "copperhead," I mean the class of beings described in my last) writhe under the lashings of a quickened public opinion. They are enraged beyond measure at the success which loyalty achieved in securing from Congress the ways and means for striking the final blow. Like lost spirits, the leaders howl their disappointment into the ears of their deluded followers.

Vallandigham tore his passion to tatters last Saturday night at a meeting on Broadway. But they have played too high, and they have lost. They misinterpreted the meaning of the people at the late elections. They thought the Democratic success meant peace and amity with rebels, while really they meant a more vigorous prosecution of the war and destruction to the rebellion.

Only a mean and an unphilosophical man can become a copperhead, and such a man inevitably uses a mean and cowardly philosophy in his political reasonings. Hitherto, while delays reverses and disasters have perplexed the Nation in the extreme, the copperhead philosophy has had a few months of putrescent growth and expansion, and for a time longer it may seem to flourish, but its end is certain and near. Vulture-like it has fed upon defeats and the public sorrow, and it will not endure before the victories of a hopeful patriotism.

These copperheads, now so rampant, will be glad enough to assume the garb and speech of loyal citizens, but history will render them ample justice. The newspapers and the memories of patriotic citizens are day by day embalming them and we shall have, after the war is over, catacombs of copperheads drier and blacker and uglier than the mummies of Egypt. A tory may escape the pillory of popular execration by repentance, but no death-bed repentance will avail him. The load of shame and infamy which will settle on the head of the man who continues in the tory cry of peace with armed rebels, will inevitably crush him. His neighbors will detest him; his children will abhor his memory when he is dead.

In this city, so populous with such a varied representation of humanity, and with interests so diverse, a commercial metropolis tied by a thousand lines to the cotton-growing land, it would be strange were there not some elements of disorganization naturally crystallizing around a double-headed rebellion, like the present. Such elements do exist. With money, presses have been subsidized—as the "World" and the "Express"—and a fierce paper war has been conducted against the Government. So far has this thing been carried that, strange to relate, some men of wealth have been found so blind to their own pecuniary and social interests as to toy with the copperhead spirit of anarchy and revolution. Now, however, it is confidently set forth that a powerful re-action has begun and that the returning tide of patriotism is sweeping every obstacle from its path.

John Van Buren's late war speech is significant because supposed to convey Gov. Seymour's opinions, and when Seymour ranges himself with the Government, the main stay of copperheadism here is swept away.

Into whatever herd of swine these spirits go when cast out that particular herd, will meet collectively and individually, with a watery death—at least, such is the opinion of

Yours truly, GREGORY.

LATE WAR NEWS.—Entire confidence is felt in official circles that the rebels will have to, or have already, evacuated Vicksburg. Admiral Porter's dispatch confirms the report of the entrance of the Federal fleet into the Yazoo river; thus showing the statement of the capture of the rebel transports to be true, and that by the cutting off of supplies the rebels can no longer hold Vicksburg.

Gen. Milroy telegraphs from Winchester that there is no truth in the reiterated reports of a rebel advance up the Virginia Valley.

Secretary Chase returned to Washington from New York, entirely gratified with the results of his financial mission.

A large number of refugees from Richmond arrived in Washington yesterday.

FENOLLOSA'S CONCERT.—Our readers need not to be reminded that this grand entertainment comes off to-night at the Institute. It will draw immensely, and all who want tickets should apply immediately as there will none be sold at the door, and there will be no admissions without a ticket. Salem people appreciate these amateur performances and we may expect to see a goodly number of visitors from that suburb.

SALEM UNION LEAGUE.—This patriotic association holds its first public meeting at Mechanic Hall to-morrow evening, when it will be addressed by its President, Rev. Dr. BRIGGS. It is open to the public, and we do not doubt that many will be there from South Danvers, attracted by the goodness of the cause and the fame of the principal speaker.

THE MONITOR.—Mr. W. H. Fairbank, of Washington, has made a proposition to raise the original Monitor, for the sum of $75,000.00, if the Government will find her whereabouts and furnish tugs.

SOLDIERS' AID SOCIETY.

LETTER FROM GENERAL ROSECRANS.

An appeal having recently been made in behalf of our suffering soldiers at Murfreesboro', this Society forwarded a box containing shirts, fifty pairs of stockings, and other articles of clothing.

The following letter has been received in acknowledgment of the gift:—

HEADQUARTERS DEP'T. OF THE CUMBERLAND,
MURFREESBORO', Feb. 2, 1863.

The General commanding presents his warmest acknowledgments to the friends of the soldiers of this army whose generous sympathy with the suffering of the sick and wounded has induced them to send, for their comfort, numerous sanitary supplies, which are continually arriving, by the hands of individuals and charitable societies. While he highly appreciates and does not under-value the charities which have been lavished on this army, experience has demonstrated the importance of system and impartiality, as well as judgment and economy, in the forwarding and distribution of these supplies. In all these respects the United-States Sanitary Commission stands unrivalled. Its organization, experience, and large facilities for the work are such, that the General does not hesitate to recommend, in the most urgent manner, all those who desire to send sanitary supplies, to confide them to the care of this Commission.

They will thus insure the supplies reaching their destination without wastage or expense of agents or transportation, and their being distributed in a judicious manner without disorder or interference with the regulations and usages of the service.

This Commission acts in full concert with the Medical Department of the Army, and enjoys its confidence. It is thus enabled, with a few agents, to do a large amount of good at the proper time, and in the proper way. Ever since the battle of Stones River, it has distributed a surprisingly large amount of clothing, lint, bandages, and bedding, as well as milk, concentrated beef, fruit, and other sanitary stores, essential to the recovery of the sick and wounded.

W. S. ROSECRANS,
Major-General, Commanding Dep't.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ELECTION. — Returns have been received from all but a few towns, showing that the Democratic candidate for Governor will lack about 700 of being elected. Daniel Marcy, Democrat, may be elected in the First Congressional District by a small majority. Edward H. Rollins, Republican, is elected in the Second District by about 300 majority. James W. Patterson, Republican, is elected in the Third District by about 500 majority. The Council will stand 3 Republicans and 2 Democrats; the Senate 9 Republicans and 3 Democrats. The Republican majority in the House of Representatives will be about 50. The Republican candidate for Governor will be elected by the Legislature.

TOPSFIELD.—Samuel Shepard, Esq., brother of the late Michael Shepard, of Salem, died suddenly on Friday in Topsfield. He left his boarding house soon after dinner to step into a neighbor's, and shortly after was found dead in the street.

On the same day, Mr. Israel Rea met with a severe accident. He went to the barn about four o'clock in the morning to feed his cattle. He ascended a ladder, and when at the top it slipped and he fell, injuring himself very severely if not fatally.

THE HORSE RAILROAD.—It will be seen by those who have watched the proceedings of the Legislature that the act extending the track of the railroad to Beverly has passed all its stages and only need the Governor's signature to become a law. The general law requiring the wide gauge for all railroads, has also passed. This is as it should be.

DIED.—At the Alms House, Sibyl Swinerton, formerly a slave of the late Mr. John Swinerton of Danvers, Mass. Sibyl has been an inmate of the house a long time, and was 93 years of age at her death. She must have been very young when, by a decision of our courts, slavery was abolished in Massachusetts.

ADJUTANT FRANK W. TAGGARD.—We are glad to learn that Lieut. TAGGARD has been appointed to the position of Assistant Adjutant General, with the rank of Captain, and that his appointment has been confirmed by the President. This will prove quite gratifying to his many friends at home.

SCHOOL DISTRICT COMMITTEES. Wallis District No. 1—George P. Daniels, Chas. D. Howard, John S. Torr; Clerk—R. O. Spiller.

Centre District No. 2—A. P. Phillips, Warren Wilson, Thos. Stimpson; John A. Lord, Clerk.

☞ An East Tennessee hunter has collected about five hundred men in the mountains, who can pick a squirrel off the top of the tallest oak with their long rifles, and is ambuscading the rebel cavalry at all points, and wiping out whole squads of them with astonishing celerity.

A VICTORY AT YAZOO PASS.—The Yazoo Pass project was a complete success. Our fleet captured 26 rebel steamers, 18 of which were destroyed.

LEGISLATIVE.—The bill in addition to an act to incorporate the Salem and South Danvers Railroad Company, was ordered to be engrossed on Friday last.

☞ Watch Lost. See advertisement.

In Memory of Our Grandmother, Mrs. Mehitable Cheever, formerly of North Danvers.

For more than four-score years and ten,
Life's thorny path she trod,
And then her soul returned again
To its first giver—God.

She died as sinks the setting sun,
That melts in light away;
A palm of victory she hath won,
In realms of endless day.

Although her eyes were often dim,
'Mid scenes of trial here,
But yet, her trust was still in Him
Who dries the mourner's tear.

And they who, by her wise commands,
Were reared in youthful bloom,
Have smoothed with tender, loving hands,
Her pathway to the tomb.

They gathered, weeping, round her head—
Weeping that she must die;
A few fond parting words she said,
Then sought her home on high.

And then above her sleeping dust
Was sung earth's last farewell,
But her freed soul had gone, we trust,
A higher song to swell.

Her's was a life on earth well spent;
Her children call her blest,
And feel that when life's cords were rent,
Her spirit went to rest.

We miss her, and our earthly loss
We feel is hard to bear,
But she has left life's weary cross
A starry crown to wear.

Yes, she has gone, with God to dwell,
Where ceaseless praises rise,
And angel's voices mingling, swell
The anthem of the skies.

Then, though her gentle, cheerful voice
Is heard on earth no more,
Let us not weep—rather rejoice
That all her trials are o'er.

And while we to her memory give
This tribute of our love,
Let us endeavor so to live
That we may meet above.

AUGUSTA.

Rumney, N. H., 1863.

☞ When Admiral Blake was fighting the battles of England in the wars under Cromwell's government, which he opposed, he gave this answer to his men, who were inclined to mutiny—"It is our duty to stand by and fight for our country, no matter in whose hands the government may temporarily be." This quotation was given by Judge Daly in his speech at the Union meeting in New York, eliciting repeated bursts of applause; and it embodies the doctrine to be preached not only to the copperheads of Gotham, but to the race, whatever portion of the country they disgrace.

☞ Robert Small, the famous negro pilot who brought the Planter out of Charleston harbor, has since been keeping a restaurateur at Beaufort, S. C. "Carlton," of the Boston Journal, visited his shanty to get something to eat, but did not appear to find anything very restorative although hunger compelled him to eat heartily. Small says that 6000 negroes are behind the batteries at Savannah, and 10,000 in and around the forts at Charleston, and believes that in ten days he can raise a force of 10,000 loyal blacks to fight for the Union.

☞ The Rev. Moses Parsons of Byfield, father of Chief Justice Parsons, had a salary of two hundred and eighty dollars, on which he brought up a family of seven children, three of whom he sent to college, besides which he gave away much in charity and kept a hospitable house. How many clerks in these days, with nobody but themselves to look after, could live on that sum without fingering the money drawer?

☞ Hon. James T. Brady in the course of his remarks at the Union meeting in New York on Friday evening, concurred in the remark of Gen. Shields, that "wherever the Yankees set up a blacksmith shop, a tavern, or a schoolhouse, he never was known to secede from it." Mr. B.'s comments located Yankee residents in the insurgent States.

☞ Superstition among the Hindoos is still very great. During a solar eclipse on the 1st of January, crowds of people assembled at the Ganges to bathe in its sacred waters. A correspondent estimates the grand total at the almost incredible number of four millions! Such crowds had not been seen in the river for half a century.

☞ The town of Bridgewater has voted, by a large majority, to pay to all the soldiers who have enlisted into the United States service from that town, for the term of three years, the sum of $100 each, with interest on the same from the time they were mustered into the service, provided they shall receive an honorable discharge.

☞ The Legislature has passed an act making it the duty of the clerk of every city and town in the Commonwealth, to make out and keep a roll of honor, in which all the particulars of the military career of each volunteer shall be duly noted. This is a good thing, and we trust will be fully carried out. It will be a document of great importance in future years.

☞ The great Union meeting in New York will have its effect upon the rebels in the South and particularly upon their sympathizers in the North. The loyal democrats who addressed the meeting were severe in their denunciation of all schemes for compromise, and enthusiastic in favor of putting the war through with vigor and determination.

☞ The news from the vicinity of New Orleans indicates a movement upon Port Hudson pretty soon, and Rosecrans in Tennessee is feeling his way along towards the rebels who are waiting for him to whip them once more before our final and complete occupancy of that State.

☞ New York is making preparations for its own defence, in addition to what government is doing, having appropriated one million of dollars, to be raised on 7 per cent. bonds. It will take a pretty good sum to fortify that harbor as it should be in these times of iron-clads.

☞ The provost officers of Rhode Island have begun to cut the army buttons from citizens' coats, in pursuance of a recent order that prohibits any citizen from wearing a United States uniform, no matter how he came by it, whether by purchase or otherwise.

LETTER FROM GEN. DODGE.

Warning to Northern Tories!

[Below we give a letter from General DODGE, our former townsman, who has won by his good sword a high place among our military commanders. It is refreshing to have such sentiments at this time from such a source. Its scathing remarks will make the copperhead fraternity wince. The action of the western troops in relation to the secession sympathizers at home, is quite severe on that class of northern rebels. Now for the letter.—]

CORINTH, MISS., Feb. 6, 1863.

DEAR ——, This Army Corps is in excellent condition and ready for the heavy work not far ahead of us. If things looked as bright in our rear as they do in our front, we should have no cause to complain, but we cannot divine or see the policy ruling loyal men in the North just now. I do hope no more men will be cast into prison to be let loose to howl, without either charge, indictment or trial. Is it possible that when victory is in our reach we are to be sold out and disgraced? What are we coming to, and what can this army think, when we see leading men in the North spend days, weeks, and even months denouncing this war, this army, and bolstering up the enemy in every conceivable way. Their entire stock of denunciation comes from the fact that some rebel's negro will fire a shot in defense of our cause, our country and flag. They have not one word to say in favor or defense of the best, bravest, and most united army the world ever saw—who have fought battle after battle, and have retained every foot of ground they have won, and who to-day have their base in the very centre of the enemy's country—not one word against all the barbarities used against us, although negroes and Indians have shot at us on almost every field, and are to-day in all their ranks. Nor have they one tear to shed for the thousands of brave, noble men who have fallen in support of a government the northern traitors would turn over to rebels, to the disgrace and ruin of twenty millions of people. Not one word do they utter in favor of the men who have stood up for two years and fought battle after battle against a foe who have met us with a savage ferocity and cruelty hardly excelled by the cannibals, and who to-day say to every officer in this army—Should you chance to fall into our hands, we will hand you over to a community to be dealt with, that are to-day chasing their own citizens into their army or out of their lines with bloodhounds. Our soldiers see and hear all this, and say—Is it possible that just now, when, by a combined effort, with the moral support that we have a right to expect from the north, and when we are on the eve of crushing out this rebellion which is tottering and tumbling from its own iniquitous weight, that these traitors at home will come in and prop it up, and give it such aid and comfort that two hundred thousand more lives must be lost before it falls?

I say it unhesitatingly, and the voice of the army will support it, if it was not for the aid the rebels receive, and that promised from the North, connected with the traitorous effort to demoralize, disorganize, and break up our army, the rebellion would be done for in ninety days.

These men in the North have promised the rebels if they will hold out three months longer, that they will so divide the North, and draw such support from the army, that we will agree to any peace the rebels may dictate; and on that agreement the rebels are to-day dragging men into their army in chains—conscripting every one, old and young that is not on crutches, to meet our armies moving South; and these traitors North are carrying out their part of the agreement by sowing distrust, dissatisfaction and dissension in our army, to the best of their ability, and openly declare it shall not be filled up; in fact telling us we can go on until we get so weak that the rebels can crush us. They send through the rebel lines the Chicago Times, Cincinnati Enquirer, and other treasonable sheets, which are extensively copied from in their "Orders," and by their press to keep up the waning spirits of their people, and a soldier cannot go out of our lines into theirs, but what some treasonable article copied from Northern papers is flirted in his face to prove their ultimate success. It was only a few days ago that one of their officers, high in command, near here, said that to divide the North was their last and only hope,—that there was a perfect understanding with these northern traitors, and even said to the Missouri soldiers when they returned home the North would treat them with more respect than they would the 'Lincoln hordes,' and when asked by the loyal man if the Southern men or press should uphold the Union cause as this Northern press upholds theirs, What would be done? he answered, "why hang them of course.—We don't allow any Union sentiments in our lines."

Is it a wonder this army sends up a cry of indignation and demands that open treason shall not take possession of their homes, and that they shall not be disgraced by acts committed by those left behind? There is a pent up volcano down here and no matter what our fate, I know what prejudices and what determination the army will carry back against these men, and if they knew how carefully every treasonable letter, written here from the North, is circulated and laid up for a future settlement, they would send it to a different market from the army.

The different tunes they sing on the Negro — Constitution — Administration and the War,—no matter how plausible or what oily tongue puts them forth, they do not weigh a feather against the principles that nature has instilled into the loyal soldier and which Rebel bullets have made doubly dear. They may influence a coward, or a soldier forced into the army against his will or one who will get out at all hazards, but that noble band who flocked to our colors and have stood by them through many a battle, and can count his comrades' graves in a dozen Rebel States, they pass by like the wind. Thank God they have not as yet moved us one iota—nothing but chagrin and indignation has gone forth from the soldiers. I hope it will cause the instigators of it to stop and think.

If you want your spirit aroused come down here and listen to this devilish cry from the North and see how the army feels over it. Notice the resolutions passed by the Illinois officers. That meeting was composed of nearly every officer of the Illinois regiments here, and was led by prominent Democrats. The hearty indorsement the resolutions received from the soldiers and all would astonish you. It will not do to meet these men with the charge that they are soldiers—machines—and do the bidding of Lincoln. They obey military orders, but when it comes to civil policy they are as out-spoken as any one.

We want—

1. A Conscript Law;
2. A Law defining Treason;
3. Better discipline and the enforcement of sentences of death on deserters;
4. A general raking of the North for deserters—their return and punishment;
5. If the Conscript Law is resisted, send for old regiments. I will guarantee they will enforce it;
6. No promotions; no appointments only except of officers who have their hearts in the war;
7. And lastly, every man who is living off of Government should be made to support the war by word and action. If he will not, and is lukewarm from fear of the copperheads, have him removed, and put a disabled soldier in his place, who has a Rebel bullet in his body, and you will have a war man.

If it is to be a divided North, for God sake don't feed, support and uphold men by Government influence and money who are opposed to us. I am in earnest in this matter, and do not want to go home disgraced by a set of men who were always traitors, but now only allowed to spit it out. Yours, etc.

☞ The captured steamer Bermuda, whose time is 15 miles per hour, is to be converted into a man-of-war, and to be sent after the Alabama. This will be making good use of an English bottom—we hope she will do the work effectually.

FIRE IN DANVERSPORT.—About three o'clock on Sunday morning the currying establishment of Mr. Joseph Merrill in Danversport was entirely destroyed by fire. No alarm was given here.

☞ Four hundred deserters from Gen. Hooker's army were recently sentenced by the Court Martial to hard labor during the residue of the term of enlistment.

PERSONAL.—The annual commencement of the Medical School of Harvard College took place on Wednesday, 57 members graduating, among whom were Arthur Kemble, Wenham, George Sterne Osborne, So. Danvers, and Elisha Hervey Quimby, Salem. Six dissertations were read—one, on delirium trements, by Geo. Sterne Osborne of South Danvers.

☞ Tea has been found growing wild in one of the districts of Pennsylvania, and in consequence a company is forming in Philadelphia to go into the culture of that herb.

☞ Substitutes are in demand at Richmond and command from $1800 to $2000. Report saith not in what payment is to be made.

☞ The Montauk is said to have run upon a torpedo, which exploded, lifting her two feet and slightly disarranging her machinery.

☞ The general opinion among Horticulturists is, that the winter past was unfavorable for fruit trees.

☞ The army of Gen. Hooker, as now disposed, occupies an area of 40 square miles.

☞ Wooden nutmegs are used in place of nickels by the grocers of New Haven when they want small change now-a-days.

☞ The Harpers consume upwards of a thousand reams of printing paper a day in their publishing establishment.

STRANGE INCIDEN: (Va.) correspondent o Appeal, makes the fo which show what sa results of the conflict upon the country:— when the famous stea terward changed into federate government, across the Atlantic, sl remember, Southampt officers were received tality by the authoriti Commander Wainwri Merrimac's First Lieu ing up to London, w Dr. Holland, who was great metropolis. Th him again alive, and feeling of astonishmen of the commander of lying on her deck, h years ago in London. the terrible tragedies o was enacted upon the s slippery stage, when M Confederate army, en dying Lieutenant of th his own son! Can histo any parallel to this? I too, which has not Capt. Leon Smith, to gallantry General Ma the entire success of enemy's fleet in Galv brother of Caleb B. S recently the Secretary Lincoln's cabinet.

☞ A Mobile dispa says:—The Yankees Tennessee River to Flo a fleet of gunboats. A landed, and were destro route.

☞ The Cabinet could not a distinguished English state take steps towards the recogn ern Confederacy. In expla such is the reaction in favo Union in Great Britain.

☞ A writer in the Lond proposes to reciprocate our exp ly feeling toward the Lancash sending back the George Gris go of medical stores for the F

☞ In Indiana four pers treasonable conduct by couns to Government measures, hav tenced to pay a fine of five hu

☞ The Senate confirmed a military appointments on Mon that of Col. E. W. Hinks of t be brigadier-general.

☞ The rebels have negro well as white men, along the b pahannock. The rebels at th posed to using negroes in the a ☞ Gen. Hooker is quietly he cannot move his whole arm out scouting parties and exped the enemy.

FAST DAY.—The Governor, of Council, has appointed Thur as the day of annual fasting an

☞ Do not neglect to read th headed "How to Make Five

SKIRTS.—All sizes and prices each to $2.50. At PEABODY street.

SKIRTS.—All sizes and prices each to $2.50. At PEABODY street.

SKIRTS.—All sizes and prices each to $2.50. At PEABODY street.

GRACE'S SALVE.—From John the Poet:—

AMESBURY, 8th 3d

Respected Friend:

I thank thee for thy favor and panying box. I have not had oc it myself, but have heard it very h of by such of my neighbors as h and have no doubt of its being a v pound.

Very truly thy friend
JOHN G. W

To WM. GRACE.

See advertisement of Grace's Sal

SKIRTS.—All sizes and prices fr each to $2.50. At PEABODY'S, street.

SKIRTS.—All sizes and prices fr each to $2.50. At PEABODY'S, street.

SKIRTS.—All sizes and prices fro each to $2.50. At PEABODY'S, street.

BOSTON—Amusements.—At the ard, Miss Maggie Mitchell has ach triumphs as Marie, the Pearl of S this week she appears as Little Barefo piece by the author of Fanchon.

At the Museum, Boston's favorit Mrs. Barrow, is now playing a brie ment, which announcement is suffici the house.

At the Academy of Music, the Op pany, under the management of Mr. on the last week of their engageme Kellogg having recovered from her i tion.

At the Melonson, the beautiful Un leau of a trip from Louisiana to Mai bined with a Parlor Concert by Mr. Lawrence, are on exhibition.

At the New Tremont—Mrs. Jane E Theatre—the Ravel Troupe, with new and dancers, are attracting excellent Go and see them.

SKIRTS.—All sizes and prices from each to $2.50. At PEABODY'S, 22 street.

one of Rhoades' National Clothes ..., before purchasing elsewhere. For ... Equity Store, South Danvers. See ...ement.

SPRING SKIRTS.—If you want the prettiest shaped skirt in the market go ... PEABODY'S, and get his new Gore ...—out new last week.

...sit OSBORNE'S Store, and look at the ... variety of new styles in HATS and ... 191 Essex street.

Lost!

...day last, between Pleasant and Park ... FITCH FUR TIPPET. The finder ...awarded by leaving it at my residence, ...o. P. Daniels' store.

Mrs. C. A. OSGOOD, Pleasant St. ...th Danvers, February 25, 1862.

Found!

...Gold Ring—containing some hair—mark- ...FRED." The owner can have it by ap- ... to S. A. OSBORNE. ...th Danvers, Feb. 25, 1863.

Save your Rags and Paper!

...he subscriber will pay the highest prices in ...SH for Rags and Paper. By giving seas- ...ble notice he will call at the houses of ... who wish to dispose of their rags.

..."penny saved is as good as a penny earned.", ...Poor Richard says.

SUMNER SOUTHWICK. South Danvers, Jan 14, 1863.

Marriages.

In South Danvers, March 10, by Rev Mr Barber, Mr George O. Pierce to Miss Charlotte A. M'Clennan.

In Danvers, March 14, by Rev Mr Fletcher, Mr Timothy G. Haley to Miss Helen M. Joy, both of Danvers.

In Salem, March 4, by Rev Mr Cox, Mr Jas F. Harris to Mrs Mary Jane Snow, both of Marblehead.

Deaths.

In South Danvers, March 12, Mr Richard Osborne, 75 years.

Mr. OSBORNE was a native of this town and has through life been much esteemed as one of our most worthy, upright and substantial citizens. A man of excellent judgment and well informed, he might on many occasions have been placed in offices of useiulness and honor in the town, but he almost always declined any offered public service, except one or two years attendance at the General Court as a representative. Few men pass away from us leaving behind them a legacy to their families and their fellow citizens of a name so honored and a reputation so unsullied. He had strong and peculiar attachment to his own immediate neighborhood, where he was regarded almost as an oracle and where his influence was widely felt.

He has been a member of the Unitarian Society ever since its organization, and his death, together with that of the late Mr. Nathan Pearson, have caused a great breach in that Society.

Mrs. Catharine Augusta, wife of Mr Henry C. Poor, 34 years 10 mos.

March 14, Mrs Betsey White, relict of the late Mr Samuel White, aged 77 years 7 mos 4 days.

In Danvers, March 8, Mrs Mary, wife of Mr Michael Reynolds, 40 yrs.

In Danvers Centre, Mch 11, Almira Briggs, only child of Benjamin and Almira B Millett, 4 years 10 mos.

March 6, William H, son of Thomas B and Emily C George, 19 mos 6 ds.

In Salem, 10th, Mrs Martha, widow of the late Mr John Redford, 78; 13th, Mrs Catharine, widow of the late Mr Roger Kennedy, 53; 14th, Mr Robert Trofatter, 65; Eliza Ellen, daughter of George S and Lucinda R Kimball, 3 years 9 mos.

16th, Mr Joseph Sibley, 69 years.

In Marblehead, Feb 20, Mrs Rebecca, widow of the late Thomas A Davis, 71; Mch 13, Mr Joseph Roundey, 45.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

THE ADVERTISER HAVING BEEN RESTORED to health in a few weeks, by a very simple remedy, after having suffered several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease, Consumption—is anxious to make known to his fellow-sufferers the means of cure.

To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription used (free of charge,) with the directions for preparing and using the same, which they will find a SURE CURE for CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c. The only object of the advertiser in sending the Prescription is to benefit the afflicted, and spread information which he conceives to be invaluable, and he hopes every sufferer will try his remedy, as it will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing.

Rev. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburgh, March, 18, 3m Kings County, New York.

EDITOR OF WIZARD—Dear Sir: With your permission I wish to say to the readers of your paper that I will send by return mail to all who wish it, (free) a Recipe, with full directions for making and using a simple Vegetable Balm, that will effectually remove, in 10 days, Pimples, Blotches, Tan, Freckles and all Impurities of the Skin, leaving the same soft, clear, smooth and beautiful.

I will also mail free to those having Bald Heads or Bare Faces, simple directions and information that will enable them to start a full growth of Luxurient Hair, Whiskers, or a Moustache, in less than 30 days. All applications answered by return mail without charge. Respectfully yours.

THOS. F. CHAPMAN, Chemist, March 18 2m No. 231 Broadway, New York.

M. FENOLLOSA, TEACHER OF MUSIC,

LETS.....PIANO FORTES, at the lowest rates;

SELLS.....PIANO FORTES, at the Manufacturers Prices;

EXCHANGES....PIANO FORTES, on the easiest terms;

At Rooms No. 7 Central street, feb 11 SALEM, MASS.

New Jersey Lands for Sale,

— ALSO —

GARDEN OR FRUIT FARMS,

Suitable for Grapes, Peaches, Pears, Raspberries, Strawberries, Blackberries, Currants, &c., of 1, 2½, 5, 10 or 20 acres each, at the following prices for the present, viz: 20 acres for $200, 10 acres for $110, 5 acres for $60, 2½ acres for $40, 1 acre for $20. Payable by one dollar a week.

Also, good Cranberry lands, and village lots in CHETWOOD 25 by 100 feet, at $10 each, payable by one dollar a week. The above land and farms are situated at Chetwood, Washington Township, Burlington, New Jersey. For further information, apply with a P. O. Stamp, for a circular, to

B. FRANKLIN CLARK, feb 18, 1863 No. 90 Cedar St, New York, N. Y.

MANUAL FENOLLOSA, TEACHER OF THE Violin, Piano and Singing, Music Rooms, No. 7 Central Street, SALEM, MASS.

How to Make $5.00 a Day, When all other Efforts have Failed.

HOOD & CO., 186 Broadway, New York, have just published ONE HUNDRED VALUABLE SECRETS, possessing them, any one, male or female, can easily make $5 a day, without capital, in any city or village. Every one should possess these secrets, for they are worth $500 to any single or married person. Some of these Secrets have been sold for $20 each. One alone cost us $250 for the right to publish it. When you once own them you will never part with them for money. Several persons are now making $120 per month by these Secrets alone. By them any person may make money easily and rapidly. We send one Book of Secrets for 25 cents, two copies, 40 cents, club of three for 50 cts., club of four 65 cts. club of five 75 cts., club of eight copies, $1. Send Government money.

New York, Feb 18, 1863. 3m

But now his nose is thin,
And it rests upon his chin
Like a staff!
And a crook is in his back,
And a melancholy crook in his laugh.

That is the man who refused to take Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit to cure his disordered stomach—hence the crook in his back, and the melancholy tones of his voice.

Ham's Invigorating Spirit can be obtained at Mr. D. P. Grosvenor's Apothecary Shop, 53 Main St.

Advertisements.

Salem and South Danvers Railroad.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN TO THE abutters on the following streets in South Danvers, viz.:—Main Street from its termination at the line of the city of Salem to its other termination at South Danvers Square—thence through the Square and Central Street to Wilson's Corner—that a meeting of the Selectmen of South Danvers will be held at the TOWN HOUSE on FRIDAY, the third day of APRIL next, at 2 o'clock P. M., at which time and place the Selectmen of said Town will fix and determine the location, and manner of construction of the track or tracks of the "Salem and South Danvers Railroad" in the streets aforesaid—at which meeting such abutters may appear and shew cause, if any there be, why said track or tracks should not be so located and constructed.

JOSEPH POOR, A. W. BANCROFT, DANA WOODBURY, } Selectmen of South Danvers.

South Danvers, March 18, 1863.

Guardian's Sale of Real Estate in South Danvers.

WILL be sold by order of Probate Court, at Public Auction, on the premises, on FRIDAY, the third day of April next, at half past three o'clock in the afternoon, eleven seventy-seconds (11-72) of a certain lot of land, with the buildings thereon, situate on Central Street, South Danvers, in the county of Essex, and State of Massachusetts, containing about twenty-eight thousand feet, the same being the "Tan-yard Lot" belonging to the estate of Joseph Poor, late of South Danvers, deceased. Terms Cash.

WM. H. HOWLAND, Guardian. South Danvers, Mch 18—3w

Heckscher Coal!

$7.75 per Ton on Wharf.

A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,

Both Red and White Ash,

Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by

W. P. PHILLIPS, Phillips' Wharf, Salem.

march 18

For Ladies and Gentlemen.

REAL

ROMAN SCARFS,

— AND —

NECK TIES,

IN BRILLIANT COLORS AND LATEST PATTERNS.

☞ Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call and examine—at

George S. Walker's,

March 18 228 Essex Street, Salem.

Salem and South Danvers Railroad.

SUBSCRIBERS to the Capital Stock are hereby notified that the same is payable at the SALEM BANK, in four instalments, of 25 per cent. each, on the following days, viz.—

March 2; March 20; April 10; May 1.

Per order, GEO. D. PHIPPEN, Treasurer.

mch 7 2m

THE PIANO FORTES

THAT have attracted so much attention of late, and are so much admired on account of their SPLENDID FULL, RICH, MELLOW TONE, and GRAND FRENCH ACTION, are for sale only at the Office of the Agent,

218 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.,

where reference may be had to many who have purchased. Other Piano Fortes also, are for sale, varying in price from $180 upwards. Please call.

Mch 11 6m S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

WATCH FOUND.

THE owner can have it by proving property and paying expenses.

MRS. JOS. INGALLS, 123 Lowell St. South Danvers, March 11, 1863

School for both Sexes.

THE next term of MISS FRANCES E. VERY'S School for pupils of both sexes, will commence April 1st, at the Oliver School House, No. 95 Federal Street.

Application may be made at No. 154 Federal Street. Salem, Mch 4, 1863.2

ORGANDIE MUSLINS.

WE shall open new Spring styles of Organdie Muslins to-day.

Ladies will do well to buy now, as prices are advancing daily. ANN R. BRAY, mch 4 76 Federal street.

NEW BOOKS,

AT G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S

Two Friends, by the author of "The Patience of Hope!" The Wagoner of the Alleghanies, by T Buchanan Read; Miss Austen's Novels—Pride and Prejudice, and Northanger Abbey; Meditations on Death and Eternity, by Zschokke. Biographies of Hooker, Rosecrans, Grant, McClernand, &c. mch 18

NEW NEEDLE THREADER.

DOUBLE-ENDED, Excelsior Sewing Needle Threader and Worsted Threader combined—of great utility for near sighted or nervous people in threading needles, numbering from 4 to 12, and also Darning Needles.

Call and see them, at mch 4 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

Ann R. Bray, 76 Federal Street,

WILL open to-day, New Spring Goods, Delaines; Alapaccas, &c.

We have a full and carefully selected stock of Black Silks, which are warranted to give perfect satisfaction.

In dress goods we select the best styles, and fabrics, and those who buy early will find the best assortment. feb 25

WIRE GOODS.

WIRE Rat Traps; Broilers; Steamers; Sieves' etc., just received at SC & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

A Good Milk Route for Sale,

INQUIRE at this office. South Danvers, Feb. 11, 1863.

James F. Almy.

NEW DRESS GOODS.

—We have received this morning,—

PLAIN WOOL M DE LAINES, in mode colors;

New Styles FRENCH PLAID SHAWLS;

New Styles MOURNING GOODS;

— We offer a splendid stock of —

PRINTED M DE LAINES;

Also—TAFFETA STRIPES;

PLAIN ALPACCAS;

FRENCH POPLINS, &c.

— We offer a Choice Stock of —

BLACK AND COLORED SILKS.

JAMES F. ALMY,

mch 18 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

John P. Peabody.

SKIRTS,
SKIRTS,
SKIRTS,
SKIRTS,

LADIES' or MISSES',
LADIES' or MISSES',
LADIES' or MISSES',

ALL SIZES,
ALL SIZES,
ALL SIZES.

LOWEST PRICES,
LOWEST PRICES,
LOWEST PRICES.

NEW STYLES,
NEW STYLES,
NEW STYLES.

WARRANTED THE BEST,
WARRANTED THE BEST,
WARRANTED THE BEST.

STEEL SPRINGS,
STEEL SPRINGS,
STEEL SPRINGS.

GREAT SKIRT SALE,
GREAT SKIRT SALE,
GREAT SKIRT SALE.

CALL AND SEE,
CALL AND SEE,
CALL AND SEE.

AT 220 ESSEX STREET,
AT 220 ESSEX STREET,
AT 220 ESSEX STREET.

LACE STORE,
LACE STORE,
LACE STORE.

HOSIERY AND GLOVES,
HOSIERY AND GLOVES,
HOSIERY AND GLOVES.

CORSETS,
CORSETS,
CORSETS.

LADIES' FURNISHING GOODS,
LADIES' FURNISHING GOODS,
LADIES' FURNISHING GOODS.

OLD PRICES,
OLD PRICES,
OLD PRICES.

UNTIL APRIL 1st,
UNTIL APRIL 1st,
UNTIL APRIL 1st.

AT PEABODY'S,
AT PEABODY'S,
AT PEABODY'S,
NO. 220 ESSEX STREET,
NO. 220 ESSEX STREET,
NO. 220 ESSEX STREET.

T. HARDY, JR.,

—Dealer in—

DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,

Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,

FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,

No. 26 FRONT STREET,

Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

BLANK BOOKS.

A fresh lot, just manufactured from superior paper, by

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH, 190 Essex street, mch 11 Sign of Five Golden Books.

100,000 BARRELS OF THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S

POUDRETTE,

111 COMMERCIAL ST., BOSTON, MASS.

This Company, with a capital of $150,000, the most extensive works of the kind in the world, and an experience in manufacturing of over 23 years, with a reputation long established, having also the exclusive control of all the night soil of the great city of New York, are prepared to furnish an article, which is, without doubt, the CHEAPEST AND VERY BEST fertilizer in market. It greatly increases the yield, and ripens the crop from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from three to four dollars per acre, with little or no labor. Also, FIFTY TONS of BONE TAFEU, being a mixture of bone and night soil ground fine, at $45 per ton—a superior article for grain, &c. A pamphlet containing all necessary information may be had free by addressing a letter to the subscriber.

JAMES T. FOSTER, Care of the Lodi Manufacturing Company, 66 Cortland St., New York.

Agents—WELCH & FAIRFIELD, Grocers, Lowell Street, South Danvers. feb 11—3m

CAMELS HAIR GOODS.

OWING to the small stock of Camels Hair goods in the market, prices have very much advanced. We shall give our customers the advantage of buying at the old prices, as we have a good assortment on hand.

ANN R. BRAY, mch 4 76 Federal street.

George S. Walker.

Linen Fronts, Cuffs & Collars.

LINENS are advancing, consequently there must be a corresponding advance in the above named articles. The present is the time to buy all styles and qualities in stock bought before the rise, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S, Gent's Furnishing Store, Feb 11 No. 228 Essex st, Stearn's Building.

Scarfs. Ties. Stocks.

THE LARGEST ASSORTMENT, THE BEST STYLES THE LOWEST PRICES.

Also—BLACK SILK CRAVATS—30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches—Matteoni's manufacture, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S, feb 11 228 Essex st, Stearns' Block.

Umbrellas.

GINGHAM, Silk and Cotton—largest stock in the city, at GEORGE S. WALKER'S, Dealer in Gent's Furnishing Goods & Toilet Articles. Opposite Eastern Railroad Station.

Administrator's Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the subscriber has been duly appointed administrator of the estate of WILLIAM DELANEY, late of South Danvers, in the county of Essex, yeoman, deceased, and has taken upon himself that trust, by giving bonds, as the law directs: All persons having demands upon the estate of said deceased are required to exhibit the same; and all persons indebted to said estate are called upon to make payment to

THOS. M. STIMPSON, Adm'r. South Danvers, March 4, 1863. 3w

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,

FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,

Central street, South Danvers,

HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.

He keeps as good an assortment of

COFFINS AND CASKETS,

as can be found at any establishment, and at the lowest prices.

He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.

All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

SOUTH DANVERS POST OFFICE.

GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.

MAILS CLOSE

At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.

MAILS DUE

At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.

Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.

F. POOLE, P. M. South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL. South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

THE CLOTHES WRINGER.

JUST OBTAINED

RHOADES' CELEBRATED

NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER,

THE VERY BEST YET INVENTED,

AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING MACHINE.

CALL AND EXAMINE.

For Sale by E. SOUTHWICK,

At the EQUITY GROCERY STORE, South Danvers, Jan 21, 1863. 3m

GRACE'S CELEBRATED SALVE.

A SURE RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERER.

This Salve is a vegetable preparation, invented in the 17th century, by DR. WM. GRACE, surgeon in King James's army. Through its agency he cured thousands of most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor.

Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Burns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Scalds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Flesh Wounds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Corns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Felons.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Frozen Limbs.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Wens.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Callouses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Salt Rheum.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chilblains.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Breast.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Lips.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Erysipelas Sores.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Abscesses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ulcers.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chapped Hands.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ringworms.

And from Sores and Wounds of the most serious nature down to a common Pimple. It eradicates Pimples from the face, and beautifies the skin. There is no preparation before the public that can equal this Salve in prompt and energetic action for the speedy cure of external diseases, as those who have tried its virtues testify. Soldiers, Sailors, and Fishermen, will find this Salve their best friend.

It has none of the irritating, heating properties of other remedies, but cools, cleanses, and heals the most serious Sores and Wounds. Every family, and especially those containing children, should keep a box on hand in case of accident, for it will save them much trouble, suffering, and money. All it wants is a fair trial to cure old and inveterate Sores.

MANUFACTURED BY

WILLIAM GRACE, AMESBURY, MASS.

PRICE 25 CENTS PER BOX.

Each box has the above cut and the fac-simile of the proprietor's signature attached to it, which is duly copy righted.

Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., 11 and 13 Marshall street, Weeks & Potter, 170 Washington street, and M. S. Burr & Co., 16 Tremont street, Boston, Wholesale Agents.

For sale by druggists and at country stores everywhere.

A. J. Archer & Co

ELEGANT NEW GOODS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

OPEN THIS MORNING

MANY NEW STYLES OF

DRESS GOODS,

INCLUDING

Rich and Heavy Black Silks,

Rich Plain Colored Silks.

☞ Our patrons are invited to examine these Goods. Prices are still advancing, and money will be saved by buying now.

Salem, February 11, tf

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

Have on hand a full supply of

BROWN SHEETINGS AND SHIRTINGS;

BLEACHED SHEETINGS & SHIRTINGS;

— Also —

GREY TWILLED FLANNELS;

WHITE FLANNELS.

— Also —

BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,

which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES. Salem, January 28—6w

KEROSENE Stand and Hand Lamps, and Peg Lamps. Also Wicks and Chimneys—for sale by S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

A FINE assortment of Paper Shades for Kerosene Lamps, just opened at S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

HILTON'S Insoluble Cement; Richards's Improved Cement; Spaulding's, Upton's, and Nichols's Liquid Glues, for sale by feb 11 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

JUVENILE BOOKS,

A VERY large assortment for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

SLATING. SLATING.

GEORGE FOWLER & COMPA'Y,

NO. 2 ST. PETER COURT, SALEM, respectfully inform their friends and the citizens of this and neighboring towns and cities that they are prepared to execute all orders for Slating, promptly and faithfully.

Roofs covered with any description of Slates, or repaired at short notice.

All work undertaken will be warranted.

Address—Box 366, Salem Post Office. Salem, January 28—1863. tf

WALKING MADE EASY.

DR. P. KENISON,

CHIROPODIST,

215 Washington St., Boston,

Cures Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails, Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

FOR SALE.

A GOOD comfortable Home, a two-story House, L, Shed and Barn, in good repair, pleasantly located in Londonderry, N. H., 1 1-2 miles from center of town, 10 acres of Land, with plenty of Fruit. Price only $650.

Also—an excellent Stock Farm of 250 acres, for sale or exchange.

dec 31 L. BRICKETT, Derry, N. H.

D. W. BOWDOIN, —ARTIST IN— PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.

Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]

Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotypo, Daguerreotypo, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.

☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

M. A. PORTER, MANUFACTURER TO ORDER

WATCH SPRING SKIRTS,

At 236 Essex Street,

A few doors from Washington Street,

SALEM, MASS.

CONSCRIPTION LAW.

The United States Conscription Law of 1863 Official and complete; price 5 cents—at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

NEW SPRING SHAWLS,

IN Stripe, Plaid and Plain, of rich styles—just received and for sale by mch 4 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PERMANENT GREEN.

A supply of Hampden Green, just received at S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st. mch 11

WHITE LEAD;

LINSEED Oil; Spirits Turpentine; Star Benzole Spirits; Varnishes, etc—constantly for sale by mch 11 S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st.

NEW BOOKS

AT G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, 190 Essex st Salem:

The Iron Furnace, or, Slavery and Secession, by Rev. John H Aughey;

Transition; a Remembrance of Emma Whiting, by Hugh S Carpenter;

The Hero of Medfield; containing the Journals and Letters of Allen A. Kingsbury, of Medfield, who was killed near Yorktown;

The Orpheus C Kerr Papers, Second Series;

The Great Consummation. The Millenial Rest; or the World as it will be—by Rev. John Cumming, D. D.;

McClellan; who he is, and what he has done—by George Wilkes;

Dr. Walker's Election Sermon; mch 4 190 Essex street.

Browning & Long.

POINT DE VENICE.

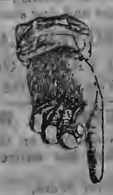
THE NEW SKIRT

— AT —

BROWNING & LONG'S.

Having sold our Last Season's Stock out completely, we now offer entirely NEW SKIRTS. mch 13

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS.



NOW OPEN!

BROWNING & LONG Have opened a lot of New

Spring Goods,

entirely new patterns, and comprising in part

LACE VEILS,
TISSUE VEILS,
RUFFLED COLLARS,
MALTA LACE COLLARS,
CRAPE GOODS,
HAIR NETS,
POMPADOUR COMBS,
TOLEDO BELTS,
GRENADINE COLLARS,
LINEN EMBROIDERED COLLARS AND SETTS,

being in advance of the coming season, and the very latest Fashions.

Also, a new lot of those superior SKIRTS for Ladies and Misses.

BROWNING & LONG

(Successors to J. MAYER,)

Essex St., 177 Essex St.,

SOMETHING NEW.

HIGGINS'S DRESS PROTECTOR,

For Infants—an excellent article.

BROWNING & LONG have received the Agency for Salem, and would call the attention of their customers to this very useful article, which when seen will prove its own merits. mch 4

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

ESSEX, ss. Feb. 25, A. D., 1863. A warrant has been duly issued by Hon. GEORGE F. CHEATE, Judge of Probate and Insolvency for said County of Essex, against the estate of EBENEZER S. HOWARD, of South Danvers, in the County of Essex, trader, an insolvent debtor; and the payment of any debts, or the delivery of any property belonging to said insolvent debtor, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law.

The first meeting of the creditors of said insolvent debtor will be held at the Court of Insolvency, at Salem, on the twenty-third day of March, at ten o'clock, A. M., for the proof of debts, and the choice of an Assignee or assignees of said estate.

STEPHEN UPTON, Deputy Sheriff, March 4, 1863. Messenger.

To Let on Essex St., Salem,

The STORE and DWELLING HOUSE connected therewith, No. 250 Essex St. The store is neatly fitted up, is one of the best stands in the city, and admirably adapted for Millinery, Fancy, Dry Goods, or any light business.

The Dwelling part contains nine finished rooms, and is supplied with water, gas, etc.—all in good order and very convenient.

To a satisfactory tenant, the above will be let on reasonable terms. Apply at J. PERLEY'S Shoe Store, next door west. feb 25

HEYLINGBERG'S

Hair Dressing Saloon,

24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.

TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Champooing,	15 cts.
Champooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more new Quarterly Customers taken. In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks will be sold for one dollar.

South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,

ADVERTISING AGENT

For the principal New England Newspapers, remains at the old stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, and Advertising.

Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

EDWARD C. WEBSTER, ONE PRICE

HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,

231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

DIARIES AT COST PRICES.

A GOOD ASSORTMENT at G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S, Salem, Mass.

NATIONAL ALMANAC,

AND Annual Record for 1863—containing Government of the United States, the Individual States, and so called Confederate States, Tax Law, Census Tables, New Tariff, Army and Navy Officers, U. S. Mint, Consuls Statistics, &c., for sale by

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH, 190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

NEW YORK WHITE LEAD.

2500 L New York White Lead; Also, Fores River White Lead—for sale by mch 4 S C & E A SIMONDS.

☞ If you want to SAVE MONEY, go to chasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, street, Salem.

Auction Sale.

WILLIAM ARCHER,

Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,
34 Front Street.

Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Ma... Stock bought and sold on Com...

Piano Fortes and Melodeons at Auction.

On SATURDAY NEXT, at 9 ... will be sold at No. 34 Front street ...

A QUANTITY OF FURNITU... Centre Table; Mahogany Bed... hogany Dining Table; Bookcase... stead; Rocking Horse; 1 large D... suitable for an eating house.

Also—3 Show Cases.

At 11 o'clock—One 6 Octave Pi... good order; one upright do rosewo... 5 octave melodeon; one 4 octave ... mch 18

AT PRIVATE SA...

One fine-toned PIANO FOR... hand, in excellent order.

An assortment of Silver Plate... cluding Ice Pitchers from $4.50 to...

D. P. GROSVENOR,

Druggist and Apo...

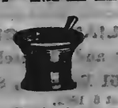
33 MAIN STR...

Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, C... Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary M...

Personal attention to Physicia... tions.

South Danvers, May 29, 1861.

GEO. E. MEA...



Dealer in

DRUGS & MEDIC...

Fancy & Toilet Artic...

126 MAIN ST...

Nearly opposite Danvers Bank.

T. A. SWEE...

Druggist &...

37 Main St.,

DEALE... Drugs, Medicin... Foreign Leec... Herbs, Dye St... Acids, Spon... der Braces, ... and Genuine Pa...

Also, Imported Cigars of choice br... Toilet Articles and Stationery. Physicians' Prescriptions carefully ... perienced persons.

37 MAIN STRE...

PATTERSON'S

LEATHER HANDLING ...

THE undersigned are agents ... machine. It can be seen i... Pinder & Brown's Tannery.

may 7—3m CLARK & C...

MESSRS. CLARK & ...

Wallis Street, South D...

Are Agents for

GEORGE W. FISKE ...

PATENT EAVE TR...

CUTTERS, CONDUCTO...

PIPE FOR DR...

South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

Potter, Bachelder ...

(Successors to M. Black...

DANVERS ...

DEALERS IN

WOOD AND ...

OF the various kinds usually ... yard. Constantly on hand

Franklin, Old Compa...
Locust Mountain, Black Heat...
Red and White Ash...

Of all sizes, of the best quality, ... prices as can be bought elsewhere

OFFICE—No. 6 Allen's B...

Order Box at post office, South ... post office, Danvers.

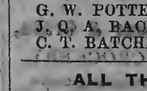
G. W. POTTER,
J. O. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER.

ALL THE NEW BO...

IN elegant and plain bindings, may ... G M WHIPPLE & A A ... dec 24 Sign of Five ...

MUSICAL NOTIC...

Chickering & Sons' Pi...



ANN R. BRAY, ... would inform her frie... vers, and the public ge... keeps for sale and ... Sons' Piano Fortes. They are sel... care, and need only to be tried to pr... ty over every other in the marke... erms given.

MANNING & NICHOLS' ... For sale and to let. For power an... none can surpass them ...

DIARIES--186...

AN excellent assortment at the l... sale by G M WHIPPLE ...

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, ... 3 pieces Laconia Sheetings ... 6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings ... Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, ...

PHOTOGRAPH AL...

A FINE assortment—for sale ... G M WHIPPLE & A A ... jy 14 190 Essex ...

NEW BOOKS

STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way ... Fire Light; or Stories for ... Mrs J. D. Chaplin; ... Gardener's Monthly—Januar... Harper's Weekly; Genealogic... Historical Collections, Octobe...

G M WHIPPLE & A A SM... At the old stand of H...

Ann R. Bray, No. 76 Fed...

HAS received a fine assort... SPRING GOODS, includ... Rich Black Silks; ... Black Alapaccas, a full ass... Poils in Stripes and Plaids ... Mous de Laines, entirely ne... French Cambrics, small fig...

— A full stock of ...

DOMESTIC GO...

feb. 25 ANN R. BRAY, 7...

PATENT CLO...

HORSES Cram's Patent Clothes ... SC & E A SIMOND...

THE EARTH SAFE.—The London nes complains that mankind are ng up the world too fast. Inces- t cultivation, it is alleged, is strip- g earth of its coat of mold, which not be replaced except by return the primeval forest. There are ts in existence a little inconsistent h that very alarming statement. e plain round Benares has certainly en cultivated for three thousand rs, and it is as rich as ever. The ntry round Damascus was a garden the beginning of history, and is a den now. No forest has ever re- ed the soil of Northern Italy, nor he glorious fertility of Asia Minor ficial. Districts have, it is true, ished; but it has been from human ly; the cutting down of the trees the rain ceased, and the wells k, as is now occurring in some ts of Upper India. When we quered the Punjaub, the vast prov- e did not contain one tree, and in rty years would have become, like Babylonian desert, and from the ne cause, a sterile plain.—London ector.

THE SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD

ablished every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's build South Danvers Square. by

CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editor.

ms—Two Dollars a year.

DVERTISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM C. CHOATE,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
lem, August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Residence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
ttorney and Counsellor at Law,
th Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
ice, No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
torneys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to oms formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
NO. 27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM,
PHEN B. IVES, Jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
torney and Counsellor at Law,
Office, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.
Claims against the Government for Bounty ck Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
4 MAIN STREET, So. DANVERS SQUARE
Mechanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
th Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
SURGEON DENTIST,
Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market
(Residence—No. 57 Washington street.
m 11—ly

F. POOLE
NSURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
mily Groceries, Flour & Grain,
HARD WARE AND CROCKERY,
eady Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods,
Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
th Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
M. NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
ockery, China and Hardware; Paper Hangings; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints,
Oil, and Window Glass.
. 32 Front street, Lawrence Place,
feb13 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
All orders promptly and faithfully executed.
an2-1y

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
est India Goods, Country Produce,
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
old and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
Rooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger.
184 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
INDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
mch6-tf

JOHN MOULTON,
LIVERY & STABLE,
Central Street, South Danvers.
Mr. M. will endeavor to keep up the good reputa on of his stable, by still keeping good Horses and arriages. jan 7, 1863.

W. E. P. SMYTH,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.

Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,

LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.

Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow. 4th. The Mother.
2d. The Children. 5th The Brothers and Sisters collectively.
3d. The Father.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken out, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.

When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditor's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay in getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.

Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1v

Rare Chance for Bargains.

CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of
JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS,
At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER

Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,
Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Ware,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.
at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.

This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Refurnishing the Table, &c.

Old Silver taken in exchange.

☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.

JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

H. & H. G. HUBON,

WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM
Manufacturers of
Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood
COFFINS and CASKETS.

MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.

dec 14—tf

FRANKLIN COAL.

JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL —the best in the world for domestic use.
POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

E. N. PRICE,

Manufacturer and Dealer in
HARNESSES,
SADDLES, BRIDLES,
AND WHIPS.
— ALSO —
Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.

All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.

237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
mch13-tf

Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

GAYLE & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
DEALERS IN
Flour, Grain and Produce,
Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of
Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.
PHILLIPS WHARF, - - - - Salem.

REMOVAL!

AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,
Manufacturer and Repairer of
BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, o which the Mackie took the First Premium at the lat Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.
BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook.
South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862 tf

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A YEAR'S Reading in WHIPPLE & SMITH'S Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.
dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

LES Miserables—complete—$1.00.
Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Muloch—for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Ladies' Spring Skirts.

ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

DIARIES FOR

1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books,

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.

Prof. M. G. BROWN.

SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets scumy and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its sockett in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to anoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 6 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

The Confessions and Experience of a Poor Young Man.

A GENTLEMAN having been cured of the results of early error and disease, will, from motives of benevolence, send to those who request it, a copy of the above interesting narrative, published by himself. This little book is designed as a warning and caution to young men and those who suffer from NERVOUS DEBILITY, LOSS OF MEMORY, PREMATURE DECAY, &c., &c., supplying at the same time the means of self-cure. Single copies will be sent under seal in a plain envelope,—without charge,—to any who request it, by addressing the author,

CHAS. A. LAMBERT, Esq.,
Greenpoint, Long Island, New York.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks. Carvers and Steels. and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by nov 19 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

REMOVAL!

JOHN J. ASHBY,

WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store

No. 145 Essex Street,

formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of

BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,

and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.

Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

E. R. PERKINS,

PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST

241 Essex Street, Salem.

Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,

Photographs, Sphereotypes, Melainotypes, and patent cat 'ter Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

Ann R. Bray,
NO. 76 Federal Street,
— DEALER IN —
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

Plymouth Buck Gloves.

MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S
Gent's Furnishing Store,

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Tenements to Let.

ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $54 per year.

One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.

One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.

One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.

One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

MUNROE'S

(LATE REED'S)
SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON
RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at		10 1 2 a. m.
Freight " " " at		5 p. m
Express leaves Boston at		3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " " at		5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.

Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.

EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.

Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.

Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.

Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed:

WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

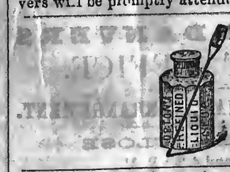
E. F. BURNHAM,

SOLE AGENT FOR
SARGENT & CO.S'
MAGIC SOAP
For South Danvers & Salem.

OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.

Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.

Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3



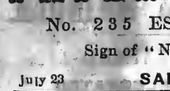
E. S. FLINT,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
INNER SOLES,
AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS,
2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

THOMAS PINNOCK,
SLATER,
SALEM, MASS,

Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.

Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.
Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

CURRIER & MILLETT,
Dealers in
Furniture, Chairs,



MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c
259 & 261 ESSEX ST.
Salem, dec 14—1y

WM. C. HENDERSON,
MANUFACTURER OF
PLAIN AND FANCY
PAPER BOXES,
No. 235 ESSEX STREET,
Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"
July 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,

NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St. South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

Heckscher Coal!

$8.25 per Ton on Wharf.

A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,

Both Red and White Ash,

Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by

W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.
july 9

AARON T. LOWE,
DEALER IN
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,
76 BOSTON STREET, 76.
aug 6 SALEM. tf

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.

THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of
Patent Granular Fuel,

which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices:

25 Bushels, delivered,		2 25
50 do	do	4 00
100 do	do	7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.

BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, june 18.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.

JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

R. C. MANNING & CO.
Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,
DEALERS IN
COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,
188 DERBY STREET,
SALEM, MASS.
N. O. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.
oct17

NEW GOODS.

WE have received some very neat styles of French Prints, small figures, Spring styles, new goods.

Neat styles Patches, new patterns.

A few pieces Cotton and Wool M de Laines, new styles, suitable for the present and Spring wear—selling low for cash.

jy 14 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Dyspepsia Remedy.

DR. DARIUS HAM'S
AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!

This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.

IT STIMULATES, EXHILARATES, INVIGORATES, BUT WILL NOT INTOXICATE OR STUPEFY.

AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner.

It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.

Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the DELIRIUM TREMENS, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.

DOSE—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.
A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.
Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.

Persons who, from dissipating too much over night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings.

Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the careworn face.

During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.

All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the INVIGORATING SPIRIT in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.

General Depot, 48 Water Street, N. Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.
feb 29 1y

Are you Insured?

THE subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on

Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,

And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:

Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn.
Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Bogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y

Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the

Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass.
Capital and Assetts—$375,000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D, Medical Examiner.

WM. ARCHER, Jr.,
18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
ej b20-1

Important to the Afflicted.

DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a

PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.

By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent, Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of

GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.

Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.

Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating matrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.

Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.

Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French [illegible], warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y

CAUTION

TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.

DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and a speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. It invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.

Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.

Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.

Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.

N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.

Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE

IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.

Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.

Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y

HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Madam Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustre China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PLANISHED Tin Plate Covers, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 34 Front.

NOTE PAPER.

A VERY full and complete stock, at a very small advance on old prices, at
jan 21 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

KEROSENE LAMPS.

FOR Shoemaker's use, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

JUST PUBLISHED.

GRAVER Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heaven, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantes, by A. B. Edwards; The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
dec 24 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Eastern Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains will leave the Eastern Railroad Station, Washington street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excepted):

For Lynn and Boston, 6½, 7½, 8½, 9, 10, 11 a m., 1, 2½ 4 40, 6½ p. m.
Beverly, 8½ am., 1, 3½, 4½, 5½, 6½, 7½ p m.
W. Beach, Manr, Gloucester, and Rockport, 8½ a m., 1, 4½ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8½ a m., 1, 3½, 5½ p m.
Amesbury, 8½ a m., 3½, 5½ p m.
Portsmouth, 8½ a m., 3½, 5½ p m.
Portland, 8½ a m., 3½ p m.

AND FOR SALEM, FROM

Portland, 8½ a m., 2½ p m.
Portsmouth, 7¼, *11½ a m., *5 p m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9.40 a m., 5 20 p m.
Newburyport, 8, 10 a m., 12 m, 5.45 p m.
Ipswich, 8.25, 10.25 a m., 12 25, 6.10 p m.
Gloucester, 7.25, 10 10 a m., 3 55 p m.
Manchester, 7.40, 10.25 a m., 4.10 p m.
Beverly, 7.05, 8.05, 8 50, 10.50 a m., 12.50, 4½, 6.35.
Lyun, 8, 9, 11 a m., 12½, 3, 4½, 5½, 6½, 7½ †10.
Boston, 7½, 8½, 10½ a m., 12½, 2½, 4, 5, 6, 6½, 10½ p m.

*Or on arrival from the East.
†On Wednesdays this train leaves Boston at 11½ p m. via Saugus Branch; and on Saturdays at 10½ p m.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Marblehead for Salem, 7, 8, 8½, 9½ a m., 12½, 1½, 4.25, 6½
Salem for Marblehead, 8½, 9.25, 11½ a m., 1, 3½, 5½, 6½

SOUTH READING BRANCH.

Trains leave the South Reading Depot in Salem for Boston at 7, 9.40 a m., 2.25, 4.55 p m
Boston for Salem, 7 a m, 12 m., 2½, 5 p m.
South Danvers for Salem, 7½ a m., 12½, 3½, 5½ p m.

ESSEX RAILROAD.

Leave Salem for Lawrence and way stations, 7½, 11½ a m., 4½ p m.
Lawrence for Salem, 8½ a m., 12.40, 6½ p m.
Danvers for Salem, 9.12 a m., 1.22, 6.57 p m.

J. PRESCOTT, Superintendent.
Boston, November 10, 1862.

Salem and Lowell Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov 10, 1862, Trains will run as follows:

Leave Lowell for Salem, 7.25 a m., and *2.00 p m.
Leave Salem for Lowell, *9 40 a m. and 5 00 p m.

Passengers are not allowed to carry baggage above $50 in value, and that personal, unless notice is given and an extra amount paid. Season tickets do not entitle the holder to take baggage.

*Freight Train with passenger car attached.

F. H. NOURSE, Local Superintendent.
November 7, 1862.

SPEED, COMFORT AND SAFETY!

FOR NEW YORK.
Norwich Steamboat Train.
The only Boats Landing at Jersey City.

CABIN Passage, $4.00; Deck Passage, $3.00. The new and elegant sixteen wheel cars of the steamboat express train leave the Boston & Worcester Railroad Station, Albany Street, at 5½ P. M., daily, connecting with the new steamers, (built expressly for this line,) CITY OF BOSTON, Capt. WILCOX, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; CITY OF NEW YORK, Capt. JEWETT, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, which (before proceeding to their Pier, No. 39 North River,) will touch at the wharf of the New Jersey Railroad at Jersey City, (Sundays excepted) thus enabling Southern Passengers to make sure connections with the First Southern Train, and at the same time avoid the great annoyance of the Ferry and Hack transportation in the crowded streets of New York. This insures ample time for Breakfast before the trains leave. Conductors D. F. WALLER and W. F. BARTON accompany the passengers through.

Tickets, Berths and Staterooms secured at the Railroad Station, and at the Office of the line, 79 Washington Street, Boston.

Through tickets to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington can be had at 79 Washington Street, Boston.

WM. DICKEY, Jr., Agent.
Boston, January 7, 1863.

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT

CHANGE OF TIME
— TO —
LYNN & BOSTON
BY OMNIBUS AND HORSE CAR

On and after THURSDAY, June 19th, 1862,

W. F. BURNHAM'S

Line of Omnibuses will leave the Lynn and Boston Omnibus Office, No. 6 Allen's Building, South Danvers, passing down Main street, through Washington street to Lynn, daily.

Leave South Danvers at 7.50 A. M., and 12.50 and 4.50 P. M.

Leave Lynn at 10 A. M., and 2 1-2 and 6 1-2 P. M.

Horse Cars leaving Scollay's Building, Court street, Boston, at 8.15 A. M., 1.15 and 5.15 P. M., will meet the Omnibus at Lynn, at the above named hours, to take passengers to South Danvers.

Sunday Arrangements.

Leave S. Danvers at 7.50 a.m., and 4.50 p.m.
Leave Lynn at 9.30 a.m., and 6.30 p.m.

Cars leave Scollay's Building, Boston, to meet the Omnibuses in Lynn for South Danvers, at 8.15 a m. and 5.15 p m.

Through Tickets to and from Boston may be had of the Drivers and Conductors.

Tickets to Lynn, - - 15 cents.
Through to Boston, - 30 cents.

Passengers called for at reasonable charges i notice is given at the Office.

EXPRESS BUSINESS

Between South Danvers and Lynn promptly attended to, on reasonable terms.

EXTRA COACHES furnished at short notice, at moderate rates.

South Danvers, June 18, 1862.

South Danvers & Salem Line of Omnibuses.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 4, 1861, the South Danvers and Salem Line of Omnibuses will run as follows:

Leave the Hourly Office, South Danvers at 7, 8, 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2 a. m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8.

Leave No. 13 Central St., Salem, at 8. 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2, a.m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8, 9.

☞ Ladies' Room, at Needham & Hawkes's, No. 272 Essex Street, and at the Offices.

SINGLE FARE on the regular route, 6 cents, or Twenty Tickets for $1 00.

Passengers called for or left off the route, at a reasonable distance, the fare will be 13 cents.

EXTRA COACHES furnished, at all hours, at reasonable prices.
nov 27 HENRY M. MERRILL.

Abbott's South Danvers & Salem EXPRESS.

Leave South Danvers, - - - - - 7½ a m, 1 p m
Leave Salem, - - - - - - 10 a m, 4 p m

Orders left at Teel & Moulton's, and principal stores on Main street, South Danvers; and at 7 Washington street, and at Reed's in the Market, Salem.

MARSHALL'S

DANVERS, SO. DANVERS & SALEM EXPRESS.

Leave DANVERS (daily) at 9 A. M.
" SALEM at 1½ P. M.

OF

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 25, 1863. NO. 12.

Original.

SERMONS FROM STONES,

BY TIMOTHY OLDBOY,

No. 10.

"There is divinity that shapes our s, rough hew them how we will."
Ah! my friends, if we only knew was divinity! In many instances seems so strange, so hard, so—al-st cruel—that we cry out against as a blind, despotic fate. Yet, to p or to hurt, whether we fight inst or work with it—giving a od or an evil issue to all our ef-s—it is ever with us—a vague, in-gible—something which we call rune.

Not a fickle goddess, as she has en represented, but a calm and con-nt deity, which, through a long e, follows one man with smiles and other with frowns.

"Nature," it is said, "hath gifted ne men with brains and understand-
, and others with the art of play-the fiddle." In this matter, doubts, as in her want, Nature has done ll, and though a man be born with y "the art of playing the fiddle," is he—as it sometimes happens—rn, as we say, with a silver spoon his mouth—under a lucky star.
He may, like Midas, have the asses s;—so, like Midas, whatever he ches turns to gold. * * * *
ere are fortunate men,—men who, hout any effort or worth of their n, succeed. They may be weak—y may be foolish—yet they have trange command over circumstances.
hatever they put their hands to ospers. They plough, they reap, y gather into barns—and the barns erflow with the harvest. The stocks e on their hands, and their ships me ever laden home. The dews of aven, and the winds serve them.
No untoward circumstance thwarts eir plans. With them there is no nfusion of tongues, and the towers
y build stand ever above the flood.
eir days are long in the land.
They toil not, neither do they spin," t men praise them, and "their chilen's children rise up and call them essed."

Others there are, who, though they ve "brains and understanding,"
e wise and strong;—though from eir "youth up they have kept all e commandments" and have given the poor—are yet condemned "in fe's low ebb to pine alone." With em everything miscarries. The stars e against them. They plan wisely—ey fight bravely—but, like the Old uard at Waterloo, it is brave fight-g on a lost field. "The times are" er "out of joint." Their lives, hen looked at from a worldly point
f view, strike us sadly with a sense f irredeemable failure, and their solute, hopeless, climbing up to leaven through all the "ills that esh is heir to," is a sight at which ngels well might weep. So at least seems to our weak vision, but so it ay not seem to the severe eyes of e gods, who compute not good or l by any standard of ours, and who now that "even-handed justice" olds the scales in equal balance.

* * * * * *

Why trouble ourselves? Much bservation of the strange freaks of his blind goddess, fortune, should make us easy in our minds, even hough we be, for the time, under a loud. "Here we go up, up, up—nd here we go down, down, down."
These unaccountable revolutions can ut give comfort to those who are at he bottom. Things may look dark, ut then "what hope the flight of future years may bring—what chance, what hange, worth waiting!" It is to this much berated fortune that we owe all he romance of life. If we could alculate exactly, and work results ut just as we calculated, what a etony, or rather wooden world this would be! Let us take the chances.
Let us trust in our stars and be happy. For myself, I have had no great reverses, or extraordinary successes, yet I have seen some variety of life.
And looking back from this point, how little of that variety was of my own devising! Fortune is like the wind which bloweth where it listeth, and no man knoweth whence it cometh. How little of what success I have had was owing to my own diligence? How little of the failure could foresight have avoided?
That I am here is because I happened to take one road rather than another.
That I follow this course of life is the result of an accidental thought. Thus far fortune has looked out for me, as she always does—for fools.

What is the end of the whole matter? Indeed, Sir, I know nothing abou it. I only know that this is the way of the world. So mote it be.

The world is strange—I know 'tis strange—
Aye, very strange to me,—
As some vast river rushing on
Into a shoreless sea.

The world is old—some say 'tis old—
Yet 'tis not old to me,
And in its face I see no trace
Of past eternity.

The world is wide—mayhap 'tis wide—
Yet 'tis not wide to me—
While in the narrow walls of fate
I struggle to be free.

The world is mad—the world is mad,
Mad as a world can be—
Then let it wag—as mad worlds wag—
What matters it to me?

Selected.

THE FALSE CLERK.

A THRILLING EVENT.

[The subjoined narrative, published originally in Chambers' Journal, is stated to have been translated from a foreign newspaper. It is necessary to remind the reader that the Island of Mauritius, appertaining at this time to the English, was originally colonized by the French, and that the population yet consists in a great measure, of persons of that nation to whom, by a formal treaty between the parties concerned, their ancient laws and usages were preserved without any material alteration.]

About twelve years ago, the Sieur Clodomir Frenois, a rich merchant of the Island, was discovered dead and frightfully disfigured, in his own habitation. His body was found lying on the floor, with the head and face mutilated by a pistol, and all doubt as to the cause of the catastrophe was dispelled by the discovery of the fatal weapon by the side of the corpse, as also a piece of paper in the handwriting of the deceased, containing the following words:

"I am ruined. A villain has robbed me of twenty-five thousand livres sterling; dishonor must be my portion and I cannot survive it. I leave to my wife the duty of distributing among my creditors the means which remain to us; and I pray God, my friends and my enemies, to pardon my self-destruction. Yet another minute, and I shall be in eternity.

(Signed) CLODOMIR FRENOIS.

Great consternation was caused by this tragic event, which was the more unexpected, as the loss alluded to in the above note had never been made public.

The deceased had been in great esteem over the colony as a man of strict honor and probity, and was universally lamented. His attached widow, after endeavoring to faithfully fulfill his last wishes, found her grief too overpowering to permit her to mingle longer with the world, and she took the resolution to consecrate her remaining days to the service of religion.—Two months after the sad end of her husband she entered a convent, leaving to the nephew of the late merchant, a physician, the charge of completing the distribution of the effects of Frenois among his creditors.

A minute examination of the papers of the defunct led to the discovery of the period when the unfortunate merchant had been robbed, and this period was found to correspond with the date of the disappearance of a man named John Moon, being in the employment of Frenois. Of this man, on whom suspicion not unnaturally fell, nothing could be learned on inquiry; but shortly after the division of the late merchant's property, Moon reappeared in the colony; and when taken up and examined respecting the cause of his flight, he stated that he had been sent by his master to France to recover certain sums due to the merchant there, in which mission he had been unsuccessful. He further averred that if Clodomir Frenois, in his existing correspondence, had thrown any injurious suspicions upon him (Moon) the whole was but a pretext to account for the deficiencies of which the merchant was the cause and author. This declaration, made by a man who seemed to fear no inquiry, and whose worldly circumstances remained to appearance the same as they had ever been, had the effect of silencing, if it did not satisfy the examiners; and the affair soon fell, in a great measure, out of the public recollection.

Things remained for a short time in this condition, when one morning Mr. William Burnett, principal creditor of the late Clodomir Frenois, heard a knocking at his gate at a very early hour. He called up one of his servants, who went down and opened the door and immediately returned with the intelligence that a stranger, who seemed desirous of keeping his person concealed, wished to speak with Burnett in private. Mr. Burnett rose, threw on his dressing gown and descended to the parlor. He saw there a stranger, of tall person, seated in an easy and familiar attitude upon a sofa with a number of the Morning Post in his hand. The back of the visitor was turned to Mr. Burnett as he entered. Rather surprised to see a stranger conduct himself so like an old friend of the house, Mr. Burnett said aloud:

"Sir, may I beg to know of your business with me?"

The stranger turned round and advanced to salute his host warmly and courteously. Mr. Burnett started back, and uttered a loud exclamation of surprise and alarm. Well he might; for before his eyes stood his friend and debtor, Clodomir Frenois, whom he had beheld nearly a year before, a murdered corpse, and whom he himself had followed to the grave!

What passed at that interview between Mr. Burnett and his strange visitor remained a secret. Mr. Burnett was observed to issue several times pale and agitated from his dwelling, and to visit the magistrate charged with the criminal processes of the colony. In the course of that day, while John Moon was regaling himself with tea under the palm trees of his garden along with a Circassian female whom he had purchased some time previously, he was arrested and taken to prison by the officers of justice.

On the following day he was brought before the criminal court accused with robbing the late Clodomir Frenois, the crime being conjoined with breach of trust and violence.—Moon smiled at the charge with all the confidence of a man who had nothing to fear. The judge having demanded of him if he confessed the crime; the accused replied that the charge was altogether absurd; that clear testimony was necessary to fix such a crime upon him; that so far from there being such evidence producible, neither the widow of the deceased, nor any one person in his service had ever heard the pretended robbery even once mentioned by Frenois during his life.

"Do you affirm your innocence?" repeated the Judge gravely, after hearing all the other had to say.

"I will avouch my innocence," replied Moon, "even before the body of my late master, if that be necessary!"

[Such a thing often took place under the old colonial law.]

"John Moon," said the judge, in a voice broken by some peculiar emotion, it is before your late master that you will have to assert your innocence, and may God make the truth appear."

A signal from the judge accompanied these words, and immediately a door opened and Clodomir Frenois the supposed suicide, entered the court; he advanced to the bar with a slow and deliberate step, having his eye calmly, sternly fixed on the prisoner, his servant. A great sensation was caused in court by his appearance.—Uttering shrieks of alarm and horror, the females present fled from the spot. The accused fell on his knees in abject terror, and shuddering confessed his guilt. For a time no voice was heard but his. However, as it became apparent that a living man stood before the court, the advocate of the prisoner gained courage to speak. He demanded that the identity of the merchant be established, and the mystery of his existence be explained. He said that the court must not be biased by what might prove to be a mere likeness between a person living and one deceased; and that such an avowal as that of the prisoner, extracted in a moment of extraordinary terror, was not to be held of much weight.

'Before being admitted here as an accuser or witness,' continued the advocate, addressing the resuscitated merchant, 'prove who and what you are, and disclose by what chance the tomb which so lately received your body, mangled with bullets, has given up its tenant, and restored you to the world in life and health!'

The firm appeal of the advocate, who continued steadfast to his duty under circumstances that would have closed the lips of most men called forth the following narrative from Clodomir Frenois:

'My story may soon be told, and will suffice to establish my identity.—When I discovered the robbery committed by the accused, he had then fled from the Island, and I speedily saw that the attempts to retake him would prove fruitless. I saw ruin and disgrace before me, and came to the resolution of terminating my life before the evil day came. On the night in which this determination was formed, I was seated alone in my private chamber. I had written the letter which was found on my table, and had loaded my pistol. This was done I prayed for forgivness from my Maker for the act I was about to commit.—The end of the pistol was at my head, and my finger on the lock, when a knock at the outer door of the house startled me. I concealed my weapon and went to the door. A man entered whom I recognized to be the sexton of the parish in which I lived.—He bore a sack on his shoulders, and in it the body of a man newly buried, which was destined for my nephew, the physician then living with me.—The scarcity of bodies for dissection, as the court is aware, compel those who are anxious to acquire skill in the medical profession, to procure them by any possible secret means. The sexton was at first alarmed when he met me.

'Did my nephew request you to bring his body?' said I.

'No,' replied the man; 'but I knew his anxiety to obtain one for dissection and took it upon me to offer this body. For mercy's sake,' continued the sexton, do not betray me, or I shall lose my situation and my family's bread.'

'While the man was thus speaking a strange idea entered my mind, and brought to my despairing bosom hopes of continued life and honor. I stood for a few minutes absorbed in thought, and gave to the resurrectionist the sum which he had expected. Telling him to keep his own counsel and that all would be well, I sent him away and carried the body to my cabinet. The whole of the household had been sent out of the way on purpose, and I had time to carry into execution the plan which had struck me. The body was fortunately of the same stature as myself and like me in complexion. I know the man, he had been a poor offender, abandoned by his family.

'Poor relic of mortality!' said I with tears in my eyes, 'nothing which man may do can now injure thee; yet pardon me if I rudely disfigure thy lifeless substance. It is to prevent the ruin of not one but twenty families! And should success attend my attempt, I swear that thy children shall be my children, and when my hour comes, we shall rest together in the tomb to which thou shalt be borne before me!'

At this portion of the merchant's narrative the most lively interest was excited in court, and testified even by tears from many of the audience. Francis then proceeded:

'I then stripped off my clothes and dressed the body in them. This accomplished, I took up the pistol with a hand more reluctant than when I applied it to my own person, I fired it close to the head of the deceased, and at once caused such a disfigurement as rendered it impossible for the keenest eyes to detect the substitution which had been made.

'Choosing the plainest habit I could get, I then dressed myself anew, shaved off the whiskers which I was accustomed to wear, and took other means to alter and disguise my appearance, in case of being subjected by any accident to the risk of betrayal. Next morning saw me on board a French vessel on my way to distant land—the native country of my ancestors. The expectations which had led me to the execution of this scheme were not disappointed. I knew John Moon was the man who had robbed me, and who stands at the bar of this court, and that he had formed connections in this island which would, in all probability, bring him back to it as soon as the intelligence of my death gave him promise of security. In this I have not been disappointed. I have been equally fortunate in other respects. While my unworthy servant remained here in imaginary safety, I have been successful in discovering the quarter in which, not daring at first to betray the appearance of wealth, he had lodged the whole of the stolen money. I have brought it with me, and also sufficient proofs, supposing his confession of this day to be set aside altogether to convict him of the crime of which he stands charged. By the same means,' continued Clodomir Frenois, with a degree of honorable pride, in which all who heard him sympathized, 'will I be enabled to restore my family to their place in society, and to redeem the credit of a name on which no blot was left by those who bore it before me, and which, please God, I shall transmit unstained to my children and my children's children.'

The news of Clodomir Frenois' reappearance spread rapidly, and the high esteem in which his character was held, led to a universal rejoicing on the occasion. He was accompanied from the court to his home by a dense multitude, who welcomed him with prolonged shouts. It would be vain to attempt any description of the feelings of his wife, who was thus restored to the loved being for whose sake she had quitted the world. She was released from her ecclesiastical vows and rejoined him, no more to part till the grave really claimed the one or the other of them.

☞ John Bannister, the comedian, was presented to an old lady, proud of ancient and noble blood. The lady asked a wit of the day, who was present, "Who are the Bannisters? Are they of a good family?" "Yes," said the wit, "very good, indeed; they are closely connected with the Stairs," "O!" said the lady, "a very ancient family of Ayrshire—dates back to 1450; I am delighted to see your friend."

☞ Mrs. Partington wants to know what sort of drums conundrums are? She thinks some are hard to beat.

☞ When a woman intends giving her beau the mitten she begins by knitting her brows.

☞ What fruit does a newly-married couple mostly resemble? A green pear.

CARICATURES.

There is a species of humor, peculiarly American, which consists in grotesque hyperbole, the caricature of some fact which expresses it better than a faithful portrait would do. Some people take the snake and kill it when they wish to show it to us, but the lively Yankee humorist catches it by the tail as it passes, and stretches it into ludicrous proportions, as actors in pantomimes do the tails of those famous ductile dragons which so astonish and delight children.

Instances of this wild and extravagant humor are as common as proverbs. Everybody has heard of the weather which was so cold that the mercury went out of sight, and which no doubt would have been a good deal colder if the thermometer had been long enough. A similar exaggeration was that of a young man who took calomel on a morning so cold that the mercury ran right down in his boots. And speaking of boots reminds us of the stage-driver who wore so large ones that he had to use the forks of the road as a boot-jack.

The following passages are illustrations: The man out West whose legs are so long that he has to go down cellar to tie his shoes. The man who snored so loud that he had to sleep over in the next street to keep from wakening himself. The man whose nose is so long that he has to step forward three paces to reach the end of it. The man who was so large and heavy that his shadow killed a little boy when it fell upon him. The man who was so fat that his shadow left a greasy trail along the road as he walked along; and the man who was so thin that he did not have any shadow at all. And among these deserves to rank the horse that ran so fast around the ring that the spectators could only see one continual circular-horse; together with that even more famous racer that ran so swiftly about the arena that he nearly caught up with himself, and could see his own tail just before him.

A fireman once related an adventure in which he found himself in a rich saloon surrounded by wealth and fine company.

'I didn't know myself, until I felt in my pockets and found 'em empty.'

Some one inferred that he was customarily short of funds.

'That so! if steamboats were selling for two cents apiece,' said he, 'I haven't enough to buy a gangway plank.'

We once heard a person tell of a fright he once received from a big dog.

'I lost flesh,' said he, 'at the rate of ten pounds a minute, till the owner came and called him off.'

Along with this we may place the story of the man who, in consequence of a fright, ran so fast and so far, that when he stopped, it was more than twenty minutes before his shadow came up with him. He was probably watched by the man whose dickey was so high that he had to climb a fence to see over it.

KILLING RATS—A Novel Trap.—A resident of Brooklyn is vexed with an increasing family of rats that seem to grow fat on arsenic and rat exterminators. He doesn't like rats, and refers his case to the Sunday Times. That journal recommends a trap made as follows:

"Take a mackerel barrel, for instance, and fill it to about one-third its hight with water. Place a log endwise in the water, so that one end of it will just remain above the surface. Make the head of the barrel a little too small to fit, and suspend it by two pins to the inside of the top of the barrel, so that it will hang as if on a pivot and easily tip by touching either side. On this head thus suspended, secure a piece of savory meat. The first rat that scents it, will, to get the meat, leap on the barrel head.—The head will tip or tilt, precipitate him into the water, and resume its position. The rat in the water will swim to the log, and get on the end of it and squeal vigorously. His cries will bring other rats, all of whom will be tilted into the water, and all of them will fight for the only dry spot in it, viz: the end of the log. As only one rat can hold it, the victor will drown all the rest, and can, in the morning, be drowned himself. We have seen twenty rats caught in one night by such a trick."

CHRISTOPHER NORTH.

He always wrote at night, and would frequently dash off one of his splendid articles between supper and daybreak. His study was a small room, containing a table littered with paper, the walls garnished with a few pictures, while heaps of books were scattered wherever chance might direct. At this table might have been seen the famous professor of moral philosophy, stripped to his shirt and pantaloons, the former open in front, and displaying a vast, hirsute chest, while a slovenly necktie kept the limp collar from utter loss of place. This was his favorite state for composition, and was in true keeping with the character and productions of his genius. When in public, the professor was still a sloven; but his heavy form and majestic head and countenance—though he was not a tall man—at once commanded respect. He never appeared anything but the philosopher, and I, who saw him in the dishabille of his study, never lost my awe for his greatness. He had a worthy family, and maintained an excellent establishment. Aytoun, who is now editor of Blackwood, married one of his daughters, and has proved by his stirring ballads that he was worthy of such an alliance. In writing, the professor eschewed gaslight, and made use of the more classic lamp. A bottle of wine was his companion, and stood at his elbow until exhausted. This will probably explain much of the convival character of the 'Noctes.' The old-fashioned pen was his preference; and as the hours advanced, and the mental excitement waxed in activity, the profuse spattering of ink rattled like rain. As a matter of course, his pay was of the highest rate, and his articles were read with avidity.

TEETH SET ON EDGE.—All acid foods, drinks, medicines, tooth washes and powders are very injurious to the teeth. If a tooth is put in cider, vinegar, lemon juice or tartaric acid, in a few hours the enamel will be completely destroyed, so that it can be removed with the finger nails as if it were chalk. Most people have experienced what is commonly called teeth set on edge. The explanation of it is the acid of the fruit that has been eaten has so far softened the enamel of the tooth that the least pressure is felt by the exceedingly small nerves which pervade the thin membrane which connects the enamel and the bony part of the tooth. Such an effect cannot be produced without injuring the enamel. True it will become hard again, when the acid has been removed by the fluids of the mouth, just as an egg shell that has been softened in this way becomes hard again when put in water. When the effect of sour fruit on the teeth subsides, they feel as well as ever, but they are not as well.—And the oftener it is repeated the sooner the disastrous consequences will be manifested.

☞ A Good Joke is told of a famous Botts barbacue in Powhatan, some years ago. When the guest of the occasion had announced, in his usual emphatic manner, with a knowing look at the fair portion of his audience, that he was a candidate for nothing except matrimony, an old gentleman in the crowd exclaimed, so that all the ladies might hear, "Ah, well, I reckon you can be elected to that—it takes only one vote."

☞ What is that word of one syllable which, if the first two letters are taken from it, becomes a word of two syllables? Plague.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 25, 1863.

☞ Will some of our Danvers friends favor us with an account of the Holten High School Examination?

PEABODY HIGH SCHOOL.

On Friday last occurred the annual examination of this school. It continued all day, and the exercises are said, by those best competent to judge of their merit, to have been highly creditable to the teacher and pupils. A choir of singers, members of the school, gave variety and pleasure to the occasion by their performances. We were in to hear the closing exercises of the examination, which were exceedingly interesting. We only regretted that the limited accommodations for visitors prevented their being witnessed by as many of our citizens as would have been pleased to attend. As it was, the room was over-crowded, and many who desired admittance were obliged to go away, and many of those present in the entries were unable to hear. We trust that another year this part of the annual examination will be held in the Institute—and even that building will be found too small for those who would like and have a right to attend and witness the results of each year's work in our High School.

After the regular recitations were concluded, some of the pupils were called upon for declamations and compositions. They were, as a whole, quite creditable to those who took part in them, and were highly enjoyed by the audience. Although in point of excellence the compositions may not have quite come up to some of those of former years, there was more of uniformity of merit than usual. A racy sprightliness pervaded them, nearly all of which were more pleasing to the hearers than the dullness which is apt to characterize performances of more pretensions to literary ability. We were well content to miss those long essays abounding in sage advice and relations of experience of life never experienced by the writers, which are apt to be the staple commodity on such occasions. Such counsels were better left to age, or, at least, maternity.

Among the subjects treated by the writers were "Superstitions," "Riding in the Cars," "Shopping," "Nothing," "Witches," and the "Mail Bag." We felt a pretty hard rapping on the head from the writers of the two last, which made our ears tingle, and we thought nothing could be better than the way "Nothing" was handled. A great deal was made of it, considering the nothingness of the subject.

After these exercises were concluded, the Chairman of the Committee, THOMAS M. STIMPSON, Esq., addressed the pupils, expressing the great satisfaction of the Committee on the results of the examination, and their high appreciation of the efforts of the teacher, who had been enabled, by his skill and fidelity, to accomplish so much under circumstances not the most encouraging. In consequence of Mr. W. L. Thompson, the Principal, having entered the military service of the country, Mr. Perkins was selected to fill his place during his absence, and, contrary to almost universal experience, a change even of one good teacher for another, has wrought no injury to the school. After commending the exercises of the day, Mr. Stimpson alluded to the presence of a relative of Mr. PEABODY, the great patron of the school and benefactor of the town, as an auspicious feature of the occasion.

Rev. Mr. Barrows, now of the School Committee, and Rev. Mr. Barber, briefly expressed their commendation of the exercises, after which the Chairman presented the Peabody Medals and Prizes which had been awarded to the graduating class. The following are the names of the graduates:

Miss J. E. Prescott, Shakspeare, 2 vols.
Miss H. E. Perley, Milton, 2 vols.
Miss H. E. Stanley, Rogers and Campbell, 2 vols.
Sylvanus L. Newhall, Macauley's England, 5 vols.
T. A. Peirce, Democracy in America, 2 vols.
Miss Caddie Davis, Collins and Gray, and Irving's Salamagundi.
Miss C. M. Osborn, Rogers' Poetical Works.
Miss E. M. Pope, Young's Poetical Works, 2 vols.
R. E. Smith, Macauley's, England, 5 vols.
Miss L. D. Phillips, Rogers' Poetical Works.
Miss L. E. Tilton, Thompson's Seasons.

In addition to the above, the Committee, upon the unanimous request, in writing, of the class, awarded the graduation Medal to the following members, now in the military service:—

Alphonso P. Rhodes, and Charles L. Manning.

THE ESSEX HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS, just published, has a fine table of contents, but we have been most interested in the leading article by Mr. Samuel P. Fowler, of Danvers, who has found a rich view of our country's military history, especially interesting in these times of warlike achievement.

ADJOURNED TOWN MEETING—MARCH 23D 1863.

Voted—Not to fill the vacancies existing in the office of Constable caused by the declination of Stephen F. Reed and Samuel Swett.

Voted—Not to fill the vacancy in the office of Surveyor of Lumber, caused by the declination of A. F. Clark.

The Selectmen were authorized to appoint five Measurers of Wood & Bark.

The Committee to whom was referred the subject matter relating to truancy presented By-laws with reference thereto, which were adopted; and Wm. S. Osborn, M. A. Shackley, Aaron F. Clark and Samuel Brown, Jr., were chosen Truand Officers under said By-laws.

The subject of Burial Ground was recommitted to the former committee, to further consider the matter, and to report at a future meeting.

The Collector of taxes was authorised to use all means of collecting taxes which a Town Treasurer, when appointed Collector, may use, agreeably to Chap. 18, Sec. 73 of Gen. Statutes.

The Committee in regard to a Sidewalk on Tremont Street, at their request, were discharged from the further consideration of the subject.

The Report of the Trustees of the Peabody Institute was accepted, and five hundred copies ordered to be printed, for distribution.

The Town voted to raise by taxation, the present year, the sum of $45,000.00; allowing a discount of 3 per ct., on all taxes paid on or before September 1st, and on all taxes paid on or before Oct. 1st, a discount of 1 1-2 per cent, and on all taxes not paid on the first of Dec., there is to be charged and collected interest, from that date, at the rate of 1 per cent per month.

Appropriated for Town Officers	$2100
For Highways & Bridges	2200
For Purchase of Gravel Pits	500
For Common Schools	7800
For High School	1200
For Lighting Streets	200
For Night Watch	350
For Fire Department	1200
For Board of Health	50
For Printing & Stationary	325
For Poor Department	3500
For State & County Taxes	14975
For Interest,	5000
For Miscellaneous,	600
For Reduction of Debt,	5000

It was voted to allow the Firemen $8 each, together with the poll tax.

The Town Treasurer was authorized to hire such sums of money, as the Selectmen may need, for the payment of the State Aid to families of volunteers.

The Selectmen were instructed to call a meeting, April 6th, for the purpose of considering the expediency of funding a portion of the Town Debt.

The sum of $600 was appropriated, so much of the same as in the judgment of the Selectmen may be deemed necessary, to be expended for the purpose of draining off the water in the vicinity of Sawyer's Hill.

The Selectmen were also instructed to open and re-construct certain drains on Lowell street.

BY-LAWS IN RELATION TO TRUANCY.

SEC. 1. No minor shall be guilty of habitual truancy, and no child between the ages of seven and sixteen years, shall be guilty of wandering about in the streets or public places of the town, having no lawful occupation or business, not attending school, and growing up in ignorance.

SEC. 2. Any person who shall be guilty of any offence mentioned in the foregoing section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty dollars, or commitment to some public institution of instruction or house of reformation, or suitable situation provided for the purpose, for a term not exceeding two years.

SEC. 3. The town shall, at its Annual Meeting, choose four truant officers, whose duty it shall be, in case of violation of Section First aforesaid, to make the complaint, and carry into execution the judgments thereon, and shall receive from the town a suitable compensation for such services.

SEC. 4. Any officer who shall serve, and any Magistrate who shall issue the warrant under Section First aforesaid, shall receive from the town the same fees, for services, as are allowed by law for services in criminal prosecutions.

SEC. 5. All fines for the violation of Section First aforesaid, may be recovered by complaint before any Trial Justice, or Judge of Police Court in the County, and shall be paid into the Treasury of the Town, to enure to such uses as the Town shall from time to time direct.

SOLDIERS' BOUNTY.—We have information directly from the War Department, that, under a recent Act of Congress, extending bounty to discharged soldiers, only those who have served two years, or are discharged by reason of disability incurred in the service, are entitled to the benefit of the Act, as many who are not entitled may be prevented from being at the trouble and expense of making fruitless application.

LOOKING THROUGH A JACK-KNIFE.—We saw, the other day, several middle-aged, grave looking people endeavoring to look through the handle of a jack-knife! They all appeared to admire the scenery very much, and were very loth to take their eyes from it. This is equivalent to looking through a millstone.

☞ France sympathises with Brazil in the difficulty with England. Greece has elected a compromise ministry with Valbi as President.

COUNTERFEITING.

The counterfeiters have taken a new and bold step of late and victimized some of our best moneyed institutions. Instead of the small business they have heretofore pursued, of alteration of small bills to those of a larger denomination, they are now manufacturing bills of a larger denomination and throwing them out to the different banks simultaneously.

Last week a large number of counterfeit bills of the Central Bank, Worcester, of the denomination of $500, were put in circulation on the same day by agents who called on that day at different bank counters and exchanged them for small bills. One of these agents paid this town a visit and succeeded in passing one of the counterfeits at each of our two banks. He managed the business very coolly, counting over the money he received quite deliberately and appearing very unconcerned. At the Warren Bank, the Cashier took his name or alias and before exchanging the bill looked into the detector, the man all the time waiting quietly at the counter. The bill is exceedingly well executed and is said to be a good imitation of the genuine bills of the Worcester Central Bank of that denomination.

CANDIDATES ADMITTED TO THE HOLTEN HIGH SCHOOL, DANVERS.—There were present, as candidates for admission, 49 in all, 27 of whom were admitted, 2 whose ages were the barrier, answered the required, or more than the required number of questions, making 29 who were scholarly qualified. Their names are:

George E. Trask,	Sarah M. Melcher,
Wm. H. Putnam,	M. Kate Sears,
Perlie T. Couch,	Permilia J. Mudge,
D. Herbert Colcord,	Harriet Pray,
Daniel P. Putnam,	Hattee E. Elliott,
Geo. A. Wilkins,	Adelia Hills,
Francis H. Caskin,	Margt. C. Barnett,
James A. Giles,	Alice S. Pettingil,
James C. Perry,	Emily M. Pope,
Mary E. Andrews,	Corrie A. Proctor,
Julia Swinerton,	Eliza P. Fowler,
Catie T. Webb,	Anna M. Waldron,
Mary E. Straw,	Mary E. Noyes.
Theresa A. Cross,

Also, Edward C. Woodman and Evina W. Andrews, who were less than twelve years old, but answered a sufficient number of questions.

PARLIAMENTARY.—The question has arisen in the Prudential School Committee of the Wallis District, Whether the Committee have the right to elect their Chairman? The custom has so long prevailed, that the first named person on the Committee has been the acting Chairman, that many persons have supposed he held the position permanently, by right. The truth is, that a chairman thus constituted is only empowered to act temporarily in the preliminary proceedings, and the committee have an undoubted right to select any one of their number for chairman. If they decline or omit to elect, the temporary chairman holds his position as the head of the committee.

We learn that the same question once arose in the Center District and was decided as above. All the authorities coincide in these views, including Cushing's Manual.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS.—The past week, most of the schools in town have had their examinations, and the results showed that they were generally in good condition, except in those cases where changes of teachers caused an injurious effect in the schools. One of the most pleasing of these examinations was that in the Felton District, kept by Miss YOUNG, who has won an enviable reputation as a teacher. The attendance was larger than usual, and the exercises of the numerous classes were of the first order.

We learn that at the District Meeting, last Monday evening, Mr. CHARLES H. WHIPPLE was chosen Prudential Committee for the year ensuing—a most excellent selection.

IRVING ASSOCIATION.—This organization has not died out yet, and we are glad to hear that they contemplate having a lecture in a few weeks, in aid of the Soldiers' Aid Society.

They have a prospect of obtaining the services of Rev. Mr. CALTHROP, of Marblehead, whose subject would be "England after ten years' absence, and what Englishmen think of the American Crisis."

Mr. Calthrop is an Englishman and has just returned from his native country. His lecture could not fail to be an interesting one.

SUPERIOR COURT.—This Court commenced its March session in Lawrence, on the first Tuesday of the present month.

On motion of Sidney C. Bancroft, Esq., N. J. Holden, of Salem, was admitted to practise as an Attorney in all the Courts of the Commonwealth.

After finishing up the business of the Northern part of the County, the Court adjourned to Salem, where it met yesterday morning.

☞ Rebel communication across the Mississippi, the War and Navy Department are confident will be cut off.

A CONTRABAND LETTER.

Horace Greeley wishes me to write a few lines to you. "I hope she was well. I hear a heap of talking of the North, and I expect to come there some time this summer. I thinks a good deal of the Northern people. I waits 'pon four sergeants, and de orderly, and thinks they are werry fine men, so far. I have been here 2 months, and left de ole massa's home in Tarboro', on Saturday, at 3 o'clk; was with the rebels in de army three weeks; Sunday had a fight below Williamston. I got away in Williamston; den I jined the Northern army on Monday, at 10 o'clk. I am werry dissatisfied in mind about de young ladies I lef behind. I didn't know whether they should do me any good or no, but I wish she would send me back word whether it would do any good or no, to study about the ladies in war times. Since I came here I learnt all the milentary, jes about. I ain't got much patriotism, and wouldn't list in de army for two tousand dollars a month, without dey would let me go home and see my wife, if I had any, 'casionally, especially if she be sick. De orderly is mighty aggravating sometimes; he trows cole water on me sometimes when I lay down on de floor to sleep nights. I can talk partiality as high in de dictionary as anybody. We gets up a jolly ole time outs yere sometimes; has dancing going on. I no dance much myself, but can pat as good as de next one. We colored people are quite a different people from what de Northern folks thought we was. What learning we got, we got by heart, but never had any book learning. I is werry much s'prised of the people dat come from the North. There is more than ever I thought dere was. Dey say dere is as many more dat dey can send out yere, and wants you to write an answer whether dey can start as many more out yere or no. I wants you to take a pleasure trip out from de North, to spen her 'pinion on de colored population. Dey say dat I can't stan de cole wedder at de North. I would like to know how de young ladies stan' it so well; seem like I could stan' it as well as dey do; but I don't know anything about it though. But if de Lord spares my life, I hopes to get dere next summer. I gets up sometimes and stretches across de floor, and am out from de bounds of slavery. I feels as proud sometimes as if I had a tousand dollars. Sometimes I goes down town and gets knick-knacks, and one thing or another, and gets up a good dinner. I won't be dissatisfied in mind after I gets to de North, as dey do out yere. Dey are as smart a folks as I wish to see. I wouldn't give one Northern lady for all de Southern ladies dat could be started. I sets heap o' store by de Northern people, but don't know wedder dey sets heap o' store by me or no How does you enjoy her health at de North in de summer? How does you enjoy yourself since de orderly come away? I wants to know how you thinks I enjoy myself since I come away from de Southerners? Don't you think dat a single life is better dan a married life in war times? De reason why I ask you dat, is case I nebber had been married. If I had been, I should been studying 'bout my wife. I am in my 20 years old, and lived as long as dat, and am glad I ain't. I wish you could write me. De next time you write to de orderly and answer some of my questions. From an enslaved, but now a free negro. HORACE GREELEY.

The above is from his own lips as he sits beside the table and dictated to me what I have written, although it may not be exactly in the negro style. You would enjoy it more if you were here to see him, than in reading what I send you. He would get up every few moments and strut across the tent, with his hands in his pockets, to collect some ideas to send you. He would roll up his revolving lights and grin, then sit beside me and tell me what to write. I have got so attached to him that I should not know what to do if we should happen to lose him. I could not digest all the salt horse and hard tack if I did not have an hour's laugh with him every day. He is the brightest negro I ever saw, and gets off some queer phrases sometimes, which sets us in a roar of laughter. We have drawn a suit of clothes for him—blue pants, blouse and cap—and he is quite a spruce-looking darkey. We feed him from the rations we draw for us five sergeants. He could get work enough of the Government at $8.00 per month, but prefers to stay with us for his board and clothes. Very often when we all get letters, he looks up and says, "I wish I had somebody to write to me." We have learnt him to read pretty well since he has been with us. He will go through the whole manual of arms as well as we can, and caught it all by looking on when we are drilling.

MEDICAL.—The Medical Commencement of Harvard University was held at the Medical College, in Boston, last Wednesday.

Of the fifty-seven gentlemen, from various States of the Union, British Provinces, and adjacent isles, who received the Degree of M. D., six had the distinctive honor of being selected for Public Reading of their Thesis, viz.:—Geo. Lincoln Goodale, Portland, Maine; John Hart, Boston, Mass.; Albert Leshman Mitchell, Chester, Nova Scotia; Geo. Sterne Osborne, South Danvers, Mass.; Geo. Clark Webber, Deep River, Connecticut; Alexander Wood, Boston, Mass.

The Medical Degrees were conferred by President Hill, and the exercises concluded by an address from Prof. Henry I. Bowditch, on the Thesis.

"The Medical Profession—Its noblest aspirations—the fair opportunities it confers in the whole nature of man, and a few of its highest duties and obligations."

The theme was interesting and most ably discussed.

ATLANTIC MONTHLY.—This magazine, for April, is as new and fresh as ever, and has articles by the Country Parson, The Marvel, Gail Hamilton, Maj. Winthrop and others, besides several of the old standard contributors. In the next number is to commence a new serial by the author of Margaret Howth, and another of Hawthorn's articles on English life and scenery.

☞ The Ram Lafayette, sent to the aid of Com. Porter, is said to have an armament of immense weight and power.

We publish a full and accurate list of the officers and members of Co. C, 5th Regiment, in order to gratify the wishes of a number of our correspondents in the army. The list was prepared by Sergeant L. A. MANNING, Clerk of Co. C:

ROLL OF CO. C, 5th REGIMENT, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia.

COMMISSIONED OFFICERS.
Robert S. Daniels, Jr., Captain,	So. Danvers.
George F. Barnes, 1st Lieut,	So. Danvers.
Wm. L. Thompson, 2d Lieut,	So. Danvers.
NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS.
John W. Stevens, 1st Sergeant,	So. Danvers.
Chas. H. Kimball, Sergeant,	So. Danvers.
Benj. F. Southwick, Sergeant,	So. Danvers.
Lewis A. Manning, Sergeant,	So. Danvers.
George H. Little, Sergeant,	So. Danvers.
Joseph S. Nutter, 1st Corporal,	So. Danvers.
Thomas W. Buxton, Corporal,	So. Danvers.
Horace S. Page, Color Corporal,	So. Danvers.
William F. Pingree, Corporal,	So. Danvers.
James Perkins, Corporal,	So. Danvers.
Joseph N. Burbeck, Corporal,	So. Danvers.
Perez L Winchester, Corporal,	So. Danvers.
Nicholas M. Quint, Corporal,	So. Danvers.
MUSICIANS.
Henry R. Holder,	Marlboro'.
Charles A. Symonds,	Middleton.
WAGGONER.
Albert Carleton,	So. Danvers.
PRIVATES.
Arnold, Frank T.	South Danvers.
Barnard, John W.	South Danvers.
Batchelder, George H.	South Danvers.
Bodge, Amos P.	South Danvers.
Bodge, Jacob G.	South Danvers.
Bushby, Joseph, Jr.	South Danvers.
Buxton, George W.	South Danvers.
Boynton, John W.	South Danvers.
Beckett, William C.	South Danvers.
Curtis, William P.	South Danvers.
Colby, Charles	South Danvers.
Carr, Charles E.	South Danvers.
Dodge, John C.	South Danvers.
Evans, Orin R.	South Danvers.
Farnham, Andrew N.	South Danvers.
Foster, John M., Hospital Steward,	Salem.
Graves, John Jr.	South Danvers.
Goodridge, George H.	South Danvers.
Galeucia, Samson B.	South Danvers.
Galeucia, Perley	South Danvers.
Gilbert, James	South Danvers.
Hildreth, William H.	South Danvers.
Harrington, William H.	Salem.
Hutchinson, Benjamin F,	South Danvers.
Hutchinson, Cleaves K.	South Danvers.
Ham, Henry E.	South Danvers.
Hadley, Horace L.	Salem.
Hart, Samuel P.	South Danvers.
Ingalls, Amos	South Danvers.
Johnson, Frank E.	Salem.
Jacobs, George F.	South Danvers.
Jones, George W.	South Danvers.
Kimball, Hiram A.	South Danvers.
Kimball, Charles E.	Ashland.
Low, George H.	Salem.
Lunt, William J.	Salem.
Larrabee, Henry	South Danvers.
Marsh, George E.	South Danvers.
McKay, Edward W.	South Danvers.
Manning, Charles L.	South Danvers.
Marden, John W. (discharged)	South Danvers.
Mackintire, Charles	South Danvers.
Moore, Benjamin N.	South Danvers.
Moore, George W.	South Danvers.
Nevers, Charles W.	South Danvers.
Osgood, Jos. Henry,	Ward Master Hospital.
Osborn, Amos 3d,	South Danvers.
Peasley, Austin J.	South Danvers.
Peasley, Thomas W.	South Danvers.
Plummer, Enoch F.	South Danvers.
Perkins, Albert H.	South Danvers.
Perkins, William H.	South Danvers.
Poor, George H.	South Danvers.
Pemberton, Frank A.	South Danvers.
Rhodes, Alphonzo P.	South Danvers.
Rhodes, Joseph	South Danvers.
Ray, Thomas A.	South Danvers.
Rust, Elbridge	South Danvers.
Rose, Frederick J.	Marlboro'.
Swett, Joseph H.	South Danvers.
Stone, Frederick T.	South Danvers.
Sanborn, John F.	South Danvers.
Small, Daniel A.	South Danvers.
Southwick, Lewis B.	South Danvers.
Southwick, William H.	South Danvers.
Searl George,	Salem.
Symonds, Benj. R., Marker,	South Danvers.
Sumner, John A. P.	South Danvers.
Teel, George C., Adjutant's Hostler,	S. Dan.
Towne, Chas. A. (discharged,)	South Danvers.
Trask, Charles	South Danvers.
Tufts, Albert	South Danvers.
Upton, Geo. A. (discharged),	South Danvers.
Winchester, Benj. J.	South Danvers.
Warner, Lorenzo D.	South Danvers.
Whidden, Albert H.	South Danvers.
Wiggin, Andrew J.	South Danvers.
Webster, Caleb A.	South Danvers.
Waterman, James L.	South Danvers.
Walkup, James E.	Ashland.

PATRIOTIC.—Archbishop Hughes of New York, when called on by the Assessors for his return of silver plate, liable to tax under the U. S. Revenue Law, rendered twelve thousand and forty ounces, with the remark: "You need not exempt me forty ounces, the country requires all the tax."

MR. FENOLLOSA'S CONCERT, at the Peabody Institute, on Wednesday evening, was a marked succes. The hall was filled, and the performances gave great satisfaction. The benevolent object in behalf of which this concert was given was substantially aided, as will be seen by the subjoined note:—

MARCH 19, 1863.

MR. FENOLLOSA.

Dear Sir,

The Ladies of the "Soldiers' Aid Society," gratefully acknowledge their obligations to you and your assistants, for your efforts in behalf of our sick and wounded Soldiers, thereby adding to our funds the sum of one hundred and twenty-one dollars, being the nett proceeds of the Concert.

MRS. HENRY COOK,
So. Danvers. President.

FIRE IN BEVERLY. About half past 12 o'clock Sunday morning, fire was discovered in the upper story of the house on Congress street, owned by Messrs. R. & J. Pickett, and occupied by two families as tenants. The house with all its contents was completely destroyed, the families barely escaping with their lives.—House insured at the Holyoke Office.

☞ The Loyalists in Northern Alabama are giving the rebels much trouble.

LATEST FROM MEXICO.—Advices from the City of Mexico, to the 19th of February, state that no immediate attack was expected on Puebla at that time; notwithstanding the proclamation of Gen. Foley. It is estimated that there were 34,000 Mexican soldiers centered at that point, while 50,000 more were in the neighborhood. The city of Mexico, and the fortifications of that city were being greatly strengthened. The arsenal was engaged, during the day and night, manufacturing the best rifled cannon and other improved implements of war. The troops were generally well armed and equipped, and apparently capable of making a formidable resistance to the farther aggression of the French forces. The French know this, and knowing that a defeat might result in the capture of their whole army, they will measure their ground well before venturing upon so hazardous a trial.

BRIGHAM YOUNG ARRESTED FOR POLYGAMY. A dispatch from Salt Lake, dated March 10, says:—"Judge Kennedy this day issued a writ against Brigham Young, under the polygamy act of Congress. U. S. Marshall Gibbs served it without the aid of posse. The writ was responded to, and the defendant personally appeared in Court. After a preliminary investigation, the judge held him in $2000 bail, which was promptly given." This will be found to be the commencement of serious trouble with the Mormons—that very trouble which, from the hesitating policy of the Government ever since the occupation of Utah by these people, every observing man foresaw what was to take place. The military force there is by no means as strong as it ought to be to resist the combined strength of these fanatics. They will battle hard for polygamy, and being in their own country, in the midst of their supplies, they are very likely to give us a great deal of trouble.

☞ The iron-clad steamer Tonawanda, in process of construction at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, will be a formidable vessel. The spaces between the ribs have been filled in with heavy timber; the outside of the frame is to be planked in the usual manner, but the coat of mail is not to be fastened upon the planking.—Large timbers are to be placed on the outside of the planking to receive the iron, and timbers of similar size will be placed on the inside of the frame. Altogether there will be nearly five inches of iron.

☞ The Nashville Union, of a late date says: "A friend informs us that a distinguished East Tennessee Union officer went into the rebel hospitals at Murfreesborough, where the Tennessee soldiers were confined, and conversed freely with them in reference to the rebellion. Nearly nine-tenths of them avowed that they were for the Union. They said that they had been conscripted, and forced into the front rank of the battle, at the points of the bayonets of the Texas and Mississippi soldiers."

☞ In alluding to the speech of Judge Daly, a Union Democrat, at the late Union mass meeting at New York, the Herald says: 'Judge Daly, in his Cooper Institute speech on the occasion of the late grand Union consolidation meeting, said that 'when Admiral Blake was fighting the battles of England, in the wars under a government (Cromwell's,) in which he did not believe, he gave this answer to his men inclined to mutiny: 'It is our duty to stand by and fight for our country, no matter in whose hands the government may temporarily be.' That's the doctrine.'

☞ The correspondent of the New York Times says: "President Lincoln, when informed that Gen. Stoughton had been captured by the rebels at Fairfax, is reported to have said that he did not mind the loss of the brigadier as much as he did the loss of the horses. 'For,' said he, 'I can make a much better brigadier in five minutes, but the horses cost a hundred and twenty-five dollars apiece.'" More disgraceful negligence than this concerning Stoughton, has not occurred during the whole war.

☞ The piokets of the enemy along certain portions of the line on the opposite side of the Rappahannock are one half negroes and one half white men. The negroes are armed and uniformed the same as the whites. The fact appears beyond a question, only one hundred to one hundred and fifty yards intervening between our pickets, and they are plainly to be distinguished without the aid of a glass.

☞ The Navy Department has issued proposals to be answered within thirty days, for monster sea-going iron-clads. Their masts, boats, and rigging to be of iron. Their burden eight thousand tons; their draft twenty-one feet. They are to carry ten guns, in casemates, weighing twenty-five tons without the carriages, and are to be worked by two pairs of engines.

☞ The following resolution was recently adopted in the Legislature of Ohio: "Resolved, That we will have no dissolution of the Union; that we will have no armistice; that we can fight as long as rebels and traitors can; that the war shall go on until law is restored, and we will never despair of the republic."

☞ The Prince of Wales, at the recent opening of Parliament, took his seat for the first time as a Peer; the ceremony was the occasion of a brilliant display. The Lords assembled early and in unusual force, and the galleries showed a splendid array of aristocratic beauty.

☞ The Louisville Journal says that the financial exhaustion of the rebels is strikingly proved by the fact, that, according to the rebel Secretary of the Treasury, "for every dollar expended by them in the war they have not been able to raise more than three cents by taxation."

☞ A rebel lieutenant, captured near Charleston, says that secret negotiations for peace have been progressing for three weeks at Richmond, but the papers are not allowed to allude to the fact, or to give particulars.

☞ A city editor says that a man in New York got himself into trouble by marrying two wives. A western editor assures his contemporary that a good many men in Michigan have done the same thing by only marrying one.

☞ The Territory of Idaho.—Congress has passed a bill to create a new territory out of eastern Oregon and western Dacotah under the name of Idaho, which is Indian for Gem of the mountains.

☞ Only a dozen of the officers in the Confederate naval service are of Northern birth.

FESTIVAL!

The Ladies connected with the M. E. Church and Congregation in South Danvers, will hold a SOCIAL ENTERTAINMENT in the

VESTRY OF THE CHURCH,

On WEDNESDAY EVE'G, March 25.

Brief interesting addresses will be delivered by Rev. Messrs. Barber and Barrows of South Danvers, and Rev. G. F. Cox of Salem.

The C. O. Glee Club have engaged to be present, and will entertain the audience with excellent singing.

The tables will be supplied with oysters, pastry, tea, coffee, fruit, confectionery, etc., etc.

Cards of admission at 15 cents, can be had at the door.

If the weather should be stormy the festival will be deferred till the first fair evening.

South Danvers, Mch 25, 1863.

☞ A letter from a loyal citizen at Nassau, the Anglo-rebel port, says: "If the Government could only be persuaded of facts which are developed here daily, see the letters from the Southern States and hear the remarks that are dropped by the rebels, fresh from 'Dixie,' they would appreciate the deplorable state the poor wretches are in and be convinced that an energetic and properly conducted move in almost any directions would suppress the rebellion."

☞ Mr. Sanders has presented to the Napa (Cal.) Reporter a piece of sound redwood taken from the centre of a tree some eight feet in diameter, and in which is imbedded an acorn perfect in all respects. From counting the layers of wood, the conclusion is that the acorn must have been in its snug retreat from 2800 to 3000 years. The timber on all sides is sound and without any signs of fracture or flaw.

☞ Gold in Boston on Friday stood at 6 1-2 premium. Orders from Philadelphia and New York for the purchase of speculative and dividend-paying stocks gave the market quite an impulse.

FIRE IN SAUGUS.—The Kerosene oil factory of Messrs. Berry & Hawkes, in East Saugus was destroyed by fire on Friday. Loss $1500. No insurance.

SALEM CUSTOM HOUSE.—James H. Batti Esq., has resigned the office of Storekeeper at this port, and Capt. William C. Waters, late Surveyor, has been appointed his successor.

☞ Ninety Refugees arrived at Washington on Thursday, who state the destitution of the rebels to be deplorable; even in Richmond there was suffering for the necessaries of life.

☞ The Queen of the Wave, a British steamer captured in attempting to run into Charleston, is a valuable prize. Her cargo consists chiefly of ammunition.

☞ The enemy is supposed of late to have withdrawn a large number of troops from Fredericksburg. Longstreet has gone, but whither no one knows.

☞ A Michigan soldier who was accused of stealing a rebel's goose, said that he found the bird hissing at the American flag, and arrested it for treason.

☞ Better Late than Never.—Uncle Elihu Wright, of Sycamore, Illinois, aged 84 years married, on the 26th ult., Mrs. Hopsboth Dodson, aged 70 years.

☞ Six hundred thousand dollars had been recovered from the wreck of the steamship Golden Gate on the 12th of March.

☞ The fleet now in process of construction in England and Scotland is spoken of in private letters with alarm.

☞ Joe Coburn and Tom McCool contemplate a mutual pummeling shortly. The stake is $1000 a side.

☞ Rumor announces it as the intention of President Lincoln soon to visit the North.

☞ A salmon has been caught in the Penobscot, said to be the first of the season.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, for April, has been received from Wilkinson, and is a rich number whether we consider its reading contents or its embellishments. The story of Wm. Charl Baldwin's Adventures in Africa, is very exciting and interesting and finely illustrate The monthly view of public affairs, is well related and of sterling historic value.

We have also received a copy, through E. Waitt, of Danvers, from A. Williams & Co., Boston, the General Agents.

☞ The enterprise of Wyzeman Marshall, Esq., certainly deserves success; for, after having given the public some of the best entertainments ever in the city of Boston, at the Howard, he has now leased the Academy of Music, and opened it on Monday last, with a first-class French Dramatic Company—which at the Howard John E. Owens, the celebrated Comedian, appeared in Dot, or the Cricket on the Hearth.

☞ We have received from D. B. Brown & Brother a pathetic Ballad, entitled "Johnny's so Bashful," published by Horace Waters New York.

Their Music Rooms are well filled with a fine stock of Pianos, and Melodeons, of the best makers, which are offered for sale or rent on very advantageous terms.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK, for April, is received and it more than sustains its former high reputation, both in its literary execution and its artistic embellishments. No wonder that it is to be seen on all our center tables.

30 CENTS.—Ladies all Wool Hose, usual 42 and 45 cents, now only 30 cents, at PEABODY'S—They will probably be worth from 50 to 75 cents next winter.

EIGHT CENTS.—Best Worsted Braids, Dress Trimmings and Bindings, 8 cts. per piece at PEABODY'S Ladies Furnishing Store—See his new advertisement.

☞ Try one of Rhoades' National Cloth Wringers, before purchasing elsewhere. For sale at the Equity Store, South Danvers. See advertisement.

Read advertisement headed "Our Prices."

☞ Visit OSBORNE'S Store, and look at the usual variety of new styles in HATS and CAPS—191 Essex street.

FROM 30 CENTS TO $2,50.

Best Watch Spring Skirts from 30 cents to $2,50, at PEABODY'S, 220 Essex street.

Lost!

On Friday last, between Pleasant and Park streets, a FITCH FUR TIPPET. The finder will be rewarded by leaving it at my residence, or at Geo. P. Daniels' store.

Mrs. C. A. OSGOOD, Pleasant St.
South Danvers, February 25, 1862.

Read PEABODY'S price list on advertising page.

Save your Rags and Paper!

The subscriber will pay the highest prices in CASH for Rags and Paper. By giving seasonable notice he will call at the houses of those who wish to dispose of their rags.

"A penny saved is as good as a penny earned."
Poor Richard says.

SUMNER SOUTHWICK.
South Danvers, Jan 14, 1863.

RUBBER PAGES 15 cts., at PEABODY'S.

☞ Do not neglect to read the advertisement headed "How to Make Five Dollars a Day."

GRACE'S SALVE.—From John G. Whittier, the Poet:—

AMESBURY, 8th 3d mo., 1863.

Respected Friend:

I thank thee for thy favor and the accompanying box. I have not had occasion to test it myself, but have heard it very highly spoken of by such of my neighbors as have used it, and have no doubt of its being a valuable compound.

Very truly thy friend,
JOHN G. WHITTIER.

To WM. GRACE.

See advertisement of Grace's Salve.

Marriages.

In South Danvers, Mch 18, by Rev Mr Barker, Mr Harlam P Richardson to Miss Lucy G Thomas, both of Middleton.

In Marblehead, Mch 12, by Rev Mr Chase, Mr Henry P Reynolds to Mrs Harriet Warrington.

Deaths.

In West Danvers, Feb. 24th, Lorin P, son of James E and Louisa A Sheen 4 months 7 days.

Sleep on sweet babe and take thy rest;
The Lord doth call and thou art blest;

March 9, Martha E, 7 years 7 mos 10 days; 5th, Persis S, 1 year 3 mos 27 days,—children of Jonas S and Phebe M Munroe.

Shall we see and know each other,
In that happy home above?
Will our souls be there united
By these sacred bonds of love?
A haven bright and cheerful,
Where all our troubles cease;
There to live and love together
In happiness and peace.

(The grand parents of these children now have four grand children lying in the receiving tomb waiting for burial.) M. E. B.

In Salem, March 16, Mr Joseph H Crandell, 32; 19th, Mary Josephine, daughter of the late Mr Peter Burns, 4 yrs; George P, son of Geo. S and Lucy E Farmer, 22 mos; 20th, Edward, son of Timothy and Mary Kirby, 21 mos; 21st, Nathaniel Ward Osgood, Esq, 65.

In Lynn, Mch 3, Mrs Honora Boardman, 65; 14th, Mr John Pearson, 63.

In North Andover, Mch 13, Mary E, daughter of J Prescott and Harriet Fisher, 21 1-2 yrs. This is the fourteenth child that these parents have buried, and two now survive.

In East Boston, Mch 17, Mrs Sarah, wife of Capt Wm P Lander, 46 yrs.

In Boston, Mch 17, Mrs Abigail W, wife of John H Pitman, 66 yrs 4 mos; 18th, Mrs Ann S, widow of the late George H Loring, and daughter of the late Rev Dr Sharp; Mrs Lydia, widow of the late William Palfrey, 91 yrs.

Obituary.

At the Alms House, in South Danvers, on Wednesday, the 11th inst., Miss Sibyl Swinerton, at the advanced age of 93 years 16 days. She was, we believe, the last survivor of the slaves who were made free in Danvers, in accordance with the principles of the Constitution of Massachusetts, adopted in 1780. But the freedom, in which she most rejoiced, and by which she was truly and signally ennobled, was that conferred by the "Lord of all," who makes "free indeed." She has lived in Salem for nearly or quite half a century. She had previously made a profession of religion in Beverly. As a member of the Tabernacle Church, for more than forty years, she has uniformly sustained a character of consistent, cheerful, happy, godliness and devoutness. Whatever may have been at times her privations, or solicitudes, it may well be doubted, if any one could have been found among us, whose real enjoyment of life exceeded that of this emancipated, christianized daughter of a race, which it is so common and so cruel to despise and ridicule. Retaining her faculties in remarkable vigor until a few days before her death,—delightfully confiding in the gracious promises to the believing and the faithful;—her heart and voice often singing her gratitude in her artless manner, for the numerous blessings which she had received;—cherishing most tenderly the names and kind offices of endeared friends and benefactors;—ready and longing to depart, and be with her ever living Redeemer,—she has peace, fully and triumphantly finished her course. She has been translated,—we may say assuredly,—to that "better country," and that "city of God," where earthly distinctions are seen no more;—where "there is neither Jew nor Greek,—there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for they are all one in Christ Jesus."—Salem Gaz.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

THE ADVERTISER HAVING BEEN RESTORED to health in a few weeks, by a very simple remedy, after having suffered several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease, Consumption—is anxious to make known to his fellow-sufferers the means of cure.

To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription used (free of charge,) with the directions for preparing and using the same, which they will find a SURE CURE for CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c. The only object of the advertiser in sending the Prescription is to benefit the afflicted, and spread information which he conceives to be invaluable, and he hopes every sufferer will try his remedy, as it will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing.

Rev. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburgh,
March, 18, 3m Kings County, New York.

EDITOR OF WIZARD—Dear Sir: with your permission I wish to say to the readers of your paper that I will send by return mail to all who wish it, (free) a Recipe, with full directions for making and using a simple Vegetable Balm, that will effectually remove, in 10 days, Pimples, Blotches, Tan, Freckles, and all Impurities of the Skin, leaving the same soft, clear, smooth and beautiful.

I will also mail free to those having Bald Heads or Bare Faces, simple directions and information that will enable them to start a full growth of Luxurient Hair, Whiskers, or a Moustache, in less than 30 days. All applications answered by return mail without charge. Respectfully yours,

THOS. F. CHAPMAN, Chemist,
March 18 2m No. 831 Broadway, New York.

M. FENOLLOSA,

TEACHER OF MUSIC,

LETS.....PIANO FORTES, at the lowest rates;
SELLS.....PIANO FORTES, at the Manufacturers Prices;
EXCHANGES....PIANO FORTES, on the easiest terms;

At Rooms No. 7 Central street,
feb 11 SALEM, MASS.

New Jersey Lands for Sale,

— ALSO —

GARDEN OR FRUIT FARMS,

Suitable for Grapes, Peaches, Pears, Raspberries, Strawberries, Blackberries, Currants, &c., of 1, 2½, 5, 10 or 20 acres each, at the following prices for the present, viz: 20 acres for $200, 10 acres for $110, 5 acres for $60, 2½ acres for $40, 1 acre for $20. Payable by one dollar a week.

Also, good Cranberry lands, and village lots in CHETWOOD 25 by 100 feet, at $10 each, payable by one dollar a week. The above land and farms are situated at Chetwood, Washington Township, Burlington, New Jersey. For further information, apply with a P. O. Stamp, for a circular, to

B. FRANKLIN CLARK,
feb 18, 1863 No. 90 Cedar St, New York, N. Y.

MANUAL FENOLLOSA,

TEACHER OF THE

Violin, Piano and Singing,

Music Rooms, No. 7 Central Street,
SALEM, MASS.

How to Make $5.00 a Day, When all other Efforts have Failed.

HOOD & CO., 186 Broadway, New York, have just published ONE HUNDRED VALUABLE SECRETS, possessing them, any one, male or female, can easily make $5 a day, without capital, in any city or village. Every one should possess these secrets, for they are worth $500 to any single or married person. Some of these Secrets have been sold for $20 each. One alone cost us $250 for the right to publish it. When you once own them you will never part with them for money. Several persons are now making $120 per month by these Secrets alone. By them any person may make money easily and rapidly. We send one Book of Secrets for 25 cents, two copies, 40 cents, club of three for 50 cts., club of four 65 cts. club of five 75 cts., club of eight copies, $1 Send Government money.

New York, Feb 18, 1863. 3m

But now his nose is thin,
And it rests upon his chin
Like a staff!
And a crook is in his back,
And a melancholy crack in his laugh.

That is the man who refused to take Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit to cure his disordered stomach—hence the crook in his back, and the melancholy tones of his voice.

Ham's Invigorating Spirit can be obtained at Mr. D. P. Grosvenor's Apothecary Shop, 33 Main St.

Advertisements.

For Ladies and Gentlemen.

REAL

ROMAN SCARFS,

— AND —

NECK TIES,

IN BRILLIANT COLORS AND LATEST PATTERNS.

☞ Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call and examine—at

George S. Walker's,
March 18 228 Essex Street, Salem.

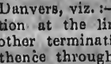
Salem and South Danvers Railroad.

SUBSCRIBERS to the Capital Stock are hereby notified that the same is payable at the SALEM BANK, in four instalments, of 25 per cent. each, on the following days, viz.—

March 2; March 20; April 10; May 1.

Per order,
GEO. D. PHIPPEN, Treasurer.
mch 7 2m

THE PIANO FORTES



THAT have attracted so much attention of late, and are so much admired on account of their SPLENDID FULL, RICH, MELLOW TONE, and GRAND FRENCH ACTION, are for sale only at the Office of the Agent,

218 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.,

where reference may be had to many who have purchased. Other Piano Fortes also, are for sale, varying in price from $180 upwards. Please call.

Mch 11 6m S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

WATCH FOUND.

THE owner can have it by proving property and paying expenses.

MRS. JOS. INGALLS, 123 Lowell St.
South Danvers, March 11, 1863.

GLASS WARE.

CUT and Pressed Goblets; Tumblers; Dishes in great variety; just opened at

S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.
mch 25

CROCKERY WARE.

WHITE Dinner and Tea Ware; Fancy and White Toilet Ware, in complete sets—by

mch 25 S C & E A SIMONDS.

AGRICULTURAL PAPERS, &c.

SUBSCRIPTIONS received for all the Agricultural and Horticultural Papers and Magazines, at the Publishers' prices—by

mch 25 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

MISS MUGFORD.

A new supply of "Triumph in Trial."—A Memorial of Sarah S. Mugford—by S M Worcester, D. D,—at

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

A Good Milk Route for Sale,

INQUIRE at this office.
South Danvers, Feb. 11, 1863.

James F. Almy.

WE are selling best makes PLAIN WOOL M. DE LAINES in Browns, 50 cts. per yard;

BLACKS,

BLUES,

MODES,

and FANCY SHADES, in full variety,

AT LOW PRICES.

Our whole stock was never offered at lower prices, compared with ruling rates, than at the present time.

JAMES F. ALMY,
mch 25 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

John P. Peabody.

OUR PRICES!

Best American Pins,	per paper,	5 cents;
Best Worsted Braids,	per piece,	8 do
Best Glazed Cotton,	per spool,	7 do
Good Glazed Cotton,	per spool,	5 do
Nice All-Wool Hose,	per pair,	30 do
All our 42 and 45 cent Hose, to close,		30 do
Nice Cotton Hose, per pair		17 do
Cotton Hose, per dozen, $1 75, $2 25 &		$2 75
Ladies' Rubber Pages, with clasps,		15 cents;
Union Rose Soap—two cakes,		5 do
Nice Linen Hdkfs.,		15 do
Fine Hem'd Linen Hdkfs.,		35 do
Fine Cambric Hdkfs., for children,		6 do
Watch Spring Skirts, all sizes, fm 30 cts to		$2.

You can judge by the above that we are selling at less than the regular market prices. We have a large stock mostly bought before the rise, which we shall continue to sell at the low prices, until April 1st, 1863.

ALL WHO STUDY ECONOMY WILL BUY NOW!

Buy Your Cotton Hose Now!
Buy Your Sun Umbrellas Now!
Buy Your Gloves Now!
Buy Your Spool Cottons Now!
Buy Your Trimming Braids Now!

New Goods! New Goods!

Cambric Edgings;	Steel Dress Buttons;
Cambric Insertings;	Gilt Buttons;
Cotton Edgings;	Silk Dress Buttons;
Saxony Edgings;	Ladies' Rubber Pages;
Black Lace Veils;	Leather Currency Holdrs;
Malta Lace Collars;	Leather Wallets and Bags;
Mourning Collars;	Perfumes and Soaps;
Crapo Veils & Sets;	Puffs—Boxes—Brushes;

MISSES' SKIRTS;
MISSES' SKIRTS;
MISSES' SKIRTS;
MISSES' SKIRTS;
LADIES' SKIRTS;
LADIES' SKIRTS;
LADIES' SKIRTS;

Lace Goods Department.

Collars—Sleeves—Sets—Edgings—Insertings, Bands—Flouncings—Mourning Goods—Magic Ruffles—Collarette Ruffles—Cap Laces—Bobbinett and Brussels Laces—Silk Bonnet Laces—Wr't Hdkfs, etc.

Millenery Goods.

Ribbons—Flowers—Ruches—Tabs—Linings—Laces—Wire Taste—Lustring Ribbons Cords—Blonde Laces—Joined Blonde—Buckles—Pins etc, etc.

Hosiery and Gloves.

Cotton Hosiery, (Old Prices)—Woolen Hosiery (to close)—Children's Hosiery—Baby's Socks.

Ladies', Misses', and Children's Gloves,—in Lisle Thread, Silk, Linen, Braganza, Cotton.

White Goods.

Cambrics—Lawns—Muslins—Dimety—White Linen Lawns and Cambrics—all bought before the great rise, and selling without the advance.

Small Wares.

Pins—Needles—Buttons—Cottons—Threads, Tapes—Hooks & Eyes—Elastics—Garters Pages—White Wax—Braids—Cords—Bindings—Scissors—Tambour Cottons—Crochet Cottons and Needles—Crochet Braids—Embroidery Braids—Soaps—Perfumes—Brushes—Puffs—Powders—Boxes Rouge Wallets—Bags, &c.

Ladies' Underwear.

Corsets;	Chemises;	Under Vests;
Bodices;	Drawers.	Pants;
Skirts;	Shapes;	Corset Clasps;

☞ We have not followed the universal custom of marking up as fast as there is a rise in the market, and shall continue to sell atour regular prices, until ☜

APRIL 1st.

ONE PRICE ONLY!
220 ESSEX ST., SALEM,
JOHN P. PEABODY.

ORGANDIE MUSLINS.

WE shall open new Spring styles of Organdie Muslins to-day.

Ladies will do well to buy now, as prices are advancing daily. ANN R. BRAY, mch 4 76 Federal street.

NEW BOOKS,

AT G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S.

The Scarlet Flower, a Novel by Pierce Egan Esq;
The Trapper's Daughter, a story of the rocky Mountains, by Gustave Aimard;
Peterson's Magazine for April;
Atlantic Monthly, for do;
Eclectic Magazine, do;
Webster's army and Navy Pocket Dictionary
mch 25 190 Essex street.

NEW NEEDLE THREADER.

DOUBLE-ENDED, Excelsior Sewing Needle Threader and Worsted Lbreader combined—of great utility for near sighted or nervous people in threading needles, numbering from 4 to 12, and also Darning Needles.

Call and see them, at
mch 4 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

School for both Sexes.

THE next term of MISS FRANCES E. VERY'S School for pupils of both sexes, will commence April 1st, at the Oliver School House, No. 95 Federal Street.

Application may be made at No. 154 Federal Street. Salem, Mch 4, 1863.

George S. Walker.

Linen Fronts, Cuffs & Collars.

LINENS are advancing, consequently there must be a corresponding advance in the above named articles. The present is the time to buy all styles and qualities in stock bought before the rise, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
Gent's Furnishing Store,
Feb 11 No. 228 Essex st, Stearn's Building.

Scarfs. Ties. Stocks.

THE LARGEST ASSORTMENT,
THE BEST STYLES
THE LOWEST PRICES.

Also—BLACK SILK CRAVATS—30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches—Matteoni's manufacture, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
feb 11 228 Essex st, Stearns' Block.

Umbrellas.

GINGHAM, Silk and Cotton—largest stock in the city, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
Dealer in Gent's Furnishing Goods & Toilet Articles. Opposite Eastern Railroad Station.

Administrator's Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the subscriber has been duly appointed administrator of the estate of WILLIAM DELANEY, late of South Danvers, in the county of Essex, yeoman, deceased, and has taken upon himself that trust, by giving bonds, as the law directs: All persons having demands upon the estate of said deceased are required to exhibit the same; and all persons indebted to said estate are called upon to make payment to

THOS. M. STIMPSON, Adm'r.
South Danvers, March 4, 1863. 3w

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,

FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,

Central Street, South Danvers,

HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.

He keeps as good an assortment of

COFFINS AND CASKETS,

as can be found at any establishment, and at the lowest prices.

He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.

All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

SOUTH DANVERS POST OFFICE.

GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.

MAILS CLOSE
At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.
MAILS DUE
At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.

Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.

F. POOLE, P. M.
South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN. M'NEAL.
South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

THE CLOTHES WRINGER.

JUST OBTAINED

RHOADES' CELEBRATED

NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER,

THE VERY BEST YET INVENTED,

AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING MACHINE.

CALL AND EXAMINE.

For Sale by E. SOUTHWICK,
At the EQUITY GROCERY STORE,
South Danvers, Jan 21, 1863. 3m

GRACE'S CELEBRATED SALVE.

A SURE RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERER.

This Salve is a vegetable preparation, invented in the 17th century, by DR. WM. GRACE, surgeon in King James's army. Through its agency he cured thousands of most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor.

Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Burns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Scalds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Flesh Wounds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Corns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Felons.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Frozen Limbs.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Wens.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Callouses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Salt Rheum.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chilblains.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Breast.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Lips.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Erysipelas Sores.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Abscesses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ulcers.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chapped Hands.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ringworms.

And from Sores and Wounds of the most serious nature down to a common Pimple. It eradicates Pimples from the face, and beautifies the skin. There is no preparation before the public that can equal this Salve in prompt and energetic action for the speedy cure of external diseases, as those who have tried its virtues testify. Soldiers, Sailors, and Fishermen, will find this Salve their best friend.

It has none of the irritating, heating properties of other remedies, but cools, cleanses, and heals the most serious Sores and Wounds. Every family, and especially those containing children, should keep a box on hand in case of accident, for it will save them much trouble, suffering, and money. All it wants is a fair trial to cure old and inveterate Sores.

MANUFACTURED BY
WILLIAM GRACE,
AMESBURY, MASS.

PRICE 25 CENTS PER BOX.

Each box has the above cut and the fac-simile of the proprietor's signature attached to it, which is duly copyrighted.

Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., 11 and 12 Marshall street, Weeks & Potter, 170 Washington street, and M. S. Burr & Co., 26 Tremont street, Boston, Wholesale Agents.

For sale by druggists and at country stores everywhere.

A. J. Archer & Co

ELEGANT NEW GOODS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

OPEN THIS MORNING

MANY NEW STYLES OF

DRESS GOODS,

INCLUDING

Rich and Heavy Black Silks,

Rich Plain Colored Silks.

☞ Our patrons are invited to examine these Goods. Prices are still advancing, and money will be saved by buying now.

Salem, February 11, tf

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

Have on hand a full supply of

BROWN SHEETINGS AND SHIRTINGS;

BLEACHED SHEETINGS & SHIRTINGS;

— Also —

GREY TWILLED FLANNELS;

WHITE FLANNELS.

— Also —

BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,

which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES.
Salem, January 28—6w

KEROSENE Stand and Hand Lamps, and Peg Lamps Also Wicks and Chimneys—for sale by S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

A FINE assortment of Paper Shades for Kerosene Lamps, just opened at S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

HILTON'S Insoluble Cement; Rickards's Improved Cement; Spaulding's, Upton's, and Nichols's Liquid Glues, for sale by

feb 11 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

SLATING. SLATING.

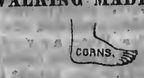
GEORGE FOWLER & COMPA'Y,

NO. 2 ST. PETER COURT, SALEM, respectfully inform their friends and the citizens of this and neighboring towns and cities—that they are prepared to execute all orders for Slating, promptly and faithfully.

Roofs covered with any description of Slates, or repaired at short notice.

All work undertaken will be warranted.
Address—Box 366, Salem Post Office.
Salem, January 28—1863. tf

WALKING MADE EASY.



DR. P. KENISON,

CHIROPODIST,

215 Washington St., Boston,

Cures Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails. Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

D. W. BOWDOIN,
—ARTIST IN—
PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.

Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]

Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotype, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.

☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

M. A. PORTER,
MANUFACTURER TO ORDER
WATCH SPRING SKIRTS,
At 236 Essex Street,
A few doors from Washington Street,
SALEM, MASS.

CONSCRIPTION LAW.

The United States Conscription Law of 1863 Official and complete; price 5 cents—at

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

NEW SPRING SHAWLS,

IN Stripe, Plaid and Plain, of rich styles—just received and for sale by moh 4 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PERMANENT GREEN.

A supply of Hampden Green, just received at

S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.
moh 11

WHITE LEAD;

LINSEED Oil; Spirits Turpentine; Star; Benzele Spirits; Varnishes, etc—constantly for sale by

mch 11 S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st.

CAMELS HAIR GOODS.

OWING to the small stock of Camels Hair goods in the market, prices have very much advanced. We shall give our customers the advantage of buying at the old prices, as we have a good assortment on hand.

ANN R. BRAY,
mch 4 76 Federal street.

BLANK BOOKS.

A fresh lot, just manufactured from superior paper, by

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
190 Essex street,
mch 11 Sign of Five Golden Books.

Ann R. Bray, 76 Federal Street,

WILL open to-day, New Spring Goods, Delaines; Alapaccas, &c.

We have a full and carefully selected stock of Black Silks, which are warranted to give perfect satisfaction.

In dress goods we select the best styles, and fabrics, and those who buy early will find the best assortment. feb 25

WIRE GOODS.

WIRE Rat Traps; Broilers; Steamers; Sieves etc., just received at

S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

Browning & Long.

POINT DE VENICE.

THE NEW SKIRT

— AT —

BROWNING & LONG'S.

Having sold our Last Season's Stock out completely, we now offer entirely NEW SKIRTS. mch 13

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS.

ATTRACTIVE

NEW GOODS!

BROWNING & LONG

Would call attention to a new and superior assortment of

LACE VEILS & MALTA COLLARS

Being of entirely New Patterns and the very LATEST STYLE.

Notwithstanding the rise in prices of all Goods, we offer these at

"Our Usual Prices."

BROWNING & LONG

(Successors to J. MAYER,)
Essex St., 177 Essex St.,
March 25, 1863.

To Let on Essex St., Salem,

The STORE and DWELLING HOUSE connected therewith, No. 250 Essex St. The store is neatly fitted up, is one of the best stands in the city, and admirably adapted for Millinery, Fancy, Dry Goods, or any light business.

The Dwelling part contains nine finished rooms, and is supplied with water, gas, etc.—all in good order and very convenient.

To a satisfactory tenant, the above will be let on reasonable terms. Apply at J. PERLEY'S Shoe Store, next door west.—feb 25

HEYLINGBERG'S

Hair Dressing Saloon,

24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.

TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Champooing,	15 cts.
Champooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more new Quarterly Customers taken.

In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks will be sold for one dollar.

South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,

ADVERTISING AGENT

For the principal New England Newspapers, remains at the old stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, and Advertising.

Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,

ONE PRICE

HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,

231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

DIARIES AT COST PRICES.

A GOOD ASSORTMENT at G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S, Salem, Mass.

NATIONAL ALMANAC,

AND Annual Record for 1863—containing Government of the United States, the Individual States, and so called Confederate States, Tax Law, Census Tables, New Tariff, Army and Navy Officers, U. S. Mint, Consuls Statistics, &c., for sale by

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

100,000 BARRELS OF THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S

POUDRETTE,

111 COMMERCIAL ST., BOSTON, MASS.

This Company, with a capital of $150,000, the most extensive works of the kind in the world, and an experience in manufacturing of over 23 years, with a reputation long established, having also the exclusive control of all the night soil of the great city of New York, are prepared to furnish an article, which is, without doubt, the CHEAPEST AND VERY BEST fertilizer in market. It greatly increases the yield, and ripens the crop from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from three to four dollars per acre, with little or no labor. Also, FIFTY TONS of BONE TAFEU, being a mixture of bone and night soil ground fine, at $45 per ton—a superior article for grain, &c. A pamphlet containing all necessary information may be had free by addressing a letter to the subscriber.

JAMES T. FOSTER,
Care of the Lodi Manufacturing Company,
66 Courtland St., New York.

Agents—WELCH & FAIRFIELD, Grocers, Lowell Street, South Danvers. feb 11—3m

JUVENILE BOOKS,

A VERY large assortment for sale by

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

☞ If you want to SAVE MONEY, in purchasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, No. 10 Front street, Salem. [ap30-tf

Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,

Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,
34 Front Street.

Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

AT PRIVATE SALE.

One fine-toned PIANO FORTE—second-hand, in excellent order.

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,

Druggist and Apothecary,
33 MAIN STREET.

Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.

Personal attention to Physicians' Prescriptions.

South Danvers, May 29, 1861. 1y

GEO. E. MEACOM

Dealer in

DRUGS & MEDICINES,

Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.

126 MAIN ST. 126

Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,

Druggist & Apothecary

37 Main St., So. Danvers,

DEALER IN

Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponges, Shoulder Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines

Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery.

Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by experienced persons.

37 MAIN STREET.

PATTERSON'S

LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE

THE undersigned are agents for the above machine. It can be seen in operation at Pinder & Brown's Tannery.

may 7—3m CLARK & GIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,

Wallis Street, South Danvers,
Are Agents for
GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S
PATENT EAVE TROUGHS
CUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND

South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

Potter, Bachelder & Co.,

(Successors to M. Black)

DANVERS PORT,

DEALERS IN

WOOD AND COAL

OF the various kinds usually kept in a retail yard. Constantly on hand

Franklin, Old Company's Lehigh,
Locust Mountain, Black Heath,
Red and White Ash.

Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere.

OFFICE—No. 6 Allen's Building.

Order Box at post office, South Danvers, and post office, Danvers.

G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. July 19—tf

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,

IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found at

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
dec 24 Sign of Five Golden Books.

MUSICAL NOTICE.

Chickering & Sons' Piano-Fortes.

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St. would inform her friends in South Danvers, and the public generally that she keeps for sale and to let Chickering & Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with great care, and need only to be tried to prove their superiority over every other in the market. The very best terms given.

MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPHINES For sale and to let. For power and quality of tone none can surpass them. A. R. BRAY.
76 Federal str.

DIARIES--1863.

AN excellent assortment at the lowest prices, for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

5 PIECES Lymun Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Grent Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS

A FINE assortment—for sale at low prices at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
jy 14 190 Essex Street, Salem.

NEW BOOKS.

STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom;
Fire Light; or Stories for Domestics, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;
Gardener's Monthly—January;
Harper's Weekly; Genealogical Register;
Historical Collections, October, 1862.

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
At the old stand of H Whipple & Son

Ann R. Bray, No. 76 Federal Street,

HAS received a fine assortment of NEW SPRING GOODS, including:—

Rich Black Silks;
Black Alapaccas, a full assortment;
Poils in Stripes and Plaids;
Mous de Laines, entirely new patterns;
French Cambrics, small fig'd, for Children;

— A full stock of —

DOMESTIC GOODS.

feb. 25 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PATENT CLOTHES

HORSES Cram's Patent Clothes Frames, at S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

T. HARDY, JR.,

—Dealer in—

DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,

Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,

FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,

No. 26 FRONT STREET,

Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

NEW YORK WHITE LEAD.

2500 LBS New York White Lead;
Also, Fores River White Lead—for sale by inch 4 S C & E A SIMONDS.

A GOOD EXCUSE.—The Pittsburg Republican tells how Col. Brown was induced to excuse the young lady from waltzing with him. Colonel B., is good-looking and a famous dancer—patronizes all the country balls and adores the rosy-cheeked, unsophisticated country girls. At a late ball on the frontier, some one who was present says, the gallant colonel approached a blushing damsel, and asked her to waltz, when she replied: "No, I thank you, I don't like to waltz, it makes me puke." The colonel surrendered.

MILITARY GREATNESS.—As a little four year old boy was being put to bed, his mother said to him, "Kiss mamma good night, Johnny." He at first refused, and then inquired, "Do lieutenants kiss their mammas?"—"Why do you ask that, my dear?" inquired the astonished maternal parent. "'Cause I'm lieutenant of our company, and Joe Walsh is captain!" Being assured that it was not beneath his official dignity to "kiss mamma good night," he saluted her and went to bed.

THE SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD

Is published every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's Building, South Danvers Square. by

CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editor.

TERMS—Two Dollars a year.

ADVERTISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM G. CHOATE,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
Salem, August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Residence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
South Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
Office, No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to
Rooms formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
NO. 27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM,
STEPHEN B. IVES, Jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Office, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.

Claims against the Government for Bounty Back Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
No. 4 MAIN STREET, So. DANVERS SQUARE
Mechanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
Teeth Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
SURGEON DENTIST,
No. 208 Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market
Residence—No. 57 Washington street.
jan 11—ly

F. POOLE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Family Groceries, Flour & Grain,
HARD WARE AND CROCKERY,
Ready Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods, Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
South Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
SAM'L NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Crockery, China and Hardware; Paper Hangings; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.
No. 32 Front street, Lawrence Place,
feb13 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
All orders promptly and faithfully executed.
jan2-1y

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
West Inula Goods, Country Poduce,
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
Gold and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aueroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
at Rooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger,
164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
WINDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
mch6-tf

JOHN MOULTON,
LIVERY & STABLE,
Central Street, South Danvers.
Mr. M. will endeavor to keep up the good reputation of his stable, by still keeping good Horses and Carriages. jan 7, 1863.

W. E. P. SMYTH,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.

Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,

LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.

Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow. 4th. The Mother.
2d. The Children. 5th The Brothers and Sisters collectively.
3d. The Father.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken ou, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.

When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditor's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay 'n getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.

Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1v

Rare Chance for Bargains.

CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of
JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS,
At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER

Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,
Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Were,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.
at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.

This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Refurnishing the Table, &c.

Old Silver taken in exchange.

☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.

JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

H. & H. G. HUBON,

WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM
Manufacturers of
Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood
COFFINS and CASKETS.

MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Gravo Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.

dec 14—tf

FRANKLIN COAL.

JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL —the best in the world for domestic use.
POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

E. N. PRICE,

Manufacturer and Dealer in
HARNESSES,
SADDLES, BRIDLES,
AND WHIPS.
— ALSO —
Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.

All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.

237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
mch13-tf

Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

Heckscher Coal!

$7.75 per Ton on Wharf.

A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,
Both Red and White Ash,
Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by
W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.
march 18

GAYLE & CO.,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
DEALERS IN
Flour, Grain and Produce,
Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of
Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.
PHILLIPS WHARF, - - - Salem.

REMOVAL!

AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,
Manufacturer and Repairer of
BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

NEW BOOKS

At G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, 190 Essex st. Salem:
The Iron Furnace, or, Slavery and Secession, by Rev. John H Augbey;
Transition; a Romembrance of Emma Whiting, by Hugh S Carpenter;
The Here of Medfield; containing the Journals and Letters of Allen A. Kingsbury, of Medfield, who was killed near Yorktown;
The Orpheus C Kerr Papers, Second Series;
The Great Consummation. The Millenial Rest; or the World as it will be—by Rev. John Cumming, D. D;
McClellan; who he is, and what he has done—by George Wilkes;
Dr. Walker's Election Sermon;
mch 4 190 Essex street.

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks. Carvers and Steels, and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by
nov 19 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.

Prof. M. G. BROWN.

SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets scumy and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its sockett in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to anoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovercign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 6 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

E. R. PERKINS,
PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST
241 Essex Street, Salem.
Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,
Photographs, Sphercotypes, Melainotypes, and patent oval ver Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

REMOVAL!

JOHN J. ASHBY,
WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store
No. 145 Essex Street,
formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of
BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,
and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.

Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Ladies' Spring Skirts.

ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

DIARIES FOR

1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books,

Ann R. Bray,
NO. 76 Federal Street,
— DEALER IN —
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

Plymouth Buck Gloves.

MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S
Gent's Furnishing Store,

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, o which the Mackie took the First Premium at the lat Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.
BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook.
South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862. tf

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

Tenements to Let.

ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $64 per year.

One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.

One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.

One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.

One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.
SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

MUNROE'S

(LATE REED'S)
SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON
RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at		10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " "	at	5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at		3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " "	at	5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.

Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.

EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.

Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.

Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.

Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed:

WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

E. F. BURNHAM,

SOLE AGENT FOR
SARGENT & CO.S'
MAGIC SOAP
For South Danvers & Salem.

OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.

Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.

Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,

Manufacturer and Dealer in
INNER SOLES,
AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.
2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

THOMAS PINNOCK,
SLATER,
SALEM, MASS.

Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.

Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.
Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

CURRIER & MILLETT,
Dealers in

Furniture, Chairs,
MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c
259 & 261 ESSEX ST.
Salem, dec 14—ly

WM. C. HENDERSON,
MANUFACTURER OF
PLAIN AND FANCY
PAPER BOXES,
No. 235 ESSEX STREET,
Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"
July 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,

NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St. South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

AARON T. LOWE,
DEALER IN
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,
76 BOSTON STREET, 76.
aug 6 SALEM. tf

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.

THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of
Patent Granular Fuel,
which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers; anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Brigge st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25 Bushels, delivered,		2 25
50 do	do	4 00
100 do	do	7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.
BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, june 18.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.
JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

R. C. MANNING & CO.
Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,
DEALERS IN
COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,
186 DERBY STREET,
SALEM, MASS.
N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.
oct17

NEW GOODS.

WE have received some very neat styles of French Prints, small figures, Spring styles, new goods.

Neat styles Patches, new patterns.

A few pieces Cotton and Wool M de Laines, new styles, suitable for the present and Spring wear—selling low for cash.

jy 14 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A YEAR'S Reading in WHIPPLE & SMITH'S Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.
dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

LES Miserables—complete—$1.00.
Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Muloch—for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

Dyspepsia Remedy.

DR. DARIUS HAM'S
AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!

This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.

IT STIMULATES, EXHILARATES, INVIGORATES, BUT WILL NOT INTOXICATE OR STUPEFY.

AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner. It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.

Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the DELIRIUM TREMENS, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.

DOSE—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.
A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.
Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.

Persons who, from dissipating too much over night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings. Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the careworn face.

During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to, remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.

All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the INVIGORATING SPIRIT in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.

Goueral Depot, 48 Water Street, N. Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.
feb 29 1y

Are you Insured?

THE subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at onrrent rates, on

Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,

And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:

Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn.
Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capi al—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y

Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the

Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass.
Capital and Assetts—$375,000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D., Medical Examiner.

WM. ARCHER, Jr.,
18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
ej b20-1

Important to the Afflicted.

DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a

PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.

By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent, Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of

GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.

Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impetency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest sillings of a child.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.

Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such person should before contemplating masrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.

Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.

Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French ——, warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y.

CAUTION

TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.

DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.

Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.

Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.

Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.

N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.

Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE

IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.

Dr. Dow is consultod daily, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.

Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y

HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Madam Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustre China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PLANISHED Tin Plate Covers, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 34 Front.

NOTE PAPER.

A VERY full and complete stock, at a very small advance on old prices, at
jan 21 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

KEROSENE LAMPS.

FOR Shoemaker's use, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

JUST PUBLISHED.

GRAVER Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heaven, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantes, by A. B. Edwards; The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
dec 24 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Eastern Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains will leave the Eastern Railroad Station, Washington street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excepted):

For Lynn and Boston, 6¼, 7½, 8¼, 9, 10, 11 a m., 1, 2¼ 4.40, 6¾ p. m.
Beverly, 8¼ am., 1, 3¼, 4¾, 5¾, 6¾, 7½ p m.
W. Beach, Man'r, Gloucester, and Rockport, 8¼ a m., 1, 4¾ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8¼ a m., 1, 3¼, 5¾ p m.
Amesbury, 8¼ a m., 3¼, 5¾ p m.
Portsmouth, 8¼ a m., 3¼ 5¾ p m.
Portland, 8¼ a m., 3¼ p m.

AND FOR SALEM, FROM

Portland, 8¼ a m., 2½ p m.
Portsmouth, 7½, *11½ a m., *5 p m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9.40 a m., 5.20 p m.
Newburyport, 8, 10 a m., 12 m, 5.45 p m.
Ipswich, 8.25, 10.25 a m., 12.25, 6.10 p m.
Gloucester, 7.25, 10 10 a m., 3.55 p m.
Manchester, 7.40, 10.25 a m., 4.10 p m.
Beverly, 7.05, 8.05, 8.50, 10.50 a m., 12.50, 4¼, 6.35.
Lynn, 8, 9, 11 a m., 12¾, 3, 4½, 5¾, 6½, 7¼ †10.
Boston, 7¼, 8¼, 10¼ a m., 12½, 2¾, 4, 5, 6, 6¾, 10¼ p m.

*Or on arrival from the East.
†On Wednesdays this train leaves Boston at 11½ p m. via Saugus Branch; and on Saturdays at 10½ p m.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.

Marblehead for Salem, 7, 8, 8¾, 9¾ a m., 12¾, 1¾, 4.25, 6¼
Salem for Marblehead, 8¾, 9.25, 11¼ a m., 1, 3¾, 5¾, 6¾

SOUTH READING BRANCH.

Trains leave the South Reading Depot in Salem for Boston at 7, 9.40 a m., 2.25, 4.55 p m.
Boston for Salem, 7 a m., 12 m., 2¾, 5 p m.
South Danvers for Salem, 7¾ a m., 12¾, 3¼, 5¾ p m.

ESSEX RAILROAD.

Leave Salem for Lawrence and way stations, 7½, 11¼ a m., 4¾ p m.
Lawrence for Salem, 8¼ a m., 12.40, 6¾ p m.
Danvers for Salem, 9.12 a m., 1.32, 6.57 p m.

J. PRESCOTT, Superintendent.
Boston, November 10, 1862.

Salem and Lowell Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov 10, 1862, Trains will run as follows:

Leave Lowell for Salem, 7.25 a m., and *2.00 p m.
Leave Salem for Lowell, *9 40 a m. and 5 00 p m.

Passengers are not allowed to carry baggage above $50 in value, and that personal, unless notice is given and an extra amount paid. Season tickets do not entitle the holder to take baggage.

*Freight Train with passenger car attached.

F. H. NOURSE, Local Superintendent.
November 7, 1862.

SPEED, COMFORT AND SAFETY!

FOR NEW YORK.

Norwich Steamboat Train.

The only Boats Landing at Jersey City.

CABIN Passage, $4.00; Deck Passage, $3.00. The new and elegant sixteen wheel cars of the steamboat express train leave the Boston & Worcester Railroad Station, Albany Street,, at 5¼ P. M. daily, connecting with the new steamers, (built expressly for this line,) CITY OF BOSTON, Capt. WILCOX, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; CITY OF NEW YORK, Capt. JEWETT, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, which (before proceeding to their Pier, No. 39 North River,) will touch at the wharf of the New Jersey Railroad at Jersey City, (Sundays excepted) thus enabling Southern Passengers to make sure connections with the First Southern Train, and at the same time avoid the great annoyance of the Ferry and Hack transportation in the crowded streets of New York. This insures ample time for Breakfast before the trains leave. Conductors D. F. WALLER and W. F. BARTON accompany the passengers through.

Tickets, Berths and Staterooms secured at the Railroad Station, and at the Office of the line, 79 Washington Street, Boston.

Through tickets to Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington can be had at 79 Washington Street, Boston.

WM. DICKEY, Jr., Agent.
Boston, January 7, 1863.

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT

CHANGE OF TIME.

— TO —

LYNN & BOSTON
BY OMNIBUS AND HORSE CAR

On and after THURSDAY, June 19th, 1862,

W. F. BURNHAM'S

Line of Omnibuses will leave the Lynn and Boston Omnibus Office, No. 6 Allen's Building, South Danvers, passing down Main street, through Washington street to Lynn, daily.

Leave South Danvers at 7.50 A. M., and 12.50 and 4.50 P. M.

Leave Lynn at 10 A. M., and 2 1-2 and 6 1-2 P. M.

Horse Cars leaving Scollay's Building, Court street, Boston, at 8.15 A. M., 1.15 and 5.15 P. M., will meet the Omnibus at Lynn, at the above named hours, to take passengers to South Danvers.

Sunday Arrangements.

Leave S. Danvers at 7.50 a.m., and 4.50 p.m.
Leave Lynn at 9.30 a.m., and 6.30 p.m.

Cars leave Scollay's Building, Boston, to meet the Omnibuses in Lynn for South Danvers, at 8.15 a m. and 5.15 p.m.

Through Tickets to and from Boston may be had of the Drivers and Conductors.

Tickets to Lynn, - - 15 cents.
Through to Boston, - 30 cents.

Passengers called for at reasonable charges i notice is given at the Office.

EXPRESS BUSINESS

Between South Danvers and Lynn promptly attended to, on reasonable terms.

EXTRA COACHES furnished at short notice, at moderate rates.
South Danvers, June 18, 1862.

South Danvers & Salem Line of Omnibuses.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 4, 1861, the South Danvers and Salem Line of Omnibuses will run as follows:

Leave the Hourly Office, South Danvers at 7, 8, 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2 a. m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8.

Leave No. 13 Central St., Salem, at 8, 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2, a.m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8, 9.

☞Ladies' Room, at Needham & Hawkes's, No. 272 Essex Street, and at the Offices.

SINGLE FARE on the regular route, 6 cents, or Twenty Tickets for $1 00.

Passengers called for or left off the route, at a reasonable distance, the fare will be 13 cents.

EXTRA COACHES furnished, at all hours, at reasonable prices.
nov 27. HENRY M. MERRILL.

Abbott's South Danvers & Salem EXPRESS.

Leave South Danvers,	7½ a m, 1 p m
Leave Salem,	10 a m, 4 p m

Orders left at Teel & Monlton's, and principal stores on Main street, South Danvers; and at 7 Washington street, and at Reed's in the Market, Salem.

MARSHALL'S
DANVERS, SO. DANV

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 1, 1863. NO. 13.

Original Poetry.

A SONG.

Dedicated to Col. Geo. H. Pierson, Com'd'g. 5th Regt., M. V. M.

AIR:—RAW RECRUIT.

With joyful feelings I recall
The day we left Camp Lander;
With noble purpose in each heart
To crush rebellion under.
The gallant Fifth marched boldly forth
In spirits that would cheer one,
And all our confidence reposed
In noble Col. Pierson.

CHORUS:—Success attend the gallant Fifth,
Each other let us cheer on Discomfort never shall be ours,
Led on by gallant Pierson.

We soon were seated in the cars,
Which sped along to Boston,
Mid songs and waving handkerchiefs
Which cheered us, as we passed on.
When we arrived a host of friends
Bade farewell to each dear one,
And praised the cause we did support
With gallant Col. Pierson.
Chorus.

We then took leave of all our friends,
Who bid us go and prosper,
And then we quickly got aboard,
When eyes seemed somewhat moistened.
But soon these feelings passed away
Like smoke from any meerschaum,
And now for Dixie was the tune
With gallant Col. Pierson.
Chorus.

We met the rebels face to face
At White Hall, and at Kinston,
And Goldsboro can tell the tale
How from our ranks flinched not one.
We mowed them down like stalks of corn,
The combat was a fierce one,
But nought did whip the gallant 5th
Led on by gallant Pierson.
Chorus.

The gallant leader's loved by all,
And treats his men with kindness;
He proved his military skill
Refined and void of blindness.
No matter where our pathway leads,
True honor is a clear one,
Our honored flag we'll ne're desert
Nor gallant Col. Pierson.
Chorus:—Success attend the gallant Fifth
Each other let us cheer on, &c.

☞ The following rebel production was found in Virginia by one of our volunteers, and forwarded, for publication:

STONEWALL JACKSON'S WAY.

Come, cheerily, men—pile on the rails,
Stir up the camp-fires bright;
No matter if the canteen fails,
We'll make a rousing night.
Here Shenandoah rolls along,
There burly Blue Ridge echoes strong
To swell the brigade's rousing song
Of Stonewall Jackson's way.

We see him now—the old slouched hat
Cocked o'er his eye, askew;
The shrewd dry smile, that speaks so pat,
So firm—so blunt—so true.
The blue-light elder knows him well,
Says he, That's Banks, he's fond of shell,
Lord save his soul, we'll give him——well
That's Stonewall Jackson's way.

Silence!—ground arms!—kneel all!—hats off!
Old Stonewall's going to pray!
Strangle the fool that dares to scoff!—
Attention!—it's his way.
Appealing from his native sod,
In form as pauper is to God,
Stretch forth thine arm, lay bare thy rod,
Amen!—that's Stonewall's way.

He's in the saddle now—fall in!
Steady the whole brigade!
Hill, at the ford, cut off!—he'll win!
His way—ball and blade!
What matter if our shoes are worn,
What matter if our feet are torn;
Quick step! we're with him before dawn;
That's Stonewall Jackson's way.

The rising sun rolls back the mist's
Morning—and by George!
There's Longstreet struggling in the midst,
Hemmed in by an ugly gorge
Pope and his Yankees whipped before;
Bayonets and grape, hear Stonewall roar!
Charge Steward! pay off Ashby's score
In Stonewall Jackson's way.

O maiden, watch, and wait, and yearn
For news of Stonewall's band!
O widow, read with eyes that burn
That ring upon thy hand!
O wife, rue on, pray on, hope on,
Thy life shall not be all forlorn;
The foe had better ne'er been born
That get in Stonewall's way.

WESTERN COTTON.—The samples of cotton raised in Illinois, which have appeared in this market, says the N. Y. Journal of Commerce, have been very handsome, equal in quality to the middling upland from North Carolina and Tennessee. We have before us a sample of the production of Washington county, Illinois, which would bring about 84c. to-day.—The consigners write—"Illinois is producing quite handsomely of cotton, and we think the southern portion of the state will do a large business in raising it." Indiana, too, is doing very well. A correspondent of the Cleveland Herald incloses a sample of cotton to that paper, from Mount Vernon, remarking that Indiana is in earnest on the cotton question, and that the country referred to promises to raise enough this season to supply the whole state.

☞ The capture of 7000 rebels and eight transports is reported by the Cincinnati Gazette, the result of a fight on the Yazoo river.

Original.

THE HAUNTED POST OFFICE; OR,
THE PHANTOM HAND.

Not long ago, in a town in the Eastern part of Massachusetts, trouble was known to exist in the Post Office, which was the only one in the town. Letters, known to have been deposited in the office, failed to reach their destination; other letters, directed to the office and claimed by their owners, were not forthcoming. Sometimes letters, purporting to enclose money, were received, but the money was missing. Many of these letters containing money were directed to the wives and families of soldiers in the army, who forwarded their hard-earned wages to their homes, in full faith that the money would safely arrive and give joy to their households. This state of things could not long exist without creating curiosity and excitement in the community where the circumstances occurred. The Postmaster and his Assistant, both of whom had the respect and confidence of the people, were themselves appalled in view of these mysterious doings, and as such proceedings continued, they soon became objects of suspicion. Painful, indeed, was their situation, knowing themselves to be innocent, yet unable to make it manifest. After using every means in their power to solve the mystery, or to account for the strange freaks of the letters, they well nigh despaired. Their conscious innocence, however, sustained them amidst suspicion, detraction, and even prosecution. All this time, new difficulties arose which could not be explained. The Post Office Detectives were put upon the track, both the inmates of the office were arrested, and the assistant was imprisoned.

All these events were of common notoriety, and the feeling of every community is so strong in regard to the inviolability of a letter seal, that no punishment was deemed too harsh for such an offense as was here charged. This is a very proper feeling, within certain limits, when we consider the great usefulness and beneficent character of the Post Office, in its relation to the business, domestic and moral interests of society. It is to the Post Office that people entrust their most cherished thoughts and warmest affections. It is through its portals that are conveyed, in the same leathern bag, the confidential business of the merchant, the vows of the lover, tidings of joy and of woe, congratulations and mourning. The responsibilities of its management are therefore very great. No one of any fair amount of common sensibility, who has served in a Post Office, but must have been deeply interested in some of the scenes which often transpire under his observation. He sees the deep anxiety often evinced to obtain the wished-for missive, the sad disappointment many times repeated, and sometimes a saddor disappointment when it comes in another hand writing and in a mourning envelope. He sees also the jubilant smile and dance of ecstasy as the young maiden grasps the letter and touches it to her lips before consigning it to a place almost as near to her heart as is the loved correspondent himself.

But we are keeping our readers too long from our truthful narrative. The troubles continued, and the Postmaster was only prevented from resigning his place, lest it should be construed as an evidence of guilt. But, after the proceedings of the officers of the law, he voluntarily gave up his situation.—Another was appointed, and for a short space of time no irregularities occcurred which could not be accounted for on some theory of accident on the part of the writers or receivers of letters.

It was not long, however, before complaints came in of money being abstracted from letters, and of expected letters containing money not being received. Besides this, school children peered into the boxes and seeing unsealed circulars, proclaimed abroad that they had seen letters which had been broken open. One day an Irishman came into the office and called for a letter:

"Have you got ary letter for Michael Agin, if you plaze, Sir?"

The Postmaster looked for the letter, but found none.

The man was persistent and desired him to look again. The Postmaster asked how he spelled his name;

"Michael Hagin, sir."

"What letter does your name begin with?"

"It's Michael Hagin, sir," said he in a loud voice.

"What's the first lotter?"

"Don't know, sir;—I suppose it is a hay."

"Is it H?"

"Yes, sir, it's a haitch."

The Postmaster looked among the H's with no better success. He then asked him if it began with an E?

"Yes, sir, it's a he."

Among the E's the Postmaster found a letter for Michael Eagan, which proved to be the one he wanted. He had a friend who now came in who opened the letter and read it aloud. By the contents, it appeared that the writer had enclosed three dollars, and the money was missing, Michael was full of wrath and bad liquor, and raved loudly at the Postmaster for "staleing the money out of his letther." He became so uproarious that the Postmaster, for no better reason than to get rid of him, paid the three dollars and sent him away. No sooner had he paid it than he regretted the momentary weakness, for he knew the loss was by no means his fault, and it was not certain that the money had been placed in the letter by the correspondent. It was, however, relief to be rid of his customer.

The Postmaster resumed his chair, but was called to the delivery window by a timid rapping. It was from a young woman of prepossessing appearance, holding an infant in her left arm. She asked for a letter, which was given her, but it had evidently been opened. It should have contained money which had been sent to her from a town in New Hampshire, where her husband had enlisted, and this money was her monthly stipend from the State Aid Fund. It was evidently a great loss for her, and she felt it keenly, but bore it patiently. Her's was a quiet sorrow, and her modest grief excited the sympathy of the Postmaster, who advised her to write to the Selectmen of the town who had sent the letter, for an explanation. The answer subsequently came, but gave no satisfaction.

These occurrences were not calculated to afford much pleasure to the new incumbent. As he sat that evening alone in his office, he was troubled with strange noises and strange sights. The noise was like that of falling, or rather rushing waters, which would stop suddenly, and as suddenly start again. He knew he must be deceived, as it appeared to come from the next room, which was occupied as a tailor's shop, there being only a wooden partition between. With the rushing sound of waters in his ears, he also saw in front of him a strange movement among the letters in a particular box. This was not a private box, but the receptacle of all letters received for persons residing in a little village, which, from its name, was probably one in bad repute. It was called the Devil's Dishful, and the satanic influence seemed now to agitate the letters in box 251.

His meditations on these strange occurrences were interrupted by a rapping at the window.

"Rap, rap, rap, rap."

It was from a little boy about two feet high.

"Have you got a letter for my fader?"

"Who is your father, my dear?"

"Mitter Mitt."

"What is Mr. Smith's other name?"

"Cap'n Mitt."

"Here is a letter for Calvin P. Smith. Is that your father's name?"

"No, but I will take that."

"You had better ask your father to call for his letter, or send a note by you to get it."

During this colloquy with the boy, the sound of the rushing water ceased and the letters in box 251 were quiet. The Postmaster took his stand at the desk and attempted to read a newspaper, but the gurgling sound of the waters confused his thoughts, and the sense of each paragraph he read was lost. It was a mystery to him to find that, although the sound seemed to come from the tailor's shop, he could at the same time hear the hum of conversation in that apartment, as if the inmates were not aware of the existence of the torrent of water which so disconcerted him. The rush of water suddenly ceased.

"Rap, rap, rap."

He went quickly to the window. Here was a stout Irish girl.

"Have you got ary let-thers for Terrence Mac Toodle, Margery Donovan, Patrick O'Scroggin, Susan Dorrety, Michael Mac Noggin, Seely Mac Carty, Lawrence Mac Nulty, Bridget M'Carty, Terence Madigan, Dennis O'Harrigan, or Fergus Mac Dudio—sir?"

This catalogue of names was rattled off with a volubility of a parrot, but was not half so intelligible as the conversation of that imitative bird.

The puzzled Postmaster, by dint of coaxing the applicant, finally persuaded her to give the names separately, and made a rather unsuccessful search, but this occupied the remainder of the evening and he was well pleased to close his office and return to the quiet of home, but before closing he gathered the letters which were to go out by to-morrow's mail and placed them in such a position that he could tell the next day if they were disturbed. This course was adopted from a slight suspicion, more than from a conviction, that the trouble about the money-letters was caused by burglars.

The next day, the letters, thus arranged, were found to have been disturbed and left in confusion, so that it was certain that the work was done by some unknown hand. A watch was then set and the discovery was made that a burglar had entered the office and stolen letters and their contents. Subsequent developments indicated who was the burglar, but he escaped.

This discovery was a great relief both to the present and past Postmaster and their deputies. The assistant of the new incumbent had also witnessed the mysterious sights and noises in the office, but neither of the parties, for some time afterward, mentioned the circumstances to each other, or to any one else. The assistant was alone one evening in the office when the movement of the letters in the Dishful box, No. 251, was more active than usual, and the rush of the waters greater than ever. No one was in the outer office, but he heard a quick rapping at the delivery and he hastened to the window to answer the call. He saw only a hand just withdrawing itself from the aperture; but it was only a hand, and not attached to any person! He immediately went to the door leading to the outer agartment, and no person was there. As soon as he returned to the inner office, a rap was heard on the glass opposite one of the boxes, in which was a letter. He looked into the box, and there was the hand with its forefinger on the glass, pointing to the letter. He took it to the delivery, and there was the hand, which, seizing the letter, almost immediately threw it back again! This strange proceeding greatly astonished him, but he quietly returned the letter to its former place. He had scarcely had time to do this when a man came in to the outer office from the street, and as he entered, he was observed to throw the door open wide and stand one side, as if to let some one pass out. This circumstance was so strange that he enquired of the man if he met any one at the door. He said a lady passed out as he came in. The deputy postmaster was more puzzled than ever. How could it be that the person was invisible to him and visible to another? The hand had been visible, but the lady was wanting. All was now still. The torrent had ceased under the authority of some invisible Undine, and the letters in 251 were no longer in commotion. Indeed, they generally were agitated at the same time, and only when the office was still.

These occurrences were afterward often repeated, sometimes in the day time, but more frequently in the still moments of the evening. If in the daylight, the phantom hand was shadowy and pale, fading away at the wrist to a vapory cloud. It appeared to be driven away upon the entrance of any substantial body of flesh and blood. It was sometimes a relief when the boys and girls of the neighboring schools came rushing noisily into the office, all the more uproarious from their recent restraint in the school room. Their clamor for letters for all kinds of impossible names, and their exultation when they were lucky enough to get a letter, circular or newspaper, was really cheering to witness after the freaks of the phantom hand.

Sometimes, for a week at a time, the hand would not appear. At such times there was no commotion in 251, or tumult of the waters. The inmates then had license to notice the difference in the character and demeanor of the frequenters of the office. Sometimes a passing individual would come in with long strides and in a desperate hurry for his letters, betraying the greatest impatience, as if his life depended upon their instant delivery, but as soon as he received them his hurry was over and he quietly put them in his pocket and talked leisurely with every one he met. A great part of the letters were from the seat of war and much interest was felt for the arrival of the distant mails. These came part of the way by water and were quite irregular. Nothing was more common than the enquiry for a mail from Newbern. Nothing was more difficult than to give a satisfactory answer. Many were the disappointments at their non-arrival. Sometimes a man would come and ask the question with a low growl and with the remark that "he did not understand it," and half insinuate that the Postmaster was to blame because the mails from Newborn an Port Royal and New Orleans were not more regular. Others would bear their disappointments with exemplary patience and bide their time.

Some of the saddest calls were from the friends of the soldiers lying sick or wounded in the army hospitals. It was impossible not to sympathize with these forlorn ones as they called time after time and went away sorrowful as the inevitable "No" was the only reply that could be given. One sad case of disappointed hopes, was that of the poor widow whose almost daily calls for many long months for a letter from her son in California were thus met. The mournful face she wore was a too certain index of the heart-sickness arising from hope deferred.

There were many cases too of a more cheering character. Not to mention the tender missives of lovers, about which the Postmaster is supposed to know nothing, and if he is what he should be, he will be as close as a bottle, there are often agreeable surprises which give joy to the applicants. After long delays, the pleasure of receiving the expected letter is enhanced.

There are vexations too, both to the inmates of the office and to the customers, as when the letters fell into the wrong hands. This would happen from similarity of names, when no blame could be attached to any of the parties. There are often two of the same name, making it quite perplexing to the Postmaster. A good looking Irish girl, with a white cloud on her head, calls for a letter for Bridget O'Shaunessy, and the letter is delivered. Soon after another good looking Irish girl, with a cloud, presents her broad, good natured face to the window and asks for a letter for Bridget O'Shaunessy. She is told that the letter is delivered, and a doubt remains as to whom the letter belongs. It may prove to be a Comedy, or perhaps a Tragedy of errors. No amount of care can prevent the occurrence of such mistakes.

All this is a digression from the thread of the narrative. In resuming it we may state that the phantom hand always presented the same appearance. It was identified by a dark ring on the forefinger. It happened however that there were two delivery windows to the office, one to the main front office, and the other to the ladies appartment. One evening as the Postmaster was standing in a position where he could see both windows, a rapping was heard at each, and at each was visible the phantom hand! What was especially remarkable was that each was a right hand but one of them was without the ring on the forefinger. Why was this? Were there two phantoms? This it certainly seemed. The question was remained, what was the object of these frequent visits if indeed they had an object?

One evening as the deputy was in waiting at the office on a stormy evening when but few called for letters, there was a season of unusual quiet. Nothing was heard but the occasional click of a letter as it was dropped into the letter box, except sometimes a fussy individual would rap loudly at the delivery with a stamped letter and insist upon its delivery into the hands of the attendant, who would quietly pass it into the box, where it ought to have gone at the first.

During this quiet time the rushing sound of the water was suddenly heard and at the same time a continuous rapping, not at the delivery, but at the door. The attendant stepped to the door and looking through the keyhole, saw a hand withdraw from the place. As this was the lock in which the burglar left his false key on his hasty retreat on his last visit to the office it occurred to the inmate that this might have some connection with the affair of the robbery. Subsequent observations and circumstances seemed to give confirmation to this surmise. There appeared to be an anxiety on the part of the phantom to draw attention to the letters in the boxes where the rapping was made. After this the letters in those boxes were examined and the post marks noted and recorded. Singularly enough these post marks coincided somewhat closely with the places where report told that the burglar was concealed, or which he had visited since his escape. The names of towns and cities in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Canada and New York were found on this record.

The theory adopted by both the Post Office attendants was, that the shade intended to give information in this way of the whereabouts of the burglar at the time. They fancied that the record of post-marks gave the progress of the robber from place to place, yet they could not understand how a shadow could obtain this information.

One evening as the office was quiet and still, the Post master heard a rustling of letters, which he supposed came from box 251, but on looking that way, was surprised to see that the letters in that box were quiet, but the noise continued; close observation showed that the noise came from the general letter box and upon looking into it the agitation ceased. On the top of the pile was a letter with a green ten cent stamp, and the direction upon it was——, San Francisco, California. He attached no importance to this but took all the letters out of the box and threw them promiscuously upon the counter where they would be handy to cancel and stamp for the next morning's mail. As he did this the waters rushed violently, the letters were agitated and the one with the green stamp came uppermost. These freaks had now become so common that he took no particular notice of it. The time had now arrived for closing the office. The fastenings were all well secured, the various traps laid by which to know if the office had been entered during the night, and as he was about to put down the last gas light a hand was seen pointing to the green stamp on the California letter. The hand immediately vanished, the water ceased to run and the office was securely locked for the night.

Next morning on entering it, the letter with the green stamp was found not on the top, but at the bottom of the pile!—The first impression was that the office had again been entered by some burglar, but upon looking at the various secret traps by which it could be certainly known if any door or window had been entered, the idea was dismissed, it must have been another unexplained freak of the shadowy hand.

There was one occurrence connected with the record of the post-marks which at the time shook the faith of the inmates in the theory they had adopted.

At one time a green-looking Yankee came rushing into the front office with a drop-letter having upon it a blue cent stamp, which he requested to have put into the box of the person to whom it was directed, without any delay. This stamp was immediately cancelled and the name of the town distinctly appeared on the face of the letter. No sooner had the man gone out than the hand rapped violently at the box. How could it be that the burglar could ever think of visiting the place of his many depredations and where he was well known to very many of the people? It seemed preposterous. The same thing happened at two other times at distant intervals. This is the only fact which tended to upset the theory and it must go for what it is worth, as we wish to state all the circumstances just as they occurred, leaving it to others to adopt a better theory if they can.

It is not to be supposed that these things occurred without frequent consultations of the Post master and his deputy, who were exceedingly anxious to elucidate the mystery. The question often came up whether the facts should not be made known to the Agent of the Post Office Department, to whom it is the bounden duty of all Post masters to report any irregularities which may occur in the administration of their offices. But there was no irregularity in the regular business of the office, and nothing to report except the freaks of a ghostly phantom. They well knew that they would have to encounter the ridicule of all to whom they should communicate occurrences so strange and unaccountable. This fear kept them from giving the information to any third person. Again and again they felt tempted to make confidants of some of the local detectives, but the fear of ridicule as often deterred them. Who would believe a story so improbable?

Whenever any third person was in the office as a visitor, the hand never appeared, nor did the torent of water run or the agitation in box 251 occur. Thus if the undoubted facts known to the inmates had been revealed to others, it would have been out of their power to convince t skeptical by occular demonstration.

In tracing the path of the burglar indicated by the record of places point out by the phantom index finger, a co firmation of the adopted theory was fou in the time allowed to pass as he we from place to place. For instance, t index pointed to New York two or thr days after it had pointed to Boston. pointed to the San Francisco letter abo thirty days after the New York one, a at a later period of about ten days it ma great ado over a letter from Sacrament Seven days later and it pointed again a San Francisco stamp.

About twenty years ago a young ma of the town, full of enterprise, went different parts of the world and finall settled down at the Hawaiian Islands where he rose by merit to honor and st tion. He carried on a regular correspon ence with his friends at home. One his letters was no sooner placed in proper box than the hand rapped vigo ously and pointed to it. This was abou three weeks after the last San Francis letter was similarly noticed. A fortnigh later, another letter from the same pla reminded the attention of the phanto Less than a month elapsed, during whic all was quiet in the office, when anothe San Francisco letter was pointed out b the ghostly finger.

We pause here in our narrative to ob serve that the freaks of the shadowy han can not be accounted for by mesmeric spiritualistic influence. Neither of th inmates of the office were mediums what is called, technically, "impressible. The rappings were totally unlike the called spirit raps, they were loud and i regular, and just like the usual knockin of other visitors at the office.

In the early part of our relation these events, mention was made of young woman who called at the offi with a child in her arms. When sh came she was accompanied by a frien an elderly man, who took much intere in her case. Neither of them had sinc been seen in the office until one day th man called in and examined the list letters in the outer room. Curiosit prompted the assistant to ask about th female referred to. He was informed th she died soon after from grief at the lo of her husband in one of the earlier ba tles of the war. The time of her dea corresponded exactly with that of the fir appearance of the phantom hand. It no occurred to both the inmates of the offi that the young woman wore on her righ fore finger a dark ring of gutta percha such as are frequently made by soldie and sent home in letters to their friend Neither of these circumstances alone we of much account but both together, the seemed to have a significance.

We now resume our narration. W left the burglar, if we may trust our th ory of the guidance of the shadowy fi ger at San Francisco where he had bee a second time, calling there on his retu from the Islands. The hand soon aft points to Copperopolis and then again a letter which has a post-mark so o scurely stamped that it is illegible. A that can be made out is its date and th letters ULCH. This letter is directed some person not known to the inmates the office. It has remained so long as require advertising, and if it remains few days longer it must be sent to th dead letter office at Washington. It now some months since the phantom h been visible or made any sign and th inference we draw is that the fugitive at some obscure locality so retired as be without correspondents who send le ters to the haunted post office.

Here we close our narrative, most u satisfactorily to ourselves as well as th reader. There has been no further ap pearance of the duplicate hand and w now incline to the opinion that this ap pearance was illusive, caused by our ex citement of the imagination of the inmat of the office. Of the other facts related we have no more doubt of their truth tha we ever had.

LEGAL TENDER.—The laws regulating th payment of debts with coin, provide that th following coins be a legal tender:—All goo coins at their respective values for debts for an amount. The half dollar, the quarter dolla half dime and dime, at their respective value for debts of any amount under five dollars. Three cent pieces for debts of any amount un der thirty cents: and one cent pieces for an amount under ten cents. By the law of Con gress, passed some four or five years ago, gol was made the legal tender for large amounts. The recent act of Congress, passed last winter authorising the issue of one hundred and fift millions dollars, in Treasury notes, make them a legal tender for the debts due to the Unite States, excepting custom duties on importe goods.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 1, 1863.

THE HOLTEN HIGH SCHOOL, IN DANVERS.

We had intended sooner to write a word concerning the recent examination of this school, but trust it is not too late to speak of an occasion so interesting, and which justly animated the numerous concourse of visitors with peculiar feelings of pride and satisfaction.

The examination continued three days. As is the settled practice of the Principal, Mr. HILLS, on such occasions, the exercises, so far as their arrangement and conduct devolved on him, were arranged and conducted without reference to display or the curiosity of the visitor, but with the more sensible view of exhibiting, so far as might be, the average scholarship and general condition of the school during the year. In the opinion of those, whether of the Committee or other visitors, who attended through the three days, there was not, apart, perhaps, from the more pleasurable excitement of the closing scenes of graduation, any special interest attaching to the examination at one hour more than at another. It was a uniform and unforced exhibition of the results of study. No class excelled particularly any other class: no class by its proficiency excited any unusual surprise. To the spectator the conclusion was inevitable that the recitations were not the sudden fruit of a memory "crammed" or "brushed up" for the moment, but the result of that thorough study, which has so enriched the memory as to render brushing unnecessary.

It is rarely that one attends an examination but that he notes some prominent feature of the school, excitive of special remark. It may be the order, the promptness or fullness of voice in the answers, the reading, the penmanship, compositions or the like; yet, if we were asked to point to any one feature of the examination in question, noticeable or creditable beyond another, we should be wholly at loss where to write the Nota Bene.

"Where each and every part is true to all,
Who shall presume what part is worthy most?"

Such, indeed, was this examination. Excellent as a whole—it appeared to us also a unity of minds in action, and in such harmony of action that in determining what one thing to admire above another, we were under the same difficulty sometimes experienced in watching the graceful movements of some fine mechanism—which movement has most grace? This, certainly, is the highest praise a school can merit, and this much we think those who were present, in common with the Committee, accorded to the Holten High School at its late examination.

It is unnecessary to add that, as the success of the school the last year is but a repetition (improved, perhaps,) of its success now for many years, the school is more and more becoming a favorite institution in the town, and that the prejudices against it, as being "aristocratic," are fast passing away before the light shed by the school itself.

Mr. HILLS, the Principal, has justly endeared himself to the people of Danvers and won an enviable reputation, as teacher, throughout the county. Nor less, in justice we should say, does Miss SMITH, in her capacity as Assistant, rank as a teacher.

We are pleased to know that the recent appropriation by the town for the High School is such as may enable the Committee to retain the services of both Principal and Assistant.

DANVERS.

DANVERS TOWN AFFAIRS.—Danvers has succeeded at last in getting a Board of Selectmen. At the Annual Meeting, J. M. Perry, Charles Chaplin and Amos Pratt were elected. After some delay, the two latter declined, and at the adjourned meeting, Jacob F. Perry and Wm. Dodge, Jr., were chosen in their place. Then Mr. Dodge declined, and at a special meeting, a few days ago, in place of Mr. Dodge, John A. Putnam was elected. The Board now stands, James M. Perry, Jacob F. Perry and John A. Putnam, and it is believed it so will stand, at least till next March.

FAST DAY.—To-morrow is the day of the Annual Fast, and services will be held at Rev. Mr. Barber's church, commencing at 11 o'clock.

There will be a prayer meeting at the Baptist Church morning and evening.

There will be no services at the Unitarian or Universalist churches.

The Post office will be open from 9 to 11 o'clock, and closed the remainder of the day.

☞ A single sentence in Rufus Choate's eulogy on Webster covers nearly three pages of the pamphlet edition, contains 75 1-2 lines, numbers 731 words, and would, if put into one line, be a line of 25 feet—line enough to hang anybody, with rope to spare. Truly a capital sentence!

☞ Warren Bank has declared a dividend of 3 per cent., payable Monday, April 6.

STRANGE OCCURRENCE.

Such an event as the remarkable caving in of the earth in the front yard of the Old South Church, making a vast chasm, 38 feet wide and 40 or 50 feet deep, could not but create an intense feeling of astonishment and alarm among our citizens. It is certain that it did not happen earlier yesterday than about 6 o'clock in the afternoon, as several persons passed near the church at that hour and all was there in its usual condition. Had such an occurrence happened on Sunday at the time the congregation was coming from the church, the consequences must have been fearful in the extreme. We are not prepared to give a reason for the sudden sinking of such a mass of earth, unless the action of an underground current of water, seeking a more direct passage from Goldthwaite's Brook to the Mill Pond, could have produced it.

It is a historical fact that, at the time of the war of 1812, excavations were made under the Old South Meeting House to obtain saltpetre earth with which to manufacture gunpowder. The old house occupied the land in front of the present church. Whether the loosening of the earth at that time had anything to do with causing the catastrophe, we will not undertake to determine. Each one, on examination, will judge for himself. We only caution the curious not to approach too near the edge of the chasm. The Committee of the Society have caused the gates of the yard to be securely fastened, which is a wise precaution. It is ascertained that the foundations of the church are not endangered, nor are the wooden flight of steps over the chasm displaced.

It is curious, on looking down this deep pit, to notice the different strata of earth on the sides, showing how much the land has been raised by successive filling up, the original soil being nine feet below the present surface of the yard.

Of the immediate cause of such a disaster, all is left to conjecture. An earthquake, if such had happened, might have produced it. The railroad is within a few feet of the yard, and a heavy locomotive passed at about the time indicated. On the assumption that the cavity existed, (by the action of water,) and that the surface crust of earth was held together only by the frost, the jarring of the ground, caused by the passing train, would go far to account for the sudden plunge of the surface earth into the depths below.

GENERAL DODGE.

Extract from a letter dated Council Bluffs, March 22d, 1863:

"Gen. G. M. DODGE is still at Corinth as successful as ever—has a large command, which fights on a small scale almost every day—has lately made one of the biggest cavalry raids of the war—went 300 miles right into the heart of the enemy's forces and all the way in their territory. It was made through drenching rains. They swam streams—crossed mountains by paths, and dashed down among the enemy before they were aware of it—captured more prisoners than they could take care of, several hundred horses and mules, and destroyed a large ammunition train—also, a train of commissary stores—and carried back with them over 200 prisoners, as many negroes, horses, mules, and several thousands of dollars in gold."

ARITHMETICAL QUESTION.—The Selectmen of a town furnished their Liquor Agent, at the commencement of the year, with liquor, valued at $133.31. In the course of the year, the agent sold for the town $358.59. He bought in the year $229.86. At the end of the year he returned to the town $99.05. The town agreed to pay him, as a salary for his services, $125.00. They also paid a government tax of $20.00. Now, the question is, Did the town, in their traffic, make or loose money? If so, how much?—and did the agent owe the town, or the town owe him?

Will some of our mathematicians gives us a solution? It is an actual occurrence at the town of Quincy, where public opinion is much divided as to the true solution of the question.

THE CONTINENTAL MONTHLY.—The April number of this excellent periodical is received, and for sale by Wilkinson at his store. It is a sterling magazine and has gained a reputation for genuine merit which some of our older magazines might well envy. The articles contributed by Hon. R. J. Walker are alone worth more than the price of the work, for they are able, instructive and patriotic. The miscellaneous department is full of entertaining matter. We cordially recommend the Continental. Price 25 cents. A. Williams & Co., Boston, agents.

RETURN TO SPECIE PAYMENTS.—One day last week, at the Post Office, three three-cent pieces and a silver dime were taken for postage stamps! This is an indication of a return to specie payments. When silver gets down 8 or 10 per cent. below par, we shall not fail to inform our readers, but we advise them to get rid of it before the decline.

PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEES.—William Marshall, Amos K. Raddin, William W. Reed, have been elected as Prudential Committees for Rockville District.

William S. Osborne has been re-elected in the Bowditch District.

IMPORTANT!—The Wallis District Prudential Committee have organized. All quiet 'round the monument!

A PLEASANT SURPRISE.

DANVERS, March 28th, 1863.

The numerous friends of Mr. HILLS, Principal of our High School, last Thursday evening paid him a visit which, we cannot doubt, was as agreeable to him as it was pleasant to the visitors. Mr. Hills had not the least intimation that his house was to be so unceremoniously invaded, and the worthy proprietor was quite overcome with emotions of surprise. We use the word in the dictionary sense. We have before attended "surprises" and seen our host or hostess appear most surprisingly, but we have not, until the other night, seen our host, on such occasions, appear at all surprised. Mr. Hills was completely taken. The "raid" on him was a perfect success, but, unlike the raids more frequent in these times, was in the fullest sense loyal. The party, violating their usual temperance principles, brought with them the best of spirits, and, to use the language of one of the reverend gentlemen present, Mr. Hills soon had "as much as he could stand under." A Quartette Club, improvised on the spur of the moment, discoursed some excellent music, and altogether it was a very happy time.

In the course of the evening, Mr. A. A. Putnam, in behalf of the company present, in a short address, presented to the talented and successful Principal, a purse of $100—and to Miss Smith, the accomplished Assistant teacher, a purse of $32.

Mr. Hills replied, heartily thanking his friends, but excused himself from a speech by saying that, unlike the man who had prepared a speech in anticipation of a surprise, which he did not get, he (Mr. H.) had got the surprise, but no prepared speech. This ceremony over, which was the only thing at all ceremonious, the company tarried a while longer in a pleasant interchange of sentiments, when they joined in the singing of "Old Hundred," and quietly retired, with a hearty "good-night" to their much esteemed host and his associate teacher, Miss Smith.

Observing the order of time, we should have first mentioned another visit to Mr. Hills, made by the graduating class of the present year. This class, which numbered sixteen, graduated with honor, full of promise for the future of every member of it, and on the evening of their graduation, appropriately terminated their High School Course by a visit to their teachers, at Mr. Hills' house. They presented the Principal with an elegant picture of the "Life of Christ," and the Assistant, with a gold mounted chain wrought from the hair of the members of the class.

SOLDIERS' AID SOCIETY.

A letter to a friend in this town, from Miss Mary Sewall, (daughter of Rev. Charles Sewall, for many years a resident of this place,) who is engaged at Point Lookout, caring for the sick, requests aid for her patients. She writes as follows:—

"Will the ladies of South Danvers, (who, I suppose, like most Massachusetts women, are constantly at work for the poor soldiers' comfort,) distribute some of their supplies, through me?

"We have about seven hundred patients, and expect any day a thousand more.

"Anything in the way of clothing or stores, will be most gratefully received, and it will give me the greatest pleasure to distribute.

"In the first place, clothing is wanted. When a patient is sent from an hospital, either home or to join his regiment, he is not allowed to take with him, or wear away, any hospital clothing; and as the under-clothes in which he is brought to the hospital from the field are generally in such a condition that they are immediately destroyed, the poor fellow must depend on charity of friends to supply him—so that shirts, drawers and stockings are much needed; pocket handkerchiefs too are very acceptable; wines, brandy, alchohol for the very sick;—anything, in the way of delicacies for the sick, would be acceptable;—dried fruits, simple hard ginger-bread, cookies, crackers, or whatever a convalescent could eat, would do so much good.

I think the convalescents suffer quite as much as the very sick, for these have more attention; but after a man is out of danger, can sit up, or perhaps walk about his room, he is considered as needing but little care, but it is to him oftentimes the most trying period of his sickness—he is home-sick, discouraged, and, of all men, most miserable; and I find the men in this state are just like children, so pleased with any little attention.

"Now, if the ladies are fitting out boxes, will you intercede for my patients? I should be so glad of a box. If marked like the address I enclose, it will come safely and promptly. Yours truly, M. SEWALL."

The ladies are preparing a box for Miss Sewall; contributions of any of the articles mentioned above, will be thankfully received at their room on Friday next, in the afternoon, or they may be left at Mrs. Lord's store.

MILK.—In the Legislature recently, a bill was reported regulating the sale of milk, by which a fine of $20 for the first offence and $50 for each subsequent one is provided for selling milk at wholesale by any other than sealed cans. Also providing that the penalty for adulterating milk shall be $20 for the first, $50 for the second, and imprisonment not less than 30 nor more than 90 days for the third offence.

☞ As Dr. Gile and wife were riding out, one day last week, a Danvers butcher-cart came in contact with his carriage, broke both shafts and whiffle-tree, and did other damage to it.—We did not learn that either the Doctor or Mrs. Gile were injured. The accident resulted from carelessness on the part of the Danvers driver. Marblehead Mirror.

☞ By the census of 1860 Massachusetts had 36,970 more females than males.

PEABODY INSTITUTE—TRUSTEES REPORT.

This Annual Report, now in press, contains matters of more than usual interest. The deposit of the Gold Box, presented to Mr. Peabody by the city of London, containing the Freedom of the city, the unusual amount of donations of valuable books to the Library, the alterations in the Hall, and the adornment of its walls by Ames' portrait of Hon. Edward Everett, all serve to mark the year as one of more than ordinary interest in the history af the institution.

We present some extracts from the report of the Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Hon. A. A. ABBOTT, those relating to the Gold Box and to the portrait of Everett:

Sometime since, the same gentleman, (Elijah W. Upton, Esq.,) who presented to the Institute the painting of Mr. Choate, proposed securing and presenting to us, (with his consent,) a picture of Hon. Edward Everett,—to be painted by Mr. Ames of Boston, of the same size and mounting, and in every respect a companion picture to the Choate. This generous proposition was gratefully accepted, and a correspondence had with Mr. Everett, who cheerfully consented to sit. In due time the painting was finished, and it now hangs in its place upon our walls,—a credit to the artist, an ornament to our hall, and destined, preserved, as we trust it will be, to transmit to other and remote times the image and likeness of one, who as scholar, orator, statesman and patriot has no superior, and who, in his later years, by his silver eloquence has linked his name with that of the Father of his Country, and, by his impassioned and earnest appeals, has identified his memory with the preservation of the American Union.

Early in the year the whole community was filled with admiration at the announcement that Mr. Peabody had given to the city of London, for the benefit of its poor, the magnificent sum of seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars; and the subsequent bestowal upon him of the Freedom of the City, with the imposing ceremonies attendant, though an honor rarely, if ever, conferred upon a stranger, was regarded as no unfitting acknowledgment of this munificent charity. The beautifully illuminated parchment upon which the City's gift was inscribed, with the gold box in which the same was presented, together with a copy of Mr. Peabody's deed of gift to the Trustees, were transmitted by him to his friend Mr. Daniels, to be presented to the Institute, and to be there permanently kept and preserved. Thus presented, they were most gratefully received, and the following vote was adopted by the Trustees and placed upon record:—

"That the Trustees of the Peabody Institute feel a deep and unabated interest in whatever concerns the welfare and honor of the Founder of the noble Charity whose custodians they are, and a true and unalloyed satisfaction in every public or private recognition of his virtues and his worth; that they cheerfully offer their congratulations, not only upon the signal and distinguished honor recently conferred upon him by the city of London, but upon that nobility of soul displayed by him in an act of wise and almost unparalleled munificence; and that with feelings of sincere gratitude they accept the Gold Box presented to Mr. Peabody by the city of London, with the beautiful book accompanying the same, and will religiously preserve these precious mementoes, not only as renewed pledges of the good will and affection of their donor for the people of his native town, but as fit recognitions of that Christian charity and boundless benevolence which have made the name of George Peabody the honor and admiration of two continents."

In thus sending to the Institute these memorials of an incident in his life which he cannot regard with other than peculiar satisfaction and pride, Mr. Peabody has again unmistakably indicated his abiding regard for the place of his birth,—a regard which is evinced by deeds rather than words,—which has already accomplished so much for the mental and moral improvement of our people, and which will undoubtedly continue to do all that a wise beneficence would dictate.

We also present a paragraph from the report of Hon. R. S. DANIELS, President of the Lyceum and Library Committee, in which appropriate mention is made of two of our respected fellow-citizens, whose untimely deaths we all deplore, but who fell in the righteous cause of their country's defense from the attacks of internal foes:

It may be no part of our duty to allude, in this report, to the unfortunate and distressing position of our once united and prosperous country; but it is a subject which occupies all minds, and we are forcibly reminded of it at this time by the death of two of our former associates upon the Lyceum and Library Committee. They not long since acted with us, in all the strength of beauty and manhood. You must be aware that we allude to Captain Samuel Brown, Jr., and Lieut. Charles B. Warner. They both fell bravely leading their gallant associates amid the strifes of the battle field. Others of our townsmen have also sacrificed their lives in the same glorious cause. In referring to these events, we know how many friends are mourning with the deepest sorrow the death of these youthful soldiers, and we would not open their wounds afresh but we wish to make a record of their patriotism and love of country. And we cannot omit to allude to our young townsmen, whose countenances are so much missed from our lecture hall and library room, who are now in the army, braving the dangers and privations of war, standing in the breach between a wicked rebellion and the best government the world ever saw. Almost every household has a vacant seat in the family circle, caused by the absence of some loved one who left his home at the call of his country. May the God of battles protect and preserve them all. And, when this Union is restored, and the old flag is floating throughout all its borders, may they return to their homes and receive the cheering welcome of those who love and honor them for the sacrifices they are making for their country and the world.

☞ M. Theron, late French consul at Galveston, has been expelled by Jeff. Davis, for intriguing to take Texas out of the Southern Confederacy and make it an independent State under French protection.

ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

POOLESVILLE, SUNDAY, MARCH 22d, 1863.

FRIEND POOLE,—The 39th still remains "in statu quo" at this place, and we have began to think that this war is not such a huge affair, as some folks who have been at Antietam and Fredericksburg would have us believe. Everything on the Potomac is lovely, as far as we are concerned, and our pickets have not sufficient excitement to keep them from growing fat and lazy. About a week ago, three Lieutenants of us made an onward movement toward Washington for the purpose of being mustered out of the service. We captured a canal boat, that was innocently passing through the lock at Edwards Ferry, secured the captain and crew, which last consisted of one small boy and a contraband, set the engine in motion, (two dilapidated jackasses) and floated sublimely toward the city at the rate of a mile and a half per hour. Of all dreary, monotonous, lonesome methods of locomotion in existence, that by a loaded canal boat, with a tipsy Pennsylvania Dutchman for Captain, takes the lead.—When arrived, we understood that the principal part of "mustering out" consists in being mustered in again; so, as the officers of the Red Tape Brigade refused to do either, we were forced to fall back on our gun boat, which we did in good order with the loss of none killed, and three excessively sleepy.

The authorities at Washington seem to have forgotten that such an Independent Brigade as ours exists; and if they continue in ignorance during the Spring, our chances for arriving home with the requisite number of arms and legs will be increased, although those for "study, travel and promotion" will be materially lessened.

We have been stationed here more than three months, and most of us feel like changing the scene, if possible, and giving some other enterprising command the honor of watching old women and examining suspicious-looking Africans.

I wish that you and all your friends could look in upon us to-day, and satisfy yourselves that camp life can be made pleasant and agreeable, if the right kind of officers be in command. Our camp is an example of neatness and regularity. The company streets are swept as clean as a parlor floor every morning, and the men on parade, look as neat as wax work. I don't think a regiment can be found in the service, surpassing us in this respect.

Capt. Nelson has returned to camp, looking finely, and the boys were glad enough to see the war-worn veteran once more in command of his company. I expected that he might bring out a few recruits to fill up the company, as, of course, now that the conscript act has passed, many of the Home Guard will be fleeing from the wrath to come, and choosing the better part. I can warrant them good steady diet, plenty of exercise, and a splendid chance for promotion in "A" Company, beside the inward satisfaction every one must feel when he reflects that he is contributing his feeble assistance toward the squelching of this elephantine rebellion.

"Fall in," then, descendants of Abraham, sons of John, and the scattering apostles of Stephen A., join your country's defenders, ere you are drawn, as in a lottery, and can't raise the saving $300. Leave your tan-yards, drenches and stakes, your farms and merchandise, make your skimmer-handles into flag-staffs, your quart measures into canteens, your yard-sticks for ramrods, and fill up the ranks of your company, which although not considered at home the "flower of South Danvers" may yet be called one of its "buds of promise."

Under the excellent system of discipline and drill followed by Capt. Nelson, whether under 18, or over 45 years of age, you will soon make good soldiers. But don't get discharged before you leave town.

All the boys are well. Although I am now in another company, I call and see them every day and am proud of the old company. Harrison Dodge has been appointed First Sergeant, and gives good satisfaction. I hope that he will soon go higher. The Corporal, (whom I always have to mention) continues on the "even tenor of his way," contented and happy, though his thirst for blood is as strong as ever. Bessom has been sick with typhoid fever again, but has recovered, and is out again. Milliken is Corporal of the Guard to-day, and as I write, I can hear his peremptory voice as he posts his relief. Billy Richardson is as tough as a knot. Purrington is called the fat boy. Charley Gould is as big a blower as ever. Tyler has learned to steer six mules with one string. Charley Saunders is trying to stuff everybody to death with stews, broils and frys of every description. Nelson Simonds, who, you may recollect used to sing tenor occasionally on high and important occasions, wishes to be remembered to his friends, and says the timely recognition of his merits and necessities, in the shape of a package received by the hands of Capt. Nelson has had a beneficial effect on his system. He is now almost entirely cured of an intense neuralgia in his face which has hitherto refused to yield to the most violent remedies.

I had almost forgotten to mention the new First Lieut. of "A" Company, Chas. H. Porter of Quincy. He is a fine fellow, and much esteemed in the Company. I shall take great pleasure in introducing him at home as one of "our sort" "when this cruel war is over."

I have not received a WIZARD for three weeks. What is the matter? I hope you have said nothing in it against the President or his proclamation. We rely on it for news from home.

Yours truly

C. W. H.

☞ The brilliant action, under Col. Hall at Milton, Tennessee, is a remarkable instance of the successful employment of rebel tactics, by a federal officer. The rebels made a fearful assault with their dismounted cavalry and three regiments of infantry upon a section of our batteries, which was throwing a most destructive fire amongst them; but the first Missouri regiment, who were lying concealed behind the battery, waited until the enemy were within thirty yards, when they opened a terrible fire, causing them to recoil, and finally to retreat in confusion from the field, leaving their dead and wounded behind them.

FERTILIZERS. We would direct the attention of farmers and gardeners to the advertisement of J. M. & P. Richards, 111 Commercial street, Boston. This firm are agents for the sale of the celebrated Poudrette, manufactured by the Lodi Manufacturing Co., New York. It is the best and cheapest fertilizer in the market. It is used extensively by the farmers in this vicinity.

☞ A cyclopedia gives a list of one hundred and eighty-two engagements of the war to the close of 1862.

THE BATTLE-FIELD OF MURFREESBORO'.

A Picture by Parson Brownlow. Parson Brownlow writes to the Philadelphia Press from Nashville, Tenn., 6th instant, as follows:

"I have just returned from Murfreesboro', where I spent two days in riding through the vast encampments of our troops, and over the late battle-ground. I traversed about five miles in extent of the battle-ground, first in the fields and then in the woods, among the cedars and timbers where much hard fighting was done.—No man at a distance, and only receiving the newspaper accounts, can form any idea of the number of dead horses and mules upon the ground. Their names are legion. They are often piled up, one upon another—some shot through the body, some through the neck, others with heads and legs shot off. But all are in a wonderful state of preservation, though lying on the field more than two months.

The trees are peppered with bullets for miles, the twigs are cut off, and many trees are cut off at points ranging from five to thirty feet from the ground. Large trees of sufficient size to make sawlogs, where the cannon balls struck them fairly, they passed clear through, and daylight can be seen through as one rides along. Cannon balls are to be seen all along the line, and shells that failed to explode. In other instances, pieces of shell are upon the ground, and among the cedars I handled them.

The graves of the dead are to be seen everywhere, in untold numbers. The head boards of single graves indicate who many of them are, giving names, regiments and residences.—Among the rebel graves I found the name of a relative of my wife, a captain of artillery, from Alabama, killed in the fight on the 30th of December. In many instances ditches were dug, and from seventy-five to one hundred men packed into a ditch.

The greatest sight to be seen is that in front of where Gen. Rosecrans massed his artillery, say one hundred and twenty guns. Dead horses and mules, and an innumerable quantity of graves, tell the effect of these guns! I could but feel sad as I passed over this terrible battle-ground, and yet I felt that there thousand of southern soldiers in rebellion against the government of the United States had villaneously sought and righteously found their rights—not in the 'territories,' but in the cotton fields and cedar thickets of a State they had forced out of the Union."

☞ We learn that the Festival of the Ladies' Benevolent Society of the M. E. Church, on Thursday evening last, was a complete success, exceeding in every respect the most sanguine expectations of the most hopeful. The weather was delightful—the number present large—the singing by the C. O. Glee Club charming—the addresses by the Rev. Mr. Cox of Salem, and Rev. Mr. Barber of this town, excellent; and last, but not least, the collation by the ladies, and the oysters by Mr. P. F. Johnson were of the first order. The net profits were over seventy dollars.

☞ The Methodist New England Conference will commence its Annual Session in Charlestown High Street M. E. Church, Wednesday, April 1st, to continue about a week. Bishop Scott will preside.

In consequence of the absence of the Pastor of the M. E. Church of this town, attending the Conference, there will be no service in the Church on Fast Day.

A SOCIAL PARTY.—Volunteer Engine Co., No. 4, of this town, will give a social party at Sutton Hall on Fast Evening, April 2d, 1863. Music by Upton's Quadrille Band. Tickets 75 cents. Gordon H. Wallis, Thos. Carroll, C. F. Converse, C. Leonard Pierce, Joseph Forness, and James Buxton, are a Committee of Arrangements. A pleasant time may be expected.

☞ Some of the soldiers in the army do not behave very well when they get into rebeldom, and we hear some bad stories about them. The Christian Inquirer affirms that at Beaufort, S. C., tombs were violated. At Holly Springs, Mississippi, a communion table was used in behalf of "euchre" and "old sledge."

☞ Col. Higginson's regiment has signalized itself by the recapture of Jacksonville, Fla., on the 10th inst. The inhabitants were in great fear of an indiscriminate massacre at the approach of the colored soldiers, but it is stated that the negroes behaved with propriety, and no one was harmed.

☞ The National Theatre building in Boston was burned on Tuesday morning of last week, at 2 o'clock. The cause of the fire is unknown. The "Three Fast Men" was played the evening before. The loss in building, scenery, and in the stores below, was some $60,000.

☞ The Richmond Enquirer confesses the extremities of the rebels by saying—"the horses that draw our artillery and baggage trains and ambulances are dropping their hoofs off and eating one another's tails off for want of proper food."

☞ Necessary Measures are to be immediately adopted, for the transfer to the General Hospitals nearest their homes, of all sick and wounded soldiers who have been laid aside three months, and are able to bear the fatigue of transportation.

☞ Capt. Cabot, who is in command of the four companies now stationed at Fort Warren, has received authority to raise two more. They are all heavy artillery companies, and are intended for the permanent garrisons of the forts in Boston harbor.

☞ The public generally may not know that Marblehead is a great onion growing town.—Weathersfield and Danvers are completely eclipsed by our goodly town in the growing of this vegetable.—Mirror.

☞ The School Committee have added fifty dollars to the salary of each of the masters of the Grammar Schools, making it $1000, as it was previous to last year, when the committee struck off this fifty dollars.—Salem Obs.

SIGNS OF SPRING.—In Washington the crocusses are in bloom, while in New England robins and blue birds have appeared, and the wild geese are wending their way northward.

☞ The thirty-sixth semi-annual meeting of the Essex County Teachers' Association will be held in the Town Hall, Haverhill, Friday and Saturday, April 3d, and 4th.

NOT A BAD EXCU round with the contr
fornia churches plead at the pews as they instance the followin
Parson L——extende and he shook his head
give us something,"
"Can't do it," replied
is not the cause a go good enough, but I a anything." "Poh! p
ter; you must give a that." "Well, I owe
I must be just before know." "But, Willi larger debt than you c
"That's true, parson;
pushing me like the re
The argument was con

☞ A venerable lad year lost her daughter,
good old age of eight grief was great; and to to condole with her, s dear! oh dear! I knew able to raise that child

☞ If a lady has a valuable land, the youn conclude that they are for attachment.

GOOD NEWS FROM VICKS ports from Vicksburg that six gunboats, with 21 trans men, forced their way thro in front of the city, and hav operate with Farragut and shall probably next hear of Hudson and the evacuati which can no longer be of

☞ The death of Gen. Su on his way to the West, d more than a passing notice familiar with the Kansas tr
will remember the honorab by Col. Sumner, who, though tyrannical orders of Pierce trived so to discharge his unp secure the respect of the Fr was he who dispersed the To July 4th, 1856. Shortly befo and discharged Captain Bi him his prisoners captured at
The old hero always spoke w
Sumner, and it was evident his turn, was impressed by the of Brown. He was thought moved from Kansas for his
the Free State men. Like Ca General) LYON, who was also he was in heart on the Nort was never false to his convic since the war began was hono brilliant, and he was thought in handling his men. His a of his troops was picturesque with long white hair and bear vance of his men, the very im cavalier. We shall see bette none braver or truer than Ed —Boston Commonwealth.

☞ Counterfeit fives on th Haverhill, Mass., well executed
tion in Portland, Me.

SUN UMBRELLAS.—We have stock of Sun Umbrellas in all 62 1-2 up. We are now sellin cisely the same prices that we and shall continue to do so longer. JOHN P.

Monumental Ceme

The Proprietors of the Monu
tery are hereby notified that thei ing will be held at the Town Hou
Evening, April 7th, 1863, at 7 1
J. A. LO
So. Danvers, April 1, 1863.

A Card.

The Teachers of the Holten wish to express their gratitude of Danvers for their cordial visi on Thursday last, at the residen cipal. Taken wholly by surprise countenances, the social conversa spiring music and the interesting not less gratifying to the Teach the purses presented to them on containing more than one hundr dollars.

NATHANIEL HILLS,
SUSAN SMITH,

AMUSEMENTS IN BOSTON.—At
Theatre the renowned Hernandez appeared on Monday last in the p
the Golden Egg. Mlle. Galletti, th
Daneuse, and Mlle. Zanfretti are Their stay is limited.

At the Howard, John E. Owen lighting good houses with his aided by the excellent company.

RUBBER PAGES 15 cts., at PEABO

GRACE'S SALVE.—From John G.
the Poet:—

AMESBURY, 8th 3d m

Respected Friend:

I thank thee for thy favor and t panying box. I have not had occa it myself, but have heard it very hig of by such of my neighbors as ha and have no doubt of its being a valu pound.

Very truly thy friend,
JOHN G. WH
To WM. GRACE.

See advertisement of Grace's Salve.

☞ Try one of Rhoades' National Wringers, before purchasing elsewhe sale at the Equity Store, South Danv advertisement.

Read advertisement headed "Our

☞ Visit OSBORNE'S Store, and loo unusual variety of new styles in H
CAPS.—101 Essex street.

Read PEABODY'S price list on ad page.

30 Cents.—Ladies all Wool Hose, usually 42 and 45 cents, now only 30 cents, at PEABODY'S—They will probably be worth from 50 to 75 cents next winter.

Eight Cents.—Best Worsted Braids, for Dress Trimmings and Bindings, 8 cts. per piece at PEABODY'S Ladies Furnishing Store—See his new advertisement.

FROM 30 CENTS TO $2,50.

Best Watch Spring Skirts from 30 cents to $2,50, at PEABODY'S, 220 Essex street.

Lost!

On Friday last, between Pleasant and Park Streets, a FITCH FUR TIPPET. The finder will be rewarded by leaving it at my residence, or at Geo. P. Daniels' store.

Mrs. C. A. OSGOOD, Pleasant St.
South Danvers, February 26, 1862.

Save your Rags and Paper!

The subscriber will pay the highest prices in CASH for Rags and Paper. By giving seasonable notice he will call at the houses of those who wish to dispose of their rags.

"A penny saved is as good as a penny earned." So Poor Richard says.

SUMNER SOUTHWICK.
South Danvers, Jan 14, 1863.

Marriages.

In Salem, March 25th, by Rev Dr. Briggs, William Ropes, Jr., of Salem, to Miss Hattie A. Blake of Danvers.

March 26th, by Rev E B Willson, Edward C Mundy, M D, of Staten Island, New York, to Laura Josephine, daughter of Hon Joseph Andrews.

March 26th, by Rev Mr Dwinell, Mr Nath'l O Very to Miss Lizzie A, daughter of Lemuel B Hatch.

In Ipswich, March 14th, by Rev Dr Fitz, Mr Ebenezer Parsons of Lynnfield, to Miss Mary A, daughter of Nathaniel T Dodge, of I.

Deaths.

In this town, Mch 26, Han'h Coyney, aged 21 years 9 mos.

In Danversport, Mch 27, Mr John Burns, 52 years 6 mos—a native of Yarmouth, N. S.

March 29, Mr George F Bragdon, formerly of Shapleigh, Me., 54 years. He was a true friend and devoted husband, patriotic and ready at the first call of his country to arms. He was in a number of battles, and was at last in the battle of Newbern, after which he was taken sick and discharged. He was kind hearted, benevolent, a kind neighbor, and a true lover of his country. A large circle of friends will mourn his loss. He leaves a large family of children, and a kind and affectionate wife.

In Danvers Centre, March 28, very suddenly Mrs Harriet C, wife of Joseph Adams, Esq., 63 yrs 1 mo 9 days.

In Salem, March 23, Mrs A Eliza, wife of Geo A Hodges, Esq, and daughter of the late Henry White, Esq, of Beverly, 67 yrs 10 mos; 24th, Mr Henry C Dearborn, 37; 25th, Capt Edward Weston, 37—son of Capt Nath'l Weston; Mr Thomas Day, 54; 27th, Charlie Lord, youngest child of Edward F and Harriet E Carlton, 5 yrs; Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Joseph G and Abby Howe Nutting, 17 mos; 28th, Anna Dix, daughter of John and Sarah Davidson, 12 yrs 4 mos; Miss John Hammond, 35—daughter of Capt John Hammond.

In Beverly, Mch 25, George Groce, 93.

In Marblehead, Mch 25, Elvina, daughter of Jos W and Lydia Snellings, 5 yrs 5 mos; 25th, Mrs Hannah, wife of Sands Stanley, 70 yrs 4 mos 24 days; 27th, Mr Samuel Chapman, 3d, 80 yrs 6 mos 17 days—a member of Washington Division, No 3, S, of T.

Hunnewell's Great Remedies.

What every Family should have in the House, and why;

☞ They should have Hunnewell's Universal Cough Remedy, because it effectually cures Colds, Whooping and Common Coughs, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, and is the most simple and perfect Soothing Syrup in the world. For old and young, by day and night, it may be used with the greatest freedom, and three-fourths of the deaths by Consumption stopped.

They should have Hunnewell's Tolu Anodyne, because it is a perfect remedy for Neuralgia, Nervous or Sick Headache, Tooth, and Earache, Pain in Stomach, or Bowels, Genuine Cholera Morbus, Rheumatism, Distress after Eating, Nervousness, Hysteria, and the chief of all causes of disease, and Insanity, Loss of Sleep. Its character, though active, is simple; its action in perfect conformity to nature; its end cure, or relief.

For the pains in Monthly Monstruation a perfect relief, while nature's after work is not disturbed, and one of the most important points in Medicine.

They should have Hunnewell's Eclectic Pills, because with seldom but a sing'e Pill for a dose all derangements of the Stomach and Bowels are cured. They cure Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, when caused by foul stomach, Loss of Appetite, Biliousness, so often and so erroneously treated with Mercurials; Jaundice. For Worms a sure cure.

They act simple, assist nature, do not make a Pill Box of the stomach, as is the most fatal error of taking so many Pills at a dose and then, what is important to every Family and every Purse, one bottle goes as far as two or three of what is ordinarily sold.

The confidence of all is asked to test

Hunnewell's Universal Cough Remedy.
Hunnewell's Tolu Anodyne.
Hunnewell's Eclectic Pills.

☞ Fac-simile of J. L. Hunnewell's signature over corks of genuine only.

JOHN L. HUNNEWELL, proprietor,
9 Commercial Wharf, Boston, Mass.

George E. Meacom, Agent for Danvers.

For sale by all dealers in Salem and vicinity.
Apr 1, 1863—1 y

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

THE ADVERTISER HAVING BEEN RESTORED to health in a few weeks, by a very simple remedy, after having suffered several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease, Consumption—is anxious to make known to his fellow-sufferers the means of cure.

To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription used (free of charge,) with the directions for preparing and using the same, which they will find a SURE CURE for CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c. The only object of the advertiser in sending the Prescription is to benefit the afflicted, and spread information which he conceives to be invaluable, and he hopes every sufferer will try his remedy, as it will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing.

Rev. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburgh,
March, 18, 3m Kings County, New York.

Editor of Wizard—Dear Sir: With your permission I wish to say to the readers of your paper that I will send by return mail to all who wish it, (free) a Recipe, with full directions for making and using a simple Vegetable Balm, that will effectually remove, in 10 days, Pimples, Blotches, Tan, Freckles and all Impurities of the Skin, leaving the same soft, clear, smooth and beautiful.

I will also mail free to those having Bald Heads or Bare Faces, simple directions and information that will enable them to start a full growth of Luxurient Hair, Whiskers, or a Moustache, in less than 30 days. All applications answered by return mail without charge. Respectfully yours,

THOS. F. CHAPMAN, Chemist,
March 18 2m No. 831 Broadway, New York.

MANUAL FENOLLOSA,

TEACHER
OF THE
Violin, Piano and Singing,

Music Rooms, No. 7 Central Street,
SALEM, MASS.

☞ Do not neglect to read the advertisement headed "How to Make Five Dollars a Day."

M. FENOLLOSA,

TEACHER OF MUSIC,

LETS .... PIANO FORTES,
at the lowest rates;
SELLS .... PIANO FORTES,
at the Manufacturers Prices;
EXCHANGES ... PIANO FORTES,
on the easiest terms;
At Rooms No. 7 Central street,
feb 11 SALEM, MASS.

New Jersey Lands for Sale.

— ALSO —

GARDEN OR FRUIT FARMS,

Suitable for Grapes, Peaches, Pears, Raspberries, Strawberries, Blackberries, Currants, &c., of 1, 2½, 5, 10 or 20 acres each, at the following prices for the present, viz: 20 acres for $200, 10 acres for $110, 5 acres for $60, 2½ acres for $40, 1 acre for $20. Payable by one dollar a week.

Also, good Cranberry lands, and village lots in CHETWOOD 25 by 100 feet, at $10 each, payable by one dollar a week. The above land and farms are situated at Chetwood, Washington Township, Burlington, New Jersey. For further information, apply with a P. O. Stamp, for a circular, to

B. FRANKLIN CLARK,
feb 18, 1863 No. 90 Cedar St, New York, N. Y.

How to Make $5.00 a Day,

When all other Efforts have Failed.

HOOD & CO., 186 Broadway, New York, have just published ONE HUNDRED VALUABLE SECRETS, possessing them, any one, male or female, can easily make $5 a day, without capital, in any city or village. Every one should possess these secrets, for they are worth $500 to any single or married person. Some of these Secrets have been sold for $20 each. One alone cost us $250 for the right to publish it. When you once own them you will never part with them for money. Several persons are now making $180 per month by these Secrets alone. By them any person may make money easily and rapidly. We send one Book of Secrets for 25 cents, two copies, 40 cents, club of three for 50 cts., club of four 65 cts., club of five 75 cts., club of eight copies, $1 Send Government money.

New York, Feb 18, 1863. *3m

But now his nose is thin,
And it rests upon his chin
Like a staff;
And a crook is in his back,
And a melancholy crack in his laugh.

That is the man who refused to take Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit to cure his disordered stomach—hence the crook in his back, and the melancholy tones of his voice.

Ham's Invigorating Spirit can be obtained at Mr. D. P. Grosvenor's Apothecary Shop, 33 Main St.

Advertisements.

JOHN FARRELL,

DRAPER AND TAILOR,

HAVING removed to his old place of business, 138 MAIN ST., South Danvers, (over Batchelder's Grocery Store), is prepared to Cut, Make, Repair, or furnish Garments, for Men and Youths at short notice.

South Danvers, April 1. tf

Salem and Danvers Aqueduct Co'y.

ALL persons using the water of the Salem and South Danvers Aqueduct are hereby notified that the water rents, for the six months ending May 1, 1863, are now due, and that they are required to pay the same, at the office of the Company, No 2 Sewall street, on the 1st day of May next. Should the bills remain unpaid for thirty days, the water will be stopped, in conformity to the regulations of the Company.

Office hours, from 9 to 1 o'clock, and from 2 to 5.

Per order of the Directors,
apr 1 WM. JELLY, Collector.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

ESSEX ss. Notice is hereby given that the third meeting of the creditors of FRANCIS K. PEMBERTON, of South Danvers, in said county of Essex, insolvent debtor, will be held at the Court of Insolvency, at Salem, in said county of Essex, on the thirteenth day of April next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at which meeting the assignees will present their account as assignees of the estate of the said insolvent debtor, and creditors may appear and object to its allowance thereof.

ARTHUR PICKERING,
H. O. WILEY, Assignees.
So. Danvers, April 1, 1863. 2w

SPRING STYLE
DRESS HATS,

NOW READY

AT JACKSON'S,

131 COURT STREET, BOSTON.

Also a large and varied assortment of CAPS and SOFT HATS, for Boys' and Men's wear. Those wishing articles in the above line would do well to call before purchasing.

JOSEPH A. JACKSON.
Boston, April 1, 1863. 3m

List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at South Danvers, Ap. 31, 1863. [Persons calling for these letters will please say they are advertised.]

Ambrose Thomas	Hall Erason
Aborn F W	Littlefield Mr.
Bacon Joel 2	Mugford Henry F
Carr James	Mansfield Andrew S
Cottrell Joseph	Mulligan James
Cotter Alvinoe Miss	Miller A E (M. D.)
Churchill G W D	Pierce Almira
Cook John	Quockins Mary Miss
Corbett Daniel	Robins Helen Miss
Day George H	Reed Danson
Doyle Alanson C	Rose Mr.
Elims Wm Mrs	Stone J S
Ford C P Mrs	Stone Eliza Mrs
Fanning C P Mrs	Short Alexander
Griffin James	Webb Mary W

N. B. These letters are subject to an additional postage of one cent each.

FITCH POOLE, P. M.

Salem and South Danvers Railroad.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN TO THE abutters on the following streets in South Danvers, viz.:—Main Street from its termination at the line of the city of Salem to its other termination at South Danvers Square—thence through the Square and Central Street to Wilson's Corner—that a meeting of the Selectmen of South Danvers will be held at the Town House on FRIDAY, the third day of APRIL next, at 2 o'clock P. M., at which time and place the Selectmen of said Town will fix and determine the location, and manner of construction of the track or tracks of the "Salem and South Danvers Railroad" in the streets aforesaid—at which meeting such abutters may appear and shew cause, if any there be, why said track or tracks should not be so located and constructed.

JOSEPH POOR, A. W. BANCROFT, DANA WOODBURY, } Selectmen of South Danvers.
South Danvers, March 18, 1863.

A Good Milk Route for Sale,

INQUIRE at this office.
South Danvers, Feb. 11, 1863.

James F. Almy.

FROM AUCTION!

WE are offering bargains in

DRESS GOODS, LINENS,

— AND —

LADIES' CLOTHS.

☞ Received from a late sale of a Jobber's Stock.

JAMES F. ALMY,
apr 1 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

SPRING GOODS!

Entirely New Stock of

CLOTHING.

GEO. H. LANE,

CLOTHIER,

Nos. 31 and 32 Dock Square,

BOSTON,

IS now ready to show to his customers and the public an ELEGANT STOCK OF CLOTHING for MEN'S and BOYS' wear, expressly designed by himself, manufactured on the premises for the present season in all those new and choice selections of fabrics for which Lane's establishment has become celebrated. The stock consists in part of

SPRING OVERCOATS,
FROCK COATS,
BUSINESS COATS,
And ONE HUNDRED CHOICE
NEW STYLES OF PANTALOONS,

Suitable for Dress, Promenade or Business Occasions.

Mr. Lane having made Large Purchases by Contract before the Unprecedented and General Advance in Prices, has it in his power to give

REAL BARGAINS,

Acting on the principal that

"Quick Sales and Small Profits"

Are the best rules to guide the merchant.

JUVENILE ATTIRE.

Boys' Entire Suits, as

SCHOOL SUITS,
DRESS SUITS,
JACKET SUITS,
SACK SUITS, &C.

All of the newest fabrics and best workmanship.

A year since Mr. Lane advised the public that he had added a Boys' Department, and he has now the satisfaction to announce that he has secured the services of Mr. C. H. Boynton, (formerly with J. Walter Read) to superintend it; and indeed, to make the entire establishment the COMPLETEST IN NEW ENGLAND, the Proprietor has spared no pains to secure the services of REAL ARTISTS in the Cutting Room, and accomplished, obliging, and experienced Salesman in the Show Room; and trusts by strict personal attention, and MODERATE CHARGES, to merit the support of the community.

GEO. H. LANE,
31 AND 32 DOCK SQUARE,
April 1—3m BOSTON.

NEW ENGLAND
FERTILIZER DEPOT,

No. 111 Commercial St., Boston.

TO FARMERS AND TRADERS!

WE desire to call your attention to our stock of FERTILIZERS, having the largest supply and finest assortment of reliable brands ever offered in this market. Our stock embraces

Coe's, Hoyt's, Rhodes } SUPER-PHOSPHATE LIME.
No. 1 PERUVIAN GUANO.
GROUND BONE, [coarse and fine]
BONE MEAL. LAND PLASTER.
FISH GUANO. BONE TAFEU.
LIME, CEMENT, &c., &c.

We are also Sole Agents for the
LODI MANUFACTURING CO.'S
POUDRETTE.

Get our terms before purchasing elsewhere. We sell at manufacturers' prices. Samples can be seen of all of the above; also a pamphlet, with a Farmer's Almanac for 1863, may be had free on application by mail or otherwise.

J. M. & P. RICHARDS,
Sales Office 111 Commercial St., Boston, Mass.
apr 1—3m

100,000 BARRELS OF THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S
POUDRETTE,

111 COMMERCIAL ST., BOSTON, MASS.

This Company, with a capital of $150,000, the most extensive works of the kind in the world, and an experience in manufacturing of over 23 years, with a reputation long established, having also the exclusive control of all the night soil of the great city of New York, are prepared to furnish an article, which is, without doubt, the CHEAPEST AND VERY BEST fertilizer in market. It greatly increases the yield, and ripens the crop from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from three to four dollars per acre, with little or no labor. Also, FIFTY TONS of BONE TAFEU, being a mixture of bone and night soil ground fine, at $45 per ton—a superior article for grain, &c. A pamphlet containing all necessary information may be had free by addressing a letter to the LODI MANUFACTURING CO., No. 111 Commercial Street, Boston, Mass.

Price of POUDRETTE, $1.65 per barrell. Seven barrells and over delivered free of charge.

PATENT BOOK STAND.

A new and desirable article—can be used for two Books at the same time, is neat and cheap—for sale at
ap 1 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

WHITE LEAD IN PAILS.

NEW YORK White Lead, put up in tin Pails of 25 lbs each, for sale by
S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

INK STANDS.

NEw Styles at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

George S. Walker.

George S. Walker,
228 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,
STEARN'S BLOCK,

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his friends and customers that he is now prepared to offer a very extensive and varied stock of

GENT'S FURNISHING GOODS,

adapted to the season, comprising the largest and only exclusively Furnishing Stock in the city, consisting in part of

HOSIERY, UNDER-SHIRTS AND DRAWERS,
in every variety of material, extra large and small sizes.

Woolen Over-Shirts, for Army and Home wear;
Also, Half Hose, in Silk, Angola Wool, Merino, Cotton and Lisle, every size and Quality;

GLOVES IN KID, BEAVER, BUCK, SILK, LISLE.

Cloth, Silk and Lisle, Lined and Unlined STOCKS, NECK SCARFS, TIES & CRAVATS,

The latest Styles in Black and Fancy Colors,

Also, SHIRTS, Silk and Linen POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS, COLLARS, Linen FRONTS & CUFFS, SUSPENDERS AND BRACES.

UMBRELLAS—Silk and Gingham.
PATENT ENAMELLED COLLARS,

And a general assortment of Toilet and other articles for Gentlemen's Use.

Shirts, Collars and Stocks,
Made to Order.

SHIRT PATTERNS CUT.

Most of the above goods were bought before any advance in the price, and of many classes of goods I had ordered a year's Stock, so that I am enabled to offer them to my patrons at the Lowest possible price, less than the Importers' and Manufacturers' present prices.

April 1.

John P. Peabody.

OUR PRICES!

Best American Pins,	per paper,	5 cents;
Best Worsted Braids,	per piece,	8 do
Best Glazed Cotton,	per spool,	7 do
Good Glazed Cotton,	per spool,	5 do
Nice All-Wool Hose,	per pair,	30 do
All our 42 and 45 cent Hose, to close,		30 do
Nice Cotton Hose, per pair		17 do
Cotton Hose, per dozen,	$1 75, $2 25 &	$2 75
Ladies' Rubber Pages, with clasps,		15 cents;
Union Rose Soap—two cakes,		5 do
Nice Linen Hdkfs.,		15 do
Fine Hem'd Linen Hdkfs.,		35 do
Fine Cambric Hdkfs., for children,		6 do
Watch Spring Skirts, all sizes,		30 cts to $2.

You can judge by the above that we are selling at less than the regular market prices. We have a large stock mostly bought before the rise, which we shall continue to sell at the low prices, until April 1st, 1863.

ALL WHO STUDY ECONOMY WILL BUY NOW!

Buy Your Cotton Hose Now!
Buy Your Sun Umbrellas Now!
Buy Your Gloves Now!
Buy Your Spool Cottons Now!
Buy Your Tr'ming Braids Now!

New Goods! New Goods!

Cambric Edgings;	Steel Dress Buttons;
Cambric Insertings;	Gilt Buttons;
Cotton Edgings;	Silk Dress Buttons;
Saxony Edgings;	Ladies' Rubber Pages;
Black Lace Veils;	Leather Currency Holdrs;
Malta Lace Collars;	Leather Wallets and Bags;
Mourning Collars;	Perfumes and Soaps;
Crape Veils & Sets;	Puffs—Boxes—Brushes;

MISSES' SKIRTS;
MISSES' SKIRTS;
MISSES' SKIRTS;
MISSES' SKIRTS;
LADIES' SKIRTS;
LADIES' SKIRTS;
LADIES' SKIRTS;

Lace Goods Department.

Collars—Sleeves—Sets—Edgings—Insertings, Bands—Flouncings—Mourning Goods—Magic Ruffles—Collarette Ruffles—Cap Laces—Bobbinett and Brussels Laces—Silk Bonnet Laces—Wr't Hdkfs, etc.

Millenery Goods.

Ribbons—Flowers—Ruches—Tabs—Linings—Laces—Wire Taste—Lustring Ribbons Cords—Blonde Laces—Joined Blonde—Buckles—Pins etc, etc.

Hosiery and Gloves.

Cotton Hosiery, (Old Prices)—Woolen Hosiery (to close)—Children's Hosiery—Baby's Socks.

Ladies', Misses', and Children's Gloves,—in Lisle Thread, Silk, Linen, Braganza, Cotton.

White Goods.

Cambrics—Lawns—Muslins—Dimety—White Linen Lawns and Cambrics—all bought before the great rise, and selling without the advance.

Small Wares.

Pins—Needles—Buttons—Cottons—Threads, Tapes—Hooks & Eyes—Elastics—Garters Pages—White Wax—Braids—Cords—Bindings—Scissors—Tambour Cottons—Crochet Cottons and Needles—Crochet Braids—Embroidery Braids—Soaps—Perfumes—Brushes—Puffs—Powders—Boxes Rouge Wallets—Bags, &c.

Ladies' Underwear.

Corsets;	Chemises;	Under Vests;
Bodices;	Drawers,	Pants;
Skirts;	Shapes;	Corset Clasps;

☞ We have not followed the universal custom of marking up as fast as there is a rise in the market, and shall continue to sell at our regular prices, until APRIL 1st.

ONE PRICE ONLY!
220 ESSEX ST., SALEM,
JOHN P. PEABODY.

UNITED STATES LAWS.

NATIONAL Tax Law with the amended act of Mch '63—only 10 cts.
Militia Laws from 1792 to 1863, now in full force;
Conscription Law of 1863—received by
ap 1 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

TOILET SOAPS, &C, &C.

TEETH, Hair, and Nail Brushes. New supply for sale by
ap 1 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

GREEN PAINT.

HAMPDEN Green, English Green, and Verdigris, for sale by
S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front St.

A. J. Archer & Co

ELEGANT NEW GOODS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

OPEN THIS MORNING

MANY NEW STYLES OF

DRESS GOODS,

INCLUDING

Rich and Heavy Black Silks,

Rich Plain Colored Silks.

☞ Our patrons are invited to examine these Goods. Prices are still advancing, and money will be saved by buying now.

Salem, February 11, tf

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

Have on hand a full supply of

BROWN SHEETINGS AND SHIRTINGS;
BLEACHED SHEETINGS & SHIRTINGS;

— Also —

GREY TWILLED FLANNELS;
WHITE FLANNELS.

— Also —

BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,

which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES.
Salem, January 28—6w

KEROSENE Stand and Hand Lamps, and Peg Lamps. Also Wicks and Chimneys—for sale by S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

A FINE assortment of Paper Shades for Kerosene Lamps, just opened at S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

HILTON'S Insoluble Cement; Rickards's Improved Cement; Spaulding's, Upton's, and Nichols's Liquid Glues, for sale by
feb 11 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

WATCH SPRING SKIRTS,

MANUFACTURED TO ORDER BY A. PORTER,

At 236 Essex Street,

A few doors from Washington Street,

SALEM, MASS.

THE CLOTHES WRINGER.

JUST OBTAINED

RHOADES' CELEBRATED

NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER,

THE VERY BEST YET INVENTED,

AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING MACHINE.

CALL AND EXAMINE.

For Sale by E. SOUTHWICK,

At the EQUITY GROCERY STORE,
South Danvers, Jan 21, 1863. 3m

THE PIANO FORTES

THAT have attracted so much attention of late, and are so much admired on account of their SPLENDID FULL, RICH, MELLOW TONE, and GRAND FRENCH ACTION, are for sale only at the Office of the Agent,

218 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.,

where reference may be had to many who have purchased. Other Piano Fortes also, are for sale, varying in price from $180 upwards. Please call.

Mch 11 6m S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

WATCH FOUND.

THE owner can have it by proving property and paying expenses.

Mrs. JOS. INGALLS, 123 Lowell St.
South Danvers, March 11, 1863

GLASS WARE.

CUT and Pressed Goblets; Tumblers; Dishes in great variety; just opened at S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.
mch 25

CROCKERY WARE.

WHITE Dinner and Tea Ware; Fancy and White Toilet Ware, in complete sets—by
mch 25 S C & E A SIMONDS.

AGRICULTURAL PAPERS, &C.

SUBSCRIPTIONS received for all the Agricultural and Horticultural Papers and Magazines, at the Publishers' prices—by
mch 25 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Guardian's Sale of Real Estate in South Danvers.

WILL be sold by order of Probate Court, at Public Auction, on the premises, on FRIDAY, the third day of April next, at half past three o'clock in the afternoon, eleven seventy-seconds (11-72) of a certain lot of land, with the buildings thereon, situate on Central Street, South Danvers, in the county of Essex, and State of Massachusetts, containing about twenty-eight thousand feet, the same being the "Tan-yard Lot" belonging to the estate of Joseph Poor, late of South Danvers, deceased. Terms Cash.

WM. H. HOWLAND, Guardian.
South Danvers, Mch 18—3w

Salem and South Danvers Railroad.

SUBSCRIBERS to the Capital Stock are hereby notified that the same is payable at the Salem Bank, in four instalments, of 25 per cent. each, on the following days, viz.—March 2; March 20; April 10; May 1.

Per order,
GEO. D. PHIPPEN, Treasurer.
mch 7 2m

JUVENILE BOOKS.

A VERY large assortment for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Browning & Long.

POINT DE VENICE.

THE NEW SKIRT

— AT —

BROWNING & LONG'S.

Having sold our Last Season's Stock out completely, we now offer entirely NEW SKIRTS.
mch 13

LARGE SALES
AND SMALL PROFITS.

BROWNING & LONG

— ARE OPENING —

BEAUTIFUL

Spring Goods,

THIS WEEK.

In Beauty and Elegance, the late Importations have never been surpassed.—

Our New Stock comprises the Latest Fashions and Newest Styles.

BROWNING & LONG

(Successors to J. Mayer,)

Essex St., 177 Essex St.,
April 1, 1863.

To Let on Essex St., Salem,

The STORE and DWELLING HOUSE connected therewith, No. 260 Essex St. The store is neatly fitted up, is one of the best stands in the city, and admirably adapted for Millinery, Fancy, Dry Goods, or any light business.

The Dwelling part contains nine finished rooms, and is supplied with water, gas, etc.—all in good order and very convenient.

To a satisfactory tenant, the above will be let on reasonable terms. Apply at J. PERLEY'S Shoe Store, next door west. feb 25

DIARIES AT COST PRICES.

A GOOD ASSORTMENT at G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S, Salem, Mass.

NATIONAL ALMANAC,

AND Annual Record for 1863—containing Government of the United States, the Individual States, and so called Confederate States, Tax Law, Census Tables, New Tariff, Army and Navy Officers, U. S. Mint, Consuls Statistics, etc., for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.
South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

School for both Sexes.

THE next term of MISS FRANCES E. VERY'S School for pupils of both sexes, will commence April 1st, at the Oliver School House, No. 95 Federal Street.

Application may be made at No. 154 Federal Street. Salem, Mch 4, 1863.6

MISS MUGFORD.

A new supply of "Triumph in Trial."—A Memorial of Sarah S. Mugford—by S M Worcester, D. D.,—at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

NEW NEEDLE THREADER.

DOUBLE-ENDED, Excelsior Sewing Needle Threader and Worsted Lhreader combined—of great utility for near sighted or nervous people in threading needles, numbering from 4 to 12, and also Darning Needles.

Call and see them, at
mch 4 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

ORGANDIE MUSLINS.

WE shall open new Spring styles of Organdie Muslins to-day.

Ladies will do well to buy now, as prices are advancing daily. ANN R. BRAY, mch 4 76 Federal street.

NEW BOOKS,

AT G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S.

The Scarlet Flower, a Novel by Pierce Egan Esq;

The Trapper's Daughter, a story of the rocky Mountains, by Gustave Aimard;

Peterson's Magazine for April;

Atlantic Monthly, for do;

Eclectic Magazine, do;

Webster's army and Navy Pocket Dictionary
mch 25 190 Essex street.

☞ If you want to Save Money, in purchasing Goods, go to Colman's, No. 10 Front street, Salem. fap30-tf

Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,

Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,
34 Front Street.

Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

Dry Goods at Auction.

ON SATURDAY NEXT, at 9 1-2 o'clock, A. M, will be sold at No. 34 Front Street: FURNITURE: The usual quantity of New and Second-hand Furniture; Sofas, Tables chairs, Mattrasses, Bedsteads, Stoves; 1 Platform Table.

Boots and Shoes: Men's and Boys' Boots and Shoes; Ladies' and Misses' Boots and Shoes.

Crockery: The balance of an invoice of Crockery and Glass Ware.

Dry Goods: An invoice of Dry Goods, Prints, Shawls, Silecia, Cambrics, Trimmings, Hosiery, &c.

House Paper: 300 Rolls House Paper. ap1

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,

Druggist and Apothecary,
33 MAIN STREET.

Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.

Personal attention to Physicians' Prescriptions.

South Danvers, May 29, 1861. 1y

GEO. E. MEACOM

Dealer in
DRUGS & MEDICINES,

Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.

126 MAIN ST. 126

Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,

Druggist & Apothecary

37 Main St., So. Danvers,

DEALER IN

Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponges, Shoulder Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines

Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery.

Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by experienced persons.

37 MAIN STREET.

Potter, Bachelder & Co.,

(Successors to M. Black)

DANVERS PORT,

DEALERS IN

WOOD AND COAL

Of the various kinds usually kept in a retail yard. Constantly on hand

Franklin, Old Company's Lehigh,
Locust Mountain, Black Heath,
Red and White Ash.

Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere.

OFFICE—No. 6 Allen's Building.

Order Box at post office, South Danvers, and post office, Danvers.

G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. july 19—tf

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,

IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.
dec 24 Sign of Five Golden Books.

DIARIES--1863.

VN excellent assortment at the lowest prices, for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

NEW BOOKS.

STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom; Fire Light; or Stories for Domestics, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;
Gardener's Monthly—January;
Harper's Weekly; Genealogical Register;
Historical Collections, October, 1862.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
At the old stand of H Whipple & Son

T. HARDY, JR.,

—Dealer in—

DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,

Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,

FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,

No. 26 FRONT STREET,

Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

NEW YORK WHITE LEAD.

2500 L New York White Lead;
Also, Fores River White Lead—for sale by
mch 4 S C & E A SIMONDS.

CONSCRIPTION LAW.

The United States Conscription Law of 1863 Official and complete; price 5 cents—at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

NEW SPRING SHAWLS,

IN Stripe, Plaid and Plain, of rich styles—just received and for sale by
mch 4 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PERMANENT GREEN.

A supply of Hampden Green, just received at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.
mch 11

WHITE LEAD;

LINSEED Oil; Spirits Turpentine; Star Benzele Spirits; Varnishes, etc—constantly for sale by
mch 11 S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st.

CAMELS HAIR GOODS.

OWING to the small stock of Camels Hair goods in the market, prices have very much advanced. We shall give our customers the advantage of buying at the old prices, as we have a good assortment on hand.

ANN R. BRAY,
mch 4 76 Federal street.

BLANK BOOKS.

A fresh lot, just manufactured from superior paper, by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
190 Essex street,
mch 11 Sign of Five Golden Books.

WIRE GOODS.

WIRE Rat Traps; Broilers; Steamers; Sieves etc., just received at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

THE SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD
Is published every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's Building, South Danvers Square, by
CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editor.
TERMS—Two Dollars a year.
ADVERTISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM G. CHOATE,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
Salem, August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Residence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
South Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
Office, No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to
Rooms formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
NO. 27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM,
STEPHEN B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Office, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.

Claims against the Government for Bounty Back Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
No. 4 MAIN STREET, So. DANVERS SQUARE
Mechanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
Teeth Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
SURGEON DENTIST,
No, 208 Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market
Residence—No. 57 Washington street.
jan 11—1y

F. POOLE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Family Groceries, Flour & Grain,
HARD WARE AND CROCKERY,
Ready Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods,
Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
South Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
SAM'L NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Crockery, China and Hardware; Paper Hangings; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.
No. 32 Front street, Lawrence Place,
feb13 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
All orders promptly and faithfully executed.
jan2-1y

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
West India Goods, Country Produce,
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
Gold and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
at Rooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger.
164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
WINDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
mch6-tf

JOHN MOULTON,
LIVERY STABLE,
Central Street, South Danvers.
Mr. M. will endeavor to keep up the good reputation of his stable, by still keeping good Horses and Carriages. jan 7, 1863.

HEYLINGBERG'S
Hair Dressing Saloon,
24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.
TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Champooing,	15 cts.
Champooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more new Quarterly Customers taken.
In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 cheeks will be sold for one dollar.
South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,
ADVERTISING AGENT
For the principal New England Newspapers, remains at the old stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, and Advertising.
Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

WALKING MADE EASY.

DR. P. KENISON,
CHIROPODIST,
215 Washington St., Boston,
Cures Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails, Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

D. W. BOWDOIN,
—ARTIST IN—
PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.
Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]
Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotype, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.
☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

W. E. P. SMYTH,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.
Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,
LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.

Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow. 4th. The Mot er.
2d. The Children. 5th The Brothers and Sis-
3d. The Father. ters collectively.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken out, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.

When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditer's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay in getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.
Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1v

Rare Chance for Bargains.
CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of
JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS,
At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER
Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,
Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Ware,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.
at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.
This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Refurnishing the Table, &c.
Old Silver taken in exchange.
☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.
JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

H. & H. G. HUBON,
WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM
Manufacturers of
Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood
COFFINS and CASKETS.
MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.
Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists
for sale.
dec 14—tf

FRANKLIN COAL.
JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL —the best in the world for domestic use.
POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

E. N. PRICE,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
HARNESSES,
SADDLES, BRIDLES,
AND WHIPS.
— ALSO —
Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.
All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.
237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
mch13-tf

Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

Heckscher Coal!
$7.75 per Ton on Wharf.
A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,
Both Red and White Ash,
Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by
W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.
march 18

GAYLE & CO.,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
DEALERS IN
Flour, Grain and Produce,
Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of
Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.
PHILLIPS WHARF, Salem.

REMOVAL!
AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,
Manufacturer and Repairer of
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

NEW BOOKS
AT G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, 190 Essex st. Salem:
The Iron Furnace, or, Slavery and Secession, by Rev. John H Aughey;
Transition; a Remembrance of Emma Whiting, by Hugh S Carpenter;
The Hero of Medfield; containing the Journals and Letters of Allen A. Klogsbury, of Medfield, who was killed near Yorktown;
The Orphens C Kerr Papers, Second Series;
The Great Consummation. The Millenial Rest; or the World as it will be—by Rev. John Cumming, D. D;
McClellan; who he is, and what he has done—by George Wilkes;
Dr. Walker's Election Sermon;
mch 4 190 Essex street.

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks. Carvers and Steels. and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by
nov 19 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.
Prof. M. G. BROWN.
SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets scumy and glassy; the ball turne a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its sockett in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to annoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat; prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 5 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

E. R. PERKINS,
PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST
241 Essex Street, Salem.
Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,
Photographs, Sphereotypes, Melainotypes, and patent enamel Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

REMOVAL!
JOHN J. ASHBY,
WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store
No. 145 Essex Street,
formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of
BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,
and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.
Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Ladies' Spring Skirts.
ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN. R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

DIARIES FOR
1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books,

Ann R. Bray,
NO. 76 Federal Street,
— DEALER IN —
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

Plymouth Buck Gloves.
MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S
Gent's Furnishing Store,

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.
THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, o which the Mackie took the First Premium at the lat Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.
BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook.
South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862. tf

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

Tenements to Let.

ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $54 per year.

One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.
One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.
One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.
One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.
SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

MUNROE'S
(LATE REED'S)
SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON
RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at		10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " "	at	5 p. m.
Express leavos Boston at		3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " "	at	5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.
Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.
EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.
Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.
Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.
Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed:
WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

E. F. BURNHAM,
SOLE AGENT FOR
SARGENT & CO.S'
MAGIC SOAP
For South Danvers & Salem.
OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.
Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.
Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
INNER SOLES,
AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.
2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

THOMAS PINNOCK,
SLATER,
SALEM, MASS.
Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.
Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.
Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

CURRIER & MILLETT,
Dealers in

Furniture, Chairs,
MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c
259 & 261 ESSEX ST,
Salem, dec 14—1y

WM. C. HENDERSON,
MANUFACTURER OF
PLAIN AND FANCY
PAPER BOXES,
No. 235 ESSEX STREET,
Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"
july 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,
NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St. South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

AARON T. LOWE,
DEALER IN
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,
76 BOSTON STREET, 76.
aug 6 SALEM. tf

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.
THE subscriber has on hand 80,000 bushels of
Patent Granular Fuel,
which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25 Bushels, delivered,		2 25
50 do	do	4 00
100 do	do	7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.
BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, june 18.

NOTICE.
THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.
JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

R. C. MANNING & CO.
Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,
DEALERS IN
COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,
188 DERBY STREET,
SALEM, MASS.
N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING,
oct17

NEW GOODS.
WE have received some very neat styles of French Prints, small figures, Spring styles, new goods.
Neat styles Patches, new patterns.
A few pieces Cotton and Wool M de Laines, new styles, suitable for the present and Spring wear—selling low for cash.
jy 14 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A YEAR'S Reading in WHIPPLE & SMITH'S Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.
dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

LES Miserables—complete—$1.00.
Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Muloch—for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

Dyspepsia Remedy.
DR. DARIUS HAM'S
AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!
This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.
IT STIMULATES, EXHILARATES, INVIGORATES, BUT WILL NOT INTOXICATE OR STUPEFY.
AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner.
It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.
Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the DELIRIUM TREMENS, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.
DOSE—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.
A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.
Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.
Persons who, from dissipating too much over night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings.
Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the care worn face.
During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.
All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the INVIGORATING SPIRIT in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.
General Depot, 48 Water Street, N.Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.
feb 29 1y

Are you Insured?
THE subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on
Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,
And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:
Thamos Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn. Capital—$500,000. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston. Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston. Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y
Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass. Capital and Assets—$170,000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D, Medical Examiner.
WM. ARCHER, Jr.,
18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem,
ej b20-1

Important to the Afflicted.
DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a
PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.
By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent, Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of
GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.
Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.
SEMINAL WEAKNESS.
Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are: Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such person should, before contemplating matrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.
Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.
Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French [illegible], warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y.

CAUTION
TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.
DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.
Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.
Boarding accommodations, for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.
Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.
N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.
Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE
IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.
Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.
Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y

HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Madam Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustro China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PLANISHED Tin Plate Covers, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 34 Front.

NOTE PAPER.
A VERY full and complete stock, at a very small advance on old prices, at
jan 21 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

KEROSENE LAMPS.
FOR Shoemaker's use, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

JUST PUBLISHED.
GRAVER Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heaven, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantes, by A. B. Edwards; The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
dec 24 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,
FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,
Central street, South Danvers,
HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.
He keeps as good an assortment of
COFFINS AND CASKETS,
as can be found at any establishment, and at the lowest prices.
He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.
All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

SOUTH DANVERS
POST OFFICE.
GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.
MAILS CLOSE
At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.
MAILS DUE
At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.
Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.
F. POOLE, P. M.
South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

SLATING, SLATING.
GEORGE FOWLER & COMPA'Y,
NO. 2 ST. PETER COURT, SALEM, respectfully inform their friends and the citizens of this and neighboring towns and cities that they are prepared to execute all orders for Slating, promptly and faithfully.
Roofs covered with any description of Slates, or repaired at short notice.
All work undertaken will be warranted.
Address—Box 366 Salem Post Office.
Salem, January 28—1863. tf

PATTERSON'S
LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE
THE undersigned are agents for the above machine. It can be seen in operation at Pinder & Brown's Tannery.
may 7—3m CLARK & GIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,
Wallis Street, South Danvers,
Are Agents for
GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S
PATENT EAVE TROUCHS
CUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND
PIPE FOR DRAINS.
South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,
ONE PRICE
HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,
231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

Ann R. Bray, 76 Federal Street,
WILL open to-day, New Spring Goods, Delaines; Alapaccas, &c.
We have a full and carefully selected stock of Black Silks, which are warranted to give perfect satisfaction.
In dress goods we select the best styles, and fabrics, and those who buy early will find the best assortment. feb 25

GRACE'S CELEBRATED SALVE.

A SURE RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERER.
This Salve is a vegetable preparation, invented in the 17th century, by DR. WM. GRACE, surgeon in King James's army. Through its agency he cured thousands of most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Burns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Scalds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Flesh Wounds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Corns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Felons.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Frozen Limbs.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Wens.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Callouses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Salt Rheum.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chilblains.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Breast.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Lips.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Erysipelas Sores.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Abscesses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ulcers.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chapped Hands.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ringworms.
And from Sores and Wounds of the most serious nature down to a common Pimple. It eradicates Pimples from the face, and beautifies the skin. There is no preparation before the public that can equal this Salve in prompt and energetic action for the speedy cure of external diseases, as those who have tried its virtues testify. Soldiers, Sailors, and Fishermen, will find this Salve their best friend.
It has none of the irritating, heating properties of other remedies, but cools, cleanses, and heals the most serious Sores and Wounds. Every family, and especially those containing children, should keep a box on hand in case of accident, for it will save them much trouble, suffering, and money. All it wants is a fair trial to cure old and inveterate Sores.
MANUFACTURED BY
WILLIAM GRACE,
AMESBURY, MASS.
PRICE 25 CENTS PER BOX.
Each box has the above cut and the fac-simile of the proprietor's signature attached to it, which is duly copy righted.
Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., 11 and 12 Marshall street, Weeks & Potter, 170 Washington street, and M. S. Burr & Co., 26 Tremont street, Boston, Wholesale Agents.
For sale by druggists and at country stores everywhere.

MUSICAL NOTICE.
Chickering & Sons' Piano-Fortes.

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St. would inform her friends in South Danvers, and the public generally that she keeps for sale and to let Chickering & Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with great care, and need only to be tried to prove their superiority over every other in the market. The very best terms given.
MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPHINES
For sale and to let. For power and quality of tone none can surpass them ANN R. BRAY,
76 Federal str.

Ann R. Bray, No. 76 Federal Street,
HAS received a fine assortment of NEW SPRING GOODS, including:—
Rich Black Silks;
Black Alapaccas, a full assortment;
Polls in Stripes and Plaids;
Mous de Laines, entirely new patterns;
French Cambrics, small fig'd, for Children;
—A full stock of—
DOMESTIC GOODS.
feb. 25 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PATENT CLOTHES
HORSES Cram's Patent Clothes Frames, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS
A FINE assortment—for sale at low prices at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
jy 14 190 Essex Street, Salem.

Eastern Railroad.
ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains will leave the Eastern Railroad Station, Washington street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excepted):
For Lynn and Boston, 6½, 7½, 8½, 9, 10, 11 a m., 1, 2½ 4 40, 6½, p. m.
Beverly, 8½ am., 1, 2½, 4½, 5½, 6½, 7½ p m.
W. Beach, Manf't, Gloucester, and Rockport, 8½ a m., 1, 4½ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8½ a m., 1, 3½, 5½ p m.
Amesbury, 8½ a m., 3½, 5½ p m.
Portsmouth, 8½ a m., 3½, 5½ p m.
Portland, 8½ a m., 3½ p m.
AND FOR SALEM, FROM Port

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8, 1863. NO. 14.

Selected.

MURDOCK'S AVENUE;

OR,

THE MIDNIGHT HORSEMAN.

Hester, woman, what ails you this ning? Why do make such a about my going to B—— to-day, en you have seen me go and come safe a dozen times since we were ried?'

Thus spoke, with a little, a very little atience, John Burgess, a stalwart ng farmer, as he stood in the door of old homestead equipped for riding, apparently anxious to start, yet al-ing himself to be detained by two ite arms which wound about his neck, ile the pretty face belonging to them itself in his bosom.

'What is it, Hetty dear?' asked he ain, in a softer tone, as a little sob ote upon his heart.

'I don't know, John,' murmured the ng woman, 'but I can't bear you uld go. Do, do give it up—put it off to-morrow, at least.'

But I can't, Hetty. It is to-day that ns agreed to meet me at B——, and for those cattle. $75 is worth a ride twenty miles in these hard times—eh, tle woman? Come, let me go, and u shall have the best five out of it to just you've a mind to with.'

'Oh, John!' exclaimed the wife, in-gnantly, and raising her head to look proachfully at him, 'do you suppose ney would make me any more willing see you run into danger, if I was sure there is danger? Besides,' she ad-d, archly, 'don't I know that I could ve not only $5 but $10, or the whole 5, if I should ask for it? When did ever want for anything you could give e since we were married?'

'Yes, yes; and see what I get by it,' plied John, anxious to retain the smile his young wife's cheek. 'You won't ke the half loaf unless you can have whole. I shall begin to hide away y money, and steal your eggs to sell, o, as Farmer Gradson does by his wife. et me go and get the $75, and we'll see en if it all goes into that sly little cket of yours. Here's Lightfoot—now must go.'

'Stop a minute, John. Why can't ou send Tower to B——, instead of oing yourself?'

'Tower went off with his gun this norning to the woods, and besides——' Here Burgess whispered in his wife's ear hat the little boy who held the horse might not overhear.

'I shouldn't just like to trust Tower with so much money. He's in difficulties, and——. Well, I don't want to say any harm of him, but I'd rather go myself than send him. Good-by, Hetty; keep up a good heart, and you'll see me back by eight o'clock at the farthest.'

'Good-by, John,' said the wife, sadly.

'Lightfoot's off fore-shoe is so loose, I guess he will cast it before he gets home,' remarked Jimmy Tower, as the farmer was about to mount.

'So 'tis!' exclaimed Burgess, examining the horse's foot. 'But I shan't get it fixed at B——, for the smith up there don't know any more about his trade than I do about dress making. To-morrow you may ride him down to old Clark's, Jimmy, and have it set.'

'I shall have music to ride by, Hetty; and you'll know whether it's me come home, without looking out, for the plaguy thing will clatter every step the old fellow makes, like those watchmen's rattles we heard down at Boston.'

And with a somewhat forced laugh the farmer touched his horse's flank with the birchen wand which he held, and rode away.

Hester stood looking after him with a faint smile, watching his retreating figure, and listening to the monotonous click-clack of the loose shoe, which, as John had predicted, marked every step which the horse took with a loud and peculiar sound.

Soon the smile faded quite away, and an expression almost stern, in its foreboding gloom, settled upon the handsome features of the young woman.

She strained her dark eyes to distinguish the figure of the horseman as he passed between the scattered trees which marked the outskirts of the forest surrounding her on every side, for the Burgess farm had been cleared of its primeval oaks and chestnuts by John's father. B——, the nearest town, being ten miles away, through a dense forest, unbroken by any evidence of man's habitation, save where, in its very darkest depths, a few charred and half-consumed logs, a yawning cellar and a choked well, remained gloomy memorials of a little cabin which had once been the pleasant home of a young hunter named David Murdock. To it he had brought a fair young wife; but in the first year of their marriage, the husband being absent from home, the wife gave birth to an infant, and while yet unable to stir hand or foot, the house took fire, and mother and child perished in the flames.

Since that time the place had born an evil name; for "Over all there hung a cloud of fear,

A sense of mystery the spirit daunted
And said, as plain as whisper in the ear,
'The place is haunted!'"

Lonely travelers told tales of groans and shrieks borne upon the trembling midnight air, and some told of seeing a white clad figure, an infant in its arms, flitting about among the dark trees.

Pioneers are called superstitious. Perhaps they are so. Perhaps it is that living lonely and self-centered lives, with the grand mystery of nature ever pressing on their sense, the solemn stillness of the woods ever in their ears, they grow to perceive and understand more of the hidden phenomena of nature and of life than do busier men in busier scenes.

Their souls are filled with thought-teeming hush of solitude, their minds are ever in a state of watchful expectancy. They are surrounded by sights and sounds not made by men. What wonder, then, if thus they see and hear and feel what dwellers in the towns know nothing of, and do but sneer at when it is told to them?

We all know that supernatural means beyond, above nature; but who can point the limit of nature's power—who can draw the boundary?

And who should hope to penetrate the inner arcana of nature's mystery, if not he who dwells among her lonely haunts, who lies upon her heart and listens to her murmuring voice?

But if he tells again the secrets which she whispers him, men shake their heads and say—

'Nay, this is not nature; 'tis beyond—'tis supernatural.'

So no one came forward to 'improve the clearing' commenced by David Murdock; and as the years went by, the forest slowly, surely regained possession of its ancient freehold.

Only, with the timid shrinking of wild creatures from whatever bears the impress of man's hand, the trees, avoided the close vicinity of the ruined hut. They left the cellar, the well, the broken door-stone, and the little grass-plat in front, which had been the poor young wife's flower garden, to be hidden and buried out of sight by the dry leaves of autumn, and the pensive, graceful forest flowers of a Northern summer.

Still it was a sad and dreary spot, and as such did Hester Burgess think of it, while, her eyes fixed upon the point where her husband had disappeared in the forest, she mentally reviewed the road which he must travel.

'A man might hide in that old cellar and shoot him down without his ever knowing who did it,' murmured she. 'And perhaps some one, knowing he is to bring all that money, will follow him. Oh, John! dear, dear John! why did you go, and why did I let you?'

For a moment she wept in passionate abandonment; but the education of north country maidens has still a savour of Puritanical self-restraint and decorous reserve, so that, after a few wild sobs, Hester Burgess wiped her eyes, glanced quickly about her to make sure that the unwonted emotion had been unobserved, and then quickly re-entered the house and busied herself with her domestic business; for though young, Hester was a notable housewife, and performed unaided all the varied labors of a farmer's menage.

Still, busy herself as she might, not an hour of that long summer afternoon passed in which she did not glance more than once at the old black clock; which, tall and upright in the corner of the low-browed kitchen, ticked out its 'Forever—never,' with a sharp, vibrant clearness, ringing through Hester's brain like a half-comprehended warning of evil.

Her active labors concluded, she seated herself with some sewing, and then, for almost the first time in her life, a sensation of loneliness began to creep over her.

She held her breath and listened for some sound of life, some voice besides that solemn note of time, and through the utter stillness came a heavy muffled sound which, with a feeling of affright, the lonely woman recognized as the throbbing of her own heart.

Not Mariana in her moated grange was more alone, more heart-sick in her loneliness.

The still afternoon sunlight lay broad and yellow upon the kitchen floor, and Hester went and sat down in its midst, feeling a vague companionship with the warmth and brightness.

Then going to the door she gazed long and earnestly down the road on which no moving thing was visible.

Her eyes returning from their vain quest, fell upon the cabin, a few rods distant, in which dwelt Job Tower, her husband's 'hired man,' alone with his little boy.

This man had originally been hired by John Burgess' father, and had brought a wife with him when he first came to inhabit the little house which his employer had helped him to build; but she had died several years before Hester had been brought home a bride, and the desolate condition of the father and son was a frequent subject of compassion to the kind-hearted young wife, although the gloomy misanthropic character of the man, and his sullen, side-long manner, were more calculated to excite aversion than sympathy.

Now, however, Hester felt that she should have been glad to see even Tower, for she was fast yielding to that panic of nameless terror, in which one flies headlong, with curdling blood and stiffening hair, to seek in human companionship shelter and protection from he knows not what horror of solitude.

But the little cabin was as silent and deserted as if no one had entered it for weeks. Even Jimmy had gone on some boyish expedition to the woods.

Hester with a sigh returned, and seating herself in the patch of sunlight tried to accompany her needle with one of the sacred hymns to which her musical education had been restricted, but after a few notes her voice quavered and died away. She cast a timid glance about her, her work slid from her fingers, and rising precipitately, she stole from the house swiftly but cautiously, as if she feared to arouse a sleeping enemy.

Nor did she draw breath till she stood at some distance from the house, upon the soft green turf, with Nature at least for a companion.

Here she remained until, as the sun was setting, Jimmy entered the avenue by the B—— road, driving the cows before him, while a few minutes later Tower appeared, coming from the opposite direction.

Hester walked forward to meet the boy.

'Did you see anything of Mr. Burgess, Jimmy?' asked she.

'No'm, I only come a little piece along the road; the pesky critters strayed inter the timber, and I had a hunt arter 'em. Hullo, there's dad!' continued the boy, as Tower, approaching from the opposite direction, came within speaking distance.

'I say, dad,' called Jimmy, at the top of his voice, 'hain't you shot nothin'?'

'No-o, curse ye,' snarled Tower, showing his teeth like an angry wolf, and muttering oaths and blasphemies as he strode into his own hut and slammed the door.

'Wa-al, ye needn't be so mad, old man. Guess 'taint my fault if ye hain't!' ejaculated the boy, after a surprised stare at the closed door. 'I heard the gun go off, too,' continued he, in a lower voice; 'heerd it twicst—guess he missed his shot, and that's what's riled him so. Don't you'm?'

'I can't tell, Jimmy,' replied his mistress, who, though surprised and somewhat alarmed at the violence which had replaced Tower's usual sullen gloom, did not think it proper to discuss his conduct with the boy.

Mentally resolving to beg her husband not to leave her again alone with such a surly companion, she dismissed the subject from her thoughts, and said, cheerfully—

'I will help you milk to-night, Jimmy. It is late and I don't believe you can get through alone before dark.'

'I can call dad,' said the boy, with a mischievous grin.

'No, no,' replied Hester, quickly, and glancing apprehensively at the little cabin. 'He—he's tired, I suppose, and you'd better not disturb him. I like to milk.'

The boy made no further reply, and the task was completed in silence.

Jimmy carried the foaming pails into the kitchen, and then ran over to his father's house.

Hester felt inclined to ask him to stay with her, but a disinclination to own her vague terror kept her silent.

Glancing at the clock, she saw by the fading light that the hands were on the stroke of eight.

'He said he would be here by eight at the farthest,' murmured she, going to the door and looking anxiously toward the forest, where the black shadows of night were already brooding.

No one was in sight except Jimmy, who returned slowly towards the house.

'Dad won't let me in,' said he, rather sheepishly. 'He says he's gone to bed sick, and won't git up for no one.'

'Never mind, Jimmy; you can stay with me,' said his mistress, very cordially. 'You can sleep on the settle in the kitchen, and I will give you a nice bowl of new milk for your supper.'

Jimmy's face brightened at once, and he entered the house, where he soon sat down to the promised repast. Various rustic dainties were also set out to refresh the traveler when he should return; but at half-past eight every preparation was concluded, and Hester was reluctantly obliged to light the candles, which she had deferred doing till the last moment, as the very act seemed at once to convert her lingering day into decided night.

Another half hour, and Jimmy was sound asleep in his extempore bed upon the settle.

Slowly and tearfully the young wife put away the untasted supper, and restored the kitchen to its usual nightly order.

Then with the chilliness of sorrow and loneliness, she seated herself before the fire, and gazed abstractedly into its bright depths, while unnoticed tears as bright, and well nigh as scorching, fell silently upon her folded hands.

Sitting thus, she dreamed over the two short years of her married life. She recalled the loving words and tender caresses which were ever on her husband's lips and in his heart. She thought of the manly strength and beauty of which she was so proud. She thought of the protecting care ever enveloping her and shielding her from every hardship and fatigue, even such as she had been accustomed to in her girlhood.

She murmured over the endearing phrase with which he had welcomed her to her new home, and blushed as she repeated them.

The clock struck ten.

Hester started.

'Oh, he will not come to-night!' whispered she, in a despairing tone, and the tears fell so thick and fast that she could hardly see the verse in her little Bible, which she read as she had done every night since she was a child.

Generally she read it aloud, but to-night there was no one to listen, and the only sound which broke the stillness of the night was the deep warning note of the old clock.

Hastily covering the fire, Hester went into her bedroom, and after one long, melancholy gaze out into the night, now lighted by a moon nearly full, she sought her lonely couch and tried to sleep.

But sleep, when most sought, coquettishly keeps aloof, and Hester Burgess, whether tossing restlessly from side to side, or lying resolutely motionless, could not for one instant lose her consciousness of that lonely forest road, that desolate ruin, and the unarmed traveler who must traverse the one and pass the other.

She recalled all the stories she had heard of mysterious sights and sounds haunting that deserted avenue, and though she had been wont, in the gay incredulity of youth, to laugh them to scorn, she could not do so now.

The night wore on.

Eleven o'clock, and twelve, tolled solemnly from the old clock, and Hester, exhausted by emotion and unwonted watching, was falling into an uneasy sleep, when suddenly her eyes flew open, and she started upright in her bed.

She had heard the sharp trot of a horse, mingled with the click clack of the loose shoe, by which her husband had bid her mark his return.

She jumped up and ran to the window.

Nothing. No one. Only the dusty road sleeping in the white moonlight.—Only the dark forest rustling softly in the midnight air.

'It was a dream,' murmured Hester, with a sigh, and sadly lay down again.

But the light slumber, once broken, would not return. She lay wide awake, her eyes fixed upon the patch of moonlight silvering the uncarpeted floor.

Hark! Yes, surely, now it is no dream. It is a horse, and no horse but his.

Click clack, click clack.

Rising upon her elbow, Hester listened breathlessly for several minutes. The sound approached—was close at the door.

Springing from her bed, the young wife joyously ran to greet her husband.

She stood upon the threshold. What! No one in sight!

Nay, but this time she was certain.—She was certainly awake—as certainly heard him.

She stepped out upon the dewy grass and gazed with eager inquiry along the road which lay before her, quietly sleeping in the white moonlight.

She traced every foot of it, even to the spot where it was absorbed in the dark rustling forest.

Nothing. No one.

With palo compressed lips, with dark dilated eyes, with clenched hands, cold as if that July night had been mid-winter, Hester turned and gazed about her.

The barn—perhaps he had gone directly there; but no, the door was closed and fastened on the outside.

Perhaps he was hiding somewhere.

'It is a cruel jest,' thought Hester, and yet the idea gave her heart the power to throb again.

Unmindful of her naked feet and scanty dress, she ran to look behind the barn, behind the house, behind Tower's cabin; she even raised her hand to knock upon his door and ask his aid, but a feeling of repugnance interposed.

Had any lonely traveler have seen her thus gliding about with her white drapery, her dark floating hair, her wild eager eyes, her bloodless cheeks and lips, he might indeed have gone away convinced that he had seen a phantom.

The search was fruitless. All lay quiet in the repose of midnight. Above shone the cold, sad moon, which had seen the whole, yet could return no answer to the piteous, questioning glance which Hester cast toward her as she re-entered the house.

Opening a window which commanded both the road and the outbuildings, the wife seated herself at it, determined to watch till morning or her husband should arrive.

She heeded not the chill of her dank night-dress, soaked with the heavy dew; she heeded not the wound which she had inflicted on one of her tender feet. She felt, she thought, nothing. She looked and listened.

Hark again! Afar in the forest, what is that faint sound, scarce louder than the rustling of the midnight air among the dark leaves, yet coming rapidly nearer?

Surely this is no delusion. It is the well-known tread of her husband's horse, marked at every step by that peculiar sound which was to be to her a token that it was none but him.

It has left the forest. It sounds hollow from the little bridge across the brook—it approaches—why can she not see him?

She dashes the hair back from her brow with both hands, and gazes fixedly out into the night.

There sleeps the dusty road in the weird moonlight—there rustles the dark forest: only this, and nothing more.

Nearer and nearer, louder and louder. He has left the road, and is ascending the little knoll upon which the house stands. The steps are fainter now upon the grass,—indeed could scarce be heard were it not for that click clack, click clack.

Hester rises stiffly and mechanically from her chair, and goes out at the open door.

She stands upon the grass waiting for the message which that unseen horseman is bringing her.

The faint footfalls are here—they pause an instant at her side, and Hester feels herself enveloped as it were in a mantle of icy air.

Then the steps pass slowly on, and finally cease at the door of Job Tower's cabin.

A conviction sure and scathing as the levin-bolt darts through Hester's brain.

Without hesitation, yet still with that half-paralysed movement, she glided across the grass and pushed open the door of the cabin.

In the centre of the floor stood Job Tower, completely dressed, as if for flight. At his feet lay a bundle, and his trembling hands grasped a gun, which terror deprived him of the power to raise. His eyes were fixed upon the door with the wild glare of a tiger at bay.

They gazed intensely at each other for a moment—each read the other's mind.

Then, close beside her, Hester heard the sound of the horse's feet as he began to retrace the road by which he had come.

Slowly raising her hand, she extended it toward the cowering wretch before her, while her stiff, white lips hoarsely whispered—

'Come!'

Reluctantly, as if impelled by an irresistible force, the man obeyed, and followed her down the moonlit road toward the rustling forest.

Close before them, distinct to the ear, invisible to the eye, went the measured steps with their monotonous accompaniment.

On, on, across the bridge, beneath the scattered trees, in under the black shadow of the forest where no moonlight struggles through, and the only guide is the tread, is that fearful sound.

Mile after mile is passed—the trees grow thinner—again the moonlight flickers on their path.

It is Murdock's Avenue.

They have reached its centre; the steps pause not, but, turning from the road, approach more slowly, more markedly, the ghostly ruin.

Close behind them follow Hester, close behind her the terror-stricken man, still compelled by that unseen, invincible power.

They have reached the lonely well.—At its brink the footsteps suddenly cease. They have done their work—they have reached their bourne.

Hester bends over the black depth before her. At first she sees nothing, but presently a moonbeam, which has been stealing down the slimy side, reaches the bottom, and flickers uneasily upon the surface.

It shows the green coating of the stagnant pool broken and disturbed—it shows a cold, white hand crisped in mortal agony, gleaming above the black water, as if raised to heaven in a demand for vengeance.

The woman does not shriek or start.

Slowly she raises her head, fixes her stern haggard eyes upon the murderer's face, and silently points to the depths below.

Awed, subjugated by those accusing eyes, the man approaches and gazes downward.

He sees, he utters a hoarse cry of horror, and wildly tossing his arms, he staggers and plunges into the gloomy depth, whose black waters sullenly close above him.

Hester remains a few moments, her arm outstretched, her eyes fixed upon the spot where Tower had stood, then turning quietly she seated herself upon the broken door-stone, fixed her eyes upon the well, and, with meekly folded hands, waited patiently while the ghostly moonlight faded—while the dusky shadows of the morning twilight peered out at her from the forest depths—while the mocking sun rose and shone upon her desolation.

There she was found by those whom the boy brought to seek for her.

As they approached, she rose quietly, and, pointing to the well, said, calmly—

'They are there—John and Tower. I don't know what they can be doing so long. Lightfoot is here somewhere, too—in the cellar, I think. But he has a shoe loose; you will hear it as he walks, click clack, click clack.'

They carried her to her father's house, and her weeping mother laid her in the bed which had been hers from childhood, and tenderly nursed her there.

They never looked to see her rise again; but youth and health are sometimes cruelly strong fetters, and as one who herself had suffered once said, bitterly—

'It takes a great deal to kill a woman.'

Hester Burgess arose from her sick bed, and lived several sad and silent years; but no smile ever moved those white lips, no emotion tinged that colorless cheek, or stirred the depths of those dark abstracted eyes.

She lived, but it was in the past.

Silent, awe-stricken men drew from the depths of that lonely well the bodies of the victim and the murderer.

In the pocket of the latter was the miserable sum for which he had sold body and soul, and from the breast of the murdered man was taken a bullet which fitted Tower's somewhat remarkable gun.

John Burgess was laid with his fathers in the village churchyard.

Job Tower was buried in the ruined cellar, where, probably, he had laid in wait for his victim; and so great was the horror which thenceforth hung about the spot that a new road was laid out through the forest, and Murdock's Avenue was abandoned to the ghouls and demons with whom the popular voice people such spots.

☞ There's two languages squire, that's universal—the language of love, and the language of money, the gals understand the one, and the men the other all the world over.

HOW I CAME TO BE MARRIED.

It may be funny, but I've done it. I've got a rib and a baby. Shadows departed—oyster stews, brandy, julips, cigar boxes, boot-jacks, absconding shirt buttons, whist and dominoes. Shadows present—hoop skirts, bandboxes, gaiters, long stockings, juvenile dresses, little willow chairs, cradles, pap, paragoric, hive syrup, soothing syrup, senna, squills and doctor's bills. Shadows future—more nine-pound babies, more hive syrup, etc, etc. I'll just tell you how I got caught.

I was always the darndest, tea-custard, bashful fellow you ever did see; it was kinder in my line to be taken with the shakes every time I saw a pretty gal approach me, and I'd cross the street any time rather than face one. 'Twasn't because I didn't like the critters, for if I was behind a fence looking through a knot hole, I couldn't look at one long enough.

Well, my sister, Lib, gave a party one night, and I stayed away from home because I was too bashful to face the music. I hung around the house, whistling 'Old Dan Tucker,' dancing to keep my feet warm, and watching the heads bob up and down behind the window curtains, and wishing the thundering party would break up so I could get to my room. I smoked up a bunch of cigars, and as it was getting late and mighty uncomfortable, I concluded to shin up the door post. No sooner said than done, and I quickly found myself snug in bed.

'Now,' says I, 'let her rip! dance till your wind gives out!' and cuddling under the quilts, Morpheus grabbed me. I was dreaming of soft-shell crabs, and stewed tripe, and having a good time, when somebody knocked at the door and waked me up. 'Rapped' again, I laid low. 'Rap, rap, rap.'

Then I heard a whispering, and I knew there was a whole raft of girls outside.

'Rap, rap!'

Then Lib sings out—

'Jack are you in there?'

'Yes,' says I.

Then came a roar of laughter.

'Let us in,' says she.

'I won't,' says I: 'can't you let a fellow alone?'

'Are you abed?' says she.

'I am,' says I.

'Get up,' says she.

'I won't,' says I.

Then came another laugh. By thunder! I began to get riled.

'Get out, you petticoated scarecrows!' I cried. 'Can't you get a beau without hauling a fellow out of bed? I won't go home with you—I won't; so you may clear out!'

Then throwing a boot at the door, I felt better. But presently, oh! mortal buttons, I heard a still small voice, very much like sister Lib's, and it said—

'Jack, you'll have to get up, for all the girl's things are in there!'

Oh, Lord, what a pickle! think of me in a bed, all covered with shawls, muffs, bonnets and cloaks, and twenty girls outside waiting to get in! If I had stopped to think, I would have fainted on the spot. As it was, I rolled out among the bonnet wire and ribbons in a hurry.

'Smash!' went the millinery in every direction. I had to dress in the dark—for there was a crack in the door, and the girls will peek—and the way I tumbled about was death on straw hats. The critical moment came. I opened the door, and found myself right among the women.

'Oh my leghorn,' cries one; 'my dear darling winter velvet,' cries another; and they pitched in—they pulled me this way and that, boxed my ears, and one bright-eyed little piece—Sal——, her name was—put her arms right around my neck, and kissed me right on my lips. Human nature couldn't stand that, and I gave her as good as she sent. It was the first time I ever got a taste, and it was powerful good. I believe I could have kissed that gal from Julius Cæsar till the Fourth of July.

'Jack,' says she, 'we are sorry to disturb you, but won't you see me home?'

'Yes,' said I, 'I will." I did do it, and had another smack at the gate too.

After that, we took a turtle-doving after each other, and both of us sighing like a barrel of new cider when we were away from each other.

'Twas at the close of a glorious summer day—the sun was setting behind a distant hog pen—the chickens were going to roost—the bullfrogs were commencing their evening songs—the pollywogs in their native mudpuddles were preparing them for the shades of night—and Sal and myself sat upon an antiquated back-log, listening to the music of nature, such as tree toads, roosters, grunting pigs, and now and then the mellow music of a distant jackass was wafted to our ears by the gentle zephyrs that sighed among the mullen stalks, and came heavily laden with the delicious odors of henroosts and pigstyes. The last lingering rays of the setting sun, glancing from the bright buttons of a solitary horseman, shone from a knot hole in the hog pen full in Sal's face, dyeing her hair with an orange-peel hue, and showing off my thread-bare coat to a bad advantage. One of my arms was around Sal's waist, my hand resting on the small of her back—she was toying with my auburn locks of jet black hue; she was almost gone and I was ditto. She looked like a grasshopper dying with the hiccups, and I felt like a mud turtle choked with a codfish ball.

'Sal,' says I, in a voice as musical as the notes of a dying swan, 'will you have me?'

She turned her eyes heavenward, clasped me by the hand, had an attack of the heavos and blind staggers, and with a sigh that drew her shoe strings to her palate, said,

'Yes!'

She gave clear out then, and squatted in my lap. She cork-screwed, and I curflumixed, and rolled in it. I hugged her till I broke my suspenders, and her breath smelt of onions which she had eaten the week before.

Well, to make a long story short, she set the day, and we practiced every night for four weeks, how we would walk into the room to be married, till we got so we could walk as graceful as a couple of Muscovite ducks.

That night, the company, and the minister came, the signal was given, and arm and arm we marched through the crowded hall. We were just entering the parlor door, when, down I went, kerslap on the oilcloth, pulling Sal after me. Some cursed fellow had dropped a banana skin on the floor, and it floored me. It split an awful hole in my cassimeres, right under my dress coat tail.

It was too late to back out; so, clapping my hand over it, we marched in and were spliced, and taking a seat, I watched the kissing of the bride operation.—My groomsman was a little tight, and he kissed her until I jumped up to take a slice, when, oh, horror! a little six year old imp had crawled behind me, and pulling my shirt through the hole in my pants had pinned it to a chair, and in jumping up, I displayed to the admiring gaze of the astonished multitude, a trifle more white muslin than was pleasant. The women giggled, the men roared, and I got mad, but was finally put to bed, and all my troubles ended.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8, 1863.

CONNECTICUT ELECTION.

This election has resulted decisively in favor of the Loyalists, in the choice of their Governor, Legislature, and three out of four of the Congress men. This result is probably partly owing to the efforts of our neighbor below stairs, HIRAM O. WILEY, Esq., who visited the State just before election to bring things right. We congratulate him on his abundant success. It is well to mingle some of our Massachusetts all-spice with Connecticut nutmegs. They have some great men in that little nutmeg State, but it was necessary to have a grater.

DISAPPOINTMENT.—We are informed that not a few of our readers were disappointed at not being able, last Wednesday, to find the huge chasm in front of the South Church. Others read the description of it, intending to visit it at their leisure, while others, reading it more carefully, and perhaps a second time, found that the article did not positively state that such a hole existed. It only stated that such an event, if it did happen, would cause surprise and alarm, and if it happened, hinted at some of the probable causes sufficient to produce such an occurrence.

We are glad to find that the disappointment did not cause any ill nature, and on the whole, it is better not to have the hole, on account of the cost of filling it up. Anybody who would take serious offense at such a harmless affair, would be likely to be considered less an April fool than a natural one.

PEABODY HIGH SCHOOL.—The following are the names of the candidates admitted to the Peabody High School:—

Mary E. Archer,	Kate Moreland,
Georgiana Beckett,	E. C. Newhall,
Lucy E. Brown,	Frank G. Newhall,
Sarah P. Buxton,	Hazen Osborne,
Charles A. Davis,	Mary E. Osborne,
George M. Foster,	T. M. Osborne,
John H. Frye,	Florence A. Page,
Marietta Galeucia,	E. R. Patterson,
Sumner Glines,	Charles E. Peirce,
Susan L. Gray,	William Pinder,
Arabella Hodgkins,	Katie Smith,
Maria Howard,	Lizzie Tucker,
Martha A. Kimball,	Joseph Tracey,
Jeremiah Mahoney,	Frank Upton,
Mary E. Marshall,	Frank N. Wilkins,
Livonia B. Merrill,	Eliza N. Winchester.

RE-UNION AT DANVERS.

The Annual Re-union of the Holten High School in Danvers was held on Thursday evening of last week. There was a large attendance of the present and past members of the school. Appropriate introductory remarks were made by the President, Mr. WILLIAM R. PUTNAM. AMOS A. POPE, the orator of the evening, gave a short and pithy address on the Duties of the graduates of the school as citizens, in sustaining the institutions of the country and especially the educational interests of the town. Mr. AARON EVELETH read a poem, racy, amusing and instructive.

After this performance, remarks were made by Mr. NATHANIEL HILLS, the present Principal. Interesting congratulatory and feeling remarks were then made by Prof. MARSHALL of Tufts College, the former Principal of the school. Several persons of the company present were called upon to volunteer. HIRAM B. PUTNAM, WALLACE PUTNAM, and some others, made interesting and appropriate remarks. An ode was also sung, appropriate to the occasion.

At a later hour, seats were removed from the center of the room, when music, promenading, social conversation, refreshments, and a good time generally, closed the entertainment.

It is worthy of remark that all the speakers above referred to, except Prof. Marshall and Mr. Hills, were graduates of the school.

We obtain the above facts from a friend who was privileged to be present and who informs us that this is an annual gathering of the past pupils of the school and that it has become a fixed "institution," almost as much so as Fast or Thanksgiving. Many of the earlier members are married and settled in life who sometimes bring their children to this pleasant festival. A bond of union is thus created, and refined social intercourse promoted by this association of cultivated minds. It also sustains a public interest in an institution which is doing so much for the culture and advancement of the young. We congratulate the people of Danvers on the present prosperity and usefulness of the Holten High School and commend the wisdom which prompts them to give it adequate support.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

We have before us a Statement of the Accounts of the Town of Danvers, for the Year 1842, in which the amount of taxes assessed for the year, was the extravagant sum of $8,525.45. This, be it remembered, was to cover the expenses of the two towns of South Danvers and Danvers.

In comparing this small expenditure with the present day, we ought to take into account the increased demands of the people for better schools, better roads, a better Fire Department, a more efficient police, better care of the poor, lighting the streets, extra labor required of all the public servants of the town, and a host of other conveniences which our predecessors were content to do without. Because our expenses are greater, is no proof that the money raised is not rightly bestowed. The demands of an advanced stage of civilization must be met, if we are to hold our position abreast of other places of similar size and situation. What is found to be true of our town in the increase of expenditure of money is also true of most other places, and it would be difficult to find a town whose expenses are not largely increased, as compared with a previous date of ten or twenty years. If we wish to reduce our taxes to the amount of money raised in former years, we must go back to the times of bad roads, poor schools, an inefficient Fire Department, dark streets, and a niggardly support of the poor of the town.

A trial of this kind of economy for a single year, would satisfy the people that a little extra amount of tax is better than such slip-shod management of public affairs.

We do not mean to imply by these remarks that a closer management of our town expenses might not be made with no bad results to the true interests of the town, but we are confident that no very great saving can be made without losing at the bunghole what is saved at the spiggot.

"THE HAUNTED POST OFFICE."—Mr. Publisher,—On reading the story in your last issue, I have come to the conclusion that the "rushing waters" which so disturbed the postmaster, proceeded from a "wringing machine" in possession of the proprietor of the tailor's shop adjoining. In regard to the agitation of letters in the Devil's Dishful letter box, we shall have to refer him to the namesake of your youngest apprentice. ‡

MR. PUBLISHER,—Will you do me the favor to caution the venerable Editor of the WIZARD in regard to his health? The fact of his lying in damp sheets about the first of April, shows that he needs looking after. PHEBE.

SINGING CLASS.—By reference to an advertisement in another column, it will be seen that Mr. Fenollosa purposes to form a singing class in this town.

HORSE RAILROAD TO DANVERS.

A year or more ago an idea was suggested in the WIZARD of a more direct highway from Danvers to South Danvers than either of those now existing. The idea seemed a good one, and in the absence of anything better, would be a good one now. Then, it is believed, the project of a horse railroad between South Danvers and Salem was not in full agitation, but as that excellent enterprise is in the way now of speedy completion, it is worth while to inquire if the same public need which suggested its expediency, ought not to suggest the extension of the road from South Danvers to Danvers?

With those, who have occasion to travel, back and forth, between these two towns—and the number is by no means inconsiderable—the poverty of accommodation is not only a subject of remark, but (with strangers particularly,) a matter of surprise, and complaint. Without contradiction, we think it may be said that there are not two other towns in the Commonwealth similar in populations, situated in such proximity and having such inter-municipal relations and interests, which are at the same time in such isolation one from the other in the respect of inter-communication by public conveyance as the towns of Danvers and South Danvers. Probably the aggregate population of the two towns is at present strong twelve thousand, and, by true reckoning, they are not distant three miles from one another. Consider now the relations between the two towns—the mutual existing trade growing out of the supply and use of leather, of grain and coal, of wood and lumber—the common interest which must doubtless be ever had in the Peabody Institute, or which rather ought to be had as an interest felt, cultivated and increased—the bonds of society that result from twelve churches of the various denominations and scarcely less from the three times that number of schools representing the future directors of affairs, and then the fact that but a few years ago the two towns were one municipality, engaged in the same counsels, and for that reason have now nearly the personal acquaintance incident to a single town in these and other things, more easily understood than mentioned, being considered, may it not well excite surprise that the communication between the towns, by public conveyance, is not half so good as between Danvers and Salem, but little, if any, better than between Danvers and Boston, that in fact when one would step from one of the towns to the other—for in the modern facilities of travel it should be but a step—the query arises with singular pertinence, How and when can I get there?

Precedent to entering upon an enterprise, the question should be raised, Will it pay? As to a horse railroad from South Danvers to Danvers, Will it pay? This question is about half answered affirmatively by the fact that such a road between South Danvers and Salem is now as good as completed. Probably no one doubts that this road will be not only of great public convenience and utility, but a lucrative investment to the stockholders. We are therefore to consider simply at what precise point the reasons for a road from Salem to South Danvers cease to operate—that is, the expediency or profitableness of extending a well paying road from South Danvers, three miles, to a town of some six thousand inhabitants, who have peculiar connecting relations to the inhabitants of South Danvers. The question stated quite answers itself, but a little regard to facts would seem to set the answer affirmatively in such force as to render it conclusive. The travel between Danvers and Salem, by coach or omnibus, has now for some fifteen or more years been a service of profitable business to the carriers. At the present time there is a line of omnibuses running between these two places, making seven trips a day, and it is thought that more money is made by the carrying on this route now than ever before. In the event of a horse railroad direct from Danvers to Salem, it is safe to presume that this entire travel would be directed to the railroad—that is, that the railroad would supercede, or kill, to use the term in such cases, the omnibuses.

And this, for four reasons: 1st, Because in all likelihood the fare would not be more than 10 cents, while now it is 15 cents; 2d, Because the trip would be made quite as quickly; 3d, Because it could be made much more pleasantly; and, 4th (which is not the least consideration with three-fifths of passengers,) Because an opportunity would be afforded of stopping in South Dgnvers, with but little delay in going and coming. Add to this travel drawn from the omnibuses, that which would be drawn from the Essex Railroad. The fare from Danvers to South Danvers, by that road, is ten cents. By the horse railroad it would doubtless not exceed six cents. Not one in twenty then but would go by the horse rather than the Essex Railroad. To all this we are to add the probable patronage of those (not a few) who now "foot it," and the increased travel which would inevitably spring up between the two towns in case there were afforded the elegant and excellent accommodation of horse cars.

We respectfully ask the attention, not only of the public-spirited, but of those who look simply to a profitable investment of their money, to the subject here imperfectly presented, expressing the hope that the matter may be candidly discussed, if indeed discussion is necessary, in the columns of the WIZARD, which, by the way, is about the only real communication between Danvers and So. Danvers now possessed. UTILITAS.

THE QUINCY LIQUOR PROBLEM.

We have received many solutions of this mathematical question, but most of them are imperfect, inasmuch as they only give the net loss to the town. This loss, in a majority of the answers is made to be $50.53. Some of them allege that the agent owes this sum to the town and others that it is owed to the agent. Others make a different amount due to the town, while others again fix a sum due back to the agent.

We find that the question has excited considerable interest, and a great many figures have been made, and differing judgments formed in regard to it. We have received several solutions from Salem and Danvers and one from Philadelphia which we subjoin, together with other attempts by different calculators.

The obscurity attending the question of indebtedness to the town or to the agent, is, in our opinion, owing to the want of some data not furnished in the statement of the problem:—

MR. EDITOR,—Your "Arithmetical Liquor Question" I solve as follows—

The town owes the agent	$ 90.74
The town lost by the traffic,	$155.00
It is plain that the town owes the agent, since it furnished him with liquors valued at	$133.31
And received back only	99.05
Leaving due from agent,	$ 34.26
But, the agent's salary is	125.00
Leaving balance due the agent,	$90.74
It seems equally plain that the town lost by the agent,	$ 34.26
Town lost the balance of salary to be paid,	90.74
Town lost the tax paid,	20.00
Total loss to the town,	$155.00

Your "Question" does not raise the issue whether the agent made or lost money by the traffic, nor have I considered it above, inasmuch as the data furnished on that head does not seem to be accurately given. Judging, however, from the spirit as well as the letter, I should say his account with himself would run something like this:

CASH ACCOUNT.

Received for liquors sold,	$358.59
Paid for liquors bought,	229.86
Balance of receipts,	$128.73
Deduct amount paid town,	99.05
Balance on hand,	$ 29.68
Amount of salary due,	125.00
Total am't. due & on hand	$154.68

PER CONTRA:

Received from town,	$133 31
Paid to town,	99.05
Balance due town,	$34.26	$34.26
Net proceeds to agent,		$120.42

Or, in other words, he gains his salary of $125.00, but loses $4.58 on his traffic in the ardent.

If, however, the town "fathers" this loss also, then the town would owe the agent, $ 95.32

And lose by the traffic, $159.58

Respectfully yours,

SALEM COMMON.

Town of Quincy Liquor Agency, Dr.

To cost of liquors at beginning of year,	$133.31
To cost of liquors bought during the year,	229.86
To cost of license,	20.00
To cash paid agent for services,	125.00
	$508.17

CONTRA CR.

By cash received for liquor sold,	$358.59
By liquors on hand,	99.05
By loss! Leakage? etc., etc.,	50.53
	$508.17

Memo.—Town loses, $50.53

Query:—Who gains it?

PHILADELPHIA, April 4, 1863.

Whether the town of Quincy made or lost money by the liquor speculation, might be determined under the proverbial rule, that "the way of transgressors is hard." A book-keeper, however, might be inclined to prove the accuracy of the law, and in this manner:—

The town is the dealer, but employs an agent. It possesses, at the outset of the speculation, a small stock of rum, accidentally left over by the former board, the members of which had both scruples and drams about drinking it.

The enterprising town will perhaps, open an account, and post into it—as follows—

Rum Account	Dr.
To goods on hand,	$133.31
To goods bought (mixed drinks, etcetera,)	229.86
To nincum tax,	20.00
To salary of tee-total agent,	125.00
		$508.17
CONTRA CR.
By proceeds of sales,	358.59
By goods on hand,	99.05	457.64
Startling loss on the traffic, per rum account,		$50.53
Add reduction in drinkables, or stock,	$133.31 99.05	34.26
	$34.26	$84.79
Total loss		"The devil to pay."

The amount drank by the agent need not be considered, since it is likely he replaced with water at the bung what he drew from the spigot.

Of course the problem may be solved in many other ways familiar to printers, clerks, and clergymen. DEMI-JOHN.

BANKS' EXPEDITION.

BATON ROUGE, March 20th, 1863

DEAR WIZARD,—"To let well enough alone" is a wise saying, but when such a man as Gen. Banks—once the "bobbin boy"—wishes to do something better, he has but to move against the enemy with the determination to conquer. If he fails, he has the assurance—a feeling nearly equal to that which thrills the heart of a victor—that he tried.

And so, just one week ago yesterday, came sudden orders for both the naval and land forces to move at early dawn of a wet day. It is perhaps, known to most of your readers, that Port Hudson, distant up the river twenty-five miles, is a rebel stronghold, and a key to, and doubtless quite as hard to take as Vicksburg. It is said that the intention was to get the fleet safely past Port Hudson, and thus cut off, to a great degree the supplies which the rebels were receiving from Texas. The squadron was under command of Admiral Farragut, and the troops were led in person by Gen. Banks. At early dawn on the 13th, the land forces, which were to draw the attention of the rebels while the fleet could pass in greater security the rebel stroughold, began to move. When I say that the old Bay State had nine regiments in it, you will have some idea of the number of this grand army. At the same time the squadron began to move up the noble river, and was composed of the following ships: Hartford, (flag-ship,) Capt. Palmer,—Richmond, Com. Alden,—Mississippi Capt. Smith,—Monongahela, Capt. McKinistry,—Genesee, Capt. McComb—Albatross, Lieut. Com. Hart,—Kenio—Lieut. Com. Waters. The mortar fleet consisted of six schooners, the iron-clad Essex, and the gunboat Sackem—all under Com. Caldwell of the Essex, which proceeded Friday night to within shelling distance of the rebel batteries. At a quarter past nine Saturday night, everything being prepared for an advance, the flag-ship gave signal to the fleet to get under way, it being at that time at anchor three miles from the works of the enemy. In the mean time the land forces had advanced to within three miles of Port Hudson, and succeeded in getting a good share of the attention of the rebels, though, as it proved, but a small portion of their life destroying missiles. In a reconnoisance Saturday P. M., Col. Clark of Gen. Banks' staff, was shot through the leg, and was brought to the general hospital in this place. It was at this time that two men of the 48th Mass. were slightly wounded, by the accidental discharge of a rifle. Excepting one of Magee's cavalry men, who was mortally wounded by the accidental discharge of his carbine, I can learn of no casualities of the land forces, thus showing us one more coincidence of the skill of Gen. Banks.

We now return to the fleet. The enemy were duly warned of the intentions of the fleet by rockets thrown up from the opposite shore. No sooner did the Hartford come within range of the batteries, than they opened a brisk fire upon her. She replied by a whole broadside, and continued to pour shot and shell, and was soon seen steaming up the river in splendid style. The Richmond next in line of battle, followed the movements of the flag ship and had passed the principal batteries, when a shot disabled her, and steamed down the stream. While her executive officer, Lieut. Commander A. B. Cumming was encouraging and cheering the men, a shot from the rebel batteries struck his left leg, just below the knee, severing it from the body. He has since died. Three were killed and ten wounded on board the Richmond. A boatswain's mate, who had both legs, his right arm and left hand cut off by the explosion of a shell, as he fell to the deck exclaimed: "Don't give up the ship, lads!" The ship received a few shots in the hull, but was only temporarily disabled. The Genesee, which was in tow with the Richmond, being unable to stem the current, dropped down stream with her. She had three men slightly wounded. Monongahela, with the Kenio along her port side, was next in line of battle. Capt. McKinistry was struck down early in the action, and was carried below. The command falling upon the young and gallant Lieut. Thomas, he essayed to follow the movements of the flagship; but owing to the dense smoke the pilot could not keep the channel, and she grounded directly in range of the principal batteries, where she remained for twenty-five minutes; but she finally succeeded in getting off, and gaining deep water steamed up the river in gallant style, when her crank-pin becoming heated, she was unable to proceed, and dropped down to the mortar fleet. The loss of the Monongahela was six killed and twenty wounded.

By command of Admiral Farragut, the Mississippi brought up the rear. She had reached a point directly opposite the town, when her officers congratulated themselves in having passed the greater danger without sustaining a casuality.—Orders were given to close up the space between the ships, by putting on more speed. The atmosphere being humid and the smoke hugging close to the water, and nothing to be seen but the flashes of our own and the enemy's pieces, the ship went aground on the right bank of the river. Her engines were at once reversed, and the men were ordered to fire with all possible rapidity as their safety depended upon keeping the enemy from the guns. In the short space of thirty-five minutes, they fired two hundred and fifty shots. Capt. Smith, finding it impossible to save his ship gave orders to make instant preparations to destroy her. The engines were destroyed and also the outward connecting pipe. This done, the water flowed rapidly into her. The sick and wounded were placed on board the Essex and the remainder of the crew were conveyed to the right bank of the river, which had been cleared of rebel sharpshooters by our gunboats. Every preparation was made to collect combustibles for her destruction, but unfortunately she was fired before the order was given.—This becoming known to the crew, as there were but three small boats, many jumped overboard, and it is feared were drowned. Seven fell into the hands of the rebels. Just before the order to abandon the ship was given, a shot came killing Master Kelly, and also killing or wounding all but four men at one of his guns.

After seeing that the survivors of his crew were fairly cleared of the ship, Capt. Smith left the ship to the flames, having with his own hands spiked nearly every gun. To show the coolness of Captain Smith, it is stated that in the midst of death and destruction which surrounded him while cooly lighting his cigar, he remarked to Lieut. Dewy, "it is not likely that we shall escape, and we must make every preparation to insure the destruction of the ship." The fire, having full possession of the ship, raged through her for an hour greatly lightening her, while the water flowing aft settled in her stern and she gradually slid off into the current. She floated down the stream, her guns discharging and shells on deck exploding in every direction, until at five and a half she blew up with a concussion which shook the country for miles. The fragments of the ship drifted past Baton Rouge and one of her wheel houses was taken ashore here. About sixty-five of the crew belonging to the Mississippi were either killed, wounded or taken prisoners. The officers and men lost all but what they stood in. They saved nothing and left nothing in the hands of the rebels.

Thus all but the noble Mississippi passed the rebel stronghold in comparative safety. The army, having accomplished its work, returned to-day. But we expect hard fighting, and are now under marching orders. The health of the men, speaking more particularly of the 48th, is very good, we having lost but three men since we landed, Feb. 4th.

The weather here in Baton Rouge is beautiful indeed, much like our June weather at home. But as I intended only to write a war letter this time I have already taken up too much of your valuable space, and I will close.

ESSEX.

LETTER FROM EGYPT.

We are permitted to publish the following extract from a private letter received from a gentleman, who is now traveling in Palestine:

CAIRO, EGYPT, Feb. 12, 1863.

* * * * * In a letter written at Thebes I told what a very successful and highly delightful trip of 65 days we had had on the Nile and how we had all arrived back at Cairo, safe and sound, I had began to make our preparations for the Syrian tour by way of Sinai and Petra. The arrangements are quite completed. Our camels start to-day, carrying the baggage, tents, canteens and whatsoever else we need in the long journey over the desert and through Palestine. We are a party of six in all. Four of us are the four clergymen of the party of the Nile. The other two we leave behind us, and their places are taken by a Scotch gentleman and his wife. We four have a large tent for ourselves—the gentleman and his wife another for their use. Then there is still another in which we dine. The Arabs, who accompany us and whose business it is to load and unload the camels every day and lead them on the way, slee side the tents beneath the open sky shall have to get up very early mor take our breakfast, load our c mount our dromedaries and then on. In the middle of the day we while for lunch, and at four or five pitch our tents, take our dinner a all night. The tents are new an comfortable. We have portable i steads, good new bedding and the every night is spread with carpe Besides the Arabs who sleep about the tent, there will be also who will watch against any su attack by the Bedouins; and near repose our more than twenty ca distinguish however, between th and the dromedaries. They are camels, but there is a little differ tween them. The camels pro larger and harder to ride and a used to carry our burdens. Th daries are somewhat smaller, ride and are more graceful and appearance. It is them that we ourselves.

Although the caravan starts to our baggage, tents, etc., we s until Saturday or Sunday, and g by rail, and overtake it there. stay a day or two by the Red S our toilsome way from there o morning, spend the next Sunda go to Jerusalem by the way o ous rock city Petra, which re most dangerous, but yet the m esting route, and be at Jerusale a month from now. It will ta month more to complete Syria, hurrah for home—lingering her however on the way in Italy, and England. All our plans well made and we expect to h ous time. Our journey thus fa crowned with great success. reasonably expect greater, alth ticipate more enjoyment in Pal anywhere else on the globe, may chance the globe to see.

Cairo is a very interesting strange sight presents itself Yesterday we saw a wedding in which the bride was parad the streets in the most singu imaginable. Boys and girl engaged to each other while t mere children. This is done rents. The children have lit ing to do with it and perhap see one another until they They are often married whe but twelve and the boy not older, and begin, like othe have children soon afterward yesterday was veiled in re crown of her head to her ver could not even see any part Her dress was highly orna gilt, wrought in figures of v and bordering the hem. under a crimson canopy, wh over her head by four men, accompanied by a motley cr women and children, a lar whom were doubtless her relations, while pipes and the most discordant and un I ever heard. In the eveni meet the bridegroom at the there the nuptial ceremon place. There, perhaps, t each other for the first time that, for the groom will sc bride until they meet in later at night, when the v moved. What if she shou homely, while he had ex her beautiful!

The Copts are a large pa ulation of Egypt. With th festive week of the year. it to feastings, weddings, d all kinds of such pleasur ments. Next week is a w Miss Dale, at the America me yesterday that her sc broken up for the week rence of this annual fest two or three of her little got married.

Said Pasha died while w the river. His successor is who is a very strict Moha will not be so favorabl Christians here as his prec day there are great cerem in honor of the change These take place at the magnificent procession of grandees mounted upon soned horses has just pass on its way thither, where will read the Firman wh ceived from the Sultan of as you know, resides at Egypt being a dependenc try and governed by a called the Pasha.

EASTERN RAILROAD.—Summer Arrangement on menced on Monday, April

Trains leave Salem for 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, A. M., 1 7 1-4.

Trains leave Boston for 8 1-2, 10 1-2, A. M., 12 4, 5, 6.10, 7, 9 1-2 P. M.

☞ The vote in this to on the Amendment was " 20. In Salem "Yes" 6 In Boston, "Yes" 990, "

…STITUTE FOR THE POTATO.—… been introduced into Belgium, …the means of a distinguished …f the Belgium Society of Agri… …a new kind of esculent root, a … for the potato, which is re… …for possessing the triple advan… …lavor, abundance and facility of …ion. An English journal says …a variety of the plant called … which is a sort of thistle. The … is of a pale violet color, and … fructify. A field of one acre of …es quality, lightly manured, pro…,000 kilogramme, of uniformly …pts. The crop was dug out on …h of October last, and its enor…oduct has excited great interest …Belgium farmers.

Grace's Salve.

AMESBURY, Oct. 13th, '63.

…ace: Dear Sir,—Having been afflict…usly for several weeks with a severe …on my side, I used several remedies …dication without receiving any relief, …applied your salve, which effected a …nd permanent cure. I therefore feel …certify my confidence in its virtues. …with respect, JAMES BEAN.

…fy to the truthfulness of the above …t.

…ry, Mass. H. S. DEARBORN, M. D.

…vertisement of Grace's Salve.

…g Songs.—Messrs. G. D. Russell & Co., …hont street, Boston (successors to Rus…tee,) have just published an exquisite …titled "The Little One that Died," …by William Dexter Smith, Jr., the …omposed by Frederic Buckley, the fa…olinist. The words are very beautiful …ching, while the music is expressive …propriate. The very popular song—… Waiting for Us There"—which was … by the same author, has already at… second edition, and is sung at the … of the Buckley Serenaders, in New …nd Boston, with great success. Both …ay be obtained at all the Music stores.

VOCAL CLASS!

…NUAL FENOLLOSA, at the request …e of his friends, respectfully announces …ention of forming a

…ging Class in South Danvers,

…e acquirement of thorough rudimental …ction in the Art of Singing.

…scription papers for Membership may be … with Mrs. Geo. P. Osborne, Mrs. I. B. … and Mr. Geo. P. Daniels.

…class will be organized as soon as a suf… number of names are obtained to insure …cess.

…ns $5.00 for 24 Evening's Instruction.

Danvers, April 8, 1863. tf

…Billy Wilson's Zouaves at Baton Rouge …refused to march with a negro regiment. …ps they do not want to disgrace the dar…

…CHES.—Bonnet Ruches in all styles just …ved at PEABODY'S.

…RTEEN CENTS.—Rubber pages with clasps …t cents at PEABODY'S.

…SING PRICES.—All wool Hose, white rib… 30 cts. Nice Hoods formerly $1 25 now …s,—and all our woolen goods at the same …of prices to close them out,

JOHN P. PEABODY.

…ROWNING & LONG having completed …ing their new SPRING GOODS, are now pre…d to show a splendid assortment, in their …erent departments, and would invite the …es to call and examine the same.

☞ Do not neglect to read the advertisement …ded "How to Make Five Dollars a Day."

☞ Visit OSBORNE'S Store, and look at the …usual variety of new styles in HATS and …PS—191 Essex street.

…30 CENTS.—Ladies all Wool Hose, usually … and 45 cents, now only 30 cents, at PEA…ODY'S—They will probably be worth from … to 75 cents next winter.

EIGHT CENTS.—Best Worsted Braids, for …ess Trimmings and Bindings, 8 cts. per piece … PEABODY'S Ladies Furnishing Store—See …e new advertisement.

FROM 30 CENTS TO $2,50.

Best Watch Spring Skirts from 30 cents to …2,50, at PEABODY'S, 220 Essex street.

☞ Try one of Rhoades' National Clothes …Wringers, before purchasing elsewhere. For …ale at the Equity Store, South Danvers. See …dvertisement.

SUN UMBRELLAS.—We have received a good …tock of Sun Umbrellas in all prices from $1, …2 1-2 up. We are now selling them at pre…isely the same prices that we did last season …and shall continue to do so only a few days …longer. JOHN P. PEABODY.

Read PEABODY'S price list on advertising page.

Marriages.

In South Danvers, March 23, by Rev Mosely Dwight, Mr Harrison Hardy to Miss Mary J, daughter of Timothy Walton, Esq. both of Salem.

In Danvers, April 5, by Rev James Fletcher, Mr Alonzo A Tapley to Miss Nellie M Palmer, both of Danvers.

In Salem, April 1, by Rev Dr Briggs, Mr Samuel A Foye to Miss Laura E Hormon.

100,000 BARRELS OF THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S

POUDRETTE,

111 COMMERCIAL ST., BOSTON, MASS.

This Company, with a capital of $150,000, the most extensive works of the kind in the world, and an experience in manufacturing of over 23 years, with a reputation long established, having also the exclusive control of all the night soil of the great city of New York, are prepared to furnish an article, which is, without doubt, the CHEAPEST AND VERY BEST fertilizer in market. It greatly increases the yield, and ripens the crop from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from three to four dollars per acre, with little or no labor. Also, FIFTY TONS of BONE TAFEU, being a mixture of bone and night soil ground fine, at $45 per ton—a superior article for grain, &c. A pamphlet containing all necessary information may be had free by addressing a letter to the LODI MANUFACTURING CO., No. 111 Commercial Street, Boston, Mass.

Price of POUDRETTE, $1.65 per barrell. Seven barrells and over delivered free of charge.

Deaths.

In this town, March 27, Ralph Emerson, 65.

April 2d, George, son of John and Mary Ring, 6 mos.

April 4th, Mr Thomas Chadbourn, 75 years 3 months.

April 4, Mr Michael Mulay, 39 years.

April 5, Mrs Sarah S, wife of Yates Higgins, 39 years 8 months.

April 7, William, son of Joseph E and Nancy Harris, 3 years 1 month.

Funeral to-morrow (Thursday) forenoon, at 10 1-2 o'clock, from No. 12 English St.

April 7, of congestion of the lungs, George, son of Joshua and Caroline Whipple, 3 mos.

Funeral to morrow (Thursday) afternoon at 3 o'clock, from his residence on Washington st.

In Danvers, April 5, Emily F, infant daughter of Charles W and Emily F Killam, 3 wks.

In Salem, Mch 29, Mr Samuel A Wood, 35; 31st, David Pingree, Esq, 67; April 1, Mr Roswell A Crosby, 42 years; Louisa Henfield, daughter of Andrew J and Sarah A Blanchard, 22 months; 3d, Mrs Abigail, widow of the late Mr William Nichols, 94 yrs 7 mos 8 ds; 4th, Mrs Hannah, widow of the late Mr Josiah Dodge, 91 years 2 mos.

In Camp, near Potomac Creek, Mch 27, Mr Samuel Stillman, Jr. of Salem, 22 yrs—a member of the 2d Co. Mass. Sharpshooters.

☞ The etraordinary success of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit, seems to stir up an army of Tonics, Bitters, and Cure Alls; but as a general thing they are like the Morning Glory—look very fine in the morning but wilt before the day has past. The Dr. has been before the public for years; his Dyspepsia Remedy has been tested and not found wanting; it acts on the Liver, Stomach, Head and the whole system; it is good at all times and for everybody.

Hunnewell's Great Remedies.

WHAT EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE IN THE HOUSE, AND WHY;

☞ They should have HUNNEWELL'S UNIVERSAL COUGH REMEDY, because it effectually cures Colds, Whooping and Common Coughs. Sore Throat, Hoarseness, and is the most simple and perfect Soothing Syrup in the world. For old and young, by day and night, it may be used with the greatest freedom, and three-fourths of the deaths by Consumption stopped.

They should have HUNNEWELL'S TOLU ANODYNE, because it is a perfect remedy for Neuralgia, Nervous or Sick Headache, Tooth, and Earache, Pain in Stomach, or Bowels, Genuine Cholera Morbus, Rheumatism, Distress after Eating, Nervousness, Hysteria, and the chief of all causes of disease, and Insanity, Loss of Sleep. Its character, though active, is simple; its action in perfect conformity to nature; its cure, or relief.

For the pains in Monthly Menstruation a perfect relief, while nature's after work is not disturbed, and one of the most important points in Medicine.

They should have HUNNEWELL'S ECLECTIC PILLS, because with seldom but a sing's Pill for a dose all derangements of the Stomach and Bowels are cured. They cure Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, when caused by foul stomach, Loss of Appetite, Biliousness so often and so erroneously treated with Mercurials, Jaundice. For Worms a sure cure.

They are simple, assist nature, do not make a Pill Box of the stomach, as is the most fatal error of taking so many Pills at a dose and then, what is important to every Family and every Purse, one bottle goes as far as two or three of what is ordinarily sold.

The confidence of all is asked to test

Hunnewell's Universal Cough Remedy,
Hunnewell's Tolu Anodyne,
Hunnewell's Eclectic Pills.

☞ Fac-simile of J. L. Hunnewell's signature over corks of genuine only.

JOHN L. HUNNEWELL, proprietor,
9 Commercial Wharf, Boston, Mass.

George E. Meacom, Agent for Danvers.

For sale by all dealers in Salem and vicinity.

Apr. 1, 1863—1 y

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

THE ADVERTISER HAVING BEEN RESTORED to health in a few weeks, by a very simple remedy, after having suffered several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease, Consumption—is anxious to make known to his fellow-sufferers the means of cure.

To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription used (free of charge,) with the directions for preparing and using the same, which they will find a SURE CURE for CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c. The only object of the advertiser in sending the Prescription is to benefit the afflicted, and spread information which he conceives to be invaluable, and he hopes every sufferer will try his remedy as it will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing.

Rev. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburgh,
March, 18, 3m Kings County, New York.

M. FENOLLOSA,

TEACHER OF MUSIC,

LETS ..... PIANO FORTES, at the lowest rates;
SELLS ..... PIANO FORTES, at the Manufacturers Prices;
EXCHANGES ... PIANO FORTES, on the easiest terms;

At Rooms No. 7 Central street,
feb 11 SALEM, MASS.

New Jersey Lands for Sale.

ALSO —

GARDEN OR FRUIT FARMS,

Suitable for Grapes, Peaches, Pears, Raspberries, Strawberries, Blackberries, Currants, &c., of 1, 2, 5, 10 or 20 acres each, at the following prices for the present, viz: 20 acres for $200, 10 acres for $110, 5 acres for $60, 2½ acres for $40, 1 acre for $20. Payable by one dollar a week.

Also, good Cranberry lands, and village lots in CHETWOOD 25 by 100 feet, at $10 each, payable by one dollar a week. The above land and farms are situated at Chetwood, Washington Township, Burlington, New Jersey. For further information, apply with a P. O. Stamp, for a circular, to

B. FRANKLIN CLARK,
feb 18, 1863 No. 90 Cedar St, New York, N. Y.

How to Make $5.00 a Day,

When all other Efforts have Failed.

HOOD & CO., 186 Broadway, New York, have just published ONE HUNDRED VALUABLE SECRETS, possessing them, any one, male or female, can easily make $5 a day, without capital, in any city or village. Every one should possess those secrets, for they are worth $500 to any single or married person. Some of these Secrets have been sold for $20 each. One alone cost us $250 for the right to publish it. When you once own them you will never part with them for money. Several persons are now making $120 per month by these Secrets alone. By them any person may make money easily and rapidly. We send one Book of Secrets for 25 cents, two copies, 40 cents, club of three for 50 cts., club of four 60 cts. club of five 75 cts., club of eight copies, $1 Send Government money. *3m

New York, Feb 18, 1863.

EDITOR OF WIZARD—Dear Sir: with your permission I wish to say to the readers of your paper that I will send by return mail to all who wish it, (free) a Recipe, with full directions for making and using a simple Vegetable Balm, that will effectually remove, in 10 days, Pimples, Blotches, Tan, Freckles and all Impurities of the Skin, leaving the same soft, clear, smooth and beautiful.

I will also mail free to those having Bald Heads or Bare Faces, simple directions and information that will enable them to start a full growth of Luxurient Hair, Whiskers, or a Moustache, in less than 30 days. All applications answered by return mail without charge.

Respectfully yours,
THOS. F. CHAPMAN, Chemist,
March 18 2m No. 831 Broadway, New York.

MANUAL FENOLLOSA,

TEACHER OF THE

Violin, Piano and Singing,

MUSIC ROOMS, No. 7 Central Street,
SALEM, MASS.

A Good Milk Route for Sale,

INQUIRE at this office.
South Danvers, Feb. 11, 1863.

James F. Almy.

WE HAVE OPENED ONE CASE TAFFETA STRIPES, Mode Colors—at a low price.

JAMES F. ALMY,
ap 8 188 Essex, opposite Central St.

WE HAVE RECEIVED ONE CASE PACIFIC PRINTS, New Styles—at a low price.

JAMES F. ALMY,
ap 8 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

WE HAVE RECEIVED ONE CASE PACIFIC DE LAINES, Choice Styles and Colors—at low prices.

JAMES F. ALMY,
ap 8 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

WE SHALL OPEN NEW STYLES LADIES' CLOTH GARMENTS, On Wednesday, April 8.

JAMES F. ALMY,
ap 8 188 Essex, opposite Central St.

WE OFFER A FINE STOCK OF LADIES' CLOTHS, BROADCLOTHS AND REPELLANTS,

JAMES F. ALMY,
ap 8 188 Essex, opposite Central St.

WE HAVE RECEIVED A full line of PLAIN ALPACCAS, Mode and Fancy Colors.

JAMES F. ALMY,
ap 8 188 Essex, opposite Central St.

Advertisements.

AT COLMAN'S!!!

No. 10 Front St., Salem, Mass.

YOU MAY PURCHASE Good, All Wool Hose at 23 cts; Dress Braids, 5 1-2 yards each, at 8 cts; Silver-plated Spoons and Forks at old prices; Crockery and Glass Ware at half importing prices; Knives and Forks; Odd Forks; Carvers; Bread Knives; Pocket and Pen Knives; Scissors; Razors. OLD PRICES. Men's, Women's and Children's Boots and Shoes; VERY CHEAP—One 35 day Regulator, suitable for Church or any other public building.

One 30 hour large Clock, only $3 50.
Three eight-day Clocks at only $3 50.
Two Gothic Clocks at only $2 50.
Gent's Mahogany Writing Desk, only $1 25.
Ladies' Work Boxes (Elk Walnut) only $1.
Under Shirts and Drawers; Dressing Over Coats, on hand, at less than cost;
Frock and Business Coats at low prices;
Pants and Vests at prices that will suit.

☞ Remember that will sell all our goods at less prices than can be purchased at wholesale.

Salem, April 8—3w w only

Messenger's Notice.

ESSEX ss. April 7, 1863 A warrant has been duly issued by Hon. GEO. F. CHOATE, Judge of the Court of Insolvency, for said county of Essex, against the estate of DANIEL F. CATE, of South Danvers, in said county, carpenter, an insolvent debtor; and the payment of any debts, or the delivery of any property belonging to said insolvent debtor, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law.

A meeting of the creditors of said insolvent debtor will be held at the Court of Insolvency, to be holden at the Court House in Salem, in said county, on the twenty-seventh day of April current, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, for proof of debts, and the choice of an assignee or assignees of said estate.

STEPHEN UPTON, Deputy Sheriff,
So. Danvers, Apr 8. Messenger.

TAKE NOTICE.

THAT Dr. Ham's Dyspepsia Remedy has been before the public for the past ten years. And in that time the people who have used it will vouch for the benefit they have derived from it. The character of his article and its reputation can also be obtained from the dealers who sell it, or have sold it for any length of time, to both of those, Dr Ham refers and is willing to stand the test. And also challenges any new compound to produce the same results, its unique delicacy of flavor, of his INVIGORATING SPIRIT, which for its EFFECTS UPON THE BILE, A TORPID LIVER, LOW SPIRITS, or when the blood is affected as seen by SKIN DISEASES, or its ACTION UPON THE KIDNEYS, in fact for any person who is run down by the wear and care of this world will find relief in this old and well tried remedy.

Astonishing.

TO Dr. Ham, who has modestly put before the public his DYSPEPSIA REMEDY for ten years past, to look back and see the number of tremendous articles within that time, that have sprang up like a rocket, and gone down like the stick which guides it in its glorious ascent. Some come out and claim to tell the public they use unknown Barks from South America, with any quantity of rum from the West Indias, &c. Dr Ham takes this opportunity to refer to the MEDICAL FACULTY here and everywhere that his article is in use, as to its qualifications, and challenges any one to produce a person, male or female, who has used it as directed, that will not speak favorable of it for DISORGANIZED STOMACH, Dyspepsia, loss of appetite, want of action of the Kidneys, as well as many other complaints that humanity are afflicted with.

To Ladies.

DR. HAM'S Dyspepsia Remedy is just the thing you require to remove the langour caused by weakness and debility; it invigorates the system, causes the blood to take new life in its varied course through the system, in fact it gives tone to the system and will relieve and remove the thousand irregularities that from various causes you are afflicted with. For Dyspepsia it is a never failing remedy, it has stood the test of years, and we have yet to hear of its failing to give relief to the afflicted thousands who have received health and happiness by its use.

To Gentlemen.

DR. HAM knows that you do not always pay much attention to the many different articles put before you in the paper, but we would refer you to our agents who you will find are the respectable merchants and dealers, in regard to the Invigorating Spirit; some of them have sold it for years, and know well the reputation it has amongst those who have used it in assisting nature to eradicate diseases. It will renovate the system, as it acts directly on the blood, removing all obstructions to the general health, will cure Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Nervous Affections, Sour Stomach, Headache, Weakness, Loss of Appetite, as well as obstruction in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs. Try it. We will guarantee you will be satisfied with the result.

General Depot, 62 Liberty Street, New York. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington Street, M. S. Burr & Co. 26 Tremont Street, G. C. Goodwin & Co., 11 Marshall Street, Boston; and in South Danvers by George E. Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., Main Street; and by Druggists everywhere.

Feu 20, 1863 1y

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

George S. Walker.

700 Dozen Gentlemen's Collars,

GEORGE S. WALKER, 228 Essex Street, has just received a new lot of

DOMESTIC FINISH COLLARS,

ordered before the advance. They are of superior quality, and in a great variety of styles, including the Round and Square End, 4 Ply Garrote, Wide and Narrow Garrote, Byron, Polka and Renfrew Byron, English Strings and Laps, Persignys and Folded Polkas.

The above were made specially to my order, and are superior in manufacture to any heretofore sold in this or the Boston market.

apr 8 228 Essex Street, Salem.

John P. Peabody.

Eight Cents.
Best Worsted Braids—all colors, 8 cts.
Five Cents.
Best American Pins—per paper, 5 cts.
Seven Cents.
Best Glazed Spool Cottons—200 yds, 7 cts.
Six Cents.
Best Gold Eyed Needles, 6 cts.
Fourteen Cents.
Rubber Pages, with Clasps, 14 cts.
Fifteen Cents.
Hand Plated Bonnet Ruches, 15 cts.
Five Cents.
Sea Island Cotton—per hank, 5 cts.
New Lace Veils;
New Lace Collars;
New Cambric Edgings;
New Cambric Insertings;
New Bonnet Ruches;
New Lisle Thread Gloves.

MANY KINDS OF GOODS AT OLD PRICES.

☞ Our Store will be open every Evening during the week until 8 o'clock.

220 ESSEX ST., SALEM,
JOHN P. PEABODY.

SPRING GOODS!

Entirely New Stock of

CLOTHING.

GEO. H. LANE,

CLOTHIER,

Nos. 31 and 32 Dock Square,

BOSTON,

IS now ready to show to his customers and the public an ELEGANT STOCK OF CLOTHING for MEN'S and BOYS' wear, expressly designed by himself, manufactured on the premises for the present season in all those new and choice selections of fabrics for which Lane's establishment has become celebrated. The stock consists in part of

SPRING OVERCOATS,
FROCK COATS,
BUSINESS COATS;
And ONE HUNDRED CHOICE

NEW STYLES OF PANTALOONS,

Suitable for Dress, Promenade or Business Occasions.

Mr. LANE having made Large Purchases by Contract before the Unprecedented and General Advance in Prices, has it in his power to give

REAL BARGAINS,

Acting on the principal that

"Quick Sales and Small Profits"

Are the best rules to guide the merchant.

JUVENILE ATTIRE.

Boys' Entire Suits, as

SCHOOL SUITS,
DRESS SUITS,
JACKET SUITS,
SACK SUITS, &C.

All of the newest fabrics and best workmanship.

A year since Mr. Lane advised the public that he had added a Boys' Department, and he has now the satisfaction to announce that he has secured the services of Mr. C. H. Boynton, (formerly with J. WALTER READ) to superintend it; and indeed, to make the entire establishment the COMPLETEST IN NEW ENGLAND, the Proprietor has spared no pains to secure the services of REAL ARTISTS in the Cutting Room, and accomplished, obliging, and experienced Salesman in the Show Room; and trusts by strict personal attention, and MODERATE CHARGES, to merit the support of the community.

GEO. H. LANE,
31 AND 32 DOCK SQUARE,
April 1—3m BOSTON.

NEW ENGLAND
FERTILIZER DEPOT,
No. 111 Commercial St., Boston.

TO FARMERS AND TRADERS!

WE desire to call your attention to our stock of FERTILIZERS, having the largest supply and full assortment of reliable brands ever offered in this market. Our stock embraces

Coe's, Hoyt's, Rhodes } SUPER-PHOSPHATE LIME.
No. 1 PERUVIAN GUANO.
GROUND BONE, (coarse and fine)
BONE MEAL. LAND PLASTER.
FISH GUANO. BONE TAFEU.
LIME, CEMENT, &c., &c.

We are also Sole Agents for the LODI MANUFACTURING CO.'S

POUDRETTE.

Get our terms before purchasing elsewhere. We sell at manufacturers' prices. Samples can be seen of all of the above; also a pamphlet, with a Farmer's Almanac for 1863, may be had free on application by mail or otherwise.

J. M. & P. RICHARDS,
Sales Office 111 Commercial St., Boston, Mass.
apr 1—3m

JOHN FARRELL,

DRAPER AND TAILOR,

HAVING removed to his old place of business, 188 MAIN ST., South Danvers, (over Batchelder's Grocery Store), is prepared to Cut, Make, Repair, or furnish Garments, for Men and Youths at short notice.

South Danvers, April 1. tf

A. J. Archer & Co

ELEGANT NEW GOODS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

OPEN THIS MORNING

MANY NEW STYLES OF

DRESS GOODS,

INCLUDING

Rich and Heavy Black Silks,

Rich Plain Colored Silks.

☞ Our patrons are invited to examine these Goods. Prices are still advancing, and money will be saved by buying now.

Salem, February 11, tf

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

Have on hand a full supply of

BROWN SHEETINGS AND SHIRTINGS;

BLEACHED SHEETINGS & SHIRTINGS;

— Also —

GREY TWILLED FLANNELS;

WHITE FLANNELS.

— Also —

BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,

which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES.

Salem, January 28—6w

KEROSENE Stand and Hand Lamps, and Peg Lamps. Also Wicks and Chimneys—for sale by S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

A FINE assortment of Paper Shades for Kerosene Lamps, just opened at S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

HILTON'S Insoluble Cement; Richards's Improved Cement; Spaulding's, Upton's, and Nichols's Liquid Glues, for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH. feb 11

WATCH FOUND.

THE owner can have it by proving property and paying expenses.

MRS. JOS. INGALLS, 123 Lowell St.

South Danvers, March 11, 1863

JUVENILE BOOKS,

A VERY large assortment for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Browning & Long.

POINT DE VENICE.

THE NEW SKIRT

— AT —

BROWNING & LONG'S.

Having sold our Last Season's Stock out completely, we now offer entirely NEW SKIRTS. mch 13

LARGE SALES AND SMALL PROFITS.

BROWNING & LONG

— ARE OPENING —

BEAUTIFUL

Spring Goods,

THIS WEEK.

IN BEAUTY AND ELEGANCE, THE LATE IMPORTATIONS HAVE NEVER BEEN SURPASSED.—OUR NEW STOCK COMPRISES THE LATEST FASHIONS AND NEWEST STYLES.

BROWNING & LONG

(Successors to J. MAYER.)

Essex St., 177 Essex St.,

April 1, 1863.

To Let on Essex St., Salem,

The STORE and DWELLING HOUSE connected therewith, No. 250 Essex St. The store is neatly fitted up, is one of the best stands in the city, and admirably adapted for Millinery, Fancy, Dry Goods, or any light business.

The Dwelling part contains nine finished rooms, and is supplied with water, gas, etc.—all in good order and very convenient.

To a satisfactory tenant, the above will be let on reasonable terms. Apply at J. PERLEY'S Shoe Store, next door west. feb 25

DIARIES AT COST PRICES.

A GOOD ASSORTMENT at G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S, Salem, Mass.

NATIONAL ALMANAC,

AND Annual Record for 1863—containing Government of the United States, the Individual States, and so called Confederate States, Tax Law, Census Tables, New Tariff, Army and Navy Officers, U. S. Mint, Consuls Statistics, &c., for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH. 160 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscribor, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.
South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

FROM AUCTION!

WE are offering bargains in

DRESS GOODS, LINENS,

— AND —

LADIES' CLOTHS.

☞ Received from a late sale of a Jobber's Stock.

JAMES F. ALMY,
apr 1 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

Salem and South Danvers Railroad.

SUBSCRIBERS to the Capital Stock are hereby notified that the same is payable at the SALEM BANK, in four instalments, of 25 per cent. each, on the following days, viz.—

March 2; March 20; April 10; May 1.

Per order,
GEO. D. PHIPPEN, Treasurer.
mch 7 2m

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

THE CLOTHES WRINGER.

JUST OBTAINED

RHOADES' CELEBRATED

NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER,

THE VERY BEST YET INVENTED,

AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING MACHINE.

CALL AND EXAMINE.

For Sale by H. SOUTHWICK,

At the EQUITY GROCERY STORE,

South Danvers, Jan 21, 1863. 3m

THE PIANO FORTES

THAT have attracted so much attention of late, and are so much admired on account of their SPLENDID FULL, RICH, MELLOW TONE, and GRAND FRENCH ACTION, are for sale only at the Office of the Agent, 216 Essex Street, Salem, Mass., where reference may be had to many who have purchased. Other Piano Fortes also; are for sale, varying in price from $180 upwards. Please call.

Mch 11 6m S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

WATCH SPRING SKIRTS,

M. A. PORTER,

MANUFACTURES TO ORDER

At 236 Essex Street,

A few doors from Washington Street,

SALEM, MASS.

SPRING STYLE

DRESS HATS,

NOW READY

AT JACKSON'S,

101 COURT STREET, BOSTON.

Also a large and varied assortment of CAPS and SOFT HATS, for Boys' and Men's wear. Those wishing articles in the above line would do well to call before purchasing.

JOSEPH A. JACKSON.

Boston, April 1, 1863. 3m

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

ESSEX ss. Notice is hereby given that the third meeting of the creditors of

FRANCIS K. PEMBERTON,

of South Danvers, in said county of Essex, insolvent debtor, will be held at the Court of Insolvency, at Salem, in said county of Essex, on the thirteenth day of April next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at which meeting the assignees will present their account as assignees of the estate of the said insolvent debtor, and creditors may appear and object to its allowance thereof.

ARTHUR PICKERING,
H. O. WILEY, Assignees.
So. Danvers, April 1, 1863. 2w

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

☞ If you want to SAVE MONEY, in purchasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, No. 10 Front street, Salem. [ap30-tf

Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,

Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker.
34 Front Street.

Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,

Druggist and Apothecary,
86 MAIN STREET.

Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.

Personal attention to Physicians' Prescriptions.

South Danvers, May 29, 1861. 1y

GEO. E. MEACOM

Dealer in

DRUGS & MEDICINES,

Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.

126 MAIN ST. 126

Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,

Druggist & Apothecary

37 Main St., So. Danvers,

DEALER IN

Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponges, Shoulder Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines.

Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery.

Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by experienced persons.

37 MAIN STREET.

Potter, Bachelder & Co.,

(Successors to M. Black)

DANVERS-PORT,

DEALERS IN

WOOD AND COAL

OF the various kinds usually kept in a retail yard. Constantly on hand

Franklin, Old Company's Lehigh,
Locust Mountain, Black Heath,
Red and White Ash.

Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere.

OFFICE—No. 6 Allen's Building.

Order Box at post office, South Danvers, and post office, Danvers.

G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. july 19—tf

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,

IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, Sign of Five Golden Books. dec 24

DIARIES--1863.

A N excellent assortment at the lowest prices, for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

NEW BOOKS.

STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom; Fire Light; or Stories for Domestics, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;

Gardener's Monthly—January;

Harper's Weekly; Genealogical Register;

Historical Collections, October, 1862.

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
At the old stand of H Whipple & Son

T. HARDY, JR.,

—Dealer in—

DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,

Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,

FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,

No. 26 FRONT STREET,

Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

George S. Walker,

228 ESSEX STREET, SALEM,

STEARN'S BLOCK,

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his friends and customers that he is now prepared to offer a very extensive and varied stock of

GENT'S FURNISHING GOODS,

adapted to the season, comprising the largest and only exclusively Furnishing Stock in the city, consisting in part of

HOSIERY, UNDER-SHIRTS AND DRAWERS,

in every variety of material, extra large and small sizes.

Woolen Over-Shirts, for Army and Home wear; Also, Half Hose, in Silk, Angola Wool, Merino, Cotton and Lisle, every size and Quality,

GLOVES IN KID, BEAVER, BUCK, SILK, LISLE.

Cloth, Silk and Lisle, Lined and Unlined STOCKS, NECK SCARFS, TIES & CRAVATS,

The latest Styles in Black and Fancy Colors,

Also SHIRTS, Silk and Linen POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS, COLLARS, Linen FRONTS & CUFFS, SUSPENDERS AND BRACES.

UMBRELLAS—Silk and Gingham,

PATENT ENAMELLED COLLARS,

And a general assortment of Toilet and other articles for Gentlemen's Use.

Shirts, Collars and Stocks,

Made to Order.

SHIRT PATTERNS CUT.

Most of the above goods were bought before any advance in the price, and of many classes of goods I had ordered a year's Stock, so that I am enabled to offer them to my patrons at the Lowest possible price, less than the Importers' and Manufacturers' present prices.

April 1.

Salem and Danvers Aqueduct Co'y.

ALL persons using the water of the Salem and South Danvers Aqueduct are hereby notified that the water rents, for the six months ending May 1, 1863, are now due, and that they are required to pay the same, at the office of the Company, No 2 Sewall street, on the 1st day of May next. Should the bills remain unpaid for thirty days, the water will be stopped, in conformity to the regulations of the Company.

Office hours, from 9 to 1 o'clock, and from 2 to 5.

Per order of the Directors,
apr 1 WM. JELLY, Collector.

GLASS WARE.

CUT and Pressed Goblets; Tumblers; Dishes in great variety; just opened at S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st. mch 25

THE SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD

Is published every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's building, South Danvers Square. by

CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editor.

TERMS—Two Dollars a year.

ADVERTISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM G. CHOATE,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
Salem, August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Residence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
South Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
Office, No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to
Rooms formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
NO. 27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM,
STEPHEN B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Office, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.

Claims against the Government for Bounty Back Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
No. 4 MAIN STREET, So. DANVERS SQUARE
Mechanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
Teeth Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
SURGEON DENTIST,
No, 208 Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market
Residence—No. 57 Washington street.
jan 11—1y

F. POOLE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Family Groceries, Flour & Grain,
HARD WARE AND CROCKERY,
Ready Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods,
Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
South Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
SAM'L NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Crockery, China and Hardware, Paper Hangings, Solar and Entry Lamps, Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.
No. 32 Front street, Lawrence Place,
feb13 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
All orders promptly and faithfully executed.
jan2-1y

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
West India Goods, Country Poduce,
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
Gold and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
at Room 188 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger,
164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
WINDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
mch6-tf

JOHN MOULTON,
LIVERY STABLE,
Central Street, South Danvers.
Mr. M. will endeavor to keep up the good reputation of his stable, by still keeping good Horses and Carriages. jan 7. 1863.

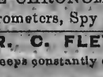
HEYLINGBERG'S
Hair Dressing Saloon,
24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.
TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Champooing,	15 cts.
Champooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more new Quarterly Customers taken.
In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks will be sold for one dollar.
South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,
ADVERTISING AGENT
For the principal New England Newspapers, remains at the old stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, and Advertising.
Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

WALKING MADE EASY.



DR. P. KENISON,
CHIROPODIST,
216 Washington St., Boston,
Cures Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails, Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

D. W. BOWDOIN,
—ARTIST IN—
PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.
Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, (Downing's Block)
Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotype, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.
☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

100,000 BARRELS OF THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S
POUDRETTE,
111 COMMERCIAL ST., BOSTON, MASS.

This Company, with a capital of $150,000, the most extensive works of the kind in the world, and an experience in manufacturing of over 23 years, with a reputation long established, having also the exclusive control of all the night soil of the great city of New York, are prepared to furnish an article, which is, without doubt, the CHEAPEST AND VERY BEST fertilizer in market. It greatly increases the yield, and ripens the crop from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from three to four dollars per acre, with little or no labor. Also, FIFTY TONS of BONE TAFEU, being a mixture of bone and night soil ground fine, at $45 per ton—a superior article for grain, &c. A pamphlet containing all necessary information may be had free by addressing a letter to the subscriber.

JAMES T FOSTER,
Care of the Lodi Manufacturing Company,
66 Courtland St., New York.

Agents—WELCH & FAIRFIELD, Grocers, Lowell Street, South Danvers. feb 11—3m

MISS MUGFORD.
A new supply of "Triumph in Trial."—A Memorial of Sarah S. Mugford—by S M Worcester, D. D.,—at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

NEW NEEDLE THREADER.
DOUBLE-ENDED, Excelsior Sewing Needle Threader and Worsted Threader combined—of great utility for near sighted or nervous people in threading needles, numbering from 4 to 12, and also Darning Needles.
Call and see them, at
mch 4 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

ORGANDIE MUSLINS.
WE shall open new Spring styles of Organdie Muslins to-day.
Ladies will do well to buy now, as prices are advancing daily. ANN R. BRAY,
mch 4 76 Federal street.

WHITE LEAD,
LINSEED Oil; Spirits Turpentine; Star Benzele Spirits; Varnishes, etc—constantly for sale by
mch 11 S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st.

CAMELS HAIR GOODS.
OWING to the small stock of Camels Hair goods in the market, prices have very much advanced. We shall give our customers the advantage of buying at the old prices, as we have a good assortment on hand.
ANN R. BRAY,
mch 4 76 Federal street.

BLANK BOOKS.
A fresh lot, just manufactured from superior paper, by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
190 Essex street,
mch 11 Sign of Five Golden Books.

GAYLE & CO.,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
DEALERS IN
Flour, Grain and Produce,
Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of
Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.
PHILLIPS WHARF, Salem.

REMOVAL!
AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,
Manufacturer and Repairer of
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.
THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, o which the Mackie took the First Premium at the lat Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.
BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook.
South Danvers, Sept 17, 1862. tf

NEW BOOKS,
AT G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S.
The Scarlet Flower, a Novel by Pierce Egan Esq;
The Trapper's Daughter, a story of the rocky Mountains, by Gustave Aimard;
Peterson's Magazine for April;
Atlantic Monthly, for do;
Eclectic Magazine, do;
Webster's army and Navy Pocket Dictionary
mch 25 190 Essex street.

School for both Sexes.
THE next term of MISS FRANCES E. VERY'S School for pupils of both sexes, will commence April 1st, at the Oliver School House, No. 95 Federal Street.
Application may be made at No. 154 Federal Street. Salem, Mch 4, 1863.

NEW YORK WHITE LEAD.
2500 L New York White Lead;
Also Fores River White Lead, for sale by
mch 4 S C & E A SIMONDS.

CONSCRIPTION LAW.
The United States Conscription Law of 1863 Official and complete; price 5 cents—at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

NEW SPRING SHAWLS,
IN Stripe, Plaid and Plain, of rich styles—just received and for sale by mch 4 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PERMANENT GREEN.
A supply of Hampden Green, just received at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.
mch 11

WIRE GOODS.
WIRE Rat Traps; Broilers; Steamers; Sieves etc., just received at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PATENT BOOK STAND.
A new and desirable article—can be used for two Books at the same time, is neat and cheap—for sale at
ap 1 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

WHITE LEAD IN PAILS.
NEW YORK White Lead, put up in tin Pails of 25 lbs each, for sale by
S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS', 32 Front st

INK STANDS.
NEw Styles at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

UNITED STATES LAWS.
NATIONAL Tax Law with the amended act of Mch '63—only 10 cts.
Militia Laws from 1792 to 1863, now in full force;
Conscription Law of 1863—received by
ap 1 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

TOILET SOAPS, &C, &C.
TEETH, Hair, and Nail Brushes. New supply for sale by
ap 1 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

GREEN PAINT.
HAMPDEN Green, English Green, and Verdigris, for sale by
S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front St.

NEW SPRING SHAWLS,
IN Stripe, Plaid and Plain, of rich styles—just received and for sale by mch 4 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PERMANENT GREEN.
A supply of Hampden Green, just received at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.
mch 11

WIRE GOODS.
WIRE Rat Traps; Broilers; Steamers; Sieves etc., just received at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PATENT BOOK STAND.
A new and desirable article—can be used for two Books at the same time, is neat and cheap—for sale at
ap 1 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

WHITE LEAD IN PAILS.
NEW YORK White Lead, put up in tin Pails of 25 lbs each, for sale by
S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS', 32 Front at

INK STANDS.
NEw Styles at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

UNITED STATES LAWS.
NATIONAL Tax Law with the amended act of Mch '63—only 10 cts.
Militia Laws from 1792 to 1863, now in full force;
Conscription Law of 1863—received by
ap 1 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

TOILET SOAPS, &C, &C.
TEETH, Hair, and Nail Brushes. New supply for sale by
ap 1 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

GREEN PAINT.
HAMPDEN Green, English Green, and Verdigris, for sale by
S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front St.

AGRICULTURAL PAPERS, &C.
SUBSCRIPTIONS received for all the Agricultural and Horticultural Papers and Magazines, at the Publishers' prices—by
mch 25 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

CROCKERY WARE.
WHITE Dinner and Tea Ware; Fancy and White Toilet Ware, in complete sets—by
mch 25 S C & E A SIMONDS.

W. E. P. SMYTH,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.
Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,
LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.
Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow. 4th. The Mother.
2d. The Children. 5th. The Brothers and Sisters collectively.
3d. The Father.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken out, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.
When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditor's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay in getting their claims audited.

NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.

Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1y

Rare Chance for Bargains.
CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of
JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,
AND FANCY GOODS,
At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER
Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,
Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Ware,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.
at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.
This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Returnishing the Table, &c.
Old Silver taken in exchange.
☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.
JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

H. & H. G. HUBON,
WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM
Manufacturers of
Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood
COFFINS and CASKETS.
MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.
dec 14—tf

FRANKLIN COAL.
JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL—the best in the world for domestic use,
POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

E. N. PRICE,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
HARNESSES,
SADDLES, BRIDLES,
AND WHIPS.
—ALSO—
Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.
All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.
237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
mch13-tf

Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

Heckscher Coal!
$7.75 per Ton on Wharf.
A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,
Both Red and White Ash,
Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by
W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.
march 18

E. R. PERKINS,
PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST
241 Essex Street, Salem.
Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,
Photographs, Sphercotypes, Melainotypes, and patent enamel Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

REMOVAL!
JOHN J. ASHBY,
WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store
No. 145 Essex Street,
formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of
BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,
and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.
Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Ann R. Bray,
NO. 76 Federal Street,
—DEALER IN—
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.
Prof. M. G. BROWN.
SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets scumy and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its sockett in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to anoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 5 cents. Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

WM. C. HENDERSON,
MANUFACTURER OF
PLAIN AND FANCY
PAPER BOXES,
No. 235 ESSEX STREET,
Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"
July 23 SALEM. tf

THOMAS PINNOCK,
SLATER,
SALEM, MASS.
Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.
Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.
Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

CURRIER & MILLETT,
Dealers in

Furniture, Chairs,
MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c
259 & 261 ESSEX ST.
Salem, dec 14—1y

Top Buggy for Sale,
NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St. South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

AARON T. LOWE,
DEALER IN
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,
76 BOSTON STREET, 76.
aug 6 SALEM. tf

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.
THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of
Patent Granular Fuel,
which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25 Bushels, delivered,		2 25
50 do	do	4 00
100 do	do	7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.
BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, june 18.

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands &c—Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

Tenements to Let.
ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $64 per year.
One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.
One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.
One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.
One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.
SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

MUNROE'S
(LATE REED'S)
SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON
RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at	10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " at	5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at	3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " " at	5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.
Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.
EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.
Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.
Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.
ARMY EXPRESS.
Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed:
WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

E. F. BURNHAM,
SOLE AGENT FOR
SARGENT & CO.S'
MAGIC SOAP
For South Danvers & Salem.
OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.
Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.
Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
INNER SOLES,
AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.
2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

Are you Insured?
THE subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on
Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,
And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:

Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn.
Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y

Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the

Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass.
Capital and Assets—$375,000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D., Medical Examiner.

WM. ARCHER, Jr.,
18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
oct b20-1

Important to the Afflicted.
DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a
PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.
By a long course of study and practical experience of an invited extent Dr. Dow has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of
GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.
Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.
SEMINAL WEAKNESS.
Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating marrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.
Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.
Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the Spanish ——, warranted the best preventive. Order by mail, 3 for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y.

CAUTION
TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.
DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.
Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.
Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.
Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.
N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.
Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE
IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.
Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.
Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862—1y

Ladies' Spring Skirts.
ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

DIARIES FOR
1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,
FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,
Central street, South Danvers,
HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.
He keeps as good an assortment of
COFFINS AND CASKETS,
as can be found at any establishment, and at the lowest prices.
He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.
All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

SOUTH DANVERS
POST OFFICE.
GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.
MAILS CLOSE
At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.
MAILS DUE
At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.
Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.
F. POOLE, P. M.
South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

SLATING. SLATING.
GEORGE FOWLER & COMPA'Y,
NO. 2 ST. PETER COURT, SALEM, respectfully inform their friends and the citizens of this and neighboring towns and cities that they are prepared to execute all orders for Slating, promptly and faithfully.
Roofs covered with any description of Slates, or repaired at short notice.
All work undertaken will be warranted.
Address—Box 366 Salem Post Office.
Salem, January 28—1863. tf

PATTERSON'S
LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE
THE undersigned are agents for the above machine. It can be seen in operation at Pinder & Brown's Tannery.
may 7—3m CLARK & GIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,
Wallis Street, South Danvers,
Are Agents for
GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S
PATENT EAVE TROUGHS
CUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND
PIPE FOR DRAINS.
South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,
ONE PRICE
HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,
231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

Ann R. Bray, 76 Federal Street,
WILL open to-day, New Spring Goods, Delaines; Alapaccas, &c.
We have a full and carefully selected stock of Black Silks, which are warranted to give perfect satisfaction.
In dress goods we select the best styles, and fabrics, and those who buy early will find the best assortment. feb 25

GRACE'S CELEBRATED SALVE.

A SURE RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERER.
This Salve is a vegetable preparation, invented in the 17th century, by DR. WM. GRACE, surgeon in King James's army. Through its agency he cured thousands of most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Burns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Scalds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Flesh Wounds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Corns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Felons.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Frozen Limbs.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Wens.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Callouses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Salt Rheum.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chilblains.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Breast.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Lips.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Erysipelas Sores.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Abscesses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ulcers.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chapped Hands.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ringworms.
And from Sores and Wounds of the most serious nature down to a common Pimple. It eradicates Pimples from the face, and beautifies the skin. There is no preparation before the public that can equal this Salve in prompt and energetic action for the speedy cure of external diseases, as those who have tried its virtues testify. Soldiers, Sailors, and Fishermen, will find this Salve their best friend.
It has none of the irritating, heating properties of other remedies, but cools, cleanses, and heals the most serious Sores and Wounds. Every family, and especially those containing children, should keep a box on hand in case of accident, for it will save them much trouble, suffering, and money. All it wants is a fair trial to cure old and inveterate Sores.
MANUFACTURED BY
WILLIAM GRACE,
AMESBURY, MASS.
PRICE 25 CENTS PER BOX.
Each box has the above cut and the fac-simile of the proprietor's signature attached to it, which is duly copyrighted.
Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., 11 and 12 Marshall street, Weeks & Potter, 170 Washington street, and M. S. Burr & Co., 26 Tremont street, Boston, Wholesale Agents.
For sale by druggists and at country stores everywhere.

MUSICAL NOTICE.
Chickering & Sons' Piano-Fortes.

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St. would inform her friends in South Danvers, and the public generally that she keeps for sale and to let Chickering & Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with great care, and need only to be tried to prove their superior by over every other in the market. The very best terms given.
MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPHINES
For sale and to let. For power and quality of tone none can surpass them A. R BRAY, 76 Federal str.

NOTICE.
THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.
JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

R. C. MANNING & CO.
Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,
DEALERS IN
COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,
186 DERBY STREET,
SALEM, MASS.
N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.
oct17

Eastern Rail
ON and after MONDAY, Nov. leave the Eastern Railroad street, Salem, daily. (Sundays ex
For Lynn and Boston, 6½, 7½, 8 4 40, 6½ p. m.
Beverly, 8¼ am., 1, 3½, 4½, 5½, 6½, W. Beach, Main, Gloucester, a 1, 4½ p. m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8¼ a Amesbury, 8¼ a. m., 3½, 5½ p. m. Portsmouth, 8¼ a. m., 3½, 5½ p. m. Portland, 8¼ a. m., 3½ p. m.
AND FOR SALE
Portland, 8¼ a. m., 3½ p. m.
Portsmouth, 7½, *11½ a. m., *5 p. m
Amesbury, 7.35, 9.40 a. m., 5.20 p
Newburyport, 8, 10 a.

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1863. NO. 6.

IE SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD blished every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's Build outh Danvers Square. by
CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editor.
MS—Two Dollars a year.
VERTISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM C. CHOATE,
ttorney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
em, August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
ttorney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Residence Lowell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
torney and Counsellor at Law,
h Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
ttorney and Counsellor at Law,
CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
ce, No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
rneys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to ms formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
O. 27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM,
HEN B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
ttorney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
orney and Counsellor at Law,
ffice, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.

laims against the Government for Bounty k Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
4 MAIN STREET, SO. DANVERS SQUARE.
Mechanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
h Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
SURGEON DENTIST,
208 Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Market
Residence—No. 57 Washington street.
a 11—1y

F. POOLE,
INSURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
mily Groceries, Flour & Grain,
IARD WARE AND CROCKERY,
eady Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods,
Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
th Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
M'L NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
ckery, China and Hardware; Paper Hangings; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.
, 32 Front street, Lawrence Place,
eb13 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
All orders promptly and faithfully executed.
n2-1y

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
est India Goods, Country Produce
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
old and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
t Rooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger.
164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
VINDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
mch6-tf

JOHN MOULTON,
LIVERY STABLE,
Central Street, South Danvers.

Mr. M. will endeavor to keep up the good reputa on of his stable, by still keeping good Horses and arringes. jan 7, 1863.

HEYLINGBERG'S
Hair Dressing Saloon,
24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.
TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Shampooing,	15 cts.
Shampooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more new Quarterly Customers taken.
In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks will be sold for one dollar.
South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,
ADVERTISING AGENT
For the principal New England Newspapers, remains at the old stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, and Advertising.
Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

Selected.

MY RAILWAY COMPANIONS.

AN ENGLISH STORY.

To walk on a railway platform down a line of carriages about to start, with a Bradshaw in your hand and a travelling-cap on your head, is to receive a broadside of indignant and repelling glances. The truth of this will, I am sure, be admitted by everybody. My own personal appearance is engaging in a very exceptional degree; and, therefore, what I have experienced myself must have been undergone in a more aggravated form by most people. For this reason, among others, I prefer to arrive early at a railway station, so that I may establish myself in the post of vantage, as first comer, and survey my fellow creatures with the air, I do not say of an enemy well intrenched, but of a superior, and with an expression, if not of hauteur, of condescension. I was therefore annoyed enough to find myself rather late last Saturday at London Bridge, and the train without a single empty carriage. Receiving, therefore (and, I flatter myself, returning,) looks of hatred and defiance, I walked hastily along the platform, glancing into all the windows for the least crowded compartment, and presently selected one which had only two passengers, neither of whom, strange to say, surveyed me with the customary scorn.

The one was a young divine, with an expression that would have been eminently "gentlemanlike," if it had not been so effeminate as to be almost ladylike; the other looked like a military man (as indeed he turned out to be,) but had rather a peculiar air of oppression and melancholy. These two did not seem to be acquainted with one another, nor, as I have said, had even made the usual league together against the invaders of their privacy. While I had myself been looking out for a seat, I had observed another man employed in the same search, who seemed to be less easily satisfied; not till the bell rang and the train began to move, did this gentleman make up his mind as to what carriage he would travel in, when he evinced a tardy discernment in making choice of ours. Even then he threw such a suspicious glance around him, as one escaping from his creditors might cast at three possible bailiffs, and cowered into a corner of the carriage, as though he had only purchased the right to half a seat.

My journey did not promise very pleasantly, for, like the Great Lexicographer, I am fond of talk, and it did not seem probable that I should get it. The officer was silent, the divine was shy, and the last comer gave a terrified start whenever he was addressed. At the first station we stopped at, the officer bought a sixpenny newspaper, and, having no silver, gave the boy half a sovereign, who hurried away to procure change. A considerable time elapsed, the whistle sounded, and we began slowly to move away. Just as we cleared the very end of the platform, however, the boy appeared panting at the window with the nine and sixpence. "You have been fortunate sir," remarked I, smiling; "I began to fear that you would lose your money.—Your patience under the circumstances testified to your better opinion of human nature."

"Human nature is very much vilified," returned the officer, gravely; "if we knew it better, we should live more happily with our fellow creatures. As it is, however, we are in reality less suspicious of them than we pretend to be. Not only is honesty the rule and roguery the exception in the world, but there is a much greater amount of confidence between man and man than is generally acknowledged."

"I have heard the same sentiment corroborated," observed I, "from the lips of a great philosopher."

"I have it confirmed in my own person," replied the officer, sighing; I have experienced an act of trustful kindliness from a stranger, which will embitter my life to my dying day."

This curious statement was delivered in a tone of such melancholy depth that even the shy young clergyman ventured a glance of astonishment at the speaker, and the gentleman in the corner protruded his head cautiously from his cloak collar, like a tortoise from its shell, in order to listen for more.

"Sir," said I, "if the matter to which you allude demands no secrecy, the narration—I think I may speak for these two gentlemen—would interest us very much. Pray tell us it."

"It is but a short story," said the officer, "and I will gladly narrate it, not only to oblige you, but because the more people there are who hear it, the less improbable is the chance of getting my misfortune remedied. You must know, then, that until the last four years I was by no means the sombre and reserved person I now appear. I was sprightly and vivacious, and, even in the company of strangers, accustomed to converse without the slightest reserve. A morbid desire to establish myself in the good opinion of everybody impelled me, perhaps, too much to sociality; and my giving way to this may go far, alas, to convince a certain individual that I am indeed the villain which he would otherwise have only suspected me to be. If I find my pocket picked upon leaving a railway carriage," observed the officer, with energy, "my suspicions naturally fix themselves on the stranger who has manifested the greatest desire to be my friend."

The young divine here flushed all over, like a western cloud at sunset, and cast down his eyes as though he had been accused of petty larceny, while the man in the cloak fumbled at the window, with the intention, as it really seemed, of getting at the door-handle and jumping out.

"I was once traveling on this very line," resumed the officer, more calmly, after a little pause, "from the town in which I chanced to be quartered, to London; and, singularly enough, the conversation of my fellow passengers turned, as it has done to-day, upon mutual confidence between man and man. It commenced, I think, with some observations of two mercantile gentlemen upon the credit system, but eventually resolved itself into—What should be done or not done in the case of a stranger asking to borrow money of any one of us? We laughed a good deal at various circumstances and contingencies which the question suggested, and got to be very friendly. My companions all alighted at various stations, except myself and the gentleman with whom I had been chiefly conversing. As we were nearing the terminus, observing me, I suppose, search my pockets and suddenly change color, he asked me what the matter was, and if I had lost my railway ticket.

"No," said I, "I have got my ticket, nor have I actually lost anything; but I just find out that I left my purse locked up in my quarters, and have therefore come away with only a few shillings in my pocket."

"Can I be of any service to you?" asked my companion, drawing out his own portmonnaie.

"Thank you very much," returned I, laughing, "for the proof of that confidence we were speaking about; but although I am going to a hotel, and it might have been so far inconvenient, I have a banker in London."

"But the bank will be closed by this time," urged the gentleman; "you had better take a sovereign or two."

"Nay," said I, "in that case I will take a five pound note at once, which can be more easily transmitted by post. This is, however, a practical test of your benevolent principles, which you could scarcely have anticipated to occur so soon. A perfect stranger—"

"My dear sir," interrupted he, with warmth, "pray do not mention it. There is no credit to me in the matter; for it is easy to see that you are an officer and a gentleman."

"Then he purposely changed the conversation with a delicacy which I have since never ceased to regret; for what with talking and laughing, I forgot all about the loan till the train stopped, and we went together to look for our luggage, and in the crowd we were separated, without ever wishing each other good-bye, or remembering to exchange our names and addresses. I don't know whither to send the money, or how I shall ever repay him; while he, I have no doubt, concludes that he has met with a clever scoundrel, who did him out of a five pound note. Since that unfortunate hour I have never passed a happy day, and a journey by railway always makes me especially melancholy. I feel that my honor is tarnished, and that in the eyes of an honest man I am become a swindler. I have advertised again and again, to three times the value of the loan, without result, and, while I trust you will make the circumstances known to as many people as possible, I have very little hope that the man I have unwittingly wronged will ever be put in possession of the truth."

"My dear sir," exclaimed the clergyman, with unexpected boldness, "I feel for you deeply. I remember that in the famous novel, "Oliver Twist," there is no situation more painful than when he is carried away by Sikes with Mr. Brownlow's books in his possession, so that the benevolent gentleman's faith in him is shaken, and the honest lad lies under the imputation of being a thief."

"At the same time," said I, "your innocence, sir, should at least protect you from the stings of conscience; you have nothing to reproach yourself with but forgetfulness in not having revealed your name. The philosopher of whom I have already spoken owed more money and comforted himself on slighter grounds; but then he had philosophy to console him, for the possession of which indeed he had a European reputation."

"I should very much like to hear his opinion on the matter," observed the officer, eagerly.

"At a certain dinner party, then," said I, at which the philosopher and myself were present, the conversation turned (as it was very apt to be under his guidance) upon the perfectability of the human species. Human nature, he contended, was not only capable of perfection, but was already much nearer to it than clergymen and others imagined. There was a beautiful confidence existing in our common nature. Suspicion was only for attorneys and police detectives. He had had the most satisfactory experience of this throughout a protracted existence, but more especially in his youth. He then proceeded to communicate to us a particular example. "In my early manhood, I ran away from my stay-at-home friends in Yorkshire, who were ignorant of and inattentive to the yearnings of a passionate soul, and disported myself as long as my slender purse permitted in the wilds of Devonshire. When my money was exhausted, I left off that vagabond life, and put up at a respectable hotel. Although I must have looked dirty and travel-stained enough, and had only a knapsack for luggage, no question was put to my solvency, which in itself was a charming proof of natural confidence.

After passing a week or so in these very comfortable quarters, I sent for the landlord, and expounded to him the circumstances of the case. I told him that I already owed him a considerable sum, but that was by no means the worst of it (from my point of view), for, in addition to this, I had not got a shilling to take me northwards. This good trustful person—who always seems to me the incarnation of tender faith—not only credited me for the eight pounds or so for which I was already indebted to him, but furnished me with eight more for the expenses of my journey. Now, considering the name I had given him might have been assumed, or, if genuine, might have been totally worthless, I consider this to have been a most convincing proof of that benevolent confidence, which, I contend, prevails among a large majority of those whom I am pleased to call my fellow creatures. I was then seventeen, and now I am seventy-one, and the man has never been paid yet."

"What an infamous scoundrel!" exclaimed the officer, with indignation.

"Nay, certainly not," said I; "he would himself have acted precisely as did the hotel keeper, if he had chanced to have been placed in his position. He was one of the most generous and kindly-hearted of mankind. Pecuniary obligation was, however, a matter beneath the consideration of his philosophy, which was stupendous and far-reaching, but not comprehensive of details."

"The innkeeper, however," observed the officer, "was not aware of that."

"True," said I; "and yet you see how lightly the great man bore the innkeeper's probable opinion of him. In the wilds of Devonshire he was doubtless mistaken for little better than a swindler."

"It is a dreadful thing to be mistaken for somebody else," observed the young clergyman, with a sigh.

I was wondering whether the speaker could ever have been by possibility mistaken for anybody but his own sister, when he proceeded as follows:—

"I was once placed in a very uncomfortable position myself, through an error of judgment on the part of a most respectable female. When I was a young man at Cambridge, and even up to the time that I took my degree, I had absolutely no whiskers. (Here he fingered a little mole upon his right cheek, as though he would have said: "Nothing of this leonine appearance that you see in me now.") I was indeed almost effeminate-looking, and some of my foolish college friends nicknamed me "Bella," and "Bellissima," which was even more ridiculous still. It was the long vacation, but certain business calling me to the university, I took the train thither from town. At the station I met some Cambridge friends, who were making a shorter journey than I, but of course got into the same carriage. A rather severe-looking lady, with spectacles, very stout, and not very young, made up our company. She looked a little alarmed at the somewhat fast appearance of my friends when she first entered; but upon their earnest assurance that they would not smoke nor compel her to take a hand at cards, she grew re-assured as far as they were concerned. I shall never forget, however, the look of intense suspicion with which she regarded my unhappy self. My face had at first been concealed by a newspaper I was reading, but as soon as she caught sight of it, she gave a sort of virtuous shudder. What had I done, thought I, to deserve this? I had a trick of coloring at that time, (the speaker was purple, and had been throughout the narration,) and I dare say I became a little flushed. "Now, Bella, don't blush," exclaimed one of my friends, in allusion to this infirmity; whereupon they both burst out laughing.

"I never before saw anybody look so shocked, and at the same time so indignant, as did the old lady at that. She bore precisely the same expression that the great Scotch reformer would have worn, under the circumstances imagined by the poet:—

As though you had taken sour John Knox,
To the play-house at Paris, Vienna, or Munich,
Fastened him into the front row box,
And danced off the ballet in trousers and tunic.

I shall never forget her. My companions, I believe, were not entirely aware of the hideous notion that had taken possession of her mind, but I knew very well. Their calling me 'Bella' had changed her suspicion to certainty. She thought I was a female in man's attire. When they got out at their station, with a 'Good bye, Bella,' 'By, bye Bellissima, till we meet at the Leger,' (I used to go to races in those days,) I fell into a cold perspiration at being left alone with that old woman. I pretended, however, to be deeply interested in Bell's Life. I heard some remark which sounded like 'a pretty paper for a young woman to be reading,' but I affected not to listen. The situation was dreadful. If she began to upbraid me, what measures should I take to convince her of her scandalous error? Presently, however, she commenced collecting the baskets and parcels, of which she had an indefinite number, and I felt to my great relief that she was going to get out at the next station. When she had all her goods about her, and the train was slackening speed, she took up her umbrella, and shaking it in my terrified countenance, exclaimed:—'Oh, ain't you ashamed of yourself, you impudent hussy?'"

"Madam," I replied with all gentleness, "I assure you——"

"Don't speak to me," interrupted she; "don't attempt to deceive me, girl. I knew you from the first moment I saw you."

After getting down from the carriage with some difficulty, she took the trouble to climb up the step again, and put her head into the window with these words: "I tell you what it is, Miss Bella; you're a disgrace to your sex."

"That was a more distressing railway adventure than even yours," observed I to the officer.

"It is the most awful incident that occurred to anybody on the railway," said the young clergyman, wiping from his alabaster forehead the perspiration which had been evoked by these distressing details.

"It is nothing of the kind, sir," observed the man in the corner, emerging suddenly from his retirement; "it is as but a catspaw of wind to a tornado when compared with the experience that I have met with as a traveler. My nerves are shattered, my spirits are broken. I have become the wreck you now behold, in consequence of a single railway adventure."

"If you would compose yourself so far as to tell it us," observed I delicately, "it would afford us much gratification."

"I have a bottle of smelling salts in my carpet bag, in case you should be overcome," said the young clergyman.

"And I never travel without this flask of brandy and water," added the officer, "which is very much at your service."

"Under these circumstances, I will endeavor to gratify you," resumed the person addressed, "although the recital of the scene in question always unnerves me. You doubtless observed that I looked in at the window once or twice before I took my seat in this carriage, and that even when I had done so, I regarded you three gentlemen with considerable distrust. Moreover, you may have seen me shudder occasionally at sentiments and actions of yours which may have seemed innocent enough. The reason of this is, that I am morbidly apprehensive of finding myself in the company of any person not of sane mind. Once in my life—an occasion I can never forget—I was the fellow-traveler in a railway carriage with a maniac." The narrator here took a prolonged sniff at the vinaigrette. "He was a powerful man, and even if he had not been mad, I should have had no chance with him. We were alone together. It was the express train, and of course there were no means of communicating with the guard. Mr. Edgar Poe himself could hardly have imagined a set of circumstances more appalling. Previous to the outbreak, I am bound to say the gentleman conducted himself with propriety. He refused, but with the utmost courteousness, my offer of a Punch and the Times, and applied himself harmlessly enough, as it seemed, to the study of Bradshaw. Whether excessive application to that abstruse volume had been the original cause of this unhappy malady, I do not know, but the particular frenzy of which I was the particular victim was certainly excited by that work.

"Sir," observed he, with an air of intellectual languor, "can you assist an unhappy scholar to discover the hour at which this train arrives at Madagascar? I am aware that we change carriages at the Equator at 3:48, but beyond that I cannot trace our route."

"Then I knew, of course, at once that the man had lost his senses. There was a cold malicious glitter in his eyes, notwithstanding his soft speech, which made my hand shake as I took the proffered volume, and pretended to look out for Madagascar. To humor him and to gain time were my only objects. At what a snail's pace we seemed to travel! How I envied the country lads that waved their ragged hats in the fields as the train passed by; how gladly would I have changed places with the milkman in the meadow, or the carter with his team, or the policeman standing by the rail-side, with his 'All Right' flag up. All right, indeed, and a first-class passenger about to be torn limb from limb, perhaps, by a madman!"

"Have you discovered Madagascar?" asked the maniac presently, with great irritation.

"I was obliged to confess that I had not as yet been so fortunate; I had, however, to explore the Scotch railways, and perhaps (said I) it might possibly be somewhere among them."

"I don't think it likely," observed my companion drily. "Do you not observe those thick black lines which cut the waybill"—he here drew his fingers with frightful energy across his throat—"just as one thinks one is coming to one's journey's end? That is the North Pole. The late lamented Dr. Scoresby chopped it into small pieces for greater convenience. We can never be too thankful for its introduction. Let us drink the health of the North Pole; let us compose an ode to its Low Thermometership. Come, you begin."

"At this point, the narrator almost drained the brandy flask in his nervous trepidation. His excitement was communicated to ourselves, and I believe if the train had stopped anywhere during this enthralling portion of the story, each of us would rather have been carried beyond the mark than missed the denouement.

"Come, you begin," repeated the madman with a look of extreme ferocity; "Roll, roll, North Pole," or something of that kind; but not with your clothes on. How dare you address his Low Thermometership in that unseemly garb?"

"In a quarter of a minute my companion had divested himself of every article of raiment except his shirt, and I was doing my best to follow his example. 'Hasten,' cried he, 'insolent minion, for Mad, Mader, Madagascar is drawing nigh.'"

"No human beings, I suppose, ever presented a more astounding spectacle than did we two in our airy garments, kneeling upon the floor of that railway carriage, and apostrophising the North Pole. I felt my senses were fast deserting me through excess of terror, and if the plan which now suggested itself should fail, it would indeed be all over with me."

"What!" exclaimed I, "is it possible that you venture to speak to the N. P. without previously putting your head through the carriage window?"

"In an instant he had leaped up, and darted his head and neck through the pane as though it had not been there. The sharp fragments of the glass retained him, so that he could not draw his head back without great pain and difficulty, and in the mean time I had opened the other door, and, at the hazard of my life, clambered into the next carriage, where I found a stout gentleman asleep, who was almost frightened into fits by my unexpected and horrible appearance. He gave me, however, his railway rug to wrap around me, and I was narrating to him the dreadful events which had just happened, when lo! there was a scrambling at the open window, and then we beheld the maniac bleeding from his wounded throat, his hair streaming like a meteor, his shirt in a thousand ribbons, his whole appearance calculated to strike terror into the strongest mind. It was evidently his intention to get in. The stout gentleman, speechless with terror, pointed to his umbrella, suspended in the cradle above the seat in which I had placed myself. I seized this weapon, and with the assistance of my new companion, managed to push the intruder with such violence that, after a tremendous struggle, he was obliged to loose his hold of the door handle, and seize the umbrella instead. Then we instantly let go of it, and the wretched man tumbled backwards off the train."

Here the narrator finished his story and the brandy and water.

"Then the poor madman must, I fear, have met his death," said I.

"It is impossible to say for certain," replied the nervous passenger with a shudder. "A skeleton, grasping the wires of an umbrella, was discovered years afterwards in a peat-bog, at the exact spot where the accident happened; but I never feel quite safe from meeting him again."

THE DISCOUNTING OF BUSINESS PAPER;

OR, A ROMANCE OF REAL LIFE.

The disasters which sometimes result to individuals from endorsing notes, induced me early to be as little instrumental as possible in occasioning any person to become an endorser; though I was often compelled to admit, when inquired of, that a proposed endorsement would be satisfactory security to the bank, if the signature could be obtained. But bankers may unwillingly inflict injury by other means than the foregoing, as is seen in the following narrative:

One of the earliest settlers of a neighboring village had long conducted a small mercantile business, by which, and the advance in value of his real estate, he had accumulated a fortune that was estimated at thirty thousand dollars; an exceedingly large sum at the period in question and in the given locality. Indeed, so large was the sum that the possessor, especially his wife, who was an old Dutch woman, excited so much interest in the neighborhood as to be secretly suspected of witchcraft by the youth of the vicinity, to whose irregularities and intrusions she was an inveterate enemy. The trader gradually lost his enterprise with the encroachment of old age, but, from habit, he clung to his petty traffic, especially with the neighboring Indians, who continued to bring him the furs they acquired by hunting; receiving in return "point blankets" and other coarse articles, which constituted more the luxuries of primitive life than the necessaries.

I should much like to designate the precise locality of the old trader, and to give his name, which is still remembered; but I must forego the benefit of such particularity in respect to living parties, whose feelings might be injured thereby. He had been unfortunate in his domestic relations, so far as to have lost by death all his children but a daughter, whose arrival at womanhood attracted towards her all the neighboring young men who had taste enough to admire female youth and beauty, she possessing both; and all who esteemed riches, of which she was the great exemplar. The parents were fond of her to excess, and in their unschooled estimate of literature and the arts, she was a prodigy in both; having learned early to read and write, also the four cardinal rules of arithmetic, with no little skill in vocal music, acquired from an itinerant New-England singing master. She could dance well, but that was a natural accomplishment. The father was ambitious enough to intend his daugh-

Continued on fourth page.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1863.

THE POSITION OF ENGLAND.

One of the most hopeful signs of the times is the reaction going on in England in relation to the contest waging in this country. It was to be expected that the aristocracy of England, and the presses within its control, would do their utmost to misrepresent the North, as they have always endeavored to vilify and overthrow our republican government. The only astonishment felt here was, that the people of England should join them in their attacks upon our government. The reaction began by the publication of the views of John Stuart Mill in Frazer's Magazine, although other writers in that periodical have come out against us. The works of Cairnes and Gasparin, and the speeches of John Bright and other true friends of this country, have also had a good effect abroad.

The people of England now begin to find that we have been misrepresented in the Times, Blackwood, and the heavier Quarterlies, and they are reconsidering the question in the new light of the President's emancipation edict. The Westminster Review has had strong articles against the North, and it is cheering to see in this periodical such views as the following, which we take from the recent number:—"In fact there is no ground of compromise; these the Americans have long since exhausted. The principles at stake have now come face to face; they do not admit of mediation. The South have taken to the sword and have but hastened the inevitable doom of that institution in whose defense they have drawn it."

HINTS ON GOSSIPING.—Inadvertantly betraying the secrets of one friend to another is a cruel injury and a fruitful source of difficulty. Do not suffer yourself to be easily bound to secrecy, for keeping a secret is a very troublesome and disagreeable thing—but when you are thus pledged, be scrupulously faithful.

Some persons have a silly way of making a secret of something of no consequence whatever, and of telling it to each of their friends separately, and enjoining secrecy on each. Be above the petty interests of gossiping.

It is very difficult, and requires all the "wisdom of the serpent and the harmlessness of the dove" to talk of people without violating the laws of charity or of truth; it is therefore best to avoid it.

Intermeddling with the affairs of others is a sure way of getting into trouble. Beware lest you become a meddler, in the vain hope of being a peace-maker. It often happens that two persons think very hardly of each other's conduct, when ten minutes' explanation would set it all right in the minds of each.

THE HORNED MAN IN MIDDLETON.—This mythical personage has lately turned up in Middleton and is frightening people there, very much as he did when he appeared in our village. He appears now in the dress and character of a tall woman, and has done no other positive injury to the citizens than to spit in their faces when he, or she, happened to meet them. It is only out of pure respect for the costume worn by the ghost that he has been saved from being grabbed up by the indignant inhabitants. If he continues his pranks, not even their veneration for crinoline will save him.

FURLOUGHS.—We learn by a letter from an officer in the Mass. 19th, that Gen. Hooker has adopted a rule for granting furloughs, by which two officers of the line, one field officer, and two enlisted men out of every hundred, may be absent for ten days each.

From the same reliable source we learn that the soldiers of the Army of the Rappahannock are in good spirits, and comfortably housed in their tents and barracks.

☞ On February 2d, the rebels at Charleston made a tremendous effort and succeeded in raising one corner of the Federal blockade, but, not being careful to prop it up sufficiently, it fell again about dusk, and left matters very nearly as they were before. Foreign merchant vessels relying on the gasconading announcements of the Charleston papers, relative to their breaking of the blockade, will be very likely to be taken in and done for if they attempt an entrance into that port.

☞ On Wednesday of last week, the rebels carried into effect their long threatened intention of "leaving New England out in the cold" with the thermometer at from 12 to 30 below zero. They repented of their cruelty, the next day, however, and took it again indoors and into a more agreeable temperature.

☞ Pearls were selling in Boston last week, as we learn from the market report of the Journal, at 8 1-2 to 9 cents per pound. This must have been agreeable intelligence to the ladies, who are fond of such ornaments.

FLINT'S HEEL AND SOLE FACTORY.

We recently read an article entitled, "How the French Economize," showing how they worked up everything, no matter what, into something of real value. We were strikingly reminded of it the other day when visiting the factory of Mr. E. S. FLINT'S, on Mill Street, in rear of Simonds' Hotel, where stiffenings, heels and soles are manufactured in immense quantities for the shoe trade, from scraps of leather, being the odds and ends, and fag ends, trimmed and skived from the skins at the numerous currying establishments in this vicinity. Formerly these leather rags (so we will call them) were destroyed—burned up, or carted off to fill in drains or trenches—and it is not till very recently they have been put to the economic use above mentioned, thereby giving employment to a large number of males and females.

The basement of the factory is used for the storage of the rags, just as they come from the currying shops. They are purchased by weight, and command about the same price as old paper. They are then sorted and taken to the second floor, where they are cut into stiffenings, etc. The large pieces are trimmed nearly square, and set aside for soles and heels; the next largest for stiffenings, and the remaining pieces work in as a filling in the construction of the heels. In this state they are taken to the third story, where they are passed into the hands of eight or ten sprightly young females, and the different varieties and sizes pasted together to a certain thickness. As most of the rags are very thin it is necessary to use a number of pieces to attain the thickness of ordinary leather; thus a stiffening would require two or three, a sole five or six, and a heel nearly a dozen. After these are pasted and dried, they are carried into an adjoining building, and subjected to no very "gentle pressure" between two massive rollers, turned by horse-power, which so compresses and binds them together as to cause them not only to resemble but vie with good sole leather—it also imparts to it a polish like grain leather. The pieces intended for soles and heels are then passed over to other workmen, who cut them up into required sizes by aid of machinery, and they are then packed up and sent off to answer the numerous orders for them. The heels are mostly for ladies' wear. They are packed together indiscriminately, without regard to caste or pedigree—Mr. FLINT is an advocate of social equality, and when he picks up his heels, he takes them just as they come, and places a heel destined to be ground out by Miss Dinah alongside of one for her aristocratic mistress.

Mr. F. claims to be the originator of this manner of working up leather rags into soles (not souls), and if so, which we doubt not, he is entitled to no little credit; for by his industry and energy he has devised means whereby not a scrap of leather is now wasted, employment given to some twenty hands, a large saving made in the cost of material for the shoe manufacturer, and an idea demonstrated and carried out that the Yankees are coming fully up to the French in the matter of economy.

H.

☞ A clergyman in the western part of the State, or somewhere else, having preached himself out on the war in this country, took occasion, a few Sabbaths since, to dwell, at some length, upon affairs in Mexico and predicted the utter overthrow of the French. To strengthen himself in this point, he quotes from the prophet Ezekiel, (xxxv. 1 2 3,) "Son of man, set thy face against Mount Seir." "Now my friends," said he, "this can be nothing but Mounseer, the French;" and in the very next verse the prophet puts it still stronger. "O mount Seir, I am against thee, and I will stretch out mine hand against thee, and I will make thee most desolate."

☞ Some wise fellow wrote the following to an old man:—

In youth we saw thee cut thy teeth,
While the nurse, peeping from beneath,
Announced the news with glee;
But now, as if wrought up to rage,
Retaliating on thine age,
We see thy teeth cut thee.

☞ Though this Union die—as perhaps it will—it will have a resurrection. It may have a new vesture, but in some form or another it will certainly live. To those who only think they are watching its tomb, on the morning of the third day it will show itself.

☞ A clergyman in Essex County, after praying for all sorts of persons and things—for the slaves and the soldiers, and for those who go down to the sea in ships—concluded as follows: "And to Thee shall be the praise and the glory for all these transactions."

A CHEAP WAY TO CLOSE THE WAR.—Send a few thousand photographists South, and they would take the entire rebel army.

☞ It was so cold one day last week, (Wednesday) that people had to go down cellar to see how low the thermometer had gone.

[Prepared for the Wizard.]

WEEKLY REVIEW OF SOUTH DANVERS MARKET.

CORRECTED TO FEBRUARY 10, 1863.

FISH. Cod and haddock are in fair demand at four and five cents per pound. Eels are very slippery, in fact seldom ever remaining stationary, and consequently a good eel difficult to quote. Besides, there are none in the market at this time of writing, which must form our excuse for not mentioning figures. A limited supply of sand dabs—a fish of the flounder tribe—was received, but being a "strange fish," customers were reluctant to dab-ble in them. They evidently looked upon them as flat eating. There is no call for alewives, the chief demand being for the other kind of wives. Customers have been smelling round for smelts, but rather unsuccessfully, as they are very scarce, but have sold at fair rates at so much per dozen. Clams (Ipswich white) are held firmly by those who carry them off in baskets. There is some inquiry for black shells, but on the whole they look rather blue, which is somewhat singular, as they are by far the best species.

Salt fish and smoked halibut go rather hard, but generally speaking are well preserved—at standard rates.

FUEL. Pine wood cannot be quoted as there is none on the Square at this date. The schooner King Bird has been expected for some days with a large freight, but had not arrived at the last advices. It is apprehended that she is either wind-bound or captured by the Alabama. There have been some small sales of granulated alderbush at the old prices, also of faggots consigned to Messrs. Stimpson & Floyd at wholesale figures.

TOBACCO. The retail demand for this article is active and it sells readily at about 20 cents per cubic inch. It is nearly as unfortunate now for a chewer to lose his "end" as it would be for his cow to do so. In this connection we may state that there have been extensive transactions in pipes, which are now manufactured chiefly of apple tree wood, as the stock of plaster has been exhausted in making busts of our generals.

HAY. Hay, (meadow) in small jays, from the loyal State of Middleton, has been held at nominal prices during the current week. This article is now about the only staple from that distant section, the inhabitants have cut off and sold nearly all their wood to raise means to pay their taxes.

CORN. We cannot quote this staple, the kind most in vogue, the "Osborn Popping," not yet appearing in our market.

CIDER. This is quite a drug and there is not much demand for it at present. A short time ago there was a great fermentation about it, but sellers flocking in, the market soon became glutted, and this article of beverage is now settled and quiet.

MILK. There is no variation from former quotations in this article. The market is now well supplied since the springs have risen.

VINEGAR. Vinegar is sharp, commanding good figures, as a large part of the stock was soured in the making.

"A PRESENT HEAVEN."—This is the title of a pleasant volume just issued by Messrs. TICKNER & FIELDS—in print and binding most attractive. The work is of English origin, by the author of "PATIENCE OF HOPE," from the same publishers, and which many of our readers must have read. From a somewhat careful, although hasty reading of this little work, we have been disposed to look upon it with much favor and to recommend it to others. It is evidently the production of a thoughtful and earnest mind. Its title suggests its object, which is to quicken the faith in, and desire for the indwelling of God's Spirit and his Kingdom in the soul, as a condition of fulfilling His will in the life. It is eminently spiritual and seeks to inspire faith in a Heaven brought near to, and within us, and not afar off.

The style of the writer is good, and we have seldom arisen from the reading of a theological work with more pleasure, although we found much with which we could not agree. It should not be reckoned as a sectarian book, as it is evident that it was not the design of the writer to have it such. It is from a source called evangelical, yet there is in it good and substantial food for all. Those who claim to be liberal will find much with which they can sympathize, and, we may say, some things which will tend to confirm them in their own belief. It is one of the greatest evils of warring faiths that men are prevented from honestly seeking the truth any where but in the narrow path of their own sect. It is a poor sign of a man's confidence in his own belief when he is afraid to examine that of another. While the writer of this work occupies a standpoint upon his own distinctive creed, and evidently thinks that his practical suggestions grow out of it, the reader who is of a different faith will find them to harmonize with his own views and spring from his own system of belief. The "Present Heaven" of the writer is in no sense the monopoly of a creed, but may be enjoyed by every honest seeker who will open his heart to receive it. We make these remarks because we regard this little volume as practically valuable as well as usefully suggestive, and we hope none will be deterred from a careful reading of its pages from a knowledge of the antagonistic religious views of the author.

☞ The new cut, or canal opposite Vicksburg, which is to draw off the Mississippi, and leave that city high and dry, must have been the one alluded to by Shakspeare, when he wrote about the "unkindest cut of all.

THE CHARLESTON NAVAL RAID.

By the arrival of the prize steamer Princess Royal at Philadelphia, on Sunday, we have a complete and authentic account of the Charleston affair, which is widely different from that received from rebel sources. The capture of the Princess Royal appears to have been the immediate cause of the attack upon the blockading fleet. Two rams steamed down from Charleston and first attacked the Mercedita. By a clever ruse Capt. Stellwagen managed to escape with a single shot, and the rebel ram attacked the side wheel steamer Keystone State, which was disabled. The Housatonic drove the other ram away, and early on the following morning both iron-clads returned to Charleston, having failed to recover the objects of the expedition, or to break up the blockade, or destroy any of its vessels. The federal loss 24, 3 having been killed on the Mercedita and 21 on the Keystone State. The former vessel left for Port Royal where she would be repaired in a single day. The Keystone State was towed to the same port. Thus, instead of the raising of the blockade, a report which afforded the rebels so much capital, it is evident that the federal squadron is more efficient than before, only two vessels having been withdrawn and the iron-clad frigate New Ironsides having joined it.

☞ The work of the Know Nothings in this State is gradually being wiped off. The constitutional amendment ratified in 1859, which restrained foreign born citizens from voting for two years after naturalization, has been repealed, so far as legislative action can do it, and will be submitted to the people in May. So we go up and down. What four years ago carried the whole people, could only find one Senator, Israel W. Andrews, of this district—and he was a member of the House when it passed—and 10 out of 232 Representatives, to support it now.

GOOD.—It seems there is one army inspector who won't wink at the rascality of contractors. A few days since a shoe manufacturer in Essex county had a lot of shoes returned on his hands with a large hole cut through the bottom of every one, so as to effectually preclude the possibility of their subsequent acceptance by any less conscientious inspectors. Newburyport Herald.

☞ Massachusetts has furnished 100,000 men for the defence of the country, since the war began—58,214 three years men; 12,000 for the navy; and the three months and the nine months men making up the remainder. We have one-twentieth of the population, and if all the States had done as well, we should have had two millions of men in the army and navy since Sumter was fired upon.

☞ The House of Representatives on the 2d inst. passed the bill for enrolling blacks in the army and navy of the United States. Some have great hopes from this, that the places of those whose terms of service expire in the next six months can be filled from the blacks.

☞ The public is waiting impatiently to hear of the grand attack on Charleston, which is expected to come off some time during this century. Our naval expedition is not a very fleet fleet in its movements.

☞ Gen. Beauregard ought to change his name to Long bow-regard, for he draws a very long bow, or in other words, is a very big liar. Witness his manifesto in affirmation of the treachery of the Federal blockade at Charleston.

☞ Lieut. Col. A. F. Devereux, commander of the Mass. 19th Regiment, has been delegated to inspect the 2d Division, 2d Army Corps, consisting of 16 regiments—an honorable and responsible situation.

☞ Ex-Gov. Morgan has been elected Senator from New York, by 86 votes to 72 for all others. He takes the place of King—one Republican for another. He is moderate and conservative in his opinions.

☞ The "no card" fever which raged in New York, seems to have subsided.—One unfortunate wight recently appended to the notice of his marriage, "no friends to send cards to."

☞ It is stated that with 125 presses the Treasury Department are now just able to print enough greenbacks in two thirds of a day to pay the expenses of the government for one day.

☞ Chas. F. Brown, (Artemas Ward, the showman) according to the Lexington Observer is about to lead to the altar one of the most beautiful girls in Kentucky. She is very wealthy, too; in her own right having no less than 100 "contrabands."

☞ Robert Dale Owen, formerly member of Congress and Minister to Naples—always a democrat till this rebellion, and now a firm emancipationist, has accepted a clerkship in the War Department at Washington.

☞ Col. T. W. Higginson writes Gov. Andrew encouragingly concerning the contraband regiment under his command. He thinks they will make the best soldiers in the service.

DANVERS.

While lyceums in the sense of cources of lectures seem to be generally suspended in the country towns the present winter, Danvers is not excepted under the general rule. We have no lyceum, nor for many seasons have we had so few public entertainments of whatever kind. One demonstration was attempted by Ossian Dodge, and that was deservedly a failure.—Still we are not without entertainments of the useful sort. The Farmers' Club holds weekly meetings and steadily grows in favor and interest. The meetings though not largely are well attended, and have been the means of eliciting practical information valuable not only to the agriculturalist, but to those whose business is other than farming. At the same time the Club proves a good school for debate and it is said that not a few of our good yeomanry have greatly surprised themselves by finding that they had a tongue.

Another association that has held weekly meetings is the "Adult Singing Class." This numbers some sixty persons, male and female, of the old and best singers in town, under the direction of Prof. Horne. They sing mostly, it is believed, the old music, and are soon to give a concert. They will appear in Continental costume and will no doubt equal, if not eclipse the "Chelsea Continentals."

The Danvers Shakspeare Club, which has been thought to be about the best association of the club class the town ever had, did not revive its organization the present winter. The club, however, still lives. So also does the Bowditch Club, quite a number of whose members are away, debating to the rebels the question, Shall the Confederacy be recognized? But little doubt is entertained here that the question will be decided in the negative, peace propositions, foreign interventions, Galveston and Fredericksburg disasters to the contrary notwithstanding.

Business, that is, shoe business, for there is little else in this town, continues pretty good. The "liveliest" shop in town is probably the Messrs. Silvesters. They have removed to Danvers Centre (so called without any sense) into the large building formerly occupied by Tapley & French. They employ some eighty hands in the shop, have running by steam some ten of the new sewing machines, and turn out some 500 pairs of shoes per day—all army shoes. A. H. Silvester, the elder son, is equalled by few in his energy and capacity as a business man. His long experience, in the large establishment of Elder, Potter & Nute of Boston, added to his native tact and intelligence, has thoroughly acquainted him with the business in its various departments, and there are few who have so extensive acquaintance with shoe buyers throughout the country. Danvers may well be proud of him.—Cor. Gazette.

THE PLEURO-PNEUMONIA still lingers in this State, threatening the cattle. During the past year the Commissioners have continued their labors, at an expense to the State of nearly six thousand dollars. Seventy-three head of cattle were killed, most of them in the towns about Boston, that were found to be suffering from the disease; and thirty-three killed on suspicion of contamination, were perfectly healthy. The Commissioners pursued their investigations in New Jersey and New York, where they found the disease prevailing, and they apprehend more danger of its introduction from Albany than from any other direction. Farmers and others interested cannot be too careful in guarding against this complaint, as its general prevalence would occasion immense loss, and possibly its effects might be felt for years.—Newburyport Herald.

☞ The proposition to build an air line road between Washington and New York has scared the corporations who own the present lines.—Even the Camden and Amboy, a railroad which has earned for itself a greater share of public hatred than any other corporation in the country has yielded. The Washington correspondent of the Commercial Advertiser says that "the railroad companies between New York and this city offer to complete a double track all the way, to bridge the Susquehanna, to put on comfortable cars, and to make good time."

☞ The attention of farmers is again called to the advertisement of the Lodi Manufacturing Company's Poudrette. This Company manufacture all the night soil from the City of New York into a dry, inodorous powder, and at a price far below any other fertilizer in the market. They have been in successful operation for twenty-three years, with a steadily increasing demand, which is a sufficient test of the value of their manures.

SOCIAL ASSEMBLIES.—The first of a course of Social Assemblies will take place at Ashland Hall, on Thursday evening, Feb. 12th. Music by Upton & Parsons' Full Quadrille Band.—Tickets fifty cents. Dancing to commence at 7 1-2 o'clock. Managers—A. Robson, Horace Southwick, Edward Ellis, W. O. Batchelder, Thomas Robson, Florence H. Croley.

☞ As Congress persistently favors the paper monopolists, and refuses to lower the tariff on foreign paper from its present prohibitory rate, and as the issue of more paper money will raise the prices of all kinds of articles, it is more than probable that the daily papers will be obliged to add another cent or two to their present prices. Thus the people are taxed for the benefit of a few monopolizing manufacturers of paper.

GOVERNOR SEYMOUR.—It is said that Gov. Seymour, of the State of New York, designs favoring the people of New Hampshire with his views of the questions which they are to decide in the pending canvass. He is booked for speeches in Manchester, Concord and Nashua, and may make addresses in Portsmouth and Dover.

☞ The removal of Gen. Bragg and the appointment of Gen. Longstreet to the command in Tennessee shows plainly enough that the rebel authorities believe that Bragg was defeated at Murfreesboro'. If he had been successful, as he and the southern papers claim, they would not have removed him.

☞ There is at present considerable excitement among the ice companies in the vicinity of this town, caused by their inability thus far to gather a crop. Usually by the middle of January the ice-men have one-half their supply; but this season little has been cut.

☞ Pennsylvania last season exported coal to the value of thirty-four million dollars.—Of coal and coal oil she produces more value than California does of gold.

A SWEET NUT.—We profess a weakness in favor of Democracy. We take to it kindly, and we believe Democracy has some respect for us. But we can have no respect for a Democratic Senator who seems desirous of emulating the example of Mason, the traitor. In the United States Senate on Monday last, pending the consideration of the Finance Bill, Mr. Powell, Democratic Senator from Kentucky, offered an amendment, repealing all laws giving bounties to cod and other fisheries. Let Mr. Powell be thankful that the amendment was lost by a vote of 34 to 8. That pompous old traitor Mason, while dishonoring the Senate Chamber by his lordly presence, tried the same game divers times, and lamentably failed. If those who desire to vote down the bounty on cod fisheries, could experience a few weeks of the labor and dangers endured by the poor fishermen of New England, on the New Foundland Banks, we imagine their minds would be materially changed.—N. Y. Traveler.

SENSIBLE.—The most sensible remark Wendell Phillips has made lately is in reference to the displacement of General Butler from the command of the forces at New Orleans. Hear the great expounder of universal liberty:—

"Butler went down to New Orleans, and alone, alone of all our Major Generals, if he should die to-night, he can have it carved on his tombstone: I am the only American who has dared to hang a traitor! [Loud cheers.] Now, Gov. Banks goes down to that city, and he lets it be understood from the outset that he disapproves of the whole regime of Gen. Butler, and comes to replace it with another. He sent out one of your own regiments to stand over the slaves holding out their hands for the proclamation. Now, sixty or ninety days are to elapse before this faltering, stupid general is to be replaced by Butler."

ACQUITTED.—The two boys who were tried at the Court in Salem, for the alleged attempt to set fire to the Wallis School House, were acquitted. In giving our first account of the affair, we inadvertantly stated that both the boys were members of the Intermediate School. Only one of them, the younger of the two, belonged to that school.

☞ The nine months men in the Department of the Gulf are called "green back soldiers"—the bounty men—by those serving long terms who have no good feelings for the new comers.

KID FRONT SKIRTS. See PEABODY'S adv't.

SPOOL COTTONS.—The attention of the Ladies is called to adv't headed "Spool Cottons."

BARGAINS.—Read PEABODY'S adv't.

CLOSING.—See adv't headed 'Spool Cottons.'

CARD.

The ladies of the Benevolent Society gratefully acknowledge the receipt of eight dollars from the S. D. Fire Club.

So. Danvers, Feb. 11th, 1863.

☞ The Exeter News Letter says the Post Office in that town was broken into on Saturday night and all the letters stolen.

☞ Messrs. D. B. Brooks & Brother have sent us, from their elegant Music Rooms, No. 6 Central Street, the "Music Vale Waltz," by J. L. Gilbert. Published by Russell & Pattee.

Messrs. Brooks and Brother deal largely in Pianos and Melodeons. They buy, exchange or sell on the most reasonable terms. Purchasers can always try sheet music on their pianos before purchasing.

MANUAL FENOLLOSA,
TEACHER
OF THE
Violin, Piano and Singing,
MUSIC ROOMS, No. 7 Central Street,
SALEM, MASS.

M. FENOLLOSA,
TEACHER OF MUSIC,
LETS.....PIANO FORTES,
at the lowest rates;
SELLS.....PIANO FORTES,
at the Manufacturers Prices;
EXCHANGES....PIANO FORTES,
on the easiest terms;
At Rooms No. 7 Central street,
feb 11 SALEM, MASS.

Omnibus Notice.

On and after Thursday, Jan. 15, 1863—for the better accommodation of the public—the Omnibus fare between South Danvers and Salem will be FIVE CENTS, or 22 Tickets for One Dollar.

Passengers called for or left off the regular route, 15 cents, or 25 cents for two.

January 14 H. M. MERRILL.

Notice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

☞ Call and look at the HUDSON BAY SABLES, at OSBORNE'S.

Notice JAMES F. ALMY'S advertisement.

Save your Rags and Paper!

The subscriber will pay the highest prices in CASH for Rags and Paper. By giving seasonable notice he will call at the houses of those who wish to dispose of their rags.

"A penny saved is as good as a penny earned."
So Poor Richard says.

SUMNER SOUTHWICK.
South Danvers, Jan 14, 1863.

Marriages.

In Boxford, Jan 29th, by Rev W S Coggin, Mr Perley Bunker to Miss Alvira Sawyer, both of Georgetown.

In Boston, Feb 4th, by Rev Mr Miner, Mr John C Vennard of Lynn, to Miss Marey Ann Smith of Malden.

Deaths.

In this town, Feb 9th, of consumption, Mr Nelson Brown, aged 35 years 8 mos. Funeral the residence of Edward Giddings, on Central St. Relatives and friends are invited.

In Danvers Centre, Feb 7, after a lingering sickness, which she bore with Christian patience and submission, Mrs Catharine E, wife of Benjamin Hutchinson, 46 years 5 mos.

In Salem, Feb 4, Miss Susan Daland, 82 yrs 3 mos; 7th, Mrs Eunice, widow of the late Col John Russell, 85 yrs 5 mos.

In Boston, Feb 1, Mrs Hannah, widow of the late Benj T Pickman, 68 yrs.

ANNUAL ST
—OF TH
RECEIPTS AND
—OF TH
COUNTY OF
For the Year Endi

RECEI

Balance in the Treasury, 1, 1862,
Received, balance of Taxe
"	on Taxes for 18
"	Money hired in permanent and loans,
"	Interest on No after that date,
"	Interest on Tax ter they were d
"	for Board of Asylum at Ipsw
"	for Board of Pr House of Corr Ipswich,
"	for Labor of Pr House of Corr Ipswich,
"	for Sundry Art at House of at Ipswich,
"	for Board of Pr House of Corr Lawrence,
"	for Labor of Pri House of Corr Lawrence,
"	for Sundry Arti at House of at Lawrence,
"	for Board at Jai lem and Newbu
"	for Fines, Cost Fees, & unclaim ness Fees, refu Magistrates, Offi others, in criminal cutions,
"	of Clerk of Cour excess of his f $2000,
"	for Pedlar's Lice
"	of Town of Roel account of High
"	for Land, Rent, Buildings, in Sal

EXPENDIT

Paid amount of Notes, pe and temporary Lo
"	amount of interest,
"	for Support of Prisone House of Correct Insane in Asylum wich,
"	" Support of Priso House of Correcti Jail at Lawrence,
"	" Salaries of Overs Houses of Correcti
"	" Support of Prisor Jail at Salem,
"	" Support of Prisor Jail at Newburypo
"	" Reclaiming Prisone
"	" Expense of Crimina ecutions,
"	" Expense of Civil Te Courts,
"	" Coroners' Inquests,
"	" Records, Indexing, ing and Stationary,
"	" Law Library Associa
"	" Highways,
"	" Fuel, Lights, and A ance, at Court House
"	" Repairs and Furnitu County Buildings,
"	" Completion of New House at Salem,
"	" Board of Examiner Services and Travel,
"	" County Commissione laries,
"	" Treasurer's Salary,
"	" Sheriff's "
"	" Judge of Probate, con ting Lunatics,
"	" State Comm'r, visitin sane Asylum at Ipswi
"	" Land adjoining Hou Correction at Ipswich
Balance in the Treasury Jan. 1,
Cash in Treasury Jan. 1, 1863,
Balance of Taxes for 1862, unp
Amount of Permanent Debt, uary 1, 1862,
Amount of Permanet Debt, uary 1, 1863,
Reduction of Debt in 1862,

The outstanding Notes of t payable, viz:—

$52,000 at 5 1-2 per cent. inte
55,000 " " " " "
30,000 " 5 per cent. interest,
20,000 " " " " "
115,000 " " " " "

The whole amount of the Co incurred for the erection and i County Buildings, prior to 1860.

A. D. WAIT,
JAMES KIMBALL,
J. B. SWETT,
ALLEN W. DODGE, Coun

A true copy. Attest.
A. HUNTINGT
Salem Feb. 11, 1863.

The* Clothes W

JUST OBTAINE
RHOADES' CELEBR
NATIONAL CLOTHES W
THE VERY BEST YET IN
AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING
CALL AND EXAMINE
For Sale by E. SOUTH
At the EQUITY GROCER
South Danvers, Jan 21, 1863.

T. HARDY, JR.
—Dealer in—
DOORS, SASHES,
Glazed Sash, Painted
FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS
PINS, &c.,
No. 26 FRONT STR
Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

IHLSING & NARVES
Celebrated New Full 7 Octa
PIANO FORT
OF superior tone a plain and ornamental,
inlaid with pearl, full i grand action, overstrung bass pear keys, plain or carved legs, are for sale
218 Essex Street, Salem, Up Sta
Any one wishing to obtain a superi ment is invited to call before purcha where.
jan 7—tf S. MACKINTIRE,

A Good Milk Route for Sale,

INQUIRE at this office.
South Danvers, Feb. 11, 1863.

James F. Almy.

JAN. 27, 1863.

WE offer to-day a stock of

CLOAKS, SHAWLS,

—AND—

Winter Dress Goods

At REDUCED PRICES TO CLOSE.

JAMES F. ALMY,

jan 14 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

— We offer a fine stock of —

Bleached & Brown Cottons

All widths—at lowest prices.

— Also —

A FULL STOCK OF DOMESTIC GOODS.

JAMES F. ALMY,

jan 28 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

Advertisements.

Linen Fronts, Cuffs & Collars.

LINENS are advancing, consequently there must be a corresponding advance in the above named articles. The present is the time to buy all styles and qualities in stock bought before the rise, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
Gent's Furnishing Store,
Feb 11 No. 228 Essex st, Stearns' Building.

Scarfs. Ties. Stocks.

THE LARGEST ASSORTMENT,
THE BEST STYLES
THE LOWEST PRICES.

Also—BLACK SILK CRAVATS—30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches—Matteoni's manufacture, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
feb 11 228 Essex st, Stearns' Block.

Umbrellas.

GINGHAM, Silk and Cotton—largest stock in the city, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
Dealer in Gent's Furnishing Goods & Toilet Articles. Opposite Eastern Railroad Station.
feb 11

ELEGANT NEW GOODS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

OPEN THIS MORNING

MANY NEW STYLES OF

DRESS GOODS,

INCLUDING

Rich and Heavy Black Silks,

Rich Plain Colored Silks.

☞ Our patrons are invited to examine these Goods. Prices are still advancing, and money will be saved by buying now.

Salem, February 11, tf

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

ESSEX, ss. PROBATE COURT.

To the Heirs at-Law, Next of Kin, and all other persons interested in the Estate of JOHN NEEDHAM, late of South Danvers, in said County, yeoman, deceased, GREETING:

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court, for Probate, by SIDNEY C. BANCROFT, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him the executor therein named:

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Salem, in said County of Essex, on the first Tuesday of March next, at nine o'clock before noon, to show cause, if any you have, against the same.

And said Sidney C. Bancroft is herchy directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once a week, for three successive weeks, in the newspaper called the South Danvers Wizard, printed at South Danvers, the last publication to be two days, at least, before said court.

Witness, GEORGE F. CHOATE, Esquire, Judge of said court, this third day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three.

feb 11 A. C. GOODELL, Register.

100,000 BARRELS OF THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S

POUDRETTE,

111 COMMERCIAL ST., BOSTON, MASS.

This Company, with a capital of $150,000, the most extensive works of the kind in the world, and an experience in manufacturing of over 23 years, with a reputation long established, having also the exclusive control of all the night soil of the great city of New York, are prepared to furnish an article, which is, without doubt, the CHEAPEST AND VERY BEST fertilizer in market. It greatly increases the yield, and ripens the crop from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from three to four dollars per acre, with little or no labor. Also, FIFTY TONS of BONE TAFEU, being a mixture of bone and night soil ground fine, at $45 per ton—a superior article for grain and grass. Price of POUDRETTE, $1 60 per barrel. Seven barrels and over delivered free of charge. A pamphlet containing all necessary information may be had free by addressing a letter to the subscriber.

JAMES T. FOSTER,
Care of the Lodi Manufacturing Company,
66 Courtland St., New York.

Agents—WELCH & FAIRFIELD, Grocers, Lowell Street, South Danvers. feb 11—3m

WALKING MADE EASY.

DR. P. KENISON,

CHIROPODIST,

215 Washington St., Boston,

Cures Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails. Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

Browning & Long.

POINT DE VENICE

SKIRTS.

SOMETHING ENTIRELY NEW.

NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS. NEW YORK BELLE SKIRTS.

BROWNING & LONG have received their Spring Skirts, being of New Shape and Design, Kid Fronts and Springs Securely Fastened.

In the "Point de Venice" will be found a perfect Skirt, being of a beautiful shape, and having attached to it a Kid Bodice, which fits closely to the form, making it a graceful and durable Skirt, and especially adapted to the present style of fitting dresses.

Receiving our Skirts direct from the manufacturers, we are enabled to show a fine assortment of New Styles, and can offer them at

VERY LOW PRICES.

BROWNING & LONG,

(Successors to J. Mayer.)

Jan. 28. 177 Essex Street.

John P. Peabody.

COTTONS.

We are this week showing Bargains in Cotton Hosiery.

We have opened our Stock which was bought last season, and shall offer them for the present at much less than the Jobbers' or Importers prices.

Cotton Hosiery for Misses;
Cotton Hosiery for Children;
Cotton Hosiery of all kinds.

Spool Cottons.

The Best Glazed Spool Cottons—6 cts;
The Best Glazed Spool Cottons—6 cts;
The Best Glazed Spool Cottons—6 cts;
The Best Glazed Spool Cottons—6 cts;
The Best Glazed Spool Cottons—6 cts.

Pins—4 cents;
Pins—4 cents;
Pins—4 cents;
Pins—4 cents;

Ladies' Merino Pants and Vests—Skirts—Corsets—Shapes—Chemises—Drawers—Shapes &c, &c.

220 ESSEX ST., SALEM,
JOHN P. PEABODY.

LARGE SALES
AND SMALL PROFITS.

THE NEWEST STYLES!

BROWNING & LONG

Have just opened the following articles, being of the Datest Importation and New Patterns:

STEEL PINS;
STEEL CROSSES;
STEEL CUFF PINS;
STEEL EAR RINGS;
STEEL BELT CLASPS;
STEEL BELT PINS;
CORNELIAN SHAWL PINS;
PEARL SLEEVE BUTTONS;
JET AND STEEL BUTTONS;
CUT STEEL BUTTONS;
NEW SLIPPER PATTERNS;
JET BONNET TRIMMINGS.

NEW GOODS constantly received—we are thus able to show our customers the newest the market affords.

BROWNING & LONG,

SUCCESSORS TO

J. MAYER,

☞ No. 177 Essex Street, ☜

FIRST CLASS GOODS AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

The remainder of our

Knit Zephyr Goods

To be sold at REDUCED PRICES.

Salem, Jan 28, 1863.

SLATING. SLATING.

GEORGE FOWLER & COMPA'Y,

NO. 2 ST. PETER COURT, SALEM, respectfully inform their friends and the citizens of this and neighboring towns and cities that they are prepared to execute all orders for Slating, promptly and faithfully.

Roofs covered with any description of Slates, or repaired at short notice.

All work undertaken will be warranted.
Address—Box 366, Salem Post Office.
Salem, January 28—1863. tf

KEROSENE LANTERMS.

KEROSENE Stand and Hand Lamps, and Peg Lamps. Also Wicks and Chimneys—for sale by S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

PAPER SHADES.

A FINE assortment of Paper Shades for Kerosene Lamps, just opened at S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

GLUE AND CEMENT.

HILTON'S Insoluble Cement; Richards's Improved Cement; Spaulding's, Upton's, and Nichols's Liquid Glues, for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
feb 11

JUVENILE BOOKS,

A VERY large assortment for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

WALLETS & CURRENCY HOLDERS.

MANY new styles and desirable patters—received from the manufacturers—at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, feb 4 190 Essex Street, Salem.

George S. Walker.

AT REDUCED PRICES.

GEORGE S. WALKER

Offers his Winter Stock of

Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods,

SUCH as All-Wool, Merino, and Silk Shirts and Drawers,

HOSIERY, GLOVES, SCARFS,

And other Seasonable Goods,

At such Reduced Prices as will make it for the interest of purchasers to examine before purchasing elsewhere, at

GEORGE S. WALKER'S,
jan 28 228 Essex st. Stearns' Block.

"A Penny Saved is a Penny Gained."

THE PRICE OF COTTON IS ADVANCING! Now is the time to order SHIRTS and COLLARS. The finer qualities made to order, sewed by hand, and warranted to fit.

Also, in stock, bought for CASH, before the advance, my usual variety and sizes of

READY-MADE SHIRTS AND COLLARS.

GEORGE S. WALKER,
jan 28 228 Essex St., Salem.

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,

FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,

Central street, South Danvers,

HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.

He keeps as good an assortment of

COFFINS AND CASKETS,

as can be found at any establishment, and at the lowest prices.

He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.

All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

SOUTH DANVERS POST OFFICE.

GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.

MAILS CLOSE

At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.

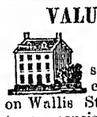
MAILS DUE

At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.

Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.

F. POOLE, P. M.
South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.



THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from 330 to 350 dollars.

The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.
South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

FOR SALE.

A GOOD comfortable Home, a two-story House, L, Shed and Barn, in good repair, pleasantly located in Londonderry, N. H., 1 1-2 miles from center of town, 10 acres of Land, with plenty of Fruit. Price only $650.

Also—an excellent Stock Farm of 250 acres, for sale or exchange.

dec 31 L. BRICKETT, Derry, N. H.

FRANKLIN COAL.

JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL—the best in the world for domestic use.

POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf

E. N. PRICE,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

HARNESSES,
SADDLES, BRIDLES,
AND WHIPS.

— ALSO —

Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.

All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.

237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
meh13-tf

Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

GAYLE & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

DEALERS IN

Flour, Grain and Produce,

Manufacturers' Agents for the sale of

Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.

PHILLIPS WHARF. - - - - - Salem.

REMOVAL!

AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,

Manufacturer and Repairer of

BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

D. W. BOWDOIN,

—ARTIST IN—

PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.

Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]

Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotype, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.

☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

EXTRA HEAVY SHEETINGS.

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS

A FINE assortment—for sale at low prices at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
jy 14 190 Essex Street, Salem.

NEW BOOKS.

STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom;
Fire Light; or Stories for Domesties, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;
Gardener's Monthly—January;
Harper's Weekly; Genealogical Register;
Historical Collections, October, 1862.

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
At the old stand of H Whipple & Son

A. J. Archer & Co

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,

Have on hand a full supply of

BROWN SHEETINGS AND

SHIRTINGS;

BLEACHED SHEETINGS &

SHIRTINGS;

— Also —

GREY TWILLED FLANNELS;

WHITE FLANNELS.

— Also —

BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,

which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES.

Salem, January 28—6w

SALESMAN WANTED.

APPLY at 181 Essex street, Salem.
A. J. ARCHER, & CO.

H. & H. G. HUBON,

WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM

Manufacturers of

Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood

COFFINS and CASKETS.

MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish. Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.

Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.

dec 13—tf

Rare Chance for Bargains.

CLOSING OUT SALE!
Large and fine stock of

JEWELRY, SILVER PLATED WARE,

AND FANCY GOODS,

At No. 2 West Block, 188 Essex street.

JOSEPH J. RIDER

Having in contemplation an immediate change of business, offers his entire stock of Fine Jewelry,

Pure Coin Silver Ware,
Rich Plated Ware,
Fancy Goods,
Spectacles,
Cutlery,
&c., &c.

at greatly REDUCED PRICES, wishing to dispose of all at the earliest possible time.

This stock is quite new, and was carefully selected for the Salem trade, and offers an excellent opportunity, not often presented, of making purchases for Christmas and New Year's Presents, Wedding and Friendly Gifts, Refurnishing the Table, &c.

Old Silver taken in exchange.

☞ Don't fail to call before purchasing elsewhere, as all articles are guaranteed as per representation, and prices will be satisfactory.

JOSEPH J RIDER,
No. 2 West Block—188 Essex street.

W. E. P. SMYTH,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.

Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,

PHILLIPS WHARF. - - - - - Salem.

REMOVAL!

AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,

Manufacturer and Repairer of

BOOTS AND SHOES,

HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

D. W. BOWDOIN,

—ARTIST IN—

PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.

Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]

Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotype, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.

☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

EXTRA HEAVY SHEETINGS.

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS

A FINE assortment—for sale at low prices at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
jy 14 190 Essex Street, Salem.

NEW BOOKS.

STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom;
Fire Light; or Stories for Domesties, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;
Gardener's Monthly—January;
Harper's Weekly; Genealogical Register;
Historical Collections, October, 1862.

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
At the old stand of H Whipple & Son

Tenements to Let.

ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $64 per year.

One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.

One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.

One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.

One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

MUNROE'S

(LATE REED'S)

SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON

RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at		10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " "	at	5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at		3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " "	at	5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.

Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.

EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.

Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.

Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.

ARMY EXPRESS.

Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed:

WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

E. F. BURNHAM,

SOLE AGENT FOR

SARGENT & CO.S'

MAGIC SOAP

For South Danvers & Salem.

OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.

Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.

Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,

Manufacturer and Dealer in

INNER SOLES,

AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS,

2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

THOMAS PINNOCK,

SLATER,

SALEM, MASS.

Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.

Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.

Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

CURRIER & MILLETT,

Dealers in

Furniture, Chairs,

MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c

259 & 261 ESSEX ST,

Salem, dec 14—1y

WM. C. HENDERSON,

MANUFACTURER OF

PLAIN AND FANCY

PAPER BOXES,

No. 235 ESSEX STREET,

Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"

july 23 SALEM. tf

Top Buggy for Sale,

NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St.
South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

Heckscher Coal!

$8.25 per Ton on Wharf.

A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,

Both Red and White Ash,

Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by

W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.
july 9

AARON T. LOWE,

DEALER IN

BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,

76 BOSTON STREET, 76.

aug 6 SALEM. tf

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.

THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of

Patent Granular Fuel,

which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25	Bushels, delivered,	2 25
50	do do	4 00
100	do do	7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.

BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, june 18.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.

JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

R. C. MANNING & CO,

Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,

DEALERS IN

COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,

188 DERBY STREET,

SALEM, MASS.

N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.
oct17

NOTICE.

I HEREBY give notice that I have this day given to my son NATHANIEL F HURD, now 16 years old, his time, and I will not detain his earnings or pay any debts he may contract after this date.

HARFORD HURD.
Danvers, January 14, 1862. 3w*

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.

THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, one of which the Mackie took the First Premium at the last Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.

BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook.
South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862. tf

☞ If you want to SVAE MONEY, in purchasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, No. 10 Front street, Salem. ap30-tf

Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,

Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,
34 Front Street.

Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

TO LET.

A SMALL and convenient TENEMENT, on Washington Street, not far from Aborn St. For terms apply to H. C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, Nov. 26, 1362.

GRIST MILL.

HAVING made arrangements for carrying on the Grist Mill at Newhall's Crossing, at South Danvers, I take this method of informing the public that the mill is now open and ready for business.

Any patronage in the line of grinding corn or other grain, or making COB MEAL, will be gratefully received, and all orders promptly attended to.

If equally convenient for customers to bring their grists afternoons instead of forenoons they will accommodate me by doing so.

ELBRIDGE C. NEWHALL.
South Danvers, Dec 3, 1862.

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,

Druggist and Apothecary,

38 MAIN STREET.

Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.

Personal attention to Physicians' Prescriptions.

South Danvers, May 29, 1861. 1y

GEO. E. MEACOM

Dealer in

DRUGS & MEDICINES,

Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.,

126 · · MAIN ST. · · 126

Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,

Druggist & Apothecary

37 Main St., So. Danvers,

DEALER IN

Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponges, Shoulder Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines

Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery.

Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by experienced persons.

37 MAIN STREET.

PATTERSON'S

LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE

THE undersigned are agents for the above machine. It can be seen in operation at Pinder & Brown's Tannery.

may 7—3m CLARK & GIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,

Wallis Street, South Danvers,

Are Agents for

GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S

PATENT EAVE TROUCHS

CUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND

PIPE FOR DRAINS.

South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

Potter, Bachelder & Co.,

(Successors to M. Black)

DANVERS-PORT,

DEALERS IN

WOOD AND COAL

OF the various kinds usually kept in a retail yard. Constantly on hand

Franklin, Old Company's Lehigh,
Locust Mountain, Black Heath,
Red and White Ash.

Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere.

OFFICE---No. 6 Allen's Building.

Order Box at post office, South Danvers, and post office, Danvers.

G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BACHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. july 19—tf

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St.

PRICES REDUCED!

WE shall sell our DRESS GOODS at REDUCED PRICES.

We shall sell all the different styles of Ladies' Watch Spring, Bon Ton and Quaker Skirts, at a discount.

All our Balmoral Skirts at a discount;
French Prints and other grades;
Domestic Goods;
Cottons, Flannels, Crashes;
Blankets, the very best quality—all widths;
Batting, full pound bundles;
Wool Wadding, Sheet Wadding, black and white.

☞ In order to prepare for Spring Trade, we shall sell at the very lowest prices for cash.

jan 7 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal St.

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,

IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found at G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
dec 24 Sign of Five Golden Books.

MUSICAL NOTICE.

Chickering & Sons' Piano-Fortes.

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St. would inform her friends in South Danvers, and the public generally that she keeps for sale and to let Chickering & Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with great care, and need only to be tried to prove their superiority over every other in the market. The very best terms given.

MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPHINES

For sale and to let. For power and quality of tone none can surpass them A. R BRAY,
76 Federal str-

DIARIES--1863-

AN excellent assortment at the lowest prices, for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

LINSEED OIL.

SPIRITS Turpentine. Japan Drying and Varnishes, constantly for sale by S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

NEW BOOKS

AT G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S, 190 Essex st. Salem:

Verner's Pride, a Tale of Domestic Life. by Mrs Wood.
Lady Audley's Secret, a Novel. by M E Bradden;
My Diary North and South—by William Howard Russell;
Eclectic Magazine—February.
Lady Lisle, by M E Braddon, author of Aurora Floyd; No Name, by Wilkie Collins;
Chronicles of Carlingford, by Mrs Oliphant;
Mistress and Maid, by Miss Muloch;
Elementary Instruction—Object Lessons. by E A Sheldon;
Handbook of American Genealogy, by William H Whitmore.

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water

Prof. M. G. BROWN.

SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are never studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely for wash. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this fluid, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can also find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks like blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets scumy and glazed, the ball turns a green or yellowish color, which is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system): Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, asthma, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, depletion of the fluids; these, with all other diseases are caused as above described. One stop leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin immortalized himself by such sayings as "a ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure."

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, how they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 18

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been induced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose as a last resort, of having the ball taken from its sockett in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did so with the most delightful results. In a few days the painful irritation was removed. I could bear the strongest light, and went out as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to trouble me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from pro[lapsus] pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign relief in her case, giving her almost instant re[lief].

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published of the most remarkable cures on record. As a perfect restorer of weak sight and dimness it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, the ear (many bathe the eyes with the ear). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 5 cents.

Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at $1 per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Prop

The Confessions and Experience of a Poor Young Man.

A GENTLEMAN having been cured by the results of early error and disease, from motives of benevolence, send to those who request it, a copy of the above interesting narrative, published by himself. This little work is designed as a warning and caution to young men and those who suffer from NERVOUSNESS, LOSS OF MEMORY, PREMATURE DECAY, &c., &c., supplying at the same time the means of self-cure. Single copies will be sent under seal in a plain envelope, free of charge,—to any who request it, by addressing the author,

CHAS. A. LAMBERT, Esq.
Greenpoint, Long Island, New York.

TABLE CUTLERY.

A FULL stock of Knives and Forks. Carvers & Steels. and Butcher Knives—received and for sale by
nov 19 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

FOR NEW YEAR'S

ELEGANT BOOKS; NEW BOOKS;
BEAUTIFUL FANCY GOODS; BIBLES;
PARIAN; WOOD CARVINGS;
FINE CUTLERY; GAMES;
PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS;
DARLEY'S MORNING, NOON & NIGHT;

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books.

REMOVAL.

JOHN J. ASH

WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to

No. 145 Essex Street,

formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of

BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,

and will MANUFACTURE to order, at short notice, Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.

Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASH, Successor to John Dike.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

E. R. PERKINS

PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST,

241 Essex Street, Salem.

Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopic Pictures,

Photographs, Sphereotypes, Melainotypes, Ambrotypes, Stereoscopic Pictures, of various sizes, taken by the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired.

Dr. Ham's Sp

Continued from first page.

ter for some rich man, and to that end designed that she should, the coming winter, visit the family of an old correspondent at Albany, who, like himself, had become rich by traffic, and had kindly invited the daughter to pass a month at his house, with a reference, as the girl's parents fondly suspected, to an eventual alliance between the girl and a son of the Albanian. But while the old people were thus cogitating, they were ultimately surprised to find that the young girl's affections had already been for some time gained by a young man of the vicinity, a merchant's clerk, who often met her at the evening singing school and accompanied her home. He was the last person the parents would have selected for a son-in-law, he having, while a youth, incurred the mother's dire displeasure by frequently pilfering fruit from their apple orchard, and ridiculing her impotent menaces at what he depreciatingly said was only "hooking" an apple. He was, moreover, entirely destitute of property, which the father deemed a still worse disqualification; but the girl's mind was unchangeable, and as the young man was remarkable for activity and for skill as a salesman to the country people who traded with his employer, the match was finally consummated; and to make the best of a bad bargain the father-in-law ultimately consented that SMITH, the young man in question, should become his partner in trade, whereby the activity and skill of the young man would not only benefit himself, but add to the wealth of the old man, and indulge his growing desire for retirement.

Soon after this marriage and the establishment of the new firm, my business acquaintance with it commenced by a call from the young man for the discount of a few notes that he had taken from the debtors of the firm. As I had long known the senior partner, and liked the appearance of the junior, I was pleased with the acquisition of their business, which the young man said he intended to make extensive, the locality possessing great capabilities that had been sadly unimproved; and he was then on his way to New York to procure a large stock of goods. I gave him the money freely, and from this period similar calls from the young man became increasingly frequent; and as I discounted readily every note that he presented, the process came to be deemed so much a matter of course that he began to transmit by mail to me the notes he wished to have discounted, and to draw on the bank for the proceeds without any previous negotiation. I soon noticed, but without disapprobation, the continually increasing business of the firm, and the increasing magnitude of the notes that were sent for discount; and on inquiring of the neighbors, whom I casually met, I was told that the house had greatly enlarged its business, selling much at wholesale to remote country dealers, who thus replenished their stock of goods in preference to making a journey to New York or Albany, which places were difficult of approach, and the transportation therefrom dilatory and expensive. I accidentally met, also, one day, the old man, the senior partner, and to make sure all was right, I questioned him in relation to business. He said SMITH, his partner, was certainly transacting an immense business, and no sooner received from New York a shop full of goods than they were sold out, at a profit, to country dealers. The old man seemed to have become proud of his son-in-law, whom he characterized as a wonderfully smart fellow. He seemed also elated at the success of the business, which he said had become so much beyond his own habits and notions that he no longer attempted to interfere therewith in any way.

Satisfied thus that the business paper was legitimate, and the notes being all paid punctually as they became due, I continued making the discounts that were offered, knowing that the company made the paper good, even if the makers of the notes should prove to be not good; a result which was not probable to any great amount, SMITH not being likely to sell on credit without a knowledge that the purchasers were reliable. Thus matters continued, till after the lapse of a year, when, on looking at the paper running to maturity that we had discounted for the firm, its magnitude startled me, and I was determined to reduce the amount. Accordingly I sent back, undiscounted, the next notes that I received from the firm; but the notes were forthwith returned to me, with a very urgent request that I should discount them, as no such disappointment had been anticipated. The urgency of the new application increased my dislike to the paper, for, if the house was transacting a legitimate business, the inability to realize immediately its business notes, taken apparently for a recent sale of goods, ought not to be embarrassing; and I again returned the notes, more determined than before not to cash them. The second rebuff brought Mr. SMITH himself down to see me, to try apparently the effect of personal persuasion; but as I had long entertained a theory that no bank should make a loan that was pressed pertinaciously, his efforts only the more strengthened my refusal. I was then told by him, as a last resort to obtaid the discount, that several notes we already possessed, and which were that day at maturity, could not be paid unless the new notes were discounted. I therefore began to suspect that the punctuality of former payments had been fictitious, being made by SMITH & Co. themselves, not by the makers; and that the payments afforded no evidence of the banking goodness of the makers, but rather the contrary. The aggregate of the notes which we held being large, I began to fear that the company might have overtraded to an amount sufficient to ruin them, and hence a new policy, on the part of the bank, was necessary, and I accordingly proposed to take of SMITH & Co. their own notes for such business paper as should become payable and not be paid by the makers; the firm giving me satisfactory endorsers, which they could easily obtain in their neighborhood.

No other alternative existing, SMITH returned home and eventually sent me, from time to time, the kind of paper I required. But little of the business paper we held was paid by the makers, who were found to be mostly irresponsible, SMITH having sold to them from an ambition to transact a large wholesale business, without scrutinizing sufficiently the persons with whom he traded, and who were chiefly such as could not obtain credit in New York or Albany. The moment business paper became unconvertible into money, by the process of being discounted, its intrinsic defect could no longer be concealed from the deluded firm itself; and the wholesale superstructure that had been reared so suddenly vanished into a mass of promises to pay, that were never to be realized.

By the time all the notes we had discounted were redeemed by SMITH & Co.'s own notes, the pecuniary embarrassments of the firm became apparent to their New York creditors, who clamored for security, till SMITH saw nothing before him but certain and speedy destruction. He had obtained from his neighbors all the assistance they could yield, both by endorsements and by selling to him, on credit, their wheat, pork, butter, cheese and every other farming product that he could send to New York in satisfaction of his commercial creditors, from whom he hoped to obtain a new stock of goods wherewith to pay for the produce he had purchased; but suspicion, when once implanted in the mind of a creditor, becomes "the rooted evil" which cannot be plucked therefrom, and nobody would supply the required new goods Even the neighbors became at length aroused to a consciousness of danger, and began to talk to the senior partner of what the firm were intending by the absence of any new stock of goods. He had not failed to observe the change in the business and to suspect a coming trouble; but without energy enough to arrest any catastrophe, and without knowledge enough of his son-in-law's operations to comprehend their ruinous extent, he had contented himself with talking to SMITH, and receiving from him assurances that everything was right. A trifling embarrassment SMITH admitted to exist, but he possessed an entire ability to extricate the firm, pay all its liabilities and leave a large surplus of gain. He laughed at the apprehension of any other result, and would like to see a man who doubted the success of the firm. He was making arrangements to pay all the debts, and intended hereafter to owe nobody. Much money he had already collected, and was on the eve of leaving home for New York to bring up a larger stock of goods than ever. Before this occurred, however, one night the quiet village was suddenly aroused from sleep by the alarm of fire, and it was found to proceed from the store of SMITH & Co. The flames already enveloped the old wooden building and bid defiance to all the unorganized efforts of the neighbors to save an article of its contents. Even the large amount of money that SMITH professed to have collected was burnt up, together with the notes, accounts and all the books. He was early on the ground, and raved like a madman, threatening to rush into the burning mass, till he was compulsorily forced to desist. Fire insurances were unpracticed in the country at the time in question; and, before daylight dawned, nothing remained of the establishment but a mass of smouldering ashes.

The insolvency of the company was now admitted by SMITH himself, the fire being apology enough for such a result; and the poor old man fully realized at length the condition of his affairs, and seeing that his hard-earned property was inevitably lost, yielded, finally, to the suggestion of the village attorney, and assigned all his house lots and other lands that he possessed to secure the neighbors, who, on the strength of his wealth, had endorsed for the company; and, if any property remained, it was to be paid ratably to the neighboring farmers who had trusted their produce to the firm; while the New York creditors obtained nothing. Thus, in the period of his weakness and utmost need, was the poor old man and his wife, no longer deemed a witch, left with no known resources for the future.

The last I heard of SMITH he had taken his wife and removed, but whither I never learned; while most of the neighbors silently suspected that he was the author of the fire, as a desperate expedient to excuse the ruin his recklessness had caused, and which he had not courage enough to face honestly. I have always deemed him a victim to the too easy conversion into money of business paper, though the bank certainly intended nothing but a mutual benefit.

TOWN TAXES.

REVISED AND CORRECTED.

[As there were some mistakes and a number of omissions in this list as we printed it last week, we have concluded to re publish it, after correcting the errors, etc.]

We present below the list of tax payers of $50 and upwards for the present year. Some names appear in it for the first time, as the rate is higher than ever before, being $10.60 to the thousand dollars. All understand that our increased rate is a necessity of the times, and it is pleasant to hear that the taxes are paid more readily and with less complaint than in former and more favorable years:

Lewis Allen,	$360.81
" " Trustee,	131.44
Nathaniel Annable,	119.66
Alfred A. Abbott,*	52.88
Joshua Buxton,	185.91
Joshua Buxton, Jr.,	64.54
William Berry,	52.35
Samuel Brown, Jr.,	86.68
Alpheus W. Bancroft,	86.68
William Bushby,	69.84
Joseph Bushby,	53.41
John M. Berry,	69.84
Rufus H. Brown,	69.31
Henry Bushby,	122.84
John C. Burbeck,	94.75
Sidney C. Bancroft,	185.91
Elijah Flint's Estate,	54.59
Benj. Goodridge,	101.64
Henry Gardner,	489.60
Perley Goodale,	55.53
Asa Gardner's Estate,	124.26
Alerson Galeucia,	52.35
Isaac Hardy,	166.83
Joseph S. Hodgkins,	76.20
Benjamin Hutchinson,	263.82
Mrs. B. Howard,	75.26
John Herrick,	60.30
N. W. Horton & Co.,	182.32
Joseph Jacobs,	100.05
Warren M. Jacobs,	253.75
W. M. Jacobs & Son,	89.04
Jonathan King,	804.95
Amos King,	58.71
Phebe King,	290.44
Eben King,	429.71
Perley and E. U. King,	88 51
Perley King,	290.85
Henry A. King,	287.67
Eben U. King,	230.96
James P. King,	307.28
Samuel P. C. King,	271.24
Obadiah Kimball,	179.02
D. Webster King,	76.20
William W. Little's Estate,	128.26
John A. Lord,	75.67
William N. Lord,	75.67
Richard Loring,‡	55.00
R. Loring and D. Daniels,‡ Trustees to Abagail Loring,	62.54
Charles P. Lowe,	124.96
Wm. H. Little,	102.70
Plummer Little,	129.20
James Marsh,	108.00
Mary Marsh,	60.42
Philip Marsh,	83.09
Wingate Merrill,	89.45
Isaac Munroe,	62.42
Henry M. Merrill,†	59.24
Stephen P. Needham,	56.06
Nelson & Merrill,	58.83
Kendall Osborn,	184.32
Amos Osborn,	161.00
Franklin Osborn,	237.20
Joseph Osgood,	62.42
Daniel Osborn,	102.70
Joshua Osborn,	58.18
Caleb W. Osborn,	86.80
Amos Osborn, 2d,	52.88
Caleb Osborn,	170.01
Sylvester Osborn,	254.28
Dr. Geo. Osborne,	321.06
Miles Osborn,	174.25
Douglass Osborn,	62.42
Ann F. Osborn,	74.10
R. L. Osborn,	74.20
Percis L. Osborne,‡	58.83
Henry C. Poor,	94.22
Joseph Poor,	67.72
Henry Poor,	242.62
John W. Proctor, Trustee,	78.44
James Perry,	87.86
Levi Preston,	135.03
Abel Preston,	57.65
John Peaslee,	94.22
Samuel D. Pendar,	136.62
Samuel Brown,	137.68
Stephen Blaney,	199.16
Daniel Brown,	59.77
Joseph Brown,	52.88
Warren Bank,	106.00
William H. Brown,	64.54
Jonathan Buxton,	51.29
Daniel Buxton, Jr.,	100.05
Edward Buxton,	112.24
Henry Cook,	283.96
Samuel Crane,	71.96
Andrew Curtis,	68.25
Thomas W. Carr,	63.48
Aaron F. Clark,	79.38
Clark & Co.,	56.18
Elbridge G. Cook,	130.26
Robert S. Daniels,	172.66
David Daniels,	78.32
Moses Dole's Estate,	53.00
William T. Dole,	119.13
Jonathan Dustin's Estate,	473.82
Isaac Elliot's Estate,	163.24
Isaac B. Elliot,	96.34
Lewis W. Elliot,	123.37
Joseph Fairfield,	71.96
Stephen Fernald,	102.70
Nathaniel Felton,	84.68
John Frost,	233.03
Eben S. Poor,	237.32
Andrew Porter,	95.28
Daniel Proctor,	85.21
Abel Proctor,	203.40
Enoch Page,	101.64
Mrs. I. F. Proctor,	169.60
Stephen Peabody,	70.90
N. P. C. Patterson,	62.95
Pinder & Brown,	161.65
Moses Preston,	71.96
Thorndike Proctor,	82.56
Abel J. Proctor's Estate,	137.80
John Reith,*	55.00
Joseph W. Reed,	82.56
Jonas Reed,	113.30
Mrs. H. S. Robbins,	57.24
Asa Russell's Estate,	51.94
Eben Sutton,	709.55
Augustus H. Sanger,	86.80
A. and A. H. Sanger,	99.64
Levi Spaulding,	51.29
Abner Sanger,	199.16
Charles Simonds,	52.88
Thomas Stimpson,	73.02
Stimpson & Floyd,	53.53
Richard Smith,	83.62
Miles O. Stanley,	59.24
Jonathan Shillaber,	87.33
Samuel Symonds,	108.00
Thomas A. Sweetser,	55.00
William Sutton, Jr.,	109.06
Edward Southwick,	51.82
Wm. Sutton,	501.79
Henry Saltonstall,	75.14
" " as guardian,	371.00
" " as trustee,	291.50
Andrew Torr,†	101.11
Jefferson Taylor,	62.95
Geo. P. Tilton,	84.68
Benjamin Taylor,	66.13
Eben S. Upton,	67.72
Eben Upton's Estate,	360.40
Mutual Union Store,	58.83
Franklin Upton,	125.49
David Upton,	52.88
George Upton,	279.72
Elijah W. Upton,	924.20
Mrs. S. Wilson,	64.66
Silas Wilson,	59.77
John Wilson,	226.72
Samuel Wilson,	59.77
Benjamin Wilson,	65.07
Benj. S. Wheeler,	147.22
Benj. Wheeler,	343.32
White & Fisk,†	53.00

NON-RESIDENTS.

Richard S. Rogers, Salem,	230.02
James M. Caller, Salem,	150.52
Francis Dane, Boston,	125.08
Francis Dane & Co.,	159.00
Thomas Brown, Marblehead,	89.04
Mrs. S. P. King, Andover,	100.17
Theop. W. Walker, Waltham,	588.30
Dr. F. P. Hurd, Reading,‡	72.08

*Name wrong in our last issue.
†Amount of tax wrong.
‡Omitted in our last.

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,
ONE PRICE
HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,
231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

JUST PUBLISHED.
GRAYER Thoughts of a Country Parson; A Present Heaven, by author of the Patience of Hope; Clarissa, or the Mervyn Inheritance; The Story of Cervantes, by A. B. Edwards: The Story of a Penny; The Three Midshipmen, by Kingston. Received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
dec 24 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

Ann R. Bray,
NO. 76 Federal Street,
— DEALER IN —
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

DIARIES FOR
1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

Plymouth Buck Gloves.
MEN'S and Boy's sizes—Lined and Unlined with 100 varieties of WINTER GLOVES, for sale at GEORGE S. WALKER'S
Gent's Furnishing Store,

CHINA GOODS
RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands —Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

KNIVES AND FORKS.
A FULL stock of Knives and Forks, with Ebony, Cocoa and Horn Handles, for sale at S C & E A SIMONDS' 32 Front st.

A VALUABLE PRESENT.
A YEAR'S Reading in WHIPPLE & SMITH'S Circulating Library—all the New Books are put in, and the subscription is only $4 00.
dec 31 No. 190 Essex St., Salem.

CHEAP EDITION.
LES Miserables—complete—$1.00.
Mistress and Maid—a Household Story, by Miss Muloch—for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,

READING.
730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Ladies' Spring Skirts.
ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

NEW GOODS.
WE have received some very neat styles of French Prints, small figures, Spring styles, new goods.
Neat styles Patches, new patterns.
A few pieces Cotton and Wool M de Laines, new styles, suitable for the present and Spring wear—selling low for cash.
jy 14 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

Dyspepsia Remedy.
DR. DARIUS HAM'S
AROMATIC INVIGORATING SPIRIT!
This Medicine has been used by the public for six years, with increasing favor. It is recommended to Cure Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Heart-burn, Colic Pains, Wind in Stomach or Pains in the Bowels, Headache, Drowsiness, Kidney Complaints, Low Spirits, Delirium Tremens, Intemperance.
IT STIMULATES, EXHILARATES, INVIGORATES, BUT WILL NOT INTOXICATE OR STUPEFY.
AS A MEDICINE, it is quick and effectual, curing the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia, Kidney Complaints, and all other derangements of the Stomach and Bowels, in a speedy manner.
It will instantly revive the most melancholy and drooping spirits, and restore the weak, nervous and sickly to health, strength and vigor.
Persons who, from the injudicious use of liquors, have become dejected, and their nervous systems shattered, constitutions broken down and subject to that horrible curse to humanity, the DELIRIUM TREMENS, will, almost immediately, feel the happy and healthy invigorating efficacy of Dr. Ham's Invigorating Spirit.

WHAT IT WILL DO.
DOSE—One wine glass full as often as necessary.
One dose will remove all Bad Spirits.
One dose will cure Heart-burn.
Three doses will cure Indigestion.
One dose will give you a Good Appetite.
One dose will stop the distressing pains of Dyspepsia
One dose will remove the distressing and disagreeable effects of Wind or Flatulence, and as soon as the stomach receives the Invigorating Spirit, the distressing load and all painful feelings will be removed.
One dose will remove the most distressing pains of Colic, either in the stomach or bowels.
A few doses will remove all obstructions in the Kidney, Bladder or Urinary Organs.
Persons who are seriously afflicted with any Kidney Complaints are assured speedy relief by a dose or two, and a radical cure by the use of one or two bottles.

NIGHTLY DISSIPATION.
Persons who, from dissipating too much over night and feel the evil effects of poisonous liquors, in violent headaches, sickness at stomach, weakness, giddiness, &c., will find one dose will remove all bad feelings.
Ladies of weak and sickly constitutions, should take the Invigorating Spirit three times a day; it will make them strong, healthy and happy, remove all obstructions and irregularities from the menstrual organs, and restore the bloom of health and beauty to the careworn face.
During pregnancy it will be found an invaluable medicine to remove disagreeable sensations at the stomach.
All the proprietor asks, is a trial, and to induce this, he has put up the INVIGORATING SPIRIT in pint bottles, at 50 cts., quarts $1.
General Depot, 48 Water Street, N. Y. Sold by Weeks & Potter, 154 Washington-st. Boston, and in S. Danvers, by George E Meacom, T. A. Sweetser, D. P. Grosvenor, Jr., and by Druggists everywhere.
feb 29 1y

Are you Insured?
THE subscriber would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on
Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,
And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:
Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn. Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston. Capital and Surplus—$200,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston. Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y
Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass. Capital and Assets—$170,000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D, Medical Examiner.
WM. ARCHER, Jr.,
18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
ej b20-1

Important to the Afflicted.
DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a
PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.
By a long course of study and practical experience of unlimited extent, Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of
GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.
Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, Impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.
SEMINAL WEAKNESS.
Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating marrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.
Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.
Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the [illegible], warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862— ly.

CAUTION
TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.
DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.
Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.
Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.
Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.
N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.
Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.
May, 1862—1y

CERTAIN CURE
IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.
Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.
Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
May, 1862— 1y

WALLETS AND CURRENCY
HOLDERS—A great variety, from 5 cts. upwards, for sale by
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

MAGAZINES FOR DECEMBER.
ATLANTIC—Godey's—Peterson's—Leslie's—Madam Demorest's, &c., &c.—received by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

CHINA WARE.
A FULL assortment of Gilt China, Lustre China, and White China Tea Sets, just opened at
dec 10 S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

HILTON'S INSOLUBLE CEMENT.
ONLY 25 cents—try a bottle. For sale by
Jan 21 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
190 Essex street.

NOTE PAPER, ENVELOPES, &C.
A VERY full and complete stock, at a very small advance on old prices, at
jan 21 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

KEROSENE PEG LAMPS,
FOR Shoemaker's use, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PLATE COVERS.
PLANISHED Tin Plate Covers, at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 34 Front.

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

Eastern Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 10, 1862, Trains will leave the Eastern Railroad Station, Washington street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excepted):
For Lynn and Boston, 6¼, 7¼, 8¼, 9, 10, 11 a m., 1, 2½—4.40, 6¾, p. m.
Beverly, 8¼ am., 1, 3½, 4¾, 5¾, 6¾, 7½ p m.
W. Beach, Man'r, Gloucester, and Rockport, 8½ a m., 1, 4¾ p m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8½ a m., 1, 3½, 5¾ p m.
Amesbury, 8½ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portsmouth, 8¼ a m., 3½, 5¾ p m.
Portland, 8½ a m., 3¾ p m.

AND FOR SALEM, FROM
Portland, 8¾ a m., 2½ p m.
Portsmouth, 7½, *11½ a m., *5 p m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9 40 a m., 5 20 p m.
Newburyport, 8, 10 a m., 12 m., 5.45 p m.
Ipswich, 8.25, 10.25 a m., 12 25, 6.10 p m.
Gloucester, 7.25, 10 10 a m., 3.55 p m.
Manchester, 7.40, 10.25 a m., 4.10 p m.
Beverly, 7.05, 8.05, 8 50, 10.50 a m., 12.50, 4½, 6.35.
Lynn, 8, 9, 11 a m., 12¾, 3, 4½, 5½, 6½, 7½ †10
Boston, 7¼, 8¾, 10½ a m., 12¼, 2¾, 4, 5, 6, 6½, †9¼ p m.

*Or on arrival from the East.
†On Wednesdays this train leaves Boston at 11½ p m. via Saugus Branch; and on Saturdays at 10½ p m.

MARBLEHEAD BRANCH.
Marblehead for Salem, 7, 8, 8¾, 9¾ a m., 12¾, 1¾, 4.25, 6¼
Salem for Marblehead, 8¼, 9.25, 11¼ a m., 1, 3¾, 5¾, 6¾

SOUTH READING BRANCH.
Trains leave the South Reading Depot in Salem for Boston at 7, 9.40 a m., 2.25, 4.55 p m
Boston for Salem, 7 a m, 12 m., 2½, 5 p m.
South Danvers for Salem, 7¾ a m., 12¾, 3¼, 5¾ p m.

ESSEX RAILROAD.
Leave Salem for Lawrence and way stations, 7¼, 11¼ a m., 4¾ p m.
Lawrence for Salem, 8¼ a m., 12.40, 6¼ p m.
Danvers for Salem, 9.12 a m., 1.22, 6.57 p m.
J. PRESCOTT, Superintendent.
Boston, November 10, 1862.

Salem and Lowell Railroad.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov 10, 1862, Trains will run as follows:
Leave Lowell for Salem, 7.25 a m., and *2.00 p m.
Leave Salem for Lowell, *9 40 a m. and 5 00 p m.
Passengers are not allowed to carry baggage above $50 in value, and that personal, unless notice is given and an extra amount paid. Season tickets do not entitle the holder to take baggage.
*Freight Train with passenger car attached.
F. H. NOURSE, Local Superintendent.
November 7, 1862.

SPEED, COMFORT AND SAFETY!
FOR NEW YORK.
Norwich Steamboat Train.
The only Boats Landing at Jersey City.
CABIN Passage, $4.00; Deck Passage, $3.00. The new and elegant sixteen wheel cars of the steamboat express train leave the Boston & Worcester Railroad Station, Albany Street., at 5¼ P. M., daily, connecting with the new steamers, (built expressly for this line,) CITY OF BOSTON, Capt. WILCOX, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays; CITY OF NEW YORK, Capt. JEWETT, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, which (before proceeding to their Pier, No. 39 North River,) will touch at the wharf of the New Jersey Railroad at Jersey City, (Sundays excepted) thus enabling Southern Passengers to make sure connections with the First Southern Train, and at the same time avoid the great annoyance of the Ferry and Hack transportation in the crowded streets of New York. This insures ample time for Breakfast before the trains leave. Conductors D. F. WALLER and W. F. BARTON accompany the passengers through.
Tickets, Berths and Staterooms secured at the Railroad Station, and at the Office of the line, 79 Washington Street, Boston.
Through tickets to Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington can be had at 79 Washington Street, Boston.
WM. DICKEY, Jr., Agent.
Boston, January 7, 1863.

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT
CHANGE OF TIME
— TO —
LYNN & BOSTON
BY OMNIBUS AND HORSE CAR
On and after THURSDAY, June 19th, 1862,
W. F. BURNHAM'S
Line of Omnibuses will leave the Lynn and Boston Omnibus Office, No. 6 Allen's Building, South Danvers, passing down Main street, through Washington street to Lynn, daily.
Leave South Danvers at 7.50 A. M., and 12.50 and 4.50 P. M.
Leave Lynn at 10 A. M., and 2 1-2 and 6 1-2 P. M.
Horse Cars leaving Scollay's Building, Court street, Boston, at 8.15 A. M., 1.15 and 5.15 P. M., will meet the Omnibus at Lynn, at the above named hours, to take passengers to South Danvers.
Sunday Arrangements.
Leave S. Danvers at 7.50 a.m., and 4.50 p.m.
Leave Lynn at 9.30 a.m., and 6.30 p.m.
Cars leave Scollay's Building, Boston, to meet the Omnibuses in Lynn for South Danvers, at 8.15 a m. and 5.15 p.m.
Through Tickets to and from Boston may be had of the Drivers and Conductors.
Tickets to Lynn, - - 15 cents.
Through to Boston, - 30 cents.
Passengers called for at reasonable charges i notice is given at the Office.

EXPRESS BUSINESS
Between South Danvers and Lynn promptly attended to, on reasonable terms.
EXTRA COACHES furnished at short notice, at moderate rates.
South Danvers, June 18, 1862.

South Danvers & Salem Line of Omnibuses.

ON and after MONDAY, Nov. 4, 1861, the South Danvers and Salem Line of Omnibuses will run as follows:
Leave the Hourly Office, South Danvers at 7, 8, 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2 a. m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8.
Leave No. 13 Central St., Salem, at 8. 8 1-2, 9, 9 1-2, 10, 10 1-2, 11, 11 1-2, a.m. 12, 12 1-2, 1, 1 1-2, 2, 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, 4 1-2, 5, 5 1-2, 6, 6 1-2, 7, 7 1-2, 8, 9.
☞ Ladies' Room, at Needham & Hawkes's, No. 272 Essex Street, and at the Offices.
SINGLE FARE on the regular route, 6 cents, or Twenty Tickets for $1 00.
Passengers called for or left off the route, at a reasonable distance, the fare will be 13 cents.
EXTRA COACHES furnished, at all hours, at reasonable prices.
nov 27 HENRY M. MERRILL.

Abbott's South Danvers & Salem
EXPRESS.
Leave South Danvers, - - - - - 7½ a m, 1 p m
Leave Salem, - - - - - - 10 a m, 4 p m
Orders left at Peel & Monlton's, and principal stores on Main street, South Danvers; and at 7 Washington street, and at Reed's in the Market, Salem.

MARSHALL'S
DANVERS, SO. DANVERS & SALEM
EXPRESS.
Leave DANVERS (daily) at 9 A. M.
" SALEM at 1½ P. M.
OFFICES:
In Danvers—At E B Waitt's and the Post Office.
Danversport—Richards' and A W Warren's Stores.
In So. Danvers—Francis Dane & Co's, and No 2 Main street.
In Salem—No 7 Washington street, 199 Essex st, and 17 Derby Square.
All business promptly and faithfully attended to.
☞ Our patrons are particularly requested to write their orders.
☞ Packages, left at the offices, should be marked "Marshall's Express."
☞ Being connected with the RAILROAD we are enabled to forward Notes, Drafts and Bills for collection, and small packages, to all accessible point in the United States, at the usual rates.
dec1-8-tf P. G. MARSHALL.

PINGREE'S JOB WAGON.
THE subscriber is still prepared to do all kinds of Job Work and Teaming, such as removing Furniture and Merchandize of any description about town, or to and from the neighboring towns.
Orders will be received at the Essex Railroad Station, and at S. Flint's store, on the Square.
Thankful for past favors, he would solicit a continuance of the same. W. H. PINGREE.
South Danvers, 1860.

PRINTI

IN

EVERY VAR
Neatly and Prom
EXECUT
— At —
The Wizard
SOUTH DANVERS S(
SOUTH DANVERS, M

POSTE
(LARGE AND SMA
WHICH CAN'T BE
— IN THIS — VICINITY

BALL CIRCULA
TICKETS
— AND —
Orders of Danc

BUSINESS CAR
Address Cards,
Wedding Ca
Printed in the neatest manne
And on the finest stock.

BILL-HEAI
For Manufacturing and Mercantile Hou
BLANK RECEIPT
And all kinds of BLANKS of every descri
Printed to suit.

EVERY DESCRIPTION
— OF —
JOB PRINTIN
Done in the best manner, and at the
LOWEST PRICES.
— AND —
WARRANTE
To please or no pay, at the
WIZARD OFFICE,
Allen's Building,
SOUTH DANVERS, MASS

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15, 1863. NO. 15.

Original.

MUSIC TEACHER'S CAREER.

BY JASPER.

Passing through one of the strects remote part of the city of New York, attention of the stranger is directed large and splendid mansion standing from the street and the other houses vicinity. Indeed, the striking con- between it and the rest of the avenue, to it the admiring gaze of all. The erected balustrade, and the embel- ent of the walks and garden around ow that it was not always thus. A ears before, a noble looking stranger, sing through the street, admiring ituation, purchased the house, re- and beautified it. No one knew proprietor, and all attempts to dis- his occupation, haunts or connec- were in vain. After a period of six months, he placed upon the an elegantly engraved silver plate, ng this inscription :—

Charles A. Hosmer, Instructor of ." To all appearance, at first, his s were very few ; but, as his abili- became known, some of the best ians in the city came to him for r instruction, and, at the time our story commences, his reputa- ad spread throughout the city and nding country as the best instruct- New York.

a cool November day in 1857, Mr. er, the proprietor of this mansion, seated in his chair in his music evidently waiting the arrival of s. For, every few minutes, he d glance first at his watch and then e window, commanding the prospect e street upon which his mansion . Around him were scattered music s and stands, on the table was a r, flute and violin, and in the op- e part of the room, were his piano an elegantly carved parlor organ.— a gesture of impatience he at last imed. "I wonder what keeps Lilly ng! she is always punctual to the ute, and she is now full half an hour " He scarcely had time to finish his rks, before the person in question, a utiful girl of about 17, made her ap- ance. Approaching him and greet- him with a pleasant smile, she said, ave I kept you long waiting, Mr. mer? Indeed, I am very sorry."— etter late than never," he answered, rtunately I am disengaged the rest of forenoon."

So much the better, for I have some- ng to say to you after taking my lesson, it will not be trespassing upon your e," said the maiden, passing her hand r her brow.

Something troubles you, Lilly, will u not tell me now?"

Perhaps I had better. But I am only ubled at losing the services of so kind instructor, for I believe my quarter is to-day, is it not?"

I believe it is. But how will that prive you of my services? Has the nic affected you? I should be sorry to e such a pupil as you."

I fear it has, sir," replied the girl.— My father wished me to tell you that would be unable to give me any further structions. He is much obliged to you your kindness to me, and is very sor- to be obliged to dispence with your rvices."

Mr. Hosmer remained silent a few mo- ents in deep thought. He was aware hat the firm of Parker & Kendall had st week suspended, but did not suppose hat they had been so seriously affected. o lose such a pupil was not to be thought f by him. At length he asked.

To how great an extent has your ather become involved."

He has lost nearly everything, sir.— Our house is to be sold this week. Father s more concerned for me than for him- elf. He would hardly consent for me to ive music lessons if I could obtain any upils. But I finally persuaded him.— Perhaps you could assist me, sir," said the girl, looking up earnestly at him.

I have a plan, Lilly, which, if you will accept, will assist me very much. I had once before though of unfolding it to you, but other considerations deterred me. I have now more pupils than I can attend to and have constant application for more; I sent two away to-day. I have a little room adjoining, which you shall have to yourself and give instruc- tions to such pupils as I choose to send to you. When you and I are both dis- engaged I shall take the liberty to instruct your kindness to me, and is very sor- to be obliged to dispence with your rvices."

Mr. Hosmer remained silent a few mo- ents in deep thought. He was aware hat the firm of Parker & Kendall had st week suspended, but did not suppose hat they had been so seriously affected. o lose such a pupil was not to be thought f by him. At length he asked.

To how great an extent has your ather become involved."

He has lost nearly everything, sir.— Our house is to be sold this week. Father s more concerned for me than for him- elf. He would hardly consent for me to ive music lessons if I could obtain any upils. But I finally persuaded him.— Perhaps you could assist me, sir," said the girl, looking up earnestly at him.

I have a plan, Lilly, which, if you will accept, will assist me very much. I had once before though of unfolding it to you, but other considerations deterred me. I have now more pupils than I can attend to and have constant application for more; I sent two away to-day. I have a little room adjoining, which you shall have to yourself and give instruc- tions to such pupils as I choose to send to you. When you and I are both dis- engaged I shall take the liberty to instruct you, if you are pleased with it?"

kind, I did not expect this. But do you really mean all this?"

"Do you doubt it!" Saying this, he opened a door disclosing a small room, well furnished with everything necessary to an instructor of music. "This shall be your sanctum. You will disappoint me very much if you do not accept my proposition. I must have some one to assist me."

"I shall only be too glad to accept it. But when does my engagement commence."

"This very moment. I am expecting a pupil this afternoon, to whom I will introduce you."

"Their conversation was interrupted by a violent knock at the door. Mr. Hosmer hastened to answer it, but, before doing so, said, jocosely, "Another applicant, I presume. Please step into your room and await orders."

On opening the door, Mr. Hosmer found a fine looking young man, about 19 years of age, whom he immediately recognized as one of the applicants whom he had sent away on that morning.

"Well," said Mr. Hosmer, "how do you succeed."

"Poorly," was the reply. "Can you not possibly find time for me? You will be doing me a very great favor if you will."

"Walk in, sir," said the music teacher, "I will see what I can do. I have obtained the services of one of my best scholars to relieve me of some of my labors. If you will consent to receive instruction from her, I can accommodate you."

"I suppose I can do no better. Your recommendation is sufficient proof of her ability."

"As to that," replied Mr. Hosmer, "you shall be the judge."

Opening the door leading to Lilly's room, he said, "Miss Parker, this gentleman wishes to receive from you instruction upon the piano. Allow me to present to you Mr. Sinclair."

"I am afraid, sir, that you will find a poor instructor," said Lilly.

"Allow Mr. Sinclair to make a trial of your skill," said Mr. Hosmer, "I have no fear of your success."

Saying this, he took up his hat, and, leaving Lilly to her new occupation proceeded to the store of Parker & Kendall, on Broadway. Entering the counting-room, where he found Mr. Parker busily engaged in arranging some papers, he informed him of the plan which he had formed for his daughter. After a short consultation, which proved very satisfactory to Mr. Hosmer, he took his leave, Mr. Parker remarking, as he went out. "I am perfectly willing to entrust her welfare to you. Your previous kindness and her confidence in you are a sufficient guarantee."

"Believe me, sir, I shall not abuse your confidence."

We now leave them, Lilly in her new occupation, and Mr. Hosmer with his reputation and success still increasing, for a few months, and again introduce the reader to the music-room of Mr. Hosmer, on a very cold day in January. He was very busily engaged in copying some manuscript for a concert which was to take place on the following evening, when he was interrupted by the entrance of an elderly looking man, apparently in great haste.

"Have I the pleasure of addressing Mr. Hosmer?" said the man.

"Whatever pleasure there is is undoubtedly yours. My name is Hosmer."

"You must know, then, that I am the proprietor of the Philadelphia Theatre. I am in search of a ballet singer for two evenings, and was told that you might refer me to one.

"Do you want her immediately?"

"Not for a week," was the reply. "My ballet singer is to be called away for two nights, and I must have one somewhere."

"I have a scholar, a beautiful singer, who, I have no doubt, would suit you. But I do not know as she would consent to appear upon a theatre stage."

"Do you think it wrong to sing upon the stage?"

"I do not. Many of our best singers have commenced in the ballet. But you know a great many have a decided prejudice against it. Just as if, because there are a few persons on the theatre stage who have not a good character, all are such."

"It is so. But I will have no one on my stage, even if they are the best actors, if they do not sustain a good reputation."

"Well, I will talk with her, and will inform you to-night of her decision."

that was the gentleman's name, the music teacher was left alone. He was undecided what to do. He was fearful that Lilly would not consent to sing, and yet he knew of no other one whom he could recommend. At length he started up, exclaiming, "I will decide this," and rang the bell to Lilly's room violently. It was speedily answered by the entrance of the young lady in question, saying,

"Did you ring for me, sir?"

"Yes," replied he; "who do you suppose I have just had for a visitor?"

"Another applicant for instruction?" questioned Lilly.

"Not exactly. Mr. Marshall; the proprietor of the Philadelphia Theatre. He is in search of a ballet singer."

"Well," said Lilly, not perceiving how that concerned her.

"I recommended you."

"You recommended me, Mr. Hosmer!" exclaimed the girl; "did you think I would leave you, and, worst of all, become a ballet singer?"

"For two evenings—yes. This will not interfere with your engagements. Mr. Marshall is a very gentlemanly man and keeps a respectable theatre."

"Would you advise me to do it?"

"Yes. It will give you an opportunity to prove your confidence in yourself, and display your abilities as a singer."

"I know I shall not please him. But I will try."

"Very well. I shall see him to-night and will make arrangements. You will not be wanted for a week. In the mean time, you must practice all you can."

On the evening in question, Mr. Marshall made his appearance and was informed by Mr. Hosmer of his success. Mr. Marshall, desiring Lilly to come the day previous to her engagement, went to Philadelphia the next day.

In the mean time, Mr. Hosmer had persuaded Mr. Sinclair, who is already know to the reader, to escort her thence.

Lilly arrived at Philadelphia in fine spirits, where she was cordially greeted by Mr. Marshall. One of the best actors in the country was announced for that evening, which, with the announcement of a new ballet singer, filled the house to overflowing On Lilly's appearance on the stage, accompanied by Mr. Marshall, a hum of admiration ran up and down the house. But the instant she commenced to sing all was still. Her clear, rich voice rang throughout the hall, riveting upon her the gaze of all. She attempted nothing but simple melodies, and the deafening applause that greeted every appearance gave evidence of the appreciation of her great musical talent. It was only necessary to announce, on the next evening, that she was to appear, and it was evident that it was not the actor, but the ballet singer, who attracted the audience. Never had Mr. Marshall before, with all his actors, drawn such an audience. On her first appearance this evening, she was hailed with enthusiastic applause, and it was full five minutes before she could sing. Such singing had never before been heard in that hall. Mr. Marshall tried to persuade her to sing another evening, but without success. On the day previous, he had written to Mr. Hosmer, describing her appearance and the sensation she had produced. On her return, she was warmly congratulated by Mr. Hosmer, who was waiting at the depot for her return.

"I was confident you would create a sensation," said he. "Your equal in singing can scarcely be found."

"My model is before me," replied the girl, smiling.

"I wish I were more worthy of your imitation, Lilly, said the instructor. "Will you appear to-night in a Sacred Concert of which I am the leader?"

"If you wish it," was the reply. It is needless to state that on this, her first appearance in her own city, her success was equal to her previous sensation in Philadelphia. Her reputation spread throughout the city, and she was ranked only second to Mr. Hosmer.

On a still, beautiful evening in July, about six months from the time of these occurrences, Mr. Parker was seated in the threshold of his door, gazing intently at the stars shining brightly overhead, and lost in deep thought. Not a sound disturbed him, and everything around seemed to partake of the stillness of the night. Lilly was absent at an evening concert, and he was thus left alone. He was roused from his reverie by the somewhat rapid approach of a man, who, he was astonished to find, was Mr. Hosmer. Fearing that something had happened to Lilly, he said, hastily,

"I thought you attended the concert, Mr. Hosmer."

"I intentionally absented myself this evening to come and see you while Lilly was away. I have something important to say to you which may possibly astonish you. Have I your permission?"

"Certainly, sir," replied Mr. Parker.

"Did you ever have another child besides Lilly?" questioned Mr. Hosmer.

"Yes. My son was drowned by falling overboard from a vessel while we were coming from England."

"Have you positive evidence that your son was drowned?"

"None, except that he could not be found. But do you mean to intimate that my son is alive? Speak, sir, for Heaven's sake!"

"I think, sir, that he is, and that he stands before you. If you will calm yourself I will try to inform you what reason I have for so thinking."

"Pray proceed," said Mr. Parker, impatiently.

"A few days since," resumed Mr. Hosmer, "in a conversation with a gentleman, he accidentally mentioned an adventure which took place on board the steamer Colorado——."

"That was the name of the steamer," interrupted Mr. Parker.

"I immediately asked him if he had any recollection of a child falling overboard during his passage. He replied that he did, and that you were his father. I have long known that I fell overboard from that steamer, but I had been unable to ascertain my father's name, as I was too young at the time to recollect my name. Instead of being drowned, as was supposed, I was picked up by a brig passing by, which, instead of restoring me to the steamer, proceeded to her destination. I afterwards learned, accidentally, that the name of the steamer was the Colorado. Had it not been for the conversation a few days ago, I might always have been ignorant of my parentage."

Before he could proceed further, Mr. Parker exclaimed:

"God be thanked! You are my son! Would that Louise were living to share my joy!"

We leave them to their embrace, and to inform Lilly that her brother, whom she supposed she had never seen, was found. Such scenes should be held sacred and we would not intrude upon them. It is sufficient to say that the wealth of his newly found son enabled him to recommence business, and that Lilly was not obliged any longer to give music lessons, although, to gratify her friends, she is obliged to appear occasionally at a public concert, where she is always hailed with that enthusiasm which marked her first engagement in Philadelphia. Her brother always appears with her, and we take our final leave of them, in the enjoyment of each other's society, and fulfilling their appointed mission in life.

Original Poetry.

A POEM.

BY J. G. SMITH.

When Sumter's walls of granite rock
First felt secession's stunning shock,
The Northern people would but mock
At such a bold adventure.
We felt the North so mighty strong,
The South could not this war prolong,
But only sing a vanquished song,
And gain the wide world's censure.

We little thought, two years ago,
That human blood would freely flow
E're we could strike a deadly blow
To that foul monster (treason)—
That our proud Eagle's tyrant paw
Would wage this cruel bloody war,
With its congenial Freedom claw,
Without some better reason.

Nor did we think Old JEFF could claim
On History's page of worldly fame
The smallest space, to write his name—
But here we were mistaken.
We felt assured that BEAUREGARD
Would find secession's game so hard,
That he'd refuse to play his card,
And leave the cause forsaken.

That Generals LEE, and JOHNSTON brave
Would long e're this have found a grave
Beside some poor ill-treated slave,
Their spirits to be haunted.
That General Stone-wall JACKSON's power
Was something like a thunder shower,
To pass away in one short hour,
But yet he stands undaunted.

We thought our leader LITTLE MAC
Of strength and wisdom had no lack,
But sure would drive the rebels back,
All routed and defeated.
That Gen. POPE so brave and bold
Could take the rebels strongest hold,
But soon to us, this fact war told,
He from the foe retreated.

Our wicked hearts were filled with pride,
As we were told that brave BURNSIDE,
Straight into Richmond sure would ride
In spite of forts or sabres.
But he, alas! was driven back,
To trace the same old beaten track
Where Gen. POPE and LITTLE MAC
Had wasted all their labors.

And now we ask (as well we may,)
What must we do to gain the day,
The answer comes without delay,
Take care of Northern Tories.
While satan's legions bear such sway
And sin rides forth in proud array
We must behold the dread display—
Of war, and hear its stories.
(Its sad, sad stories.)

'Tis sad that men should thus be slain—
Should face the cannon's mouth in vain—
Because our army does contain
So many cursed traitors.
(Worse than Southern traitors.)
'Tis sad to see our volunteers,
Charge on the foe with mighty cheers,
And then receive the taunting sneers
Of Northern Freedom haters.

Achans within our camps are found,
Treacherous Judases abound,
And copperheads corrupt, unsound,
Would see the North defeated.
Everlasting contempt and shame
Brand every mean disloyal name,
On which can rest one shade of blame
Where soldiers have been cheated.

We love this land whereon we tread,
This sepulchre of mighty dead—
Our Fathers nobly fought and bled
For Justice and for Liberty.
They struggled long through bloody wars,
They bravely fought in Freedom's cause
And raised aloft the Stripes and Stars,
Which tells of Freedom's victory.

And we must now defend that trust
'Gainst proud Ambition's hellish lust—
Bring haughty treason to the dust
And make that foe surrender.
Each loyal heart must now despise
All such as deign to sympathize
With those who will in arms arise
To strike a chord so tender.

We know our cause is just and right—
We plainly see by reason's light
That we are bound to strive and fight Against that traitorous horde.
Yet we must recognize our God,
If we would wield the conquering rod,
And send the glorious news abroad,
That peace has been restored.

These stubborn wills must be subdued—
These proud, proud hearts must be renewed,
And all our rulers be imbued
With a spirit of meekness.
Should all the powers of finite mind,
All earthly wisdom be combined
To bring us peace, we still should find
Our strength to be but weakness.

That mighty God, who governs all,
Noticing e'en the sparrow's fall,
Has cast a sad and gloomy pall
O'er all this favored nation.
That fearful day begins to break,
When war shall rage and earth shall quake,
And haughty powers and nations shake
Throughout this broad creation.

The proud man's hopes begin to fail,
The mighty statesman's face turns pale,
And politicians weep and wail
At our administration.
They curse our loyal President,
And say that he this Union rent
When he throughout the country sent
That fearful Proclamation—
(That righteous Proclamation)—

Which says, in eighteen hundred sixty three
(If God Himself shall thus decree,)
This blessed country shall be free
From Slavery's degredation.
This war is Slavery's dying breath—
She struggles hard to shun her death,
But wisdom and religion saith,
God speed her condemnation.

To party spirit death draws nigh—
Well might we pray that she may die,
To all her hopes rest on a lie,
The curse of any nation.
Thus every evil in our land
Must yield to virtue's conquering hand,
That she alone may firmly stand
In every legislation.

These are the days of which we read,
That God in wisdom hath decreed
His chariot wheels of grace shall speed
And haste His day of glory.
The waves of light and truth must roll
Around the earth from pole to pole,
'Till grace shall triumph in the soul
And tell its fearful story.

Our God will soon uplift His hand
And show all traitors in our land
That truth and righteousness must stand,
For right must be victorious.
God moves in His own chosen way
To usher in that welcome day,
When sin and death shall lose their sway,
That day of all most glorious.

He may His people chasten sore,
And from the seventh vial pour
His wrath, but this will soon be o'er;
The day will soon be breaking.
Right will the crown of victory wear,
While wrong must groan in dark despair—
To meet this truth let all prepare,
Let every soul be waking.

Let Christians look for glorious things,
Nor start with fear when nature sings
A dirge for proud and wicked kings,
But stand in adoration.
We soon shall see the power of God,
As He shall send His truth abroad
And scourge the nations with his rod—
Behold! what consternation!

When thousands thus have bled and died,
And man's proud heart been sorely tried,
Our country will be purified
And meet God's approbation.
This is our nation's second birth—
Let men rejoice through all the earth—
Let Angels shout with holy mirth
At her regeneration.

With joy we hail that happy day
When all this strife shall pass away
And peace her sceptre o'er us sway—
God grant our expectation.
Soon may this reign of terror cease—
May truth and righteousness increase—
Thou God of justice give us peace
Based on a firm foundation.

Byfield, Mass., April 11, 1863.

Selected.

THE BAG OF GOLD.

There lived near Bologna a widow lady of the Lambertini family, called Madonna Lucrezia, who, in a revolution of the state, had known the bitterness of poverty, and had even begged her bread, kneeling day after day, like a statue, at the gate of the cathedral, her rosary in her left hand, and her right held out for charity, her long black veil concealing a face that had once adorned a court, and had received the homage of as many sonnets as Petrarch has written on Laura.

But fortune had at length relented; a legacy from a distant relation had come to her relief, and she was now the mistress of a small inn at the foot of the Apenines, where she entertained as well as she could, and where those only stopped who were contented with a little. The house was still standing; when in my youth I passed that way, though the sign of the White Cross—the Cross of the Hospitalers—was no longer to be seen over the door, a sign which she had taken, if we may believe the tradition there, in honor of a maternal uncle, a grandmaster of that order, whose achievements in Palestine she would sometimes relate. A mountain stream ran through the garden; and at no great distance, where the road turned on its way to Bologna, stood a little chapel, in which a lamp was always burning before a picture of great antiquity, the work of some Greek artist.

Here she was dwelling, respected by all who knew her, when an event took place which threw her into the deepest affliction. It was at noon day, in September, that three foot travelers arrived, and seating themselves on a bench under her vine trellis, were supplied with a flagon of Aleatico by a lovely girl, her only child, the image of her former self. The eldest spoke like a Venetian, and his beard was short and pointed after the fashion of Venice. In his demeanor he affected great courtesy, but his look inspired little confidence; for when he smiled, which he did continually, it was with his lips only, not with his eyes, and they were always turned from yours. His companions were bluff and frank in their manner, and on their tongues was many a soldier's oath. In their hats they wore a medal, such as in that age was often distributed in war; and they were evidently subalterns in one of those free bands which were always ready to serve in any quarrel, if a service it could be called, where a battle was little more than a mockery; and the slain, as on an opera stage, were up and fighting tomorrow. Overcome with the heat, they threw aside their cloaks, and with their gloves tucked under their belts, continued for some time in earnest conversation.

At length they rose to go, and the Venetian thus addressed their hostess:

"Excellent lady, may we leave under your roof, for a day or two, this bag of gold?"

"You may," she replied gaily. "But remember, we fasten only with a latch. Bars and bolts we have none in our village; and if we had, where would be your security?"

"In your word, lady."

"But what if I died to-night, where would it be then?" said she, laughingly; "the money would go to the church, for none could claim it."

"Perhaps you will favor us with an acknowledgment."

"If you will write it."

An acknowledgment was written accordingly, and she signed it before Master Bartolo, the village physician, who had just called by chance to learn the news of the day; the gold to be delivered when applied for, but to be delivered, (these were the words,) not to one, nor to two, but to the three—words wisely introduced by those to whom it belonged, knowing what they knew of each other. The gold they had just released from a miser's chest in Perugia, and they were on a scent that promised more.

They and their shadows were no sooner departed than the Venetian returned, saying, "Give me leave to set my seal on the bag, as the others have done," and she placed it on a table before him. But in that moment she was called away to receive a cavalier who had just dismounted from his horse, and when she came back it was gone. The temptation had proved irresistible, and the man and money had vanished together.

"Wretched woman that I am," she cried, as in an agony of grief she fell on her daughter's neck; "what will become of us? Are we again to be cast out into this wide world? Unhappy child, would that thou hadst never been born!" And all day long she lamented; but her tears availed her little. The others were not slow in returning to claim their due; and there were no tidings of the thief; he had fled far away with his plunder. A process against her was instantly begun in Bologna; and what defence could she make? How release herself from the obligation of the bond? Wilfully, or in negligence, she had parted with it to one, when she should have kept it for all; and inevitable ruin awaited her!

"Go, Gianetta," said she to her daughter; "take this veil which your mother has worn and wept under so often, and implore the counsellor Calderino to plead for us on the day of trial. He is generous, and will listen to the unfortunate.—But if he will not, go from door to door; Monaldi cannot refuse us. Make haste, my child; but remember the chapel as you pass by it. Nothing prospers without a prayer."

Alas! she went, but in vain. These were retained against them; those demanded more than they had to give; and all bade them despair. What was to be done? No advocate, and the cause to come on to-morrow!

Now Gianetta had a lover, and he was a student of the law—a young man of great promise, Lorenzo Mortelli. He had studied long and diligently under that learned lawyer, Giovanni Andreas, who, though little of stature, was great in renown, and by his contemporaries was called the arch-doctor, the rabbi of doctors, the light of the world. Under him he had studied, sitting on the same bench with Petriarch; and also under his daughter Novella, who would often lecture to the scholars when her father was otherwise engaged, placing herself behind a small curtain, lest her beauty should divert their thoughts; a precaution, in this instance at least, unnecessary, Lorenzo having lost his heart to another.

To him she flies in her necessity; but of what assistance can he be? He has just taken his place at the bar; but he has never spoken; and how stand up alone, unpracticed and unprepared as he is, against an array that would alarm the most experienced?

"Were I as mighty as I am weak," said he, "my fears for you would make me as nothing. But I will be there, Gianetta; and may the Friend of the friendless give me strength in that hour! Even now my heart fails me; but, come what may, while I have a loaf to share, you and your mother shall never want. I will beg through the world for you."

The day arrives and the court assembles. The claim is stated, and the evidence given. And now the defence is called for, but none is made, not a syllable is uttered; and after a pause and a consultation of some minutes, the judges are proceeding to give judgment, silence having been proclaimed in the court, when Lorenzo rises, and thus addresses them:

"Reverend signors, young as I am, may I venture to speak before you? I would speak in behalf of one who has none else to help her, and I will not keep you long. Much has been truly said on the sacred nature of the obligation, and we acknowledge in its full force. Let it be fulfilled, and to the last letter. It is what we solicit, what we require. But to whom is the bag of gold to be delivered? What says the bond? Not to one—not to two—but to the three. Let the three stand forth and claim it."

From that day, (for who can doubt the issue?) none were sought, none employed, but the subtle and eloquent Lorenzo. Wealth followed fame; nor need I say how soon he sat at his marriage-feast, nor who sat beside him.

☞ A young lady fainted at the dinner table the other day, on hearing a gallant sea captain remark to a lady beside him, that he had often been rocked on the "bosom" of the ocean.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15, 1863.

THE ALMS HOUSE.

It was our privilege, last week, to visit the town Alms House. Remembering the good old times of that prince of keepers and most genial of men, ADINO PAGE, we had a desire to see the establishment under the care of his successor. It so happened, by a curious coincidence, that the monthly meeting of the Board of Overseers was held on the same day, giving us the advantage of their company in the survey of the premises.

After the Board had held its business session, we accompanied the members all over the house, leaving no nook or corner or closet unexplored. Everything was found in the most admirable order, and a Dutch neatness pervaded every part. The inmates appeared happy and contented, with a single exception, and she did an amount of scolding to serve for an army of billingsgate Amazons. It is difficult to account for this belligerent habit, as she has all the comforts and conveniences of the most favored of the inmates. This was, however, a single exception to the general rule of contentment which existed.

In our explorations about the house, we fell in conversation with many of the inmates, and often enquired their ages. We were surprised to find so many aged persons. In a family of forty-five persons, the six oldest averaged the great age of 85 years, and the youngest was eighty years old. Some between 60 and 70 looked quite as old as several of the octogenarians. We met a little old woman, apparently of 70, of whom we enquired her age. "I don't know," said she, "I'll ask father," and she accordingly spoke to an aged man, saying, "father, how old be I?" The old man mentioned her age, which we have forgotten, but it was much less than her looks would betoken. Old Sibyl Swinerton, the ancient slave woman, had died a few weeks before, and she was over 90 years old. Our old friend, Mrs. Eunice Nugent was there, aged 83, but she longed for the time when she could go out and roam the woods for berries and diet-drinks. She carries the same pleasant countenance and is as voluble in conversation as ever. She thinks there is nothing like the open air, and roots and "yarbs," for good health. In passing through the rooms, we accosted an elderly woman, whose appearance and use of language indicated intelligence and refinement of manners. In the course of conversation, she rather put us aback by asking our opinion of the genuineness of the narrative in the WIZARD of the "Phantom Hand." Before we could recover from the little confusion to our faculties, caused by the suddenness of this enquiry, she expressed her own full faith in all the facts of the story. We happily escaped without her discovering our embarrassment, or the suppressed tittering of the members of the Board, who enjoyed the scene much better than we did. We had other evidence that the WIZARD is known and appreciated in this intelligent community, as enquiries after the "great hole" abundantly testified.

There are middle aged persons and children here, as well as the aged. We found that several of the children attended the Rockville school, but were kept at home on that day by the storm which prevailed. It is to the influence of the education they may thus acquire, that they may hope to be lifted up to their true future position in the society of their fellow men and women.

Without allusion to others to whom our attention was divided, we were most of all interested in Mr. BENJAMIN FULLER, a veteran of the last war with Great Britain. His name is down on the books as 91 years of age, but there are men in the house under 70, who look older than he. He is a noble figure, erect and stout, and, if fashionably dressed, he would appear well on State street as one of the "solid men" of Boston. He says he was born May 2, 1775, which would make him 88 years old, and this is probably his true age. He was at the various battles of the frontier, Burlington, Plattsburg, Forts George and Erie, Lundy's Lane, Bridgewater, (where he was wounded in his neck,) and on other fields. He has been an inmate of the house, as a boarder, 45 years, and is a United States pensioner.

The house itself is admirably adapted to its proper uses, every apartment being so planned as to be most convenient, with respect to the rest of the house. In going through the store rooms, we were agreeably surprised to see how well they were provided with the necessities of life. We noticed about a dozen barrels of flour and a full hogshead of molasses, both articles, by a wise foresight, having been purchased before the time of high prices. In examining the well-provided larder, we tried the boiled beef from the cattle's heads and found it to be tender and palatable food.

The severity of the storm prevented us from an examination of the out door arrangements, but everything within the house betokened the orderly management of a large family by a firm and careful keeper, assisted by the care of a skilled and faithful matron; and such are Mr. and Mrs. SCOTT. After partaking of the evening meal with the family and the members of the Board, we returned home, highly pleased with the incidents of the visit, and fully resolved to repeat it at some future day, under more favorable opportunities for observation.

THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

PHILADELPHIA, APRIL 8, 1863.

I am chagrined at the mistake committed in my "solution" of the Liquor Problem; for, on recurring to it, it is plain that the dimunition of stock is included in the loss exhibited by Rum Account. The examination was made, and result sent off, in too much haste; in fact, without review. The following is a practical demonstration of the result of the year's business:—

TOWN OF QUINCY'S LEDGER.

Dr.	Stock, or Capital.	Cr.
To rum ac'ct., (loss,)	$ 50.53	By rum ac'ct., $133.31
To new ac'ct.,	82.78
	$133.31	$133.31
	By bal. (net assets,)	$82.78

Dr.	Rum Account.	Cr.
To stock,	$133.31	By cash (sales) $358.59
To cash (purchases,)	229.86	By new ac't (goods on hand) 99.05
To cash (tax,)	20.00
To agent,	125.00	By stock (loss*) 50.53
	$508.17	$508.17
To bal. on hand	$99.05

Dr.	*Agent.	Cr.
To rum ac'ct. (proceeds of sales,)	$358.59	By rum acc't (pd. for goods) 229 86
To new ac'ct,	16.27	Rum ac. (tax) 20 00
		Rum ac. (salary) 125 00
	$374 86	$374 86
By balance (due on salary)		$16 27

* Profit and Loss, and Cash Accounts, not opened.

Explanation:—The town commences business with a net liquor capital of $133.31. At the end of the year it has rum property worth $99.05, and owes $16.27. The net capital has, then, been reduced to $82.78, or the difference between the assets and liabilities. The town has, therefore, lost the amount of the diminuition of its capital, or $50.53.

Can you find out who drank so much rum without paying for it? Perhaps the editor of the village paper is the guilty party.

Citizens of South Danvers!—LOOK TO YOUR INTERESTS! DEMI-JOHN.

The agent receives from the town, $133.31
The agent receives from his customers, 358.59

$491.90

The ag't pays for liquors,	$229.86
The ag't pays his salary,	125.00
The ag't pays gov't tax,	20.00
The ag't pays back to the town,	99.05	473.91
		$ 17.99
		$133.31
		99.05
The town loses by exchange of liquors,		$ 34.26
The agent owes the town,		17.99
The town loses by the traffic,		$16.27

A. F. C.

THE FIGHT AT CHARLESTON.

An attack, or reconnoisance, was made on Charleston on the 7th inst., by a fleet of our iron clads—nine in all—manned by about 1100 men. The affair lasted about three hours, but during that time it was very severe. The Keokuk, an iron clad Whitney battery, passed half a mile above Fort Sumter, where she met with obstructions that prevented her from proceeding further. In this position she was subjected to a fire probably never before equalled, from over 500 guns of the largest calibre, the balls striking her at the rate of one in every second. She returned the fire with spirit, her guns making their mark upon Fort Sumter. The Keokuk, however, had none of the impregnability of the Ericsson Monitors, for the rebel missiles penetrated her as easily as if she was a wooden vessel, and she soon retired from the contest in a sinking condition. The Nahant (Ericsson pattern) was within 200 yards of Fort Sumter in the action, and was hit about thirty times, one shot striking her pilot house, raising it three inches, and wounding all the inmates by pieces of flying bolts. The Ironsides was struck about 150 times, but sustained, with the other clads, no material injury. Beyond the sinking of the Keokuk, the damage to the iron clads was very slight, not more than would require twenty-four hours to repair. The affair may be summed up as follows:—Our fleet entered Charleston Harbor, made a successful reconnoisance, engaged the rebel forts for three hours, made eleven breaches in Fort Sumter, lost one vessel, and have had a crowning proof of the invulnerability of the Monitorr fleet.

WAR CORRESPONDENCE.

DANVERS, April 10th, 1863.

MR. EDITOR,—The letter, of which the following is a part, was received April 8th, from a brother in Co. F, 35th Mass. Regt. Your readers, doubtless, remember that this regiment has passed through some trying times, and has already done pretty valuable service for Uncle Sam, having been engaged in three of the severest battles—viz: at Antietam, South Mountain and Fredericksburg,—hence the quotation may not fail to interest them, if you deem it worthy a small space in your highly valued paper:

PARIS, KY., April 2d, 1863.

* * * * * * *

We arrived here last night at ten o'clock, and this morning we have been pitching our tents. Now I will give you a description of our excursion to this place—and a grand time we have had too. One week ago to-day (Thursday, March 26th,) at 3 o'clock P. M., we broke camp at Newport News, Va., and went on board the steamer "John Brooks," for Baltimore, where we arrived at 1 o'clock, Friday P. M. We then marched through some of the principal streets to the Northern Central Depot; at sunset we got in the cars and waited till 11 o'clock, when we started for Pittsburg, Pa. At noon Saturday we arrived to Patterson, Pa., and there the citizens gave us hot coffee. After an hour's rest, we were again on the move, and at 8 P. M. arrived at Altona, where hot coffee was again given us. After a short rest, the cars started at a good rate. We arrived at Pittsburg Sunday morning at 8 o'clock and were very kindly received. The ladies of the city gave us a splendid collation in one of the largest halls in the place. We had everything to eat that one could wish. The hall was decorated finely and, as we entered, we read this motto:—"Pittsburg welcomes her country's defenders. All honor to the heroes of Newbern, Roanoke, South Mountain, Antietam and Fredericksburg." A kind reception was given to every regiment that passed through the place. We remained there until three P. M., when we took the cars for Cincinnati. At 8 that night (Sunday,) we passed through Worcester, Ohio, and at 12 that night, more hot coffee was given us. We reached Columbus at 4 in the morning, where pilot-bread and coffee was given us, and in a short time the cars were moving towards Cincinnati, passing through some very pretty cities and villages. We arrived at Cincinnati at 9 o'clock Monday evening, where we had another grand collation in the Market House. At midnight we crossed the Ohio River, and passed into the city of Covington, Ky. These two cities are separated by the Ohio River, about 400 yards wide. The ferry boat runs every ten minutes, day and night.

We marched up to one of the main streets in that city and halted on the brick sidewalk, while the Colonel went in search of a place for us to stop over night, or a part of the night. In about an hour he came back, having found no place. The troops in advance had occupied every spare place. He told us to make ourselves as comfortable as we could,—a good man he is too. Some built fires in the street, some went into barns, others went in search of a resting place. A part of Co. F, (I was one of them,) went into an old barn near by and slept till morning. We remained in Covington till the next morning. The citizens treated us very kindly, although no public reception was given us. A great many of us were invited to private houses, and we had a capital time of it. A comrade of mine and I were invited to a house on Main street to breakfast, where a table of everything good was placed before us. There were a mother, two daughters, and a son living together in a splendid house, and I think they were very wealthy. The daughters were highly educated, and they were very strong Union people. They told us that the family in the next house was "in for secesh!" and used to display rebel flags on the house and do a great many things to molest the Union people, who finally got together and made them stop it. The ladies would come with baskets of cakes and pies, &c., &c., for the soldiers on the street. At dark we were taken into a large hall to sleep; we had been in there but a short time when a good man came in with a barrel of apples, and said if we would whip all the Butternuts and rebels out of the State, he would give us five barrels when we came back.

Early in the morning we routed out, and got a good breakfast and three cheers from the good people at Covington. We then marched to the cars and were soon moving towards Paris, passing through some pretty towns. At Sinsiana, twenty miles from here, the people told us that a party of rebels made a raid on that town Tuesday night, and took our cavalry guard prisoners, stole money and provisions, and murdered a Union man. We arrived here last night, and expected to move to Lexington this morning early by railroad. Some of us slept in the cars, some went into barns and sheds, and others into the church, by permission. This morning we got orders to remain here a little while for further orders. The rebels are all around here, but in no large forces—mostly guerillas.

* * * * * * *

Some of our friends from Danvers were left in the Hospital at Baltimore.

* * * * * * *

We are more than 12 miles from Boston; we cannot realize that we are so far from home, and that we are down in "Old Kentucky." We were eight days coming from Newport News, and may stay here a few days.

Col. Clark, of the 21st Mass. has command of this post, and wants to stay here.

* * * * * * *

J. E. HOOD.

DANVERS, April 11, 1863.

FRIEND POOLE,—I noticed several errors in your article upon the Holten High School Re-union, in last week's WIZARD, which, to those acquainted with the persons and circumstances, are rather amusing. The school, as you are aware, was founded in 1850, and at that time Mr. Aaron Eveleth, alluded to as a graduate of the school and poet of the evening, had so far passed his school days as to contribute a sun to the class of that year; this son, Mr. S. F. Eveleth, was the author of the poem. Mr. Wm. R. Putnam belongs to the same generation as Mr. Aaron Eveleth, and has contributed two children to the school. Your informant should have written Wm. E. Putnam. But the drollest mistake is the following: "Many of the earlier members are married, and sometimes bring their children to this pleasant festival."

Now these children are mostly cradle under-graduates, and the scene that must have followed their introduction to the Re-union can be better imagined than described. We apprehend the fine music of Messrs. Upton & Parsons's band would have been considerably disturbed by these "crying responsibilities," and the consternation of the anxious mothers would rather have lessened than added to the enjoyment of the occasion.

Yours, B.

[We thank our correspondent for his correction of the names of the persons who gave interest to the proceedings of the Re-union. As to the babies, if it is not true of the festival this year, we are sure it will be of those which follow it in after years. We only anticipated the time of their advent.—ED.]

☞ Our fleet is getting immense in numbers and power. Not a week passes in which a vessel or two is not launched or got ready for sea. On St. Patrick's day, the 17th, the steam gunboat Shamrock, named in honor of the noble loyalty of our Irish fellow-citizens, was launched at Brooklyn, in the presence of an immense concourse of citizens. The Shamrock is a copy of the Mendota, Metacomet Sassacus, Tallapoosa, and Chicopee, which are all afloat, having been launched since Jan. 15. Her hull is somewhat more firmly built than those got up by contract, and there is no sign of the "volunteer" about her. Her masts are in course of preparation, as is her armament, which will consist of 8 guns, two of them being 11-inch pivot guns. Thus, this little wooden boat, minus a ram, is as powerful for offensive purposes as an iron-clad, carrying only one 11-inch gun in each turret. At Boston, on the same day, the Pawtuxet, similar to the Shamrock was launched. At the same place, on Thursday last, was launched the Chenango, an iron-clad side-wheel gunboat built for the Government. She is a powerful vessel, and others are to be built after the same pattern.

REPORTED SURRENDER OF GENERAL FOSTER.—It is reported that General Foster, who has been cooped up in the town of Little Washington, N. C., with about 1200 men, comprising parts of the Mass. 27th and 44th Regiments, has been compelled to surrender to a large force of rebels. Attempts have been made to relieve Gen. Foster, but (if reports are true,) they have all been obliged to return back, owing to the superior forces of the enemy. When Gen. Foster took possession of Washington, he expected the co-operation of the gunboats, but owing to obstructions, they were unable to force a passage. The latest reports, however, says there is no foundation in the rumors afloat.

PARISH MEETINGS.—Several of the annual meetings of religious societies in town, have been held. We have heard of the following Standing Committees being elected in three of the societies:—

Old South—Franklin Osborn, Aaron F. Clark, Francis Baker.

Universalist — John Pinder, William Pierce, Charles Brooks, R. G. Nelson, Miles Osborn, Jr., Charles G. Fulsom, John Whitney.

Baptist—T. N. Barnaby, Charles D. Howard, Moses Merrill.

MILITARY ITEMS.—Orderly Sergeant, NATHAN P. CUTLER, of Co. D, 14th Regt., stationed at Fort Craig, has returned home on a short furlough.

It is said that furloughs of 10 days each are to be granted to the members of the 14th, two only to be absent at the same time from each company. Precedence will be determined by lot.

MR. PEABODY AT NICE.

We have received from a friend at Liverpool, the Liverpool Daily Post, which gives an account of a splendid Banquet given at Nice, an Italian city on the Mediterranean, in honor of the marriage of the Prince of Wales. Nice is a city about as large as Salem, and is pronounced Neese. It is a place of winter resort by the English. On this occasion many of the English nobility were present, including Lord Brougham. The Marquis of Hadfort toasted the President of the United States and wished "that the truest and best interests of Great Britain and America may be ever joined in the strictest bonds of friendship and alliance."

Mr. Peabody then said,—In rising to propose the toast of the evening, permit me to say that the sun in its entire course around the globe this day has shone upon the banner of St. George proudly flung to the breeze in honor of an occurrence of profound interest to the whole civilised world. The noble son of England's honored Queen has this day led to the altar the bride of his choice, and upon all continents and in all lands, by festivities and rejoicings, have millions manifested their joy at this auspicious event, and from millions of hearts has gone forth the prayer, "God bless the Prince and his royal spouse!" Here, on the sunny shores of the Mediterranean, representatives from many nations and of many tongues have met to honor it, and I therefore beg leave to propose, with all the honors that can be given to the toast, "Long life and happiness to the Prince of Wales and his royal bride."

The toast was drunk with all the honors and vociferous cheering.

Lord Brougham then rose and said,—It gives me very great pleasure to join in celebrating the happy event which so many millions of my countrymen heartily rejoice in. The Prince of Wales, having by nature the happiest dispositions by inheritance from both his parents, has had the inestimable advantage of their cultivation under that parent whose irreparable loss we have so universally deplored, whose great capacity and acquirements as well as his sound judgment and most amiable character accidental circumstances gave me peculiar opportunities of knowing, while from his surviving parent he has derived a title to those great virtues that endear her to us. It has been customary to call the Sovereign of the day by the title of the "best of Princes," and as the term has been so often prostituted I abstain from using it. But I will state a plain matter of fact worth all the superlatives in the world—our Queen in her private capacity is an example to all her subjects for her conduct and her feelings as a daughter, a wife,—now, alas! a widowed wife—and a mother, and in her public capacity, as the constitutional monarch of a free nation, a bright example to all rulers. It is to be hoped that the happiness of the event we are this day celebrating may afford some consolation to her under the affliction from which she suffers so cruelly. I had been engaged to dine with my neighbors at Cannes to celebrate this auspicious event, but on receiving the summons of our worthy host, I felt it to be my imperative duty to attend here in testimony to my profound respect and heartfelt gratitude towards so great a public benefactor. His long life of patient industry has been, by the blessing of Providence, crowned with the greatest success, and has raised him to an eminent station, the object of envy; but far more to be envied is the benevolence that guided his use of the ample means which his toils have acquired, and which he has applied to the succor of his less fortunate fellow-men, and to their improvement, with a generosity wholly unexampled. He stands at the head of the class to which belong my friends Sir William Brown of Liverpool, Sir Francis Crossley of Halifax, and Sir James Baxter of Dundee—a class whose large and wise beneficence has won the respect and gratitude of our whole nation. As standing at the head of this body, I hope I may be allowed to propose "The health of our honored host, and long life to him!" which, indeed, is only wishing further benefits to the bulk of the community and the progress of its improvement.

This toast was received with great cheering. As soon as the applause subsided,

Mr. Peabody said,—If I could command the power of language and the eloquence for which the noble lord who has so kindly proposed my health is so eminently distinguished, I could not by words relieve my heart of its present grateful feelings to him for his very flattering remarks—to you for the enthusiastic manner in which you have received the toast. I do not feel entitled to the encomiums which the noble lord has passed upon my character; but, coming from such an exalted source, and sanctioned by this distinguished company, I shall, while Providence spares me life, endeavor to deserve them. I came to this beautiful city but a few weeks ago quite an invalid, and not intending to mix in society; but returning health and attentive friends changed my feelings, and in a few days I shall leave the city with most favorable impressions of its climate, and with gratitude to numerous friends for great kindness and hospitality. I again thank you most sincerely for the honor which your approbation has this evening conferred upon my humble name.

AN UNNEIGHBORLY ACT. On Saturday evening, as Mr. Esty, a citizen of Springfield, Vt., was passing through a dark shed connected with the hotel in that town, he was seized by the throat by some ruffian, knocked down and robbed of $160. Another citizen, named Kendrick, has been arrested on suspicion of being the guilty party.

DANGEROUS SIGHT-SEEING.—Seven persons were crushed to death on the occasion of the wedding illumination in London, and upwards of one hundred persons had their limbs broken. Several riots had occurred, and on more than one occasion the streets had to be cleared by the military at the point of the bayonet.

A HEALTHY TONE.—Most of the churches used for hospitals in Washington D. C., are to be vacated immediately. The decrease in sick and wounded is daily quite large, there being now over six thousand empty hospital beds.

A WARNING.—In Portland, last week, a boy was sentenced to six months imprisonment in the House of Correction for throwing snowballs at persons passing along the streets.

☞ A letter from Port Royal says the number of freed slaves in that department is nearly seventeen thousand.

BEVERLY—A Whole Family Poisoned by a Son.—One of the worst cases of moral depravity it has been our duty to chronicle of late, is that which has, within a few days, been engrossing the attention of our Beverly neighbors, and the details of which have also excited the attention of our own citizens. Charles L. Stackpole of Montserat, a young man of about twenty-one years, is charged with poisoning his father's family, four in number, one of whom—an adopted daughter—died on the first of the present month. The facts and circumstances, as we gather them, are substantially as follows:

Mr. Simon Stackpole, a middle aged man, resides at Montserat, one of the villages of Beverly. His family consisted of five persons—himself and wife, his own and an adopted daughter, and the son Charles, now in Salem jail. On Tuesday, March 31, the family exhibited signs of illness, and Dr. Swasey was called. The adopted child, Caroline, aged three years and two months, died the following day. Wednesday. Dr. Swasey detected symptons of poison, but said nothing to arouse the suspicion of whoever might be the guilty party. After the death of the child he learned that there still remained in the house, some soup from which the family had eaten previous to the general illness. This he analyzed, and discovered the presence of a small quantity of arsenic.—On Thursday evening, Dr. S. was again sent for to attend the prisoner, Charles, who was complaining of illness, but who seemed to be well enough the following morning—the doctor being unable to discover signs of genuine sickness at any time. By the following Tuesday, the family had recovered their usual condition, and the son Charles was sent to the mill to get some Graham flour, from which cakes were made and eaten. On the evening of this day, sufficient evidence having been found to justify the arrest of Charles as the party guilty of mixing poison with the soup, officers Dennis and Trask were sent to the house to arrest him. On arriving there, the father, mother and daughter were found prostrate and unable to move—Charles, the prisoner, being the only well person in attendance. Dr. Swasey was again called and it was found that the family had again been poisoned, arsenic having been mixed with the flour from which the cakes were made. From the effects of this second attempt, it is hoped, that there is good reason to believe, the family will recover.

Charles was arrested and placed in Salem jail, where he now awaits examination, which take place Tuesday, April 14th. Circumstances strongly point to him as the criminal. A bottle of arsenic was found in his pocket, having evidently been partly used. This he purchased of an apothecary in Salem, who, we understand, can identify the purchaser. The general character and reputation of the prisoner is bad. He has been familiarly known as a "fast boy" during the four or five years he has resided in town. He was generally suspected of setting fire to a barn on his father's premises, during the past winter, though there was no positive proof of this. He has repeatedly stolen money from his father and run away from home but subsequently returned. He has managed to enlist several times, getting bounty each time. His final discharge was from Co K, 40th Mass. Regt., on account of varicose veins. A portion of the bounty, paid by Beverly, was refunded by his father.

The stomach of the child who died has been sent to Boston, where a scientific examination is being held for the purpose of ascertaining the cause of her death.—Salem Gazette.

☞ Deserters from our armies who go into rebeldom, do not meet with the reception they anticipate, but are looked upon with distrust, and gain no sympathy for leaving our ranks.—A letter from Richmond to the Charleston Mercury says—"Deserters from the Federal army come in almost daily, all bringing the same story—their unwillingness to fight under the emancipation proclamation. Cowardice, I believe, is generally at the bottom of their conscientious scruples. They are sent to the Libby prison on arrival." This writer has the correct idea of them, for none but a coward would desert his flag for so flimsy a reason.

☞ The Richmond Enquirer confesses the extremity of the rebels as follows:—"The horses that draw our artillery, and baggage trains and ambulances, are dropping their hoofs off, and eating one another's tails off for want of proper food." It adds:—"Cotton is not king now. Corn is king; potatoes hogs, hay, oats and cattle are sovereigns. But the people must not only produce, they must save. Many a man drinks more corn in spirits than he could eat in bread. Millions of bushels of grain are melted down into mean whiskey, while the cavalry horses and draught horses are starving."

☞ The war and the pirates sent out by England, are having a great effect upon the commercial marine of this Commonwealth. It is stated that the fleet of vessels engaged in foreign trade, has been diminished, from foreign sales, Federal conversion, and Confederate captures, by the number of three hundred and sixty-five vessels—many of heavy tonnage, and valued in the aggregate at $6,136,000.

☞ The St. Helena correspondent of the Boston Post, in a recent letter, says he cannot close "without saying that Massachusetts should be proud of her representatives in South Carolina. At the review the other day by General Hunter it was remarked that our Massachusetts troops made the best appearance—their marching superb and firm as a rock."

☞ Gen. Beauregard must be a man of infinite brass. He has recently presented a claim for the gunboats Mercidita and Keystone, which some of his men pretended to capture but could not hold. Does he expect to get them? Our government once held Fort Sumter and many other places in the South; have the rebels given them up when our government have asked for them?—Ex.

☞ Patriotism is a never-dying principle and it was never more strongly exemplified than in this rebellion. The people never tire of raising money for our invalided soldiers. At a fair last week, held at Lowell, Mass., to raise funds for the Sanitary Commission, $4850 was realised, after paying all expenses.

☞ They are enlisting men into the regular service in New York, at the rate of about one hundred a week. This is hardly enough to keep the regiments full.

☞ There are four Massachusetts regiments in the 9th Army Corps sent to Kentucky,—21st, 29th, 35th and 36th.

☞ It is understood that Gen. Bu... be shortly assigned to a post of great ... bility. The President has never for a ... lost sight of his valuable services and ... gations which he is under to this distin... officer.

☞ In Sussex, England, formerly ... ferences arose between man and wife, ... former was guilty of violence, it was ... to lay some straw and chaff before th... symbolize the thrashing that had ta... within.

☞ Bread riots are getting fashi... rebeldom. They had one in Ric... Thursday of last week, in which 300 ... headed by a woman, participated. ... bread stores were sacked, but many ... goods stores were pillaged.

☞ The entire Yazoo Pass expediti... boats, mortar boats, transports, and tr... returned to the Mississippi river, from ... less attempt to reach the rear of Vic... way of the Pass.

☞ There was a most magnificent ... the aurora borealis on Thursday ... There was a belt of light for some ti... the heavens from northwest to southe... at intervals was exceedingly bright.

☞ Contracts for a new batch of ... twelve in number, have been given ... ces ranging from $380,000 to $400,0... of this batch are to be built at Boston.

☞ Capt. Charles F. Williams ha... pointed Surveyor of the Port of Salem ... of Capt. William C. Waters, appoint... keeper.

☞ General Van Dorn attacked th... troops at Franklin, Tenn., on Friday ... was forced to retire after an engageme... eral hours, with serious loss.

☞ Three millions six hundred ... dollars worth of internal revenue stam... been sold up to the present month.

A ROYAL RECEPTION.—The proprie... building in St. Paul's churchyard ... window accommodations on the day ... Princess's arrival in London for $4750.

Read PEABODY'S price list.

Read PEABODY'S price list.

$1 35.—We commence to-day to sell ... 75 CORSETS for $1 35—to reduce our ... stock. J. P. PEABO...

LADIES.—We yesterday opened a full ... Black Veils, in choice styles, at ve... prices; also one carton Wrought Band... lars for 25 cts, as good as are usually ... 50 cts. Our stock is now full of New ... which we are selling at our usual low p... 220 Essex Street, J. P. PEAB...

Read PEABODY'S price list.

Read PEABODY'S price list.

JAMES F. ALMY is now displaying a ... of Spring Goods, of great variety and ... styles. See his advertisement.

BOSTON—Amusements—At the Bost... atre, The Hernandez Ravel Troupe, w... letti—the unrivalled Daneuse—have p... excellently the past week; and on ... evening, the 20th, the Grand Com... Company will appear.

At the Howard, the inimitable co... John E. Owens, is re-engaged for th... Every one should see him before he le...

At the Tremont Temple, the w... Stereoscopticon was opened for a sho... on Monday night last, ☞ Visit OSBORNE'S Store, and lo... unusual variety of new styles in H... CAPS—191 Essex street.

☞ Try one of Rhoades' Nation... Wringers, before purchasing elsewh... sale at the Equity Store, South Dan... advertisement.

VOCAL CLASS!

MANUAL FENOLLOSA, at th... of some of his friends, respectfully ... his intention of forming a Singing Class in South D...

for the acquirement of thorough ... Instruction in the Art of Singing.

Subscription papers for Members ... found with Mrs. Geo. P. Osborne, ... Elliot, and Mr. Geo. P. Daniels.

The class will be organized as soo... ficient number of names are obtained ... its success.

Terms $5.00 for 24 Evening's Inst... So. Danvers, April 8, 1863.

Grace's Salve.

AMESBURY, Oct. 18...

Mr. Grace: Dear Sir,—Having bee... ed grievously for several weeks with ... abscess upon my side, I used several ... for its eradication without receiving a... until I applied your salve, which ... speedy and permanent cure. I there... happy to certify my confidence in its ...

Yours, with respect, JAMES B...

I certify to the truthfulness of th... statement.

Amesbury, Mass. H. S. DEARBORN, ...

See advertisement of Grace's Salve.

Port of Danvers

Ar 4th, schs Richard Law, York, ... 6th, Golden Rod, Bishop, Philadelphia.

Marriages.

In Danvers, April 7, by Rev James F... Capt Adrian W Wilkins, of San Fra... Cal, to Miss Mary Frances, daughter ... Adrian Putnam, of D.

In Salem, April 10, by Rev Dr Brig... B Franklin Prime to Miss Ellen Tucker.

April 12th, by Rev Dr Mills, Mr Will... Phippen to Miss Sarah Addie, daugh... Capt Daniel Dix.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

The Dwelling House ... 144 Boston Street, S... will be Sold at Public A... on FRIDAY, the 24th i... at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

Salem, April 15th, 1863.

Deaths.

outh Danvers, April 4, Mr Thos. Chad- 75 years 3 days.
anvers, Apr 3, Miss Mary C Brown, 70.
il 11, John H A Ropes, son of Joseph pes, 17 years.
il 12, Mrs Hannah Sleeper, widow of the mes Sleeper, 62 years 5 mos.
alem, April 7, Mrs Sarah Abby, wife of harles A Williams, 20; Joseph Austin, Theodore and Mary F Brown, 22 years; Masury, 75; 10th, Mrs Mary, wife of Kenney, 40; 11th, Ellen Rust, youngest er of John S and Lucy Foster, 16 yrs; bert Whiley, 44; 12th, Charles F, son han and Caroline Emerson, 10 years.
il 8, at the almshouse, Mrs Mary E Fos- years.
anchester, April 5, Major Israel Foster, s.
oston, April 8, Eliab Gilmore, formerly m, 69—a distinguished railroad con-oburn, April 12, Carrie H. T., wife of S. Coffin, aged 32.
lton, Ill., 5th inst, suddenly, Mrs Jane wife of William R Payson, and daugh- the late Eliphslet Jewett, formerly of 51.

he etraordinary success of Dr. Ham's Invigor- irit, seems to stir up an army of Tonics, nd Cure Alls; but as a general thing they the Morning Glory—look very fine in the but wilt before the day has past The Dr, before the public for years; his Dyspepsia has been tested and not found wanting; it the Liver, Stomach, Head and the whole it is good at all times and for everybody.

nnewell's Great Remedies.

EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE IN THE HOUSE AND WHY;

ey should have HUNNEWELL'S UNIVERSAL, EMEDY. because it effectually cures Colds, g and Common Coughs. Sore Throat, Hoarse, l is the most simple and perfect Soothing the world. For old and young, by day and may be used with the greatest freedom, and rths of the deaths by Consumption stopped hould have HUNNEWELL'S TOLU ANODYNE, it is a perfect remedy for Neuralgia, Ner Sick Headache, Tooth, and Earache, Pain in , or Bowels, Genuine Cholera Morbus, Rheu Distress after Eating, Nervousness, Hyste- the chief of all causes of disease, and Insani- of Sleep. Its character, though active, is its action in perfect conformity to nature; re, or relief.
pains in Monthly Menstruation a perfect re- e nature's after work is not disturbed, and e most important points in Medicine.
hould have HUNNEWELL'S ECLECTIC PILLS, ich seldom but a single Pill for a dose all ents of the Stomach and Bowels are cured. e Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, when foul stomach, Loss of Appetite, Biliousness nd so erroneously treated with Mercurials, For Worms a sure cure.
t simple, assist nature do not make a Pill e stomach, as is the most fatal error of tak- y Pills at a dose and then, what is impor- ery Family and every Purse, one bottle goes wo or three of what is ordinarily sold. fidence of all is asked to test nnewell's Universal Cough Remedy. nnewell's Tolu Anodyne. nnewell's Eclectic Pills.
-simile of J. L. Hunnewell's signature over enuine only.
JOHN L. HUNNEWELL, proprietor, 9 Commercial Wharf, Boston, Mass.
E. Meacom, Agent for Danvers.
by all dealers in Salem and vicinity. 1833—1 y

O CONSUMPTIVES.

VERTISER HAVING BEEN RESTORED in a few weeks, by a very simple remedy, g suffered several years with a severe lung and that dread disease, Consumption—is o make known to his fellow-sufferers the eure.
who desire it, he will send a copy of the on used (free of charge,) with the directions ding and using the same, which they will E CURE for CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRON- o. The only object of the advertiser in e Prescription is to benefit the afflicted, and formation which he conceives to be invalu- he hopes every sufferer will try his remedy cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburgh, 18, 3m Kings County, New York.

M. FENOLLOSA,

TEACHER OF MUSIC,

.....PIANO FORTES, at the lowest rates;
.....PIANO FORTES, at the Manufacturers Prices;
GES....PIANO FORTES, on the easiest terms;
At Rooms No. 7 Central street,
SALEM, MASS.

w Jersey Lands for Sale,

— ALSO —

EN OR FRUIT FARMS,

for Grapes, Peaches, Pears, Raspberries, ies, Blackberries, Currants, &c., of 1, 2½, 5, cres each, at the following prices for the iz: 20 acres for $200, 10 acres for $110, 5 $60, 2½ acres for $40, 1 acre for $20. Paya- dollar a week.
ood Cranberry lands, and village lots in OOD 25 by 100 feet, at $10 each, payable by r a week. The above land and farms are t Chetwood, Washington Township, Bur- ew Jersey. For further information, apply O. Stamp, for a circular, to
B. FRANKLIN CLARK,
1863 No. 90 Cedar St, New York, N. Y.

w to Make $5.00 a Day, all other Efforts have Failed.

G CO., 186 Broadway, New York, have shed ONE HUNDRED VALUABLE SE- possessing them, any one, male or female, make $5 a day, without capital, in any lage. Every one should possess these se hey are worth $500 to any single or mar- n. Some of these Secrets have been sold ch. One alone cost us $250 for the right to When you once own them you will never them for money. Several persons are now 30 per month by those Secrets alone. By person may make money easily and rapid- end one Book of Secrets for 25 cents, two cents, club of three for 50 cts., club of four ub of five 75 cts., club of eight copies, $1 ernment money.
rk, Feb 18, 1863. *3m

OF WIZARD—Dear Sir: With your per- wish to say to the readers of your paper I send by return mail to all who wish it, ecipe, with full directions for making and imple Vegetable Balm, that will effectually 10 days, Pimples, Blotches, Tan, Freckles purities of the Skin, leaving the same soft th and beautiful.
so mail free to those having Bald Heads or s, simple directions and information that e them to start a full growth of Luxurient akers, or a Moustache, in less than 30 days. ations answered by return mail without Respectfully yours.
THOS. F. CHAPMAN, Chemist,
2m No. 231 Broadway, New York.

ANUAL FENOLLOSA,

TEACHER
OF THE
, Piano and Singing,
Rooms, No. 7 Central Street,
SALEM, MASS.

Advertisements.

REGULATIONS OF THE
BOARD OF HEALTH
— OF THE —
TOWN OF SOUTH DANVERS.

Adopted April 11, 1863.

Ordered, That all dirt, saw-dust, cinders, shavings, hair, shreds, manure, oyster and lobster shells, waste water, or any animal or vegetable substance, rubbish, or filth of any kind, in any house, ware-house, cellar, yard, or other place, which the Board of Health shall deem it necessary for the health of the town to be removed, shall be carried away therefrom, by and at the expense of the owner or occupant of such house, or other place where the same shall be found, and shall be removed to such place as shall be directed, within four hours after notice in writing to that effect, given by the Board of Health.

Ordered, That all slaughter-houses or places where animals are slaughtered, shall be so cleansed by removing the offal, and all decaying animal matter, as to be free from all offensive odors to residents in the vicinity, and to those individuals travelling by any such place where animals are slaughtered.

Ordered, That no obstructions, such as posts, bushes, or other collectors of decaying animal or vegetable matters, shall be placed in any of the brooks of the town, or in Wallis Pond,—and that no privy be erected or continued over said waters, or so situated on the margin thereof that the filth shall pass into them, and that no animal or vegetable matters, or whatever will pollute the waters, be thrown or allowed to flow in the same, excepting by special permit of the Board of Health.

Ordered, That no wagon, cart or vehicle, in which night soil, hides or other matter, in a condition to emit fetid and offensive effluvia are being conveyed through any of the streets, highways, or within forty rods of any dwelling house, school house, or other public building in this town, shall be permitted to stand more than five minutes, within forty rods of the same place, except it be at the place or places where the load is received or deposited.

D. C. PERKINS,
GEO. OSBORNE,
JOSEPH POOR,
BENJA. HUNTINGTON,
M. A. SHACKLEY,
ALEBSON GALEUCIA,
} Board of Health.

South Danvers, April 15, 1863. 6w

RARE CHANCE FOR BUSINESS.

For Sale or to Let.

A TWO-STORY SHOE MANUFACTORY, ready for occupancy, 22 by 40 feet, situated on Broad Street, centrally located, near the Lynn Mechanics Bank.

FOR SALE.

IF APPLIED FOR SOON.

1 "Thompson's Sole Leather Cutting Machine," in perfect order.
1 large original "Wilder's Safe," powder proof lock.
For further particulars inquire at the U. S. Assessors Office, corner of Union and Mulberry Streets, Lynn.
Lynn, April 15, 1863—3w.

Executors' Sale of Real Estate in Danversport.

By virtue of a License from the Court of Probate for the County of Essex, will be sold at Public Auction, on the premises, on FRIDAY, the 15th day of May, at 2 o'clock, P. M., so much of the following Real Estate of MOSES BLACK, late of Danvers, deceased, as shall raise the sum of six thousand nine hundred and eighty-two 33-100 dollars, for the payment of Debts, Legacies, and charges of Administration:

No. 1.—Homestead of said deceased, consisting of a parcel of Land on Water street, in said Danvers, containing seventy-five rods. On said lot is a large three-story Dwelling House, Wood House, Shed, and good Stable; a superior Garden stocked with valuable Fruit Trees of various kinds, Currants, Gooseberries, Grapes, &c.

No. 2.—Large Wool Store, three Stories and two Attics, together with the Lot on which it stands, fronting three rods and thirteen links on Water St., and running back to line of Essex Railroad. Said Store is 40x60 feet, very heavy timbered, and suitable for manufacturing purposes.

No. 3.—The Estate on Water street, adjoining the last, containing about two acres, known as formerly the Estate of the late BRIGGS R. REED, on which are two Dwelling Houses and large Stable. Said Estate will be sold in one or two parcels, as shall appear most desirable.

No. 4.—The Lot on Water street, known as the Proctor Lot. Said Lot is opposite to the Store of A. W. WARREN, and contains about seventeen thousand feet of land, and is the most eligible building lot on said street in the market.

No. 5.—The large Double-House and Lot of over 1-2 an Acre, on Water street, adjoining the last, and now occupied by WM. BLACK, and the family of the late MOSES BLACK, Jr. Said lot has a fine Stable and Wood-house attached, and a valuable Fruit and Vegetable Garden. It will be offered in one or two parcels, as appears to be desirable.

No. 6.—The Morocco Factory on said Water Street, adjoining the Grocery Store of A. W. WARREN, together with the land under the same; said Building is two story and large and well suited for manufacturing purposes.

No. 7.—The large and valuable Coal Wharf, with extensive water and street fronts, on which are several large and good Coal buildings, situated on Water street, and now under lease to POTTER, BATCHELDER & CO., Coal Dealers.

No. 8.—A small House, and Lot of about half an Acre, on River street, adjoining the Estate of M. J. HAGERTY.

Terms and conditions will be made known at the time and place of sale or on application to either of the subscribers.

WILLIAM BLACK,
JAMES D. BLACK, } Executors.

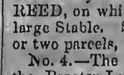
Danversport, April 14, '63.

Valuable Real Estate.



The subscriber offers for sale the following parcels of Real Estate, delightfully situated on the highest ground on Mount Vernon street, in South Danvers.

That very pleasant Cottage House, occupied by the subscriber, on the above named street, being well calculated for two families, having eight rooms in the southerly end and four in the northerly end of the house. The lot on which this house is situated is about 75 feet square. Connected with it is a two story Barn, the upper story being used for a Paint Shop.—It is 19 by 24 feet on the ground.

Also, in rear of the above estate, a two story Dwelling House, for two families, which rents for about $78.

Also, a very eligible House Lot on Mount Vernon st, 75 feet square.

Also, on Fulton street, a one story house with four rooms, which is now rented for about $60.

Also, a House Lot on Fulton st., measuring 75 feet front by 75 feet deep.

The above estates will be sold all together or in separate lots, as may be desired by purchasers.

This property is offered at private sale until the last of May, when it will be sold at auction if not before disposed of. It affords an excellent opportunity for a good bargain, as it will be sold on reasonable terms, and at a low price, if applied for soon.

The land not occupied by buildings is well planted with fruit trees in good bearing condition.

For further information, apply to the subscriber, on the premises.

MOSES JEWETT.

So. Danvers, April 15, 1863.

A Good Milk Route for Sale,

INQUIRE at this office.
South Danvers, Feb. 11, 1863.

James F. Almy.

WE HAVE OPENED
ONE CASE TAFFETA STRIPES,
Mode Colors—at a low price.
JAMES F. ALMY,
ap 8 188 Essex, opposite Central St.

WE HAVE RECEIVED
ONE CASE PACIFIC PRINTS,
New Styles—at a low price.
JAMES F. ALMY,
ap 8 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

WE HAVE RECEIVED
ONE CASE PACIFIC DE LAINES,
Choice Styles and Colors—at low prices.
JAMES F. ALMY,
ap 8 188 Essex, opposite Central st.

WE SHALL OPEN NEW STYLES
LADIES' CLOTH GARMENTS,
On Wednesday, April 8.
JAMES F. ALMY,
ap 8 188 Essex, opposite Central St.

WE OFFER A FINE STOCK
OF LADIES' CLOTHS,
BROADCLOTHS AND REPELLANTS,
JAMES F. ALMY,
ap 8 188 Essex, opposite Central St.

WE HAVE RECEIVED
A full line of
PLAIN ALPACCAS,
Mode and Fancy Colors.
JAMES F. ALMY,
ap 8 188 Essex, opposite Central St.

AT COLMAN'S!!!

No. 10 Front St., Salem, Mass.

YOU MAY PURCHASE Good, All Wool Hose at 23 cts; Dress Braids, 5 1-2 yards each, at 8 cts; Silver-plated Spoons and Forks at old prices; Crockery and Glass Ware at half importing prices; Knives and Forks; Odd Forks; Carvers; Bread Knives; Pocket and Pen Knives; Scissors; Razors. OLD PRICES. Men's, Women's and Children's Boots and Shoes; VERY CHEAP—One 35 day Regulator, suitable for Church or any other public building.

One 30 hour large Clock, only $3 50.
Three eight-day Clocks at only $3 50.
Two Gothic Clocks at only $2 50.
Gent's Mahogany Writing Desk, only $1 25.
Ladies' Work Boxes (Blk Walnut) only $1.
Under Shirts and Drawers; Braces;
Over Coats, on hand, at less than cost;
Frock and Business Coats at low prices;
Pants and Vests at prices that will suit.

☞ Remember that will sell all our goods at less prices than can be purchased at wholesale.

Salem, April 8—3w w only

Messenger's Notice.

ESSEX ss. April 7, 1863 A warrant has been duly issued by Hon. GEO. F. CHOATE, Judge of the Court of Insolvency, for said county of Essex, against the estate of

DANIEL F. CATE, of South Danvers, in said county, carpenter, an insolvent debtor; and the payment of any debts, or the delivery of any property belonging to said insolvent debtor, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law.

A meeting of the creditors of said insolvent debtor will be held at the Court of Insolvency, to be holden at the Court House in Salem, in said county, on the twenty-seventh day of April current, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, for proof of debts, and the choice of an assignee or assignees of said estate.

STEPHEN UPTON, Deputy Sheriff,
So. Danvers, Apr 8. Messenger.

THE CLOTHES WRINGER.

JUST OBTAINED
RHOADES' CELEBRATED
NATIONAL CLOTHES WRINGER,
THE VERY BEST YET INVENTED,
AND REALLY A LABOR SAVING MACHINE.
CALL AND EXAMINE.
For Sale by E. SOUTHWICK,
At the EQUITY GROCERY STORE,
South Danvers, Jan 21, 1863. 3m

WATCH SPRING SKIRTS,
At 236 Essex Street,
A few doors from Washington Street,
SALEM, MASS.
M. A. PORTER,
MANUFACTURES TO ORDER

NAUTICAL BOOKS AND CHARTS.

G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH, 190 Essex street, keep constantly for sale, all NAUTICAL BOOKS in general use—Stationary of all kinds for Seamen.

Also—a complete assortment of CHARTS of all parts of the world—Second hand Charts, which are offered at very low prices.

FISHING CHARTS. The Gulf and River St. Lawrence, Breton Island to Cape Cod, including the Banks and Island of Newfoundland, with additions to 1861, with a Book of Directions.—AFRICAN CHARTS, East and West Coasts.—SAILING DIRECTIONS round Cape Horn North Atlantic Ocean; Western Coast of Africa; Australia.—Collinson's China Pilot; Hongkong to Shanghae; Kings China Pilot; the Coasts of China, Korea, Tartary and Japan 3d ed. 1861, &c &c &c. ap 15.

JUVENILE BOOKS,

A VERY large assortment for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

A FINE assortment of Paper Shades for Kerosene Lamps, just opened at S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

George S. Walker.

700 Dozen Gentlemen's Collars.

GEORGE S. WALKER, 228 Essex Street, has just received a new lot of DOMESTIC FINISH COLLARS,
ordered before the advance. They are of superior quality, and in a great variety of styles, including the Round and Square End, 4 Ply Garrote, Wide and Narrow Garrote, Byron, Polka and Renfrew Byron, English Strings and Laps, Persignye and Folded Polkas.

The above were made specially to my order, and are superior in manufacture to any heretofore sold in this or the Boston market.
apr 8 228 Essex Street, Salem.

John P. Peabody.

PEABODY'S COLUMN.

OUR NEW GOODS!

Ladies' Cotton Hosiery;
Gent's Cotton Socks;
Misses' Cotton Hosiery;
Children's Cotton Hosiery;
Infants' Merino Socks;

Ladies' Gloves; Misses' Gloves; Children's Gloves; Gent's Gloves;
Lisle Thread Gloves; Silk Finished Gloves; Cotton Gloves; Black Gloves;

Our Best Kid Gloves;
Our Best Kid Gloves;
Our Best Kid Gloves;
Our Best Kid Gloves;

White Goods. In this department we have a full stock that was bought before any rise, and which we are selling at the "OLD PRICES." Cambrics, Lawns, Muslins, &c., &c.

Embroideries. Nice Wrought Collars, 25 cts
Nice Wrought Collars, 34 cts
Nice Wrought Collars, 38 cts
Nice Wrought Collars, 50 cts
Wrought Setts, Lace Collars, Bands, Flouncings, Edgings, Insertings, &c., &c.

Ribbons. In Ribbons we can show some decided bargains, as we have many styles that we bought last season. In plain colors we can give them at last year's prices. We have choice New Styles.

Flowers. Our stock of Flowers is choice and full. All the latest and best styles, and at our usual low prices.

Ruches. Nice Hand Made Ruche, 15c
Nice Hand Made Ruche, 18c
Nice Hand Made Ruche, 20c
Nice Hand Made Ruche, 25c

Buttons. We have all the new and desirable styles of Buttons, in Jet, Jet and Steel, Steel, Gilt, Silk, Crochet, Brocade, Pearl, Pearl Agate, Porcelain, Rubber, Whalebone, etc

Braids. We still continue to sell the best Worsted Braids—full pieces for 8 cts per piece. We have Mohair and Silk Braids and Galoons by the piece or yard—in all colors.

Spool Cottons. The best Glazed Cottons, 200 yards, 7 cts
Good Glazed Cotton, 5 cts
Good do do per doz 55c
Findlay's Thistle Cotton, 3c
Findlay's do do per doz 30c
These are all under price.

Skirts. We sell none but the best, and warrant every Skirt we sell to be made of the best Steel Springs, and finished in the best manner. We have all sizes for Ladies and Misses.

Corsets. We have a new thing in this department that is pleasing every one who gives them a trial. Warranted superior in material, shape and finish.

Rubber Pages	12 1-2 cts;
American Pins	5 cts;
Worsted Braids	8 cts;
Sea Island Cottons	5 cts;
Gold Eyed Needles	6 cts;
Blk Linen Thread	4 cts;
Nice Cord Nets	25 cts;
Invisible Nets.	25 cts;
Nice Linen Hdkfs	15 cts;
Nice Cotton Hdkfs	8 cts;
Indelible Pencils	17 cts;

Read the Prices.

BLACK VELVET RIBBONS!

☞ MOURNING GOODS ☜
COLLARS,
SLEEVES,
SETTS,
GLOVES, &c.,
In all the best styles for mourning.

Sun Umbrellas from 162 1-2 up;
Sun Umbrellas from 162 1-2 up;
Sun Umbrellas from 162 1-2 up;
Sun Umbrellas from 162 1-2 up;
Sun Umbrellas from 162 1-2 up;
Sun Umbrellas from 162 1-2 up;

Our whole stock is full and desirable, and we can show many decided bargains.

☞ Our store is open every evening until 8 o'clock. ☜

220 ESSEX ST., SALEM,
JOHN P. PEABODY.

100,000 BARRELS OF THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S
POUDRETTE,
111 COMMERCIAL ST., BOSTON, MASS.

This Company, with a capital of $150,000, the most extensive works of the kind in the world, and an experience in manufacturing of over 23 years, with a reputation long established, having also the exclusive control of all the night soil of the great city of New York, are prepared to furnish an article, which is, without doubt, the CHEAPEST AND VERY BEST fertiliser in market. It greatly increases the yield; and ripens the crop from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from three to four dollars per acre, with little or no labor. Also, FIFTY TONS of BONE TAFEU, being a mixture of bone and night soil ground fine, at $45 per ton—a superior article for grain, &c. A pamphlet containing all necessary information may be had free by addressing a letter to the LODI MANUFACTURING CO., No. 111 Commercial Street, Boston, Mass.

Price of POUDRETTE, $1.65 per barrell. Seven barrells and over delivered free of charge.

JOHN FARRELL,
DRAPER AND TAILOR,

HAVING removed to his old place of business, 138 MAIN ST., South Danvers, (over Batchelder's Grocery Store), is prepared to Cut, Make, Repair, or furnish Garments, for Men and Youths at short notice.
South Danvers, April 1. tf

THE PIANO FORTES

THAT have attracted so much attention of late, and are so much admired on account of their SPLENDID FULL, RICH, MELLOW TONE, and GRAND FRENCH ACTION, are for sale only at the Office of the Agent,
218 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.,
where reference may be had to many who have purchased. Other Piano Fortes also, are for sale, varying in price from $180 upwards. Please call.
Mch 11 6m S. MACKINTIRE, Agent.

A. J. Archer & Co

ELEGANT NEW GOODS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,
OPEN THIS MORNING
MANY NEW STYLES OF
DRESS GOODS,
INCLUDING
Rich and Heavy Black Silks,
Rich Plain Colored Silks.

☞ Our patrons are invited to examine these Goods. Prices are still advancing, and money will be saved by buying now.
Salem, February 11, tf

FLANNELS AND COTTONS.

A. J. ARCHER & CO.,
Have on hand a full supply of
BROWN SHEETINGS AND SHIRTINGS;
BLEACHED SHEETINGS & SHIRTINGS;
— Also —
GREY TWILLED FLANNELS;
WHITE FLANNELS.
— Also —
BLANKETS OF ALL SIZES,
which they offer at the LOWEST PRICES.
Salem, January 28—6w

SPRING GOODS!

Entirely New Stock of CLOTHING.

GEO. H. LANE,
CLOTHIER,
Nos. 31 and 32 Dock Square,
BOSTON,

IS now ready to show to his customers and the public an ELEGANT STOCK OF CLOTHING for MEN'S and BOYS' wear, expressly designed by himself, manufactured on the premises for the present season in all those new and choice selections of fabrics for which Lane's establishment has become celebrated. The stock consists in part of

SPRING OVERCOATS,
FROCK COATS,
BUSINESS COATS
And ONE HUNDRED CHOICE
NEW STYLES OF PANTALOONS,
Suitable for Dress, Promenade or Business Occasions.

Mr. LANE having made Large Purchases by Contract before the Unprecedented and General Advance in Prices, has it in his power to give

REAL BARGAINS,

Acting on the principal that
"Quick Sales and Small Profits"
Are the best rules to guide the merchant.

JUVENILE ATTIRE.

Boys' Entire Suits, as SCHOOL SUITS,
DRESS SUITS,
JACKET SUITS,
SACK SUITS, &C.

All of the newest fabrics and best workmanship.

A year since Mr. Lane advised the public that he had added a Boys' Department, and he has now the satisfaction to announce that he has secured the services of Mr. C. H. Boynton, (formerly with J. WALTER READ) to superintend it; and indeed, to make the entire establishment the COMPLETEST IN NEW ENGLAND, the Proprietor has spared no pains to secure the services of REAL ARTISTS in the Cutting Room, and accomplished, obliging, and experienced Salesman in the Show Room; and trusts by strict personal attention, and MODERATE CHARGES, to merit the support of the community.

GEO. H. LANE,
31 AND 32 DOCK SQUARE,
April 1—3m BOSTON.

NEW ENGLAND
FERTILIZER DEPOT,
No. 111 Commercial St., Boston.

TO FARMERS AND TRADERS!

WE desire to call your attention to our stock of FERTILIZERS, having the largest supply and finest assortment of reliable brands ever offered in this market. Our stock embraces

Coe's, Hoyt's, Rhodes } SUPER-PHOSPHATE LIME.
No. 1 PERUVIAN GUANO.
GROUND BONE, [coarse and fine.]
BONE MEAL, LAND PLASTER.
FISH GUANO. BONE TAFEU.
LIME, CEMENT, &c., &c.

We are also Sole Agents for the
LODI MANUFACTURING CO.'S
POUDRETTE.

Get our terms before purchasing elsewhere. We sell at manufacturers' prices. Samples can be seen of all of the above; also a pamphlet, with a Farmer's Almanac for 1863, may be had free on application by mail or otherwise.

J. M. & P. RICHARDS,
Sales Office 111 Commercial St., Boston, Mass.
apr 1—3m

All kinds of Printing done at this office.

Browning & Long.

BROWNING & LONG having finished opening their NEW GOODS, are now prepared to show a splendid assortment in their different departments. Having purchased our Spring Stock at least 20 per cent, less than the wholesale prices now ruling, we shall sell them accordingly low, and as heretofore, offer our goods as

FIRST CLASS, and at the LOWEST PRICES.

Among our NEW GOODS may be found:
POINTE DE GAUZE COLLARS,
THREAD LACE do,
MALTA LACE do,
GUIPURE LACE do,
LACE TRIMMED do,
SWISS do,
SWISS SETTS,
UNIQUE SCARFS,
BLACK LACE VEILS,
EMB'D BORDER VEILS,
REAL THREAD VEILS,
GRENADINE do,
GAUZE do,
MOURNING do,
TUCKED do,
INFANTS EMB'D CAPS,
BLACK AND BL'K AND WHITE BARBES.

Edgings and Insertings

Cambric, Muslin,
Thread, Malta,
Valenciennes, Guipure,
Smyrna, and Cotton.
A full assortment in the different widths.

Ladies' and Gent's Hdkfs.

A full assortment—in Plain, Col'd Bordered, Hemstitched and Mourning.
Also, a full assortment of Childrens' Hdkfs, in Hemstitched, Plain, and Col'd Bordered.

Corsets and Bodices.

A full assortment in White and Col'd—two qualities. Every pair warranted to fit and give satisfaction, or to be returned.

Skirts.

Our usual large variety in Ladies and Misses.
Also, just received the new GORE TRAIL SKIRT.

Hosiery and Gloves.

A full and splendid assortment, consisting of all sizes, in Ladies' Plain White Cotton Hose, do do Unbleached do,
do do Mode do do,
do do Black do do,
Openwork—in Unbleached & White.
MISSES' COTTON HOSE, in white, unbleached, mode, brown, mixed, striped;
MEN'S HALE HOSE, in Grey or Blue mixed;
do do do Brown mix'd Striped Plain & White.
BOY'S HALE HOSE, in Grey, Brown, Blue, Striped & Plain White;
INFANT'S 1-2 and 3-4 Hose, in Cotton, a full assortment.

Kid Gloves.

A fresh assortment—In Black, White, Col'd and Embroidered.
LADIES' SILK AND LISLE GLOVES.
We have a handsome assortment, comprising all sizes and a great variety of styles, including ALEXANDRE SILK KID FINISH GLOVE, in small sizes.
MISSES' AND BOY'S GLOVES, in Plain, Mixed and Ruffled.
Also, a full line of WHITE SILK GLOVES 8 sizes.

Dress Buttons, Bugles, Gimps, Beltings, etc., a splendid assortment.

☞ Also, a full stock of Yankee Notions, which we shall sell at the Lowest Prices.

BROWNING & LONG
(Successors to J. MAYER,)
Essex St., 177 Essex St.,
April 15, 1863.

To Let on Essex St., Salem,

The STORE and DWELLING HOUSE connected therewith, No. 250 Essex St. The store is neatly fitted up, is one of the best stands in the city, and admirably adapted for Millinery, Fancy, Dry Goods, or any light business.

The Dwelling part contains nine finished rooms, and is supplied with water, gas, etc.—all in good order and very convenient.

To a satisfactory tenant, the above will be let on reasonable terms. Apply at J. PERLEY'S Shoe Store, next door west. feb 25

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscriber offers for sale on favorable terms,—or would exchange for a Farm,—his Estate on Wallis Street, near the Monumental Cemetary, consisting of THREE DWELLING HOUSES, which will be sold separately or as one Estate.

There are 75 feet of land in front, and 72 feet in the rear of the house.

The situation is pleasant, in a good neighborhood, and the houses are supplied with all the conveniences for immediate occupation. In ordinary times these tenements would rent for from $30 to 350 dollars.

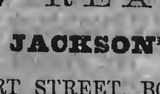
The Subscriber, having made up his mind to dispose of the property, will sell it low, and it is well worth the attention of purchasers.

Apply to JOHN M'NEAL.
South Danvers, Dec. 10th, 1862. tf.

Salem and South Danvers Railroad.

SUBSCRIBERS to the Capital Stock are hereby notified that the same is payable at the SALEM BANK, in four instalments, of 25 per cent. each, on the following days, viz.—
March 2; March 20; April 10; May 1.
Per order,
GEO. D. PHIPPEN, Treasurer.
mch 7 2m

SPRING STYLE



DRESS HATS,
NOW READY
AT JACKSON'S,
101 COURT STREET, BOSTON.

Also a large and varied assortment of CAPS and SOFT HATS, for Boys' and Men's wear. Those wishing articles in the above line would do well to call before purchasing.

JOSEPH A. JACKSON.
Boston, April 1, 1863. 3m

T. HARDY, JR.,
—Dealer in—
DOORS, SASHES, BLINDS,
Glazed Sash, Painted Blinds,
FENCE PALES, STAIR BALUSTERS, FRAMING PINS, &c.,
No. 26 FRONT STREET,
Salem, January 14, 1863—6m

5 PIECES Lyman Sheetings, very heavy.
3 pieces Laconia Sheetings.
6 pieces Great Falls Sheetings—at the lowest Cash prices. ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

KEROSENE Stand and Hand Lamps, and Peg Lamps. Also Wicks and Chimneys—for sale by S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st., Salem.

☞ If you want to SAVE MONEY, in purchasing Goods, go to COLMAN'S, No. 10 Front street, Salem. [ap30-tf

Auction Sales.

WILLIAM ARCHER, Jr.,
Auctioneer, Real Estate and Stock Broker,
34 Front Street.
Real Estate, Bank, Railroad and Manufacturing Stock bought and sold on Commission.

ON SATURDAY NEXT, at 9 1-2 o'clock, will be sold at No. 34 Front street:

The usual quantity of Furniture: Chairs, Tables, 2 dozen Bedsteads, Carpets, 1 Marble Aquarium, 2 Bronze do.
DRY GOODS: Prints, Delaines, Shawls, Hosiery, &c.
CROCKERY: The balance of an invoice of Crockery and Glass Ware.
BOOTS AND SHOES: An invoice of Boys' Boots, Women's and Children's Shoes.
HOUSE PAPER; 300 Rolls House Paper.
TOBACCO: 10 boxes Tobacco. ap 15

D. P. GROSVENOR, Jr.,

Druggist and Apothecary,
33 MAIN STREET.
Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Dye Stuffs, and Popular Proprietary Medicines.
Personal attention to Physicians' Prescriptions.
South Danvers, May 29, 1861. 1y

GEO. H. MEACOM

Dealer in
DRUGS & MEDICINES,
Fancy & Toilet Articles, &c.
126 MAIN ST. 126
Nearly opposite Danvers Bank, So. Danvers.

T. A. SWEETSER,
Druggist & Apothecary
37 Main St., So. Danvers,

DEALER IN
Drugs, Medicines, Chemicals, Foreign Leeches, Shakers' Herbs, Dye Stuffs, Gums, Acids, Sponges, Shoulder Braces, Trusses, and Genuine Patent Medicines.
Also, Imported Cigars of choice brands, Perfumery Toilet Articles and Stationery.
Physicians' Prescriptions carefully prepared by experienced persons.
37 MAIN STREET.

Potter, Batchelder & Co.,
(Successors to M. Black)
DANVERS-PORT,
DEALERS IN
WOOD AND COAL
OF the various kinds usually kept in a retail yard. Constantly on hand
Franklin, Old Company's Lehigh,
Locust Mountain, Black Heath,
Red and White Ash.
Of all sizes, of the best quality, and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere.
OFFICE—No. 6 Allen's Building.
Order Box at post office, South Danvers, and post office, Danvers.
G. W. POTTER,
J. Q. A. BATCHELDER,
C. T. BATCHELDER. july 19—tf

Salem and Danvers Aqueduct Co'y.

ALL persons using the water of the Salem and South Danvers Aqueduct are hereby notified that the water rents, for the six months ending May 1, 1863, are now due, and that they are required to pay the same, at the office of the Company, No 2 Sewall street, on the 1st day of May next. Should the bills remain unpaid for thirty days, the water will be stopped, in conformity to the regulations of the Company.
Office hours, from 9 to 1 o'clock, and from 2 to 5.
Per order of the Directors,
apr 1 WM. JELLY, Collector.

GLASS WARE.

CUT and Pressed Goblets; Tumblers; Dishes in great variety; just opened at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.
mch 25

GRACE'S CELEBRATED SALVE.

A SURE RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERER.

This Salve is a vegetable preparation, invented in the 17th century, by DR. WM. GRACE, surgeon in King James's army. Through its agency he cured thousands of most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Burns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Scalds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Flesh Wounds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Corns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Felons.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Frozen Limbs.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Wens.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Callouses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Salt Rheum.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chilblains.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Breast.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Lips.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Erysipelas Sores.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Abscesses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ulcers.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chapped Hands.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ringworms.
And from Sores and Wounds of the most serious nature down to a common Pimple. It eradicates Pimples from the face, and beautifies the skin. There is no preparation before the public that can equal this Salve in prompt and energetic action for the speedy cure of external diseases, as those who have tried its virtues testify. Soldiers, Sailors, and Fishermen, will find this Salve their best friend.
It has none of the irritating, heating properties of other remedies, but cools, cleanses, and heals the most serious Sores and Wounds. Every family, and especially those containing children, should keep a box on hand in case of accident, for it will save them much trouble, suffering, and money. All it wants is a fair trial to cure old and inveterate Sores.
MANUFACTURED BY
WILLIAM GRACE.
AMESBURY, MASS.
PRICE 25 CENTS PER BOX.
Each box has the above cut and the fac-simile of the proprietor's signature attached to it, which is duly copy righted.
Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., 11 and 12 Marshall street, Weeks & Potter, 170 Washington street, and M. S. Burr & Co., 26 Tremont street, Boston, Wholesale Agents.
For sale by druggists and at country stores everywhere.

THE SOUTH DANVERS WIZARD

Is published every WEDNESDAY, at Allen's Building, South Danvers Square. by

CHARLES D. HOWARD, Proprietor.
FITCH POOLE, Editor.

TERMS—Two Dollars a year.

ADVERTISEMENTS inserted at reasonable rates.

Cards.

WILLIAM C. CHOATE,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
251 Essex St., Salem.
Salem, August 6, 1862. tf

THOMAS M. STIMPSON,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
194 ESSEX STREET, SALEM.
Residence Lewell street, South Danvers.

B. C. PERKINS,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
South Danvers—Office in Allen's Building.

JOHN W. PROCTOR,
Counsellor at Law,
Office near the Monument.

A. A. PUTNAM,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
CORNER MAPLE AND ELM ST.,
DANVERS.

ALFRED A. ABBOTT,
Attorney and Counsellor,
Office, No. 24 Washington Street, Salem;
House, Main St., So. Danvers.

IVES & PEABODY,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law,
Have removed their Office to
Rooms formerly occupied by Hon. Otis P. Lord,
NO. 27 WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM.
STEPHEN B. IVES, jr. JOHN. B. PEABODY

SIDNEY C. BANCROFT,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
27 Washington Street, Salem.

H. O. WILEY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Office, Allen's Building, So. Danvers.

Claims against the Government for Bounty Back Pay, and Pensions, promptly attended to

A. S. CRAWFORD
Dentist,
No. 4 MAIN STREET, So. DANVERS SQUARE
Mechanical Dentistry Neatly Executed.
Teeth Extracted by Electricity without Extra Charge

W. L. BOWDOIN,
SURGEON DENTIST,
No, 208 Essex Street, Salem, (Opposite the Marke
Residence--No. 37 Washington street.
jan 11—ly

F. POOLE
INSURANCE AGENT,
Allen's Building (up stairs),
Deeds drawn, and other common forms.

NEWMAN & SYMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Family Groceries, Flour & Grain,
HARD WARE AND CROCKERY,
Ready Made Clothing, Gents' Furnishing Goods,
Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes, &c.,
South Danvers Square, opp. Congregational Church
SAM'L NEWMAN. NATH'L SYMONDS.

S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS,
DEALERS IN
Crockery, China and Hardware; Paper Hangings; Solar and Entry Lamps; Paints, Oil, and Window Glass.
No. 32 Front street, Lawrence Place,
feb13 SALEM, MASS.

HENRY L. WHIDDEN,
HOUSE AND SIGN PAINTER,
Glazier and Paperer,
Central Street, South Danvers.
All orders promptly and faithfully executed.
jan2-ly

E. S. FLINT,
DEALER IN
West India Goods, Country Produce,
No. 2 Main Street, South Danvers.

JESSE SMITH,
No. 262 Essex Street, Salem,
Importer and Dealer in
Gold and Silver Watches,
MARINE CHRONOMETERS,
Aneroid Barometers, Spy Glasses, &c.

MRS. R. C. FLETCHER
keeps constantly on hand
A WELL SELECTED ASSORTMENT OF
Millinery Goods,
at Rooms 168 Essex street, Salem. may16

WILLIAM BLANEY,
HOUSE & SIGN PAINTER
Grainer, Glazier and Paper Hanger.
164 MAIN STREET, Corner of Grove.
WINDOWS and BLINDS cheap for cash.
mch6-tf

JOHN MOULTON,
LIVERY STABLE,
Central Street, South Danvers.

Mr. M. will endeavor to keep up the good reputation of his stable, by still keeping good Horses and Carriages. jan 7, 1863.

HEYLINGBERG'S
Hair Dressing Saloon,
24 MAIN ST., SOUTH DANVERS.

TARIFF OF PRICES:

Shaving,	6 cts.
Hair Cutting,	12 cts.
Champooing,	15 cts.
Champooing and Hair Cutting,	25 cts.

No more new Quarterly Customers taken.
In consequence of the scarcity of Change, 18 checks will be sold for one dollar.
South Danvers, Dec 17, 1862.

THOMAS DAVIS,
ADVERTISING AGENT
For the principal New England Newspapers, remains at the old stand, No. 23 Cornhill, Boston, where you will find him still loyal to the Constitution, the Laws, and Advertising.
Boston, Jan 29, 1862. tf

WALKING MADE EASY.

DR. P. KENISON,
CHIROPODIST,
215 Washington St., Boston,
Cures Hard and Soft Corns, Bunions, Club Nails, Nails penetrating the Flesh, Warts, &c., in a manner that will satisfy the most incredulous.

D. W. BOWDOIN,
—ARTIST IN—
PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES.
Rooms No. 175 Essex st, Salem, [Downing's Block]
Portraits, Miniatures, and Views, by the Ambrotype, Daguerreotype, Photograph and Stereoscope process—finished in India Ink, Oil and Water colors.
☞ Particular attention paid to restoring old Daguerreotypes, and other pictures—and making enlarged copies, highly finished. may 16

100,000 BARRELS OF THE LODI MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S
POUDRETTE,
111 COMMERCIAL ST., BOSTON, MASS.

This Company, with a capital of $150,000, the most extensive works of the kind in the world, and an experience in manufacturing of over 23 years, with a reputation long established, having also the exclusive control of all the night soil of the great city of New York, are prepared to furnish an article, which is, without doubt, the CHEAPEST AND VERY BEST fertilizer in market. It greatly increases the yield, and ripens the crop from two to three weeks earlier, at an expense of from three to four dollars per acre, with little or no labor. Also, FIFTY TONS of BONE TAFEU, being a mixture of bone and night soil ground fine, at $45 per ton—a superior article for grain, &c. A pamphlet containing all necessary information may be had free by addressing a letter to the subscriber

JAMES T. FOSTER,
Care of the Lodi Manufacturing Company,
66 Courtland St., New York.

Agents—WELCH & FAIRFIELD, Grocers, Lowell Street, South Danvers. feb 11—3m

MISS MUGFORD.
A new supply of "Triumph in Trial."—A Memorial of Sarah S. Mugford—by S M Worcester, D. D,—at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

NEW NEEDLE THREADER.
DOUBLE-ENDED, Excelsior Sewing Needle Threader and Worsted Unreader combined—of great utility for near sighted or nervous people in threading needles, numbering from 4 to 12, and also Darning Needles.
Call and see them, at
mch 4 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S.

ORGANDIE MUSLINS.
WE shall open new Spring styles of Organdie Muslins to-day.
Ladies will do well to buy now, as prices are advancing daily. ANN R. BRAY,
mch 4 76 Federal street.

WHITE LEAD,
LINSEED Oil; Spirits Turpentine; Star Benzele Spirits; Varnishes, etc—constantly for sale by
mch 11 S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front st.

CAMELS HAIR GOODS.
OWING to the small stock of Camels Hair goods in the market, prices have very much advanced. We shall give our customers the advantage of buying at the old prices, as we have a good assortment on hand.
ANN R. BRAY,
mch 4 76 Federal street.

BLANK BOOKS.
A fresh lot, just manufactured from superior paper, by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
190 Essex street,
mch 11 Sign of Five Golden Books.

GAYLE & CO.,
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
DEALERS IN
Flour, Grain and Produce,
Manufactrers' Agents for the sale of
Concentrated Leaven, Soda and Pearlash Saleratus, and Bi Carb. Soda.
PHILLIPS WHARF, . . . Salem.

REMOVAL!
AUGUSTUS HAMMOND,
Manufacturer and Repairer of
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HAS removed from his old place of business to the Railroad Ground, opposite the Old South Church, where he would be happy to continue to receive favors from his friends and patrons. may 21

Choice Fall Pigs for Sale.
THE subscriber offers for sale nice PIGS of Mackie Prince Albert and Chester County breeds, o which the Mackie took the First Premium at the lat Cattle Show. Prices reasonable.
BYRON GOODALE,
Near Tapley's Brook.
South Danvers, Sept. 17, 1862. tf

NEW BOOKS,
AT G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S.
The Scarlet Flower, a Novel by Pierce Egan Esq;
The Trapper's Daughter, a story of the rocky Mountains, by Gustave Aimard;
Peterson's Magazine for April;
Atlantic Monthly, for do;
Eclectic Magazine, do;
Webster's army and Navy Pocket Dictionary
mch 25 190 Essex street.

School for both Sexes.
THE next term of MISS FRANCES E. VERY'S School for pupils of both sexes, will commence April 1st, at the Oliver School House, No. 95 Federal Street.
Application may be made at No. 154 Federal Street. Salem, Mch 4, 1863.

NEW YORK WHITE LEAD.
2500 L New York White Lead;
Also Forest River White Lead—for sale by
mch 4 S C & E A SIMONDS.

CONSCRIPTION LAW.
The United States Conscription Law of 1863 Official and complete; price 5 cents—at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

NEW SPRING SHAWLS,
IN Stripe, Plaid and Plain, of rich styles—just received and for sale by mch 4 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

PERMANENT GREEN.
A supply of Hampden Green, just received at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.
mch 11

WIRE GOODS.
WIRE Rat Traps; Broilers; Steamers; Sieves etc., just received at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

PATENT BOOK STAND.
A new and desirable article—can be used for two Books at the same time, is neat and cheap—for sale at
ap 1 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

WHITE LEAD IN PAILS.
NEW YORK White Lead, put up in tin Pails of 25 lbs each, for sale by
S. C. & E. A. SIMONDS', 32 Front st

INK STANDS.
NEw Styles at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH

UNITED STATES LAWS.
NATIONAL Tax Law with the amended act of Mch '63—only 10 cts.
Militia Laws from 1792 to 1863, now in full force;
Conscription Law of 1863—received by
ap 1 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S

TOILET SOAPS, &C, &C.
TEETH, Hair, and Nail Brushes. New supply for sale by
ap 1 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

GREEN PAINT.
HAMPDEN Green, English Green, and Verdigris, for sale by
S C & E A SIMONDS, 32 Front St.

AGRICULTURAL PAPERS, &C.
SUBSCRIPTIONS received for all the Agricultural and Horticultural Papers and Magazines, at the Publishers' prices—by
mch 25 G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

CROCKERY WARE.
WHITE Dinner and Tea Ware; Fancy and White Toilet Ware, in complete sets—by
mch 25 S C & E A SIMONDS.

W. E. P. SMYTH,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Proctor in Admiralty, and Commissioner of Deeds for the several States.
Frazier's Building, over the Post Office,
LYNN, MASS.

Having peculiar means for prosecuting, with accuracy and dispatch, all claims against Government, especially those for Bounty, Back Pay and Pensions, I have made this a specialty. Several months' residence in Washington enabled me to become thoroughly conversant with the routine of business in all the Departments, through which claims, of whatever nature, are passed, and also familiar with the practice in the U. S. Court of Claims; in addition to which I have a partner there resident, and a former partner in the Treasury Department, which advantages give me unexcelled facilities for the successful prosecution of business in any way connected with Government.

Important to Soldiers, Marines and their Heirs.
Persons enlisted in the U. S. Service, Land or Naval, since March 1, 1861, if disabled in the service, are entitled to Pension; Relatives of Persons deceased in the service are entitled to Bounty and Pension; in the following order:

1st. The Widow. 4th. The Mother.
2d. The Children. 5th. The Brothers and Sisters collectively.
3d. The Father.

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION need not be taken on, in ordinary cases, to enable heirs of persons deceased in the service to obtain Pensions and Bounty.
When a discharge is granted for disability, in no case should the Oath of Identity on the back of the Discharge be filled up. The safest course is, to carry all papers at once to an Attorney, without tampering with them. All those who have claims, should present them without delay, as soon, the pressure will be so great upon the Auditor's Office, by reason of numerous applications, that applicants will be subjected to vexatious delay in getting their claims audited.

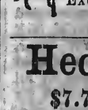
NO CHARGE MADE UNTIL CLAIMS ARE PAID.

Claims left at the Post Office, South Danvers, will be promptly forwarded.
Lynn, Aug 27, 1862—1y

H. & H. G. HUBON,
WASHINGTON STREET, SALEM
Manufacturers of
Rose Wood, Mahogany, Black Walnut and Stained Wood
COFFINS and CASKETS.
MAKING this our exclusive business, we are ready at all times and at the shortest notice to furnish Grave Clothes of various styles, as well as Coffins and Caskets of the finest finish Personal attention given, and delivered without extra charge to any of the neighboring towns. All orders by express or otherwise will receive prompt attention.
Black Walnut and White Wood Boards, Plank and Joists for sale.
dec 14—tf

FRANKLIN COAL.
JUST landed, a cargo of FRANKLIN COAL—the best in the world for domestic use.
POTTER, BACHELDER & CO.,
Successors to M. Black, Jr.
Danversport, May 6, 1861. tf.

E. N. PRICE,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
HARNESSES,
SADDLES, BRIDLES,
AND WHIPS.
— ALSO —
Trunks, Valises and Traveling Bags.
All orders for Manufacturing and Repairing executed with promptness, and in the best manner.
237 Essex Street, Salem, Mass.
mch13-tf



Book & Job Printing
OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,
Executed with Neatness & Despatch
AT THIS OFFICE.

Heckscher Coal!
$7.75 per Ton on Wharf.
A FULL supply of this Superior Coal,
Both Red and White Ash,
Of the various sizes, for sale at wholesale and retail FOR CASH ONLY, by
W. P. PHILLIPS,
Phillips' Wharf, Salem.
march 18

E. R. PERKINS,
PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST
241 Essex Street, Salem.
Patent Ambrotypes, Stereoscopes,
Photographs, Sphercotypes, Melainotypes and patent enamel Pictures, of various sizes, taken with all the improvements of the art. Portraits, Miniatures, Engravings, &c., accurately copied. Views taken when desired. jan 11

REMOVAL!
JOHN J. ASHBY,
WOULD inform his friends and the public generally, that he has removed to the store
No. 145 Essex Street,
formerly occupied by JOHN BARLOW, where he has opened a good assortment of
BOOTS, SHOES & RUBBERS,
and will MANUFACTURE to order, all kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Boots and Shoes. Also, Snow Boots, at the lowest Cash Prices.
Repairing of all kinds done on the most reasonable terms. JOHN J. ASHBY,
Successor to John Barlow.
Salem, September 17, 1862.

730 DAYS' Reading for $4.00. Obtained by subscribing to our Circulating Library. Call and see the Regulations, which are very liberal.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

Ann R. Bray,
NO. 76 Federal Street,
— DEALER IN —
Camel's Hair Goods,
Salem, may 12, 1862. tf

DIARIES AT COST PRICES.
A GOOD ASSORTMENT at G. M. WHIPPLE & A. A. SMITH'S, Salem, Mass.

NATIONAL ALMANAC,
AND Annual Record for 1863—containing Government of the United States, the Individual States, and so called Confederate States, Tax Law, Census Tables, New Tariff, Army and Navy Officers, U. S. Mint, Consuls Statistics, &c., for sale by
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.
190 Essex st., sign of Five Golden Books

ALL THE NEW BOOKS,
IN elegant and plain bindings, may be found at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
dec 24 Sign of Five Golden Books.

DIARIES--1863-
AN excellent assortment at the lowest prices, for sale by G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH.

NEW BOOKS.
STEP by Step; or Tidy's Way to Freedom; Fire Light; or Stories for Domestics, by Mrs J. D. Chaplin;
Gardener's Monthly—January;
Harper's Weekly; Genealogical Register;
Historical Collections, October, 1862.
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH,
At the old stand of H Whipple & Son

Dr. Ham's Spirit.

Poor Richard's Eye and Ear Water.
Prof. M. G. BROWN.
SCIENTIFIC ARTICLE ON THE EYE AND EAR.

Reader, allow me to call your attention to a fact which hitherto you have not been acquainted with, namely, that there is not a sound eye in the land. The eyes are the only members of the body totally neglected; there is nothing done for the eye; its wants are neither studied or regarded. This untiring servant is the first in action at birth, and the last at death, yet it seems to pass even common observation.

Notwithstanding all the ignorance and neglect of the eye, it is unquestionably true that every department of the human system is dependent on it for life and health.

The Divine Machinator has placed 8000 tubes and glands around the eyes, through which the saltish fountain (same as supplies the tear) is designed to pass as dew, finding its way to every crevice and nook in the flesh, whose chief tendency is to mucus. This fountain is to the body what dew is to the plants. The flesh can only be kept free from mucus (which is the precursor of disease) through the tubes and glands around the eyes being keep open, allowing the teary, saltish fountain to pass freely forward. If the laws of mind and body are disregarded or insulted, these faithful sentinels shut up like a sensitive plant, thus refusing to pass this life, giving dew to the parched flesh, whereby the entire machinery of the human body can alone find its natural moisture. When this fountain is cut off, the system is open to every kind of disease, which first begins with small streaks of blood-shot at the bottom of the ball of the eye; these are streaks of death if not removed. Examine your eyes and you will find these streaks moving over the white of the eye towards the pupil; generally the eye gets scumy and glassy; the ball turns a green or yellowish color, this is a sure indication of the following diseases (which are solely caused by the moisture being cut off from the system); Nervousness, headache, earache, deafness, loss of hair, neuralgia, rheumatism, blotches on the face and skin, diptheria, sore throat, bronchitis, catarrah, soreness of the chest, decay of the lungs, deprivation of the fluids; these, with all other diseases, are caused as above described. One stoppage leads to another, until disease destroys the system.

To secure moisture for a patient is the only hope of the physician. Benjamin Franklin has immortalized himself by such sayings as, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

Reader, if you desire to be saved from the kindred diseases which make life a burden, then create an appetite in your eyes by giving them a drink of Poor Richard every morning immediately after you wash, and just before retiring at night. Do not say—Let well enough alone; consider the lilies of the field, they receive the life giving dew while they are in perfect health—go thou and do likewise.

Please read the following letter from the Rev. P. S. Henson, pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church:

Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1862.

From injuries received in my right eye when a boy, a chronic inflammation had been produced, in consequence of which I suffered constant martyrdom. Every moment of my waking life was embittered, and I was frequently unable to sleep at night.

A variety of remedies had been resorted to without success, and I entertained the purpose, as a last resort, of having the ball taken out of its socket in the hope of finding thus relief.

In the meanwhile, most providentially I noticed one day in a shop window a bottle of Poor Richard's Eye Water. I had never heard of it before, but determined to try it—and did with the most delightful results. In a very few days the painful irritation was removed—I could bear the strongest light, and went forth as it were to the enjoyment of a new life. I now keep a bottle of it always in the house, and if my eye seems at all disposed to annoy me, I give it a dose, and that is an end of it. I take occasion to say further, that my wife used to suffer severely at times from protracted pain in and over her eyes, and she has found Poor Richard's Eye Water a sovereign specific in her case, giving her almost instant relief.

Grateful to God for the benefit I have personally received, I cannot but recommend the preparation most cordially to all who have been sufferers like myself.

P. S. HENSON,
Pastor of the Broad Street Baptist Church.
Residence 1430 Poplar St., Philadelphia.

Thousands of certificates could be published, of the most remarkable cures on record. It is a perfect restorer of weak sight and dim vision; it cures Deafness, Catarrh, Sore Throat, prevents Loss of Hair, with all kindred diseases.

Directions.—Bathe with a glass tube, at least the ear (many bathe the eyes with the finger). Ask the druggist for the tube—it costs 6 cents. Poor Richard's Eye Water sells at 25 cents per bottle.

Sold by George E. Meacom, South Danvers, and Druggists everywhere. Weeks & Potter, wholesale agents, Boston.

MRS. M. G. BROWN,
410 Arch St. Philadelphia, Proprietor.

WM. C. HENDERSON,
MANUFACTURER OF
PLAIN AND FANCY
PAPER BOXES;
No. 235 ESSEX STREET,
Sign of "Nest of Boxes,"
July 23 SALEM. tf

THOMAS PINNOCK,
SLATER,
SALEM, MASS,
Orders may be left at his Yard, No. 25 Peabody St., or at his house No. 6 Hancock street, South Salem.
Roofs covered with any kind of Slates, according to order. All work warranted.
Salem, May 7, 1862. tf

CURRIER & MILLETT,
Dealers in

Furniture, Chairs,
MATTRESSES, FEATHERS, &c
259 & 261 ESSEX ST.
Salem, dec 14—1y

Top Buggy for Sale,
NEARLY NEW, and in good condition.—Inquire at this office, or at 47 Holten St. South Danvers, June 25, 1862.

AARON T. LOWE,
DEALER IN
BOOTS, SHOES AND RUBBERS,
76 BOSTON STREET, 76.
aug 6 SALEM. tf

CHEAP FIRE-WOOD.
THE subscriber has on hand 30,000 bushels of
Patent Granular Fuel,
which he will deliver, by wholesale, in lots to suit purchasers, anywhere in this town, Salem, Lynn, Swampscott, or Nahant. Orders sent by mail (or by express,) or left in Salem, at the office, 27 Washington street (3d story), or 17 Briggs st., will receive prompt attention.

List of Prices.

25	Bushels, delivered,	2 25
50	do do	4 00
100	do do	7 50

Orders left at the Union Store, Newman & Symonds, and the Omnibus Office.
BYRON GOODELL.
South Danvers, june 18.

RICH Vases—Match Boxes—Cologne Stands—Card Baskets—Children's Tea Sets and Toys—for sale at
S C & E A SIMONDS', 32 Front st.

Tenements to Let.

ONE of 5 rooms in the rear of Washington Street, on a Court leading out of Aborn street. Rent $54 per year.
One of 5 rooms near Newhall's Crossing, in house lately occupied by C. B. Warner. Rent $42 per year.
One of 3 rooms, near Tapley Brook,—a small house. Rent $24 per year.
One of 3 rooms, in a new house in rear, northerly, of the Old Boston Road, near the Lynn line, with a barn if wanted and several acres of land. Rent reasonable, but dependant on privileges hired.
One of three rooms in the "Granite House," corner of Washington and Granite streets.
SIDNEY C. BANCROFT.
South Danvers, July 23d, 1862.

MUNROE'S
(LATE REED'S)
SOUTH DANVERS & BOSTON
RAILROAD EXPRESS.

Express leaves South Danvers at		10 1-2 a. m.
Freight " " "	at	5 p. m.
Express leaves Boston at		3 1-2 p. m.
Freight " " "	at	5 p. m.

OFFICE at FREIGHT DEPOT, South Danvers Square.
Order Box W. M. Jacobs' store, Main street.
EXPRESS OFFICE, in Boston, 5 Congress Square; Freight Office, 1 Fulton st.
Also an Order Box at 86 Pearl street.
Particular attention paid to removing Furniture, collecting Bills, Notes, Drafts, &c.
ARMY EXPRESS.
Packages received and sent forward daily for Baltimore, Fortress Monroe, Annapolis, Washington, Alexandria, and any other point where the different regiments are stationed.
WM. C. MUNROE,
South Danvers, may 21—tf

E. F. BURNHAM,
SOLE AGENT FOR
SARGENT & CO.S'
MAGIC SOAP
For South Danvers & Salem.
OFFICE—Central St., opp. Lowell Depot, at Burnham's Express Office, So. Danvers.
Price $3.50 per 100 Lbs.
Orders sent by mail or otherwise to So. Danvers will be promptly attended to. tf-oct3

E. S. FLINT,
Manufacturer and Dealer in
INNER SOLES,
AND SHOE STIFFENINGS OF ALL KINDS.
2 MAIN STREET, SOUTH DANVERS.

Are you Insured?
THE subscribor would respectfully call your attention to the fact that he is fully prepared to effect INSURANCE AGAINST FIRE, to any amount, at current rates, on
Dwelling Houses, Barns and their contents, Stores, Stocks of Goods, Furniture, &c. &c., and on buildings in process of erection,
And that he is the authorized Agent for the following responsible Stock and Mutual Companies, viz:

Thames Insurance Co., (Stock,) Norwich, Conn.
Capital—$500,000.
Amos W. Prentice, Pres. Oliver F. Rice, Sec'y
Conway Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital and Surplus—$260,000.
James F. Whitney, Pres. David C. Rogers, Sec'y.
City Insurance Company, (Stock) Boston.
Capital—$150,000.
Samuel P. Hayward, Pres. Austin W. Benton, Sec'y

Also, will effect Insurance on the LIVES OF INDIVIDUALS, for one year, seven years, or for the whole term of life, in the Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co., Springfield, Mass.
Capital and Assetts—$375,000.
Caleb Rice, Pres. D. B. Bacon, Sec'y.
William Mack, M. D, Medical Examiner.
WM. ARCHER, Jr.,
18 Washington st. and 34 Front st., Salem.
ej D20-1

Important to the Afflicted.
DR. DOW continues to be consulted at his office, Nos. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, on all diseases of a
PRIVATE OR DELICATE NATURE.
By a long course of study and practical experience of an imited extent, Dr. D. has now the gratification of presenting the unfortunate with remedies that have never, since he first introduced them, failed to cure the most alarming cases of
GONORRHŒA AND SYPHILIS.
Beneath his treatment, all the horrors of venereal and impure blood, impotency, Scrofula, Gonorrhœa, Ulcers, pain and distress in the regions of procreation, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, Hydrocele, Abcesses, Humors, frightful Swellings, and the long train of horrible symptoms attending this class of disease, are made to become as harmless as the simplest ailings of a child.
SEMINAL WEAKNESS.
Dr. D. devotes a great part of his time to the treatment of those cases caused by a secret and solitary habit, which ruins the body and mind, unfitting the unfortunate individual for business or society. Some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, are Weakness of the Back and limbs, Dizziness of the head, Dimness of sight, Palpitation of the heart, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Derangement of the digestive functions, Symptoms of Consumption, &c. The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded; loss of memory, confusion of ideas, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, aversion of society, self-distrust, timidity, &c., are among the evils produced. Such persons should, before contemplating masrimony, consult a physician of experience, and be at once restored to health and happiness.
Patients who wish to remain under Dr. Dow's treatment a few days or weeks, will be furnished with pleasant rooms, and charges for board moderate.
Medicines sent to all parts of the country, with full directions for use, on receiving description of your cases. Dr. Dow has also for sale the French Capottes, warranted the best preventive. Order by mail. 3 for $1 and a red stamp.

CAUTION
TO FEMALES IN DELICATE HEALTH.
DR. DOW, Physician and Surgeon, 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston, is consulted daily for all diseases incident to the female system. Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb, Fluor Albus, Suppression, and other menstrual derangements, are all treated upon new pathological principles, and speedy relief guaranteed in a very few days. So invariably certain is the new mode of treatment, that most obstinate complaints yield under it, and the afflicted person soon rejoices in perfect health.
Dr. Dow has no doubt had greater experience in the cure of diseases of women and children, than any other physician in Boston.
Boarding accommodations for patients who may wish to stay in Boston a few days under his treatment.
Dr. Dow, since 1845, having confined his whole attention to an office practice, for the cure of Private Diseases and Female Complaints, acknowledges no superior in the United States.
N. B.—All letters must contain four red stamps, or they will not be answered.
Office Hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.

CERTAIN CURE
IN ALL CASES, OR NO CHARGES MADE.
Dr. Dow is consulted daily, from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., as above, upon all difficult and chronic diseases of every name and nature, having by his unwearied attention and extraordinary success gained a reputation which calls patients from all parts of the country to obtain advice.
Among the physicians in Boston, none stand higher in the profession than the celebrated DR. DOW, No. 7 Endicott street, Boston. Those who need the services of an experienced physician and surgeon should give him a call. P. S.—Dr. Dow imports and has for sale a new article, called the French Secret. Order by mail. Two for $1 and a red stamp.
April 15, 1863—1y.

Ladies' Spring Skirts.
ALL of the latest patterns. Woolen Hosier a full line for Ladies and Misses.
oct 22 ANN R. BRAY, 76 Federal st.

DIARIES FOR
1863. Every variety and style—all sizes—for sale at
G M WHIPPLE & A A SMITH'S,
nov 26 Sign of the Five Golden Books.

CHARLES S. BUFFUM,
FURNISHING UNDERTAKER,
Central street, South Danvers,
HAVING provided himself with a HEARSE, is prepared to attend Funerals in any of the neighboring towns, with one or a pair of Horses.
He keeps as good an assortment of
COFFINS AND CASKETS,
as can be found at any establishment, and at the lowest prices.
He will also attend to Laying Out, etc.
All orders from the neighboring towns met with prompt attention. jan 14

SOUTH DANVERS
POST OFFICE.
GENERAL MAIL ARRANGEMENT.
MAILS CLOSE
At 10 3-4 A. M., and 4 3-4 P. M.
MAILS DUE
At 9 1-2 A. M., and 3 P. M.
Post Office open (Sundays excepted) from 7 o'clock, A. M., till 8 P. M. Saturdays open till 8 1-2 P. M.
F. POOLE, P. M.
South Danvers, Oct. 1, 1862.

SLATING. SLATING.
GEORGE FOWLER & COMPA'Y,
NO. 2 ST. PETER COURT, SALEM, respectfully inform their friends and the citizens of this and neighboring towns and cities that they are prepared to execute all orders for Slating, promptly and faithfully.
Roofs covered with any description of Slates, or repaired at short notice.
All work undertaken will be warranted.
Address—Box 366 Salem Post Office.
Salem, January 28—1863. tf

PATTERSON'S
LEATHER HANDLING MACHINE
THE undersigned are agents for the above machine. It can be seen in operation at Pinder & Brown's Tannery.
may 7—3m CLARK & GIDDINGS.

MESSRS. CLARK & GIDDINGS,
Wallis Street, South Danvers,
Are Agents for
GEORGE W. FISKE & CO.'S
PATENT EAVE TROUGHS
CUTTERS, CONDUCTORS AND
PIPE FOR DRAINS.
South Danvers, May 22, 1861.

EDWARD C. WEBSTER,
ONE PRICE
HAT, CAP & FUR STORE,
231 ESSEX, and 34 WASHINGTON ST

Ann R. Bray, 76 Federal Street,
WILL open to-day, New Spring Goods, Delaines; Alapaccas, &c.
We have a full and carefully selected stock of Black Silks, which are warranted to give perfect satisfaction.
In dress goods we select the best styles, and fabrics, and those who buy early will find the best assortment. feb 25

GRACE'S CELEBRATED SALVE.

A SURE RELIEF FOR THE SUFFERER.
This Salve is a vegetable preparation, invented in the 17th century, by DR. WM. GRACE, surgeon in King James's army. Through its agency he cured thousands of most serious sores and wounds that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians of his day, and was regarded by all who knew him as a public benefactor.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Burns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Scalds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Flesh Wounds.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Corns.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Felons.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Frozen Limbs.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Wens.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Callouses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Salt Rheum.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chilblains.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Breast.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Sore Lips.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Erysipelas Sores.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Abscesses.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ulcers.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Chapped Hands.
Grace's Celebrated Salve cures Ringworms.
And from Sores and Wounds of the most serious nature down to a common Pimple. It eradicates Pimples from the face, and beautifies the skin. There is no preparation before the public that can equal this Salve in prompt and energetic action for the speedy cure of external diseases, as those who have tried its virtues testify. Soldiers, Sailors, and Fishermen, will find this Salve their best friend.
It has none of the irritating, heating properties of other remedies, but cools, cleanses, and heals the most serious Sores and Wounds. Every family, and especially those containing children, should keep a box on hand in case of accident, for it will save them much trouble, suffering, and money. All it wants is a fair trial to cure old and inveterate Sores.
MANUFACTURED BY
WILLIAM GRACE.
AMESBURY, MASS.
PRICE 25 CENTS PER BOX.
Each box has the above cut and the fac-simile of the proprietor's signature attached to it, which is duly copy righted.
Geo. C. Goodwin & Co., 11 and 12 Marshall street, Weeks & Potter, 170 Washington street, and M. S. Burr & Co., 26 Tremont street, Boston, Wholesale Agents.
For sale by druggists and at country stores everywhere.

MUSICAL NOTICE.
Chickering & Sons' Piano-Fortes.

ANN R. BRAY, No. 76 Federal St. would inform her friends in South Danvers, and the public generally that she keeps for sale and to let Chickering & Sons' Piano Fortes. They are selected with great care, and need only to be tried to prove their superiority over every other in the market. The very best terms given.
MANNING & NICHOLS' SERAPHINES
For sale and to let. For power and quality of tone none can surpass them A. R BRAY,
76 Federal str

NOTICE.
THE subscriber being about to leave town for a few months, would take this opportunity to inform his customers and friends that his shop on Pleasant Street will be kept open during his absence by Mr. JOHN P. FRIEND, who will faithfully attend to any orders.
JAMES PERKINS.
South Danvers, Sept. 3, 1862.

R. C. MANNING & CO.
Successors to JOHN DIKE & CO.,
DEALERS IN
COAL, WOOD, BARK, HAY, &c,
188 DERBY STREET,
SALEM, MASS.
N. C. ROBBINS, R. C. MANNING.
oct17

Eastern Railro
ON and after MONDAY, April 6, leave the Eastern Railroad Sta street, Salem, daily. (Sundays excep
For Lynn and Boston, *5.55, 7, 8½, 9, 5½, 7½ p. m.
Beverly, 8½ a.m., 1, 3½, 3½, 5½, 6.55, 7
W. Beach, Manh., Gloucester, and
3½, 5½ p.m.
Ipswich and Newburyport, 8½ a.m.,
Amesbury, 8½ a.m., 1, 5½ p.m.
Portsmouth, 8½ a.m., 3½, 5½ p.m.
Portland, 8½ a.m., 3½ p.m.
AND FOR SALEM,
Portland, 8½ a.m., 3 p.m.
Portsmouth, 7½, †11½ a.m., †5½ p.m.
Amesbury, 7.35, 9.40 a.m., 5.50 p.m.
Newburyport, 7, 8, 10 a.m., 12 m., 6
Ipswich, 7.25, 8.25, 10.25 a.m., 12.25
Gloucester, 7, 10, 10 10 a.m., 2 40 p.
Manchester, 7.25, 10.25 a.m., 4.55 p.
Beverly, 6.50, 7.50, 8.50, 10.50 a.m., Lynn, 8.05, *9 05, 11.05 a.m., *2
*4 35, 5.35, *6.20, 5½, *7 35, *1
Boston, 7½, *8½, 10½ a.m., 12½, 2½, 3,
*Via Saugus Branch.
†Or on arrival from the East.
‡On Wednesdays this train leave and on Saturdays at 10½ p.m.
MARBLEHEAD BR
Marblehead to Salem, 6½, 7½, 8½,
6½, 7½ p.m.
Salem for Marblehead, 7½, 8½, 9.25,
7, 7.50 p.m.
SOUTH READING BR
Trains leave the South Reading B
Boston at 6½, 9.50 a.m., 2.55, 4.55 p.m.
Boston for Salem, 7 a.m., 12 m., 3
ESSEX R

South Danvers Wizard.

VOL. IV. SOUTH DANVERS, MASS., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 22, 1863. NO. 16.

Original Poetry.

"I FIGHTS MIT SIGEL."

BY GRANT P. ROBINSON, ESQ.

him again—he was trudging along—
s knapsack with chickens was swelling;
"Bleukered" these dainties (and thought it no wrong,)
om some Secessionist's dwelling.
hat Regiment's yours? and under whose flag
you fight?" said I, touching his shoulder;
ing sternly around, he smilingly said—
r the thought made him stronger and bolder—
"I fights mit Sigel."

next time I saw him his knapsack was gone,
is cap and canteen were both missing;
l, schrapnel and grape, and the swift rifle ball
round him and o'er him were hissing.
ow are you, my friend? and where have you been?
nd for whom and for what are you fighting?"
said, as a shell from the enemy's gun ent his arm and his musket a "kiting,"
"I fights mit Sigel."

nce more I saw him and knelt by his side, is life-blood was rapidly flowing;
hispered of home, wife, children and friends,
he bright land to which he was going—nd have you no words for the dear ones at home?
he 'wee one?' the father or mother?"
aw! yaw!" said he; "tell them, oh tell them I fights,"—
oor fellow, he thought of no other,—
"I fights mit Sigel."

scraped out a grave, and he dreamlessly sleeps
On the banks of the Shenandoah River;
s home and his kindred, alike, are unknown,
His reward in the hands of the Giver.
e placed a rough board at the head of his grave,
"And we left him alone in his glory," it on it we marked, ere we turned from the spot,
The little we knew of his story—
"I fights mit Sigel."

In Camp, Pontoon Corps, Gen. Sigel's Di-sion, Georgetown, D. C., September 22, 1862.

STRAY THOUGHTS.

BY C. E. H.

I am sitting by my window,
Though a rainy morn it be,
I love to look without,
'Tis pleasant still to me.

Sweet thoughts of those I'm having,
With whom I'm called to part,
And though 'tis all so drear without,
'Tis sunshine in the heart.

I think of those at home,
A father and a mother,
Of loving sisters, too,
And one dear, lonely brother.

Again my thoughts are off
Upon the ocean deep,
Where I another brother
In sweet remembrance keep.

The third is even now, perhaps,
Upon the battle field,
Yet I know that God above
Will ever be their shield.

Their country called,—say they,
"In courage we'll not fail,
Our land—it must be free,
The Right—it must prevail."

"And soon we may come back
To your true hearts that love—
But if we fall in battle,
O, let us meet above.

* * * * * * *

These claim a good share,
But other thoughts arise—
Thoughts of a "Better Land,"—
A mansion in the skies.

A Heavenly Father there,
A "Brother" and a "Friend,"
With whom eternally I'll live
When this life has an end.

I think of that blest morn,
When all the "dead shall rise,"—
When all the good and true
Shall meet Him in the skies.

And though 'tis dreary here,
And clouds obscure the sky,
There is no darkness there,
For all is light on high.

North Beverly, January, 1863.

☞ "At my decease and burial," said Francis Jackson, the widely known Boston philanthropist, "I desire that forms and ceremonies may be avoided, and all emblems of mourning and procession to the grave. Such irrational and wasteful customs rest on fashion or superstition, certainly not on reason or common sense. The dead body is of no more consequence than the old clothes that covered it. Nothing should be wasted on the dead, when there is so much ignorance and suffering among the living."

☞ A young lady on being asked what calling she wished her sweetheart to follow, blushingly replied that she wished him to be a husbandman.

☞ The spirit of many men in prayer

Selected.

[From Carleton, the correspondent of the Journal.]

THE ATTACK UPON SUMTER.

FULL PARTICULARS OF THE FIGHT.

A NEAR INSPECTION OF THE FLEET.

The Nantasket has just returned from the iron-clads, having been sent in with dispatches to Admiral Du Pont. We entered by the main ship channel, passed the left wing of the fleet and threw our hawser to the Ironsides. The crew was hard at work hoisting shot and shell from the hold, piling sand bags at the bow and stern. The deck is bedded with them. The pilot house is wrapped with cable. All the light hamper is taken down and stowed away. You see nothing but the black iron plating slushed with grease.

On Morris Island, about a mile distant, rebel soldiers were peeping over the sand hills. A squad was marching along the beach within easy range of the lightest guns of the fleet. Admiral Du Pont could have sent them upon the double-quick over the said ridge, but they are harmless and he has heavier work before him.

The Monitors were anchoring their small boats, and doing the last things before moving to the attack.

THE ATTACK.

At about half-past one P. M., the signal for sailing was displayed from the flagship. The Weehawken, with a raft at her prow, immediately got under way and moved rapidly up the main channel, followed by the others, which maintained their respective positions, distant from each other about one-third or a half mile. There are no clouds of canvas, no beautiful models of marine architecture, none of the statliness and majesty which has marked hundreds of great naval engagements. There is but little to the sight calculated to excite enthusiasm. There are eight black specks and one oblong block gliding along the water, like so many bugs. There are no human beings in sight—no propelling power visible.

Sumter has discovered them, and discharges in quick succession nine signal guns, to announce to all rebeldom that the attack is to be made. Morris' Island is mysteriously silent as the Weehawken advances, although she is within range. Past Fort Wagner, straight on toward Moultrie the Weehawken moves. The silence is prolonged. It is almost painful—the calm before the storm, the hushed stillness before the burst of the tornado!

There comes a single puff of smoke from Moultrie—one deep reverberation. The silence is broken, the moments—the long months of waiting are over. The shot flies across the water, skipping from wave to wave, tossing up fountains, hopping over the deck of the Weehawken and rolling along the surface with a diminishing ricochet, sinking at last close upon the Morris Island beach. Fort Wagner continues the story, sending a shot at the Weehawken, it also trips lightly over the deck, and tosses up a water spout far toward Moultrie. The Weehawken, unmindful of this play, opened its ports, and sent a fifteen inch solid shot toward Sumter, which like those which have been hurled toward her, takes a half dozen steps, making for a moment its footprints on the water, and crashes against the southwest face of the fort, followed a moment later by its eleven-inch companion. The vessel is for a moment enveloped in the smoke of its guns. Bravely done! There comes an answer. Moultrie, the tremendous batteries on either side by the hotel and east of it and toward the inner harbor, burst in an instant into sheets of flame and clouds of sulphurous smoke. There is no long roll of thunder—peal on peal; dead, heavy reverberations and sharp concussions, rattling the windows of our steamers and striking us at the heart like hammer strokes.

The ocean boils. Columns of spray are tossed high in air as if a hundred submarine fountains were let instantly on, or a school of whales were trying which could spout highest. There is a screaming in the air, a buzzing and humming never before so loud.

At five minutes before three Moultrie began the fire. Ten minutes have passed. The thunder has rolled incessantly from Sullivan's Island. Thus far Sumter has been silent, but now it is crowned with a cloud. In an instant it is hid from view—first a line of light along its parapet and thick folds of smoke unrolling like fleeces of wool. Other flashes burst from the casemates, and the clouds creep down the wall to the water, then slowly float away to mingle with that rising from the furnaces in the sand along the shore of Sullivan's Island.

You almost think the earth's crust has rutured, and the volcanic fires, long pent, have suddenly found vent!

It was the first grand round. Then comes a calm, a momentary cessation. The rebel gunners wait for the breeze to clear away the cloud that they may obtain a view of the monitor, to see if it has not been punched into a sieve and is disappearing beneath the waves. But the Weehawken is there moving straight on up the channel, turned now toward Moultrie. Nothing has happened. To her it has been only a handful of peas, or gravel stones or pebbles. Some have rattled against her turret, some upon her deck, some against her sides. Instead of going to the bottom, she revolves her turret and speaks two words to Moultrie, moving on the while to gain the south-eastern wall of Sumter.

Again the forts and batteries begin, joined now by Cummings' Point and long ranges from Fort Johnson. All around the Weehawken the shot flash, plunge, hop, skip, falling like the rain drops of a summer shower. How quickly the Wabash, the Minnesota, or any one of the wooden ships of the navy, would be bored through and through, from port to port, from bow to stern, from deck to keel, by the point blank and plunging shot, converging from more than ninety degrees of the circle—be made into kindlings, sent sky high by a shell in boiler or magazine, or to the bottom of the channel by the opening of barn doors in the hull! Unharmed, undaunted she moves straight on, feeling her way, moving slowly, with grappling irons dragging from the raft in front to catch up torpedoes. It is for the Weehawken to clear the channel, and make smooth sailing for the remainder of the fleet. Two torpedoes explode—so much wasted powder, nothing more.

To get the position of the Weehawken at this moment spread out your map of Charleston harbor, draw a line from Cummings' Point to Moultrie, and stick a pin on the line a little nearer Moultrie than to Morris Island. It is about one-half a mile from Moultrie, about one-third of a mile from Sumter.

There she is—the target of probably two hundred and fifty or three hundred guns, at close range, of the heaviest calibre, rifled cannon throwing forged bolts and steel pointed shot, turned and polished to a hair in the lathes of English workshops—advancing still, undergoing her first ordeal, a trial unparalleled in history!

For fifteen minutes she meets the ordeal alone, but the channel found to be clear, the Passaic, the Montauk and Patapsco follow, closing up the line, each coming in range and delivering their fire upon Sumter. At twenty minutes past three, the four Monitors, composing the right wing of the fleet, are all engaged, each pressing on to reach the northeastern face of the fort, where the wall is weakest, each receiving as they arrive at particular points a terrible fire, seemingly from all points of the compass—points selected by trial and practice indicated by buoys. They pass the destructive latitudes unharmed. Seventy guns a minute are counted, followed by moments of calm and scattering shots, but only to break out again in a prolonged roar of thunder. They press on, making nearer and nearer to Sumter, narrowing the distance to one thousand yards, eight hundred, six, five, four hundred yards, and send their fifteen-inch shot crashing against the fort, with slow, sure, deliberate, effective fire.

At first the fort and the batteries and Moultrie seem to redouble their efforts in increasing the fire, but after an hour there is a perceptible diminution of the discharges from the fort. After each shot from the iron-clads, clouds of dust can be discerned rising above the fort and mingling with the smoke. Steadying my glass in the lulls of the strife, watching where the southwest breeze whiffs away the smoke, I can see increasing pock marks and discolorations upon the walls, as if there had been a sudden breaking out of cutaneous disease.

THE IRONSIDES.

The flagship, drawing 17 feet of water, was obliged to move cautiously, feeling her way up the channel. Just as she came within range of Moultrie, her keel touched bottom on the east side of the channel; fearing that she would run aground the anchor was let go. Finding the vessel was clear, the Admiral again moved on, signaling the left wing to press forward to the aid of the four already engaged. The ironsides kept the main channel, which brought her within about 1000 yards of Moultrie and Sumter. She fired four guns at Moultrie, and received in return a heavy fire. Again she touched bottom, and then turned her bow across the channel toward Sumter, firing two guns at Cummings' Point. After this weak and ineffectual effort, the tide rapidly ebbing the while, she again got clear, but gave up the attempt to advance. The Catskill, Nantucket, Nahant and Keokuk pressed up with all possible speed to aid the four which were receiving a tremendous hammering.

ALL ENGAGED.

See them sweep past the convergent points and radial lines! See the bubbling of the water—the straight columns thrown up in the sunlight—the flashes, the furrows along the waves, as if a plow, driven with lightning speed, was turning up the water! They are all close up to Sumter—within four or five hundred yards. Behind them is Moultrie and Fort Ripley, and Fort Beauregard, and in the background, Fort Wagner and Cummings' Point. Across the shallow waters is Fort Johnson; still farther off to the right is Castle Pickney, too far away to do damage, but, as you have seen curs at a grand fight of bull dogs, harmlessly snarling, growling and yelping, and making believe they are doing something. From all sides the balls fall around the fleet. The din of uproar is nearly all on one side. Calmly and deliberately the fire is returned—a deliberation which must command the admiration of the enemy.

THE KEOKUK.

The Keokuk presents a fair mark with her sloping sides and double turrets. She comes to the ordeal bravely. Her commander, Capt. Rhind, although not having entire confidence in her invulnerability, is determined to come to close quarters. She is not to be outdone by those who are in advance. Swifter than they, drawing less water, she makes all haste to get up with the Weehawken. The guns which have been trained upon the others are brought to bear upon her. Where she sails there the shower is hardest, the fire fiercest. Her plating is but pine wood to the steel projectiles, flying with almost the swiftness of a minie bullet. Shot which glance harmlessly from the others penetrate her angled sides. Her after turret is pierced in a twinkling and a two hundred pound projectile drops inside. A heavy shot crashes into the Surgeon's dispensary and mixes emetics, cathartics, pills and powders, not according to prescriptions. The enemy notices the effect of his shot and increases his fire. Capt. Rhind is not easily daunted. He opens his forward turret and gives three shot in return for the three or four hundred rained around him. The sea with every passing wave sweeps through the shot holes, and he must retire or go to the bottom with all on board.

THE SIGNAL FOR RETIRING.

Meanwhile the signal has been displayed from the flagship for the retirement of the fleet. It comes seemingly at an inopportune moment, for the fire of the fort is evidently on the wane. Moultrie and all the guns on Sullivan's Island are still bellowing, but Sumter has few flashes—a cloud of smoke less dense than an hour ago. Capt. Ammen is confident that he has sent a shell clear through the wall; that a gun is silenced. There is but little diminution of the fire of the fleet. It is as it has been—slow and steady. But the Keokuk is moving out of range; the Ironsides has not been in. It is past five o'clock—almost sunset. Never in the history of the world has there been such a two and a half hours' hammering of iron. There is the imperative order flying above the flagship—Retire. They obey. It is twenty minutes past five o'clock when the last guns are fired, an exchange of shots with Cummings' Point.

The uproar has ceased. The fleet is at anchor. The Monitors of the right swing within range of Fort Wagner. On Sullivan's Island the sulphurous clouds still linger. The red sun sinks behind the sand hills, and we, who have watched every changing feature of the attack, welcome the coming on of silence.

HOW WE SILENCED A BATTERY.

To see the contest the gunboat Bibb, the Ben Deford and the Nantasket had taken position in the North channel at a respectful distance off Sullivan's Island. A mile or two east of Moultrie is Beach inlet, where a powerful battery has been erected. While intently gazing on the contest, the correspondents and all hands on the other steamer were startled by hearing the whiff and whiz of a rifle projectile, which came diagonally across the Nantasket, across the bow of the Ben Deford, falling into the sea about one hundred yards ahead. There was a ludicrous, laughable cuddling down and scampering for the coal bunkers, the engine room and between decks. There was an immediate hauling in of cables and motion of paddle wheels. A second shot in admirable line fell short. Being at anchor and within rage, the rebel gunner had made nice calculations. He had already fired a half dozen shots, which had fallen far ahead unnoticed. Cummings' Point also tried to reach us with shells, but failed. One of the correspondents claimed that the press completely silenced a battery—by getting out of the way!

A VISIT TO THE FLEET.

Steaming into the retiring fleet we ran alongside the Keokuk. A glance at her sides showed how terrible the fire had been. She had been pierced as you might stick a pin through paper. Her smoke stack, turrets, sides—all were scarred, gashed, pierced. A hasty inspection revealed ninety-four shot marks!—There were none below the water line, but each wave swept through the holes on the sides. Her pumps were going and she was kept free. We lay alongside till the boats came in from the blockading fleet. But three of her officers and crew were wounded, although she had been so badly perforated.

"All right, nobody hurt, ready for them again," was the hearty response of Captain George Rodgers, of the Catskill, as I stepped upon the slushed deck of that vessel and grasped the hand of her wide-awake commander. He had received about thirty shots. One 200 pounder thrown evidently from a barbette gun, had fallen with tremendous force upon the deck, bending, but not breaking or penetrating the iron. On the sides, on the turret and on the pilot house were indentations like saucers, but there was not any sign of serious damage.

The Nahant comes down to her anchorage with a gashed smoke stack. Going on board we found that eleven of her officers and crew had received contusions from the flying of bolt heads in the turret. One shot had jammed the lower ridge of her turret, interfering with its revolution. She had been struck forty times, but aside from the loss of a few bolt heads, a diminished draft to her chimney and the slight jam upon the turret, already mentioned, and the injuries received by the crew, was unharmed. Her armor was intact.

The other monitors had each a few bolts started. Four gun carriages needed slight repairs—injured not by the enemy's shot, but by their own recoil. One shot had ripped up the plating of the Patapsco and pierced the wood work beneath. This was the only shot out of the twenty-five hundred or three thousand supposed to have been fired from the forts which penetrated the monitors!

The Weehawken had received three heavy shot upon her side, the indentations close together. The plates were badly bent, but the shot had fallen as harmlessly as pebbles upon the side of a barn.

The Ironsides had received thirty balls, all of which had been turned by her armor. She was about one thousand yards from the fort. One 150lb. shot fell upon the sand bags on her deck, doing no damage. Had she been exposed to the close fire to which the monitors were subjected, possibly her sides would have been more deeply indented. In all about one hundred and sixty shots were fired by the fleet. The Passaic had a shot which interfered with the working of the turret.

Montauk fired	28	times.
Weehawken	28	"
Catskill	20	"
Passaic	17	"
Nahant	13	"
Ironsides	6	"
Keokuk	3	"
Patapsco	18	"
Nantucket (estimated)	20	"
Total	153	"

One hundred and fifty, then, in reply to nearly or quite three thousand! It seems a small number, and is so. We are to remember that the flagship, with half the guns of the fleet, was hardly in the action, and that the Keokuk was almost immediately knocked out of it.

The fleet was hit in the aggregate about three hundred and fifty times! This, if two thousand shot were fired from the forts, would be one well aimed shot out of every six. About six thousand pounds of iron were hurled at Fort Sumter during the short time the fleet was engaged, and probably five or six times that amount of metal, or thirty thousand pounds, was thrown at the fleet. The casualities on board the fleet were—none killed, one mortally, one seriously and thirteen slightly wounded.

It is past midnight as I write the closing lines of this account of the first day's engagement. Stepping upon the steamer's guards I see a signal light waved on Sumter. In the moonlight I can discern the Monitors at their anchorage. The ocean, the air, the moon-beams, all are calm and peaceful. Our boat, which has been to the flagship to obtain a report, is alongside. Thus it reads: "There are but few casualities, and the engagement is to be renewed to-morrow afternoon.

APRIL 8.

THE KEOKUK SUNK.

The wind is northeast and there is a heavy sea. The Keokuk has gone down. She disappeared at twenty minutes past eight. The officers and crew deserve all praise. They did what they could in the engagement. The officers and men have lost everything, so sudden was the sinking.

The Nahant has gone to Port Royal to obtain new bolts for her turret and have repairs in her chimney.

The Passaic turret revolves. Workmen have straightened the gun slides and the five guns which were temporarily disabled by little things are all right. I am astonished to find the fleet in so excellent a condition.

The air is clear this morning. The wind is fresh, the haze has lifted and Sumter is in sight. The eastern wall shows that there has been no little damage done. It is discolored, pock marked, and there is what seems to be a breach. Probably we shall not know till the war is over the extent of the injury.

The hour for the renewal of the conflict is at one o'clock, but the heavy sea will prevent an advance. There will be nothing done till to-morrow.

APRIL 9.

THE GEORGE WASHINGTON.

There has been a disaster in Beaufort river, at Port Royal Ferry. The gunboat George Washington, a small craft used for carrying dispatches, running up shallow creeks, this morning got aground near Port Royal ferry. The rebels brought six pieces of field artillery to bear upon her. The second shot struck the magazine which blew off the stern of the boat, killing John Fallon and Edward J. Vallely, and wounding Henry Butler, W. J. Greenhalgh, Albert Smith, George Smith, and Augustus Blanchard, nearly all of them members of the Third Rhode Island Artillery.

The wounded men were immediately transferred to the small boat, rowed to the marsh amid a heavy fire of shell and were saved. The crew saved themselves by swimming. Much praise is due to the officers, especially to Lieut. Blanning for his coolness and his efforts to save the wounded. The Washington had a James' twelve pounder and two howitzers for an armament.

HOW THE REBELS INSPECT THE RAFTS.

Yesterday the raft which the Weehawken had at her prow—the invention of Ericsson for destroying torpedoes, which cost five thousand dollars to build, and as much more to tow to Port Royal—was cut adrift, not having been fairly tried.—It has been termed a "boot jack," also a "devil." It washed ashore on Morris Island. The rebels saw it. Their curiosity was excited. They came down from the sand hills and looked at it. Was it an infernal machine? Would it blow up? One got a pole and poked it. It didn't bite. He approached it, wading in the water. He saw chains attached—lifted one cautiously, fearing it might lead somewhere to something which would blow him into fragments. He found a grapnel at the end. He took courage.—Others became courageous, and stepped on board and examined the Yankee notion.

Other inventions of Ericsson as well as this, for removing obstructions, have not had a fair trial. Naval men, especially after a long term of service, are not inclined to try new inventions. They fall into ruts. They are not well pleased with their accommodations on the monitors.—It is not pleasant to live in submarine cellars. Their quarters are less roomy than on frigates. It is not strange that they should dislike a monitor on these accounts.

Naval officers sometimes, in common with other men, hold extravagant opinions. An officer who had had some bolt heads fly about his ears in one of the turrets declared to me that ironclads were humbugs. "Give me," said he, "a good wooden ship and you may have all your iron-clads!" The Wabash would have been made a wreck in five minutes under the concentrated fire of the forts which was so successfully resisted by the fleet.

☞ Capt. Maffit of the rebel privateer Florida, in one respect is like his father, the famous revival preacher, who was so well known here forty years ago; he is very popular with the ladies. The New York Herald correspondent at Barbadoes, writing under date of the 28th ult., says—"All the ladies are Maffit mad." It is "Maffit this and Maffit that." "Oh! does he not talk beautifully?" "What a voice!" "What wit and humor!"—We remember to have heard the ladies of Newburyport use similar expressions in regard to his father, when he created such a stir here thirty-five years ago, and was invited to preach in the Prospect street Church, the first Methodist minister, we think, that ever preached in an orthodox meeting house in town. He was one of the most fascinating men that ever appeared this way, but may have been no better than his rebel son. Capt. Maffit is of bad blood both from his father and mother.—Newburyport Herald.

THE CARE OF THE EYES.—First, never use a desk or table with your face towards a window. In such case the rays of light coming directly upon the pupil of the eyes, and causing an unnatural and forced contraction thereof, soon permanently injures the sight. Next, when your table or desk is near a window, sit so that your face turns from, not towards it, while you are writing. If your face is towards a window, the oblique ray strikes the eye and injures it nearly as much as the direct rays when you sit in front of the window. It is best always to sit or stand while reading or writing, with the window behind you, and next to that, with the light coming over the left side—then the light illumines the paper or book, and does not shine abruptly on the eye-ball. The same remarks are applicable to artificial light. We are often asked which is the best light—gas, candles, oil, or camphene. Our answer is, it is immaterial which, provided the light of either be strong enough and does not flicker.—Scientific American.

A HINT TO THE SOLDIERS.—The captain of the barge on an Oxford boat-race, just as they are starting gives each rower a little slice of lemon to hold in his mouth. He knows the philosophy. Anything in the mouth that promotes the flow of saliva and keeps the throat moist, answers as well or better than drink, which often in quantities weakens the stomach. A physician, who understood these things, used in his long drives to take a clove in his mouth, instead of drinking frequently, a his inclination would have led him to do The advantage of cloves is, that they contain much in little space, and do no lose their strength. For the soldier they would be peculiarly useful since they are aromatic, stimulating and astringent which last quality would tend to counteract that tendency to irritation of the bowels, which is the bane of the soldier's life. Half a dozen a day are enough one clove may remain in the mouth fo hours.

☞ Mr. Vinton once said the threat secession reminded him of a man in Buffalo who fastened an old scow to the ster of a steamer to be towed up the Lake. After the boat had got under way, h wheels threw water into the scow, a she was in danger of sinking. The ow er cried out to the captain, "Hold o there! If you don't stop throwing wat into this I'll make you." "Well," sa the captain "what will you do?" "Do shouted the enraged man, "I'll cut t rope and let your darned old steamer to thunder."

BOSH.—A rebel editor says the Sou will see her cities "laid in ruins and so with salt" before she will surrender. Fudge! We like a strong figure of spee but then rhetoric ought always to k within the bounds of probability. N salt is worth $80 a sack in Dixie, and sow ruins with a material so costly, wo be as extravagant as to fortify a city w cotton at $300 per bale.—Chicago P ☞ Politicians live more in t epigrams than in their enactments.

The Wizard.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 22, 1863.

CHANGES IN REAL ESTATE.

It seems a little strange, that while movable property of all kinds is steadily advaneing in price, real estate meets with no change. There is now, however, a growing disposition to invest in this kind of property, either directly or by obtaining good mortgages. Although real estate is the last kind of property to feel the effects of an expansion of the currency, it will most certainly be affected by it and in a more permanent manner than is personal property.

Any one who will look over the advertisements in the WIZARD will see that there is some disposition to move in real estate.

The Executors of the Will of the late Major MOSES BLACK advertise a large and exceedingly valuable property at Danversport, including a large water front and wharf privileges.

Mr. MOSES JEWETT offers his pleasantly situated house on Mt. Vernon street, and Mr. JOHN M'NEAL his three houses on Wallis, near Tremont street.

The dwelling house of the late Capt. CURTIS SEARL, 144 Boston street, will be sold at auction on Friday next.

We also advertise a shoe manufactory in Lynn, all ready for occupancy.

A RAILROAD IN THE GUTTER.—It has been common to speak of a man of extreme sottishness as "in the gutter," and that is just where they have begun to lay our Horse Railroad. Mr. W. H. PINGREE is the engineer, and he has laid the rails without any reference to gauge or location. He cares nothing for General Court, Selectmen or Aldermen.—Wide gauge and narrow gauge are all the same to him, so he adopts both. He varies the width from 8 inches to 8 feet, and as to parallel lines, his road is without a parallel. It is as crooked as a Virginia fence, and it would puzzle chain-lightning to keep the track. His cars must have a curious hop-skip-and-jump motion to keep on the rails, and we should be sorry to be obliged to ride in them if they are to go on Mr. Pingree's track. We are sorry thus to criticise the works of such an eccentric and energetic track distributor, but if he makes such work with his rails, he must expect to encounter all kinds of railery.

BOLD AND SINGULAR ROBBERY.—Last Monday evening some bold robber entered the house of Mrs. E. Tucker and carried off a shoe bench, the property of Mr. Asa Hayes of Milton, N. H., who was about removing home and was to take the article with him.

The article was taken about half past 8 in the evening, and very soon missed. Search was made and it was found near Mr. Jones' blacksmith's shop; the thief probably being alarmed, left it in his flight. An attempt had been made once before to carry it off, but, having hid it in the neighborhood, it was recovered.

What is singular about this theft is, that the thief could take so heavy and bulky an article at a time when the family were in the house, and liable at any moment to go into the apartment where it was kept. It was heavy enough for two strong men to handle in broad day light.

STANDING COMMITTEE.—The Standing Committee of citizens, on laying the track of the Horse Railroad, held their first meeting, in front of our offiee, on Monday morning. A large and respeetable delegation of Irish citizens from Salem were present. It is understood that there will be great competition for the office of Chairman—almost equal to that in the Wallis Distriet Prudential Committee. The difficulty will probably be settled by making each member chairman, whose duty it will be to watch the laying of the rails, get in the way of the workmen, find fault with the location and give good advice to the engineers of the road. It is expected that each chairman will report every 15 minutes, at the Committee Room, over the Fish Market. A mass meeting of the Committee will be held in front of the Post Office, every forenoon, at 10 o'clock, until the rails are laid to the Salem line.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT. The April term of this Court commenced its session in Salem yesterday,—Judge Dewey presiding. The jurors from this town are Isaac Hardy and Charles B. Haven. Danvers—Irad. P. Goodale.

Ezekiel R. Todd, of Gloucester, was chosen Foreman of the First Jury, and Isaac Hardy, of South Danvers, of the Second Jury.

The Court will probably last about a fortnight. A special session will, however, be held by the Full Bench, beginning on the 13th of May, for the trial of Horace E. Davis, of Lynn, charged with the murder of Mr. Breed.

The first case begun yesterday was that of Ezekiel R. Tood, vs. Inhabitants of Rowley, for defect in highway. Caleb Cushing, S. B. Ives, Jr., and J. G. Gerrish for pltf.; J. C. Perkins and W. C. Endicott for defts.

HOLTEN HIGH SCHOOL.

We have received a long communication in relation to a pupil of this school, whom the writer thinks was unjustly deprived of her graduating medal. It is alleged that the young lady in question was examined for admission to the school, obtained her certificate, but from temporary destitution, owing to sickness and death in the family, did not enter. She, however, hoped some day to be able to enter with her class, and to that end, in addition to her labors at home, she kept up with the studies of the class in regular order, and at last, by the aid of a friend, she was enabled, with the consent of the Committee, to enter the school, so well prepared as to continue on with her class. From this time she was not absent a single day, never was tardy, and never failed. She loved her teachers and was beloved by them, and, as the time of graduation approached, she joined with her class in testimonials to the teachers, and prepared for the final examination and award of medals and prizes. Her scholarship and deportment were unexceptionable, but she was informed a few days before the examination that she could not graduate on account of a rule adopted by the Committee, which excluded her, as she was too long absent from the school room in the early part of the course.

The above are substantially the facts of the ease, as set forth in the communication, omitting irrevalent matters and what followed after the principal event. The writer asks what is the practice in the Peabody school in such cases? We only say that, while some general rules are indispensable, the Committee decide upon the merits of each particular case, and its policy has always been a liberal one. Two or three this year had medals awarded, who were absent a greater part of the year, having enlisted in the army. Cases have previously occurred, where, by illness or other causes not under the control of the pupils, they have been long absent, but yet have been allowed to graduate and receive the medal.

We venture no opinion in the Holten school case, as we have only ex parte testimony, but we have full faith in the Committee, that no entanglement of red tape will prevent a careful review of the case and an endeavor to prevent any appearance of injustiee. It must be a pleasnre to them to do all they can to reward persistent endeavors after good scholarship, and it is gratifying to see the emulation with which the honors of the Peabody Medal are sought.

BOY DROWNED. Our town was thrown into a painful state of excitement last week on account of the supposed drowning of a child of Mr. John Eiffe, who is about seven years of age. He was last seen in the forenoon of Friday, near Franklin street, playing on the bank of the stream, which was much swollen by the late rains. Early in the afternoon, his hat was found floating on the water in the Wallis Mill Pond. This discovery led to a search for the body in the pond and the stream above and below the dam. The pond was drawn off, while hundreds of anxious and sympathizing people watched the efforts made to find the body. The search was so thorough above the dam that on Sunday Frye's Mill Pond was also drawn off, but no trace of the child could be seen.

☞ Our neighbor below stairs, while gathering nutmegs in Connecticut, left with the editor of the Hartford Times an epigram on Secretary Chase, which was about as badly slaughtered by the printer as his friends were at the election. To soothe his wounded feelings, we print it as it should be:—

Of Augustus and Rome
The poets still warble,
How he found it of brick
And left it of marble.
Of Chase and our cash
Men may say, and not vapor,
That he found it of gold,
And left it of —— paper!

PRESENTATIONS. On Monday evening, the 5th instant, Mr. J. L. Davis, Principal of Wallis Grammar School, was presented by the members of his graduating and present first class, with a beautiful Album, as a token of their affection and esteem and appreciation of him as a teacher.

On the following Wednesday evening, Miss Gould, the accomplished Assistant, was presented by the members of the third and fourth classes, with an Album and Breast Pin. It gives us much pleasure to note down these tokens of good feeling between teachers and pupils.

CAPT. M'KAY.—We learn from the Boston Transcript that our townsman, Capt. JOHN M'KAY, is Executive Officer of the Navy Yard at Washington. We congratulate the gallant captain upon being appointed to this honorable and responsible station.

☞ The citizens of Danvers are to be favored with a lecture by John B. Gough. The distinguished orator will deliver his popular lecture on "Eloquence and Orators," Wednesday evening, the 29th instant, at Gothic Hall.

HILTON HEAD.

The following letter is from one of our non-commissioned officers, who always writes in a tone of contentment and cheerfulness. It gives information of life in the hospitals of value to those at home, who have invalid friends in the army:—

U. S. GENERAL HOSPITAL,
HILTON HEAD, S. C., March 27th, 1863.

DEAR FRIEND,—You probably will be surprised at the heading of this letter, but hardly more so than myself—for my advent here has been so sudden that I hardly know the meaning of it. Last evening, our regiment, together with the 10th Conn., and I believe the 56th N. Y., had orders to embark at daylight. Their destination is said to be Cole's Island, Stono Inlet, near Charleston. I supposed I was to go with them, as there was nothing said to me last night, but this morning my descriptive list was handed to me,—also, a letter for the head surgeon of this hospital and a pass to Hilton Head.

I packed up lively and was soon on my way to the wharf. The regiment was just behind me, and by the time I had shaken hands and bid the boys good-bye, the boat was ready and I went aboard,—the regiment at the same time embarking upon the steam transport U S. (I believe that was her name, but am not certain.) I was all by myself, there being no more from our regiment aboard—but there were several sick men from other regiments. We arrived at Hilton Head at nine o'clock, and a comfortable conveyance was soon at hand to take me to the hospital, about one-fourth of a mile distant. On my arrival there, I was assigned a bed in Ward D, a fine airy room, about one hundred and twenty feet long, and twenty-five feet wide. It contains fifty beds, the most of which have occupants, and they are all convalescent. Next I was taken to the hath house, had a nice bath, and my woolen shirts changed for cotton, and a short woolen one, which will make me quite comfortable. My own clothes were packed up in my knapsack, and that, together with my cinteen and haversack, were taken and put away and a check given me for it, so I can go to it at any time I wish. Dinner was then ready in the refectory. It consisted of nice salt fish, potatoes and bread; it was served, in good shape, on a table, with a bench to sit on. This afternoon I have been resting, reading, and enjoying myself as best I could. Supper has just been served of bread, butter and tea, all very good and plenty of it. The sick men are kept on very light diet and do not eat with convalescents.

I like the appearance of things here very much, and the men tell me that everything is furnished that men need, and nothing is allowed to be sent to the patients. There are plenty of old papers, and good books, and many men who appear very well. I have not heard an oath or vulgar remark since coming here.

SATURDAY MORNING, March 28.—Last evening my back was rubbed with liniment, and a powder given me to take. Being tired, I turned in early—and what a luxury it was to take off my clothes and get between the sheets! It is over a year since I had such a privilege, and then only for one night; it made me real wide awake, and it was after eleven before I got asleep. There is a watch kept on the room all night, to wait upon any one that requires attention. I rested nicely, and awoke this morning at daylight, much refreshed. For breakfast, we had nice bread, meat and coffee, and my appetite was pretty good.

The hospital is a large institution: it consists of four buildings, each one about two hundred and fifty feet long, placed so each one forms the side of a square. This building is one story and about fifteen feet high, and is wholly devoted to hospital purposes. There is a piazza all around each side of the building, with comfortable settees in abundance. The hospital is built upon posts, and is all open under it, as all the buildings are in this island. The ventilation is perfect, windows large, and everything is nice. There is a nice long beach but a few steps from the door, and we can look far out to sea. Vessels are arriving continually, and this morning transports left with lots of small boats in tow, that indicates a landing somewhere.

MONDAY, March 30th.—I have now been here three days, and like first rate. The doctor has registered me on the card at the head of my bed, as follows:—Date of admittance; Name; Regiment and company; Disease, "Chronic rheumatism." The accommodations are first rate and the nurses attentive. At meal times I am reckoned among the convalescents, and that gives me good wholesome food, far better than I have been used to having in camp. I have the luxury of a nice bed, with plenty of good, clean clothes; so you see I am having everything nice and comfortable, and have every attention, except home attention.

Please send me Saturday's Traveller, and also WIZARD, commencing with the 25th of March. E.

WAR MATTERS.—A Newbern letter of the 10th states that Sergeant SAMUEL G. ROBERTS (of this town,) of Co. B, 17th Regiment, whose right arm was seriously broken in a recent cavalry skirmish, has been recommended for promotion.

Private ABRAHAM BARRETT, of this town, a member of Co. B, was wounded in the side, slightly, in the same skirmish.

☞ Our thanks are due to W. H. Little for a copy of the Annual Report of the Board of Education. This is a valuable document, and should be read by every one interested in our public schools.

REBEL DEFEAT AT FAYETTEVILLE, ARK.—Dispatches lately received at headquarters say that Fayetteville, Ark., was attacked before daylight Saturday morning by about 3000 armed rebels with four pieces of artillery. Our forces were less than 2000, part of whom were unarmed. The rebels were repulsed with considerable loss. Our loss was five killed and seventeen wounded.

GEN. FOSTER SAFE.—A letter in the N. Y. Sunday Herald, from Morehead City, announces that Gen. Foster succeeded in passing the rebel blockade in the steamer Escort, with the loss of the pilot (killed,) and several wounded. The Escort was riddled by at least forty shot. General Foster arrived at Newbern on the night of the 15th, and was joyfully received.

JOHN B. GOUGH.

NEW YORK, April 15, 1863.

MR. WIZARD,—We incidentally learned the other day that JOHN B. GOUGH proposes to journey to your neighborhood shortly and speak to you. You are fortunate in the prospect of seeing him there before his work of oratory ceases. It is a remarkable physiological fact that his brilliancy now, after such years of incessant sparkle, is apparently undiminished.—Those eventful years of his early life, the terrible scenes of which he so vividly paints, have always been daguerreotyped upon his form and features, but it is now thirteen years since he was described as, that "pale, thin young man" "who has swayed multitudes by his oratory, made strong men weep like little children and women to sob as if their hearts would burst," and he is still the unapproachable.

He has gained in richness and fulness of experience by his wide travels and is, if possible, more skilled in the art of stirring the vast audiences that throng to hear him whether he speaks at Exeter Hall or in this city of his adoption, or in the remoter districts.

Of the majority even of our most popular orators people weary after frequent listening.—Of Gough never. He fascinates now the same men and women who years and years ago hung delighted on the utterances of his lips, while the new generation crowd to hear him and consider him as peculiarly their orator—a demonstration of his genuine freshness and vigor.

To those who believe in special Providences it must seem that this man of such rare genius was raised up and is preserved with tongue of flame to perpetuate the sublime truths of which he is the apostle.

Yours, &c.,
GREGORY.

THE STREET RAILROAD.—On Tuesday of last week, the schooner Leocadia arrived here, with fifty-one tons of rails, for the Salem and South Danvers Railroad. We understand that this completes the entire amount required, with a considerable surplus.

Nothing now delays the immediate laying of the track, except the formalities of a new location, by the Mayor and Aldermen, which are to be gone through with again on Tuesday next. We do not mean that the route is to be changed, but it having been located from the foot of Essex street to the Danvers line, with a gauge of four feet, it becomes necessary now to change the width, to conform to the general law lately passed.

At the same time, however, action is to be taken upon the additional routes asked for by the Company, to carry out the proposed extension to Beverly. The design, as we understand it, is to come in from Beverly through Winter, Brown, Church, and Washington streets, to Essex street, and to extend the line from the foot of Essex street, through Webb or Pleasant streets, to Bridge street—thus making the Beverly line answer as a return track to the Danvers line, the two line of cars running in a circuit extending from Washington street, to the corner of Webb and Bridge streets. Essex street is too narrow for a double track, and as two tracks become necessary to operate the road properly, when both lines of cars are run, the directors have petitioned for the route described.

We understand it is their intention, also, to petition for permission to lay down a track from Essex street, on the east side of the tunnel, extending down Washington street, to the Eastern Railroad Depot. Their arrangements contemplate running a two-horse car between the Depot and Danvers square, to and from all the trains: this car not making the circuit, but stopping in Washington street near the depot.

We have heard it frequently suggested, that, for the accommodation of persons wishing to take the trains on the Eastern R. R., one track should be laid through such streets as would pass the Depot. The proposed branch down Washington street, with the special car running to and from all trains, seems to meet the difficulty, without throwing all the other traffic off its direct route.

The directors expect to commence the work of grading and laying the road the first of next week and to have it completed in less than a month.—Salem Gazette, 17th inst.

☞ A New York letter writer thinks "if the sale of ships goes on for a few weeks as it has for the five weeks past, we shall have no commerce at our wharves flying the American flag. No ship master can get a cargo, and all importations are made under a neutral flag. The Alabama is sweeping our commerce from the ocean. The British are buying our ships, and no American has a chance now." After the English government has sent out a few more pirates and bought up most of our merchantmen, let our government impose a heavy tonnage duty upon the vessels which sail under their flag, and make them pay it, or give up the carrying trade which they now covet and are trying to get, to some other nation which is more friendly toward us. And we would also have the reciprocity treaty abrogated too, for the people of the provinces are as hostile to us as the rebels. They derive more benefit from it now than we do.—Gloucester Telegraph.

THE KEOKUK.—An effort was made on the night of the 10th to blow up the sunken Keokuk, but without success. She was found to be full of sand, and it was impossible at that time to put the magazine of powder below her deck to blow her up. In the morning an effort was made to fix on the raft, with a torpedo attached, to the boy of the Weehawken; but the sea was too rough inside, and, after breaking all the lashing repeatedly, the effort was given up. Another attempt will be made to blow her up. At all events, she is useless to the rebels. She is filled with sand, and will be broken up or buried after the first gale.—The rebels cannot raise her, as she is covered with the guns of the blockading fleet, and will ever be beyond their reach.

☞ The murderer Stackpole was before Justice Hill of Beverly, on Tuesday, for examination, but delay was had for the verdict of the coroner's inquest. S. B. Ives, jr. and William G. Choate, Esq., of Salem, appeared as his counsel, and will set up a plea of insanity; and on this, it is said, they will receive support from the father, who appears desirous of exhonerating his son. A more terrible crime was never committed in the country, and the trial, whenever it comes off, will awaken interest.—Ex.

☞ Prince Napoleon has been making a strong speech in behalf of the Poles, and this has brought the whole Russian government down upon him. It is said that Baron De Budberg, the Russian Ambassador to France, has declared that he would refuse to salute him hereafter.

FARMERS' CLUB.

DANVERS, April 17, 1863.

The series of meetings for the season of the Danvers Farmers' Club was concluded last Wednesday evening by a lecture from Dr. Loring of Salem. As the lecture was free and on the whole quite felicitous, as a rhetorical laudation of the Constitution of the U. S., it would be invidious to find fault with it, or complain of it, because it was not better. Such, in the ungrateful sense, is not the intention.—We thank the Doctor for the gift of his lecture, as we feel assured we may kindly thank him in behalf of the Farmers' Club for the interest he has taken in their meetings and for the information, which, as an accomplished agriculturist, he has from time to time imparted to our citizens. We are therefore, not going to look into the gift horse's mouth to see how old he is, but only to see whether it is a horse or something else.

As the notices announced a lecture on Chief Justice Parsons, we attended the meeting expecting, not to have our admiration of that distinguished jurist much increased—for that were needless—but expecting certainly some view of the man beyond that which the general reader is supposed to have enjoyed. In other words we attended the meeting expecting rather a rare treat on a very rare subject. The reputed scholarship and ability of the lecturer, added to the richness of the materials afforded by the theme, had wrought our expectations somewhat high, and we were felicitating ourselves in the good fortune we were about to experience of having a full volume octavo compressed into an hour's delightful talk. Multum sine magna labore. What then was our disappointment when the lecture ended and we were as ignorant of Chief Justice Parsons as when it began! Had not the hand-bills told us so, we should have no more suspected that the lecture was on Chief Justice Parsons than on any other good lawyer about his time or poor one at the present time. That Theophilus Parsons was born at Byfield, that he graduated at Cambridge, that he became a member of the bar, that he was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1788, and that he afterwards was made Chief Justice of the State—all this, if we had not known it before, we should have learned, and more than this, nothing. What was the character of Parsons—his individuality in private and public—his early experiences, his cast of mind as shown by illustration, his power of intellect as indicated by signal efforts, his modes of study, his style of speech, his tastes, his pleasures, his idiosyncrasies, his manhood and his manner—all this, which we wanted to learn, we learned nothing of. We did, however, learn something of the Chief Justice's father, and, had not the handbills said otherwise, we should have thought the lecture was on the father and not on the son. The father was eulogized very liberally, and in the view of the speaker, the audience must have inferred that his crowning act of praise was his holding slaves and not emancipating them at the instance of a certain decree; and that the said deacon's chief praise was, that he afterwards repented having urged his pastor not to be a slaveholder.

As to the rest of the lecture (the same being three-fourth parts thereof,) it may be summed up as follows: "Glory to the Constitution—especially to State Rights!"

